And Russia's attempt to create a class of Jewish farmers – a topic with which Nathans deals at some length – failed.

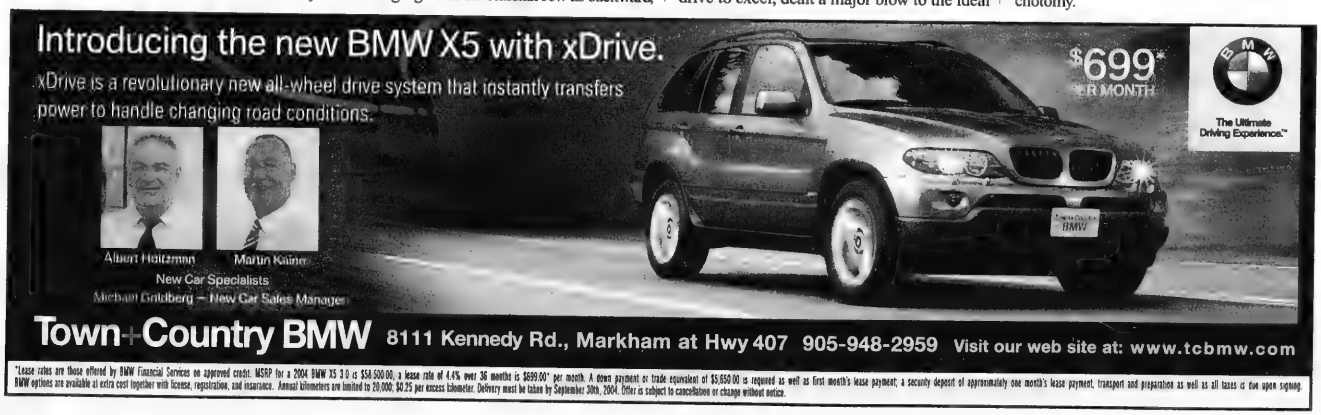
State-sponsored Jewish agricultural colonies did not attract more than several hundred families. Membership in these colonies rose when Czar Nicholas I exempted farmers from military service. But this was merely a temporary phenomenon.

The outbreak of pogroms in 1882 galvanized the Zionist movement, led to mass emigration and disillusioned progressive Jews who had faith in selective integration.

Convinced that czarist officials had instigated the pogroms, and shocked by the discriminatory legislation that followed, many members of the Jewish elite gradually ceased to regard the government as an engine for reform and change.

By the turn of the 20th century, two Russian Jewries had emerged – the mass of legally and culturally segregated Jews confined to the Pale (which was effectively abolished in 1915), and the small but growing community of Jews beyond the Pale.

It would take the weight of the momentous 1917 revolution to break up this curious dichotomy.



Introducing the new BMW X5 with xDrive.
xDrive is a revolutionary new all-wheel drive system that instantly transfers power to handle changing road conditions.
$699* PER MONTH
The Ultimate Driving Experience.™
Albert Heitzmann
Martin Kainer
New Car Specialists
Michael Goldberg – New Car Sales Manager
Town+Country BMW 8111 Kennedy Rd., Markham at Hwy 407 905-948-2959 Visit our web site at: www.tcbmw.com
Lease rates are those offered by BMW Financial Services on approved credit. MSRP for a 2004 BMW X5 3.0 is $58,500.00, a lease rate of 4.4% over 36 months is $699.00 per month. A down payment or trade equivalent of $5,650.00 is required as well as first month's lease payment; a security deposit of approximately one month's lease payment; transport and preparation as well as all taxes is due upon signing. BMW options are available at extra cost together with license, registration, and insurance. Annual kilometers are limited to 20,000; $0.25 per excess kilometer. Delivery must be taken by September 30th, 2004. Offer is subject to cancellation or change without notice.

Decision on Ahenakew's Order of Canada to await trial

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

Canadian Jewish Congress agrees with a statement by the Governor General that a decision on whether to strip David Ahenakew of his designation as a Member of the Order of Canada should be made after his criminal trial later this fall.

Gov. Gen. Adrienne Clarkson "should not do anything in the public sphere that might be used in his defence, [to claim] that he can't get a fair trial," said Ed Morgan, president of Canadian Jewish Congress.

"After the criminal trial, the Governor General should think very seriously of [revoking the honour]."

Last week, Clarkson told the editorial board of the Vancouver Sun that while she was distressed with Ahenakew's comments, she had been told by an advisory council headed by Chief Justice Beverley McLachlin that any decision on withdrawing the prestigious award should be deferred until after the trial.

Ahenakew, who served as chief of the Federation of Saskatchewan Indian Nations for 10 years, faces hate crimes charges as a result of comments he made to a reporter in December 2002 in which he called Jews a "disease" and suggested Jews deserved to be "fried" by Hitler. He has pleaded not guilty and will be tried in November.

Morgan said Clarkson should reconsider Ahenakew's Order of Canada regardless of the trial's outcome. Ahenakew's comments are on the public record and a possible acquittal on a technicality should not affect her decision, Morgan said.

POLICE CHIEF ADDRESSES SENIORS: Toronto Police Chief Julian Fantino was recently a guest speaker at Baycrest Centre's seniors' residence, the Reuben Cipin Healthy Living Community. Nearly every seat was filled in the residence's community hall, where Fantino spoke about rising gang violence and the troubling spate of hate crimes against the Jewish community. He emphasized the importance of raising children to be caring adult citizens who embrace diversity and respect one another's cultural and religious differences. Above, the police chief hugs resident Blema Mazin.

חבד
cheder chabad

SHMUEL ZAHAVY CHEDER CHABAD

16th Annual Dinner & Draw

Honouring Alfred Kwinter

Monday, October 18, 2004
Cheshvan 3, 5765
at Le Parc
8432 Leslie Street, Thornhill, Ontario

For further information, please call 416-663-1972.

AIDS IN AFRICA

JOIN US FOR AN EVENING OF MULTI-FAITH DISCUSSION

A CALL TO ACTION

How can we work together to best respond to this epidemic?

What are the rewards and challenges associated with collaborative, multi-faith efforts in addressing this issue?

THURSDAY, Oct. 14, 2004 7-9pm
First Narayever Congregation, 187 Brunswick Ave., Toronto

The multi-faith panelists' first hand perspective will open your heart and mind to the plight of the many people suffering from HIV/AIDS in Zimbabwe.
Our objective is to raise consciousness about this staggering health care crisis and to mobilize personal, professional and spiritual resources to play a healing role in our world.

See a beautiful and moving Photo Exhibit of Howard Hospital, Where HIV rate is close to 40%

For more information and to RSVP, call Maya at Ve'ahavta at 416-964-7698 x 16 or visit our website at www.veahavta.org

A Free Event Hosted By Ve'ahavta; The Canadian Jewish Humanitarian & relief Committee

Project undertaken with the financial support of the Government of Canada provided through the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA)

Agence canadienne de développement international Canadian International Development Agency

Ve'ahavta

Seniors musical revue serves up a lot of laughs

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

The Seniors Performing Group presented A Zany Musical Revue 2004 recently at Earl Bales Community Centre for three performances. The variety show was more than zany and more than a musical.

The vibrant seniors, in their early 70s to 83, sang, danced, mimed and told jokes to the delight of their sold-out audiences.

They performed with gusto and mirth and were joined on stage by some younger members of their families – their children and grandchildren.

Three generations participated in the performance. Dorothy Little was the writer and director of the show. Her daughter, singer/pianist Rhonda Silver, accompanied the vocalists and sang I'm Going to Sit Right Down and Write Myself a Letter. Silver's 20-year-old son, Jeremy Smith, who handled the sound system for the production, sang I'm a Fool to Want You, which delighted the audience.

Esther Finocchiaro's All That Jazz, from the musical Chicago, and Ray Kay's rendition of Let Me Entertain You set the tone for the upbeat revue.

Many of the tunes focused on the humour found in aspects of aging – Bathurst Street condominium living, seniors dating, health issues, sex and more – always with tongue firmly in cheek.

Shirley Katz, who served as emcee with Bettie Raibmon, sang songs by Liza Minnelli and a western ballad, You Can't Get a Man with a Gun.

In a musical skit titled Good Friends, Betty Shulman (cheerful), Shirley Luxenberg (grumpy) and Miriam Schott (sexy) played the characters one meets in an apartment complex.

Casey Manierka-Quaile, Peter Manierka's 12-year-old grandson, belted out, with verve and confidence, Somewhere Over the Rainbow. He was joined on stage, for the first time ever, by his grandfather. The duo sang the favourite There's No Business Like Show Business. The audience responded with singing and clapping for the freileche presentation and Zaide Peter shepped naches.

Three generations participated in A Zany Musical Revue. From left are writer and director Dorothy Little; Little's daughter, pianist Rhonda Silver and Little's grandson, sound technician and singer Jeremy Smith. [Cynthia Gasner photo]

In a comic skit titled The Bachelor, Schott, Sandy Bokser and Ray Kay sang to Manierka, each trying to convince him to chose her as a partner.

In a talent-audition skit titled The Jewish Idol, Shloimie the Shlepper, Hoity Goity the Curva and Moishe Pipic judged a Yiddish maidel from Minsk, a yeshiva bocher and a singing, swinging magician – demonstrating that amateur theatre brings much enjoyment to the performers as well as their appreciative audience.

Highlights of the show included a duet of two unmatched lovers, one (Betty Shulman) with a grotesque mask, and Edith Abrams, singing If You Could See Her Through My Eyes from Cabaret. An annual favourite, a Tom Jones-like rendition of Delilah featured a gyrating Lillian Friendly-Eigles.

Other performers included Arthur Sinukoff, Eva Goldberg, Vicki Gould, Ann Wein and Rudy Mayes.

The entire ensemble sang Enjoy Yourself, It's Later Than You Think for the finale.

Katz, the administrator of the Seniors Performing Group, says that "it's wonderful to see what seniors can accomplish and the joy that they get out of performing and watching others perform. We are an amazing group."

Little, who has produced many seniors' shows, says that she enjoys working with the group. "It is getting a little more difficult – but we all love to do it."

ROLEX•PATEK•CARTIER
DIAMONDS
BUY•SELL•TRADE
VAN RIJK JEWELLERS
440-1233 INSTANT CASH

Life goes on. We're just your back-up.

There are things to learn, friends to meet, new interests to explore. Maybe it's even time to write those memoirs... to research the family tree or to reconnect with friends from long ago via the magic of e-mail. So we make it easy for you. We'll cook your meals, clean your home, respect your privacy, and provide security 24 hours a day. All you have to do is live life the way you want to. We do the work... you do the living.

Forest Hill Place
645 CASTLEFIELD AVENUE, TORONTO, TEL. (416)785-1511 ORCA
Ask about our locations in Burlington, Oakville, Don Mills, Thornhill and Mississauga. www.lrc.ca

LIFESTYLE Retirement Communities

16 FULLY ESCORTED DAYS IN MAGICAL THAILAND
DECEMBER 17 - JANUARY 1
UNBELIEVABLE PRICE $3690 U.S.
(Total package worth over $5000 U.S.)
ONLY A FEW SEATS LEFT!
"New Year's Eve Gala in Bangkok"
Includes return airfare from Toronto with Cathay Pacific, 1st class hotels, most lunches & dinners, spectacular rain forests, exotic trips & superior guides
For full itinerary & more information contact
Itia Golan 905-886-6770

look
hair studio
"Where hands, mind and heart become one with the spirit at look"
SIDEWALK SALE
25% to 50% off
all selected retail products including Phytologie, L'Oreal, Kerastase and Rusk
Only Friday and Saturday
September 17th, 18th, 24th, 25th and October 1st and 2nd
1820 Bayview Avenue
(Bayview, 2 blocks north of Eglinton)
416-322-5665

Canadian Friends of LANIADO HOSPITAL, ONTARIO REGION presents the 13th Annual
Dr. Joseph Weil
Memorial Lecture
featuring
MICHAEL COREN

Michael Coren
Broadcaster, columnist and host of the nightly television show "Michael Coren Live" on CTS and CFRB radio's "Michael Coren Show". He also writes a weekly column for the Toronto Sun, syndicated throughout Canada. He is a best-selling author of ten books.
TOPIC:
Israel and Jews in the Media
Sponsorship Opportunities Including Private Reception, Program Recognition, Reserved Seating, Etc.
Tuesday, October 12, 2004 - 8 pm
Shaarei Shomayim Congregation
470 Glencairn Avenue, Toronto
Early Deadline For Tickets Order Today To Avoid Disappointment
Tickets: $18.00* In Advance
* Full tax receipt provided
Call 416-785-8946
For Tickets and Sponsorship Info
LANIADO, NETANYA'S ONLY HOSPITAL CONTINUES TO COPE VALIANTLY WITH THE VICTIMS OF TERRORISM. YOUR HELP IS URGENTLY NEEDED NOW MORE THAN EVER BEFORE!
PROCEEDS TO LANIADO'S NEW CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL BEING BUILT AS A LIVING MEMORIAL TO THE 1½ MILLION CHILDREN WHO PERISHED IN THE HOLOCAUST.

Jewish Life

Sukkot's lesson for the war on terror

By RABBI YEHIEL BEN AYON

There is an important element of universalism in the festival of Sukkot. During the course of the holiday, 70 offerings were to be made in the Temple. These offerings were on behalf of all the nations of the world. The sacrifice of Israel came last and was made on Shmini Atzeret.

In the recent history of terror, we have seen this order reversed. First it was the Israelis who were sacrificed on the altar of terror, and then the other nations of the world.

It all began at the Munich Olympic games in 1972. Eleven Israeli athletes were massacred, and yet the Games went on. Two years later in Israel, 21 children and five adults were killed at a Ma'alot schoolhouse. Then there were the slew of El Al hijackings. In those years, when the daily news was punctuated by these acts of terror, the rest of the world stood by and went on with its business, believing that only Israel would be the target of terror.

With the intifadah, when the preferred method of terror became the suicide bomber, this too was seen as a specific, if not exclusive, problem for the Jews of Israel. The world watched in silence from the safety of the sidelines. Some European countries made deals with the terrorists, believing they could buy themselves a measure of immunity from terror.

Then, like a plague, terror spread with a vengeance over much of the planet. The vulnerability of the entire world was quickly and clearly exposed. America's Twin Towers, bombings in Bali, explosions in Madrid, and, most recently, hundreds of children taken hostage and murdered in Beslan showed this clearly. Even France, the darling of the Muslim world, found it had no immunity, despite its opposition to the war in Iraq, as two of its journalists were kidnapped by Islamic fanatics in that country and are being held hostage.

For the longest time, the world deluded itself in the belief that terror was someone else's problem. But the world now sees that the reality of terror unchecked is not a distant problem that is specific to Israelis.

Terror can disrupt and alter the politics of a country as much as it can disrupt the lives of a people. When a terrorist strikes, his most formidable weapon is his very life. By definition, a terrorist is one who says, "There is nothing you can do to me, for in executing my act of terrorism, I myself am prepared to take my own life. What else can you do to me?"

We will stop the scourge of terrorism when all people understand that they not only inhabit the same universe as everyone else, but that they are connected to their fellow human beings and everything that happens, good or not, has consequences for everyone.

When that happens, our civilization will have made another great stride.

British Jewry in the Victorian age

By ZE'EV GLICENSTEIN

It is not commonly known that 14 large asteroids in the asteroid belt between Mars and Jupiter were discovered by Herman Goldschmidt, a French-Jewish astronomer and artist, over a remarkable decade of scientific achievement beginning in 1852.

Since only 20 asteroids had been known to science before Goldschmidt's heavenly investigations, which he began with only a crude glass pointed upward from a Paris rooftop, he won the French Legion of Honour and many other awards. Upon his death in 1866, the London Jewish Chronicle carried an extensive obituary that summarized his then-notable career, which is as forgotten today as any of the "little planets" that he charted and named.

Goldschmidt's obit and many thousands of other items of interest to London's large Jewish community of the 1860s have been reprinted in the recently released second volume of The Jewish Victorian: Genealogical Information from the Jewish Newspapers 1861-1870, compiled by Doreen Berger.

Like its predecessor volume, which covered the 1870s, the new volume offers an invaluable window onto the Jews of London and the British provinces of the middle Victorian period. Typeset in small type and set in three columns, each of its 396 pages is crammed with family, social and historical details about British Jewry.

Berger, who deserves a medal for the Herculean task of transcribing and editing, has included everything of interest to a genealogist or historian. More than a compendium of births, bar mitzvahs, marriages and deaths, The Jewish Victorian presents countless riveting accounts of court proceedings, crimes, fires, gruesome accidents, abductions of Jewish children and other occurrences that bring the era to life. Many pages recount episodes in the lives of the Montefiores, Sassoons, Rothschilds, Disraelis and other well-known personages.

Thomas Jackson, an East Holborn pawnbroker, was obliged to give evidence in court on a Saturday, but declined to sign his name to a deposition because "it is our Sabbath." Ordered to sign before leaving the courtroom, he replied, "Then I'll stay until our Sabbath is over." Threatened with imprisonment for seven or 14 days, Jackson ultimately signed. The Jewish Chronicle noted that a Newcastle newspaper reported the incident as "an amusing scene."

A memorable bar mitzvah occurred at the Portland Street Synagogue in 1869, the Chronicle reported. "An inmate of Jew's Deaf & Dumb Home, having attained the age of bar mitzvah, was called to the Sepher, and pronounced blessings in an audible voice. The boy was what is called a deaf mute... We need scarcely say the incident evinced considerable emotion. After the service, many persons crowded round the bar mitzvah boy and congratulated him."

Numerous entries help us reconstruct the remarkable career of an obscure Jewish traveller, the Moldavian-born Joseph Israel, who changed his name to Benjamin Traveler (II) in honour of his medieval antecedent, Benjamin of Tudela. Seeking remnants of the lost tribes of Israel, Traveler traversed continents, published several books of travels, and died in 1864 at the age of 40.

Anyone doing research into British-Jewish ancestors will find The Jewish Victorian both fascinating and indispensible. Kudos to Ms. Berger, who has already begun compiling a third volume for the 1880s. (The publisher, Robert Boyd, may be e-mailed at Boydpubs@aol.com)

Another recent title – The East End: Four Centuries of London Life, by Alan Palmer, with an introduction by Peter Ackroyd – provides excellent background into the east London neighbourhoods that absorbed multitudes of Jewish refugees in the late 19th century. Since several of my great-grandparents reached east London as early as 1866, I'm intrigued by Palmer's thorough descriptions of the colourful areas where my ancestors once walked.

Jewish Life

Empirical data about spiritual realities?

Sir John Templeton: Supporting Scientific Research for Spiritual Discoveries* by Robert L. Herrmann, Templeton Foundation Press, $14.95.

Books
By Richard Baskin

Often dubbed "the wizard of Wall Street," John Templeton retired in 1992 after selling his stocks for $440 million. He launched his flagship fund, the Templeton Growth Fund, in 1954. Each $100,000 invested then, with distribution reinvested, would grow to total $55 million in 1999.

In his old age, Templeton set up a well-endowed foundation to obtain solid empirical data about spiritual realities: God, humility, compassion, truthfulness and worship. Included was an annual cash award of more than $1 million to honour individuals who made a significant contribution to progress in religion.

Jewish winners have included Immanuel Jakobovits, the former chief rabbi of Great Britain, a leader in concern for medical ethics; and Sigmund Sternberg, a Hungarian-born British philanthropist who made possible the first papal visit to a synagogue.

Templeton feels that the future of spiritual understanding should not be left in the hands of people of restricted vision. He is convinced that this period in our history is the blossoming time, when the human enterprise is bursting into flower and the growth of human knowledge is accelerating at an incredible pace.

"The vast majority of working scientists realize that we are only beginning to be aware of the extent of our ignorance. The past few decades have brought most scientists to a sense of awe and to a new humility," he writes. "And some are once again looking at their science for philosophical and theological meaning, almost in the way many of the early scientists spoke of their scientific endeavours as opening the book of God's works." He believes that a great barrier to our becoming full flowering spiritual beings is our human egotism. We assume far more knowledge and ability then we possess. "And what we are most ignorant of is the Creator."

Templeton spent his childhood in rural Tennessee, attended Yale and Oxford, made a fortune, was knighted by Queen Elizabeth II and ultimately found a new mission in what he calls "humility theology science."

In his 92nd year he is an inspiring and inspirational force. He reminds us that more than a billion dollars a day are spent on scientific research. "If one-tenth of that were spent on research in spiritual subjects that would be a hundred million dollars a day. That would be visionary."

Questions abound: Can philanthropy and an elaborate network of spiritual investigation discover new and helpful insights into the relationship between religious and science? Why is there so little concern for religious fanaticism that leads to violence, dissension and war? Is it naive or quixotic to approach religion as a valid subject for scientific examination?

But Templeton remains unrelentingly hopeful and optimistic. "By an unbelievable miracle, billions of humans, each of whom is a colony of billions of atoms, have suddenly covered the face of the earth. Most amazing of all is that fact that the unseen minds of these humans are accumulating knowledge in explosive proportions – knowledge of themselves, of the universe, of their Creator."

Unhappily, this book, produced by the Templeton Foundation, is repetitive and over-concerned with family detail and Templeton achievements. The story of a remarkable personality becomes an exercise in hagiography.

Sukkot food: Have your 'fill'

By MARK MIETKIEWICZ

Sukkot is almost here, and like most Jewish holidays, it's time to get stuffed. But unlike the other festivals, I'm not just talking about the revellers. I'm referring to the foods themselves. Sukkot – along with Hoshanah Rabah and Simchat Torah – has an interesting relationship with stuffed foods. Today, a look at food for the harvest festival table, stuffed – and otherwise.

First a few examples. If you browse through the Sukkot section of one of the premier Jewish cooking sites, you'll find dozens of recipes for stuffing just about any vegetable you can think of and some fruit, too: squash, zucchini, artichokes, eggplants, avocados, tomatoes, beets and dates. And of course, let's not forget a mainstay of the holiday, the cabbage, with all its stuffed variations: galuptze from Russia, holishkes from Eastern Europe, sarmali from Romania and dolmas from Armenia. [http://tinyurl.com/6ms5n]

In Succulence for Sukkot and Simchat Torah, Gil Marks explains that while stuffed grape leaves became a harvest food staple in the Middle East, cabbage became a handy substitute in much of northern and eastern Europe. Marks includes recipes for Yaprakites de Peshe (Greek Fish in Grape Leaves), Zarkhop (Bukharan Lamb Stew with Vegetables) and Inferike (Syrian Meat and Potato Casserole). [http://tinyurl.com/67emj]

But why the connection to stuffed foods? Rabbi Mark Hurvitz offers this culinary metaphor. Sukkot "includes the notion of welcoming guests (both living and historical heroes) into the sukkah, thus 'stuffing' them into a wrapper of sorts." [http://itotd.com/index.alt?ArticleID=178]

The RJCJ Recipe Archives suggests that serving stuffed vegetables are like "miniature cornucopia symbolizing the plenty with which we have been blessed and for which we hope throughout the coming new year." [www. cyber-kitchen.com/ rjcj/] And food writer Norene Gilletz adds that cabbage rolls are often served on Simchat Torah because their cylindrical shape symbolizes the shape of the Torah scrolls. [www.gourmania.com/articles/sukkotcabrolls.htm]

Another filled food associated with the holiday is kreplach, traditionally eaten on the seventh day of Sukkot, Hoshanah Rabah. Hoshanah Rabah is when each person's judgment that had been written on Rosh Hashanah and sealed on Yom Kippur is finally handed over to the angel – giving us one last final chance to repent. [http://tinyurl.com/46p4d] So what's the connection to the humble kreplach? The Nishmas site suggests that judgment, symbolized by meat, is clothed in kindness, symbolized by the dough. [www.nishmas.org/minhagim/hoshraba.htm]

"The word 'kreplach' is Yiddish and is said to be derived from the Hebrew names of holidays on which this food is eaten: Before or after Yom Kippur (K), Hoshanah Rabah (R) and Purim (P). These holidays are connected to each other because they involve some sort of striking or beating: On Yom Kippur, we beat our heart in prayer; on Hoshanah Rabah, we beat willow branches; and on Purim, we beat (and blast and cream and clobber) Haman." [www.wzo.org.il/en/resources/view.asp?id=196]

Now that you know the reason, you can take you pick of 13 kreplach recipes in the Jewish Food Archives, including beef, kasha,chicken liver, cheese and bite-sized. [www.jewish-food.org/recipes/favindex.htm]

Finally, here's one lovely food that isn't filled. When Hoshanah Rabah ends, the holiday of Shmini Atzeret/Simchat Torah begins. During Simchat Torah, we complete – and then restart – reading the Torah aloud in the synagogue. The Union of American Hebrew Congregation's Jewish Parent Page says you can learn a lovely lesson while baking a Simchat Torah challah – with dough shaped like the Hebrew letters lamed and bet. The website explains that "the last word in Deuteronomy is Yisrael and the first word in Genesis is Breishit. If you take the final letter of Yisrael, the lamed, and the first letter of Breishit, the bet, and put them together they spell leib in Yiddish and lev in Hebrew, which means heart. The midrash tells us that the Torah is the lev – the heart of the Jewish people." [http://tinyurl.com/5p6ma]

Have a very ful-filling holiday.

Mark Mietkiewicz is a Toronto-based Internet producer who writes, lectures and teaches about the Jewish Internet. He can be reached at highway@ rogers.com.

— CORRECTION —
CAROL & MUNI BASMAN PRESENT
An innovative way to learn Yiddish
"SING AND LEARN YIDDISH"
Book and CD contains 18 Yiddish folksongs.
singandlearnyiddish.com
416-960-3333 1-866-960-3334 (toll free)

George Klein Designs
Designer of Fine Jewellery

Large Selection of Bar/Bat Mitzvah Gifts
Creative Custom Work
&
Remodelling
1575 Steeles Ave. E. Ste. 103
416-730-1755

Reena

Synagogues embrace Reena Clients

As in past years, Reena clients were given the opportunity to attend High Holiday Services in their neighbourhood synagogues at no charge.

Participation in religious practices is very important to our clients. Reena wishes to thank the boards and members of the following synagogues who invited and welcomed our clients into their communities:

Adath Israel
Beth David B'nai Israel Beth Am
Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda
Beth Radom
Beth Sholom
Pride of Israel
Shaar Shalom
Shaarei Tefillah
Temple Emanu-El
Temple Sinai

It should be noted that only those synagogues close to Reena homes were asked to accommodate our clients. We deeply appreciate their support.

Towards a better future ... integrating people with developmental disabilities into the community

FAMOUS ITALIAN DESIGNER LABEL BLOW OUT
FIRST TIME EVER
DIESEL Marlboro Classics GAS
FIRST QUALITY FALL & WINTER MERCHANDISE
50-90% OFF EVERYTHING
WEDNESDAY SEPT. 29TH TO SUNDAY OCT. 11TH ONLY!
MONDAY-FRIDAY .....11 AM - 9PM
SATURDAY .....10AM - 6PM
SUNDAY .....12 NOON - 5PM
2 GREAT LOCATIONS
508 BLOOR ST. EAST OF BATHURST 416-532-8755
617 B COLLEGE ST (UPSTAIRS) WEST OF CLINTON (NEXT TO Gigolo's) 416-536-9669
EVERYTHING MUST GO!
PRESENTED BY
brooker's & TRENDWEAR
2 HOUR FREE PARKING MINIMUM $125 PURCHASE
ALL MAJOR CREDIT CARDS ACCEPTED
NEW ARRIVALS DAILY
SWEATERS . . . OUTERWEAR . . . JACKETS . . . SHOES . . . JEANS . . . PANTS . . . TSHIRTS . . . ACCESSORIES

Adath Israel Congregation
Congregational High School - Jewish Studies Program
Adath Israel, Beth David, Beth Emeth, Beth Tikvah Synagogues
Grade Eight, Grade Nine, Grades Ten - Twelve (One Class)
Former Congregational and Day School Students
For Teenagers - A Social Educational Experience
- OPEN TO THE JEWISH COMMUNITY -

Join the 3 High School Classes who presently study in our program.
Study & Discuss
Faculty - Rabbis and Educators from Affiliated Synagogues
•RELEVANT TOPICS •SPECIAL PROGRAMS
Special March Break Trip - Washington / Montreal
Monday Evenings at Adath Israel Synagogue 5:00 - 7:00 p.m.
Shuttle Bus Service: (Promenade/Adath Israel)
OPENING DATE: MONDAY, OCTOBER 18TH, 2004 - 5:00 P.M.
TUITION: $395 (Supper Included)
Contact Cantor A. Edzell Kirshblum, M.Sc., Educational Director or Linda Schwartz, Senior Administrator at 416.635.5354 or by fax 416.635.1629
Programs funded or partially funded by the support of the UJA Federation of Greater Toronto
37 Southbourne Avenue • Toronto, Ontario • M3H 1A4
Tel: 416.635.5340 • Fax: 416.635.1629 • www.adathisrael.com • info@adathisrael.com

Greater Toronto Area

Cantor goes to Germany for Choir Olympics

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

Cantor Benjamin Maissner of Holy Blossom Temple says he could never have imagined that one day he would witness German soldiers carrying Israeli flags at an international music competition in Germany.

But that's just what he saw when Maissner attended the week-long 2004 Choir Olympics, held in Bremen, Germany, in July. The event featured some 19,000 children, youths and adults from 350 choirs – including three from Israel – competing in 12 categories.

The Choir Olympics are held every two years and were previously hosted by Australia and Korea. Maissner was appointed by the Reform movement's American Conference of Cantors as an official observer to represent North American Reform Jewry.

Maissner said it was "thrilling" to watch the opening ceremony, in which an orchestra from Budapest played a medley of songs from many nations.

"The entire stadium sang Haveinu Shalom Aleichem as the three Israeli choirs [Jean's, Kolot-Bat Yam and Li-Ron] marched in with their flags and people were cheering."

At the closing parade, Bremen Mayor Henning Scherf walked with the Israeli choirs and the German soldiers carrying the Israeli flags.

Scherf also invited Maissner to visit city hall and told Maissner that his daughter lives in Israel.

Maissner said few North American choirs were at the competition. He hopes encourage more Canadian and U.S. choirs, particularly Jewish ones, to take part in the next Choir Olympics, which will be held in 2006 in Xiamen, China.

"My hope is that Lachan, Toronto's Jewish chamber choir, which I direct, will attend the next Choir Olympics."

While in Bremen, Maissner was invited to lead a service on Shabbat at the city's only synagogue, and to present a concert.

Cantor Benjamin Maissner, left, and his wife Hope met with Mayor Henning Scherf of Bremen, Germany, when Maissner was in the city for the 2004 Choir Olympics.

"I met a Russian Jewish ba'al tshuvah there who wants to become a cantor. I helped him arrange to study cantorial music and provided him with some of my music," Maissner said.

The cantor also visited a seniors home in Hannover, Germany, where he presented another concert.

"Before the war, my uncle, Israel Alter, was the famous oberkantor – the chief cantor – of Hannover, where my father grew up," he said.

"[The residents of the home] told me that I brought back memories of their life before the war and their synagogue that was burned down on Kristallnacht. Where the synagogue stood, between two churches, there is now a memorial monument marking the place of the synagogue."

Hebrew lines included in play's new version

Continued from page 3

"In this girl, you see someone who has dreams. She is a spirited girl, even in the darkest times, and she tries to make the best of it while it overcomes her."

The lesson of optimism should appeal to audiences young and old, he says.

"This is about surviving whatever demons haunt you. Let's face it, a lot of suffering people can still relate to [The Diary of Anne Frank]."

He says Jewish audiences will appreciate the Hebrew lines in the new version of the play, such as the original Hebrew in the Chanukah blessings, which were not included in the 1955 Broadway version.

Galant also intends to round out some of the play's minor characters. The Van Daans, the couple who hide in the annex with the Frank family, are usually portrayed as instigators, but Galant includes a scene that explores how hiding has taken its toll.

"In this version, Mrs. Van Daan is far better written," Galant says.

Complementing the play will be 34 imported museum-quality panels, to be shown in the theatre lobby, that illustrate Anne's family and give a chronology of the Holocaust.

The Diary of Anne Frank previews from Oct. 1 to 4 and opens Oct. 5 and runs until Nov. 7. Tickets are $25 and $35. All performances take place at the Bathurst Street Theatre, 736 Bathurst Street. For tickets, call 416-872-1212.

HIGHLAND FARMS

Lower Prices

A lot Less to Pay Everyday

VISIT US TODAY AT FRESHATHIGHLANDFARMS.COM FOR MORE GREAT SAVINGS.

PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, GROWN AT THE HIGHLAND FARMS ORCHARD
fresh, fancy grade
McINTOSH & CORTLAND
APPLES
3.99 8LB POLY BAG

CHAI KOSHER, COR 218
canada grade A, frozen
ROCK CORNISH HENS
4.49 LB 9.90/KG

COKE, SPRITE & CANADA DRY
SOFT DRINKS
• regular • diet
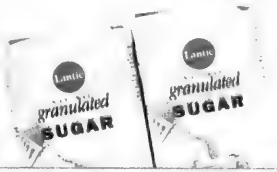
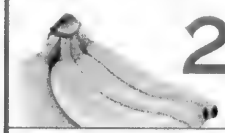
assorted varieties
99¢ 2LT PLASTIC BOTTLE

LANTIC, NATURAL, GRANULATED
WHITE SUGAR
1.69 2KG BAG



FROM THE TROPICS
fresh
BANANAS
29¢ LB 64/KG



MANISCHEWITZ, CELLO
SOUP
assorted varieties
99¢ 170G PKG

SPRING, ALL NATURAL
NECTAR
• mango • peach • apple • pear
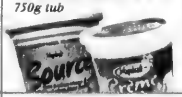
99¢ 330ML TIN

YOPLAIT, FAT FREE, SOURCE
YOGOURT
650g tub
CREME & FRUIT
YOGOURT
750g tub
99¢ EACH



PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, CANADA NO.1
fresh
YUKON GOLD POTATOES
1.99 10LB POLY BAG

TRADITION, INSTANT, CUP
SOUP
• vegetable beef • beef noodle
• tomato beef • chicken noodle
89¢ 70G PKG

GEVA
SUNFLOWER SEEDS
99¢ 200G PKG

BREYER'S, CLASSIC
ICE CREAM
assorted varieties
2/5.00 2LT TUB

PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, CANADA FANCY
fresh
BARTLETT PEARS
79¢ LB 1.74/KG

DIRECT PAYMENT · VISA · MasterCard

STORE HOURS:
MONDAY - SATURDAY 7:00A.M. TILL 10:00P.M.
SUNDAY HOURS 8:00A.M. TILL 8:00P.M.

4750 DUFFERIN ST. AT SUPERTEST RD. 416.736.6606	850 ELLESMERE RD. AT KENNEDY RD. 416.298.1999	148 BENNETT RD. AT LAWRENCE AVE. 416.282.5759	50 MATHESON BLVD. AT HURONTARIO 905.501.9910

KOSHER PRODUCTS AVAILABLE AT THE DUFFERIN LOCATION ONLY.

NESTLÉ, BACI
HAZELNUT CHOCOLATE
9.99 400G BOX

SPECIALS EFFECTIVE THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 30TH TO WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 6TH, 2004

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES • UNAUTHORIZED REPRODUCTION OR USE OF THIS ADVERTISEMENT WITHOUT THE WRITTEN CONSENT OF HIGHLAND FARMS AND ITS MARKETING AGENCY IS STRICTLY PROHIBITED

Hillel and NCSY to train future Israel advocates

By ELYSSE ZAREK
UJA Federation

Hillel of Greater Toronto, the voice of students on campus, supported by UJA Federation, and the National Conference of Synagogue Youth (NCSY), have teamed up for a new initiative designed for high school students interested in speaking out for Israel.

The program - which is open to students in grades 11 and 12 - will teach teens how to stand up for Israel now, so that when they reach university they will be fully equipped to respond to anti-Israel and antisemitic rhetoric, while avoiding confrontation.

NCSY will be identifying and recruiting 40 perspective students, with an emphasis on those attending public high schools.

The program will include 20 classroom sessions spread out over the academic year, covering topics such as what it means to be Jewish in the world, the leaders who shaped modern Israel, the history of Zionism, a comprehensive look at the ongoing conflict in the Middle East, and different ways to advocate for Israel.

Participants will also travel to Washington D.C. and Ottawa where they will take part in seminars led by members of Israel advocacy groups such as the Canadian Council for Israel and Jewish Affairs (CIJA) and AIPAC, the American Israel Public Affairs Committee.

"This is a unique and wonderful opportunity to connect with our students in the public high school system, and introduce them to the history of Israel," says Zac Kaye, executive director, Hillel of Greater Toronto. "This program will bring to campus highly trained, motivated and qualified student leaders advocating for Israel."

"We will be asking these students, 'why do you love Israel?' because on campus, those feelings are going to be challenged and they need to know how to respond," says Dovi Klein, director of the program for NCSY.

The ultimate aim of the program is twofold, says NCSY Canada director, Rabbi Glenn Black. "On a personal level, the students will be very confident about who they are and their connection to the Jewish people. And secondly, when they end up at university, they will be able to encourage other kids who are overwhelmed by politics on campus."

The National Conference of Synagogue Youth (NCSY), along with Hillel of Greater Toronto, has initiated an Israeli advocacy training program for students on campus.

"Sense of Spadina" turns 30

By DONNA BERNARDO
UJA Federation

This year marks the 30th anniversary of the Sense of Spadina tour sponsored by the UJA Federation Ontario Jewish Archives. Sense of Spadina is a walking tour which explores the history of the old Jewish neighbourhood surrounding Spadina Avenue. From the 1920s until the 1950s, the area was home to Jewish residents and businesses and was the focal point for social, cultural and religious activities within the Jewish community. Following the Second World War, Toronto's Jews began to move out of the area to the north end of the city and were replaced by new immigrant communities. But remnants of the former Jewish presence remain as a reminder of the community's vibrant past.

"As the Jewish community evolves, it is important that our links to the past remain intact," says Ellen Scheinberg, director of the Ontario Jewish Archives. "The Sense of Spadina Tour provides the opportunity for people to experience the beginnings of our community in a very tangible way."

The tour, which began in 1974, is, today, conducted for groups of 15 to 30 participants between the months of April and October.

"The tour has definitely grown over the years," says Cyrel Troster, who has been guiding it since its inception. "What happens is people identify with the story of the area and contribute their own stories, which often change the colour of the tour."

It all begins at the Anshei Minsk Synagogue on St. Andrews Street – one of two historic Orthodox synagogues in the Kensington Market area – and winds its way through the streets east of Spadina Avenue.

En route, participants visit the former sites of the Labour Lyceum, United Bakers, the Standard Theatre, Eitz Chaim Talmud Torah, Mandels Creamery, Beth Jacob Synagogue and many other important buildings that housed and serviced the early Jewish community. The tour ends at the Cecil Street Community Centre, that was once the site of the Ostrovtzer Synagogue.

The Ontario Jewish Archives will be conducting a public tour for individual participants on Sunday, October 3rd. For information or to reserve for your group please contact Donna Bernardo at the Ontario Jewish Archives: 416-635-2883 ext. 170 or oja1@ujafed.org

Betty Cooper (Trachter) and Al Cooper standing outside Trachter's Creamery at 71 Kensington Avenue, May 1925. Photo: Ontario Jewish Archives.

UJA Federation Campaign Update

UJA Federation Campaign 2005, an action plan for a safe Jewish future, currently stands at $24.5 million. To make a donation to the campaign, please call the UJA Federation Campaign Hotline at 416.631.5705, or visit www.jewishtoronto.com

Relief fund established for victims of Beslan massacre

By REBECCA GLUCK SOBERMAN
UJA Federation

In the wake of the hostage tragedy in Beslan, Russia, UJA Federation of Greater Toronto has set up a fund to provide emergency trauma relief by Israeli experts.

Close to 400 people, half of them children, lost their lives when a group of over 30 armed terrorists held more than 1,000 young students, their parents and teachers hostage at Beslan's Middle School No.1. earlier this month. The 53-hour siege ended in disaster as Russian forces stormed the school and the terrorists killed innocent victims.

"Watching the horrific images of terror and brutality broadcast into our homes from Beslan offered another all too real reminder of the dangers of hate and terrorism. Our hearts go out to any community that is under attack," said Leslie Gales, chair of the board, UJA Federation of Greater Toronto. "Through the newly created UJA Beslan Relief Fund, members of Toronto's Jewish community are sending a strong message of support and compassion to these victims, to let them know that they are not alone at this terrible time," added Gales.

Members of Beslan's Jewish community were spared in this tragedy. According to Faith Segal of the Jewish Agency For Israel (JAFI), UJA Federation's overseas partner, the last Jews from Beslan made aliyah about six months ago. Still, many immigrants to Israel from the area have been deeply affected by the event, after learning about the deaths of many former neighbours and friends.

Natalia Cheldaev, who made aliyah from Beslan with her daughter half a year ago, knew many who died in the hostage taking, including her best friend and her son. "All those people who were seeing us off, half of them are now dead," she said. "I still cannot comprehend what has happened."

Following the attack, Rabbi Berl Lazar, chief rabbi of Russia, appealed to Russia's Jews to pray for the quick recovery of those injured in the horrifying terrorist attack. He condemned the acts of the terrorists and called for unity against terror.

Evgenyi Stanovsky, the president of the Jewish Russian Congress, declared that the government of Russia must give its citizens weapons to protect themselves.

To contribute to the UJA Federation Beslan Relief Fund, please call 416-635-2883 ext. 174 or make your donation on-line at www.jewishtoronto.com by clicking the Beslan Relief Fund button.

A boy holds a wreath during the funeral of a hostage killed in the school siege in Beslan, Russia. Townspeople crowded around the coffins of children, parents, grandparents and teachers murdered in the attack. (AP Photo/Sergey Ponomarev)

JEWISH TORONTO IS PUBLISHED AS A COMMUNITY SERVICE BY UJA FEDERATION OF GREATER TORONTO.

Volunteers create a truly Super Sunday

Kickoff to Campaign 2005 telethons a success

By DANIEL HOROWITZ
UJA Federation

Super Week (September 19 to 23), which marked the first critical set of UJA Federation Campaign 2005 telethons, raised over $2.5 million this year, more than $1.5 million on Super Sunday, September 19, alone.

More than 500 volunteers contacted over 10,000 homes across the Greater Toronto Area during the week.

Super Sunday began with an unscheduled phone call from Eilat mayor Meir Yitzhak Halevy and Udi Gat, head of the surrounding Eilot Regional Council, during which both men thanked Toronto's Jewish community and pledged donations of their own.

The city of Eilat and the Eilot region are twinned with Toronto's Jewish community under the Partnership 2000 program.

"I feel very fortunate to be living at a time in history when we, as Jews, have the opportunity – and the choice – to support other Jews around the world," says Ruth Ekstein, who is chairing UJA telethons with Mark Satok. "As a child of Holocaust survivors, I know all too well that there have been times when we have not had that opportunity. It's wonderful and so satisfying to see so many eager volunteers – especially so many young people who are, after all, the next generation of Jewish leaders," adds Ekstein.

"To me, one of the most important aspects of Super Sunday and all the telethons is setting an example for our kids, to demonstrate to them what our responsibilities are as Jews," says Satok who was joined by his wife, mother and three young children.

Campaign 2005, UJA Federation's Action Plan for a safe Jewish future, will invest new dollars in four key areas at a time when worldwide antisemitism has reached alarming levels.

The Satok family helping out on Super Sunday: (l-r) Josh, 13, Lila, Ari, 12, and Mark with Jordana, 9, and Naomi seated in front.

Stephanie Ray, 13, one of several young people to volunteer on Super Sunday.

- Community Security: UJA Federation has initiated a special community task force to review local security needs, especially at schools and community centres. New dollars will fund the implementation of security measures recommended by the task force.
- A Strong Jewish Voice: UJA Federation is supporting the Canadian Council for Israel and Jewish Advocacy (CIJA) and other partner organizations that stand up for Israel and against antisemitism.
- Building a Stronger Israel: Campaign 2005 will invest in several programs in Israel with special focus on young people, to help the country recover from years of terror attacks and a weak, but recovering economy.
- Empowering a New Jewish Generation: Campaign 2005 will invest in training programs for young adults to help them counter antisemitism, and initiatives such as birthright israel and March of the Living, to help them connect more closely with Jewish life.

Randi Appleby Handler, left, and Miriam Rosenberg, telethon training chairs. (Super Sunday photos courtesy of Stephen Epstein/Big Dipper Communications.)

For Stephanie Ray, a 13 year-old Community Hebrew Academy of Toronto (CHAT) student taking part in her first telethon, Super Sunday made a positive impression.

"With all the terrible things happening here in Toronto recently, and, of course, the terrorism in Israel, it was a great chance for me to speak to people who wanted to help by giving money," says Ray. "It was very interesting and educational to hear what people have to say, and to see if they wanted to contribute. For the most part, people I called were just great."

Ruth Ekstein (right) takes to the phones along with her mother, Anita.

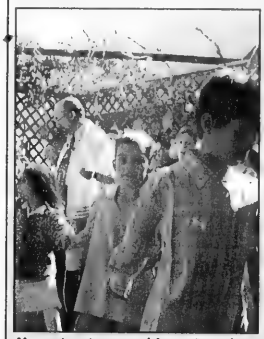
JIAS Toronto celebrates New Year with newcomers

By REBECCA GLUCK SOBERMAN
UJA Federation

Hundreds of newcomers to Toronto recently attended Chagei Tishrei (Holidays of Tishrei), as they celebrated their new lives in Toronto and the start of the Jewish New Year 5765.

The festive gathering, which was hosted by JIAS (Jewish Immigrant Aid Services) Toronto , was organized for Jewish families who have immigrated to Toronto within the last two years.

The gathering, which took place at the Leah Posluns Theatre earlier this week, included refreshments, a visit to the succah in celebration of Succot, and live music performed by a recent Argentinean immigrant, Javier Katz.



Young immigrants celebrate Succoth in Toronto.

"For me, the event was a way to share my music with those that are new to the community, just as I am," says Katz, 26, who arrived in Toronto on his own less than half a year ago and was matched with a family through the JIAS/UJA Federation Women's Campaign and Advocacy Family-to-Family Matching Project. "Playing for an audience that I can identify with was a wonderful welcome for them and a great way for me to give something back," he adds.

Olga Lazovsky, 54, who came to Canada from Israel at the end of August with her daughter, attended the event with her entire family, who arrived just in time for the High Holidays.

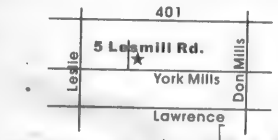
"It made me feel so welcome," Lazovsky says, with the help of a translator. "I am overwhelmed by the number of services offered to immigrants in Toronto. This event was a great social outing and a chance to meet other people," she adds.

The event is jointly sponsored by UJA Federation's Jewish Information Service of Greater Toronto, JIAS Toronto, Jewish Family & Child Service, JVS Toronto, the Bathurst Jewish Community Centre, and the UJA Federation Board of Jewish Education.

Any questions concerning information or photos that appear on these pages should be directed to jewishtorontonews@ujafed.org

JEWISH TORONTO IS PUBLISHED AS A COMMUNITY SERVICE BY UJA FEDERATION OF GREATER TORONTO.

Bayview
CUSTOM CARE CLEANERS
416-444-9571 416-844-8111



Why Try Bayview Cleaners?
- Friendly Family Operations
- All Work Done on the Premises
- Environment Friendly Processes
- Free Pickup & Delivery
- Satisfaction Guarantee(It's ready, It's right or It's FREE.)
- Free Cleaning of your Tallis, All Year Round
- Free Trial Cleaning up to $10 by bringing this Ad. in

A PRIVATE CARE HOME & CENTRE OF EXCELLENCE FOR 18 PERSONS

147 ELDER STREET
Managed by: SageCare Inc.

SERVING THE FRAIL ELDERLY & INDIVIDUALS WITH ALZHEIMER'S OR DEMENTIA

OUR FAMILIES WRITE:
- "We got all we hoped for & much more"
- "147 Elder Street is on the cutting edge – this is specialized, personalized care at its finest"
- "147 Elder Street is a home not an institution"
- "Your staff attend to Dad's needs so lovingly, we couldn't have done it better if he had stayed at home"

WE OFFER:
- Innovative, personalized programs
- Jewish content & Kosher meals
- Registered Nurse on site 24/7
- High 1:3 staff to resident ratio
- Multi-disciplinary caregiver team
- Improvements in physical and mental status

Telephone: 416 250-8965;
e-mail: sagecare@on.aibn.com
Website: www.sagecareonline.ca

Roslyn Schultz, MSW; Director;
Diane Dehne RN; Director of Care

Yiddish Classes for Everyone!

FREE

CHILDREN'S CLASSES
have already begun.
Limited spaces are still available.

ADULT YIDDISH CLASSES begin the week of October 10th.
Cost: $70 for 10 classes.

All classes are held at the Bathurst JJC,
4588 Bathurst Street, Toronto.

For more information or to register call
416-635-2883 ext. 270

UJA FEDERATION
Together We're Stronger

Sponsored by Committee for Yiddish, UJA Federation

Adath Israel to honour its ritual administrator

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

Baruch Hoffman

You might say that Baruch Hoffman traded a career helping people stay physically well for one that keeps them spiritually healthy when he became Adath Israel Congregation's chazzan sheni and ritual administrator 15 years ago.

Hoffman, a U.S. native who founded Israel's first health food store more than 20 years ago, moved to Toronto in 1989 with his wife to be closer to her family.

But when he arrived, he said, "I wasn't landed and, therefore, I couldn't work here."

Steven Emerson

Living near the synagogue, he was approached by a neighbour, Ida Koenigsberg, who told him that her husband, Alex Koenigsberg, the shul's long-serving sexton, was retiring and she encouraged Hoffman to apply for the position. Rabbi Irwin Schild, Adath Israel's rabbi emeritus, also suggested to Hoffman's father-in-law, Irving Kramer, that the warm and compassionate Hoffman should work at the shul.

He decided to apply under a clause in the Canada-U.S. free trade agreement that states if no qualified Canadian could be found to fill the position, he would automatically be granted his working papers at the shul.

Fifteen years later, Hoffman is grateful he did.

On Wednesday, Oct. 13, Adath Israel will pay tribute to him with a dinner in his honour. The gala will be followed at 8 p.m. by a community-wide lecture featuring Steven Emerson, executive director of the Investigative Project, the largest intelligence and data-gathering centre in the world on militant Islamic activities.

Proceeds of the evening will support Adath Israel's religious and educational programs.

The invitation calls Hoffman "an unassuming man who reflects the foundation of Torah, kindness, respect, humour and integrity."

He is involved in nearly all aspects of the shul's activities, including teaching both adults and children to daven and read from the Torah, as well as the shul's very successful daily minyans, which are attended by more than 100 people each weekday morning.

At one recent morning service, Hoffman – who is variously described by congregants as "friendly" "welcoming" and "supportive" – could be seen encouraging the bar mitzvah boy, whom he had taught his portion, and with his carefree personality, he set the mood for the simchah.

While speaking to The CJN, Hoffman warmly greeted members of the congregation who popped by his office to chat or to ask a question.

In between, he talked of his joy at being associated with Adath Israel and working with both its professionals and its board.

"The clergy at Adath Israel are friends as well as colleagues," he said. "And we work together as a partnership, as we do with the synagogue's leadership and support staff."

He describes helping congregants as one of the most rewarding parts of his job.

"I feel I can be supportive of people through all life-cycle events, both happy and sad," he said.

And, he added, "many who come to services are not members of Adath Israel, but we have created a warm and friendly atmosphere and we are there to help, if they need help."

Hoffman was born in Philadelphia, a seventh-generation American. In 1981, he moved to Jerusalem with his wife and two children and opened the American Health Food Store.

He divorced in 1985, and in 1986, he married Dvorah Kramer, a Torontonian living in Jerusalem who was a customer at his health food store. After they wed, they moved to Moshav Meor Modiin, which was founded by the late Rabbi Shlomo Carlebach outside Lod.

Three years later, they decided they wanted to live near family in Philadelphia or Toronto, and they chose Toronto.

Rabbi Steven Saltzman, Adath Israel's senior rabbi, calls Hoffman "a man of great integrity whose gentle approach to people brings them closer to their Jewish roots.

"He is loved by everyone who comes in contact with him and he is always there to help people through the trials of their lives."

Emerson, the guest speaker, is an award-winning investigative journalist who appears regularly on MSNBC and received the 1995 George Polk Award for best television documentary for Jihad in America.

For reservations for the dinner or the lecture, call 416-635-5340.

Yad Vashem gala to celebrate new museum

By CAROLYN BLACKMAN
Staff Reporter

The Yad Vashem 2004 Gala Dinner, to be held Nov.14 at the downtown Marriott Hotel on Bay Street, is a celebration of the opening of the new Holocaust History Museum at Yad Vashem in Jerusalem.

At the dinner, Yad Vashem awards will be presented to Dr. Max and Gianna Glassman, who endowed a balcony at the museum that overlooks the northwestern portion of Jerusalem, and the Koschitzky family, who donated money to help develop a Yad Vashem curriculum for middle school students studying the Holocaust.

Hetty Shapiro, executive director of Canadian Society for Yad Vashem, said proceeds from the dinner will go toward purchasing shuttle buses to provide comfortable touring of the 45-acre Yad Vashem campus.

The buses, endowed by Canadian Society for Yad Vashem, will make it possible for elderly people in particular to get around to all the exhibits, Shapiro said.

Keynote speaker at the dinner will be architect Moshe Safdie, the designer of the new museum, which officially opens in March 2005.

Dinner chair is former MP Art Eggleton. Campaign chair is Will Hechter, and national chair is Hank Rosenbaum.

For information, call 416-785-1333 or 1-888-494-7999. E-mail yadvashem@bellnet.ca.

The Canadian Society for Yad Vashem recently held a campaign launch for their 2004 Gala Dinner at the Liberty Grand, Toronto. Seen here, from left, are Hank Rosenbaum, national chair of the Canadian Society for Yad Vashem, Linda Hechter and Will Hechter, campaign chair 2004 Yad Vashem Gala Dinner.

'We want to report the news as we see fit:' Globe

Continued from page 5

The Globe and Mail got into the fray on the same day, with editor-in-chief Edward Greenspon writing that while the paper "resist[s] being guided by the emotions of one group or another, we are not reluctant to use the word 'terrorist' where we find it appropriate. But we want to report the news as we see fit, not get drawn into a game of political football."

Greenspon cited the Globe's style guide, which advises reporters to use "terrorist" to describe "groups or individuals who use violence against the innocent public, or the threat of it, to achieve political ends. The hijacking or bombing of planes, buses, public buildings, etc. is terrorism, but for clarity we do not use this term to describe raids on military and police personnel or installations."

Still, "any group that commits terrorist acts, even if it also engages in guerrilla activity, may be called terrorist," according to the Globe.

"In my view, to be terrified of the word terrorist is to give in to the terrorist," Greenspon wrote.

Andrea Levin, executive director of CAMERA, the Committee for Accuracy in Middle East Reporting in America, said Reuters' policy "mutes reality."

Reuters' policy 'mutes reality'

Although other media outlets "are also gradually moving away from the term, Reuters is a very extreme case of reticence," Levin told The CJN.

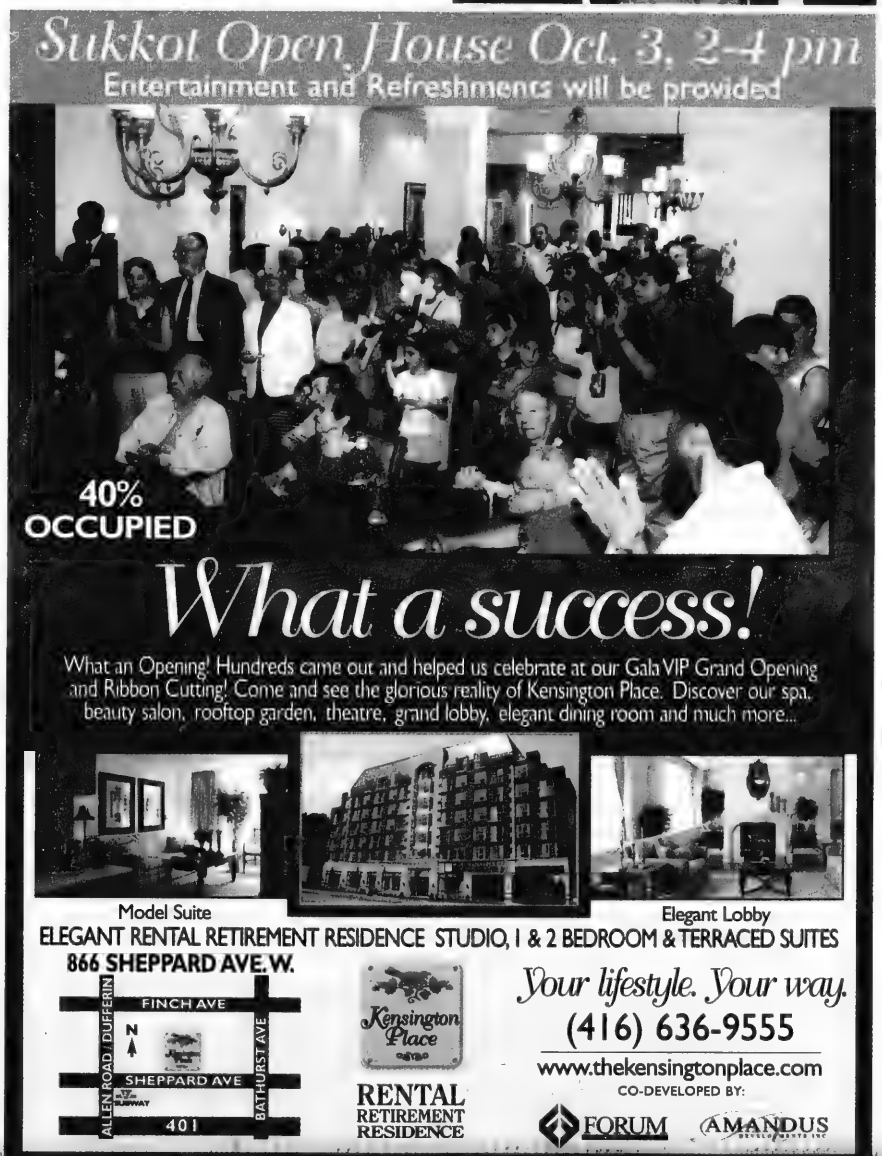
She also criticized the agency for "capitulating" to threats – real or perceived – to its reporters.

Writing last week in the Post, Levin asked: "If Reuters, or any other wire service, routinely substitutes gentler, inexact language for… deeds manifestly those of a terrorist, by what logic should a newspaper using the agency's wire copy not edit back into stories more accurate language?"

The media monitoring group Honest Reporting also got into the act last week.

"Reuters' top international editor openly acknowledges that one of the main reasons his agency refuses to call terrorists 'terrorists' has nothing to do with editorial pursuit of objectivity, but rather is a response to intimidation from thugs and their supporters," the group stated on its website.

"In every other news arena, western journalists pride themselves on bravely 'telling it as is,' regardless of their subjects' [potentially hostile] reactions. So why do editors at Reuters – and, presumably, other news outlets – bend over backwards to appease Islamic terrorists, using 'safe' language that deliberately minimizes their inhuman acts?"



Sukkot Open House Oct. 3, 2-4 pm
Entertainment and Refreshments will be provided 40% OCCUPIED
What a success!
What an Opening! Hundreds came out and helped us celebrate at our Gala VIP Grand Opening and Ribbon Cutting! Come and see the glorious reality of Kensington Place. Discover our spa, beauty salon, rooftop garden, theatre, grand lobby, elegant dining room and much more...
Model Suite
Elegant Lobby
ELEGANT RENTAL RETIREMENT RESIDENCE STUDIO, 1 & 2 BEDROOM & TERRACED SUITES 866 SHEPPARD AVE. W.
FINCH AVE
SHEPPARD AVE
401
ALLEN ROAD / DUFFERIN
BATHURST AVE
Kensington Place
RENTAL
RETIREMENT RESIDENCE
Your lifestyle. Your way.
(416) 636-9555
www.thekensingtonplace.com
CO-DEVELOPED BY:
FORUM
AMANDUS

Daniel Gordon was active in field of education

By LEILA SPEISMAN
Staff Reporter

Daniel Gordon, a man well-known in the Orthodox community who was active in educational matters, died earlier this month of cancer. He was 56.

His family has been in Toronto since 1904, when his grandfather, Rabbi Jacob Gordon came to take up the position of spiritual leader of the Lithuanian synagogue. He founded the Simcoe Street Talmud Torah, the predecessor of Associated Hebrew Schools.

Daniel Gordon was educated at Associated Hebrew Schools, CHAT, Ner Israel Yeshiva, Yeshiva University and Osgoode Hall.

About seven years ago, he left the practice of law and went into business.

He was very involved in supporting and working for Jewish education, especially Eitz Chaim Day Schools, which his children attended, and for the last six years, Tiferes Bais Yaakov. As well, he was active in the Torath Emeth congregation, and in the last 10 years, at Agudath Israel Anshei Keltz.

Rabbi Mordechai Ochs, spiritual leader of Torath Emeth, said he was particularly struck by "the exemplary devotion" Gordon showed in caring for his parents. "He considered it a privilege, not an effort."

Gordon was always looking for ways to revitalize the synagogue, Rabbi Ochs said, especially by making it comfortable for young people. As well, the rabbi said, Gordon loved learning, and both attended and led shiurim.

Rabbi Yitzchok Feigenbaum, principal of Tiferes Bais Yaakov, an Orthodox high school for girls, said Gordon was "the driving force behind the founding board. He was involved from before it started until the very end."

Unlike at Eitz Chaim, he had no children in the school, but "felt that there should be such a school, a school that would answer the questions that thinking Jewish teenagers have, and prepare them for the challenges of being part of the broader community," Rabbi Feigenbaum said.

Rabbi Feigenbaum described Gordon as "honest, straightforward and down to earth. He cared about the Jewish people, not about glory or accolades."

Gordon's wife, Cooky, said their family is an especially close one, and he took great pleasure in the fact that his three daughters and their families live in Toronto. (His son, Hillel, is studying in Israel, but is married to a woman from Toronto.)

The large number of people who attended his funeral attest to his being admired and respected across the whole community, she said.

Gordon is survived by his wife Cooky, brother Rabbi Jared Gordon, children Aviva and Avromi Abish, Sari and Tuli Spiro, Reena and Michael Mann, Hillel and Rachel, and 10 grandchildren.

Gerry Koffman

Federation exec. dir. 'passed on his enthusiasm to those around him'

By MYRON LOVE
Prairies Correspondent

WINNIPEG — Winnipeg's Jewish community is mourning the death of Gerry Koffman, the longtime executive director of the Jewish Federation of Winnipeg/Combined Jewish Appeal, who died Sept. 15, Erev Rosh Hashanah, after a short bout with cancer. He was 54.

Koffman, a native Winnipegger, began his career in community service here in the late 1970s. For several years, he served as deputy executive director of the Winnipeg Jewish Community Council, as it was then known.

In 1988, he left Winnipeg for the growing Jewish community of Ottawa to become executive director of the Jewish Community Council of Ottawa/Va'ad Hair. He returned to Winnipeg in 1994 to assume the federation leadership. One of his reasons for coming back was the death of his father at that time from cancer.

Under Koffman's leadership, the CJA campaign began to set ever-higher goals. The dollars raised have increased every year for the past five years, with the target for this year being $4.5 million, up $200,000 from last year.

Speaking at Koffman's funeral, his son Josh said his father was successful because he was a man of vision.

"It wasn't just about collecting money for my father," Josh said. "He was more interested in where it was going. That was more important. He was able to pass on his enthusiasm to all those around him."

Had adversaries, no enemies

In his eulogy, Rabbi Neal Rose observed that while Koffman may have had adversaries, he had no enemies.

Koffman's sister, Penny, who lives in Israel, recalled the number of missions that Koffman led to Israel and how excited he was to be able to introduce her to the Winnipeggers accompanying him on the missions.

Koffman was always positive and optimistic, despite a series of medical problems, including one eight years ago when he underwent a colostomy.

Koffman's cancer was discovered in May while he was preparing to undergo surgery to repair a hernia.

"Often, people who have had colostomies later develop hernias," he explained in an interview in late July. "I was to have had surgery to repair a hernia. Pre-surgery testing uncovered a tumour on my pancreas."

Although surgeons were able to remove one tumour, they found another, inoperable one wrapped around his pancreas. Koffman was hopeful that chemotherapy treatments could delay the inevitable, but he never regained the strength needed for the therapy.

Although Koffman realized the seriousness of his situation, he remained upbeat.

"I have kept in touch with the office and am doing as much as I can from home," he said in the July interview. "My colleagues at the federation, both lay and professional, have been outstanding in their support. Both Rachelle [Koffman's wife] and I have been moved and touched by their caring and concern."

Koffman is survived by his wife Rachelle, his son Josh and daughter Jodi, his mother Toby, his brother Kenny, and his in-laws Cantor Gerry and Peril Daien, as well as sisters- and brothers-in-law, and nieces and nephews.

SURPRISE! SURPRISE!
The Furniture Dump
Clearance Store is Now Open
You will be amazed at the "giveaway prices" on Designer Furniture and Accessories
905-761-6077
7855 Keele St. @ Hwy. #7

RENT A CAR
TAMIR תמיר
Enjoy your stay in Israel
with the best car rental prices, no hidden extras...
rate includes:
• All Airport charges • Free extra driver
• Free baby seat • Free mobile telephone
•Free delivery & pick-up anywhere in Israel (except Eilat)
For Reservation call Yehuda Ehrlich
1-800-to-TAMIR, 1-800-868-2647
or (732) 246-4163 Fax: (732) 246-3935
www.tamir-rental.co.il

Vinnette Mohan, C.C.Ht.
Director & Certified Clinical Hypnotherapist

A message from the Director of Positive Changes Toronto

Dear Valued Customer:

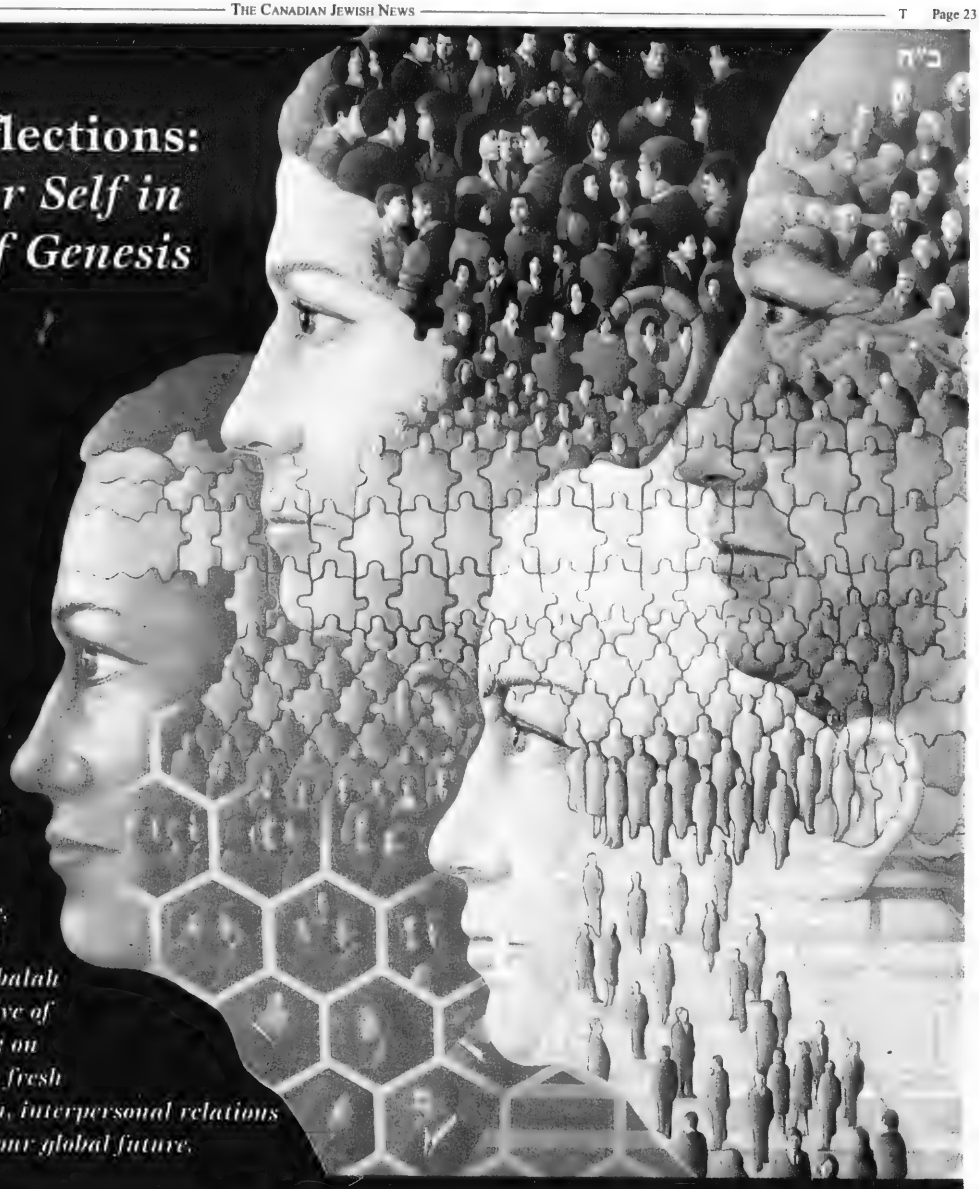
After five years at 421 Eglinton Avenue East, we've moved to York Mills and Leslie to serve you better.

If you're planning to lose weight, stop smoking, or make any other other Positive Change in the New Year, we can help. Give us a call; it will be our pleasure to address your needs and help you meet your goals.

– Vinnette Mohan, C.C.Ht., Director Of Operations Canada

CALL TODAY FOR YOUR FREE CONSULTATION
Positive Changes HYPNOSIS CENTRES Yes, It Works.
POSITIVE CHANGES TORONTO
416.488.4724 • 801 York Mills Road at Leslie
www.positivechangestoronto.com

Biblical Reflections:
Finding Your Self in the Stories of Genesis



The universal figures in the Book of Genesis provide profound lessons for the human experience that transcend time and culture. This eight-week course will probe the mysteries of Kabbalah and the intriguing narrative of Genesis to reveal a new look on your world and show you a fresh perspective on inner growth, interpersonal relations and an inspired vision for our global future.

Discover the Kabbalistic Mysteries of Genesis

TORONTO:
Forest Hill Collegiate, 730 Eglinton Ave. West
EIGHT WEDNESDAYS BEGINNING OCTOBER 27
7:30 - 9:00 p.m.

THORNHILL:
Chabad Lubavitch Community Centre, 770 Chabad Gate
EIGHT TUESDAYS BEGINNING OCTOBER 26
7:30 - 9:00 p.m.

Fee: $80 (textbook included)

905.731.7000

JEWISH LEARNING INSTITUTE
Adult Jewish Education –the Way It Was Meant To Be Register on-line @ www.myJLI.com

The National Board of License ACCREDITED

JLI

Survivors press demands with visiting Romanian president

By JANICE ARNOLD
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL – During his recent Montreal visit, Romanian President Ion Iliescu listened to the demands of the local Association of Romanian Jewish Survivors of the Holocaust (ARJSH), but was non-committal on whether his country will make a clear declaration of the extent of its responsibility in the destruction of the Jewish community during World War II.

Iliescu met briefly with ARJSH president Issie Veisfeld and secretary Rodica Rubinstein at a reception celebrating the 85 years of diplomatic relations between Romania and Canada. The meeting had been pre-arranged through Romanian Ambassador Liviu Maior.

The ARJSH wants what it calls a "final admission" from Romania that its wartime government and citizens took part in the Holocaust.

Veisfeld told Iliescu the Holocaust is taught in all Romanian schools, especially the part he says Romania, which was then led by the fascist Gen. Ion Antonescu, played in the deaths and deportations of Jews. The ARJSH also wants monetary compensation for Jewish properties confiscated or destroyed from 1940 to '45.

Before that can happen, Veisfeld maintains that Romania must publicly acknowledge that much of the killing was carried out by Romanians, and not shift the blame to the Germans. The ARJSH maintains approximately 350,000 Jews perished and many others suffered atrocities under Antonescu.

"We want to go back to say kaddish at the graves of those killed by Romanians, not the Germans," Veisfeld bluntly told Iliescu, who replied, "Yes, I know."

Veisfeld told Iliescu he understood that he must deal with members of his government who are not willing to confront the issue of the Holocaust.

In response, Iliescu mentioned that Nobel Prize laureate Elie Wiesel was recently in Romania. Wiesel heads a government commission of inquiry that was established last year into the deaths of Jews in Romania during the war. Iliescu created the commission in response to the uproar that ensued after a Romanian official denied the Holocaust ever took place in Romania.

Iliescu reiterated that his government is doing its best to determine the truth.

He added that he had been in Iasi recently, where he met its rabbi to plan a commemoration of the 1941 pogrom in that city.

> The ARJSH wants what it calls a 'final admission' from Romania that its wartime government and citizens took part in the Holocaust

Veisfeld presented Iliescu with a written statement that read: "We sincerely hope that you will finally clarify all of our questions, so that we, the remaining Jewish survivors of the Holocaust in Romania, may understand your real position, and not just hear empty promises."

It asks "when the Romanian government is prepared to act on their word," pointing to a statement made by Romanian Secretary of State Cristian Diaconescu at the 2003 conference on anti-Semitism in Vienna that acknowledges the official persecution of Jews in Romania during the war.

After the meeting, Veisfeld said he was disappointed. "Since 1990, we have been trying to get Romania to admit what it did. But until now, there have been no results." Iliescu, he said, was "diplomatic," but did not offer anything concrete.

Veisfeld, 79, a survivor of the Iasi pogrom, has waged a determined campaign to get post-communist Romania to admit to the "crimes" the wartime government committed.

In 1996, Veisfeld met face to face with then Romanian president Emil Constantinescu, when he visited Montreal, and presented him with a similar set of demands. Constantinescu was the first Romanian leader to acknowledge Romania's role in the Holocaust.

The only demand from that time that has been partially fulfilled, said Veisfeld, is the removal of statues of Antonescu in Romania. Some, however, still remain, he said. Although Holocaust education has been introduced in the schools, Veisfeld dismissed it by saying: "Yes, they teach that there was a Holocaust and six million Jews died, but they say the Germans did it. I understand why that is. They don't want kids coming home from school and saying, 'Grandpa, did you kill Jews?'"

As for property restitution, Veisfeld said Romania has acknowledged a responsibility in principle, but "there is so much red tape, it's meaningless."

About three years ago, Veisfeld visited Romania to further press his demands with government officials. He has also maintained a dialogue with Romanian representatives in Canada.

Ambassador Maior visited the Montreal Holocaust Memorial Centre museum, accompanied by Viesfeld, last June.

Iliescu, 74, completes his four-year term at the end of this year. He was Romania's first democratically elected president from 1990 to '95.

CAMP DIRECTOR
For Mon. to Fri., 8-week summer day camp program at Balfour Beach (Keswick), Lake Simcoe.
During the year, hire staff, programming, assist in recruiting campers, work with camp committee. Live on site in summer. Bring us your experience and creative spirit! Email resume to:
CAMP KATONIM
info@campkatonim.com

BUYING
OLD COINS
PAPER MONEY
ALL GOLD & SILVER
HIGHEST PRICES PAID BY CANADA'S LEADING NATIONAL BUYER
Canadian Coin & Currency
10211 Yonge St., Richmond Hill, ON
905-883-5300 www.cdncoin.com

Thank You

To relatives, family friends, members of the community at large, we would like to express our הכרת הטוב for your show of sympathy, your words of תנחומים, your letters, cards and the sharing of wonderful memories during the shiva for our late parents ז"ל. May we share only in simchos in the best of health, and may we be inscribed for a כתיבה וחתימה טובה.

Robert, Irving Benmergui and Families

Adath Israel Congregation
ADATH ISRAEL CONGREGATIONAL SCHOOL
Senior Kindergarten / Grade One
Three Teachers on Staff
Sundays 10:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m.
Professional Music Teacher,
Arts & Crafts, Class Trips
Five spaces still available
For further info: Linda Schwartz 416.635.5354

Everyone wishing to pray for physical, emotional or spiritual healing is invited to join in
UJA FEDERATION
A JEWISH SERVICE FOR HEALING
THE JEWISH HEALING PROJECT
This service will provide sustenance and healing in a safe and respectful community.It will include prayer, music, chanting, silent reflection and meditation.
Special Service for Succot
October 3rd, 2004 3:00–4:00 p.m.
Darchei Noam, 15 Hove Street
B'nai Brith Building (between Sheppard and Bathurst)
Service will be led by Rabbi Tina Grimberg, Congregation Darchei Noam and Judy Shier Weisberg, Musician and Holistic Practitioner
EVERYONE IS WELCOME.
Parking available NO FEE (Wheelchair accessible)
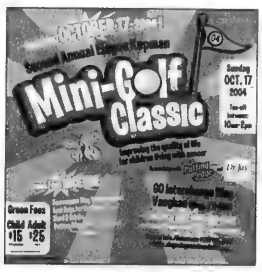
For information call Ms. Etta Ginsberg McEwan, Co-ordinator at 416-944-3359
Supported by the Philanthropic Fund of Toronto Hebrew Memorial Park and the Jewish Foundation of Greater Toronto

Mini-golf classic to raise funds for cancer research

Want to spend a Sunday playing mini- golf and not feel guilty about it?

Come out to the second annual Elayne Kopman Mini-Golf Classic, on Oct. 17, at the Putting Edge, 60 Interchange Way at Highway 7 and 400 in Vaughan.

Tee-off is anytime between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.



The green fee, $15 per child and $25 per adult, includes the game, loot bags, food and drinks, and a pass to the Putting Edge.

The purpose of the event is to raise funds for the Elayne Kopman Hope for Health Foundation for Cancer Research, which supports the prevention and treatment of all types of cancer.

In particular, it supports Dr. Neil Berinstein's advanced therapeutics program at Toronto's Sunnybrook Regional Cancer Centre. The goal is to raise funds for research into cancer prevention and therapies.

Among the projects the foundation has been involved in is purchasing equipment to allow early detection, training oncologists, and research into therapeutic vaccines.

Richard Kopman established the Elayne Kopman Hope for Health Foundation for Cancer Research in memory of his mother, Elayne, who died last year from lung cancer at the age of 54. Before her death, she was an active community volunteer, including for leukemia research.

For more information, call 416-485-8407, or e-mail, richard@elaynekopman-h4h.org.

Coast to Coast

Montrealers bring comfort to Be'er Sheva

By JANICE ARNOLD
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL – Maria Sokolov, 58, a Russian immigrant to Israel 13 years ago, worked in a laundry to help put her son through university in Ukraine, where he is studying pharmacy. She was taking the bus home in Be'er Sheva Aug. 31, when her life ended violently in one of two Palestinian suicide bombings that day.

FEDERATION CJA plans to pay for the rest of her son's education, said past president Marilyn Blumer, one of four representatives of the Montreal Jewish community who flew to Israel on the day of the attacks to offer comfort to the people of the Negev city.

Montreal has been twinned with Be'er Sheva for 15 years under the Jewish Agency's Partnership 2000, which encourages links between developing regions of Israel and Diaspora communities, through both fundraising and personal contact.

Sokolov's was one of two funerals the delegation attended during an intensive 10½-hour stay in Be'er Sheva.

Another gesture the federation wants to make is the creation of a scholarship at the absorption centre where Karine Malka, 23, worked with Ethiopian immigrants, Blumer said. The Montrealers paid their respects at Malka's shivah.

Blumer, federation executive vice-president Danyael Cantor and Rabbis Chaim Steinmetz and Reuben Poupko, both active in the federation, were on a plane to Israel late on the afternoon of Aug. 31, a Tuesday, and were back in Montreal three days later, on a Friday afternoon.

"It was an instinctive response. I wanted to be there to share their pain," said Blumer, who has visited Be'er Sheva about twice a year for many years and has formed close relationships. "Danyael called me at about 11:15 a.m. and I was at the airport at 2:15 p.m."

She did, however, have misgivings. "My second thought was: who am I to intrude on these people's grief? I am basically a stranger."

"Overwhelming" is the word the Montrealers used most frequently to describe the grief and suffering they saw, as well as the gratitude expressed by Be'er Sheva citizens for their having dropped everything and taken the earliest flight from Montreal in order to be with them.

"Whatever we did that day, however, pales in comparison to what Israelis are doing. I am humbled by the devotion and sacrifice of so many when tragedy strikes," said Rabbi Poupko. He hopes the visit sent the message that they are not alone at times like this, he added.

The delegation met in Tel Aviv with director-general Eytan Hyam and deputy director-general Dr. Jochanan Peiser of Be'er Sheva's Soroka Hospital, where the more than 100 wounded were treated and whose trauma unit was equipped in the last couple of years through donations from the Montreal Jewish community

After overnighting in Tel Aviv, the Montreal delegation headed to Be'er Sheva where they arrived at 9 a.m. They first met Be'er Sheva Mayor Yaakov Terner, a frequent visitor to Montreal.

They then attended the funeral of Eliyahu Uzan, 58.

After that, they laid a wreath at the site of the bombings, then spoke to to students at Mekif Alef high school which is twinned with Montreal's Herzliah high school.

Their next stop was the Soroka hospital where they visited about 10 of the injured, who were stable enough to receive people.

"One of the most amazing stories – one that I think is symbolic – was that of a 12-year-old Russian boy named Boris. He was hit by ball bearings lodged in the bomb which tore into his side and caused severe bleeding. His 15-year-old sister Olga, who was with him and less seriously injured, carried him on her back for a quarter of a mile to the hospital emergency room," said Rabbi Steinmetz.

Especially heart-wrenching was meeting Rachel Atash, the mother of the bombings' youngest victim, 3-year-old Aviel, her only child. Atash suffered extensive burns.

"She was just in shock," Rabbi Steinmetz said.

Blumer was surprised to see a group of men in kaffiyahs bearing flowers at the hospital. "They were Bedouin chiefs who had come to visit the victims. That's pretty brave."

The Montrealers were gratified to learn how useful the trauma equipment and the internal communications system, both funded by the federation, were in this tragedy. The phone lines often collapse in Israel after a terrorist act because so many people are calling to see if loved ones are all right. With the Montreal-funded system, the hospital was able to continue to reach staff uninterrupted and mobilize them to the emergency ward right away.

Continued on page 30

FEDERATION CJA officials Danyael Cantor (left), Rabbi Chaim Steinmetz, Rabbi Reuben Poupko and Marilyn Blumer gather at the hospital bedside of 13-year-old Boris and his sister Olga, both injured in the Be'er Sheva suicide bombings.

1ST 500 GUESTS WILL RECEIVE A FREE VITALITY GIFT BAG
Presented By
NU Life WELLNESS CLINIC & SoulRevival EVENT PRODUCTION Vitality
Health Expo 2004
Well Being Beauty Fitness
OCTOBER 3RD, 2004 10AM - 5PM
at the Le Jardin Special Event Centre (8440 Highway 27)
Come Explore VITALITY
● Largest Holistic Health Show Ever Held in Vaughan ● Information and Seminars
● Interactive Demonstrations ● Renowned Speakers ● Wine & Grappa Tasting
Call NU LIFE For Details!: 905-264-1668
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT TICKETMASTER:
416-870-8000 OR ONLINE @ WWW.TICKETMASTER.CA
SPONSORED BY YORK DOWNS PHARMACY
WWW.VITALITYHEALTHEXPO.COM

ISRAEL
in the line of FIRE
with Professor David Dewitt
Director, Centre for International and Security Studies and Professor of Political Science at York University
Wednesday, October 13, 7:30 – 9:30 p.m. at Kolel
$10 at the door > no pre-registration required.
Presenting the most current, topical and controversial political information about the situation in Israel.
This program is made possible through the generous funding provided by the participants of the Heart Mind and Soul Mission to Israel 2004.
כולל KOLEL
The Adult Centre for Liberal Jewish Learning
151 Eglinton Ave. W., Toronto, ON M4R 1A6
416-485-7007 web: www.kolel.org e-mail: learn@kolel.org

Lily Silver ז"ל
One soul, One life, one very special person who will always be remembered with love.
Our heartfelt sympathy
ORT CANADA Educating for life
Renette Berman - National President

Rosh Hashanah and Continuity...

This time of year in the Jewish calendar is all about beginnings and recommitments. Thankfully, once again, we are given the opportunity to begin anew and to recommit to the people, the values and the way of life that are most precious to us. If staying connected to the Jewish community in Canada and abroad is part of that new beginning for you , there is no better vehicle for doing so than The Canadian Jewish News.

As a way of helping individuals launch their new beginnings, The CJN is introducing a special continuity subscription offer in time for Rosh Hashanah. We have decided to offer our readers a special, one-time opportunity to provide their children or their grandchildren with their own subscription to The CJN.

A gift subscription for your child or grandchild, who does not already subscribe to The CJN, will cost $19.95 (taxes included) for one full year to anywhere in Canada.

Could there be a better gift at Rosh Hashanah for your child or grandchild than the opportunity to feel part of the Jewish community?

The Canadian Jewish news

1500 DON MILLS ROAD, STE. 205
NORTH YORK, ONTARIO M3B 3K4
TELEPHONE: 416-391-1836

SPECIAL OFFER GIFT SUBSCRIPTION
$19.95
Offer valid until Oct. 31/04

Gift from:	Please send The Canadian Jewish News to:
Name _____	Name _____
Address _____	Address _____
City _____	City _____
Province _____ Postal Code _____	Province _____ Postal Code _____

FUTURE RENEWAL NOTICES TO DONOR ❑ RECIPIENT ❑

CJN SUBSCRIPTION RATES

$19.95* 1 YR. CANADA ❑
* G.S.T IS INCLUDED
G.S.T. #R105201149

$100.00 U.S. 1YR. U.S. A. ❑
$110.00 U.S. 1YR. FOREIGN ❑

PLEASE RETURN WITH YOUR PAYMENT.

AMOUNT ENCLOSED$ _____
CHEQUE ENCLOSED ❑ OR VISA❑ OR MASTERCARD ❑ OR AMEX ❑
NUMBER _____
EXPIRY DATE _____
SIGNATURE _____

Coast to Coast

'Fonzie' kicks off Vancouver 2004 CJA campaign

By PETER CAULFIELD
Special to The CJN

VANCOUVER — Hollywood actor, writer and producer Henry Winkler, best known for his performance as the leather jacket-clad "The Fonz" in the 1974-84 TV series Happy Days, was keynote speaker at the opening event of the 2004 Vancouver Combined Jewish Appeal (CJA) campaign.

Henry Winkler

Winkler addressed a wide range of topics in a discursive Sept. 8 speech that took place in the sanctuary of Congregation Schara Tzedek synagogue. An overflow crowd of more than 1,100 attended the event.

"How do we, as individuals, become ourselves?" Winkler asked. "And how do we, as Jews, stay true to ourselves?"

Winkler, who was dyslexic as a child, said it is important for anyone pursuing a life goal to not be discouraged by temporary setbacks.

"Negative thinking can become a habit and it can prevent you from achieving your dream," Winkler said. "I got tired of being negative all the time and learned how to stop negative thoughts and turn them into positive thoughts. It's just as easy to be positive as it is to be negative."

Winkler said we should make the most of our time on Earth by giving of ourselves to other people. "We don't need to help everybody in the world, just one other person," he said. "And we can affect other people just by paying attention to them."

Begin by giving to children, Winkler said.

"Give the most to those with the most potential and who are the most vulnerable – little children," he said.

The theme of the 2004 campaign is "Because The Front Line Has Reached Our Backyard," which connects the terrorist attacks in Israel with the growing number of anti-Semitic incidents in Canada.

CJA chair Jeffrey Goldberg said the campaign is the best tool the Greater Vancouver Jewish community has to respond collectively to the challenges it faces.

"Our future security depends on not only the strength with which we stand together with the people of Israel and amongst ourselves in the face of the most serious attacks," Goldberg said. "It also depends on the quality of Jewish life we build for our children and ourselves. Only the CJA campaign enables you to touch all these responsibilities with a single gift."

Other speakers included Schara Tzedek spiritual leader Rabbi Andrew Rosenblatt, who gave the invocation, and Lyle Lexier, a member of the Jewish Community Centre Bagel Club, a social club for Jewish adults with special needs, disabilities, and challenges, who spoke about the trials and tribulations of living with a disability.

Goldberg introduced the members of the CJA campaign cabinet: Susan Mendelson, women's division chair; Mitch Gropper and Zev Shafran, vice-chairs for major gifts; Bill Kaplan, vice-chair for the professional divisions; Larry Vinegar, vice-chair for the business divisions; David Sacks, young leadership division chair; Helen Pinsky, community campaign chair; Alvin Wasserman, campaign marketing chair; Mark James, CJA strategic planning chair; and Bette Jane Israels and Mitch Gropper, co-chairs of the 2002 and 2003 campaigns.

Coast to Coast

Calling attention to a grave threat

According to Reports

By PAUL MICHAELS

At the time of this writing, just before the Jewish New Year, the Israeli media have been filled with stories about the threat posed by Iran's apparent determination to acquire nuclear weapons.

Major Canadian media outlets have not been oblivious to this threat either. Over the past two months, the Globe and Mail has devoted four editorials to the subject, a sure reflection of how seriously the paper views the Iranian menace. On Sept. 13, the day the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) met to evaluate, among other things, Tehran's atomic energy program, the Globe's editorial, "Iran's nuclear ambition," opened with these sobering words: "If there were ever any doubt about Iran's nuclear ambitions and about the threat these pose to the rest of the world, they should be laid to rest."

The paper then went on to catalogue the abundant evidence – including the technical detail that "Iran is reprocessing raw uranium into uranium hexafluoride, the raw material for nuclear fuel" – in order to draw as clear a picture as possible that Iran is undeniably on the road to acquiring nuclear weapons. Iran already boasts of having an advanced ballistic missile, the Shihab-3, capable of striking 1,300 kilometre away, Israel being a declared prime target, but by no means the only one.

The Globe's warning is dire: no matter who wins the U.S. presidential election in November, the United States cannot allow Iran to possess nuclear weapons, and unless Iran can be persuaded diplomatically to give up its nuclear ambitions, "conflict [is] inevitable."

On Sept. 14, the lead editorial in Israel's liberal newspaper Ha'aretz, "How to handle Iran's nukes," said: "Everyone prefers to handle the Iranian nuclear issue through diplomacy, to clarify to Iran that the price for nuclear armament is greater than its potential use, and that the world, through the IAEA, the UN and the countries willing to impose sanctions, will not leave Iran alone until it gives up its quest for weapons-grade uranium."

Like the Globe, Ha'aretz warns that "[if] the diplomatic road is blocked, the U.S. and Israel will be forced to resort to force to disrupt and thwart Iran's nuclear arms race… Use of force will be a last resort, but anyone who blocks diplomacy will force use of force even on those who abhor it."

That's quite an admonition – and prediction – from a newspaper respected around the world for its moderate, even dovish approach to Israeli-Arab relations. The Iranian threat is just this serious a matter.

Other countries with nuclear weapons include unstable regimes such as Pakistan (which widely sold its nuclear know-how abroad) and North Korea. What makes Iran an even more dangerous special case and cause for alarm? Ha'aretz's answer is that "Iran's special threat lies in the connection between a fanatic regime, whose declared aim is spreading the Islamic revolution and destroying Israel, and its ability to implement its doctrine." Ha'aretz reminds readers that "Even critics of Israel's nuclear ambiguity policy admit that no Israeli government has ever used it even as a threat, but simply for deterrence."

Indeed, anyone who has spent time in Egypt and Jordan knows that despite an abundance of anti-Israel propaganda, citizens of those countries do not worry that Israel plans to launch nuclear weapons in the region. (Radical left and right-wing critics in the West are more capable of promoting this fantasy.)

Like the Globe, Ha'aretz concludes that the choice is Iran's: "diplomatic conflict or military conflict."

By the time this article appears, the IAEA may already have recommended bringing Iran's violation of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty before the UN Security Council. This is certainly the time for the international community – led by the European "troika" of Great Britain, France, and Germany – to act to preserve international peace and security. The UN could impose sanctions on Iran for its secret efforts to enrich uranium used in the creation of nuclear bombs. Whether it does so remains to be seen.

Paul Michaels is communications director for the Canada-Israel Committee.

RIDING AGAINST HUNGER: The 10 members of "the Spokespeople" – five couples who are committed to tzedakah – completed a 43-kilometre bike-a-thon on Sept. 12 and raised more than $4,000 for MAZON Canada, A Jewish Response to Hunger. The group rides on behalf of a different charity every year.

Family Moments

only from The Canadian Jewish news

Mazel Tov to...

Mazel tov to Nicole Kirsh & Evan Aranoff who were were recently engaged.

GROLL

Ryan & Keren (nee Sucher) are thrilled to announce the birth of their son

CHARLIE SAM

(Hebrew name Yosef), born Saturday, September 11th, 2004 at 5:19 p.m., weighing 6 lbs. 5 oz. He is the adored first grandchild of Bubbie Fern & Pops Barry Groll and Safta Rolanda and Saba Coby Sucher. Charlie is named in loving memory of his great-grandfathers Sam Groll and Yosef Sucher. He is welcomed by his aunts, uncles & great-grandparents.

Sandy Donnenfield and Doug Donnenfield, and Roslyn Jacobsen announce the engagement of their children Jessica Donnenfield & Craig Jacobsen. Grandparents, Kitty & Jack Cotton and Annette Donnenfield.

Bubbie Gail & Zaidie Joe want to wish our grandson Josh Forberg, a very happy fourth birthday. We love you very much.

Happy fifth birthday Jordyn Bailey, daughter of Fara & Michael Forman. Love from your sister Samantha Taylor.

Happy third birthday Samantha Taylor. Love from your sister Jordyn Bailey.

SEND US YOUR PHOTOS!!

Label the back of all photos and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for return. Send all your photos to: The CJN, Family Moments, 1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, ON. M3B 3K4.

JNF
Say it with Trees
"In Loving Memory"
JEWISH NATIONAL FUND
416-638-7200

What's New

By REBECCA NADLER

INSCRIBE YOUR LOVED ONES ON THE YAD VASHEM HOLOCAUST WALL OF REMEMBRANCE
EARL BALES PARK - TORONTO
416-785-1333

What's New Deadlines: PLEASE NOTE HOLIDAY DEADLINES. Monday, Sept. 27, is the deadline for the Oct. 14 issue and Wednesday, Oct. 6, is the deadline for the Oct. 21 issue. Phone 416-391-1836, fax 416-391-0829 or e-mail rnadler@cjnews.com.

Saturday, Oct. 2

JAVA IN THE HUT

Hot soul, cool night, warm coffee and the glow of Havdalah. The Kolel Sukkah becomes a Turkish coffee house with Mark Weinstock of Bais Groove. 9:30-11:30 p.m. 151 Eglinton Ave. W. $10 in advance, pre-registration required. Call 416-485-7007, ext. 0, for reservations. Space limited.

Sunday, Oct. 3

HABONIM BREAKFAST

Habonim Breakfast Club presents "The Life and Times of Golda Meir," a multi-media presentation by Marcia Diamond. 10 a.m. at 5 Glen Park. $6 per person.

FRIENDS OF YIDDISH

Cantor Deborah Staiman performs "Gems of Yiddish Song" at the annual membership breakfast of Friends of Yiddish. 10:30 a.m. at 471 Lawrence Ave. W. Members free, guests $15. RSVP to Freda 416-665-3605 by Sept. 29.

FEMINIST BOOK GROUP

Feminist Book Discussion Group, Older Women's Network, will continue their discussion of the book "Dropped Threads II," edited by Carol Shields, at 1:45 p.m. For location and information, call Marge Mintz, 416-630-5049.

WINDSOR CONCERT

Ruth Kaye performs My Grandmother, My Mother and Me at the Eighth Annual Daniel and Anne Katzman Concert at the Windsor Jewish Community Centre. 2 p.m. $10. Tickets are available at the centre.

A HEALING SERVICE

Experience hope, comfort, faith and support at a healing service led by Rabbi Tina Grimberg and Judy Shier Weisberg, musician and holistic practitioner, 3 p.m. at 15 Hove St. Includes a special Sukkot service. Wheelchair accessible, parking, no fee, open to the public. Call Etta, 416-944-3359.

BURLINGTON CONCERT

A Touch of Klez performs at the Burlington Art Centre, 1333 Lakeshore Ave. 3 p.m. Tickets $10 in advance, $12 at the door. Call 905-331-6857 or e-mail touchofklez@studioj.org.

SUKKOT PARTY BARBECUE

Aish Hatorah's Annual Sukkot Party Barbecue for families and singles takes place at 4 p.m. at 949 Clark Ave. Food and entertainment included in one price. For registration and information call 905-764-1818.

Monday, Oct. 4

SUKKAH DEBATE

"The Great Sukkah Debate," between Rabbi Steven Saltzman of Adath Israel Congregation and Rabbi Wayne Allen of Beth Tikvah Synagogue. 7:30 p.m. at Beth Tikvah. 416-635-5340.

Other news

ISRAEL/JEWS IN THE MEDIA

Canadian Friends of Laniado Hospital is holding its 13th annual Dr. Joseph Weil Memorial Lecture, Tuesday, Oct. 12, 8 p.m., with guest speaker Michael Coren on "Israel and Jews in the Media," at the Shaarei Shomayim Congregation. $18 in advance, $20 at the door. For tickets and sponsorship information, call 416-785-8946.

STUDY OPPORTUNITIES

Beit Rayim Synagogue offers Torah study with Chana Sargon. This interactive program will study biblical texts with classic and contemporary commentaries. Fall series begins Wednesday, Oct. 13, 8-9:30 p.m. All welcome to register. Call Marlene, 905-770-7639, ext. 31.

Mekorot Institute of Torah Studies for Women offers day and evening text-based classes, including Bible, Jewish philosophy, Jewish law, Talmud and more. Visit www.mekorot.ca or call 416-398-1510.

Continued on page 29

Aish20s: Hebrew Ulpan for the 20-Something Crowd

Tuesdays, October 12-December 14
7:45pm

At the Village Shul, 1072 Eglinton Ave. W.
$100 for all 10 classes
Choose from Level 1: Learn to Read Hebrew or Level 2: Tools for comprehension.

For more details on Aish20s Hebrew Ulpan and Aish20s visit www.aish20s.com

Pre-registration is required, phone 905-764-1818

aish20s

Aish Thornhill: The Hebrew "Like-An-Israeli" Ulpan

Wednesdays, October 13–December 1
8:00pm

At Aish Thornhill, 949 Clark Ave. W.
$80 for all 8 classes
Choose from Level 1: Learn to Read Hebrew or Level 2: Tools for comprehension.

For more details on Aish Thornhill Hebrew Ulpan and other programs at Aish Thornhill visit www.aishtoronto.com

Pre-registration is required, phone 905-764-1818

aish Thornhill

Friends of Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies

Fall Speakers Series

Monday, October 4: The Home Front
John Thompson, President of the Mackenzie Institute
"Canada As A Base for Terrorism"

Tom Kaye, Chief of Police in Owen Sound
"Terrorism: How Prepared is Canada?"

Norm Godfrey, Canada Israel Committee
"Communicating to Canadians: Building Support for Israel"

Monday, October 18: The Muslim World
Dr. Sarah Carlen, York University
"Jews in Muslim Lands"

Majed El Shafie, President of One Free World Ministry
"Persecution of Christians and Jews in Islamic Countries"

Wednesday, November 3: World Affairs
Address by Rabbi Abe Cooper, Associate Dean, Simon Wiesenthal Center

All Sessions 7:30 p.m.-9:00 p.m.
Beth Sholom Synagogue, 1445 Eglinton Avenue West

RSVP: 416-864-9735, Ext. 0 or swcmain@pathcom.com
Tickets for the entire series are $36

What's New

Continued from page 28

Florence Melton Mini-School is now taking registration for fall classes Call 416-789-7400 for details.

JF&CS GROUPS

Jewish Family & Child Service Information/registration. Call 416-638-7800, ext. 215. Lipa Green Building, 4600 Bathurst St.

Today's Woman. A 5-session group for women wanting to make changes in their lives. Tuesday, Oct. 12, 7-9 p.m.

Surviving Separation and Looking Ahead. A 6-session group for newly separated individuals who are dealing with the initial feelings of loss, anger, loneliness and wanting to let go of the past and move forward. Wednesday, Oct 13, 7:30-9 p.m.

Healthy Living, Healthy Choices. An 8-week group for women 55+ years. Wednesday, Oct 13, 1-3 p.m.

Parenting Children With Challenging Behaviour. A 6-session program for parents of children who frequently demonstrate difficult behaviour. Wednesday, Oct 13, 7-9 p.m.

Depression 101. A one-session workshop presented by the Mood Disorders Association of Ontario. Thursday, Oct 14, 7-9 p.m.

Living With Teens. A 6-session group for parents focusing on setting realistic limits, encouraging open communications and understanding teen pressures. Thursday, Oct 14, 8-9:30 p.m., Promenade Mall, suite #313.

JIAS TORONTO

Jewish Immigrant Aid Services, 4600 Bathurst St. #325. 416-630-6481.

Information sessions for new immigrant are held every Tuesday mornings 9 a.m. Registration required.

Holiday Celebration: Join JIAS to celebrate "Chagei Tishrei 5765" on Tuesday, Oct. 5, in the lobby of the Leah Posluns Theatre at the BJCC, 4588 Bathurst St., 7-9 p.m. This is an opportunity for Jewish families who have immigrated to Toronto in the last two years to celebrate new beginnings with traditional holiday sweets, music, children's craft corner, information about services in the community and more. Call for information.

Conversation Café. Newcomers to Toronto are invited to The Second Cup at the Bathurst Jewish Community Centre for an hour of English conversation. Every Thursday at 7 p.m., beginning Oct. 14. For information, call Suzie at ext. 30.

JIAS is looking for volunteers for the telephone language companion program, which helps new immigrants develop English language skills. Call to volunteer.

FOR SENIORS

Association of Jewish Seniors' is celebrating Sukkot with lunch in the sukkah, Tuesday, Oct. 5, 11:30 a.m. at Shaarei Shomayim Congregation. ALJS members $10, non-members $15. Call to reserve. Call Tammy, 416-635-2860.

Earl Bales Seniors' Club: Saturday dance, Oct. 2; Hebrew classes, Tuesday mornings 10 a.m.-noon, $25 a month; bingo, Tuesdays 12:30-3 p.m.; Casino Rama, Wednesday, Oct. 13; Blue Heron Casino, Tuesday, Oct. 26; Dixie Outlet Mall, Monday, Nov. 1. Call 416-395-7881 Mondays to Thursdays 9 a.m-1 p.m.

LZA Seniors Cultural Club meets every Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the boardroom at the Borochov Centre, 272 Codsell Ave. Call 416-630-9444.

Aluma Canadian Israeli Club meets 7 p.m. Thursdays at 15 Hove St. Closed through Sept. 30. Oct. 3, Simchat Torah party, 7 p.m.; Oct. 14, bingo. Call Menachem Wallach, 905-731-7748, or Malka Colla, 416-630-5771.

WAGMAN CENTRE

55 Ameer Ave. 416-785-2500.

Bereavement Group for spouses aged 55 and older living in the community. Offers understanding about the issues of loss, loneliness, pain and healing. All welcome. Free. Call Shawn at ext. 2986.

BERNARD BETEL CENTRE

1003 Steeles Ave. W., 416-225-2112.

"Roots and Remembrance: Jewish Immigration to Pre-World War I Toronto," with Bill Gladstone, Canadian Jewish News columnist. Tuesday, Oct. 5, 10-11:30 a.m.

Agawa Canyon Trip. Join a 2-day train excursion departing Oct. 5, 8 a.m., returning Oct. 6 at midnight. Members $226, non-members $250. Call Irina at ext. 123 for information and reservations.

Israeli Club Etrog for Hebrew-speaking seniors meets Tuesdays at 7 p.m. Etrog Club 15th anniversary dinner, Tuesday, Oct. 19. Purchase tickets in advance. Call Galit Osadtsuk at ext. 115.

BATHURST JCC

Bathurst Jewish Community Centre and Koffler Centre of the Arts, 4588 Bathurst St., 416-636-1880 or www.bjcc.ca.

Lena Shugar's "Journey Home" runs through Oct. 24 in the Loggia Gallery.

Fitness and recreation programs are starting at the Bathurst JCC. Sign up your children for swimming, house-league basketball, soccer and funball, plus many more sports. The BJCC also offers a wide range of group fitness classes, personal training and recreational sports for adults. For more information, call ext. 0.

The Travellers in a concert of their original music and a look back at the Weavers, Monday, Oct. 18 at 8 p.m. Leah Posluns Theatre.

MILES S. NADAL JCC

Miles Nadal Jewish Community Centre, 750 Spadina Ave., 416-924-6211 or wwwmilesnadaljcc.ca.

The Downtown Toronto Sukkah Tour, Sunday, Oct. 3, 10 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Visit sukkot in downtown Toronto. Call for information.

Jewish Storytelling meets the first Tuesday of each month at 7:30-9:30 p.m. Members, $5 at the door.

Hebrew and Yiddish classes. Beginners to advanced. Classes start in October.

Knit One, Purl Two! Sunday, Oct. 3, 1-4 p.m. For beginners and beyond. This 3-hour workshop will get you on your way to knitting for fun and relaxation.

Try the open klezmer jam led by Martin van de Ven Tuesday, Oct 5 at 8 p.m. $10. Pre-registration advised.

Join the klezmer players' workshop led by clarinetist Martin van de Ven of Beyond The Pale. Levels I and II. Tuesday evenings 7-9:30 p.m. 10 weeks. Starts Oct. 12.

Choir Kids, grades 1-3, and Youth Singers, grades 4-6, Thursdays after school. A relaxed singing environment with a great conductor. All children welcome. No experience necessary.

Sing in the Women's Chorus. Sing an eclectic repertoire in a relaxed setting. No experience or audition required. Every second Monday night, 8-9:30 p.m. Next meeting Oct. 4.

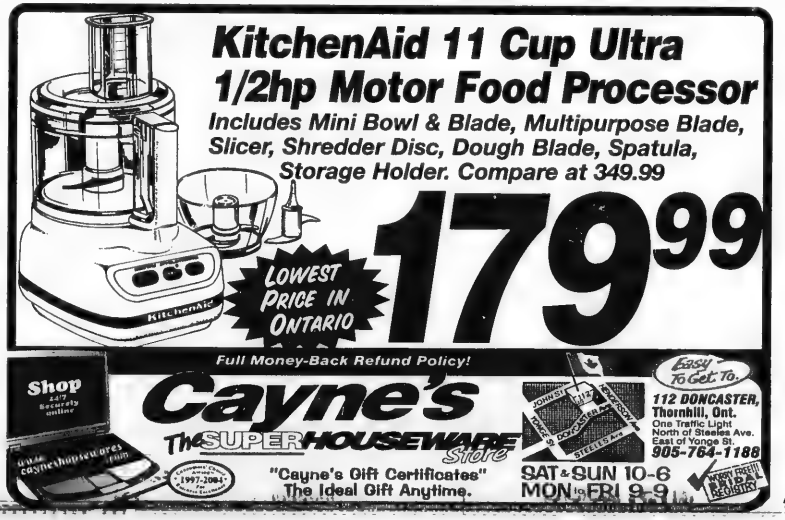
VOLUNTEERS WANTED

Baycrest Centre is looking for volunteers for the Palliative Care Unit. Training and supervision are provided. Good English skills are necessary. Other languages needed are Hungarian, Italian, Portuguese, Mandarin or Spanish. Training begins Oct. 20. The Health Centre is also looking for volunteers who are well organized and like working with people. Good English skills and the ability to speak other languages are also helpful. Flexible times available. For information, call 416-785-2500, ext. 2575.

RAE TO BE HONOURED: Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University pays tribute to Bob Rae at the 2004 Scopus Award Dinner on Sunday, Oct. 24. Seen at the recent dinner campaign launch reception, from left, are dinner chair Lorne Greenspoon, Rae, Justice Minister Irwin Cotler and vice-president of Hebrew University, Avi Armoni.

BLOWING THE SHOFAR: Grade 4 students at Paul Penna Downtown Jewish Day School practised blowing the shofar as they learned about and prepared for Rosh Hashanah.

SINGLES EVENTS WILL RETURN



KitchenAid 11 Cup Ultra
1/2hp Motor Food Processor
Includes Mini Bowl & Blade, Multipurpose Blade, Slicer, Shredder Disc, Dough Blade, Spatula,
Storage Holder. Compare at 349.99
179.99
LOWEST PRICE IN ONTARIO
Full Money-Back Refund Policy!
Shop 24/7 Securely online
Cayne's
The SUPER HOUSEWARE Store
"Cayne's Gift Certificates" The Ideal Gift Anytime.
Easily To Get To:
112 DONCASTER, Thornhill, Ont.
One Traffic Light North of Steeles Ave. East of Yonge St.
905-764-1188
SAT & SUN 10-6
MON to FRI 9-9

OBITUARIES
and Related Notices

Steeles Memorial Chapel

Kellerman, Mirjam	Sep 12/04	122 Chelmsford Av
Greenspan, Harry	Sep 11/04	88 Combe Av
Placey, Leo	Sep 13/04	60 Millersgrove Dr
Strigberger, Clara	Sep 13/04	267 Franklin Av
Kholiavski, Abram	Sep 13/04	Private
Kessel, Pessia	Sep 14/04	Private
Sandorfy, Eugene	Sep 14/04	650 Briar Hill Av
Waller, Minna	Sep 14/04	Private
Podchlebnik, Genia	Sep 15/04	Private
Bargman, Stanley	Sep 15/04	33 Elmhurst Ave.
Weizblit, Elizabeth	Sep 17/04	Private
Korolnek, Rose	Sep 18/04	7 Townsgate Dr.
Flauder, Harvie	Sep 17/04	Private
Rensler, Louis	Sep 19/04	3560 Bathurst St.
Smithen, Judith Myra	Sep 20/04	126 Mintwood Dr.
Klein, Malka	Sep 20/04	3560 Bathurst St.
Pereles, Max	Sep 21/04	Private
Szekely, Kalman	Sep 22/04	Private
Kronenwald, Jack	Sep 22/04	Private

HEDREW BASIC
TRADITIONAL GRAVESIDE SERVICE

Dorothy Edelist	Sep 11/04	15 Canyon Av
Albert Goldstein	Sep 14/04	205 Cummer Lodge
Sam Shore	Sep 14/04	989 Eglinton Av W

BENJAMIN'S PARK MEMORIAL CHAPEL

Rose Golant	Sep 5/04	4300 Bathurst St
Harry Brothman	Sep 6/04	1060 Eglinton Av W
Peter Lustgarten	Sep 7/04	85 Ava Rd
Mildred Oksenberg	Sep 7/04	1035 Eglinton Av W
Ida Snitman	Sep 9/04	39 Vinci Cres
Hedy Morgen	Sep 9/04	3705 Bathurst St
Dorothy Siderson	Sep 9/04	89 Skymark Dr
Sol Roth	Sep 10/04	38 Gordon Rd
Dorian Lucacescu	Sep 10/04	155 Antibes Dr
Alan Brown	Sep 12/04	142 Smithwood Dr
Lil Steinberg	Sep 13/04	2121 Bathurst St
Norman Bieda	Sep 12/04	16 Windermere Av
Mickey Fienberg	Sep 15/04	2500 Bathurst St
Harvey Mandel	Sep 14/04	209 Grandview Av
Anne Schwartz	Sep 16/04	5935 Bathurst St
Toba Steinbok	Sep 15/04	4383 Bathurst St
Murray Leib	Sep 15/04	11 Wynn Rd
Edith Rattner	Sep 18/04	4005 Bayview Av
Ena Herman	Sep 15/04	1035 Eglinton Av W
Joyce Deitcher	Sep 16/04	5 Spirea Ct
Edith Kirsh	Sep 18/04	319 Lytton Blvd
Anna Rattner	Sep 19/04	265 Fisherville Rd
Laura Friedman	Sep 19/04	2 Bucman Ct

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late

GIZELLA FEIN ז"ל

will take place

Sunday, Oct. 3rd, 11:00 a.m.

Pardes Shalom Cemetery

Dufferin St. 3 km north of Major Mackenzie

Marmarosher Section

Relatives and friends are invited to attend

SERVING THE JEWISH COMMUNITY FOR OVER THREE GENERATIONS

IZENBERG GOLDBERG
Monuments
3173 BATHURST ST.
416-787-0319

The family of the late

WILLIAM (WILLY) KROSSEL ז"ל

wish to thank family and friends for their kind support, sympathy cards, shiva meals and generous donations. Your thoughtfulness will always be remembered. Please accept this as our personal thanks.

Wishing you a healthy & happy New Year.

The family of the late

Sumer Janowski ז"ל

wish to thank all family and friends for their kindness and support.

Our warmest wishes for a happy, healthy and sweet New Year and may we share only happy occasions.

The family of the late

EARL PARNES ז"ל

wish to thank all relatives, friends and those concerned, for their extraordinary kindness, understanding and support.

Earl's music and humour were always a source of joy to those who knew him.

SHIVA CATERING
SAME DAY SERVICE
*Tasteful Presentation *Hot/Cold Platters and Full Course Meals
* DELIVERY AVAILABLE
416-789-7651
3457 BATHURST ST.

milk 'n honey
THE DAIRY RESTAURANT

The family of the late

Philip Shore ז"ל

wish to thank family and friends for their kind support, sympathy cards, shiva meals and generous donations. Your thoughtfulness will always be remembered.

Please accept this as our personal thanks.

Rose Shore & family

Watch this space each week for obituaries and related notices

Coast to Coast

Silverstein new head of Ottawa UJA

By DIANE KOVEN
Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Jack Silverstein was recently been appointed director of the United Jewish Appeal (UJA) of Ottawa and the Ottawa Jewish Community Foundation.

Silverstein has a history of community involvement that began with volunteer work in his hometown of London, Ont. Professionally, he worked for Young Judaea in Denver for two years before becoming involved with fundraising.

"I have been in the fundraising field for 10 years now," said Silverstein at the recent UJA opening event. "I have done it all – I spent six years working for the [Catholic] Diocese of Toronto and the [Catholic] Diocese of St. Catharines, I've raised funds for the Kitchener-Waterloo Symphony, Carleton University and most recently, I have spent the last three years at The Ottawa Hospital Foundation spearheading their $100M campaign.

"But something was missing. All of these were great causes but none of them fed my 'Jewish soul.' In my new position as director of UJA, I can marry my two passions of Judaism and fundraising," he said.

After his participation in the community mission to Israel in April, Silverstein officially took up his new position in May and spent the summer getting the UJA campaign infrastructure in place.

"The volunteers have been absolutely amazing," he said. "We have about 200 to 250 volunteers, which I find incredible for a city of this size. This is a very volunteer-driven organization. I've been so impressed with the folks that have the time, or make the time, to volunteer for UJA. Many people give both of their time and their money."

Silverstein's plans include a bigger-than-ever campaign goal of $4.5 million for this year and $5 million for next year. He is also hoping that the annual community mission to Israel will grow in size and popularity.

"I believe that now is the time for Ottawa's Jewish community to step forward and take their support of UJA to a higher level that will facilitate our agencies being exceptional, offering the programming and quality that we all believe is critical not only to a safe and secure Jewish future, but to a vibrant and compelling Jewish presence in Ottawa," he said.

This summer as Silverstein has been busy lining up speakers and programs for the fall UJA kick-off and various other events.

"I am very excited about this opportunity to marry my two passions – Judaism and building community," Silverstein said.

He said he and his wife, Sarah, are happy to raise their son, David, in Ottawa, "a great place to come and raise a family."

Group visits Be'er Sheva

Continued from page 25

Zaka, the Orthodox organization that is usually the first on the scene to retrieve body parts, has also benefited from Montrealers' donations, which recently paid for a fully equipped ambulance.

Despite being there only two days, the Montreal delegation was surprised to see how people were rallying to help one another through numerous acts of kindness, like those who sat by bedsides or attended shivahs of people who had no one else. Rabbi Poupko said he was heartened by the progress in Be'er Sheva, which has a large immigrant population. "When you see a man who came from a mud-hut village in Ethiopia just over a decade ago who is today a surgeon working on victims of terrorism, there is a poetry in that which is inspirational."

Above all, he stressed that Be'er Sheva residents are not living in fear that this is the beginning of renewed terror.

"The sense is that this was an anomaly, an aberration, and that Israel's security efforts are working, that the relative calm of the last six months will continue and they are not going back to the situation of two years ago," he said.

Winnipeg community protests Palestinian film festival

By MYRON LOVE
Prairies Correspondent

WINNIPEG — A pro-Palestinian film festival held here last weekend raised the ire of the Jewish community, with spokespeople calling its 12 films base propaganda and saying that running some of them on Yom Kippur added insult to injury.

The Canada-Palestine Film Festival – sponsored by the Winnipeg chapter of the Canada-Palestine Support Network (also known as CanPalNet) and subtitled "Images and Resistance in Israel-Palestine" – was held Friday through Sunday at the downtown Cinematheque theatre, which is run by the Winnipeg Film Group and largely funded by the city and province.

Among the films was Mohammed Bakri's controversial self-styled documentary Jenin, Jenin, which contains allegations that Israeli troops committed atrocities against women, children and the disabled during an incursion into the Palestinian town in April 2002.

David Matas, senior legal counsel to B'nai Brith Canada, said he was concerned the films could incite hatred and provoke incidents similar to the firebombing of the United Talmud Torahs in Montreal last Passover and the firebombing of an Edmonton shul in 2000.

"Although I haven't seen the films, I have talked to people who have. They are pure propaganda," Matas said. "The titles alone – with words such as 'occupation' and 'resistance' – indicate the tenor of the films, which further justify terror and suicide bombings."

He said organizers claimed they didn't know the festival would coincide with Yom Kippur, but they didn't change the date once they did.

"If they had arranged this in somebody's basement or other private venue, it wouldn't be a problem," Matas said. "But holding this in a publicly funded location gives it a legitimacy it doesn't deserve. And scheduling this on Yom Kippur ensures [Jews] won't be able to go to protest or ask questions."

Event partly held on Yom Kippur

Paul Burrows, a spokesperson for the Canada Palestine Support Network, said scheduling the films on Yom Kippur was an unintentional oversight. "We have Jewish members on our board who didn't realize it was on Yom Kippur," he said. "If we had been alerted to the fact earlier, we could have changed it, but by the time we found out, everything was booked and it was too late to change it.

"We timed this to coincide with the anniversary of the new intifadah which began in late September 2000. We are upset that a number of our longtime Jewish supporters [weren't] able to attend because of family commitments."

Burrows said that several of the films were made by Israeli Jewish filmmakers and that the films promote dialogue between Israelis and Palestinians and point the way to possible reconciliation.

He added that Cinematheque has hosted Jewish and Israeli film festivals in the past. "In Canada, everyone is allowed to present their perspectives," he said. "You won't see me protesting an Israeli film festival at Cinematheque."

Victor Jerrett-Enns, the Winnipeg Film Group's executive director, said Cinematheque is a resource available to all community groups and that his organization doesn't take a political position on films shown there.

Jonny Cline, the newly arrived Winnipeg Zionist Initiative shaliach, shared Matas' concerns about the film festival.

"I am expecting some ripples in the community as a result of the films – although I hope I'm wrong," he said. "I think the Canada-Palestine Network is trying to cause trouble such as has happened in the United States and eastern Canada. Winnipeg is a peaceful community. I want it to stay that way. But it seems that Winnipeg is being targeted."

Matas compared the festival organizers to "a bunch of con artists who have come to this backwater [Winnipeg] to try to fool the locals. They are perpetrating a fraud."

HUGE
OFFICE FURNITURE LIQUIDATION
PREVIOUSLY RENTED DESKS... FROM $50
FILE CABINETS...FROM $40. CHAIRS... FROM $25.
BOOKSHELVES - COMPUTER TABLES - BOARDROOM TABLES
"PRICING LIKE THE 1950'S"
SEPT 29TH - OCTOBER 8,2004
AARON'S EXECUTIVE SALE
50 WINGOLD AVE
7 BLOCKS SOUTH OF LAWRENCE
WEST OFF DUFFERIN ST
www.aarons.ca
416-785-0932

Sarah Herzog Hospital, Jerusalem
and
The Canadian Friends of Ezrath Nashim-Herzog Hospital extend our deepest sympathies to The Silver Family
on the passing of your beloved Mother and our Matriarch
Mrs. Lily Silver ז"ל
A woman of valour, she will be remembered for her love of family, her acts of kindness and her lifetime of devotion and service to the State of Israel and the Toronto Jewish Community.
May the entire family be comforted among the mourners of Zion and Jerusalem.
Lou Orzech, President
Riva Rotenberg, Vice President
Jan Babins, Executive Director

COOKOOS
CCR GLATT KOSHER
WOODBURNING ROTISSERIE CHICKEN
Take-Out + Counter Seating Area
ORDER NOW FOR SUKKOT
Orders guaranteed if placed 24 hours in advance
Chicken so delicious, it's CRAZY!
Chabad Gate Plaza, 7241 Bathurst St.
905-886-8686

The Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living
1003 Steeles Avenue West (at Bathurst)
Open House
October 4 to October 6, 2004
- Dr. Anne Balaban
- CJN's Bill Gladstone
- Computer Workshops
- Fall Festival

and much more...
Try a class for free! • Come one day; come every day!
For more information, call our hotline at (416) 225-2112, then press 1.

Coast to coast

Goldblatt family reunion is an annual event

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

The Goldblatt family at their annual family picnic.

Jacob Norman, the patriarch of the Goldblatt family, came to Canada at the turn of the century.

He began his first business, dealing in scrap metal and glass in Hamilton, with a horse and buggy. Eventually, he founded International Iron and Metal.

Goldblatt brought many of his relatives to Canada and assisted some of them with employment.

In 1905, Rochel, the first of seven children of Elchonen Goldblatt, Jacob Norman's cousin, and Raisa Goldblatt was born in Seda, Lithuania, followed by the birth of Tzvia, Wilfred, Sara, Abe, Eli and Labol.

Wilfred, who was born in 1907, was, in 1921, the first of the Goldblatt children to come to Canada, and he was followed by others.

Wilfred's son, Jerry Goldblatt, the owner of Creekwood Metal Trading, an international metal brokerage house in Hamilton, said his father worked as Jacob Norman's chauffeur before opening an army surplus business and later, an iron and steel business.

Goldie Vine Newman, Rochel's daughter, says the descendants of Elchonen and Raisa were always close, and as children, they would gather on weekends for refreshments and games.

"Although many in our family were in the same or similar business and were business competitors, they all co-operated with one another and helped each other," she says.

> 'We are reaping the benefits of this close loving family'

Over the years, the family members went in different directions. There were warm feelings when they met, but many of the younger members of the family did not know their cousins.

"My children now live in Toronto," says Jerry, "and I realized it was important to me that they know their cousins."

More than 27 years ago, Jerry organized the first Goldblatt family picnic. It has been held every year since, at Hidden Valley Park in Ancaster, near Hamilton.

"The picnic is a place where the younger people can meet one another and new people to the family are introduced and welcomed," says Jerry, the "chair" of the Goldblatt family picnic.

He gives credit to Newman, "my trusty aide," and the other volunteers who help with the picnic and a newsletter, The Gontzeh Goldblatts, which keeps the family up-to-date on the happenings in all branches of the family.

There were more than 70 family members, from three generations, at this year's picnic.

Two spouses of the children of Elchonen and Raisa live in Hamilton, Charlie Eber and Bessie Goldblatt.

"Over the years," says Newman, "we never charged the elders for the picnic, but they always insisted on contributing – to paying their fair share or more.

"We, the ancestors of the original seven children, grew up reaping the benefits of this close loving family. It is a heritage we want to pass on, and with our annual picnic and newsletter, it is working."

Jerry Goldblatt adds, "Although we are in many differing walks of life, yet we have something in common – family."

18TH CENTURY FURNITURE GALLERIES
Come Celebrate Our
GRAND OPENING SALE
Save up to 80% off
The Best Designers Selections at Non-Designers prices
On Sat., Oct. 2 Come in and Spin the Wheel of Fortune & Win!
8955 KEELE at HWY 7, Unit 1, CONCORD, ONT. L4K 1Y6
Tel.: 905-760-1518 Toll Free: 1-877-955-1818 • www.18thcenturyfurnituregalleries.com
Store Hours: Mon.-Wed. 10 a.m.-7 p.m.; Sat. 10 a.m.-6 p.m.; Thurs.-Fri. 10 a.m.-8 p.m.; Sun. 12 noon-5 p.m.

EXIT 151
Chelles 18
What Does Judaism Believe? 1 km
What is the Torah? 5km
What are Jewish Values? 613 km
How has Judaism evolved? 2000 km
CONTINUE STRAIGHT
ALTERNATE EXIT
10
Direction to Nowhere NEXT EXIT
Completely Lost TURN AROUND
Feeling Like Life is Passing You By EXIT ONLY
One Night Intro Class: "Judaism 101"
The On-ramp to your Jewish journey
Judaism 101 is Kolel's information superhighway to understanding the basic principles of Judaism. We present the facts, you ask all the questions.
Monday, Oct. 4, 7:30-9:30 PM
Bathurst Jewish Community Centre, Rm 120 (Bathurst & Sheppard)
All are welcome. $10 at the door.
For more information call 416-485-7007 x 0.
כולל KOLEL
BJOC

Meet your mate.
SpeedDating: For Jewish Singles who are serious about finding their soulmates.
Visit www.speeddating.com or call 905-764-1818, ext. 316 for upcoming events, registration, and more information
Upcoming events:
Monday October 4, ages 32-43
Wednesday October 20, ages 23-32
Register early to secure a spot!
SpeedDating

Coast to Coast

Hamilton shul gets new rabbi

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

Rabbi Phil Cohen's initial impression of Hamilton has been reinforced since he relocated from Pennsylvania in July to become the spiritual leader of Temple Anshe Sholom.

Rabbi Phil Cohen

"Although it's not really a small town, it has a small-town atmosphere," he said in a recent phone interview. "At the same time, it has a major university, which gives the town a bit of an intellectual edge."

The rabbi's own intellectual interests – he has a PhD in Jewish philosophy from Brandeis University – include Maimonides and contemporary Jewish thought, particularly the work of Martin Buber. He is currently working on a book about Jewish bioethics, covering the Jewish view on topics ranging from euthanasia and abortion to stem cell research and genetic engineering. But he also describes himself as an avid biker, hiker and undying fan of Bob Dylan.

A former Hillel director at Michigan State University before he became associate rabbi at Old York Road Temple–Beth Am in Abington, Pa., where he served for the last three years, Rabbi Cohen hopes to become involved in campus work, both in terms of outreach and education.

At the temple – where he is replacing Rabbi Irwin Zeplowitz, who left last year for a congregation in Long Island, New York – Rabbi Cohen's priorities include "empowerment" of congregants so that they know that they themselves, not the rabbi or the cantor, "own" Jewish tradition.

Outreach to potential members is also at the top of his list. "While our numbers are decent – about 450 families – we're aging."

Social action programs, already ongoing at the synagogue – the only Reform temple in Hamilton and at 151 years old the oldest in Canada – are also an area of interest for the 52-year-old rabbi, a native of Philadelphia who was ordained by Hebrew Union College in 1983.

Rabbi Cohen grew up in a Conservative home but spent his college years "pretty disengaged from Jewish life." As the result of "a series of experiences," including study at a ba'al tshuvah yeshiva in Jerusalem in the mid-1970s, he acquired "a passion for wanting to understand Judaism."

But he admits to not necessarily knowing what the key is in reaching out to unaffiliated Jews.

"There are a lot of keys," he said. "What I really want to have happen here is to have this place really hop with educational and social activities that bring people to our door – some of whom would join us."

Reform Judaism "makes a legitimate claim that Jewish choice is the proper way to explore Jewishness in the modern world," he said.

Anshe Sholom is more traditional than many of its American counterparts in terms of the number of men wearing kippot and tallitot, and the temple's requirement that men wear them on the bimah, Rabbi Cohen said.

The issue of officiating at same-sex marriages – which the Reform movement leaves to the discretion of individual rabbis – has not yet arisen for Rabbi Cohen, who said he would officiate if asked. (At present, the congregation does not allow same-sex marriages to take place in the sanctuary.)

In the past three years, Rabbi Cohen has visited Israel six times. Last spring, he took part in a fundraising bike ride sponsored by the Arava Institute for Environmental Studies. He would like to form an Israel group at the temple to ensure that Israel-related activities are included in programming, and also would like to organize congregational trips to Israel.

For those interested in bike-a-thons in Israel (the Reform movement also has one), he noted that Hamilton is "a first-rate place to train because of its gradual hills," similar to those he encountered in Israel.

STANDARD Property Management Corporation
management & services
call David 416.928.4885

PROVINCIAL TABLE PADS
Manufacturers of Custom-built Table Pads
•Free in-home service
•Made in Canada
•Choose from 3 qualities
•Best service •price •quality
PtP
LOWEST PRICES GUARANTEED
Toronto..... 416-283-2508
Hamilton..... 905-383-1343
Ottawa..... 613-247-3334
Canada Wide.. 1-800-668-7439
www.ptpads.com

Check out our internet edition at www.cjnews.com
The Canadian Jewish news

MOUNT SINAI HOSPITAL
Open Meeting of the Board of Directors of Mount Sinai Hospital
Wed., Oct. 6, 2004
12 noon-2 p.m.
Mount Sinai Hospital, 600 University Avenue, Executive Board Room, Main Floor
To confirm attendance or to receive agenda and procedures, contact the Corporate Secretary at 416-586-5082

The Jewish Studies Program
Office of the Dean
Hillel of Greater Toronto
Charles and Andrea Bronfman Chair in Israeli Studies
Faculty of Arts and Science
University of Toronto

AMOS OZ
Renowned Israeli author and peace activist will deliver a public lecture on Curing a Fanatic: Bringing Peace to the Middle East
J.J.R. MacLeod Auditorium
Medical Sciences Building, 1 King's College Circle
Wednesday, October 13th, 2004
8:00 p.m.
Amos Oz is an eminent author of fiction and political commentary. He has profoundly shaped contemporary Hebrew literature and is a major figure in the Israeli peace movement. In July of this year Oz and the Palestinian philosopher Sari Nusseibeh were jointly awarded the Catalonia Prize for the promotion of cultural, scientific, or human values throughout the world.
ARTS & SCIENCE UNIVERSITY of TORONTO
Free and open to the public
For more information, visit www.utoronto.ca/jewish or call 416-978-8118

HOW WILL YOU COLOUR IN YOUR GARDEN FOR NEXT SPRING?
It may be Fall, but if you prepare now, your lawn and garden will greet Spring in full colour. It just takes three natural steps: 1) aerate and seed your lawn; 2) use natural fertilizer; 3) apply mulch.
Go pesticide free! For all you need to know about natural gardening or the City's pesticide by-law, call 416-338-7600. Or visit www.toronto.ca/pesticides.
Reducing pesticides. It's perfectly natural.
TORONTO

On Campus

Ethiopian Israeli is 'face of Israel' at Western

By HAILEY EISEN
Special to The CJN

LONDON, Ont. — Inside the community centre at the University of Western Ontario an Israeli flag hangs over an information booth for the Hillel student organization. Students crowd around the table, interested in finding out about upcoming programs, and eager to meet Hillel's newest staff member, Leah Biteolin.

Clubs week at Western is an opportunity for Biteolin, a young shlichah (emissary) from Israel, to see what campus life is like for Canadian Jewish students.

Biteolin is a 23-year-old Ethiopian Jew who has lived in Israel most of her life. She arrived in London just over two weeks ago, and says that she is already starting to feel at home.

"So far it is better than I expected," she says. "The students here are very friendly and very motivated."

Biteolin is one of three shlichim in Canada who have been hired by National Jewish Campus Life (NJCL), an agency set up to provide resources to campuses across the country, in partnership with Jewish Agency for Israel (JAFI), Birthright Israel and Hillel International. The other two shlichim are in Ottawa and Vancouver.

These young Israelis are the face of Israel on Canadian campuses, explains Jared Isaacson, executive director of London Jewish Campus Services.

While this program has existed in the United States for a few years, this is the first year that Canada has become involved.

"In the past five years or so, since the Israel issue has become very newsy again, attracting a lot of attention… these organizations felt that it would benefit North American Jewish and non-Jewish students to be able to see an Israeli first-hand," says Isaacson. "They wanted to bring a positive, fun, young face of Israel onto campuses."

For the next 10 months, Biteolin will share her Israeli culture and spirit with Western students and the London community. But her story does not begin in Israel. She and her family endured great hardships when, 20 years ago, they escaped from their home in Ethiopia and followed their dream of establishing a life in the Jewish homeland, and living in Jerusalem.

Biteolin was only three years old when her family left Ethiopia, but her story is shaped by her parents' vivid memories.

"They heard that everyone was leaving Ethiopia for Jerusalem, but at that time we couldn't just leave the country because of the Communist regime – no one could get out without permission," Biteolin says. "We left all our things behind and walked for two or three weeks to the Sudan border."

She recalls how her family, among a large group of Ethiopian Jews, walked mostly at night so as not to be discovered, hiding their Jewish identity in fear of persecution.

They spent six months in refugee camps in Sudan, travelling from village to village and depending upon the Red Cross for food and medicine.

"We were put in the worst places in Sudan," Biteolin says. "They were places that only animals would live… We didn't have any clean water or anything."

Her youngest brother did not survive the refugee camps, but the rest of her family made it out of Sudan and found their way to Israel via France.

"Finally!" she says, a huge smile spreading across her face. "It was the most exciting thing for my parents and my grandparents, to see their dream coming true."

She continues with a slight laugh, "You know my mother always told me that her grandmother told her not to work so hard, because one day she would be in Israel. And it really happened!"

Leah Biteolin

Biteolin brings these experiences with her to London in hopes that students will develop a passion for Israel as strong as her own. In coming to Canada this year, she says she feels that she can give something back to the Jewish community.

"On a personal level, the Jews of North America provide so much support for the Ethiopian community in Israel – they help to bring us to Israel and provide funding for community centres and student scholarships. So if I can give up a bit of myself to help students strengthen their identity and change the Israeli image around campus, then I think it will be a nice experience."

So far, Biteolin has been welcomed with enthusiasm.

"In Canada we only get one interpretation of Israel from the media," says Leora Sas, a fourth-year anthropology student. "When issues do arise, it will be nice to have someone here who can actually provide a first-hand Israeli perspective."

Sas is a member of the Israel Action Committee, a campus club that aims to educate and promote awareness of Israel among Western students.

"I think having a resource like Leah is really important for every university campus," she says.

Biteolin is busy planning for upcoming events and seminars that will take place on campus this year. She will be contributing to a number of programming initiatives including Hebrew lessons for all interested students.

"Most of all, I want the students here to feel like Israel is their home – a place where they can always go," she says with a big smile.

MARSHALL ARTS
presents

The Diary of
Anne Frank

by Frances Goodrich and
Albert Hackett, newly adapted
by Wendy Kesselman

Jennifer Waiser Andrew Gillies
Carol Lempert Shira Leuchter Sarah Dodd
Philip Shepherd Gabriel Plener Eric Weinthal
Kelly Bolt William Bicket Attila Schwarze
Dan Walmsley Thom Speck

Produced by Jeff Marshall
Directed by Alexander Galant

October 1 - November 7, 2004
Bathurst Street Theatre
736 Bathurst Street

Wed - Sat @ 8pm and Sun @ 2pm
Tickets: $25/$35

TICKETKING
(416) 872-1212
Group Discount Available

www.diaryofannefrank.ca

2004
Marketing Professional Services

Edward Jones is proud to introduce a new broadcast series designed to meet the professional development/ continuing education requirement of CGAs, CAs,CMAs, lawyers and tax professionals.

By attending this program, you will become familiar with successful marketing techniques that the discussion leaders have used to help their client obtain new clients, generate new business from existing clients and retain both old and new clients.

Joining us for this program will be:

Colleen L. Albiston, MBA
Everett E. Colby, BSBA, CFE, FCGA
Jerry Sears, BA, MBA

Date & Time: October 13, 2-5 p.m.
Enrollment Fee: $75
Location: 7700 Bathurst St.,Unit 11, Thornhill

RSVP by Oct.7 905-889-8535
Monica J. Weissmann, CFP
Edward Jones
Serving Individual Investors
Member CIPF

www.dcitelecom.com
(416) 626-7557
no activation fee — no monthly fee
Israel, U.K. 5.5¢
Morocco 35.1¢
no maintenance fee — 15,000+ customers
France, Chile 5.5¢
USA / CAN 4.9¢

International

Israel & the Jewish World

Women are enslaved, raped and tortured in Sudan.
How can we not respond?
Ve'ahavta: The Canadian Jewish Humanitarian & Relief Committee 416-964-7698
www.veahavta.org

Analysis

An embarrassment for Damascus

By AMOS HAREL
Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

The interesting thing about the conversations with various sources in the defence establishment Sunday was that there was little effort to deny Israel's responsibility for the assassination of senior Hamas leader Iz El-Din al-Sheikh Khalil, in Damascus.

Officially, Israel is not commenting on the explosion. However, it is also not making any effort to deny its involvement. And when the assassination comes less than a month after the prime minister, the defence minister and the chief of staff all openly threatened Syria for the double bus bombing in Be'er Sheva, it's easy to draw conclusions.

Khalil's name has been coming up with greater frequency in Israeli intelligence reports in recent months. Kais Obeid, the Israeli Arab who initiated the kidnapping of businessman Elhanan Tennenbaum, has become Hezbollah's point man for running Tanzim cells in the West Bank, and Khalil is his parallel for Hamas in Gaza, where he lived until he was expelled to Lebanon with 400 Hamas activists in 1992.

But since the military wing of Hamas continued functioning in Gaza, there was not much for Khalil to do in the way of co-ordination and orchestration. Therefore, Khalil has been focusing on another main project: building up an arms supply ahead of the Israeli disengagement – and for that, Hamas needs to smuggle a lot of weapons into Gaza from Sinai, through the tunnels.

When Khalil had some partial successes and brought in improved weapons, the IDF felt it – with a strike in the Philadelphi corridor in May. But despite his efforts, most of the weapons remain on the Egyptian side of the border.

Khalil's death is not very significant in and of itself. Over time, Hamas will come up with other operations officers. The question is whether that will happen in Damascus.

Dry Bones
WE HIDE IN SYRIA WHERE WE PLAN THE MURDER OF JEWS IN ISRAEL
AND THEN THE ZIONISTS SNEAK IN AND BLOW UP OUR AGENTS?!
GOSH. . .
ARE THEY ALLOWED TO DO THAT?!

Israel this time backed up its threats with action, and in contrast with the aftermath of its bombing of an empty training camp last Yom Kippur, Syria and the Palestinian groups cannot say the results are negligible. The head of the political wing of Hamas, Khaled Mashal, quit Damascus last month, in the wake of the statements made by Israeli officials.

Mashal is shuttling between Tehran and Cairo, dodging Arab reporters' questions about when he is going back to Damascus. Other senior officials in Hamas have lowered their profiles, in a way that is reminiscent of what happened in Gaza after the assassinations of Ahmed Yassin and Abdul Aziz Rantisi last spring.

How will Hamas react? A few hours after the bombing, there was a leaflet in Gaza threatening to strike Israelis overseas. Later the group's position was upgraded: Activists in Lebanon said the leadership will have to decide on future steps. So far, the group has stuck to very specific borders in the conflict: inside Israel and the territories. When it included foreigners, such as the two Britons involved in the bombing of Mike's Place in Tel Aviv, it said it was to avenge the murder of a leader, Ibrahim Makadme.

Revenge through Hezbollah seems unlikely, since it would embarrass Syria. A foreign attack is more possible, and there's always the easiest form of vengeance: Qassams on Sderot. And of course, after the next suicide bombing, they will no doubt call it vengeance for Khalil, even though they haven't finished seeking vengeance for Yassin and Rantisi.

Even more than for Hamas, the assassination is an embarrassment for Damascus. President Bashar Assad's regime already suffered a blow earlier this year in a series of Muslim Brotherhood attacks in the Syrian capital. Now it's someone from Hamas who was targeted – after Hamas ostensibly ceased operating in Damascus. And it's all happening while Assad is under increasing pressure from the Americans to stop aiding terror and to pull his troops out of Lebanon.

Lately, France surprisingly joined that call, with a joint resolution with the United States at the United Nations for a Syrian withdrawal from Lebanon. Assad, already facing a severe economic crisis at home, now has to find work for thousands of soldiers (who moonlighted as construction workers in Lebanon) and officers (who earned their extra money by selling drugs). Syria, in any case, probably could not respond with force.

From an operational point of view, Prime Minister Ariel Sharon – on the assumption it really was an Israeli operation – can be pleased with Mossad's return to active duty. After the paralysis that gripped it following the failed assassination attempt on Mashal's life in Jordan nine years ago, the Arabs are now attributing to Mossad five assassinations in Lebanon in the last two years. The fact that it was able to reach all the way into the Syrian capital and conduct a pinpoint operation was probably the result of international and inter-agency co-operation. The war against terror is no longer the exclusive province of the Shin Bet. The Mossad and Military Intelligence are back in action.

UIA Federations Canada
מגבית הפדרציות היהודיות בקנדה

Deeply mourns the passing of Lil Silver ז"ל of Jerusalem, Israel

A friend who will be greatly missed

The officers, Board and Staff extend heartfelt condolences to UIA Federations Canada President
Shoel Silver and his entire family

Stanley K. Plotnick
President Elect

Maxyne Finkelstein
Exec. Vice President

Did you have your Bar-Mitzvah at Beth Ora?

(St. Laurent, QC)

Join us for a 50th Anniversary

Bar Mitzvah Reunion

Saturday, November 6, 2004

Shabbat Morning -
Special service bringing together and honouring 5 decades of Bar-Mitzvahs

Saturday evening -
Gala 50th Anniversary Dinner Dance

Come to either event or both
For information and to register, call 514-748-6559
Visit us at www.BETHORA-BARMITZVAH.ORG

French group works for Jewish refugees from Arab lands

Continued from page 1

The organization aims to raise international awareness of the hundreds of thousands of Jews who left Arab countries from 1948 onward, following the creation of the State of Israel. It will do so by collecting eyewitness accounts of Jewish life in these countries from émigrés.

"It's getting on now for 60 years," Kamami said. "Many of those who were forced out are already dead, and if we don't make an inventory soon, this will be lost in the trash can of history."

Some 900,000 Jews left Arab countries after 1948 and more than 600,000 went to Israel. They and their descendants now make up about half of Israel's Jewish population.

There were various reasons for the vast exodus of Sephardi Jews.

Some were entranced by the birth of the Jewish state and quit their homelands for Zionist ideals.

Others saw their futures compromised in the newly independent North African states because of the association of Jewish communities with former colonial powers.

Still others, facing government-sponsored anti-Jewish riots in countries such as Iraq and Egypt, were forced out and should be categorized as refugees, Kamami said.

All, though, faced a pervasive climate of hostility in which attacks against the Jewish community were liable to break out at any time and where Jews – and Christians – were second-class citizens.

Today, fewer than 8,000 Jews remain in Arab countries; some states, such as Libya, were totally emptied of their Jewish populations.

Kamami accepts that his project to gather testimony from those who left Arab countries is not the first – nor indeed, the only – attempt to undertake such a task.

The World Organization of Jews From Arab Countries was set up in 1975 to address the issue of Sephardi refugees but has since suffered severe funding difficulties and has been largely moribund in recent years.

Attempts by JTA to contact the organization, both in the United States and Israel, were unsuccessful and the group does not have a website.

Nevertheless, two U.S.-based organizations – Jews Indigenous to the Middle East and North Africa and Justice for Jews From Arab Countries – are very active.

Following a campaign by the latter group, the issue was forced onto the U.S. political agenda earlier this year, with the tabling of twin resolutions in the Senate and House of Representatives calling on President George W. Bush to ensure that "any explicit reference to the required resolution of the Palestinian refugee issue is matched by a similar explicit reference to the resolution of the issue of Jewish refugees from Arab countries."

Israel also got in on the idea a few years ago when it announced that it was partenering with the American Sephardi Foundation on a project to preserve and collect 10,000 claims from previous compensation initiatives that had been abandoned.

900,000 Jews left Arab countries after 1948

Kamami, though, says what has been missing until now has been the existence of a francophone group because "most Jews who left Arab lands – whether they went to France, Israel, the U.S. or Canada – spoke French.

"Having a website in English or Hebrew is not as effective, and running it from the U.S. falls into the problem here of a latent anti-Americanism," he said.

Some émigré organizations in France are less keen, however, on such a campaign, convinced that claiming reparations from former countries will damage future contacts with their places of birth.

Simon Atias, the president of the Paris-based Organization of Jews Originating from Morocco, strongly disagreed with the notion that the term "refugees" could be ascribed to Jews who left Morocco.

"That's much more applicable to people who were forced out of Iraq and Egypt," he said, presumably because Jews faced less hostility in Morocco than elsewhere in the Arab world.

However, he, too, noted that after a long period during which there was little activity in campaigning for Sephardi Jews, there had been a sudden upsurge of interest in recent years.

"There was something in Israel, but they really didn't do anything until negotiations with the Palestinians started," he said.

Doing something at this time is what motivated Kamami – as he readily admits.

"The new trend is victimology. We need to show the trauma and the climate of physical attacks on Jews, which is what forced them to leave," he said.

Kamami believes the issue of the dispersal of Jews from Arab countries has been ignored for so long because the Jewish world was largely uninterested in hearing about their plight.

"Historians were occupied with the Shoah, which was obviously the major disaster to befall the Jewish people," he said, adding, "So no one wanted to hear others speaking about losing their property or their money. They didn't have the right to talk about it. Some feel they still haven't. They were ashamed.

What was their experience compared to the Shoah?" Half a century later, he said, times have changed. The issue of the Palestinian refugees will soon become a major issue for debate and Israel will need to be armed to confront it, Kamami believes.

In fact, rather than talk of refugees, he prefers to refer to what he calls "an exchange of populations."

"Seven hundred thousand Palestinians left or were forced out in 1948 and that's less than the Jews who were forced out of Arab lands," he said.

"We can talk of a population change like between Germany and Czechoslovakia after the war or between Hindus and Muslims" following the end of British rule in India.

Nevertheless, Kamami says, such a narrative was initially an uncomfortable one for the fledgling State of Israel. "Israel didn't want to make a big deal out of it at the outset. That was for a positive reason, since we were creating a new nation and the idea that these Jews had been chased from the Diaspora, rather than having made a clear Zionist choice to come to Israel, was not acceptable. This narrative is good for our Zionist egos but it is not the reality."

That said – and despite the deliberate analogy with the issue of Palestinian refugees – Kamami points out an intrinsic difference between the two cases.

"Those that arrived in the refugee camps in Israel, the ma'abarot, didn't stay there," he said. "They chose to integrate into their new countries.

"They helped to build Israel. And those who went to the U.S., Canada and France renewed the Sephardi Diaspora."

REGENT TOURS
The Best Prices at Hotels in Israel!
Friendly, Professional Service
Deal direct with a wholesaler in Tel Aviv
Over 100 hotels currently on special offer
www.regent.co.il
Call us in Tel Aviv toll free 1 866 886 0967

The in-depth reporting you've been searching for
DEBKA-Net Weekly
We Start Where The Media Stop
Subscribe Today at www.Debka.com

Anglican delegation to recommend divestment

Continued from page 1

"The church has become increasingly sympathetic to the plight of the Palestinians," Te Paa said, "and the chances of the ACC accepting our recommendation are quite high."

The delegation, which arrived in Israel last week, toured extensively in the West Bank and met with Palestinian Authority President Yasser Arafat in Ramallah. Delegates insisted that they made sure to schedule time with Israeli leadership as well, and pointed to a meeting with member of Knesset Azmi Bishara last Wednesday.

"The word draconian barely even begins to describe what we saw," Rev. Brian J. Grieves, who represents the U.S. church, said of his experience.

Like others in his delegation, Grieves intends to recommend that the church adopt divestment "to bring an end to the conflict."

He stressed, however, that consultations with leading figures in the American Jewish community who were "deeply distressed" by the precedent the Presbyterians set in late July would be key in the decision-making process.

Archdeacon Taimalelagi Tuatagola-Matalavea, the Anglican observer at the UN who was part of the delegation, said that she too would advocate for divestment and an increased co-operation with the Presbyterian church, "so that Christian faiths can bring peace to this land."

Rev. Naim Ateek, an APJN advisor who is active in the Palestinian Christian liberation movement, agreed, adding that the church needs to seek peace, and political or economic pressure is a necessary means to achieve that.

The Anglican Peace and Justice Network represents 75 million Anglicans and Episcopalians worldwide.

In a related development last week, some U.S. lawmakers expressed concern with plans by the Presbyterian Church to divest from Israel. A letter sent from 14 congressional representatives to the leader of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church last week suggests that the church misunderstands the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and is contradicting its commitment to the secure existence of the Jewish state.

"We disagree with your characterization of the conflict as 'rooted in Israel's continued occupation of Palestinian territories,'" the letter says. "We believe the conflict is primarily rooted in the Palestinian leadership's refusal to accept Israel's right to exist as a Jewish state."

The letter said plans to divest from Israel because of concerns about its West Bank security barrier and planned withdrawal from the Gaza Strip are "counterproductive, and morally bankrupt.

With files from JTA.

YOUR CAR IN ISRAEL
SPECIAL OFFER
*FREE SHABBAT
FROM 15.90 * US$
PER DAY
eldan
U.S.A
Tel: 1-800-938-5000
718-998-5500
www.eldan.co.il

Mortar strike kills woman

An Israeli woman was killed and another lightly wounded last Friday when four mortar shells were fired at the Neveh Dekalim settlement in the Gaza Strip. One shell struck a home in the settlement, seriously wounding Tiferet Tratner, 24, of Jerusalem, and leaving a second woman with light injuries. Tratner was airlifted to Soroka Medical Center, where she died of her injuries. Hamas claimed responsibility for the shelling.

Three soldiers killed in Gaza

Palestinians killed three Israeli soldiers outside the community of Morag in the Gaza Strip. Three gunmen sneaked in under cover of the morning fog. All three Palestinians were killed by Israeli return fire. Islamic Jihad, the Popular Resistance committees and the Abu Rish faction of Yasser Arafat's Fatah group claimed joint responsibility for the attack. The three slain soldiers were the deputy company commander, Capt. Tal Bardugo, 21, of Jerusalem, Staff Sgt. Israel Lutati, 20, of Neveh Dekalim, and Staff Sgt. Nir Sami, 21, of Jerusalem.

Two killed in Jerusalem

Two border policemen – Mamoya Tahio and Menashe Komemi – were murdered last Wednesday in a suicide bombing near a bus stop in the French Hill neighbourhood of Jerusalem. The Al-Aqsa Martyrs Brigade claimed responsibility for the attack, which also injured at least 15 people. A teenaged woman, Zayneb Abu Salem, from a refugee camp in the West Bank city of Nablus, was identified as the bomber. As a result of the attack, Israel will step up scrutiny of Palestinian women at its checkpoints, acting Internal Security Minister Gideon Ezra said. "To my regret, as a result of the attack, all of Jerusalem's Arabs are liable to suffer from recurrent searches, including women. Security demands special attention to women as well as men."

Israeli trade with Arabs up

Israel's trade with Arab states rose more than 47 per cent in the first eight months of 2004. The trade amounted to $169.7 million US, the Israeli business publication Globes reported. Trade with Jordan and Egypt led the way.

Germany responds to Shalom

Germany agreed to sponsor a UN General Assembly resolution condemning anti-Semitism. German officials told Israeli Foreign Minister Silvan Shalom it would agree to the move, Shalom told reporters last week. The resolution is a key objective for Jewish officials in the current UN General Assembly. They see the resolution as a follow-up to the first major UN conference this summer addressing growing global anti-Semitism. Shalom also told reporters that he met Iraqi Prime Minister Ayad Allawi, marking the first diplomatic exchange between Iraq and Israel since Iraq's new government took over.

Files from JTA and Ha'aretz.

Shalom urges UN to end its obsession with Israel

By SHLOMO SHAMIR
Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

NEW YORK — Israeli Foreign Minister Silvan Shalom last week urged the UN General Assembly to shed its obsession with Israel and said Iran has replaced former Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein as the main source of world terrorism.

Shalom also called on the General Assembly to fight threats arising from Syria's occupation of Lebanon and Iran's nuclear ambitions.

Shalom, who has said that Iran must be taken before the Security Council over its nuclear program, said, at the UN, that Iranian missiles can reach London, Paris and southern Russia.

"The international community now realizes that Iran does not only pose a threat to the security of Israel but to the security of the whole world," Shalom told the General Assembly's annual ministerial meeting.

"Indeed, Iran has replaced Saddam Hussein as the world's No. 1 exporter of terrorism, hate and instability."

He said Syria's military presence in Lebanon and support for Hezbollah is a threat to Israel and to peace in the region.

Shalom has called on the UN Security Council to impose sanctions on Teheran if it fails to dismantle its nuclear programs and has said that Iran has missiles that can strike at capitals in Europe and the Middle East.

The foreign minister also called on the 191-member General Assembly, which is heavily influenced by the voting blocs of Arab, Islamic and non-aligned countries, to sponsor a special session aimed at bringing an end to racism and anti-Semitism.

Lebanon's Hezbollah guerrillas heaped scorn on Iraq's prime minister last week for shaking hands with Shalom at the United Nations, saying he had disgraced Iraq and offended Arabs and Muslims.

Iraqi Prime Minister Ayad Allawi shook hands with Shalom at the General Assembly, where alphabetical order put them side by side.

"[It] is a sign of one of the most dangerous goals of the American war on Iraq, yanking Iraq from its place in the Arab and Muslim worlds and sticking it in the U.S.-Zionist political cosmos," Hezbollah said in a statement.

"This unacceptable handshake is at once a true insult to the Iraqi people, their history, culture and Islamic and national commitment; and flagrant scorn for the suffering of Palestinian people and the sentiments of Arabs and Muslims."

Shalom said the incident was the first official contact between Israel and Baghdad since the U.S. invasion of Iraq, which Israel attacked in 1981 to destroy a nuclear reactor.

Iraq fired missiles at Israel during the 1991 Gulf War, when Saddam Hussein answered demands to pull his army out of Kuwait by saying Israel must in turn end its occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

I decided to join JDate to get my mom off my case...I had nothing to lose but, little did I know, everything to gain...
Lisa & Scott. JDate members

JDate®.com
Helping Jewish Singles Click

Palestinian elections – national and local – in limbo

By DANNY RUBINSTEIN
Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

A few months ago, amid demands from around the world for reforms in what is left of the Palestinian Authority, the Palestinian leadership – meaning PA President Yasser Arafat – considered the idea of holding elections in Gaza and the West Bank. There have also been grassroots demands for changes in government and the eradication of corruption, so what better response could Arafat and his people offer than a call for elections?

Free elections are the soul of democracy, and through them the Palestinians could demonstrate to the world that they are a progressive nation, led by leaders who won the confidence of the people. Holding elections for the legislative council was an important element in the Oslo accords and in January 1996, elections took place in Gaza and the West Bank – and east Jerusalem residents also had the right to vote.

Ballots were cast for the parliament and chairman (president) of the authority. There were 88 MPs elected, as well as Arafat. The opposition groups, meaning Hamas, boycotted the voting, because they opposed Oslo and Oslo legitimized the elections.

The next elections were meant to be held four years later in 2000, and were postponed until after the full Israeli-Palestinian peace everyone was expecting. But instead of an agreement, bloodshed began and the PA, which had already announced plans for a vote, was forced to cancel the elections.

While they were meant to be general elections for the parliament and chairman of the authority, the situation for local authorities is very different. There are more than 150 townships, local councils and village councils in the West Bank and Gaza, and the last elections for municipalities took place on the initiatives of former defence ministers Moshe Dayan and Shimon Peres, in 1972 and 1976.

Yasser Arafat

Some time ago, Arafat appointed a central elections committee, headed by Bir Zeit University Professor Ali Jerbawi, whose first assignment was to update the voter registration rolls. All those with the right to vote were called to register at the precinct level, so the right could be ratified, and this time, the vote would be for two elections – local authorities and national elections for parliament and chairman.

Seemingly, there should be no difficulty holding city elections in the territories because Israel cannot interfere. There's even a date more or less set for four months from now. The committee announced earlier this month that more than 410,000 voters have already registered to vote in the West Bank and Gaza, despite Israeli efforts to obstruct the process, which were mostly evident in east Jerusalem, where Israel closed the voter registration offices.

Meanwhile, Hamas has announced it will take part in the coming local elections because they are not connected to Oslo. Hamas has been very successful in union elections and student votes, and one of the reasons Arafat has not held local elections until now was his fear of Hamas success.

The Israeli government is not interested in elections in the territories because it does not want to help the PA depict itself as reformist. Moreover, who can get elected in the West Bank and Gaza? In general elections, it's clear Arafat will win, and with that victory comes renewed legitimacy. And even if someone else is elected, there is no chance it will be a candidate liked by Israelis.

It is doubtful whether a new Palestinian leader could accept proposed peace deals such as the Geneva Initiative or even the Nusseibeh-Ayalon agreement. Any elected Palestinian would find it difficult to stop the attacks on Israeli targets in the territories and very quickly would be accused by Israel of being tainted with terror.

The Israeli government says we have already seen what Palestinian democracy brought in 1996, and now things could only get worse. Meanwhile, the PA and Hamas continue to struggle over the composition of the central election committee and technical arrangements for local elections to the extent that it is difficult to see them actually taking place.

Advertising feature

Nightingale.
We know home care is a decision you live with.

We provide:

- Nursing care (hospital and home)
- Convalescent care
- Care for the elderly
- Care for the disabled
- Specialized care for Alzheimers patients
- Homemakers
- Live-in companions
- Rehabilitation Aides
- Infant and child care
- Acute and complex care
- Palliative care

Our health care professionals are fully bonded and insured, and our supervisors are available 24 hours a day.
We offer care in over 40 languages.

Call for a free in-home assessment.

NIGHTINGALE
— HEALTH CARE —
(416) 222-6567
www.nightingalehealthcare.ca

OHHCPA

Nightingale Health Care For Those You Love

When someone near and dear to you can no longer live independently, it's time to consider professional health care. This is a momentous decision; and anyone caring for your loved ones must be responsive to their needs and yours.

If you are facing such a decision, consider Nightingale Health Care. They will provide your loved one with compassionate, professional care that puts your mind at ease.

Jack Kerzner, the founder of Nightingale, has always believed in a few simple but fundamental principles. Your loved ones have the right to the best possible care, so they can enjoy life to the fullest extent their abilities allow. They should be informed about their choices and take part in decisions. Every client is a unique person, whose concerns should be listened to and respected at all times. Everyone has a right to his or her privacy. Moreover, clients should be informed of these rights.

Most importantly, Nightingale's caregivers are compassionate and understanding. They are highly skilled, competent, and conversant with the ongoing developments in the ever changing area of health care. That goal is accomplished by requiring that the Registered Nurses, Personal Support Workers, Homemakers and Rehabilitation Aides receive continuous in-house training and participate in professional development at higher learning institutions

One recent innovation was the development of care teams that include coordinators, nursing supervisors, personal support workers and registered nurses. Calls are always answered by friendly caring coordinators, 24 hours a day, never by voice mail.

Nightingale offers every aspect of short-and long-term personal care including rehabilitation, convalescent and palliative care, infant and child-care, and respite care to give primary caregivers a breather. They work hand in hand with rehabilitation consultants, insurance companies and legal firms and continue servicing many clients on behalf of local Community Care Access Centres.

Nightingale's extensive experience began with its founding in January 1986. Their long history of community involvement includes support staffing for community hospitals, long term care facilities and nursing homes. They began an ongoing involvement with the Toronto Homecare Program in 1989, which eventually evolved into their present relationship with local Community Care Access Centres.

Community care has undergone radical changes. Hospital stays are being shortened and convalescent time in one's own home has been growing in length. Nightingale has been quick to react with an innovative approach to homecare enabling them to service the ongoing complexities of home health care.

As a part time Rabbi and with ongoing involvement in adult education, Kerzner maintains his connection to the Jewish community. In-services devoted to the kosher kitchen and Jewish observances reflect a commitment to serve the Jewish community with cultural sensitivity.

Consistency of care is of utmost importance. Staff retention is very high. Some caregivers have been with Nightingale for over a decade. Caregivers eventually are treated as part of the family even joining their clients on vacations and attending family simchas.

While Nightingale has always striven to maintain the highest quality, their standards have risen over the years and have gained recognition by the Canadian Council of Health Services Accreditation.

Nightingale Health Care is located at 5001 Yonge St., Suite 1302 in North York. Visit their website at www.nightingalehealthcare.ca; and call them at (416) 222-6567 for a free in-home assessment.

Israel 5¢ per minute*
Dial 10-10-620 And Save On Long Distance
*Based on first 20 minutes for $1. After each additional minute.
TALK MORE. PAY LESS.
10-10-620
Call the WORLD for $1

Health & Lifestyles

GRAND OPENING
NIJLI salonspa
[illegible] Eglinton Avenue W.
Tel: 416 488 7630

Dishing up healthy, satisfying meals for your family

BY NORENE GILLETZ
Special to The CJN

In these high-stress, fast-paced times, how can busy parents prepare uncomplicated, healthy, delicious home-cooked meals that suit even the pickiest of eaters? In The Vegetarian Family Cookbook (Broadway Books, $26.95), Nava Atlas offers an abundance of flexible, adaptable recipes, plus a wealth of easy ideas, menus and helpful tips designed to satisfy every member of the whole family. Her recipes are down-to-earth, offering realistic solutions for preparing delicious breakfasts, lunches and dinners, plus quick, healthy snacks.

Covering everything from family-friendly salads to comforting casseroles, the book has recipes for delicious meat-free meals, from Alphabet Soup to Zucchini Raisin Muffins. Atlas explains why choosing organic products is always best. She takes the mystery out of cooking with soy, and also provides dozens of delicious whole-grain, low-sugar desserts. Most of the recipes include vegan substitutions for eggs or dairy products.

"What I offer you here," Atlas says, "is an abundance of options, information and resources to make healthy, delicious, meatless meals as often as possible, whether your family is vegetarian, vegan, omnivorous or a combination."

Here are some terrific tips Atlas offers for busy cooks: "Plan three full meals for the week ahead, allowing for two nights of leftovers. Plan your meals before you go grocery shopping to prevent running back and forth to the store all week for ingredients. There's nothing worse when walking into the kitchen after a long day without a clue as to what you want to make. Just 15 or 20 minutes of meal planning per week saves lots of time and simplifies your life immeasurably."

This is Atlas' eighth cookbook. Her website is www.vegkitchen.com, one of the most widely visited vegetarian sites on the Internet.

The following recipes will make a welcome addition to your Sukkot or Thanksgiving menu, perfect for the transition from late summer to fall.

CREAMY BUTTERNUT SQUASH AND APPLE SOUP
Dairy/Vegan Option

Everything about this soup says fall harvest – from its warm golden colour to its slightly sweet, fresh flavour. Once the squash is baked, this soup comes together fairly quickly.

1 large butternut squash
2 tbsp. light olive oil
1 large red onion, chopped
4 cups peeled, diced apple, any cooking variety
4 cups prepared vegetable broth, or 4 cups water with 1 vegetable bouillon cube
½ tsp. ground ginger
¼ tsp. ground nutmeg
2 cups low-fat milk, rice milk or soy milk
salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

Preheat the oven to 400. Halve the squash lengthwise with a sharp knife and scoop out the seeds and fibres. Place cut side up in a shallow baking dish and cover tightly with foil. Or, if you'd like a more roasted flavour, simply brush the squash halves with a little olive oil and leave uncovered. Either way, bake for 45 to 50 minutes or until tender. Set aside until cool enough to handle.

Heat the oil in a soup pot. Add the onion and saute over medium-low heat until golden, 8 to 10 minutes.

Add the apples, broth and spices. Bring to a simmer, then cover and simmer gently until the apples are soft, about 10 minutes.

In a food processor, puree the squash with ½ cup of the milk until completely smooth. Transfer to a bowl.

Transfer the apple-onion mixture to the food processor and puree until completely smooth. Return to the soup pot and add the squash puree; stir together. Add the remaining milk, using a bit more if the puree is too thick.

Bring the soup to a gentle simmer, then cook over low heat until well heated through, 5 to 10 minutes. Season with salt and pepper. Serve at once, or let the soup stand off the heat for 1 to 2 hours, then heat through as needed before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Dairy: 169 calories, 6 grams total fat, 4 grams protein, 5.2 grams fiber, 28 grams carbohydrate, 3 grams cholesterol, 95 mg sodium.

Vegan Option: 178 calories, 6 grams total fat, 2 grams protein, 5.2 grams fiber, 33 grams carbohydrate, 0 grams cholesterol, 83 mg sodium.

TWO-POTATO BREAD PUDDING (Vegan)

You need not wait until Thanksgiving to enjoy this hearty casserole, which resembles a baked stuffing.

1 medium sweet potato
5 medium potatoes, preferably red-skinned or Yukon Gold
1½ cups low-sodium prepared vegetable broth or 1½ cups hot water and 1 vegetable bouillon cube
4 large or 6 average slices whole-grain bread, torn into small pieces
2 tbsp. light olive oil
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup diced celery
¼ cup finely chopped fresh parsley, optional
2 tsp. salt-free all-purpose seasoning (e.g., Mrs. Dash)
salt and freshly ground pepper, to taste

Bake or microwave the sweet potato and the white potatoes separately in their skins until done. When cool enough to handle, peel and place in a large mixing bowl. Add half of the broth and coarsely mash.

Preheat the oven to 375. Generously oil a 2-quart baking dish. Place the bread in a small mixing bowl and pour in the remaining broth. Let soak for several minutes, until the broth is absorbed. Meanwhile, heat the oil in a medium skillet. Add the onion and celery and saute over medium-low heat until the onion is lightly browned and the celery is tender.

Add the onion and celery mixture to the mashed potatoes. Stir in the soaked bread, parsley, if using, and salt-free seasoning. Season with salt and pepper.

Pour the mixture into the prepared dish. Bake for 45 minutes, or until the top is a crusty golden brown. Makes 6 servings.

224 calories, 6 grams total fat, 5 grams protein, 5.1 grams fiber, 38 grams carbohydrate, 0 grams cholesterol, 161 mg sodium.

Norene Gilletz is a cookbook author, cooking teacher and food consultant. For information, call 416-226-2466 or visit her website, http://www.gourmania.com.

About Nutrition

By LISA WEINBERG

Q. I bake rogelach for the holidays. I have always used all-vegetable shortening, but I have been reading about cutting down on trans fat. What can I use instead?

A. Shortening is a source of trans fat and reducing its use is wise. I would try baking rogelach with non-hydrogenated, trans-fat-free margarine or, where possible, with canola oil. For recipes that do not require a crisp texture – for example, cookies – you can replace fat with plain yogurt or apple sauce.

Q. My son is in senior kindergarten and his school is asking that his snacks be healthy and include water only to drink? Is this a common request? What should I send? He loves crackers and animal cookies.

A. I am very pleased to see many schools making these requests. Preparing snacks now requires a little more time and creativity on the part of parents, but the end result is well worth the effort. Send cut-up fruit and vegetables with or without dip – try yogurt dips for fruit – cheese strings or cheese slices, mini yogurt, applesauce and dried fruit, along with the water. If you think you're going to have a hard time talking your son into eating these foods, ask him after the first day what other kids brought. He may see something that he'd be willing to try.

Lisa Weinberg is a registered dietitian/nutritionist in Toronto, in private practice and at the Genesis Professional Group. If you have any nutrition questions, please send them to The CJN.

Correction

The story headlined "Computer technology comes to aid of ALS patients" in the Sept. 15 edition of The CJN incorrectly stated that "the support of the Kunin-Lunenfeld Foundation [for ALS therapies at Sunnybrook and Women's College Hospital] is being withdrawn this month." In fact, the Samuel Lunenfeld Charitable Foundation, as the fund is properly called, has not only renewed its financial support for the Reuben Kunin ALS Technology Program (which operates under the banner of the Assistive Technology Clinic), it has increased its support to help make up for funding shortfalls from other sources. The CJN regrets any confusion the story may have caused.

Homecare Caregiving Counsellor:
Charles Leibovitch, M.S.W.
If You Need:
- Long Distance Caregiving
- Homevisits
- Monitoring of Adults and the Elderly
- Counselling and Support
- Liaison with Homecare Support and Supportive Living Services

Please call (514) 279-4368 or charlesleibovitch@videotron.ca

L'Chaim CANCER SUPPORT FOR JEWISH WOMEN
CANCER?
We've "been there."
We are Jewish women cancer survivors who can "be there" for you during your cancer journey.
We provide confidential support via phone or visit to Jewish women undergoing cancer treatment.
Please call: 416-633-0409

Madonna's "Re-invention" doesn't detract from her classics

By ALIZA CRAIMER
Special to The CJN

LONDON — I can still remember the Akiva Academy Talent Show where my Grade 4 friends, Lisa and Leanne, pranced around on stage doing their best sultry impressions of Madonna, while lip-syncing La Isla Bonita.

Avowedly anti-Madonna then, I sang, or rather croaked my heart out to, that Annie,classic, You're Never Fully Dressed Without a Smile. Who would have guessed that 16 years later, I would pay ridiculous amounts of hard-earned scholarship money to attend, not one, but two Madonna concerts in England?

I am not the sort of fan who aspires to be like Madonna, look like Madonna, nor do I particularly care what religion(s) she is dabbling in this week or next. I like Madonna the performer: the dancer and the singer of great, cheesy pop songs and ballads from the '80s and early '90s (Like a Prayer, Papa Don't Preach, Cherish and Express Yourself).

So I went to Madonna's concerts in Manchester and London, not because of her connections with things Jewish, such as Kabbalah, but to experience her spectacle and charisma.

The Jewish buzz surrounding Madonna and her Re-Invention Tour has been hard to miss. Much has been made of Madonna's involvement with the Kabbalah Centre led by Rabbi Philip Berg. She has specified that all concert venues provide 25 cases of "Kabbalah water" backstage. Imbued with "ancient kabbalistic meditations," a half-litre bottle of this mystical nectar can be purchased for a paltry $1.75 US.

She spent Rosh Hashanah in Israel but for various reasons didn't perform. Eager to study Kabbalah and experience the roots of its mystical tradition, Madonna made a pilgrimage to Israel along with 2,000 of her fellow students of Kabbalah from 22 countries.

The queen of pop has also taken on a Hebrew name of royal proportions, Esther, although she apparently still prefers to be called Madonna by fans (at one concert, she ad-libbed, "Don't call me Esther!").

Significantly, on this tour, Madonna does not perform on Friday nights due to her observance of Shabbat (or at least partial observance, as her concerts on Saturday night begin before sundown). Some religious Jews have criticized Madonna for making a trendy fetish out of Judaism and specifically Kabbalah, but, as my boyfriend pointed out, if Madonna succeeds in making even a few of her Jewish fans feel renewed interest or pride in their own religion, what is the problem?

As we waited a regal 50 minutes for Her Majesty to appear onstage, it was not Esther for whom we clapped and screamed, but Madonna – good old, cone bra-wearing, irreverent, blond ambition, party girl, Madonna.

And that, for the most part, is who we got. The "re-invention" aspect of the tour, to my great relief, did nothing to detract from her classics and actually made some of her new songs much better. Between her singing and dancing and the 100 per cent effort put into the show by everyone on stage, I left exuberant and without a single regret over the cost of the tickets.

With my highly attuned Jewdar, I immediately zoned in on the little red string bracelet adorning Her Majesty's wrist. Anyone who has visited the Kotel is familiar with these superstitious charm bracelets, sold by very old, babushka-clad women. Madonna's version, at $26 US, must be made of really special string. Maybe when she was in Israel for Rosh Hashanah, she stocked up on "the real thing" for the bargain price of a few shekels.

Madonna seen (but not performing) in Israel recently.
[Israpet photo]

The next "Jewish" reference was during American Life where an assortment of religious figures, including a nun in a mini-dress, a priest, an Arab and two Chassidim complete with payot and shtreimls danced on the special stage extending into the crowd.

This was followed by the Hebrew letters lamed-aleph-vav appearing on a screen above Madonna as she sang The Lament from Evita, bizarrely strapped into an electric chair. I know nothing about Kabbalah, so while I have read that that letter combination is supposed to be one of the 72 names of God, it struck me as rather funny that it literally reads as "love."

Coincidence? I think not.

Next up on the "things Jewish" itinerary, Madonna sang Lennon's classic Imagine, which she astutely noted "could have been written yesterday."

The first time I saw the show, I tried not to snort derisively as war-ravaged children flashed behind her on the screen and she sang, "Imagine no possessions, I wonder if you can?"

The second time around, I zoomed in with my binoculars to see if there was any hint on her face of irony – this line being uttered by one of the richest women in the world, the ultimate material girl, who is said to make $2 million per show. This line is worth reflecting on for all fortunate people, myself most definitely included, but I could not help but marvel at the in-your-face irony (chutzpah?) of this being sung by someone who spends $26 on a piece of string.

In any event, the number concluded with the big screen showing a little Arab boy in a traditional headdress, walking arm in arm into the sunset with a little Jewish boy wearing a kippah. Perhaps Madonna will succeed where others have not and advance the cause of peace.

If Madonna's political bent was not clear from Imagine, it could not have been more obvious as the screen curtains came to a close. The final screen showed giant Palestinian and Israeli flags side by side.

I couldn't help but wish that Madonna was still going to perform in Israel and that I could be there with fans who could read the Hebrew on the screens and for whom her political images would have real resonance.

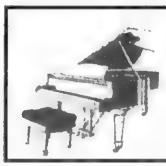
Dining Pleasures

RISTORANTE Amarone
A Taste of Italy
With this coupon
Complimentary Dinner Entrée

With purchase of another entrée of equal or greater value. Max. Value $10.
Not valid with any other discount. Max. 2 coupons per table. Dine-in.
4850 YONGE ST.
(1 BL. N. of Sheppard)
416-222-7500

Meron
BANQUETS
Tel: 905-669-0777
Fax: 905.669.2201
• Weddings • Bar/Bat Mitzvahs • Corporate Events
Elegance for every Occasion
1600 Steeles Ave. West (at Dufferin)

Scaramouche
Restaurant
Pasta Bar & Grill
Scaramouche is available for private functions, groups from 30 to 140, weddings, bar mitzvahs and bat mitzvahs.
Reservations: (416) 961-8011
Complimentary Valet parking.
1 Benvenuto Place, Toronto, Ontario



Eye on Arts

By Bill Gladstone

NADAL JCC OFFERS NEW COURSES IN JEWISH MUSIC, FILM, LITERATURE

Three great educational programs are coming up at the Miles Nadal JCC.

• Shlomo Schwartzberg, film critic and programming director for the Toronto Jewish Film Festival, presents "The Image of the Jew in Film and Television." The four-part course looks at the depiction of Jewish characters in the media "from Marjorie Morningstar to Kissing Jessica Stein, Seinfeld to The Simpsons, The Godfather to The Sopranos." Mondays, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., Oct. 25 to Nov. 15.

• Renowned clarinetist Martin van de Ven directs the Klezmer Players Workshop, an intensive 10-week klezmer experience for all levels of instrument players. Levels I and II. Tuesdays, 7 to 9:30 p.m. beginning Oct. 14.

• The Brown Bag Book Group is a book discussion group led by teacher Marilyn Herbert. Bring your lunch and discuss good books. Babysitting available. Five Thursdays, 12 noon to 1 p.m. Books to be discussed are The Singing Fire by Lilian Nattel (Oct. 21), The Amazing Adventures of Kavalier & Clay by Michael Chabon (Nov. 18), The Golems of Gotham by Thane Rosenbaum (Dec. 2), Ten Thousand Lovers by Edeet Ravel (Jan. 5) and Three Daughters by Letty Cottin Pogrobin (Feb. 17).

Prior registration is required for all three courses. Nadal JCC, 750 Spadina Ave. at Bloor. 416-914-6211.

* * *

Daniel Pearl Memorial Concert: The Royal Conservatory Orchestra performs a concert next week in celebration of the life of Daniel Pearl, only days before what would have been his 41st birthday. Presented in association with PEN Canada, a writers' group that promotes free expression in writing, the performance is one of many taking place around the world as part of Daniel Pearl Music Day.

A Wall Street Journal reporter, Pearl was kidnapped and murdered by terrorists in Pakistan in February 2002. He was also an avid musician who "saw music as a means of bridging different cultures and connecting with people he met on his travels," said Conservatory president Peter Simon. "We share in his belief that music plays a vital role in the building of cross-cultural understanding and dedicate this concert to the causes of tolerance, understanding and global harmony."

Conducted by Simon Streatfeild, "Symphonies of Hope and Fate: A Tribute to Daniel Pearl" features works by Beethoven and Karl Nielsen. Glenn Gould Studio, Canadian Broadcasting Centre. Adults $15. Thursday, Oct. 7, 8 p.m. 416-205-5555.

* * *

Writers Stage Mock UN Debate: Michael Ondaatje, Sheila Heti, Julia Rosenberg, David Bezmozgis, Daniel Brooks, Dionne Brand and Kush are among the writers and artists participating in "Darfur After Dark," a Toronto event meant to draw attention to the political and humanitarian crisis in the Darfur region of Sudan and to persuade the Canadian government to offer more assistance.

In Toronto, as in five other cities across Canada, participants will stage a mock debate of the UN Security Council, with Sudanese music provided by Kush.

"The performance of the UN play should be a lot of fun," said Bezmozgis, author of the recent and much-lauded Natasha and Other Stories. "Everyone has a moral responsibility to do what they can at this point and to make their voices heard."

Gladstone Hotel, 1214 Queen St. W. Wednesday, Sept. 29, 8 to 10 p.m.

* * *

At the Galleries: "North by Northwest," an exhibition of works by celebrated artist Ted Harrison, goes on view this week at the Hollander York Gallery. Harrison celebrates his 25-year association with the gallery with this assortment of colourful stylized paintings of northern Canada. Opening Oct. 2, 1 to 5 p.m. 110 Yorkville Ave.

* * *

Arts in Brief

• To mark the 75th anniversary of Anne Frank's birth, Marshall Arts presents the Toronto premiere of Wendy Kesselman's adaptation of The Diary of Anne Frank, the Pulitzer Prize-winning play by Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett. This impassioned drama stars Jennifer Waiser. Previews from Oct. 1, opens Oct. 5, runs to Nov. 7. Bathurst Street Theatre. 416-872-1212 or www.ticketking.com.

• David Buchbinder's Shurum Burum Jazz Circus performs in the Stone Distillery Building, Distillery District, Thursday, Oct. 7, 8 p.m.

• Muriel Gold, author of Tell Me Why Nights are Lonesome (Shoreline Press) reads from and discusses her book, a charming portrait of her parents who came to Canada in the early years of the last century. Israel's Judaica, 870 Eglinton Ave. W. Monday, Oct. 11, 7 p.m. 416-256-2858, ext. 33.

• J-18 is one of 10 Spanish-language films running in Si Si Cine Toronto Latin Film Festival Oct. 1-3 at the Bloor Cinema.

The Argentinean movie is a tribute to the victims of the terrorist attack on the Jewish community in 1994 in Buenos Aires.

FAMILY AND BAR/BAT MITZVAH TOURS
DEC. 18 - JAN. 2
DEC. 19 - JAN. 2
MARCH BREAK & PASSOVER '05
MARCH 10-22
MARCH 17-29
APRIL 21-MAY 4 (PASSOVER)
SUMMER '05
JULY 3-17
JULY 10-24
JULY 31-AUG. 14
AUG. 18-SEPT. 1

ISRAEL 2004-2005
We know Israel best. We send more people to Israel than any other travel agency.
December Family Tours almost SOLD OUT!
CALL TODAY! BOOK NOW!
• The best deluxe tours in North America
• All-inclusive deluxe hotels • More days of sightseeing
• More meals • A true family itinerary • Greatest value
Our website: www.israelfamilytours.com
PEERLESS TRAVEL
YOUR FULL SERVICE TRAVEL AGENCY
We will match or beat any Internet price worldwide 9 times out of 10 on any flight or package while providing personal service. Check us out!!!!
For daily worldwide specials - www.peerlesstravel.com
905-886-5610
Toll Free 800-294-1663
info@peerlesstravel.com
7117 Bathurst St. #200, Thornhill, Ont. L4J 2J2

Canadian Hadassah-WIZO Solidarity Mission Israel & Budapest March 16-28/05
Machal & Israeli War Veterans May 9-18/05
Join Yom Hazikaron/Yom Ha'atzmaut Ceremonies Incl. 7 days touring, many meals & more!! Call us now!
CALL US FOR BEST
•AIR FARES TO TEL AVIV
•HOTEL RATES IN ISRAEL
Ask about our Prestige tours departing weekly
EL AL ISRAEL AIRLINES
AIR CANADA

Moss featured at fundraiser for Magen David Adom

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

Lyric soprano and dancer Leah Moss, 24, is donating her talents to support Canadian Magen David Adom for Israel, which raises money for ambulances and medical supplies.

A native of Toronto who has studied at the Juilliard School of Music in New York, Moss is completing her education at Mannes College of Music in New York City.

"I want to help my kin through the only gift I know how to give – music," she says.

"My desire is to take the audience with me on a musical journey in which I can share with them the struggles, accomplishments and magic of the Jewish people – my people."

Leah Moss

Moss performs at a concert titled "A Musical Extravaganza," on Tuesday, Oct. 12, at 8 p.m. at the Leah Posluns Theatre.

The evening includes performances by guitarist Ron Cohen and the Daniel Barnes Klezmer Quartet. The musicians are also donating their time.

Moss is the youngest member, and a soloist, with the New Yiddish Chorale, which is conducted by the renowned Yiddish music expert Zalmen Mlotek. The New Yiddish Chorale is part of the Folkbiene Yiddish Theatre. The chorale recently performed with Neil Sedaka and the Klezmatics at a sold-out concert at Carnegie Hall.

Moss says she enjoys performing in Yiddish. "It is a rich and rewarding way for me to connect with my cultural heritage."

Through her association with the New Yiddish Chorale, she performed at the 15th

Continued on page 43

OUR NETWORK IS YOUR ADVANTAGE

Only Aerosvit Airlines provides non-stop service between Toronto and Kyiv, and offers smooth connections to:
– major cities in Ukraine
– Middle East: Tel Aviv
– Central and Eastern Europe: Moscow, St. Petersburg, Riga, Budapest, Warsaw, Prague
– and more!

1.416.961.KYIV
1.416.961.5948
www.aerosvit.com

АЕРОСВІТ УКРАЇНСЬКІ АВІАЛІНІЇ
AEROSVIT UKRAINIAN AIRLINES

Arts & Travel

Israeli director examines cult of masculinity in his films

By SHELDON KIRSHNER
Staff Reporter

The films of 40-year-old Israeli director Eytan Fox almost always explore the cult of masculinity in Israeli society.

Fox's latest film, Walk on Water, which appeared at the recent Toronto International Film Festival, fits that bill.

In Walk on Water, a cynical Mossad agent is assigned to track down a Nazi war criminal who may or may not be alive. He works through the criminal's two grandchildren, one of whom lives on a kibbutz as a volunteer.

By the time he completes his task, he has come to terms with his conflicted views of the Holocaust, Germans and Germany.

"I'm telling a story in which a man with a deep-rooted fear of the world gets to connect with his inner feelings," explained Fox, whose previous films run the gamut from Song of the Siren to Yossi & Jagger. "He changes through confronting and processing the most frightening event of his past."

Born in New York City, Fox grew up in Tel Aviv and believes that Israeli masculinity stems from the Holocaust and Israel's sheer struggle for existence and recognition.

In an interview, he observed, "We vowed never to let it happen again. We would never be led like lambs to the slaughter. We were expected to be strong. We lived with the constant fear that everyone was against us. That's how I grew up in the 1970s."

To some extent, the Oslo peace process, with its expectations of better days ahead, lifted this gloom, Fox said.

But the current Palestinian uprising, which broke out four years ago this month, brought back all the demons he had battled as a youth.

"We had to be tough again," said Fox, a gay man who lives with screenwriter and producer, Gal Uchovsky, in Tel Aviv's bohemian quarter off Sheinkin Street.

In his opinion, this emphasis on masculinity, which comes out especially in Yossi & Jagger, has taken a terrible psychological toll on Israeli men.

"While being tough, we became emotional cripples. It was too heavy a burden to carry on our shoulders."

A graduate of Tel Aviv University's School of Film and Television, Fox differs with the widely-held Israeli perception that Israel is universally besieged.

"The world is critical of Israeli policies, and rightly so," he said. "What is happening in the West Bank is tragic and horrible. As a strong power, we have to take responsibility and do something about the situation."

The late Yitzhak Rabin, he noted, proved that Israel and the Palestinians can come to terms.

In Walk on Water, the Mossad operative suggests that Israelis no longer care about the issue of Nazi war criminals.

Israeli director Eytan Fox

Fox contends that the reverse is true.

"Young Israelis think that Berlin is cool, that German girls are hot and that they have moved beyond the Holocaust. But in fact, they're repressing and denying their real feelings."

Walk on Water, which has been sold to 35 countries, including Canada, will open in Germany soon.

Germans are very ambivalent about Israel these days, he said. They sympathize with the Palestinians, but feel a special connection with and an obligation to Israel.

In Israel, Walk on Water fared amazingly well, tallying up an attendance figure of 130,000, an uncommonly big achievement by Israeli standards.

Similarly, the reaction to Yossi & Jagger – a film about a gay relationship between two Israeli soldiers serving in southern Lebanon – was positive. "It was accepted in such a loving way by a broad audience."

Fox believes that Israeli attitudes toward gays and lesbians have changed for the better in recent years. "It used to be so closed and backward. But it has opened up in a wonderful way."

His next film, Romeo and Julio, which begins production in March 2005, could be his most explosive one. It's about an Israeli Jewish gay whose friendship with a Palestinian turns sour when he becomes a suicide bomber.

"It'll be the toughest film I've ever shot."

FLORIDA, ARIZONA, CALIFORNIA, CANADA
WE SEND YOUR CAR & CONTENTS (and return)
CALL 416-225-7754
www.torontodriveaway.com
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY SERVICE
5803 Yonge St., #101
North York M2M 3V5
Since 1959

Meet your match!

Visit www.cjndating.com today - the best choice for Canadian Jewish singles!

New: CHAT!
Participate in live one-on-one chat sessions, in real-time... See who is online right now, and chat away!

Visit CJNDating to:
Join Free!
Reply to messages Free!
Participate in Chat for Free!
And much more....

CJNDating helping the community: Jewish Singles With Special Needs: JSWSN.org is a FREE service helping anyone with a disability find love & companionship! For more Info call: 514-487-2461.

Powered by JMATCH JEWISH INTERACTIVE DATING

Canadian Jewish News Dating. Well read. Well Matched!

Documentary reveals the life of wartime Soviet spy

By JOSEPH SERGE
Arts Editor

So what was a nice Jewish girl from Winnipeg doing working undercover for Stalin's intelligence, using clever aliases and travelling the globe as a leading Soviet spy?

A Spy's Life: Kitty Harris (History Television, Oct. 4, 9 p.m.) reveals this true story for the first time.

Directed by award-winning director Tim Southam and produced by Wheelwright Ink. Ltd., this documentary could easily be taken out of the pages of a John Le Carre novel.

Kitty Harris's perilous adventures are bookended by her birth and death in Russia. Fleeing Czarist anti-Semitism, her family left Russia in the early 1900s and settled in Winnipeg. It was during the Winnipeg General Strike that, as a young woman, Harris got her first taste of revolutionary politics.

After to moving to Chicago, she met Communist Party leader Earl Browder and accompanied him to Shanghai in 1927 where she started working as a courier for Communist spies.

Two faces of Kitty Fox: Above and top right, the Communist spy was a master at changing her identity.

She excelled at her job and was soon an important conduit working in Paris, Hitler's Germany and London where she ran a safe house for the famed British traitors the Cambridge Five.

She used many aliases and worked bravely under risk of capture, torture and execution. As one former KGB agent says, "How she did it for such a long time is unbelievable."

During Stalin's purges in the late '30s, when intelligence officers were routinely arrested and shot, Harris managed to survive. One former KGB officer believes she may have been personally protected by Stalin.

But this didn't last. Despite her relentless devotion to the cause, she was summoned to Moscow from Mexico where she was eluding the FBI after being outed by a KGB defector in a book.

In Russia, she was arrested for "anti-Soviet attitude," a routine excuse fuelled by Stalin's increasing paranoia of people who had worked overseas. She died in Gorky in 1966.

Soprano Leah Moss has a passion for classical music

Continued from page 41

Annual North American Jewish Choir Festival held in the Catskills and at other Yiddish festivals.

She is also part of a trio, Ashira, which presents Kabalat Shabbat and Musaf services in various synagogues. They recently performed at the Park Avenue Shul. Their website Ashira.org includes four musical selections and information about the group.

A year and a half ago, Moss performed at a sold-out concert at Beth Tikvah Synagogue in aid of victims of terror in Israel.

As a child, Moss performed with the Toronto Children's Chorus, the Claude Watson School of Music for the Arts and at the Royal Conservatory of Music.

She has performed with the New York Grand Opera, in Verdi's Un Ballo in Maschera on Central Park's Summer Stage and in Verdi's Requiem at Carnegie Hall. She played Cassie in A Chorus Line at the Colleen Dewhurst Theatre.

Her debut CD, Lighting Darkness-Music from the Soul, was recorded and released in Toronto in 2002.

She says she started out singing classical music and always had a passion for it, as well as musical theatre. "What I never expected was a love of Judaic music. The first time I sang a Judaic song, Hashivenu, it was like I had found myself. Judaic music is my calling."

Moss performs in Yiddish, Hebrew and Ladino and sings selections from Mendelssohn, Shemer and Goldfaden, Ravel.

Tickets for the concert at the Leah Posluns Theatre are $20. A sponsorship category includes preferred seating, a tax receipt and a meet-the-artist reception.

For tickets and information, call 416-780-0034, fax 416-780-0343 or e-mail cmda@interlog.com.

GERDA ROSNER
SHANA TOVA

SPA SPECIAL
The Saxony Resort & Spa
3201 Collins Ave., Miami Beach Fl.
Three meals daily. • Luxury accommodations
• Daily Massages, Facials
• Brand New Equipped Fitness Center
• Chair Aerobics, Water Aerobics
• Yoga, Linedancing, Craft Studio
• Exciting Daily & Nightly Shows
• Oceanfront Boardwalk & Beach
• 5 minutes from South Beach
• Flea Markets & Chauffeur Service
79$ daily U.S.
p.p. dbl. occ. plus air fare gratuities & tax
Rates apply to Jan 20/05 and March 3 - April 20/05
Call Gerda Toll Free 1-866-489-4148

THE CIVIC LIGHT OPERA COMPANY
proudly presents
GYPSY
THE SMASH HIT BROADWAY MUSICAL!

Starring JULIE LENNICK
FAIRVIEW LIBRARY THEATRE
Don Mills Rd. & Sheppard Ave., North York
Oct. 14 to 30, 2004
Wed. to Sat. evenings at 8:00 • Matinees – Oct. 17, 24 and 30 at 2:00
Tickets: $20
Wed. and Thurs. Special - Students & Seniors $17.50
BOX OFFICE 416-755-1717
Visit our website: www.CivicLightOperaCompany.com
Mail Orders: THE CIVIC LIGHT OPERA COMPANY
1000 Dundas Street East, Suite 7 Toronto M4M 1R7

Message to CJN Snowbirds

If you will be spending all or part of this winter outside of Canada, there are three options available to you regarding delivery of your Canadian Jewish News.

1/ Continue regular delivery to your home, and arrange for Canada Post to forward The CJN on with your other mail each week.

2/ Advise our Circulation Department to suspend delivery until your return to Canada with no weeks lost in your subscription period.

3/ Arrange with our Circulation Department to redirect The CJN to your winter address at a cost of $10.00 per month for U.S. addresses and $11.00 per month for foreign addresses.

This charge -- payable by cheque, Visa, Mastercard or American Express before departure -- covers the cost of additional postage incurred for out of country mailings.

To make any change in your delivery please fax 416-391-0949 or call the Circulation Department at 416-391-1836 (ext. 224), allowing a minimum of three weeks notice.

"A Jewish Journey Throughout EASTERN EUROPE"

Join us on this exciting and unforgettable tour of European and Jewish cultures. This memorable adventure includes a blending of Jewish history, outstanding cultural performances and our Eastern European connection.

Visiting:
BUDAPEST
SZENTENDRE
PRAGUE
DRESDEN
NEW BERLIN

March 21 - April 2, 2005
12 Day Package Including Air From Toronto

Personally Escorted by Harriet Morton

Package Includes: Return Air from Toronto • Group Transfers • 4 & 5 Star Accommodation • Porterage at Hotels & Airports • Guided Sightseeing • Most Meals • Cultural Performances • Danube Boat Cruise • Special Hungarian Concert Evening and Much More!

For our complete tour brochure & information, call HARRIET or BELLE at
NEW WAVE TRAVEL
416-928-3113 or Toll Free 1-800-463-1512 Ext. 245 or Ext. 273
hmorton@newwavetravel.net OR baroneta@newwavetravel.net

Former hotel industry exec now pens taut thrillers

By BILL GLADSTONE
Special to The CJN

"I write to entertain, I don't write to preach," said Eric Rill on a recent visit to Toronto during a publicity tour for his latest book, The Innocent Traitor (Georgetown Publications).

A former top executive in the hotel industry originally from Montreal, Rill's first novel was Pinnacle of Deceit. A political thriller, it was a surprise bestseller that elicited comparisons to the works of Tom Clancy, Ken Follett and John Le Carre.

His second novel is also a taut thriller involving complex political intrigues, government agents, spies and terrorists, all operating in a muddy, violent world where everyone is tainted. While the first book was set in Canada and the United States, The Innocent Traitor takes readers inside the CIA and the Guatemalan military.

Eric Rill's newest novel is a followup to his debut bestseller

"The story is a complete fiction that is based on what really happened in Guatemala and what's happening all over Central America and in fact in Iraq today," the author said, explaining that the CIA orchestrated a 1951 coup in Guatemala and subsequently backed a military regime responsible for the slaughter of many thousands of people.

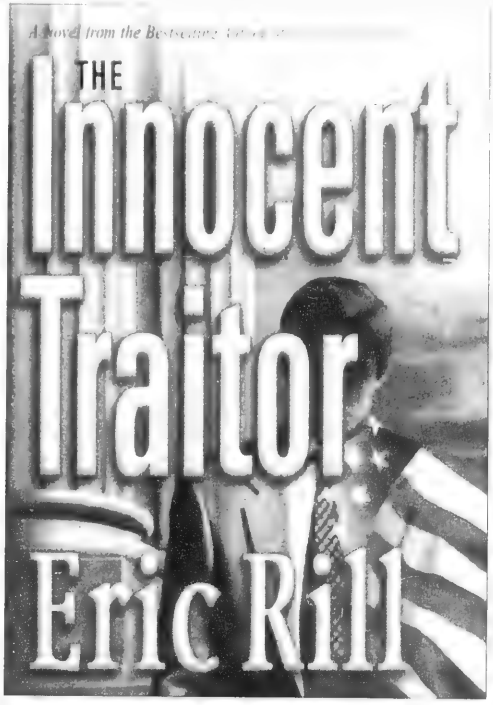
But Rill, who has "always been fascinated with politics," says the book was not intended as a political statement. "I wrote a thriller that I hope will keep people turning the pages," he said.

"I spent half my life in the United States and I love many things American," he said. "I just have difficulty with people who don't 'fess up to doing what they're doing."

The idea for the book came from a chance conversation he had in 1996 aboard a cruise ship with the brother of Alvaro Arzu, a Guatemalan politician who was later elected president. Later, Rill met a knowledgeable CIA source and "tapped" him for the sort of insider information that would allow him to establish an air of authenticity in the book, which is set in Guatemala, Washington DC and aboard a cruise ship.

"I'm not privy to whether he contravened his oath or not, but clearly I got enough information that I could write a book based on truth," said the author, who had lived in Washington DC for several years. "From what he told me, I was able to understand how the CIA operates in a personal way, what lingo they use, and so on."

Born in Montreal in 1946, Rill studied political science at New York's Cornell University and business at UCLA, and joined the Ramada hotel chain soon after graduation. Rising quickly through the corporate ranks, he stayed with the company for 10 years of jetsetting travel to more than 100 countries. "I was in China in 1972, the week after Nixon was there. That was the wonderful thing about Ramada. I got to travel all over the world."



At the peak of his responsibilities, a time when he was "running 10,000 people and 500 hotels," he decided he wasn't enjoying his job any more. So he left to start his own company, buying and selling distressed hotel properties in the United States and Canada.

Meanwhile, he had started writing, first a diary, then short stories. Eventually came the realization that he was more a creative than a corporate type. "It's important to know when to get off one bus and get on the next one," he said, of his decision to leave the hotel industry. "I figured it was time to start writing full time."

A resident of the British West Indies, Rill is still a keen international traveller and has maintained many of his industry connections. Indeed, seeking knowledge of normally restricted areas of a passenger vessel for some key scenes in The Innocent Traitor, he utilized his professional connections to get full access to a Radisson cruise ship during a month-long excursion around South America.

"If you're going to write, you've got to do research," he said.

As part of his novelistic research, he's also interviewed the former head of the U.S. Secret Service as well as officials in the RCMP and many other people he probably would not otherwise have met.

"Researching a novel is like getting a peek into someone's life," he said, expressing both fascination and delight at the novelist's calling. "You're always doing something. For me, that's fantastic."

David Frum's vision of an evil-free world

By DAVE GORDON
Special to The CJN

For many, President George W. Bush has been the right man to lead America. Journalist David Frum has been in the position to be the right man to tell America why.

Frum, a former speechwriter for Bush and the author of The Right Man: The Surprise Presidency of George W. Bush (Random House), writes about the threat of terrorism in An End to Evil: How to Win the War on Terror (Random House).

In it, Frum and co-author Richard Perle lay out a formula for national and international homeland security.

They postulate that the United States is good and those who pose a threat, current or future, are evil and must be neutralized or destroyed. They advocate an aggressive, activist approach to stamping out terrorism, both within America's borders and in other countries.

Their plan calls for the United States to overthrow the government of Iran, abandon support of a Palestinian state, blockade North Korea, use strong-arm tactics with Syria and China, disregard much of Europe as allies, and sever ties with Saudi Arabia.

Before becoming a White House speechwriter, Frum was an author of books and political commentary, as well as a columnist for the National Post and Forbes magazine.

In The Right Man: The Surprise Presidency of George W. Bush, Frum chronicles many of his experiences working in the White House, notably during the 9/11 crisis.

Frum helped write the phrase, "axis of evil," for Bush's 2002 State of the Union address – a phrase that linked international terrorists to Iran, Iraq and North Korea.

"The list of the 'axis of evil' states was much more than the terrorist-sponsoring states. They were implicated in terror, pursuing weapons of mass destruction and also dangerous regimes," he writes.

During his tenure at the White House in 2001 and 2002, Frum watched as Bush, the man who critics viewed as a "frat-boy" and "cowboy," became, in Frum's eyes, a pillar of moral clarity.

Fittingly, he wrote about the contrasting dualities of his own role, as both an insider and outsider.

Frum was a Canadian, Jewish intellectual in an administration heavily influenced by the president's born-again Christianity. (The first words he overheard in the White House were, "Missed you at Bible study.")

Being a Jew in the White House brought its own unique set of experiences, Frum says. There were poignant moments he recalls during the terrorist attacks of 9/11, when he made an improvised yarmulke by pulling his jacket over his head and read Kaddish from his Palm Pilot. There was also the White House menorah lighting, attended by just 10 people – half of them staffers' kids.

But Frum believes the White House's small Jewish contingent hasn't hurt Jews or Israel.

"I think it's thought-provoking that there has not been an administration in American history that featured more Jews of high position than the Clinton administration," he writes.

That's because he feels there has never been an administration that has taken more reckless risks for the security of Israel than that of former president Bill Clinton.

"Arafat was… given a security force trained to wage war against Israel. Who decided to trust him? The Israelis made a gamble themselves, but the gamble did not work out so well," Frum writes. "Clinton met with Arafat more often than any other leader. Bush won't talk to him. Bush doesn't talk to terrorists."

In the midst of the 9/11 tragedy, Afghanistan, and Iraq campaigns, Frum writes, what was most important was that Bush was restrained and moderate – and that his moderation has been a part of his success with the American public.

"This was not an act of vengeance or anger. It was an act of creative, constructive work to [get] rid [of] radical Islamists," he says.

And, according to Frum, the work to rid the world of terrorism is far from over.

Lisa Loeb takes her songwriting and religion seriously

'It's important to make choices that mean something to you'

By DAVE GORDON
Special to The CJN

Ask casual music fans what comes to mind when you mention Lisa Loeb, and they will likely talk about her tortoise-shell glasses or her hit song Stay.

Ten years ago, the uncomplicated, hummable, acoustic guitar-plucked refrain of Stay was familiar to millions of radio listeners – a refrain that still unfailingly elicits cheers from concert-goers after just the first few notes.

Since Stay, Loeb has had hits with Do You Sleep and I Do, and the 36-year-old, Dallas-raised chanteuse recently released a new album, her fourth, called The Way It Really Is. With her signature sound – folksy pop infused with reflective and poignant lyrics – the CD won't disappoint fans. Critics are lauding its sound, which is darker, richer and more mature than her earlier work.

Loeb, who two years ago switched from Geffen Records to Artemis, a small boutique record label, says she feels she now can create the art of her choice without added pressure from the industry for an instant hit song.

"It's better to have what's important to you instead of what success means in the public's eye," she says.

She is promoting the new disc with a Canadian and Japanese tour, and recently appeared in Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

Loeb's career took off in late 1993, when actor and friend Ethan Hawke asked her to contribute a song for his movie Reality Bites. When director Ben Stiller included Stay on the film's soundtrack, Loeb became a record-breaking and award-winning singer/songwriter. She also became the first unsigned artist to have a No. 1 single – a single that garnered her a Grammy nomination for best performance by a duo or group in 1994.

Loeb, like a lot of professional musicians, started very young, singing along with Olivia Newton-John records and the soundtrack to Annie, and taking piano lessons, although she soon switched to guitar.

"Not only was my brother hogging the piano all the time, but he was becoming a world-class classical pianist. So I started to play guitar. It was an instrument I could play in my room. I could play classical or popular songs, and I could carry it around," she says.

She says she was having trouble remembering the Rush and John Cougar songs her guitar teacher was showing her, and decided to start writing her own songs.

"I did take songwriting seriously then," she says. "I always have a mixed feeling about how seriously I take what I do. One day I'll take it very seriously and the next I'll say, 'Well, I could do without it…' It's something I'll have to talk to my shrink about. [But] I… work hard at it and am offended when people don't take it seriously at all."

Something else she is taking seriously these days is learning about her religion, as she thinks about having children.

"I'm learning more that the most important aspects of Judaism are the parts about family, and figuring out how I can relate to it. I think that happens at my age when people start to think about having kids," she says.

Lisa Loeb: Creating the art of her choice.

Has her religion ever affected her music? "Nothing in Judaism has really been brought into my songs directly, like, my bat mitzvah or anything – except for the fact that I wore high heels at my bat mitzvah, and maybe somewhere along the line, it reminded me that I just cannot wear those kinds of shoes on stage."

Loeb says she admires the way Jewish tradition looks highly upon those who seek answers and acquire knowledge.

"The thing that has influenced me is an intellectual thing, a cultural thing and a philosophical thing. There's a general feeling of learning and education that's really important. It makes you a more thoughtful and spiritual person to think about what you believe and feel. I think that comes out a lot in my songwriting. I'm only slightly neurotic – it's the Woody Allen School of Judaism. That comes from thinking about every aspect of something," she says.

Loeb puts her career on hold during holy days. "I can't not go to services. I'm going because I want to go. Lots of people go and don't want to, and then whine about it later," she says. "It's important to make choices that mean something to you."

International sex trade highlighted in Gitai's latest film

By SHELDON KIRSHNER
Staff Reporter

Night has fallen on the Sinai Peninsula as the camera pans on a slow-moving camel train traversing the stony moonlit desert.

The camels carry passengers, but it is impossible to ascertain whether they are men or women.

Promised Land, which was screened at the recent Toronto International Film Festival, is not a travelogue, as the innocuous opening shot might suggest.

Far from being bland, Amos Gitai's latest movie is a shocker, a shattering view of the world-wide sex trade and its ugly tentacles in Egypt and Israel.

A bitterly ironic play on words, Promised Land packs a wallop as it offers viewers a glimpse of the dehumanizing and degrading flesh trade that turns ordinary women into prostitutes.

As Bedouin make their way toward the Israeli border, they stop to warm themselves up around a camp fire. They refer to their charges, a group of young, apprehensive eastern European women, as "goods."

That is precisely what they are, at least in the eyes of the Arab guides tending to the camels. One of them grabs a woman and proceeds to rape her.

Promised Land* is a cri de coeur about the heartless trafficking of women.

As reality sets in, the women are transferred into vans. The vehicles slip into Israel, past Israeli army patrols, and rendez-vous with Israeli smugglers speaking in a mixture of Hebrew and Russian.

An "auction" takes place as the smugglers inspect the women and haggle over prices. Five thousand dollars. Seven thousand dollars.

The price depends on their feminine charms and their age. "She has beautiful breasts," comments a female dealer.

It is a disgusting process and Gitai milks it for all it is worth.

The scene shifts to Ramallah, a town in the West Bank, as the women, now disguised as Arabs in flowing robes, are smuggled past an Israeli checkpoint.

In Eilat, their penultimate destination, they are ordered to undress, doused demeaningly with hot water, like so many cattle, and fitted with skimpy outfits.

Hanna (Hanna Schygulla), a German- born madam, comforts one of the tearful women.

Once again, like common chattel, the women are moved, this time to a club or a bordello in Haifa. Taking advantage of the situation, a driver sexually molests a woman.

Subsequently, a woman in distress issues a desperate appeal for help.

In a series of cross-cutting scenes, Gitai contrasts their wretched condition with that of a squeaky-clean Russian church choir cranking out ethereal songs.

Toward the close of this depressing film, the women in the club/bordello are routed by a fire, and freedom beckons.

Featuring a cast of generally unknown actors who acquit themselves remarkably well, Promised Land is anything but a garden-variety Hollywood commercial film.

Instead, it is stunning cri de coeur about the heartless trafficking of women in our times.

REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

Ten-Year Anniversary of HOME MART (416) 222-6669 homemart@sympatico.ca

Wishing our clients and their families a Happy and Prosperous New Year!

GISELA WOLF | Principal Broker

BATHURST/CLARK Walk to Shuls SPACIOUS 4+3 bdrm 5 bath 3Kit LivDr combined Fam Rm Dble Garage Two Separate Bsmnt Apt $469,900

YONGE/STEELES (Like a bungalow!) Well-kept 3bdrm 2bath High Ceiling Open Balcony 1400sf condo $191,900

NIAGARA FALLS 3bdrm bung 2bsmnt apt live in or invest $185,000

BATHURST/WILSON Unique Commercial / Residential detached Top shape Investor/user? $339,900

BATHURST/CLARK $1950/month Lrg 4bdrm 3bath Fam Rm Dble Grg Walk to Shul; Hebrew School

BATHURST/DAVENPORT $900-$1350 1-3 bdrm furnished or not central air laundry shul; kosher kitchen

BATHURST-LAWRENCE

2 bedroom renovated home from $1,650 + utilities. Walking distance to Synagogues, TTC, Schools and Bathurst St. Call 416-633-3833 or to view pictures of our properties... www.adenathomes.com

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

FINCH & YONGE

Elegant 4,200 sq. ft. property in top condition, huge lot, close to all amenities. See it – love it. SALLY ROSEN, Century 21 Heritage Grp. Ltd. 905-764-7111

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

ALAN NEWTON

REAL ESTATE LTD. REALTOR

BATHURST-WORTH - POOL SIZE LOT

Exquisite 4 bedroom home - 6 years old on quiet court! Hardwood floors, glass block, appliances, landscaped+++. Close to all amenities. *Ted Waxman

• • •

"THORNHILL WOODS" - BATHURST-HWY 7

New area! Detached 4 bdrm, completely finished basement with separate entry, best value in area! $424,900. *Cila Fleischmann

• • •

CONDOMINIUMS FOR SALE

BATHURST-ANTIBES-TORRESDALE

Beautiful corner 3 bdrm condo, solarium, new parquet floors, granite foyer, panoramic south/west view. Must see! *Mila Gurfinkel

• • •

BATHURST-ANTIBES

Fabulous immaculate 2 bedroom condo, 1½ baths, steps to bus & subway. Walk to shuls. *Helen Winer

• • •

COTTAGE FOR SALE

IN BELLE EWART - 3 MINUTE WALK TO WATER

Fully winterized & renovated 2 bedroom cottage, 2 year new appliances, 3 car parking, walk to synagogue. *Ted Waxman

• • •

* Sales Representative Associate Broker

905-764-7200

Paul Slavens

REAL ESTATE INC. REALTOR

RESULTS RESULTS RESULTS 483-4337

FINE PROPERTIES

PRESTIGIOUS ONE POST ROAD - $2,999,000.

Spectacular penthouse suite. Private rooftop terrace & 3 balconies Library. 3 bdrms. w/ensuites. Master w/dressing room. Extensive built-ins. Laundry. 3 parking spots. Richard Sherman.

• • •

LOWER VILLAGE - $2,490,000.

Stately residence. 4 bdrms. on 2nd and 3 more on 3rd floor. 6 baths. Elegant centre hall plan, main floor library, grand staircase. 3 fireplaces. Attached 3 car garage. A rare find. *Edie Winberg

• • •

"MUSKOKA" IN THE CITY - $1,999,000.

Architecturally reno'd 5 bdrm. in the heart of Forest Hill. Main fl. family rm. + library + den. Exceptional lot. Overlooks Relmar Park. Beautiful views. *Edith Weiss

• • •

LOWER VILLAGE - $969,000.

Exceptional income property at Spadina/Heath. 5 legal units. Property in great condition. Ample parking. Excellent income. Don Wagman

• • •

AVENUE RD. / LAWRENCE - $899,000.

Custom 4 bdrm., 4 bath home. Approx. 2,300 sq. ft. of luxury. Main floor family room, 3 skylights. 2 fireplaces. Finished lower level w/ walk-out. Central air. Richard Sherman

• • •

FOXBAR RD. - $899,000.

Traditional centre hall residence. 5 bdrms., 4 baths. Main fl. den. Central air. Finished lower level. Double car garage. Walk to Brown & Deer Park schools. Gloria Paisley / *Edie Winberg

• • •

UPPER VILLAGE - $895,000.

Wonderful family home features library, family rm., powder rm. 4+ bdrms. (master ensuite). Finished lower level w/walk-out to landscaped garden. Private drive & built-in garage. Don Wagman

• • •

WILLIAM CARSON CRES.

$799,000. Yonge/York Mills. Spectacular unit. Approx. 2,035 sq. ft. Master w/sitting rm. Den. 3 baths. High ceilings. 2 balconies. Ensuite laundry. Locker. Parking. *Edie Winberg

• • •

BAYVIEW / EGLINTON PENTHOUSE - $569,900.

New, luxurious 2 bdrm., 3 bath, loft style condo. Superb finishes. Family rm. Den. Balcony. Locker. 2 parking spots. Steps to TTC, DVP, trendy shops & restaurants. *Kathie Wood

• • •

LAWRENCE PARK CONDO - $449,000.

Beautiful corner garden suite. 2 bdrms., 2 baths. Ensuite laundry. Locker. 2 parking spots. Approx. 1,686 sq. ft. + private 482 sq. ft. terrace. Walk to Yonge St. shops & restaurants. Richard Sherman

• • •

"THE BELLAGIO" - $369,900.

Bloor/Mt. Pleasant. Spacious 2 bdrm., 2 bath suite in luxurious condo residence. Overlooks Rosedale ravine. Balcony. Locker. Parking. Steps to shops, restaurants & TTC. *Donna Taylor

• • •

BATHURST / CENTRE - $359,900.

Stunning 3 bdrm. reno'd townhome located on cul-de-sac. Spacious kitchen + breakfast rm. Finished ground level w/walk-out. Near schools, parks, transit & Promenade Mall. *Ron Chichora

• • •

NEPTUNE DRIVE - From $170,000.

Rarely available. 2 beautiful 1 bdrm. suites in Baycrest Properties Seniors' Residence. Ensuite laundry/storage. Parking. Locker. Fabulous building amenities. *Betty Cohen

• • •

416-483-4337

* Sales Representative Associate Broker

Virtual tour our properties:www.paulslavens.com

DAVID EICHORN REALTY LIMITED

"WE OPEN DOORS FOR YOU"

416 787•1712 Visit our website: eichornrealty.com

LESLIE / HWY. 7 — PRIME COMMERCIAL / OFFICE

A TRUE GEM FOR YOUR PORTFOLIO! 4 storey, 40,000 sq. ft. with sunswept atrium and 135 surface parking spaces. Annual gross income $960,000. Fabulous location with immediate access to Highways 7, 407 & 404. Asking $7.395 million. Call David Eichorn* or Mark Eichorn (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / YORK DOWNS — REDUCED!

RARE OPPORTUNITY ON SPECTACULAR 67 X 432 FT. LOT! Build your dream home on this magnificent property backing onto Timberlane Ravine and surrounded by multi-million $ homes. PRICED FOR IMMEDIATE SALE AT ONLY $1,119,000. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / LAWRENCE — STUNNING CUSTOM HOME!

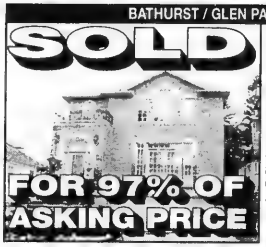
Approx. 3,500 sq. ft. + fin. bsmt., 5 + 1 bdrms., sep. entry to in-law suite, dream kit., main floor fam. room + library. All the bells & whistles — oak hrdwd. flrs.., limestone, granite, skylights ++. Asking $1,029,000. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

ATTENTION BUILDERS:

Dream home opportunities on these ideally-situated building lots!

AVENUE / BATHURST (SOLD) OLDSTREAM 50 x 150 ft.
BATHURST / LAWRENCE 50 ft. frontage, $419,000
AVENUE ROAD / LAWRENCE 44 ft. frontage, $449,000
CLANTON PARK Magnificent 63 x 150 ft., $459,000

BATHURST / GLEN PARK



Custom executive home, 10 years new! 2,700 sq. ft. + finished basement. 4 + 1 bdrms., 5 baths, gorgeous landscaping, in prime central location! Double garage, w/o from basement, w/o to deck. Call David Eichorn* at (416) 787-1712.

SOLD

BATHURST / GLENGROVE — EXQUISITE NEW CUSTOM HOME!

5 + 2 bdrms., 5 baths, fin. bsmt., sep. entry to in-law suite, fam. room, dream kit. Luxurious upgrades throughout! Lowest priced new home in area. REDUCED TO $979,000 — ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712. Visit our website for a virtual tour.

• • •

BATHURST / DELL PARK — STUNNING CUSTOM HOME

Approx. 3,600 sq. ft. of luxury + fin. bsmt., 5 + 2 bdrms., upgrades throughout. Stone front, extensive use of limestone, marble & granite, main flr. 9.5 ft. ceilings and custom library w/ built-in bookcases, dream kit., sep. entry to 2 In-law suites, w/o to deck. ONLY $999,000! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712 or visit our website for a virtual tour.

CENTRAL PARK GARDENS — NEW AND STUNNING!

EXQUISITE NEW TOWNHOMES in prime central location! Choice of 3 & 4 bdrm. units, each individually customized, attached garages and features galore, priced from $399,000. Brochures & samples available at our office! Call David Eichorn* NOW at (416) 787-1712.

*BROKER

SEIDMAN

REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR

416-633-7373

BATHURST/FINCH

Custom built 3 bdrm, 5 baths, huge liv & din, fam room with walk-out to yard, main flr laundry, fin bsmnt with private entrance, lrg lot, double garage, steps to all.

BATHURST/STEELES $264,900

Primrose 1, corner unit, 2 bedroom, 2 baths, huge liv & din room, 2 walkouts to balcony, parking, locker, Don't Miss This Great Buy.

416-633-7373

BATHURST/GLENCAIRN

Spectacular design, workmanship & decor, elevator, 6 brms, 6 baths, self-cont. bsmnt.
Bathurst-Earl Bales Park bungalow 44x158
Bathurst-Glencairn condos/for sale/rent

ANNETTE ROSENTHAL
416-704-1471
Homelife 5 Star 416-633-6666

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

HARVEY KALLES
REAL ESTATE LIMITED

1ST AD – 4 BR+1 – BATHURST VILLAGE
Totally reno'd top to bottom. Office, library, large family room, hardwood floors, 4 new baths, finished basement, alarm, lovely lot, convenient to all. $509,000. Paula Bernstein* ext. 228

LAWRENCE / BATHURST CONDO
Only 1 of 8 lrg units, 1,252 sf., 2 bdrms, 2 baths, open concept, beaut unit. Superb unobstructed W. view, overlook pool. 24 hr concierge. Locker/prkng on mn lev. $349K. M. Rosen* ext. 294

RIDLEY BLVD'S LARGEST SUITE
Just listed Approx. 1,500 sq. ft., 2 bedroom + den, southwest exposure, large breakfast area w/window, marble foyer/hall, storage locker & 2 parking spaces. Don't wait!!

"EMPIRE PLACE" IN RICHMOND HILL
Newer totally up-graded 2 bedrooms/2baths suite w/stainless steel appliances, hardwood floors, south facing balcony, storage locker, parking, indoor pool, steps to everything!

THORNHILL BEAUTY @ EIFEL TOWERS
Modern sub-penthouse suite in newer building near Bathurst/Steeles. One bedroom + den w/laminate flooring, balcony w/magnificent unobstructed view, locker + parking.

EXECUTIVE "WATERFRONT" RENTAL
Spadina/Queens Quay – Magnif. 2 storey, 1,711 sq. ft., sub-penthouse suite o/lake, 2 Brs/3baths, hardwood flooring, granite countertops, 24 hr concierge.
Perry Steinberg ext. 334

*Sales Representative Associate Broker
Residential & Commercial & Industrial * Investment & Land
A portion of the proceeds from all our sales will be donated to the Hospital for Sick Children.
416-441-2888 Find us on ebay.ca www.harveykalles.com

CENTRE-CONCORD
Desirable Whilshire/Westmount area. Fabulous custom brick modern home, approx. 4,000 sq. ft., dbl. dr. entr., 3 car gar., greenhse. kit., bay window, 2 gas firepl., 9' ceiling, pressed wood deck, iron fence, prof. landscaped, lg. lot, interlock drive. Observatory skylight. Motivated. $789,000. INNA, C/B Pinnacle R.E. 905-707-8001.

10 PRIVATE HOUSES FOR SALE

Thornhill home for sale, York Hill Blvd. 905-886-3663. Details at www.geocities.com/eidanruth

30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE

GLENCAIRN - W - SUBWAY
$205,000 - Remodelled kitchen, 2 bedroom. Fabulous view, pool, parking, Shabbat elevator.

FOREST HILL VILLAGE
Heath/Spadina - $329,000 - 1 bdrm + solarium, luxury building, pool, parking, walk to the village.
Call D. Abraham, Coldwell Banker Pinnacle, 416-485-2299

10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE

SAVE REAL ESTATE FEES
50 Lower Village Gate
Spadina - Lonsdale Area
3 bedroom Condominium Townhouse
About 3300 sq. ft. $900,000
416-922-1967

Check out the Bridal Supplement starting on page B-01
The Canadian Jewish News
JUST MARRIED
STATE OF BLISS

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

Forest Hill
Real Estate Inc. Realtor
416-488-2875 Forest Hill Village | 416-785-1500 Central | 416-226-1987 Bayview
List with us and appear on our Website: www.foresthill.com

CENTRAL PROPERTIES

SPECTACULAR LOWER VILLAGE HOME!
Designed and décor by Katherine Newman. Stunning pool. Must See! B. Sokol* and B. Westbrook* 416-226-1987

$2,149,000 - FABULOUS FOREST HILL CUSTOM BUILT
Absolutely perfect 4 bedroom, 5 baths with the finest finishings. Double garage. Reesa Sud* 416-488-2875

U.C.C. UPPER TOWNHOUSES, WENGLE/GLUKSTEIN
Design, 3 or 4 bedrooms, 2 car parking, brick, cedar roof, freehold, 4 left. R. Pearsall* and C. Kwinter* 416-488-2875

536 GLENGROVE AVE! NEW! 2 BDRMS, 5 BATHS! SOLD
$1,039K! Bathurst/Glencairn Beauty! Main family+library+2pce! W/o bsmnt! Fab 40x133'! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

246 CORTLEIGH BLVD! UNBELIEVABLE! SOLD
$1,119K! Lytton Park 4+1 bdrm, 5 baths, centre hall! Mn fam+lib +2pce! 50x134'! Won't last! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

226 COLDSTREAM AVE! TOTALLY RENOVATED!
$959K! Avenue Rd/Glencairn! 4+1 bdrm, 4 baths! Sensational 47 x 201'! I/g pool! Move in! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

GREAT CEDARVALE HOME! 4+1 BDRMS!
Main floor family & powder room, large eat-in kitchen, prof. landscaped. Brenda Westbrook* 416-226-1987

PRIME ARMOUR HEIGHTS - JUST $899K
Custom built home on sought after Cul-De-Sac. Main floor family+den. 4 bedrooms. Faith Eversky 416-488-2875

UPPER FOREST HILL VILLAGE $699,000
Custom built home - Top quality finishes. 1.5 years new, 3 bedrooms, 4 baths. Faith Eversky 416-488-2875

PRIME UPPER FOREST HILL - JUST $799K
Extensively reno'd 2002, 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, main floor family room. 46 x 121 ft. 10++ Faith Eversky 416-488-2875

78 ALEXIS BLVD! EXECUTIVE 4+1 BDRMS, 4 BATHS!
$698K! Bathurst S/Sheppard! Impeccable res on rare 40x161'! Walk to subway! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

101 SWEETWATER RICHMOND HILL
Amazing Kept Acorn built 3+1 bedroom, 2nd flr den. Steve Wagman* 416-785-1500

YONGE S/FINCH FABULOUS 60 X 125' LOT!
$445K! Build your dream home! Quiet local, just steps to subway + shops! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

12 LISTER DRIVE! YONGE N/FINCH!
$420K! Updated 3+1 bdrm, 2 bath bung! Nanny ste! Gorg'us 67x 113' "Lazy Man's Garden"! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

REDUCED TO SELL! BATHURST/LAWRENCE
3+1 bedroom bungalow, 2 kitchens, finished basement, separate entrance. Brenda Westbrook* 416-226-1987

CENTRAL PROPERTIES CONT'D.

COLLEGE/LITTLE ITALY TOWNHOME - $245,000
Just renovated, new kitchen, new baths, new hardwood floors throughout, 3 bdrms. Faithe Eversky 416-488-2875

BAYVIEW/NORTH PROPERTIES

348 BANBURY ROAD! FAB 5+1 BDRM, 4 BATHS!
$889K! Bayview N/York Mills! Main Fam+Lib+Lau+2pce! Stunning I/G Pool! 71x128'! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

573 CONACHER DRIVE! 5+1 BDRM, 4 BATHS!
$849K! Bayview N/Finch! Main Fam+Lib+Lau+2pce! Oversized 66 x135'! Vendor says sell! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

177 ROSE GREEN DRIVE! 4 BDRM, 3 BATHS! SOLD
$619K! Bathurst N/Centre! Family+Lib+Lau+2pce! 55x108'! Backs on Golf Course! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

NEW PRICE! 2YR OLD HOME! $425,000 THORNWOOD WEST!
4 bedroom, 3 baths, large family room, separate breakfast room, double garage. S. Merrick* 416-488-2875

BRIGHT & MODERN 2 BDRM, 2 BATHS
Corner unit @ New York Towers! Luxurious living. Andre Levy-Bencheton* 416-226-1987

CONDOMINIUM PROPERTIES

LUXURY FOREST HILL TOWNHOUSE ON RAVINE
3+1 bedrooms, eat-in kitchen, two walkouts, 2 car parking, security. $969,000. Russell Pearsall* 416-488-2875

RARELY OFFERED, 1ST AD! 3 BDRM CONDO PENTHOUSE
Forest Hill. 3 baths, gorgeously renovated. Indoor pool, concierge. $749,000. S. Merrick* 416-488-2875

PENTHOUSE IN FOREST HILL, BEAUTIFULLY RENOVATED!
2 bedroom, 2 baths, great City views! Indoor pool, concierge. Saul & Marilyn Merrick* 416-488-2875

JUST REDUCED LOWER VILLAGE GATE FOREST HILL $349,000
1 bedroom + den, eat-in kitchen, 2 baths, balcony, parking, outdoor pool. S. Merrick* 416-488-2875

SKYMARK - THE ZENITH! $319,900
Meticulously main/well appoint, 3 bdrm+sol, app. 1,600 sq. ft. Great rec rm, fac+24 hr gatehouse sec. Carolyn Feldman 416-488-2875

FOREST HILL VILLAGE CONDO
Beautiful 2 bedroom, 2 baths, East exposure, hardwood floors throughout. Faithe Eversky 416-488-2875

SPECTACULAR EMPRESS WALK CONDO
2 bedrooms, 2 baths, parking, hardwood, ceramic floors, direct access to subway. Brenda Westbrook* 416-226-1987

NEW PRICE! GORGEOUS SUB PENTHOUSE $289,900
Yonge/Finch. 1,325 sq. ft., 2 bdrm, 2 baths, solarium, comb liv & din, fab master ste, prkng. Near subway. M. Merrick* 416-488-2875

$275,000 TRENDY UPSCALE MID-TOWN REAL LOFT LIVING
940 sq. ft., 2 bedrooms, 2 baths. R. Britstone* 416-785-1500

JUST REDUCED! 2 BDRM IN FOREST HILL
$225,000. Approx. 825 sq. ft., sep liv/din area, hrdwd, 2 baths, parking, locker. Excellent loc, near subway. M. Merrick* 416-488-2875

65 HARRIS WAY, 3 BDRM CONDO TOWNHOUSE
Bayview/John. Private fenced garden backs to mature trees & park! Walk to schools, synagogue, church. Linda Murphy* 416-226-1987

RENTAL PROPERTIES

FOR LEAST - BATHURST/EGLINTON
$1,350/mo. Immaculate 2 bedroom, 1 bath, 1 parking space, available Sept. Faithe Eversky 416-488-2875

Associate Broker * Sales Representative

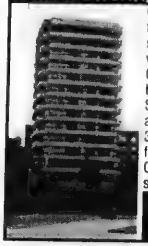
30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE

SANTEE REALTY INC. 416-441-2003
SKYMARK
DON MILLS & FINCH - UPDATED LISTINGS
Skymark 55 Zenith: 3 bedroom + solarium. $299,900.
Skymark II: renovated, open concept, south exposure. $299,900.
Skymark I: unique penthouse, 2 bdrm. + den. Over 2,000 sq. ft. $375,000.
For my updated inventory, colour brochures & 360° virtual tour, call:
SANTEE LEUNG, E.R.I., SKYMARK SPECIALIST

Rare Offering in Exclusive 12 Suite Bldg.



One-of-a-kind opportunity! Spacious, updated, fabulous & luxurious. 1 suite per flr. Approx. 2400 sq. ft., full balc. w/o's from every rm. Spectacular views of city. 2 elevators direct to suite. Glamorous marble flrs. & baths, 3 spacious bdrms. w/built-ins. Lg. open plan liv. & din. rms. Spacious modern island kit. w/built-in appls.; separate Subzero fridge & freezer, cupboards galore! 3 car pkg. Central location nestled in warm, friendly neighbourhood of million $$ homes. Comfort & value. Compare with anything you've seen! $869K.
Alan Ungerman, Broker 416-785-7111
e-mail: aungerman@trebnet.com
Ungerman Associates R.E. Ltd., Rltr.

BATHURST/ANTIBES
Spacious 2 bedroom + den; 2 baths, lrge eat-in kitchen, prof painted, laminate flrs, ensuite laundry, S. view, park, TTC @ door, walk to synag. Motivated. Only $209,000. Inna, C/B Pinnacle, 905-707-8001.

35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT

Bathurst/Centre (Promenade), 1550 sq. ft., 2 bdrm., 2 bath, 2 prkng., corner unit. Avail. Nov. 1, 416-460-9390.

60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE

Yonge/401, bsmt. apt. + rooms in lux. house. All appl., utils., cable & internet incl. Suits 1 person. Nr. subway & 401. 416-224-0808, leave message.

1-2 tenants, home with furnished rooms, fireplace and deck, parking included, rent negotiable. Call 905-763-7331.

Finch/Bathurst, room avail., ideal for male, use of kitchen, own bath. Call 416-665-4402.

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

Bathurst/Sheppard, lux., spacious, bright apts., in quiet ravine setting off main streets, newly reno'd, walk to TTC, utilities incl. 1 bdrm. avail. October/November. Please call 905-474-3600, 416-633-1484.

1 Canyon Avenue
Bathurst and Sheppard
Seniors Special -
"We Will Help You Move!"
Exceptionally large, well maintained renovated suites. Clean, quiet building. Three modern, new elevators. Steps to shopping, shuls and TTC. Great park views. 1, 2 and 3 bedrooms from $929.00* *includes 2% prompt payment discount.
416-635-1664

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

BATHURST-LAWRENCE-WILSON
1, 2 & 3 bedroom renovated, from $850. Walking distance to Synagogues, TTC, Schools and Bathurst St. Call 416-633-3833 or to view pictures of our properties... www.adanathomes.com

BATHURST BRIAR HILL
Oversized, sunfilled 2 bedroom suites available immediately in well maintained building. Newly Painted, dishwasher, 2 bathrooms. Close to all amenities. From $1,375
416-787-5317

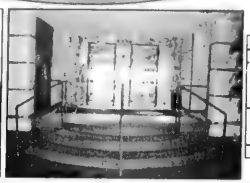
6161/6171 Bathurst St.
Bathurst and Steeles
Seniors Special -
"We Will Help You Move!"
Exceptionally large, well maintained renovated suites. Clean quiet building. Steps to shopping, shuls and TTC. 1, 2 and 3 bedrooms from $899.00* *includes 2% prompt payment discount.
416-590-7408 or 416-225-3044

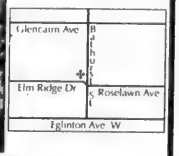
75 APARTMENT FOR RENT

Luxury Apartments for Rent

The Eldorado
2300 Bathurst St.

Few Remaining Call Today!





- Central Air Conditioning
- New Kitchens and Bathrooms
- Hardwood Floors
- Laundry Facilities on each Floor
- 2 Bedroom: 1,600 sq. ft.
- 2 Bedroom + Den: 1,700 sq. ft.
- 3 Bedroom: 2,300 sq. ft.
- 3 Bedroom + Den: 2,500 sq. ft.

For more information or to schedule a viewing, please call:
416-787-9451 • 416-878-4441 • 416-878-6618

BATHURST-SHEPPARD
ELEGANT TWIN BLDS.
Very lrg. 1, 2, 3 Bedrooms, 2 & 3 Bdrms. w/2 balconies and 2 baths. Ample closets plus cedar. Roof laundry, ravine setting, pool, pkg. incl. 6 Apts. per flr.
416-960-3238 - Bus.
416-631-9377 or 416-631-0388 - Super

Allen/Sheppard, unfurn. apt., 1 br., priv. entr. no smoke/pets. $800/mo. 416-636-9858.

130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT

BATHURST-CENTRE
Luxury Royal Promenade Bldg. Approx. 1,284 sq. ft., 2 bdrms, 2 full baths, eat-in kitchen, great layout, 2 parking, excellent condition, close to Promenade Mall. Fabulous facilities. $274,900.
Alex Moloney, Sales Rep.
PLEX REALTY 416-422-4882
Or visit www.alexmoloney.com

100 Arlen House East, 1 bdr., conv., min. 3 mos. Free daily bus to mall. 416-636-6470.

SUNRISE, beautiful lg. twnhse. 3 bdrms, 3 baths, pool, tennis, Jan.-March '05. 416-964-1228.

ARLEN HOUSE EAST, ocean-view, 1 bedroom, 1 1/2 bath, spotless. Covered parking. 2004-2005 season. Please call Barb 905-886-0347.

Lux. condo on Millionaire's Row, 5555 Collins Ave., Miami Beach. Oceanfront, 2+2, fully furnished. $3000/mo. US. Please call 305-525-5142.

Miami Beach, 71st/Collins. Lrg. 1 bx., 2 bath, terrace, pool, 24 hr. sec., bldg. on ocean. $1400/mo. US, 4 mo. min. Please call Mark 718-805-0099.

Rent 2 bdr., 2 bath condo, adults, 55 yrs., 4 mos. or more. $1250/mo. US. Inverrary Fla. Tel. 954-733-1835, Fax # same. e-mail: elel2206@aol.com

N. Miami Beach, Arlen House East, 1 bdrm., 1 1/2 bath, avail. Jan. 5; 3 mo. @ $1650/mo. US. Call 905-889-1234.

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT/SALE

ANBER MOVERS
SPECIALIST IN:
TORONTO - VANCOUVER
NEW YORK - FLORIDA
(514) 735-8148
1-800-561-MOVE
"BONDED"

140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED

Want to rent, Century Village, West Palm Beach. 2 bdrms, 1 1/2 bathrooms. January-March inclusive. 514-733-2074.

165 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT

PROPERTIES IN ISRAEL
PRESTIGIOUS PROJECT IN REHAVIA - Radak Street. Prime location, deluxe interior, very large units - duplex or full floor, large garden or terrace. Exquisite architecture. Genuine Grandeur. Exclusive to PROSPERITY REAL ESTATE.
Tel. +972-2-567-0303
www.prosperity-realestate.com

190 VACATION PROPERTY AVAILABLE

PALM SPRINGS, CA
VACATION RENTALS
We have 1-2-3 bedroom condos. Nicely furnished in super locations. From $1250 - $4500 per mo. U.S.
CHOPSY SAMUELSON REALTY
760-327-8435

190 VACATION PROPERTY AVAILABLE

Mt. Tremblant, 5 bed., 2 bath, sleeps up to 12. Pool, close to skiing. Shuttle. Very lux. Reas. rates. Short term or seas. Also avail. for sale. 1-866-955-9961.

240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY

Exper. salesperson for upscale jewellery store Eglinton/Avenue Rd. Refs. req'd, part and full time. Open Mon.-Sat. Fax resume 416-633-1818.

Experienced cook for Yeshiva required. 150 meals, 3 times per day. Start Oct. 13th. Refs. required. 416-629-8739.

Sales opportunity avail., PT, 3-4 days per week including weekends in accessories/boutique store. Applicant should have excellent customer service and prior sales experience. Call 416-783-4909.

Midrasha High School in Hamilton is seeking qualified Hebrew teacher for a part-time evening position teaching intermediate & senior Hebrew. Please forward resume to the Director, A. Zians@hotmail.com or by fax to 1-905-648-8350.

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

WEE CARE!
PLACEMENT AGENCY
Dedicated to Caring Since 1996
Nannies • Housekeepers • Baby Nurses
Sponsoring from abroad
Live In & Live Out • Full Time & Part Time
Candidates pre-screened • References checked
Service guaranteed
416-789-3070

P.J.'s Caregiving Services
...helping you care for your loved ones
Experienced live-in/out caregivers, f/t or p/t.
NO FEE to sponsor our applicants overseas.
www.pjcares.com
(416) 266-0130

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

Z's DOMESTICS
NANNIES • HOUSEKEEPERS • ELDERCARE
EURO-FILIPINAS • CLEANERS • EXPERIENCED
- Live-in/out in Toronto
- F/T, P/T, Certified
- Local Placement
- Screened, Guaranteed
- Kashruth & Hebrew
- Free sponsorship of Filipinas

From ISRAEL & EUROPE
905-731-1845

Professional Care
PERSONNEL INC.
"The Household Help Specialist"
• Quality Staff • Screened & Assessed
Housekeepers • Cooks • Infant Care • Elder Care
Nannies • Companions • Overseas Sponsorship
Erin Rogul 416-504-8589 Kelly Jacques

family matters
Caregivers • Nannies • Housekeepers
Live-in, Live-out • All candidates pre-screened
Many of our candidates are personally interviewed by us in Hong Kong
Service guaranteed
Contact Tova Rich @ 416.633.0017
familymatters@rogers.com

In a PINCH
Your Temporary Care Solution
416.785.3939
- Emergency care
- Day/Evening
- Occasional
- Short/long term
- Professional and Experienced Caregivers

ShineX Caregivers Inc
Quality Caregivers, Nannies and Immigration Services
Licensed Immigration Consultant, C.S.I.C. Member #M041220
www.shinexcaregivers.com
Tel: 416-218-9537
7 Steeles Ave. East, Suite 4, Toronto, ON M2M 3Y2
Fax: 416-221-7866
Email: nannies@shinexcaregivers.com

McCaskill Household Services Ltd.
Homemakers, H.C.A., P.S.W.'s
Live in - Day/Night Shifts
•The Elderly •The Chronically Ill
•Hospital Recovery
We cover all your needs to help you stay at home
Personal care, Light housekeeping, Meal preparation
Providing service for over 57 years
416-431-2443

AMACARE
All candidates pre-screened
✓ Nannies
✓ Caregivers
✓ Housekeepers
Call now to book your Caregiver or Nanny from Hong Kong
www.amacare.ca
416-850-0851

House, office, apt. cleaning on regular occasions. Call 416-243-0992, 416-522-3390.

Exper. & reliable ladies are avail. for cleaning. Please call 416-305-4195 / 647-430-9323.

55 yr. old Polish lady is looking for live-in housekeeper/elderly care position. Evenings only. Call 416-748-7218.

Mature European cleaning lady avail. for 1/2 or full day. Resp., hard working, honest. Refs. avail. Call after 7 pm please. 416-667-8517.

Live out caregiver, exper. PSW for homecare services. Call Maria @ 416-224-2511.

Del's Cleaning Service, we clean condos, offices, houses and renovation clean up, after party clean. 416-651-9688.

PSW looking for position to work for senior 5 days/wk. Live-out. Call Rona 416-449-8368.

White Lily (Cleaning Service) houses, apts., offices, any day, any time. 24 hrs. 416-917-3450.

255 DOMESTIC HELP WANTED

Exp., reliable cleaning lady, good English, references avail. Call 4-8 p.m. 416-535-8722.

257 HEALTH CARE AVAILABLE

Qualicare
www.qualicare.ca
- ♥ Private nursing
- ♥ Homecare support
- ♥ Retirement living services
- ♥ Short or long-term care

For a free consultation, call:
416 628-7449

273 INTRODUCTION SERVICES

Bringing People Together 2000 personally interviewed members. Ruth 905-731-5204.

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS

Replying to an ad with a CJN Box Number?
Address your mail to:
The Canadian Jewish News
1500 Don Mills Rd.
Suite 205
North York, Ont.
M3B 3K4
Don't forget to put the Box Number on your envelope.
CJN Box #'s are valid for 30 days.

Attractive, 51 year old, separated Jewish executive looking for his soulmate for possible long term relationship. Please send a letter telling me about yourself accompanied by a recent photo to CJN Box #4585.

SERVICE DIRECTORY Section

350 APPLIANCES

SOBIE'S 416 224-2526
162 Willowdale Ave. (Yonge / Sheppard area)
www.sobies.com • 30+ years in-home service
We repair all major appliances including:
SUB-ZERO • JENNAIR • THERMADOR

Mike's Appliance Service. Installation, repair and maintenance or air conditioning, refrigeration, residential, commercial appliances. Over 30 years of experience. 905-770-7244.

395 ELECTRICAL

Electrician seeks small jobs only, no appliances. Please call 416-636-5732.

357 AUTOMOTIVE

בס"ד

PLAZA PORTLAND AUTOBODY LTD.
GUARANTEED QUALITY & SERVICE
416-787-1622
Over 45 years in business
• Quality Collision Repairs • All Insurance Claims
• All Work Guaranteed • Competitive Prices
Harry and Ziona Cowen wish all their family, friends & clients a Happy & Healthy New Year
15 Bentworth Ave. (Dufferin/401) Toronto

370 CATERING

Dairy Treats Restaurant & Catering
Brit Milah • Bar/Bat Mitzvahs (COR)
Home or Office • Shiva Meals • Corporate Accounts
3522 Bathurst St. (S. of Wilson) 416-787-0309
www.dairytreats.com

CHICKEN NEST (COR)
Kosher Restaurant
• DINE IN
• TAKE OUT
• CATERING
Home & Office Parties • Babynamings
Bar / Bat Mitzvahs • Sheva Brachot
"SHIVA CATERING A SPECIALTY"
416-787-6378

385 COMPUTERS

Computer handyman avail., home and home office. Resonable rates, PC & Mac. Updates, upgrades & service. Jonathon at (647) 891-7188.

Before signing any contract, make sure your contractor is appropriately licensed with the Metropolitan Licensing Commission 416-392-3000

395 ELECTRICAL

All kinds of electrical jobs. For great service call Serge. Licensed. 416-834-4312.

405 FURNITURE

NEW LOCATION
Carrocel Restorations
Antique and Fine Furniture Gallery
• TABLES • CHAIRS • OCCASIONAL TABLES
• BEDROOM SUITES • DINING SUITES
• REFINISHING • REUPHOLSTERY
WE CUSTOM BUILD
3255 - 14TH AVENUE, UNIT 4
905-475-6942

Marcantonio Furniture Repair Specializing in touchups Restoration & general repairs done on premises. 416-654-0518.

RENDE WOOD DESIGN Custom Entertainment & Wall Units, Furniture Refinishing. Jeff Rittenberg - 416-247-3565

412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING

24 hr. repairs, services & installs a/c, heat & refrigeration, commercial & residential, licens-ed tech. Call Alex 416-671-0267.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENT

Ceramic tiles, marble and granite installation, bathroom remodelling. 15 yrs exper., good prices & references. Call Stefan @ 416-375-5478.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENT

AlphaSolutions
Flooring & Painting Contractor
Hardwood–Marble–Carpeting
Antique Effects & Murals
FREE ESTIMATES
416-488-2162
Steve Jonas

Handyman, home repairs, paint, tile, bathroom re-grout, re-silicone. Ben, 416-372-2255.

City East Hardwood Flooring Sand, stain, finish. 905-839-0733.

EPHRAM, carpentry, ceramic, electrical, plumbing, drywall & more. 416-636-3425.

A-1 Handyman, specializing in indoor repairs, drywall, electrical, plumbing, painting & finished bsmnts. 647-887-5075.

Exper. handyman. All home repairs & improvements, electrical, plumbing, kitchen, baths, roof, fence & deck. Sun.-Fri. 905-709-4906.

Renovations & repairs. Drywall, flooring, painting, minor plumbing & electrical. Call Joe, 416-636-7935.

420 INVITATIONS/ PRINTING

Elegant Invitations
Beautiful selections for all occasions
Many discounted catalogues to choose from
For great service, call Maria Kamin 416-631-0366

445 MOVING

TURNADOS MOVING & STORAGE
HOMES • APARTMENTS • OFFICES
Local, Long Distance, Storage
SENIOR'S DISCOUNT
Two Professional Movers — Free Estimate
Cell: 416-414-0920

BestWayToMove.com
26' trucks, experienced professional movers. Low rates, good reliable service. Moving & Free Storage. (VISA)
Call 416-999-MOVE or 416-875-MOVE (6683)

TRANSNET CO. MOVING & STORAGE
Homes • Apartments • Offices • Storage
Packing Materials & Service
(VISA) 416-704-6881
http://members.Rogers.com/moving

WWW.GTAMOVERS.COM
Fully equipped, insured. Local and long distance. Mid months discount. 416-918-2957

B-K Movers. 2-28' trucks. Boxes, homes, offices, apts. Family business. Reas. Packing & packing materials avail. Call 905-274-6144 or 905-278-0939.

G&M Moving and Storage. Apts., homes, offices. Short notice. Large or small. We carry supplies. 905-738-4030.

srmmovers.com - A-1 Short Notice. Insured. Homes, apts., offices, businesses. 1-man $40/hr., 2-men $55/hr. 3-men $70/hr. & up. 416-747-7082.

KAPPAROT IN BNEI BRAK

A young man in Bnei Brak, Israel, practices one of the traditional forms of kapparot last week on the eve of Yom Kippur.

[Isranet photo]

445 MOVING

Amazing Moving, 2 prof. movers with truck, $49 & up, office, homes, piano. 416-490-0090.

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPER

Painting, wallpapering, plastering, stucco repair. Samy, 905-738-1532, no SAT. calls.

All home, paint, tile & repairs. Bathroom re-grout, re-silicone & more! Ben, 416-372-2255.

Experienced painter, plasterer, vinyl, tile flooring. Best prices. Free estimates. Guaranteed. Bill, 416-638-9249.

Prof. painting, ext./int., wallpapering, drywall, all renov. of houses, apts., offices. Licensed. Stan, 416-201-9079.

Masters Choice Painting Paint/plaster/stucco/small renos. Free est. Reas. 416-402-5768.

Bargain painter/handyman, apt., houses, offices. Call Alex, 416-633-5973.

Best Prices!!! Best Quality!!! Best Service!!! Painting. Licensed & Bonded. Call Shlomo 416-804-1706.

Prof. painting/paper-hanging Jacob 416-667-9869 No Shabbos calls please

455 PHOTOGRAPHY /VIDEO

Family Photography Weddings, portraits, bar/bat mitzvahs. 20 yrs. of quality! Great rates! 416-631-7650.

Need a locksmith? check out The Canadian Jewish news CLASSIFIEDS

455 PHOTOGRAPHY /VIDEO

Our "UNIQUE" 3 FT. Photo Puzzle of your child...your "alternative" to the Candle-lighting Ceremony. DVD's are Forever! Don't lose your "Memories of a Lifetime". We'll transfer your movie reels and slides. MADISON VIDEO, Fred 416-229-6000 or call toll free 1-877-847-1263.

465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICE

Full Service Glass and Windows Inc.
Tel: 905-731-8446
• Windows • Doors • Screens
• Mirror Walls & Doors
• Frameless shower & tub doors
• Pivots • Locks • Closers
• Beveled Glass and Mirrors
• Thermopanes - Storefronts
• Security Bars • Skylights
Fast & Reliable Service
Quality & Customer Satisfaction

– FOR ALL TRAFFIC OFFENCES –
Former Traffic Court Judge Will Ensure the Best Defence in Court
ARTHUR TANNENBAUM
JUSTICE OF THE PEACE (RETIRED)
JUSTICE FOR YOU
Free Consultation
416-222-6526
1110 Finch Ave. W., Suite 400
Demerit Points Could Mean Higher Insurance Costs FIGHT THEM

470 RENOVATIONS

REPAIRS & RENOVATIONS
• Drywall • Plaster • Painting • Carpentry
• Fences • Decks • Doors • Locks • Tiles
Specializing in:
• Basement Finishing
• Bathroom/Kitchen Renovations
MOSHE 416-445-6438

495 TILING

TILE REPAIRS. Bath & shower cleaning, silicone re-grouting & more! Ben, 416-372-2255.

500 TUTORING

FRENCH TEACHER, Honours specialist, M.Ed. with 17 yrs. of teaching exp, exc references avail. Call 905-731-0943.

PIANO LESSONS for beginners of all ages. RCM affiliate teacher. Call 416-447-2068.

Piano/flute lessons by pro musician, home/studio, all levels. Sue @ 416-406-0609.

TUTORSHIP EDUCATIONAL SERVICES
Support, encouragement and expert help – SK to University –
Math • Chemistry • Biology
Physics • English • ESL •
Essaywriting • Exam preparation
Study skills • French • Spanish
New this fall: Hebrew by experienced Israeli teachers
Book a tutor now for the fall:
416-573-0274
tutorship@rogers.com

510 UPHOLSTERY

Bathurst Upholstery. Reupholstering sofas, chairs. Low prices 416-781-1995, 905-886-3148.

CJN DATING
MEET YOUR MATCH
www.cjndating.com
powered by JMATCH
JEWISH MATCH INTERACTIVE DATING

Sports & Leisure

PEERLESS TRAVEL Cruise in and see us!
NEWEST LOCATION!
9200 BATHURST ST.
(at Rutherford Road)
Thornhill
905-482-0105

Green criticized for playing on Yom Kippur

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

The decision by Shawn Green of the Los Angeles Dodgers to play a key game on Erev Yom Kippur and sit out a game the next day is drawing mostly critical reviews from several rabbis.

Green's decision makes no sense, said Rabbi Joseph Kelman, rabbi emeritus at the Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda Synagogue. Not only does it violate the sanctity of Yom Kippur, which began at sundown, but it sets a poor example to Jewish youth, he said.

Rabbi Reuven Bulka, of Ottawa's congregation Machzikei Hadas, agreed. "You can't be half pregnant," he said. "It's like saying I'll be honest today, but I'll steal tomorrow."

However, Rabbi Matthew Kaufman of the Lodzer Congregation said Green's decision not to reject his Jewish identity, religion and culture should serve as an inspiration to other Jews.

Green, one of about 10 Jewish players in major league baseball, announced late last week he would miss a key game on Yom Kippur against the San Francisco Giants, who at the time were a half game behind the Dodgers in the National League West, with a playoff spot at stake.

However, the first baseman said he would play the evening game. "Playing one of the two is the most consistent with my beliefs as a Jewish person," Green told the Associated Press. "I'm not Orthodox. I am Jewish and I respect the custom. I feel this is the most consistent way to celebrate the holiday. I feel real good about my decision."

Meanwhile, the New York Times reported that two Jewish ballplayers with the Boston Red Sox, Gabe Kapler and Kevin Youkilis, were considering their options. "It's not as easy as a straight yes or no," Kapler said before the holiday through a Red Sox spokesperson. Youkilis was reported to be grappling with the issue. According to the boxcores, Kapler played both Yom Kippur games, while Youkilis did not.

Red Sox GM Theo Epstein, who is also Jewish, said before the holiday that he planned to attend two Yom Kippur games at Fenway Park in an important weekend series with the arch-rival New York Yankees.

In Toronto, meanwhile, Toronto Argonauts co-owner David Cynamon said he managed to have the Argos' Friday night game (on Erev Yom Kippur) against the Edmonton Eskimos switched to the next night, following the holy day's conclusion. "We threatened not to play, at least not in that 24-hour period," he told the Toronto Star.

Argo lineman Noah Cantor, the only Jewish player in the CFL, said he would not have played had the game been held on Yom Kippur. Earlier in his career, Cantor missed two CFL games when they coincided with Yom Kippur.

Rabbi Kelman, speaking last Friday, said Green's decision is all too typical for North American Jews, who have taken it upon themselves to make decisions on religious issues without consulting rabbinic authorities. "Where did he get the wherewithal to say he'll play tonight and not tomorrow? It makes no sense.

"It's a very bad example to Jewish boys and girls… The fact he didn't play the next day doesn't negate the fact he desecrated [Yom Kippur] at night."

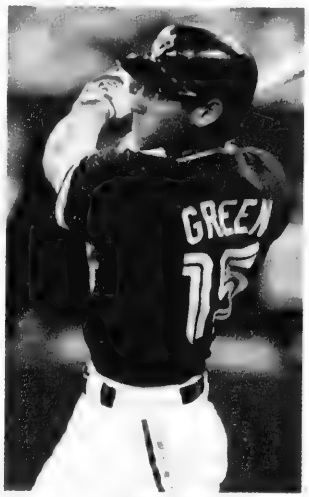
Rabbi Bulka said Green's decision will "compromise [the general public's] understanding of what Yom Kippur is all about."

As to Green's influence on Jewish young people, "I hope it will be zero," he said. "I hope it will get people to realize you can't do Judaism half way, which is what he's trying to do.

"In the end, it's not a principled decision. It's an expedient decision."

But Rabbi Kaufman said Green's compromise "is a commendable decision and a wonderful example of how an individual has made a statement that Judaism is both relevant and compatible with modern life."

He said Green "found a meaningful way to reaffirm his Jewish identity while pursuing a career."



Shawn Green

Green is not the first Jewish ballplayer to be faced with the question of whether to play on the holiest day of the Jewish calendar. The two most notable were Detroit all-star Hank Greenberg in the 1930s and Dodgers ace pitcher Sandy Koufax in the 1960s.

When the first game of the 1965 World Series fell on Yom Kippur, Koufax announced he would not pitch against Minnesota. Don Drysdale substituted, but he allowed seven runs in three innings and the Dodgers lost 8-2. Koufax pitched the next game, another loss, but he also threw a four-hit shutout in Game 5 and closed out the series in Game 7 with a three-hit shutout on two days rest.

Koufax's decision had a huge positive impact on Jews' self-image and their image in the wider community, Rabbi Bulka said.

Greenberg, who at one point in his career challenged Babe Ruth's home run record, consulted with his rabbi on whether to play in the 1934 pennant race during Rosh Hashanah and in the World Series, which fell on Yom Kippur. The rabbi consulted the Talmud and found a citation that suggested he could play on Rosh Hashanah, but not Yom Kippur. Although the rabbi was later shown to have been wrong, Greenberg hit two home runs on Rosh Hashanah in a 2-1 win.

Greenberg missed the Yom Kippur game, choosing instead to attend services at a Detroit synagogue. The congregation greeted him with a standing ovation when he entered the sanctuary. Greenberg's son, Steve, said his father called it one of the two most memorable moments in his life, along with his 1935 World Series win.

Sheldon Friedman, principal of the Community Hebrew Academy of Toronto, said he would have preferred to see Green miss both games. Friedman said the player's decision sends a mixed message to young people, but the player's stature among Jewish teens is not as great as Koufax's was. "The Toronto media made a big deal of it. I don't see it being a big story with the kids," Friedman said.

"To say this is going to impress anyone is wrong," Rabbi Kelman said. "On the contrary. What could have been kiddush hashem, a wonderful gesture à la Sandy Koufax, is negated by what [Green] is doing."

With reports from CJN news services

Red Sox roster 20 per cent of the way to a minyan

By ELI SHUPAK
Special to The CJN

When Kevin Youkilis was called up from Triple-A Pawtucket on May 15, it marked the first time in nearly 80 years that the Boston Red Sox had two Jewish players on their roster during the same season.

His promotion made him a teammate of Gabe Kapler and an employee of front office staff that includes general manager Theo Epstein and chair Tom Werner.

The last time two Jews donned the Red Sox uniform in the same season was in 1926, when outfielder Si Rosenthal and relief pitcher Happy Foreman suited up for Boston.

Youkilis made his debut a memorable one, homering off Pat Hentgen in his second at-bat at Toronto's SkyDome. He went on to become American League Rookie of the Month despite playing the first two weeks of May in the minors.

Kevin Youkilis

The third baseman was hitting .281 with seven homers and 33 RBI when he was placed on the disabled list Aug. 18. He hit .105 in September, bringing his average down to .264.

"It's kind of fun to have [Youkilis] as a teammate," said Kapler, a Red Sox reserve outfielder, before a recent game against the Blue Jays. "He's a different kind of personality than I am, but we have an interesting connection.

"It's nice to have another guy in the clubhouse to share a story with or bounce things off if you have a question because there are so few of us."

There are currently just five other Jewish major leaguers, the most prominent being Los Angeles first baseman Shawn Green and St. Louis starting pitcher Jason Marquis, as well as a trio of relievers that include Al Levine (Detroit), Justin Wayne (Florida) and John Grabow (Pittsburgh).

Kapler is immensely proud of his heritage and has a pair of Jewish-themed tattoos among the 11 on his body. On the back of his left leg is a Magen David emblazoned with the words "Strong Minded," featuring blue Hebrew letters in a crescent around the star. The other leg has the starting and ending dates of the Holocaust.

Although he is married to a Roman Catholic, their two young boys are getting a Jewish education attending Adat Ariel, the North Hollywood preschool where Kapler's mom teaches.

ספרותנו

יעל זליגר

החלום של יונתן, מאת: תמר גרשה-זהבי ועבדאלסלאם יונס

זוגות, זה המאפיין לספר החלום של יוסף ראשית, הספר חובר על-ידי שני אנשים; תמר ורטה-זהבי, ישראלית שמתגוררת בירושלים עם משפחתה ועבדאלסלאם יונס, ערבי, יליד כפר ערערה במשולש המתגורר אף הוא בירושלים עם משפחתו. ורטה-זהבי סיימה עבודת דוקטורט בחינוך ועובדת כמרצה בתחום הגיל הרך במכללה לחינוך ע"ש דוד ילין. יונס עובד כפסיכולוג חינוכי ומרצה לפסיכולוגיה באוניברסיטת באר-שבע, במכללת בית ברל ומכללת דוד ילין.

הספר נועד לקורא הצעיר, הישראלי והערבי כאחד. הכתוב מלווה בתצלומיו היפים של הצלם מיקי קרצמן. כל דף מעוצב בשני טורים, טור בלשון העברית וטור בלשון הערבית. העברית בצבע אדום והערבית בכחול. כך רואים את ההבדל, אך מבינים שהולכים ביחד. שתי תרבויות, שני קהלי יעד אך יש בניהם חיבור אנושי.

גם התוכן בנוי צמדים, צמדים. תקווה ואכזבה, שמחה ועצב, עבר והווה, חלום מול מציאות. אין בחלום של יוסף ניסיון להסתיר או לטשטש הבדלי זהויות. אין גם כוונה לייפות מציאות של חיי ילד פלסטיני במחנה הפליטים דהֵישֶׁה. עם זאת, הסיפור אופטימי וחדור אהבה. בחוכמה רבה הבליטו המחברים את הקו המבדיל בין שני העמים ובין שתי השפות ודווקא משום כך יש מקום רב למציאת המאחד.

בפתיחה אנו פוגשים ביוסף שעיניו אדומות מבכי. במחנה אין לו חברים והילדים מכנים אותו "יוסף החלמן". אכן יוסף אוהב לחלום ואת חלומותיו הוא יודע לצייר. יש לילד כשרון לרתף בדמיונו ולצייר. בבקרים הוא מתעורר לקול המואזין הקורא לתפילה. יותר מכל יוסף אוהב להקשיב לסיפוריה של סבתא; סיפורים על העבר כשעוד גרו בכפר לפני שנגרס במלחמה. מרוב סיפוריה של סבתא, נדמה ליוסף שהוא מכיר כל בית בכפר, כל עץ וכל עדר עזים. עוד אנו למדים על יוסף שהוא, ככל הילדים בדהישה, אוהב לרכב על אופניים שהן בדרך כלל משהו מפורק המוחזק בכל מיני חוטי ברזל. יש דבר אחד טוב במחנה הפליטים המקולל מספר יוסף: "ירידות תלולות... אצלנו אין כבישים ואין מדרכות... אני בטוח שהילדים בדהישה הם אלופי העולם ברכיבה על אופנים."

יום אחד נגלה ליוסף שכמה מבני גילו מתכננים לעבוד ולחסוך כסף לקניית אופנים טובים לחבורה. לשברון לבו, יוסף יודע שאין סיכוי שהילדים ירצו בו כשותף. גם נושא זה מעלה בסבתו נשכחות והיא מספרת איך בימי הקיץ היו היא וחברותיה קוטפות תאנים בכפר, מוכרות את האסיף ובכסף שחסכה קנה לה אביה ביפו מטפחת-ראש צבעונית מעוטרת בפרחים וציפורים; "יוסף, יא יוסף, כמה טוב היה אז. חיינו בגן עדן ולא ידענו שזה גן עדן."

סיפוריה של סבתא יפים אך אינם עוזרים לתחושת הניכור החברתית של יוסף, עד לאותו יום נפלא שבו המורה בבית ספרו מודיעה על תחרות ציורים שמתקיימת בעוד. שם התחרות: "החלום שלי". כל ילד מוזמן לשלוח ציור על חלום שחלם ולזוכה יועק פרס משמעותי. המורה סאחר אוהבת את יוסף ומודעת לכישוריו והיא מגישה לו צבעים חדשים, דפים ומבקשת שיצייר. ויוסף מצייר. הוא מדמיין את חברותיה של סבתא בכפר ילדותה, ישבות בין עלי העצים הירוקים ורקמת השמלות הצבעונית והאדמה החומה-אדמדמה. בתחתית הציור הוא כותב כך: "החלום שלי הוא לרכב על אופנים ביום קיץ עד לכפר האהוב של סבתא."

הסוף בורוז. יוסף זוכה בתחרות והפרס אינו אלא זוג אופנים לתפארת. יוסף מאושר. כשרון הציור, כסופיו לאופנים וחלומותיה של סבתא לא החזירו אף אחד לגן עדן אך לפחות יוסף היה לנסיך חלומות בדהישה.

(תמר ורטה-זהבי ועבדאלסלאם יונס מנחים יחד מפגשים של מתנכים ותלמידים ערבים ויהודים.)

...

שנה טובה, שנת שלום ושלווה עלינו, על כל עם ישראל ועל כל אומות העולם.

CARROT-MANGO SOUP

- 2 lbs. carrots
- 1 tblsp. olive oil
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1 1/4 tsp. curry powder
- 4 cups soup broth
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 2 large ripe mangoes
- sprinkling of chopped parsley

Sauté onion and curry in stock pot. Cook, stirring for 5 mins. Coarsely chop carrots and add carrots, broth, juice and salt to pot. Cover, bring to boil and quickly reduce and simmer, stirring occasionally 20-30 mins. Peel, slice & coarsely chop mangoes. Puree in processor until smooth; set aside. Take carrots from broth and puree; return carrot puree to broth in saucepan and add mango puree. Heat over medium-low heat uncovered, stirring often about 5 mins. Serve hot or cold with chopped parsley garnish.

1111 Weston Rd. (S. of Eglinton) 416-767-1655 www.caplanappliances.com

HERB CAPLAN
THE APPLIANCE PROS RECOMMEND
dacor Now Kosher! RANGES

Money Matters

"Donating" organs

Rabbi Jay Kelman, C.A.

Health care and economics are often a volatile mix. Just ask our first ministers. The Canadian ethos is such that rich and poor are to receive – in theory – equal access to treatment. Thus, the right to a CAT scan or a heart bypass should be based on criteria that are totally free from economic bias. Surely most Canadians would be appalled at the notion of selling organs for monetary gain, and it's not surprising that such activities are banned in most western countries. This, however, is not necessarily the Jewish view. While this is a complex and nuanced subject, some broad guidelines are possible.

Contrary to popular misconceptions, in most circumstances, donating organs is a fulfilment of pikuach nefesh, the mitzvah of saving a life. This is true both after death and in the case of kidneys while we are alive. Despite the fact you can lead a perfectly normal life with one kidney, Jewish law does not compel you to donate a kidney. It is, after all, a procedure that carries some risk, discomfort and pain, and we do not demand that someone literally give away part of their body, even to save another. The fact there are so many people waiting – some until their untimely deaths – for organs reflects the difficulty most people have in donating organs. Those who, despite the hardships, perform this mitzvah are to be praised, period.

While it is most praiseworthy to perform mitzvot for their own sake, receiving compensation for the effort does not negate a mitzvah. This is true even if money is the sole motivator for the donation. How many of us would go to work if we were not paid. Why should performing a mitzvah forbid you from taking money? Even the "agent" who connects donors to recipients may also be paid for their efforts. Care, of course, must be taken to ensure that people, especially the poor, are not preyed upon. How sad, from a societal perspective, if people feel the economic need to sell organs.

Rather than calling into question the motives of those whom others may call mercenaries, Jewish law takes a much broader view. If paying people to donate will increase the number of organs available, we will ultimately save many lives – and that is the highest of Jewish values.

E-mail rabbi@byad.org.

By AVRUM ROSENSWEIG

The Naked Island

URBAN WRITER

My father was a great lover of books, and our home was his library.

Growing up, I would lie in bed, gaze at the bookshelves that lined my bedroom wall and read the spines of books such as I and Thou by Martin Buber and To Be a Jew by Hayim Donin. When my father died, he left the family 10,000 volumes, including oversized Talmudic tractates and collections of pre-Holocaust writings exhumed from the tear-drenched soil of Europe.

Books – their smell, texture and content – are in my blood. They are sacred, and it is for this reason that I celebrate and am so proud of my friend Bryna Wasserman, whose first book, The Naked Island (Key Porter Books) is complete, bound and in bookstores everywhere.

Bryna is a dynamic woman from Hamilton, a practical dreamer with an inimitable ache for life and the soul of an explorer with abounding curiosity.

Most of us know a "Bryna" and envy them. They are the ones, like my Bryna, who travel to Singapore, China, Nepal, India and Australia in search of interviews, inspiration and words that ultimately fall into line to create a manuscript that will sit humbly on a book lover's shelf, be recommended by a friend, and debated with great fanfare at book clubs.

We know such people and they inspire us. They do because they are able to weave language, imagination and experience to create dozens of chapters, and like my Bryna – a fulfilled Jew – intersperse, scatter and sprinkle their Judaism into the story in a challenging and proud way.

Writing is a passion, and, as such, it does not allow the writer to rest until it's tended to like the tummy of a cat, purring to be rubbed. Bryna tells me she wrote The Naked Island because she loves to write. She is indeed a passionate human being who, through the course of writing, came to know her characters and fall in love with them. She made them her companions when she was lonely, and later experienced a deep sadness at having to bid them goodbye.

But writing a book is also a painstaking act, as the twists of plots evade the imagination of the novelist and the fluidity of the story so often mocks the author. Writing The Naked Island, a book about a broken-hearted Jew in her time of innocence, was indeed a meticulous operation, one that took Bryna 10 years to complete, with dozens of rewrites.

Today, however, Bryna is an author and her book sits honestly and upright in the same bookstores that are home to Shakespeare's Midsummer's Night Dream and Virgina Woolf's The Waves.

She is a member of our Ontario Jewish community who, like The Naked Island's protagonist Rachel Gold, travelled great distances to face the most daunting yet exhilarating image – herself. In the process, she uncovered the depth of her Jewish soul and the reality that she is a Jewish writer.

Haven't you always wanted to write a book? I have a friend who did, just like Hemingway and Amos Oz, and it was reviewed by Quill & Quire, an industry trade magazine, which called Bryna "an emerging talent, writing in a nimble style that approaches prose-poetry."

One day, a child will be lying in bed excitedly reading the spines of her mom's books, one of which will be The Naked Island by Bryna Wasserman. How cool is that? (Bryna is available for book clubs at bryna@interlog.com.)

"My pen is my harp and my lyre; my library is my garden and my orchard."

– Judah Ha-Levi, Spanish poet and physician.

(E-mail avrum@veahavta.org. Help the people of Sudan.)

UJA FEDERATION CAMPAIGN 2005
A VOICE IN THE WORLD

A Campaign for a New Generation

For Jewish students today, university life is more complex than courses, tutorials and teaching assistants. There's also hateful, simmering sentiment against Israel expressed by other students and even by professors in class. Your gift to UJA Federation Campaign 2005 will empower a new generation to answer hatred, identify with Israel and become closer to Jewish life through campus training programs and powerful experiences such as birthright Israel.

When your canvasser calls, please support this critical UJA Federation campaign to strengthen our voice in the world and create a safe Jewish future for our children.

CAMPAIGN 2005 ACTION PLAN

- Providing enhanced security for community institutions
- Speaking out forcefully on urgent Jewish issues
- Building a stronger Israel
- Empowering a new generation to deal with hatred

www.jewishtoronto.com

UJA FEDERATION

Together We're Stronger

A Special Day
The welcoming ambiance of a beautiful Country Club setting. A choice of intimate rooms or a classically inspired Grand Banquet Hall lit with sparkling crystal chandeliers.
A contemporary cuisine customized to your particular needs.
And a helpful staff committed to anticipating your every wish.
This is the Richmond Hill Country Club - a very special place for "your" special day.
a special place.
To experience the Country Club difference for your Banquet, Wedding, Bar Mitzvah, or Corporate Function, please call the Club Catering Director, Lino Ferreira.
905•731•2800 Ext.241
www.richmondhillcountryclub.com
RICHMOND HILL
COUNTRY CLUB
Discover the Country Club Difference
8905 BATHURST STREET, RICHMOND HILL
JUST NORTH OF HIGHWAY SEVEN BRIDES

Stop 33 is the city's finest ballroom, featuring a dramatic panoramic view of Toronto's skyline.
Queen Victoria Ballroom creates a mood of elegance and grandeur.
We are also home to a selection of intimate, individually designed function rooms ideal for engagement parties, rehearsal dinners and smaller weddings.

The graceful service and flawless attention to detail will be evident throughout your perfect day.

We are passionate about delivering to your exacting needs.
Let us help you design your perfect wedding.
We can assist with the selection of those items that are most important to you—everything from the rehearsal dinner to the honeymoon suite.

Please call our Catering Department at 416-324-6430 to book an appointment today.

The Sutton Place Hotel

955 Bay Street, Toronto, Ontario M5S 2A2 • www.suttonplace.com

An Affair to Remember...

Creative Floral & Theme Designs by Renee Birnbaum

Custom designs for your ...
Wedding, Bar/Bat Mitzvah or Corporate Event

- Custom Centrepieces
- Back Drops
- Helium Balloon Decor
- Illuminated Signs
- Fresh Flowers
- Creative Draping
- Theme Party Props
- Sign-In Boards

35 West Pearce St., Unit 6
Richmond Hill, Ontario L4B 3A9
Tel: 905-881-6686 Fax: 905-771-9712

Only our look is expensive!

UP & COMING EVENTS INC.
Wedding & Special Event Planners

Visualize

Conceptualize

Creative Eyes

905.886.8148
www.upandcomingevents.ca

905-771-9889 Vivid Video 905-771-9889

Professional DIGITAL videos on DVD for only $995.00!!!

Vivid Video Productions, (a division of Video Affairs), is for people that want the very best quality at an extremely attractive price. The quality is exactly the same as what you would get if you pay $2,000.00, just without all of the bells and whistles.

If you would like to add the bells and whistles, you can call Video Affairs at 905-889-0909.

Mazel Tov on your simcha!

Bayerest Hospitality

"Let's make your next occasion the most successful one ever."

Strictly kosher cuisine
Newly renovated facilities for 10 to 500 guests
Landscaped grounds

For our personal attention and expert advice call 785-2500, ext. 2477

The Fabulous
HARVEY SEIGEL BAND
Best Music - Best Value
Free Ceremony or Cocktail Music
* Band Sizes For Every Budget *
416-782-9202

Invitation House
For The Beautiful Invitations People Talk About
R.S.V.P.
350 Adelaide St. West, 416-593-0519
By Appointment
Commercial Printing Division 416-593-0755

Registering is Part of the Fun of Getting Married

Outstanding Selection and Exceptional Prices
With thousands of patterns to choose from, we know we have the china, flatware and crystal you'll love – and love to use. We also have everything you need to make preparing food and drinks a breeze: from knives and espresso makers to cookware and gifts for guests on any budget.

All Registry Services are Complimentary
We offer our registered couples a wide range of special services, all provided without charge. Free registry consultations, free gift notification service, free gift-wrapping, free delivery, as well as free parking for you and your guests.

Personalized Service is our Specialty
Once you've made your decisions, you won't have to run around scanning barcodes: your consultant will be with you every step of the way. We will set up your own personal Internet website, so your guests can shop anytime day or night. Our knowledgeable consultants look forward to assisting you in creating fabulous table settings and accessories that will reflect your combined tastes and new lifestyle.

To start your registry, call Janice Price at 416-964-2900 • 55 Bloor St. W., Toronto
Hours: Mon. – Wed. & Sat. 10 – 6 , Thurs. & Fri. 10 – 7:30 or Gina Truman at 905-566-8500 • Sq. One, Miss. Mon– Fri 10 – 9, Sat. 9:30 – 6, Sun 12 – 5

Beautiful China, Crystal, Silver and Gifts at Prices that have made us Famous

WILLIAM ASHLEY

Toll Free 800-268-1122 • Shipping across Canada & USA • WWW.BRIDE.WILLIAMASHLEY.COM

SIGNATURE STUDIOS
416.784.4488 Image is everything.

Toronto's Premiere Wedding Venues

Liberty Grand Entertainment Complex

This impressive heritage building is adorned with 27' high ceilings, brilliant crystal chandeliers and classical elegant interiors that compliment two spectacular ballrooms which can accommodate weddings and events of all kinds from 150 to 300 people and a GRAND ballroom for events from 350 to 700 people.

For information or bookings contact: Liberty Grand Sales and Catering 416 LIBERTY (542 3789)
25 British Columbia Road, Exhibition Place, Toronto, Ontario www.libertygrand.com

Rosewater

This elegantly appointed historic building lends an air of decadence and luxury ideal for Bar/Bat Mitzvahs, cocktail receptions, celebrations, weddings, anniversaries, holiday functions, breakfast meetings, power lunches, closing and retirement dinners. Recently granted the 2003 & 2004 DiRoNA Award for excellence in cuisine, ambiance and quality of service, the Executive Chef and seasoned staff are poised to customize a menu suitable for every occasion.

For information or bookings contact:
416 214 5888
19 Toronto St.
www.libertygroup.com

LEFT BANK

The timeless Renaissance-style decor reminiscent of 18th century Paris provides an atmosphere of European flavour to any function. With a backdrop of classically inspired artwork and baroque tapestries, the Left Bank is a unique setting for Bar/Bat Mitzvahs, cocktail receptions, celebrations, anniversary dinners, holiday functions and pre or post award parties.

For information or bookings contact:
416 504 1626
567 Queen Street West
www.libertygroup.com

This award-winning landmark site is perfect for those seeking an alluring historic setting for Bar/Bat Mitzvahs, cocktail receptions, celebrations, weddings, anniversaries, holiday functions, breakfast meetings, power lunches, closing and retirement dinners, pre or post award parties. The Chamber Lounge with it's "old-world" soaring ceilings and glowing fireplaces is a magnificent setting for any private occasion. The Executive Chef and dedicated staff provide optimum in service and cuisine for an unforgettable event.

For information or bookings contact:
416 214 9379
57 Adelaide Street East
www.libertygroup.com

Culinary Art CATERING

The "Caterer to the Stars", Culinary Arts Catering has successfully kept Toronto International Film Festival party-goers delighted for over eight consecutive years. Under the direction of Liberty Grand's Executive Chef, a dedicated ensemble of culinary experts offer a diverse menu of selection of exotic flavours from around the world to suit any occasion. Whether it be a Bar/Bat Mitzvah, wedding, anniversary, luncheon or holiday occasion, our team of expert staff will ensure the highest standards of service and hospitality for a successful corporate or private event.

For information or bookings contact:
416 LIBERTY (542-3789)
25 British Columbia Rd., Exhibition Place
www.libertygroup.com

Liberty ENTERTAINMENT GROUP

25 British Columbia Road, Exhibition Place, Toronto, ON 416-LIBERTY (542 3789)

Northern Memory Productions

Videos

Creative Affordable Videos For All Occasions

Northern Memory Productions

Memories To Last a Lifetime

Mark Beitel
905.881.0608
905.881.3734
Marknmp@yahoo.com

Home to Toronto's most elegant affairs ... on our historic premises at 401 Bay St., 8th floor

ARCADIAN COURT

416-861-6138
arcadiancourt.ca

Visual Dreams

Dreams reflected on a Card

By Appointment
Phone: (905) 761-0450
email: visualdreams@rogers.com

One of a kind invitations for every occasion

Veronica Waisbein & Tamara Buki

Bridal Registry

for all your cookware needs

- Personal Service
- 10% of purchases donated to your favourite registered charity

THE COOK'S PLACE

488 Danforth Ave.
Toronto, Ont. M4K 1P6
(416) 461-5211
info@the cooksplace.com
www.thecooksplace.com

Sing the Greatest Hits
Music for every occasion
905-841-6489 • www.georgestkitts.com • email: gqkitts@sympatico.ca

Midnite Starr Band

Let us entertain you
Weddings • Galas & Banquets • Corporate Parties • Special Events
905-841-6489 • www.georgestkitts.com • email: gqkitts@sympatico.ca

George St. Kitts will energize your party

Planning a wedding or other happy occasion, and not sure which band to hire? Give George St. Kitts a call. He has four bands; any one of them will play your favourite music; and St. Kitts is at his happiest when your guests are having a good time.

After performing with other bands for some years, he started his own band in the "80s, playing at clubs and casinos in Canada, the U.S. and Europe. He's also done a lot of theatre work, recently in The Lion King and The Rat Pack.

St. Kitts is an established professional, who's been written up in Billbosrd; he has three CDs to his credit and his own record company, QG Records. When his busy schedule allows it, he writes and arranges music too.

These days, St. Kitts and his bands are doing more private events. There aren't as many clubs as there used to be; and for a man who loves entertaining and enjoys rapport with his audience, the party circuit is a natural choice. He plays every kind of party including weddings, bar mitzvahs and corporate events.

Speaking generally, St. Kitts' style is energetic and upbeat, with feeling; but he doesn't specialize in one genre. He plays many kinds of music for every occasion: Swing, Motown, Rock, North American Pop, Hebrew including horas, Italian including Bocelli & Sinatra, South African folk songs as well as Jazz, Pop, Funk, Blues, R&B.

There are good reasons for a party musician to be so wide-ranging. "It pleases my clients that I'm versatile," St. Kitts explains: "they know that if they want to hear a piece, I'll learn it for them. Also, it makes my work more interesting, because every party is different."

St. Kitts knows many Israeli songs, and plans to learn more. Nor is Hebrew his only singing language besides English. At present, he's learning a song from "My Big Fat Greek Wedding" -- in Greek, of course.

When the same people see St. Kitts and his band go onstage at different events, they know he'll never do exactly the same show. He's always on the lookout for new talent, new ideas, new songs.

He likes Toronto for the tremendous reservoir of talent here. "Along with plenty of older, experienced musicians and singers," he says, "this city has a lot of fresh young talent."

St. Kitts Music Inc. is the umbrella company for St. Kitts' four bands. One of these, as you might expect, is called the George St. Kitts Band. Another is Midnite Starr, which plays every genre for young and old. He started Sound Machine, another versatile new band, in July this year.

George St. Kitts' Motown band is Sounds of Motown. Motown is the music which came out of Detroit in the '50s and '60s; typical groups were the Supremes and the Four Tops. The nickname Motown refers to Detroit's role as the major U/S. car manufacturing centre.

Some singers from Midnite Starr and the Sound Machine were in The Lion King. While St. Kitts likes theatre, he found this gig very demanding: he performed in eight shows a week for three and a half years.

St. Kitts holds to high professional standards, gives clients what they want, and will show everyone at your party a good time. At an all ages event, he wants everyone, young and old, to enjoy the music; he loves to see people up dancing.

St. Kitts likes to interact with people, not just be up on stage. He'd love to come over to your table and sing a song for you.

He has such a solid reputation as a party performer that some of his bands, like Midnite Starr, are booked well into 2005. Call soon: 905-841-6489; and visit St. Kitts' website at www.georgestkitts.com.

Inspire the Celebration

CARLU

444 Yonge Street, 7th floor
416 597 1931
www.thecarlu.com

DAVID'S Fine Linens

www.davidsfinelinens.com

Fine Table, Bed
& Bath Linens
Bridal Registry &
Gift Certificates

GIVE A GIFT THEY CAN ENJOY
EVERY NIGHT

BAYVIEW VILLAGE
BAYVIEW & SHEPPARD
416-590-7311
TOLL FREE 1-877-591-1115

TEMPUR
SWEDISH MATTRESS & PILLOWS

MON CHERIE • PERRY ELLIS • BAMBOLA • ELVIRA VALI • JR. KRAZE • SWEET HEART • BRIOSO • MIMI • DIESEL • TOMMY HILFIGER • MINIMAN • LACOSTE • ROBERT ALLEN • DAVID CHARLES • ELVIRA VALI • MON CHERIE • HARRY POTTER • ESCADA • MY PRIVATE DIARY • LILLY GAUFRETTE • BRIOSO • ROBERT ALLEN • GUY LAROCHE •

Everything you need for that Special Day!

Zero 20

SPECIAL CLOTHES-BABY TO PRE-TEEN
7700 Pine Valley Dr., Woodbridge (In the McDonald's Plaza)
905-851-6041 • www.zero20.com

HOURS
MON-FRI 9:30-9
SAT 9:30-6
SUN 10-5

Zero 20 Presents Two "NEW" Designer Outlet Centers

You'll find all the great labels found at the Zero 20 Boutique at 50-70%Off EVERYDAY!

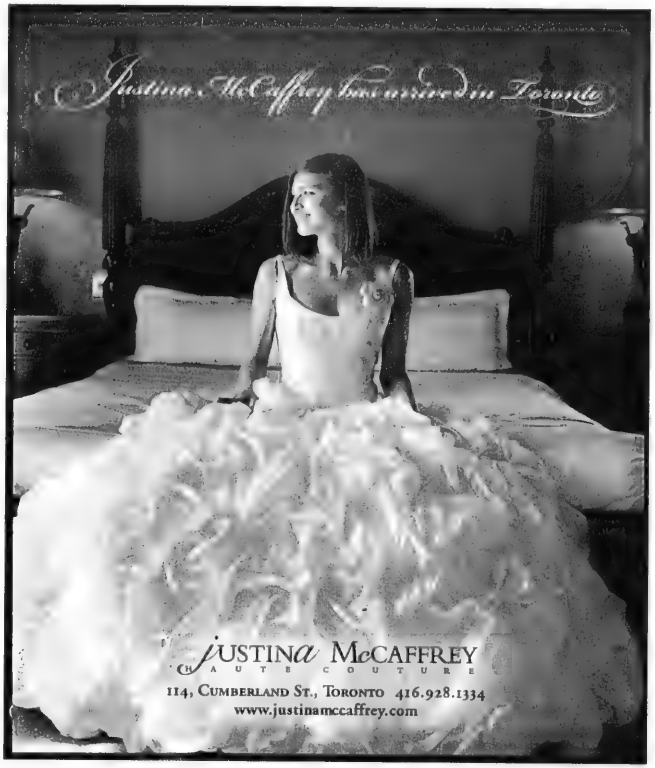
On the corner of Bathurst & Lawrence
416-783-7500

42 Steinway Blvd. Unit #1
Steeles & Hwy #27
416-532-4450

MARESE • MINIMAN • KENZO • CATAMINI • CLAYEUX • JEAN BOURGET • MIMI • DEUX PAR DEUX •

Justina McCaffrey has arrived in Toronto



JUSTINA McCAFFREY
HAUTE COUTURE
114, Cumberland St., Toronto 416.928.1334 www.justinamccaffrey.com

Lynn

Rick

Visit the website & mark these Dates in your Calendar

www.TorontoPartyGuide.com

PRESENTED BY CUSTOM GRAPHICS INC.

TORONTO'S #1 FALL

WEDDING, BAR/BAT MITZVAH

Party Planning Show

6:00 pm - 10:00 pm

Wednesday, OCTOBER 20th, 2004

Beth Tzedec Synagogue • 1700 Bathurst St. Toronto

Visit website for details on the WINTER Show Jan. 18/2005 at Premiere Banquet Hall & the exciting New Spring Party Planning Showcase

FEATURING: KOSHER CATERING • FLORISTS • CONSULTANTS • MAKE UP
PHOTOGRAPHY • PARTY FAVOURS • VIDEOGRAPHY • BANDS • KETUBAH • D.J.'S • DECOR • BRIDALWEAR
DESSERTS • INVITATIONS • PARTY FAVOURS • FORMALWEAR • JUDAICA • GIFTWARE & MUCH MORE...

Planning a Simcha does NOT have to be Stressful or Expensive...Let Us Show You How!
Meet ALL The Event Planning Professionals Who Can Help Make Your Party A Success!

FREE ADMISSION • BRING THE WHOLE FAMILY • FREE SIMCHA PLANNING DIRECTORY

www.TorontoPartyGuide.com

For Information Call: Rick Levine 905 881-6400 or Lynn Cohen 905 889-1007

Fall, Winter & Spring show information will be available on the TPG website soon • Vendor Enquiries Welcome

• SHOW PRODUCED BY CUSTOM GRAPHICS INC. (CGI) • • SHOW COORDINATORS UNDER SUB CONTRACT TO CGI • • 2004 Reproduction not permitted without written permission of the publisher CGI

Judy Stein Consulting & Associates
Hanna Ohayon
Joyce Krieser
Glenda Barbalat
Event Planners
905-764-2728

Jordan Klapman Orchestra

Solo Piano to 10 piece
All Styles
All Budgets
Klapman's Klezmer Band
* Ceremonies * Swing
* Receptions * Popular
* Dancing
www.jordanklapman.com 416-588-0854

the printed word
"Our only limit is imagination!"
U.S. & Canadian Catalogues
Hebrew Typesetting
Party Favours & Accessories
Calligraphy & Design
553 Eglinton Ave.W., Toronto (416) 484-4600

KETUBAH
KETUBAH
אני לדודי
www.ketubah.com
To schedule an appointment please call:
416-963-9191

Beth Tikvah's Elegant Banquet Hall and Foyer are the Ideal Setting for Your Simcha.

Beth Tikvah cordially invites you to experience the ambience of our tastefully decorated hall. which accommodates up to 400 guests.
We feature three gourmet kosher caterers;
Caterers York, GMB Culinary Productions and Levy's Catering.
Contact Lillian Cornfield – Director of Administration 416-221-3433 x 307.
Beth Tikvah Synagogue, 3080 Bayview Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M2N 5L3

Chocolate Charm
Add a touch of elegance to your party with a Truffle Box Favour from our extensive collection. We also offer custom imprinting and specialty ribbons. Ask us how you can use Truffle Box Favours as part of your place card setting.
Kosher - Parve or Dairy - Under Cor
3541 Bathurst Street
(Across from Baycrest Hospital)
416-787-4256
VISA · MC · AMEX

Complete Party Consulting Services
CHERRY & BAKER & ASSOCIATES
EVENT SPECIALISTS
TOTAL PARTY CONCEPTS
Decor
Themed Parties
Make-Up
Hairstyling
Invitations
Sarah Cherry
905-771-1121 • 416-819-7121
sarahcherry@rogers.com
Marsha Baker
905-771-1121 • 416-520-0684
marshabaker2@rogers.com
ASSOCIATES: Erin • Carly • Risa • Jessica • Julia
Featured on "Get Me To The Wedding" on the W Network

Paper Expressions
- Custom and catalogue invitations
- Stationery and fine papers
- Personalized sign-in boards and albums
- Personalized gifts

Montreal: Jo-Anna Posner 514.489.6176
Toronto: Gail Shapiro 905.764.9812 · www.paperexpressions.com

"The Entertainment Company Serving all Your Party Needs"
RIO ENTERTAINMENT
ISAAC OZIEL 905.882.5252
www.rioentertainment.ca

Weddings • Bar Mitzvahs • Corporate Events

The Pickle Barrel Markville Banquet Hall is the perfect venue for:

Weddings, Bar / Bat Mitzvahs, Anniversary Celebrations, Fund Raisers, Business Meetings, Corporate Events, Christmas Parties, Graduation Celebrations.

Table for 230? No problem.

The PICKLE BARREL

MARKVILLE BANQUET HALL

From 75 to 230 people. Menus range from $12.00 to $39.00 per person.

The Rose Room at 5941 Leslie Street is also available for Event Bookings of 50 to 100 people.

T: 416.493.4333 F: 905.479.5059 E: info@picklebarrel.on.ca W: www.picklebarrel.ca

CELEBRATE LIFE'S GREAT MOMENTS AT ONE OF TORONTO'S GREAT ADDRESSES.

The greatest moments in life deserve to be celebrated in the finest of hotels. Through a special partnership with GMB Culinary Productions, The Fairmont Royal York serves exquisite kosher meals for any occasion. From our elegant ballrooms to our beautifully appointed guestrooms, The Fairmont Royal York offers you and your guests a celebration to remember for years to come.

For more information please call our catering department at 416-368-2511 ext. 2657.

THE Fairmont ROYAL YORK TORONTO

Places in the heart.

100 Front Street West, Toronto. www.fairmont.com

Your Kosher simcha at Copper Creek: a match made in heaven

COPPER CREEK

Canada's finest Kosher cuisine, in a most spectacular setting. What more could a wedding want?

Imagine serving up to 400 guests on grounds with glorious landscaped gardens, an expansive terrace, and raised gazebo. This isn't just a venue; it's paradise.

Care to step inside? Our lavishly elegant, copper-roofed clubhouse with floor-to-ceiling windows and octagonal atria will seat these same 400 guests comfortably.

Setting? Nestled in the Humber River Valley in picturesque Kleinburg, just 30 minutes from downtown Toronto, overlooking a championship golf course.

There's no better place to set the stage for happy-ever-aftering. Call us at 905.893.3370 ext. 202 and we'll be happy to arrange a taste extravaganza in our permanent, on-site Kosher kitchen (C.O.R.). It's a match made in heaven.

Give your once-in-a-lifetime event the treatment it deserves: Copper Creek Catering, C.O.R.

905 893.3370 ext. 202

www.coppercreek.ca

MARISA

Trunk Show

November 19 – November 27, 2004

Please join us to see the entire

MARISA BRIDALS COLLECTION

Be the first to preview and purchase from the 2005 designs

EXCLUSIVELY IN TORONTO

at

Ritché

1662 Avenue Road (south of the 401)

Bridal Appointments preferred

416-789-4378

www.ritche.com

REDSTONE PICTURES

"...Your Family.
Your Friends.
Your Life..."

Weddings ❖ Bar/Bat Mitzvahs ❖ Corporate

Richard & Raisyl Saunders

416-256-4666

COR 298

משגיח תמידי

Zuchter Berk

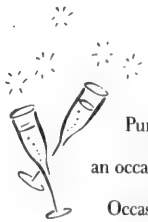
T: 416.386.1086

F: 416.386.1297

www.zuchterberk.com

You Are Cordially Invited to the Event of Your Dreams.

NO REGRETS.



Pure, white lilies on every table. Just the right glow of candlelight. A perfectly timed parfait. The very details that create an occasion that's uniquely yours deserve the flawless attention of Four Seasons Hotel Toronto. Services such as our "Special Occasions Boutique" allow you the greatest ease in locating everything—from the perfect invitations to a respected photographer. Finding sumptuous cuisine will also be effortless as virtually any menu you desire can be created by our imaginative catering, which includes a kosher kitchen. So whether your gathering is intimate or grand, formal or festive, it's destined to be unforgettable. To book your event or for more information, please call the Hotel at 416.964.0411 or, visit us at www.fourseasons.com/toronto.

FOUR SEASONS HOTEL
Toronto

21 Avenue Road, Toronto, Ontario M5R 2G1

GLATT
KOSHER

WEDDINGS

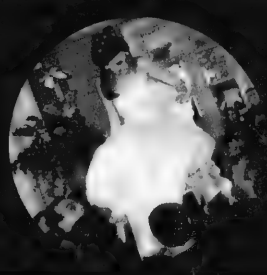
byPeterandPauls.com® hospitality & entertainment group • Since 1982

and

Zuchter Berk



KOSHER KITCHEN • CHUPA • CEREMONIES • CERTIFIED GLATT KOSHER • MASHGEACH TMIDI • INTERNATIONAL CUISINE
BREATH TAKING SCENERY • GAZEBO • WATERFALL • VALET PARKING • STATE OF THE ART TECHNOLOGY

byPeterandPauls.com is proud to have Zuchter Berk as our exclusive in-house Kosher caterer.
Catering to the Kosher community for over 70 years!

COR 298
משגיח תמידי

HEAD OFFICE: 905•326•2000

THE BEST OF BOTH WORLDS

3 EVENT VENUES and KOSHER CATERING

1

Paramount

Canada's Premier Event Venue!

15 to 1650 guests
up to 5 rooms
bridal suite • cigar lounge international cuisine kosher kitchen
valet parking

416.410.4511 or 905.326.3000

2

The Manor

Event Venue at Carrying Place Golf & Country Club

15 to 950 guests
3 floors • gazebo waterfall • rock gardens ponds • fireplace large patio

416.410.6680 or
905.939.2800

3

Bellagio

Event Venue

15 to 800 guests
3 rooms cascading staircase elegant decor customized menus
state-of-the-art technology

416.410.3690 or
905.760.9321

Zuchter Berk

Kosher Catering

COR 298

Social & Corporate catering for over 70 years!

bar/bat mitzvah • weddings contemporary approach with creative flair event decor • theme design

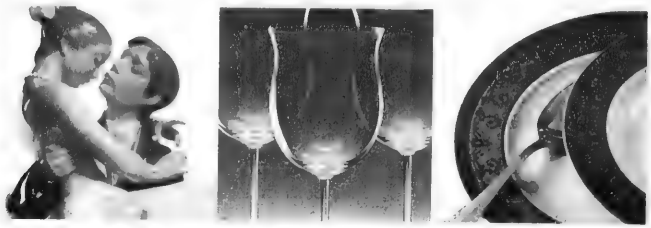
416.386.1086
www.zuchterberk.com

WWW.BYPETERANDPAULS.COM

We welcome your comments. Head Office: 905.326.2000 or Email us: global@bypeterandpauls.com • 06/2004



INSPIRATION

DESIRÉE
china & gifts

For over 15 years at Desirée, our knowledgeable staff have been specializing in the fine art of bridal registery.

Imagine the possibilities!

7850 Weston Road, Unit 4, Woodbridge
t. 905.850.2818 e. www.desiree.ca

Good Vibrations Band

'Feel The Vibe'

Call Rick: 905-881-6400
info@GoodVibrationsBand.com • www.TorontoPartyGuide.com

MARK LASH

9033 LESLIE STREET RICHMOND HILL 905 881 5229
938 EGLINTON AVENUE WEST TORONTO 416 256 5229
1 866 881 5229 MARKLASH.COM

Digitally Created Pictures & Fun Stuff Ready at Your Event

- Digital Gift Photos
- Photo Caricatures
- Picture Badges
- Picture Place Cards
- Candid Albums
- Signing Boards
- Customized Artwork

We Are Your PROFESSIONAL Image Creators

Call for your personal consultation

The Fun Way to Have Pictures
FUNPIX
DIGITAL IMAGING LTD

905-780-8663
funpix@rogers.com
cell: 416-346-0009

K. BARKETTI

Bayview Village 416-225-6733

Exquisite Original Designs by Velika

Specializing in Special Occasion Dressing

Exquisite After Five and Gala Gowns

✦

Mother of the Wedding Gowns

✦

Dinner & Corporate Suits & Separates

YOUR ASSURANCE OF QUALITY & FIT

✦

We design and manufacture most of our suits and gowns with pride, right here in Canada

For custom couture and one-of-a-kind call Velika for an appointment at 416-815-9292

The Royalton
Banquet & Convention Centre Ltd.

When only the Best will do!

• Kosher Kitchen
• 3 Elegant Banquet Rooms
• Corporate Functions
• Conventions
• Home and Office Catering

GRAND CATERERS
COR 200

Kosher Caterers to The Royalton

8201 Weston Road, Vaughan, Ont. L4L 1A6
Phone: (905) 851-2325 • Tor. Line (416) 746-9077 • Fax: (905) 851-3208 www.theroyalton.com • info@theroyalton.com

Goodman's
China & Gifts Since 1969

More Than Just A China Store

Family Traditions:

Goodman's China, a family-owned and operated business, has been offering brides a unique registry programme in a relaxed, friendly atmosphere since opening in 1969.

Goodman's stock a wide selection of informal and formal dinnerware, flatware and stemware as well as unique gifts and home décor, all at competitive prices.

Let one of Goodman's knowledgeable staff customize your bridal registry with that personal touch. Buy on-line, on-phone or in person.

No appointment is necessary.

1136 Centre Street
Thornhill, Ontario
www.goodmanschina.com

Telephone: 905-731-3564
416-638-2630
Toll Free: 1-800-665-8187

Sky's BAND

SOCIAL & CORPORATE EVENTS
4 DYNAMIC SINGERS
HORN SECTION
PERCUSSIONIST
RHYTHM SECTION

Also Available Sky's TOO Our Sensational Second Band!
Call Today! 416.565.1620 or 905.731.0881 www.skysband.com

horvath PHOTOGRAPHY

24 CENTRE STREET
THORNHILL
905•707•5770

WEBSITE:
horvathphoto.com

EMAIL:
info@horvathphoto.com

Special Occasions @ Novotel

We treat your special event like it's ours. Novotel North York takes great pride in bringing families and friends together - for Bar/Bat Mitzvahs, family reunions, company parties and simple get-togethers. Whether you are hosting a family gathering for 20 or party for 250, our facilities will accommodate your every need. And because no two events are alike, our Novotel event planners will customize your celebration to meet your specific needs while providing quality service you can rely on.

Book your event before January 30, 2005 and receive a 15% off discount. Please mention this advertisement prior to event confirmation.

Contact Amanda Miller today at 416-218-3863 and make your next celebration a memorable event. At Novotel we build smiles.

Novotel Toronto North York
3 Park Home Avenue, North York, Ontario, M2N 6L3
(416) 733-2929 • Fax: (416) 733-3403

1-800-NOVOTEL www.novotel.com www.accorhotels.com

Additional Canadian Locations: Montréal Centre, Ottawa, Toronto Centre, Toronto Mississauga Mexico: Monterrey Valle and Santa Fé United States: New York City-Times Square

Picture Perfect

Historic McLean House and Vaughan Estate are Toronto's most gracious social venues. Beautifully landscaped gardens serve as unique backdrops to glorious weddings, and intimate special receptions.

The Estates of Sunnybrook

THE ESTATES OF SUNNYBROOK

Tri Elm Catering

cor 200
Glatt Kosher

Pride of Israel Synagogue
The Regency Banquet & Convention Centre
Pearson Convention Centre
New Venue
Other exclusive banquet halls available.
Accommodating 50 – 950 people

Weddings, Bar/Bat Mitzvahs
Special Occasions

$42 pp

Inclusive: Full Bar Service, Hot Hors D'oeuvres, Five Course Meal w/full deluxe sweet table
(don't miss this limited time party package)

For available dates, call us at 416-222-1230
or visit us at www.trielm.com

Design: Mitchell Shore Creative Services 416.636.8776

The Carrier Gallery
columbus centre
Banquet, Dining & Conference Facilities

Let Us Cater Your Wedding

- Bar/Bat Mitzvahs, Weddings, Anniversaries or any Social or business function
- Up to 400 guests for sit-down dinner or 600 for a cocktail reception
- Beautiful landscaped gardens creating a wonderful backdrop for picture taking
- Free Parking • Located at Dufferin & Lawrence

The Carrier Gallery functions up to 150 people
Sala Caboto functions up to 320 people

Tel: 416-789-7011, ext. 298
901 Lawrence Ave. W., Toronto
Fax: 416-789-3951 www.villacharities.com cosentin@villacharities.com

Platinum Studios
Photography

Specializing in...
Weddings
Bar/Bat Mitzvahs
& Corporate Events

www.platinum-studios.com
905.709.7754
1136 Centre Street Suite 214

CAPTURING YOUR EVERY MOMENT

FOR THOSE WITH MAJESTIC FLAIR

FORMERLY THE EGLINTON THEATRE this historic landmark has been beautifully restored to its original 1937 grandeur! Recapture the elegant design and sophistication of this majestic facility. Boasting one spectacular ballroom - the venue is exclusively yours for the evening.

The Eglinton Grand

400 Eglinton Avenue West, Toronto, ON www.eglintongrand.com
(416) 485-5900

EXCEEDING EXPECTATIONS EVERYTIME

DYNAMIC Hospitality & Entertainment Group
www.dynamichospitality.com

A dance band called...

TO THE MOON

with Phil Gray

416-255-5730

Heidi Gruenspan

Wedding & Party Planner

Associate: Lisa Schneider

For a Free consultation please call:

905-738-5030

www.heidig.ca

GRAYDON HALL MANOR

The perfect setting for a truly memorable day... from an intimate sunrise ceremony and champagne brunch to an elaborate, multi-course dinner and dance celebration.

Elegantly designed rooms, plush furnishings, sunny bay windows, charming fireplaces, stone terrace and formal gardens makes this turn of the century mansion both luxurious and romantic.

185 graydon hall drive, toronto, on • 416.449.5432 • graydonhall.com

Sam Firestone Caterers

C.O.R. GLATT KOSHER

Toronto's elegant, affordable choice for simchas, organizational and fundraising events

• Discounts available to organizations •

"Where others skimp, we splurge"

470 GLENCAIRN AVENUE

SHAAREI SHOMAYIM CONGREGATION

TEL. 416 782.8022 or 416 789.3213

FAX 416.782.6442 • E-mail: info@shomayim.org • Website: www.shomayim.org

NON-MEMBERS WELCOME

Bridal Consultant
LYNN COHEN
for the Perfect Simcha
CALL 905 889-1007
VISIT www.TorontoPartyGuide.com

EVA GOLDFINGER
Secular Humanistic Jewish Clergy
Egalitarian ▪ Humanistic ▪ Meaningful
✡ WEDDINGS - Jewish & Intercultural
✡ Baby Namings
✡ Bat/Bar Mitzvot
✡ Funerals, Memorials, Dedications
Pre-nuptual & Intermarriage Counselling
Personal & Couples Counselling

DISTINCTIVE CEREMONIES 905-889-7450

Designs By Karen Baker
Weddings - We create the event of a lifetime, all aspects of room decor and Bar & Bat Mitzvah florals.
Henna Parties - Exotic backdrops, beautiful table linen, chairs, room decor and centrepieces.
A Very Creative Shop!
Call: 905-886-8100
Official florist for the Toronto Centre for the Arts.
95 East Beaver Creek #7

FERN LINDZON

• Pianist
• Vocalist
• Bandleader
Solo or Band
Intimate or Grand
Also a cappella
Great music for all occasions
(416) 225-6977

GABI'S WIG BOUTIQUE

416-787-3129
3561 Bathurst Street (south of Wilson)
Mon.–Fri. 9am–5pm by appointment only Sundays by appointment only www.gabiswigs.com

The Art of Memories

Turn your special moments into exquisite works of art.
The "Simcha Glass"
We take the broken glass from your wedding ceremony and suspend the shards in a Lucite® column custom made for you. Each piece is hand-cast and engraved with your name and wedding date.
We also offer a unique way to showcase your invitations and photos.
416-787-9663

relax...
Ricky Bessner / Fern Cohen & Associates
PARTY PLANNING ▪ PRIVATE & CORPORATE EVENTS
WEDDINGS, BAR AND BAT MITZVAHS
Ricky
☎ : 905.731.2005
✉ : rgb54@sympatico.ca
🖷 : 905.709.8903
Fern
☎ : 416.781.0167
✉ : mfcohen@rogers.com
🖷 : 416.781.9332

* Award Banquets * Bar/Bat Mitzvahs * Bridal Shower * Character Sketches * Cocktail Parties * Conventions * Concerts * Corporate Functions * Fundraisers * Opening Ceremonies * Private Parties * Receptions * Seminar Warm-ups * Holiday Parties * Simchas * Singing Telegrams * Theme Nights * Weddings

Debi Sander Walker Entertainment

For creative entertainment and Stress free party planning, Call us!
Canada's Top Performers "Musician of the Year" 2001

905-275-4744
www.debisanderwalker.com
doremi@debisanderwalker.com
CALL FOR FREE CD DEMO AND SONG LIST

Risa GOLD & Associates
Special Events and Wedding Consultants
905-882-4343

With every detail looked after professionally, you'll be able to relax and enjoy your simcha.

Enhance Your Simcha With Our Chocolate Fountain
Truffles, Smash Cakes, etc.

THE CHOCOLATE MOOSE
416-784-9092

m Zlonce design 417 782-6283

We're planning something very special for your wedding

Plan your special day in one of the beautiful ballrooms at the Marriott and our professional Wedding Coordinators will take care of every detail so you don't have to.

Marriott
TORONTO DOWNTOWN
EATON CENTRE

525 Bay Street, Toronto Telephone 416-597-9200
marriotteatoncentre.com

THE WEDDING SHOW

Toronto's most elegant bridal show at the ROYAL ONTARIO MUSEUM
100 Queens Park (at Avenue Road and Bloor)

Friday January 21st 4:30-9:30
Saturday January 22nd 10:00-6:00
Sunday January 23rd 10:00-5:00

Join us for a special evening with DARCY MILLER, the Editor of Martha Stewart Weddings, on Friday January 21st.

Please visit our website for all event listings and times.
www.theweddingco.ca

From elegant to extravagant, we've got you covered!

Specializing in:
- Unique Chair Covers
- Spectacular Linens
- Matching Napkins
- Designer Overlays
- Head Table and Backdrop Decor
- Charger Plates
- Event Accessories
- Chiavari Chair Rentals

CHAIRDECOR ETC.
SPECIAL EVENTS COVERED SINCE 1991

Custom Orders Available for a complete product listing, check out our online catalogue at www.chairdecor.com

Chair Decor Etc.
132 Jardin Drive, Suite 1-4,
Concord, Ontario L4k 1X9

Local: 905.731.9217
Fax: 905.731.5594
Canada Toll Free:
1.877.342.4247

PROUD MEMBER OF ISES

GLADSTONE'S
BAR & GRILL

A new standard of dining elegance

You've always wanted it.
An upscale dining and special event venue in the heart of Forest Hill.
Large enough to accommodate luxurious wedding receptions.
Small enough to do so with boutique-like intimacy.
Perfect for your Bar/Bat Mitzah parties, engagement parties, and fine family dining.

With the kind of cutting-edge cuisine you've come to expect from a leading Kosher caterer, like ...
Beverly Hills Caterers, C.O.R.

Now you have it.

Opening soon at 398 Eglinton Avenue West

Now accepting Saturday night event bookings from Dec. 1/04 to March 15/05
Limited availability — call now!

416.822.7056

Snuggle up on Israeli bedding, It's the next best thing to getting married in Israel

REVELLE
HOME FASHIONS INC.

Finest quality bed linens, tablecloths and window treatments. Made in Canada with designs woven and printed in Israel exclusively for Revelle Home Fashions.

Available in fine bed linen stores and department stores across Canada.

Recipient of the Israel trade award for 2003

For further product information, please visit our web site www.revelle.ca

Getting Married?

Ashkenazi Jewish Genetic Diseases

You may be a Carrier!

Free Genetic Screening Clinic

In collaboration with The Hospital for Sick Children

for

Tay-Sachs Disease
Canavan Disease
Familial Dysautonomia

Sunday, October 24th
9 a.m. - 3 p.m.
Council House
4700 Bathurst Street

Minimum age 16 years

Please have available the name & address of your family physician

For more information call: 416-633-5100
www.whatsinyourgenes.com

This screening has been made possible through a generous donation from the Estate of Louis Uger

SPONSORS

National Council of Jewish Women of Canada, Toronto Section

Jacob's Ladder, The Canadian Foundation for Control of Neurodegenerative Disease

UJA Federation Board of Jewish Education; Gerald Richler Family UJA Federation Philanthropic Fund at the Jewish Foundation of Greater Toronto

Canadian Association for Tay-Sachs & Allied Diseases

Dysautonomia Foundation Inc.

The Canadian Society for the Weizmann Institute of Science

Coordinated by the
National Council of Jewish Women of Canada, Toronto Section

michele janks

professional make-up artist for bridal and all occasions

specializing in latest techniques and face airbrushing

Call to book a FREE consultation t 905 764-5749 or c 416 347-4739

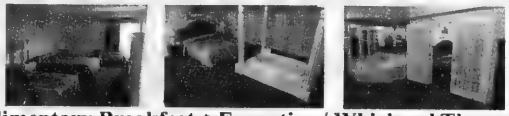
Book your next wedding group at the

Monte Carlo Inns

"Your home away from home"



Complimentary Breakfast • Executive / Whirlpool Theme Suites
Highspeed Internet & Business Centre • Restaurant / Patio
In-room: Microwave, Coffee Maker, Fridge, Hair dryer & Iron

Group Rate Discounts

Central Reservations US/CAN
1-800-363-6400
www.montecarloinns.com

Inquire about our Romantic Packages

Airport (905) 564-8500 • Markham (905) 513-8100 • Oakville (905) 849-9500 • Toronto West (905) 273-9500 • Brampton (905) 453-5200

VenueSource.ca

Toronto's Best Event Venues

Find the ideal event location for:

- Weddings
- Engagement Parties
- Bar/Bat Mitzvahs
- Corporate Functions
- Business Meetings
- Birthdays
- Graduations
- Special Occasions

www.venuesource.ca

The Spa

Club 22

The Tea Room

The Cigar Lounge

Luxury Suites

WINDSOR ARMS HOTEL & ROYAL KOSHER CATERING

C.O.R.

... for the ultimate wedding!

Windsor Arms Hotel
The Sephardic Kehila Centre
The Village Shul

Featuring our very own Gourmet Kosher Kitchen

- Receptions
- Dinner
- Dancing & Entertainment
- Honeymoon Nights
- Full Service Spa Packages
- Luxury Suites
- Rehearsal Parties & Showers
- Gift Registration
- Valet Parking
- Bentley Limousine
- Tea Room
- Kosher Kitchen
- Club 22
- Terrace Receptions

Call 416.971.9666

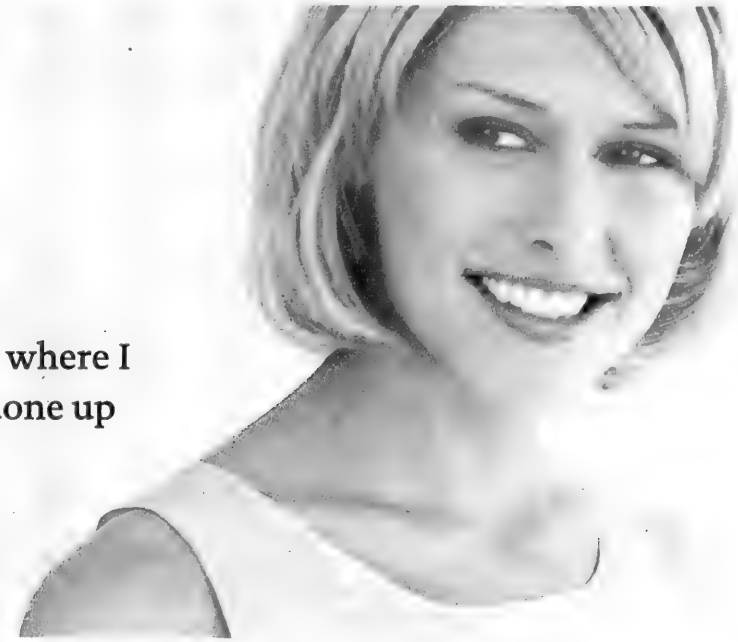
For all your wedding needs

Now off-premise catering available in the same style through Royal Kosher Catering Inc.

The Windsor Arms Hotel
18 St. Thomas Street,
Toronto, Canada M5S 3E7
{one block west of Bay off Bloor}

www.windsorarmshotel.com

The Courtyard Café



I want a wedding where I can let my perfectly done up hair down.

Wyndham Rewards

Get up to $1,000 in American Express Gift Cheques,
A $1,000 Event Credit,
50,000 Miles and More.

WHAT'S YOUR REQUEST?℠ Do you want to throw 25 bouquets so all your single friends can catch one? Or have a band that'll bring both your aunt and your nephew out of their seats? We'd like to hear about it. Tell the wedding coordinators at Wyndham Bristol Place your idea of the perfect wedding and they'll make it happen—and give you a special reward when it's over. Call or log onto the special wedding section of our web site.

1.888.WYNDHAM www.wyndhambristolplace.com

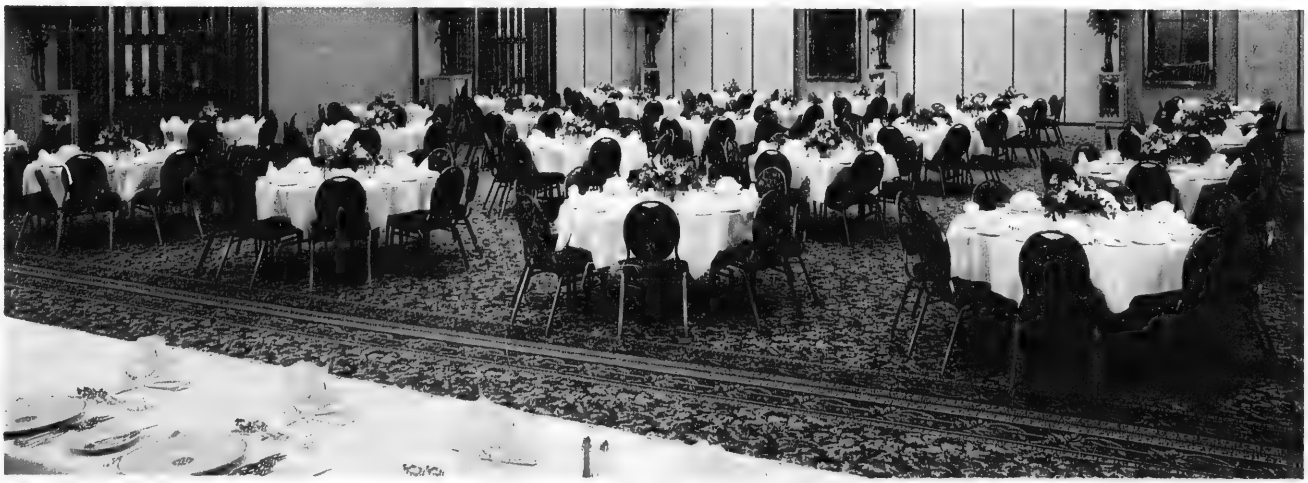
WYNDHAM BRISTOL PLACE - TORONTO AIRPORT
950 Dixon Road, Toronto, Ontario M9W 5N4
416-675-9444

WYNDHAM BRISTOL PLACE
TORONTO AIRPORT



Events must be booked by 12/31/05. Does not apply to previously booked events or cancellations. Cannot be combined with any other offers or promotions. Wyndham Rewards subject to change without notice. Rewards will be shipped upon completion of event. Please allow 6-8 weeks for delivery of reward.

Downtown Toronto's Newest Boutique Hotel
The GRAND HOTEL TORONTO
Reservations 1-877-32-GRAND
Book On-line at www.grandhoteltoronto.com
Earn Double or Triple Aeroplan Miles when using CIBC Aerogold® VISA

The Canadian Jewish news
52 Pages Wednesday, October 6, 2004 21 Tishrei, 5765 $1.00

SAVE $200
per couple on EL AL packages!
These prices won't last.
Book Now!!
Contact your travel agent
EL AL
416-967-4222

This Week

National

Fine line between valid criticism and racism. Page 5

Sacha Trudeau's documentary fails to convey nuances of Mideast conflict. Page 25

Books & Authors

Leonard Cohen: 'Arguably Montreal's most famous Jew.' Page 30

Arts & Travel

Vladimir Spivakov leads the Moscow Virtuosi. Page 40

CJN Profile

PR partners share life inside and outside the office. Page 44

Index

GTA 3
Editorials & Letters 8
Perspectives 9
Opinions 10
The Kirshner File 11
Jewish Life 16
What's New 22
Yiddish Corner 24
Obituaries & Notices 24
Coast to Coast 25
On Campus 28
Books & Authors 30
Holiday Food Ideas 33
Israel & the Jewish World 35
Arts & Travel 40
Health & Lifestyles 45
Classified 46
Sports & Leisure 50

www.cjnews.com
Canada Post Publication Agreement #40010684
Publication Mail Registration #09894

Israel's longest war

—— After four years of intifidah, violence continues ——

By GIL SEDAN
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

Four years ago last week, all hell broke loose in the Middle East. Palestinians and Israelis, who for almost a decade seemed on the verge of historic reconciliation, turned in opposite directions – killing each other, hating each other and losing hope.

Who is winning this intifadah? Who is losing?

Some losers are painfully obvious: according to figures released last week by the Shin Bet security service, 1,017 Israelis and foreigners have been killed since the outbreak of the intifadah in September 2000 and 5,598 have been wounded.

According to unofficial Palestinian figures, at least 3,300 Palestinians have died in the conflict – not to speak of the thousands of wounded, crippled and imprisoned.

The second intifadah broke out after Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon, then Israel's opposition Likud leader, visited the Temple Mount in Jerusalem's Old City, a site holy to both Jews and Muslims, on Sept. 28, 2000.

Some have insisted Sharon's visit triggered the uprising, while others have argued that the outing was simply used as a pretext for Palestinians to revolt.

Continued on page 36

Days after the second intifadah began on Sept. 28, 2000, Palestinian youth took to the streets. The level of violence, however, soon escalated from stone-throwing to suicide bombing, which has come to characterize the conflict. [RNS / Reuters photo]

Canadian speaks for Europe's Jewish students

By JANICE ARNOLD
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL — The job of finding a common voice for more than 170,000 young Jews living in 34 countries in Europe and the former Soviet Union, often under vastly different circumstances, has been given to a Canadian.

David Nachfolger

David Nachfolger, 25, is the new executive director of the European Union of Jewish Students (EUJS). a 26-year-old organization based in Brussels.

Continued on page 29

OTTAWA WELCOME: New Israeli Ambassador Alan Baker presented his credentials to Gov. Gen. Adrienne Clarkson last week at Rideau Hall.

Shabbat Bereshit
Candlelighting: 6:26
Havdallah: 7:31

Greater Toronto Area

CJN 0020 8600 64 ... 1y 0206C04
PATTI PENIHAN
MCLAREN MICROPUBLISHING LTD
PO BOX 972 STATION F
TORONTO ON
M4Y 2N9

Hamas has up to 200 Qassam missiles: IDF — please see page 35

News in Brief

Canada

Eggleton Honoured

TORONTO — Art Eggleton, a former defence minister and ex-mayor of Toronto, was honoured by B'nai Brith Canada Sept. 21 for his years of service to the Jewish community. Eggleton represented the heavily Jewish riding of York Centre from 1993 to 2004.

New Seniors' Program

KELOWNA, B.C. — The Okanagan Jewish Community has started a seniors' program. Its first monthly event, a luncheon, is to be held Oct. 27 in Kelowna. The OJC hosted three outreach counsellors from Vancouver's Jewish Family Service Agency last month to learn what the JFSA does and to help the OJC assess local seniors' needs.

World

Community Revived

ROME — Yom Kippur services were held in the Italian town of Trani for the first time in half a millennium. Trani, in southern Italy, had a thriving Jewish community in medieval times, until Jews were expelled from the area 500 years ago. A small community was reorganized this year by Chabad and the Italian Union of Jewish Communities. One of Rome's seven shuls sent a rabbi and cantor for the services, and Trani's mayor made the former Colona Monastery available for services until the medieval Scolanova Synagogue, long used as a church, is restored.

Tangled Up in Jews?

ST. PAUL — Bob Dylan attended Yom Kippur services at a Chabad synagogue in Minnesota led by Rabbi Moshe Feller, head of Lubavitch of Minnesota and Dylan's longtime acquaintance. Dylan had an aliyah and was engrossed in the prayers, a participant reported. Dylan, who has attended services there before, became connected to Chabad through a childhood friend who was close to Rabbi Feller and died in 2001, Chabad said.

Alleged Spies Out Soon

AUCKLAND — Two alleged Mossad agents in jail in New Zealand are due to be released and return to Israel this week. Elisha Cara and Uriel Keinan, who also holds Canadian citizenship, were jailed in July for six months and fined after they were found guilty of illegally trying to obtain a New Zealand passport. The case caused serious diplomatic tensions with Israel, which has neither confirmed nor denied the men are spies. Legal sources said the early release is standard procedure and not the result of a deal. Local police are still trying to find two more suspects in the case: William Ze'ev Barkan, an Israeli who fled New Zealand, and David Reznick, a New Zealand Jew believed to have fled to Israel.

Chain Pulls Red String

LOS ANGELES — The U.S. department store Target stopped selling bracelets made from what it called "Kabbalah Red String" last month after the International Society for Sephardic Progress, a Florida-based advocacy group, said they represented commercial exploitation of a religious tradition. The string, believed to ward off evil, is first wrapped around the Tomb of Rachel in Bethlehem and sold through the controversial Los Angeles-based Kabbalah Centre.

Shul Loses Support

NEW YORK — Brooklyn's small Montauk Minyan is losing its support from the Union for Traditional Judaism because it invited a prominent gay Orthodox rabbi, Steve Greenberg, to speak on Rosh Hashanah, the New York Jewish Week reported. The UTJ, a 20-year-old breakaway group from the Conservative movement, said it was forced to act because Rabbi Greenberg was providing rabbinic leadership, and homosexual behaviour is incompatible with Jewish law. A spokesperson for the shul, which had 50 people at Rosh Hashanah services, said the rabbi's talk did not address gay issues.

Graffiti at Ipperwash Inquiry Condemned

TORONTO — Canadian Jewish Congress last week condemned the "hateful actions" of those who painted a swastika last month near the cars of Dudley George's family as they participated in the Ipperwash inquiry.

The inquiry, being held in Forest, Ont., near Sarnia, has been underway since July. It is probing the September 1995 death of Dudley George during his participation in a protest at Ipperwash Provincial Park.

Under the metre-long Nazi symbol, "4 ever" was painted on the asphalt of the local hockey arena, where the George family and their lawyer, Andrew Orkin, regularly park. Orkin and the presiding judge, Sidney Linden, are both Jewish.

"No one should have to face racism in this country. We stand behind the George family and the native Canadian community in condemning this hate crime," said Joel Richler, CJC's Ontario chair, who called Sam George, Dudley's brother, last week to discuss the incident. Congress has also offered its assistance to the OPP's hate crimes unit, which has indicated it intends to treat the incident as a hate crime.

Stone Craft מצבות המפעל MONUMENT FACTORY

We have a very large inventory of top quality

Granite Monuments

For a limited time, we can offer

Single Stones at $750.

(while factory stock lasts)

All sizes for all Jewish Cemeteries in Ontario

•Factory Direct Prices •Monuments Available Within 1 week •Cemetery Lettering and Restoration •We use the finest granite

SERVING THE JEWISH COMMUNITY FOR MANY YEARS

121 BRISBANE RD., #1 DOWNSVIEW 416-667-1474

Steeles Memorial Chapel

www.steelesmemorial.com

- Current Listing of Funerals
- Listing of Cemeteries and Maps of Sections
- Yahrzeit Calculator for Civil & Hebrew dates
- Kaddish Texts
- Educational Information about Shiva - Unveiling - After-Care - Prayers - Jewish Burial Rites
- Jewish Holiday Dates

905-881-6003

Serving the Jewish Community since 1927.

THE VEHICLE EVERYONE HAS BEEN WAITING FOR!

2005 DODGE MAGNUM

Book your test drive NOW!

Luxurious! Powerful! Rear wheel drive with ESP. Made in Canada.

$389 LEASE PER MONTH

NOW IN STOCK

*Lease 48 months with 20,000 KMs allowed per year with $.15 for excess KMs. Freight, PDE, admin and taxes extra. OAC. Downpayment or trade equivalent $1660. See Downsview Chrysler for details. Vehicle may feature optional equipment.

DOWNSVIEW CHRYSLER DODGE • JEEP 416-635-1660

On the Allen Road, N. of Sheppard Ave. 401

The Canadian Jewish news

Vol. XXXIV, No. 40 (1,667)*

Gary Laforet General Manager

Mordechai Ben-Dat Editor

Vera Gilman Advertising & Assistant General Manager

Carol Jamieson Controller

Jeff Rosen News & Internet Editor

Joseph Sergo, Arts, Travel and Supplements Editor

Janice Arnold, Carolyn Blackman, Ron Csillag, Sheldon Kirshner, Frances Kraft, David Lazarus, Elias Levy, Paul Lungen, Anna Morgan, Leila Speisman Staff Reporters

Jesssica Apter, Rabbi Bernard Baskin, Ross Culiner, Gerald Gall, Jean M. Gerber, Bill Gladstone, Joanna Grossman, Lawrence Hart, Sara Horowitz, Norma Joseph, Dr. Gidi Koren, Rabbi Dow Marmur, Rebecca Nadler, Miriam Porter, Avrum Rosensweig, Alek Silver, Heather Solomon, Gerald Steinberg, Rabbi Chaim Steinmetz, Gil Troy Columnists

Diane Koven, Myron Love Canadian Correspondents

Edgar Asher, Jenny Hazan Israel Bureau

Carolan Halpern, Ruth Schweitzer, Daniel Wolgelerenter Copy Editors

Cynthia Gasner, Special Assignments

Ella Burakowski Assistant Advertising Manager

Bev Bergman, Gloria Clamen, Lisa Freid, Faina Garber, Sarah Laiken, Eric Layman, Honey Mahl, Jonathan Turner, Sholom Wargon, Grace Zweig Sales Representatives, Toronto

Doris Perez, Office Manager

Alma Delory, Lucy Semtchenko, Karen Syptak Office Staff, Toronto

Janice Atkinson Circulation & Promotions Manager

Brian Stoneman Composing Room Manager

José De Freitas, Edward Dunbar, Ronald G. Hagel, Britta Montgomery, Anahit Nahapetyan, Nick Radelja, Michael Stavsky Production Staff

Donald Carr, George A. Cohon, Steven Cummings, Murray Koffler, Julia Koschitzky, Albert J. Latner, Lionel H. Schipper, Robert Vineberg, Rose Wolfe, Rubin Zimmerman Directors

Ray D. Wolfe Founding President (1971-1990)

CIRCULATION

Total circulation: 40,197 copies.
Total paid circulation: 39,504 copies.

CCNA verified circulation Feb. 18, 2004

SUBSCRIPTIONS

Canada: $34.95, 1 yr. incl. GST. $62.95, 2 yr. incl-GST.
U.S.A.: $100 U.S funds, 1 yr.
All other countries: $110 U.S. funds, 1 yr.

Postmaster: Please return 29Bs and changes of address to Toronto office.

Postage Paid at Toronto
Canada Post Publication Agreement #40010684
Publication Mail Registration #09894

*Under current ownership

We acknowledge the financial support of the Government of Canada, through the Publications Assistance Program, towards our mailing costs.

Canada

How To Reach Us

Head Office: 1100 Eglinton Ave. Mills Rd., Ste. 205, North York, Ont., M3B 3K4 Tel: 416-391-1836
Advertising Fax: 416-391-0949 Editorial Fax: 416-391-0829
Subscriptions E-mail: ads@cjnews.com Editorial E-mail: info@cjnews.com
E-mail: jatkinson@cjnews.com Website: www.cjnews.com

IMP - Israel Advertising Representatives
POB 7195, Jerusalem, Israel Tel: 02-625-2933 Fax: 02-624-9240 E-mail:info@impmedia.co.il

Critical Illness
Taking care of tomorrow - TODAY
Rates are going up NOW!
Monica J. Weissmann, CFP
905-889-8535
Edward Jones
Serving Individual Investors
Member CIPF

National

Greater Toronto Area

Sonny Goldstein, CFP
Planning For Retirement?
Confused about your financial future? Let us help you understand how to reach your financial goals
Call Sonny Goldstein
Chartered Life Underwriter
Chartered Financial Consultant
416-221-0060
HIGHEST QUOTES ON RRIF's, ANNUITIES, etc.
Creative Ideas in Financial Planning

Downtown agency deals with homeless Jews

By CAROLYN BLACKMAN
Staff Reporter

Special Report

Simon Kalkstein, a social worker and supervisor of the downtown branch of Jewish Family & Child Service (JF&CS), measures success in small steps.

"In this profession we have to go for the little differences. If we see a positive change [in our clients], then we have made progress."

A native of downtown Toronto, Kalkstein has been with JF&CS for 30 years, and at the downtown branch located in the Miles S. Nadal JCC, for 15 years.

His branch, which provides services such as counselling and financial assistance to clients, is a microcosm of the main branch located further north in the Lipa Green Building, he says.

"Our branch, however, has become known for dealing with the marginal community. A large number of clients are on financial assistance, and there are a number of single individuals with psychiatric or drug-addiction histories."

He has done a hand count, he says, and has found 22 clients, either former heroin or codeine addicts, who are involved in a methadone program. "It is a difficult drug because people can become addicted to it as well, but it is better than the other two."

Clients are often on a methadone program for years, he says, "and if they cannot work we provide them with financial assistance.

"As well, many of these people are peripheral to the Jewish community, so we offer that connection. We invite them to a Passover seder or arrange for them to attend High Holy Day services. We try to give them a Jewish identity."

He estimates that about two-thirds of his agency's 300-or-so clients receive some financial help, and a number of these people are "situationally" homeless. "They are homeless unless someone pays their rent."

Karen Paiken, manager of communications at JF&CS, says that the Jewish definition of homelessness is broader than the public definition.

"We include people who are in danger of being evicted and those who live in low-standard housing. We do not have hundreds of homeless Jews, but poverty is part of the issue and we include that in the problem."

She commends Kalkstein for sustaining an ongoing relationship with police, hospitals and shelters.

Continued on page 13

JF&CS treats individuals, say clients

By CAROLYN BLACKMAN
Staff Reporter

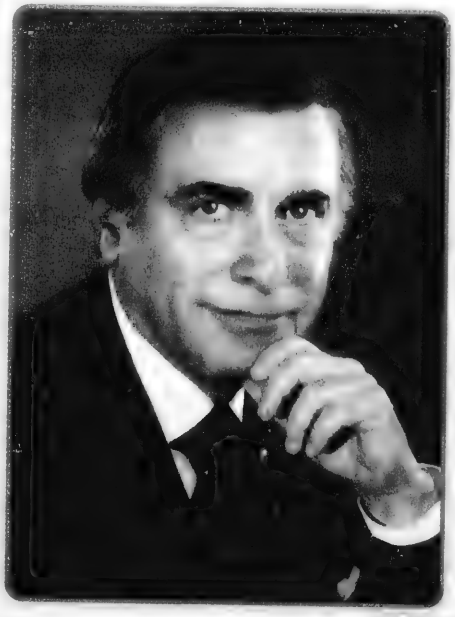
Sam, a 47-year-old divorced man who lives alone in subsidized housing in Rexdale, says he has been living a nightmare.

He dropped out of school in Grade 10 and after working as a computer operator and consultant, he suffered a stroke.

"I was married and I have a daughter who is now 16, but I haven't seen her in two years," says Sam (names in this story have been changed to ensure confidentiality), who at the time of the interview had a fractured wrist, which occurred after his wheelchair flipped over.

He became involved with Jewish Family & Child Service (JF&CS) while he was recuperating from his stroke at Riverdale Hospital, he says.

Continued on page 14



JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF TORONTO
is proud to invite the Toronto Community to the 2004 NEGEV DINNER TRIBUTE
in honour of
RONALD APPLEBY Q.C.
in recognition of excellence in communal leadership and dedication to Israel

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 2004
Sheraton Centre Hotel
Reception: 5:00 p.m. • Dinner: 6:00 p.m.

JNF Toronto President: Ron Hoffman
Negev Dinner Chairs: Harley Mintz and Howard Sokolowski
Honourary Patrons: Jennie and Moishe Appleby, Elaine Spring
Honourary Chairs: Joey M. Tanenbaum (Chairman), H. Thomas Beck, Samuel H. Cohen, Fred DeGasperis, Dr. Gerald Halbert, Dr. Ralph Halbert, Ydessa Hendeles, Joseph Lebovic, Robert Masters, Irwin (Al) Mintz, Philip Reichmann, The Hon. Sydney L. Robins, Kurt Rothschild, Gerald Sheff, Edward Sonshine, Jack Weinbaum, Mel Wolfond

Proceeds from the 2004 JNF Toronto Negev Dinner will benefit a Department of Forestry Project of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and a unique Children's Endowment at JNF summer camps in Israel.

PLEASE NOTE — A random draw at the Negev Dinner will provide two FREE return economy tickets to Israel, compliments of El Al Israel Airlines. To qualify for this draw, donors must make a minimum gift to this year's Negev Dinner of at least $360 and purchase at least one ticket to the event itself.

For ticket information and reservations
Jewish National Fund of Toronto
1000 Finch Avenue West, Suite 700, Toronto, Ontario M3J 2V5
Tel: 416-638-7200 • Fax: 416-638-7345 • Email: tor@jnf-canada.org

WHY PAY MORE?

Graveside Services at the Lowest Cost Available From Any Jewish Establishment. GUARANTEED.

A NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION
HEBREW BASIC BURIAL
TRADITIONAL GRAVESIDE SERVICE

3429 Bathurst Street
(416) 780-0596

*Guarantee based on published prices

Notice of Annual and General Meeting of The Bathurst Jewish Community Centre

Notice is hereby given that the annual and general meeting of the members of the Bathurst Jewish Community Centre will be held at 4588 Bathurst Street, Jerusalem Room, Toronto on the 17th day of October 2004 at the hour of 10:00am to 12:00pm.

(a) accept as members of the Corporation those Members listed in good standing tabled and delivered by the Secretary of the Corporation;
(b) elect Directors;
(c) approve the Financial Statements for the year ended June 30, 2004;
(d) appoint auditors and authorize the directors to fix their remuneration;
(e) transact such further and other business as may properly be brought before the meeting or any adjournment thereof.

Copies of the Financial Statements and Auditor's Report, together with copies of the slate of nominated directors, may be obtained from the Business Office of the Centre between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. until the day of the annual meeting.

Dated the 17th day of September 2004

BY ORDER OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS
Mitchel Smith, Secretary

REDUCE 2004 TAXES IMMEDIATELY!

- 100% tax deduction
- 15% Federal tax credit in 2004
- 5% Provincial tax credit (ON)
- Tax benefits are protected by statute!
- minimum $10,000 investment
- Augen Limited Partnership 2004

AUGEN CAPITAL CORP

IPC Investment Corp.
Member of the CIPF

Irwin Igra Tele.: (416) 565-2732
Email: iigra@ipcsecurities.com
3910 Bathurst Street, Suite #404 Toronto, Ontario M3H 5Z3

Please note that investments of this nature are not suitable for all clients, and that the clients should seek the advice of their accountant.

Greater Toronto Area

A pattern of betrayal

From the editor's desk

There can be no doubt that life for Palestinians living in Gaza is a form of hell. Apart from the handful of the ruling elite who control the flow of funds and jobs or the heads of the major tribal clans who control the divisions of property, most of the Palestinians there live in conditions of severe squalor. Life on the West Bank is likely only marginally less squalid.

Even as these words were being written, Israel's Defence Forces were in pitched battle with the gangs of Hamas and other thugs and cutthroats who have terrorized Israelis and, truth be told, their own people for the past four years. To date, five Israelis and more than 60 Palestinians have been killed.

This most recent fighting is a casebook study demonstrating yet again, alas, how the Palestinian people, time and again, have been betrayed by their own leaders.

The tripwire for Israel's large-scale military response into northern Gaza was the murder last week, on the eve of the festival of Sukkot, of two toddlers aged two and four who were playing under the bough of their grandparents' olive tree outside their home in Sderot, in the northern Negev Desert.

Hamas had launched a Kassem rocket into the heart of a residential neighbourhood of the poor Negev town. This time, the rocket found its civilian mark and the two youngsters were killed immediately.

Prior to that Kassem rocket attack, Israeli security sources said, Palestinians had launched 460 Kassam rockets from the Gaza Strip in 313 different salvos. In those attacks, 80 rockets fell in Gaza and the remainder landed over the Green Line border.

Any clear-thinking, fair-minded and honest individual, however, must ask the question: why? What was the purpose of this latest Hamas rocket attack into Sderot?

Since Israel has already declared its intention – and has put into place the infrastructure – imminently to leave Gaza, the rocket attack could not possibly be explained as an effort to expel the Israelis from Gaza. Indeed, if such rocket attacks were to affect Israel's withdrawal policy, it would more likely have the opposite effect, namely, to suspend or reverse the government's unilateral withdrawal plan.

The only reasons for Hamas' attack was to perpetrate more killing of Israelis. It is a resumption of the Islamists' preferred pastime, bloodletting from the Jewish body politic.

In Hamas' warped and perverted worldview, this would have the salutary effect of evoking a violent response from the Jews (Israel), which, in turn, would further:

- stir the religious and national passions of Hamas' confederates;
- radicalize more of the unemployed Palestinian youth;
- enrage sympathetic westerners;
- sicken most westerners at the loss of innocent, mostly Palestinian, blood;
- provide an opportunity for the mask-wearing Hamas military men to show their mettle in a fight with the Israelis; and
- embarrass the "old," "tired," "unresponsive," Palestinian Authority leadership in Ramallah in front of their own people.

On Sunday, Hamas leaders in Gaza threatened to launch Kassem missiles into Ashkelon, even farther inside Israel.

It is patently and painfully clear that the PA Palestinian leaders are incapable and unwilling to stop Palestinian terrorists from operating against Israel. The public statement by PA Prime Minister Ahmed Qu'eria was pathetic for the impotence it betrayed. He urged the Hamas men to reconsider their tactics because they run counter to "national Palestinian interests." The statement by PA President Yasser Arafat, on the other hand, was pathetic for the unmasked hatred it portrayed. "Stand firm against those racists, barbarians and criminals," he told his people.

Israel's response against the rocket launchers will be crushing. It is acting to protect its citizens, as every other country on earth would do. And it is acting, again as every other country on earth would do, according to rules it, and not its enemies, dictate. Sadly, unfortunately, regrettably, innocent Palestinians have been killed as well. But such is the dark predictable outcome in a battle where the Hamas hide and fire their weapons among innocents.

Four years ago, former Israeli prime minister Ehud Barak, Arafat and former U.S. president Bill Clinton were in the midst of negotiations to try to bring the Oslo process, begun seven years before that, to a reasonable and peaceful conclusion. Faced with the prospect of having to sign a peace treaty with Israel, Arafat recoiled. He walked away from those negotiations and let loose the Al Aqsa Martyrs Brigade, Hamas, Islamic Jihad, Hezbollah and various others intent only on one objective: the end of an occupation that they defined as the end of the state of Israel.

Israel declared it would be leaving most of the West Bank. The Palestinian leaders declared terrorist war: 138 suicide bombings and more than 13,000 shooting attacks. Israel declared it would be leaving the Gaza Strip. The Palestinian leaders launched Kassem rockets.

More than 1,000 Israelis and more than 3,000 Palestinians have died as a result.

Is the pattern not clear? Is the betrayal of Palestinians by Palestinians not abject and abominable? —MBD

SeeJN

SUKKOT GUESTS:

Nativot Hatorah students excitedly welcomed the Ushpizin (Aramaic for "guests"). In our tradition, we invite the souls of the seven shepherds of Israel – Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses, Aaron, Joseph, and King David – into the sukkah. The colourful assembly for grades 1 to 5 was organized by student events co-ordinator Rochelle Diamond and the Bnot Sherut girls from Israel.

Line between racism, criticism hard to discern: CJC head

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

Somewhere between the malicious deligitimization of Israel and a valid critique of its policies, a line divides criticism and racism – but it's a line that's not always easy to discern, said Ed Morgan, professor of law and president of Canadian Jewish Congress.

Much depends on the context of the criticism and the intent of those who advance it, he said.

Speaking as part of a panel discussing "Anti-Semitism and anti-Zionism: One and the Same?", Morgan said those who called for a one-state solution to the Mideast conflict are almost always aimed at attacking the legitimacy of Israel. Their "hate-filled" agenda is to say in effect, "we don't want to live with them (Jews) at all," he said.

Morgan was joined by panelists Jim Lederman, a senior Middle East analyst with Oxford Analytica, and reporter Olivia Ward of the Toronto Star, at an event sponsored by the Canada-Israel Committee.

Morgan quoted former Swedish deputy prime minister Per Ahlmark as saying of those who criticized Israel, that "if someone says he loves Swedes, but hates their state, they are unbelievable."

Morgan said the news media often confuse deligitimization of Israel with critique of its policies and they devote too much coverage to the conflict with the Palestinians, making it seem like the world's major story. The world, he said, is myopically focused on the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and even his students at the University of Toronto, who rely on Canadian news outlets, believe the Palestinians are subject to genocide.

Morgan was followed by Ward, a veteran journalist who has covered conflicts in Northern Ireland, Chechnya and Kosovo. Ward, however, began her comments by saying she would leave the issue of anti-Semitism and anti-Zionism to her co-panelists, and instead reviewed some issues relating to the Middle East, including quantity of coverage, objectivity, time constraints and context. "In the Middle East the background never ends," she said.

Lederman concluded the formal presentations at the Beth Tzedec Congregation by arguing Jews suffer from a lack of historicity. "Most people don't get it. We won. Jews are not victims. What we are seeing now is a reaction to that victory."

Expanding on his thesis, Lederman, who is based in Jerusalem, said the victory he was referring to came in Jews convincing the rest of the world of the need to observe the law and create lawful societies.

What's more, the establishment of the State of Israel amounted to a recognition by the world of the right of Jews to make law, as is demanded of them by the Mishnah. Those who would destroy Israel are using Jews as a proxy for their opposition to the form of law that has developed in the West and which owes a debt to the law promulgated by rabbis in ancient times, he said.

Lederman related his analysis to the topic at hand by arguing that historically anti-Judaism meant opposition to Jewish law, anti-Semitism meant opposition to those who practiced Jewish law and anti-Zionism means opposition to those making Jewish law.

Those calling for a one-state solution are doing so to undermine the ability of Jews to make laws for themselves, he added.

Jews remain a bellwether of the societies in which they live and today Jews are attacked because they represent the value system adopted in the West, he said.

ORT HONOREE:
Kathleen Crook, a member of ORT Toronto for two decades and its first national president, was honoured recently at the organization's 30th Golden Circle Luncheon. Funds raised from the event will go to the ORT Canada Campus in Netanya to help fix up the school and improve the education and wellbeing of its 1,500 students.

ROLEX•PATEK•CARTIER
DIAMONDS
BUY•SELL•TRADE
VAN RIJK JEWELLERS
440-1233 INSTANT CASH

Canada's LARGEST selection for new & used Fitness Equipment!!!
AMAZING DEALS ON PRE-OWNED EQUIPMENT
Top Pre-owned equipment from:
SCHWINN • NORTHERN LIGHTS • LIFE FITNESS • PRECOR • STAIRMASTER • PACEMASTER
TAKE OUR 30-DAY PRICE CHALLENGE AND GET STARTED TODAY!
STEPPERS from $188
ELLIPTICALS from $288
HOME GYMS from $388
We BUY, SELL, TRADE & RENT Fitness Equipment
UPRIGHT CYCLES from $88
RECUMBENT BIKES from $88
ROWING MACHINES from $128
THE BEST BRANDS AT JAW-DROPPING LOW PRICES!
WEIGHT PLATES From 58¢/lb.
HEX DUMBBELLS From 68¢/lb
HEART RATE MONITORS From $38
HEAVY BAGS From $48.88
WEIGHT EQUIPMENT From $49.95
FAT SCALES From $68
TREADMILLS from $298
FINANCING AVAILABLE
BOOMERANG HOME FITNESS
MISSISSAUGA
6991 Millcreek Dr.
905.819.9877
SCARBOROUGH
143 Bermondsey Rd.
416.288.1673
Store Hours:
Monday to Friday 10 - 9 • Saturday 10 - 6 • Sunday 12 - 5
PRICES AND AVAILABILITY SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

Art project forces students to discuss difficult memories

By ANNA MORGAN
Staff Reporter

On Nov. 14, 1999, Olga Baranovski lost her child and Toronto the Good shed one more layer of innocence.

That evening, Matti was knocked to the ground and brutally kicked in the head by a group of thugs in G. Ross Lord Park. Matti was 15 years old when he died.

Since then, "the reality of youth violence and child abduction have left many children in Toronto feeling vulnerable," says Vanessa Barnett, who worked with students at C.H. Best Middle School in a visual arts project honouring Matti's life.

"Many children have difficulty verbalizing this anxiety," Barnett said.

The Memory Project, which was displayed recently at the school, allowed 17 students "to develop ownership over that traumatic experience by bringing them together to talk about the events before, during and after Matti's death," she added.

Many students at the school are immigrants who, like Matti, come from a Russian-Israeli cultural background and speak English as a second language. C.H. Best is located just a few blocks from Matti's home, his school and the park where he was killed.

Barnett, who is completing a master's degree at York University on the pedagogy of memory, said that she worked with the school's art teacher, Sandra Genua Colin, to help the kids "make meaning of the incident and become involved in a process of self-reflective discourse."

Art, Barnett said, allowed the children to integrate various academic skills and overcome the limitations of language in order to verbalize their anxieties.

She began the process with a visit to Olga Baranovski's home, in order to borrow pictures for her students to use in the project."Olga opened her photo album, discussed each picture with me and then participated in almost every stage," Barnett said.

Working through the process allowed the kids to become a community that grieved and felt sadness together, she added.

Oren Guttman, 13, in front of a panel he created for a visual arts project honouring Matti Baranovski's life. Oren moved to Toronto six years ago from Netanya, to just a few blocks from the Baranovski home. [Anna Morgan photo]

"It was difficult to focus on such a painful memory, but it was also life affirming and consoling."

When the project was complete, it consisted of a circular sphere 15 feet in diameter that contained two themes. The exterior display focused on the present – the park in the spring.

"It is a hopeful place with the blurred forms of children and their caregivers on the slides and swings," Barnett said on opening night.

"The inside of the sphere is memory ... the colour of the background is now muted and grainy – it has taken on the distance of the newspaper images."

The 17 interior panels, which were prepared by the students, not only mark events in Matti's life, but also foreshadow his death by focusing on the picnic table and the park where Matti was sitting shortly before he was attacked.

The panels resemble small Russian icons. Each portrays various aspects of Baranovski's life – such as Matti sitting on a grassy hill outside his apartment in Netanya, Israel. The installation ends with an 18th panel, prepared by Matti's mother, Olga, which portrays a representation of the Ten Commandments on top of the picnic table in the park.

The project is a miracle because of its educational value, Olga said on the steps outside the school.

"These kids will never choose the violent way."

Join Us at
Forest Hill Place

BERNIE FARBER, Executive Director of Canadian Jewish Congress, Ontario Region will share with us his experiences from a recent trip to the Lodz Ghetto in Poland.

"From Toronto to Bocki: The son of a Holocaust survivor returns to Poland to honour the perished."

Tuesday, October 19th, 7:30 pm
Wine and Cheese will be served
To reserve your seat for this informative event, please call Karen at (416) 785-1511 ext. 232

Bernie Farber, Executive Director of Canadian Jewish Congress, Ontario Region

Forest Hill Place
645 CASTLEFIELD AVENUE, TORONTO, TEL. (416)785-1511 ORCA
Ask about our locations in Burlington, Oakville, Don Mills, Thornhill and Mississauga. www.lrc.ca

LIFESTYLE
Retirement Communities

Weizmann offers youngsters enriched math program

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

As a child, Yossi Elran enjoyed mathematics texts that incorporated stories, puzzles and riddles, "not just boring math."

Today, the 37-year-old British-born Israeli and his 36-year-old wife Michal, who spent five years in North America as a child, are working for the Young@Science division of the Weizmann Institute of Science. Among other projects, they run Math-By-Mail, an extracurricular math enrichment program that spices up esoteric math concepts like fractals and modular arithmetic with cartoon characters and links to related non-math websites.

The math program, an established project in Israel, was introduced here last fall, the first time Weizmann has exported it, although two years ago the institute sold the program's math questionnaires to Korea, where they are used independently.

The Elrans returned to Israel in late summer after two years in Toronto, where Yossi was on sabbatical doing post-doctoral work in quantum physics. His focus in Toronto was on his research (he did his Weizmann work "on the side"), but now that he's in Israel, the research will take a back seat to his now full-time position at Weizmann. Michal will continue at Weizmann on a part-time basis.

Yossi became involved in Weizmann after taking over a session of a math and computers club that Michal was running, on a day that she couldn't attend.

Michal and Yossi Elran

The couple, who are the parents of five children, produced the math questionnaires in Hebrew, then translated them into English, tweaking them with illustrations and new explanations.

Michael Meyer, national executive vice-president of the Canadian Society for the Weizmann Institute of Science (Weizmann Canada) approached some local day schools about making it available to their students.

Associated Hebrew Day Schools, Netivot Hatorah and United Synagogue Day School became involved, with about 100 kids in all taking part in the program. The year was capped by a "math treasure hunt" held at Netivot. This year organizers expect more schools on board.

In Israel, said Elran in an interview, students must pass an exam to take part in the program, which was designed for Grades 3 to 8. Here, he said, the schools themselves choose the participants.

"It's math enrichment, not math encouragement," he said. "It's not for children who have difficulty with math. It's for kids who like it."

The program is very interactive, said Elran, with five questionnaires a year, which are then "reviewed" (he prefers not to use the term "mark") and returned to the students, who can e-mail any questions they may have.

Although a nominal fee is charged for the program, it doesn't cover the actual costs, said Meyer. A local donor has helped offset the amount.

"Weizmann feels it wants to do something with the local community, and we have something we are able to give back to the community," said Meyer. "Also, it's a way for us to introduce Weizmann to the kids, to the schools and to the parents."

Other Weizmann programs open to Canadian students include the longstanding Dr. Bessie F. Lawrence Summer Science Institute and an annual physics competition, in which the Community Hebrew Academy of Toronto participated for the first time last year.

THE ONLY ISRAELI LAW OFFICE IN ONTARIO
A Branch of Samson Salem & Associates - Law Offices in Rishon-Lezion

Legal advice & services on matters of Israeli Law only.
• Property • Wills & Estates • Family • Corporate

Itamar Cohen B.A., LL.B. (ISRAEL)
• Member of the Israeli Bar Association
• Approved as a Foreign Legal Consultant in Ontario by the Law Society of Upper Canada
• Associate of Samson Salem & Associates.

(905) 709-3896
Fax: (905) 709-3898 Cell: (416) 893-1967
E-mail: itamarcohen@rogers.com

ATTENTION FORMER MONTREALERS!

JNF
JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF CANADA

Since the early seventies, many former Montrealers have made Toronto their home, travelling that 500 miles down the 401, settling here, raising families and becoming an integral part of Toronto's Jewish community. Many have fond memories of growing up in Montreal, in "La Belle Province". Time to remember! Time to see old friends!

Jewish National Fund is sponsoring a very special evening for you and your family.

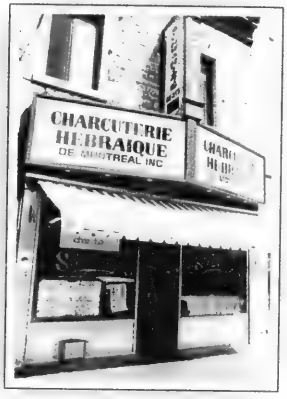
A " TASTE OF MONTREAL" in Toronto!

A Reunion To Remember

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 7:30 P.M.
BETH EMETH BAIS YEHUDA SYNAGOGUE
100 ELDER STREET
(Lots of free parking)

Admission — a minimum donation of 2 trees ($36)
(tax receipts will be issued)

To make your reservation, please contact JNF Toronto at:
416-638-7200 Sheila, Ext. 24 or Toby, Ext. 23
email: tor@jnf-canada.org or fax 416-638-7345



See you at the party!

SILENT AUCTION, FOOD, ENTERTAINMENT, FUN, MEMORIES

Anecdotes from a very special guest
Tommy Schnurmacher
well-known and popular Montreal Journalist and Broadcaster

The Canadian Jewish news

An independent community newspaper serving as a forum for diverse viewpoints

Publisher and Proprietor:
The Canadian Jewish News, a corporation without share capital
Head Office:
1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, Ont. M3B 3K4

Dry Bones

THERE ARE TWO KINDS OF "TARGETED KILLINGS"
ONE IS WHEN THEY KILL INNOCENT CIVILIANS IN ISRAEL.
THE OTHER IS WHEN WE "TARGET" THE KILLERS.
GUESS WHICH UPSETS THE "UNITED NATIONS"!
SIGH

Editorial Advisory Board: Irving Abella, Michael Brown, Sandra Brown, Donald Carr, Paul Cooper, Rabbi Elyse Goldstein, Zac Kaye, Igor Korenzvit, Lou Ronson, Jacques Sayegh, Mike Shriqui, Ron Somogyi, Pamela Medjuck Stein, Rabbi Reuven Tradburks

Layton fails test

Last week, on Sept. 29, a group of some 27 members of the federal NDP posted an open letter to party leader Jack Layton on the Al-Jazeera Information Center, a U.S.-based website. The letter-writers complained of the party's apparent "sudden lurch towards Israel." They cited a number of signs that suggested the party's "sudden lurch."

In particular, they pointed to the fact "that the NDP caucus had sent two MPs as guests of the Canada Israel Committee [CIC] to visit Israel as part of a parliamentary delegation, without any consultation with any of the undersigned, despite the fact that some of us are associated with the party's international affairs committee."

But the blame for this apparent "sudden lurch toward Israel" they cast upon the Jews. "We are now worried that the recent tilt in the NDP towards Israel… has come about as a result of lobbying and undue influence by the CJC [Canadian Jewish Congress] and its partners within the NDP." Implying that there was something terribly wrong with any lobbying on the part of the CJC, they demanded that their leader say who in their party was speaking to the CJC. "We have a right to know who in the NDP is liaising with the CJC." Finally, in a classic reference to the old, reliable canard of Jewish domination, the disgruntled 27 also demanded "an assurance that the foreign policy of the NDP will be formulated democratically by the membership of the party and not controlled by external lobbyists."

The following day, the federal NDP leader responded. He posted his response to Arif Raza and the 26 Other Canadians' Open Letter on the Al-Jazeera Information Center website. He assured the letter-writers that "the position of the NDP on the Middle East has not changed." He also suggested that he was displeased with the tour of Israel by the two MPs and that he would consider conferring some sort of possible veto for the letter-writers for any such future visits to Israel by federal NDP caucus members. "It is also factually inaccurate to characterize the trip as one in which the caucus 'sent' MPs to Israel. On this occasion, the two NDP MPs accepted this trip and, because the House was not in session, the NDP Whip's Office was not notified… Your suggestion that there should be consultative processes prior to trips by MPs is a useful one and I will certainly raise this with caucus members."

Setting aside the differences we have with Layton's substantive policy concerning Israel's security fence, there is a great deal to lament in his inadequate response to the calumny-ridden letter by those 27 co-party members. For example, he posted it on a website that is rife with anti-Israel incitement and he seems to have conferred a quasi-veto in favour of the group represented by the letter-writers limiting the freedom of federal caucus members to participate in CIC-sponsored visits to Israel.

But the most egregious deficiency in his response was the one identified by CJC president Ed Morgan. Layton utterly ignored and failed to squelch the scurrilous allegation that the NDP is "controlled by external lobbyists." Jack Layton was put to a test of backbone. He failed.

Muriel Gold's memoir

There are scenes in Muriel Gold's memoir of her parents, Tell Me Why Nights are Lonesome (reviewed by CJN Sept. 15), that call out to be dramatized. The letters of Bernard and Dora's restrained courtship move from a gentle, poetic silence to the excitement of travelling west across Canada on The Grand Trunk Railway. When Dora applies for a secretarial position with the same company in Montreal, we can visualize the moment of tension when she must explain the need for time off for the Jewish holidays. You will be heartened by the supervisor's response.

We've all heard and read of the Divine Sarah (Bernhardt), but Dora's exhilaration after coming home from the theatre made me feel as though I'd also been at the performance. And how would today's students like to debate with Dora that "reading is more beneficial than travelling"?

Gold's splendid narrative merges the tender moments of her parents' courtship with the historical background of immigration, suffragettes, education and Canadian Jewish family life in the early 1900s.

Marcia Weintraub
Montreal

* * *

How to understand history

I never used to understand why it took so long for the United States to enter World War II. People knew very early about an impending genocide, the forced subversion of citizenry to the ideals of one madman and the obvious intent to attack the western world. However, now I get it.

I get it when the torture of a handful of prisoners of war at Abu Ghraib is the mainstay of the news. I get it when this receives immensely more press than the million citizens murdered by Saddam, or the habitat of a rare and beautiful people in Iraq known as the Marsh Arabs destroyed and turned into a military base by the Iraqi government. I get it when Jenin is a massacre and we have to prove that our avowed enemies did or did not have weapons of mass destruction – even if they threatened they had! Most of all, I get when people seem doomed to repeat the lessons of history.

Jonathan Mansoor
Toronto

* * *

Slams Charbonneau appointment

It was recently announced that former Liberal MP Yvon Charbonneau has been appointed as Canada's ambassador to UNESCO. Charbonneau has been an outspoken critic of Israel and once led an unsuccessful campaign to place posters alleging that Israel had genocidal policies towards the Palestinian people, in Quebec public schools. He is also reported to have made anti-Jewish remarks in the past. It is difficult to understand how Prime Minister Paul Martin would appoint an individual with a clear anti-Israel agenda to such an important position as ambassador to UNESCO.

To appoint a person like Charbonneau as an ambassador is not only an affront to Canadian Jews but possibly an indication of a less than an evenhanded approach to the issues involving Israel and the Palestinians.

Bert Raphael, Chair
Canadian Lawyers and Jurists for World Jewry
Toronto

* * *

CIJA can do better on campus

This letter is in reference to the retrospective titled "CIJA officials look back on first year" (CJN, Aug. 26).

As much as we praise the progress of the Canadian Council for Israel and Jewish Affairs (CIJA) in appointing campus advocacy staff, effective strategy in volatile campus environments requires that we consider ground-level demographic conditions, likely reactions and the unintended consequences of our past actions, in order to improve our future performance.

Contrary to your report, unlike recent student government elections at Concordia University in Montreal and campuses in British Columbia, which elected moderate Jewish-led coalitions without incident, the elections at York continue to present some negative effects for the minority of undergraduates at Hillel as well as the majority of Jews at York University (including graduate students and faculty) who are not affiliated with Hillel or the Progress Not Politics (PNP) student government.

By fall 2003, the pariah status of Jews at York (unlike other campuses) was confirmed by Hillel's inability to attract any secular group to co-sponsor Irshad Manji's appearance. As well, the later appearance of speakers James Woolsey of the CIA and the FBI's Dale Watson, despite their moderate message, alienated Jews and non-Jews on the left and only confirmed for leftist militants the complicity of Jewish institutional representatives with organizations seen as repressive, anti-democratic and corrupt.

Controversies around student elections for PNP and protests at Vari Hall led to unnecessary and negative scrutiny of Jews at large in the campus, alternative and national press. Because student elections will occur again this fall, it will remain to be seen what the long-term effects will be for Jewish students and faculty at York.

Awareness of ground-level intelligence and realistic strategic anticipation of negative reactions rather than self-congratulatory institutional modelling are required to ensure that future interventions on campus are undertaken with due regard to the well-being and empowerment of all students and faculty.

In the interests of all students and the future viability of young Jewish professionals and our Jewish community at large, one hopes that future Jewish political interventions on campus will be undertaken with more awareness of the demographic context and divisions between campus groups, and thought given to the likely outcomes.

Joanne Cohen
Toronto

LET OUR PEOPLE GO…

MIAs: Ron Arad, Zachary Baumel, Tzvi Feldman and Yehuda Katz.

The Canadian Jewish News reserves the right to refuse advertising that in its opinion is misleading, in poor taste or incompatible with the advertising policies of the newspaper. Acceptance of advertisng does not imply endorsement by The Canadian Jewish News. The CJN makes no representation as to the kashruth of food products in advertisements.

Letters are welcome if they are brief, in English or French, typewritten with lines double spaced, and of interest to our reading public. Readers are cautioned not to make sweeping claims against persons or institutions which they cannot verify, as libel laws are very stringent. We reserve the right to edit and condense letters, which must bear the sender's address, phone number and both handwritten and typed signatures. Letters sent by e-mail must also include the sender's municipal address.

Would Israel strike Iran?

By LESLIE SUSSER

After months of high-profile lobbying against Iran's nuclear program, Israeli officials are confident that the international community will impose sanctions on Tehran if it fails to meet a Nov. 25 deadline to halt its nuclear weapons program.

They base their optimism on a series of meetings with American and European officials, mainly during the recent UN General Assembly session in New York. They say they detect a major shift in the European position, which could lead to the Europeans joining a U.S.-led move on sanctions at the UN Security Council.

If the sanctions fail, Israeli analysts believe the United States has the capacity to stop Iran going nuclear by military means. They are also not ruling out a strike by Israel, if the Iranians go past the point of no return in nuclear bomb manufacturing and the international community fails to take effective action.

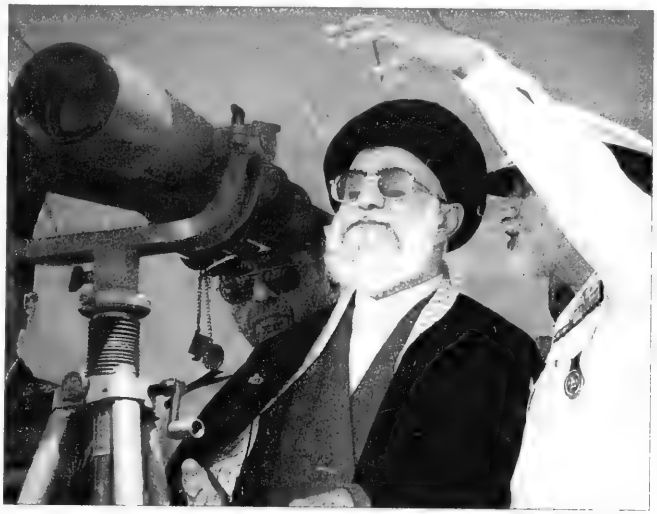
Israeli officials, however, make it clear that Israel sees Iran's nuclear program as a global rather than an Israeli problem, and would much prefer to see the international community dealing with it.

The hardening of the European line came after the Iranians rejected a mid-September demand from the International Atomic Energy Agency not to produce the enriched uranium from which nuclear bombs are made.

The defiant Iranian response was to announce that it had begun converting large amounts of raw uranium and that it had test-fired a new version of the Shihab-3 missile, capable of reaching Israel and most European capitals.

A few days later, at the UN General Assembly session in New York, Israeli Foreign Minister Silvan Shalom said he was encouraged by the new European stance.

The time, he said, was ripe "to move the Iranian case to the Security Council in order to put an end to this nightmare."



Iran's Grand Ayatollah Ali Khameini attends a briefing with his military advisors. Khameini and President Mohammed Khattami, below, who rule Iran, have told the UN Iran will not abandon its uranium enrichment program. [RNS/Reuters photo]

"The British, the Germans and to some degree the French now realize that their approach, holding various kinds of dialogue with Iran, has failed," he said.

Nor does he expect Russia or China to oppose a move for UN sanctions against Iran. "Russia, given its troubles in Chechnya, will find it difficult to condone a nuclear buildup in terror-supporting Iran," he said.

"And China won't want to be the only permanent member of the Security Council to allow Iran to develop nuclear weapons."

> 'Holding various kinds of dialogue with Iran, has failed'

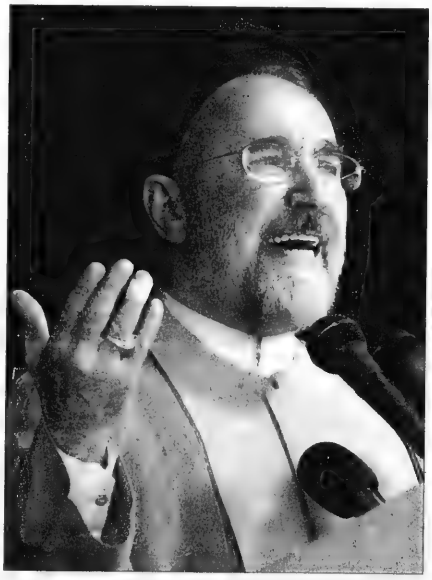
Steinberg estimates that the Iranians are at least six months and perhaps some years away from producing a bomb, so that there is time to test whether a sanctions strategy works.

If it doesn't, the next step could be an American-led military strike. Spelling out U.S. policy in late September, President George W. Bush said he would prefer to use diplomacy, including sanctions, to stop the Iranian nuclear drive, but, if necessary, he would not shy away from the use of force.

A leak in Newsweek magazine stating that American contingency plans to hit Iran were being updated seemed to underline the president's message.

Both the president's tough talk and the Newsweek leak seemed calculated at the very least to put more pressure on Iran ahead of the November deadline, by presenting a credible U.S. military threat.

Although Iranian nuclear facilities are spread out across the country, and in some cases protected by thick concrete bunkers, Steinberg believes that if sanctions don't work and the Iranians get close to producing a bomb, the Americans would be capable of destroying Iran's entire nuclear program.



"The U.S. certainly has the military capability to destroy the key facilities of the Iranian program," he said. "Iran could always reconstitute its capabilities, but it would take years. Two decades after the Israeli strike against the Iraqi nuclear reactor at Osirak in 1981, the Iraqis were still not as close to producing a weapon as they had been then."

As for the possibility of Israel attacking Iran's nuclear facilities if sanctions fail and the international community does not take military action, Steinberg said he does not rule it out, "nor does anyone in the Israeli establishment."

But he said the imminent supply of 500 one-ton "bunker buster" bombs to Israel from the United States should not be seen as directly connected to any operational policy vis-a-vis Iran, "although it does enhance the credibility of the Israeli threat to Iran's nuclear program."

Senior Israeli officials warn that the international community should not count on Israel to remove the Iranian nuclear threat. Israeli policy, they say, has been geared to convincing the international community that Iran's nuclear program is an international and not an Israeli problem, and that it should be dealt with by the international community, not by Israel.

"The world should not wait for us to do its 'dirty work,'" by taking out the Iranian nuclear threat, Yoav Biran, the outgoing director general of the Israeli Foreign Ministry, warned in a recent interview in the mass circulation Yediot Achronot daily.

"No one in the world has any doubts about Iran's intentions, which remain to achieve full military nuclear capability with long-range missiles," he said, alluding to the goal of delivering nuclear warheads.

"It's not solely an Israeli problem. First and foremost, it's a problem for the stability of the Middle East and the whole international order. Only persistent international pressure, which must include Europe, the United States and others, will prevent Iran from achieving its goal," he declared.

Now, after years in which the Americans pressed for a hard line and the Europeans for "constructive dialogue" with Iran, the international community seems to be ready to take the kind of concerted action Biran had in mind.

But whether sanctions or the threat of sanctions will be enough to convince the Iranians to drop their nuclear ambitions remains an open question.

And, despite Bush's tough talk and the new optimism in Israel, there is an even bigger question: If sanctions fail, will the international community really take military action, or wait for Israel, armed with long-range bombers and "bunker busting" bombs, to do so – and risk the consequences?

Leslie Susser writes for The Jewish Telegraphic Agency and is the diplomatic correspondent of The Jerusalem Report.

Opinions

Carrying your own weight

It was a heartbreaking trip. A pair of bus bombings in Be'er Sheva had killed 16 and wounded 107. I was one of four representatives from Montreal that went to visit our sister city immediately after the bombings.

Rabbi Chaim Steinmetz in Montreal

The horrors were overwhelming. A reporter who was at the scene told me about bodies strewn all over the place, and the awful smell of burnt flesh and blood. Members of ZAKA, volunteers who recover body parts, related the gruesome details involved in gathering 12 large sacks of body fragments for burial.

We went to funerals, shivas and the hospital. What can you say to the woman in the burn unit who just lost a three-year-old son? What words are there for parents sitting shiva for their 23-year-old daughter?

It was an extremely depressing trip. But I did salvage something from it: I learned the Jewish definition of "carrying your own weight."

Teddy Roosevelt, who coined the phrase, used it to describe a philosophy of self-reliance. But for Jews, self-reliance is not enough. To us, "carrying your own weight" means carrying your family, your community and even the world with you.

I learned this insight from Olga, a 15-year-old Russian immigrant who was on the bus with her 12-year-old brother Boris. A ballbearing from a bomb pierced Boris' midsection, and he was bleeding profusely. Olga carried him on her back a quarter-mile to the emergency room. Boris was operated on, and now he's doing well.

Olga understood the Jewish definition of carrying your own weight. It requires taking the less fortunate along with you, and, if necessary, even carrying them on your back.

This story gave me a new perspective on a midrash. It relates that one day Moses was watching his sheep and a young lamb ran away. Moses caught up to the lamb when it stopped at a stream to drink. He said to it: "I'm sorry. Had I known you were thirsty, I would have given you to drink myself. Now, after this long run, you must be tired, so I will bring you back myself." Moses lifted the lamb on his back and carried it back to the herd. God, upon seeing Moses' compassion, said, "He is the one to lead my people."

Now I understand this midrash. It's teaching us that before being called to lead the Jews, Moses had to show that he knew the true definition of "carrying your own weight." If he understood this principle, he could inspire the Jews to transform the world.

Moses taught us well. At 15, Olga already knows the meaning of "carrying your own weight." It means you carry your brother on your back when he needs it, no questions asked.

On Israel, we academics can do more

What's an academic to do? Much of the scholarly community has abandoned Israel, feeding the ideological assault against Zionism and the Jewish people. What's a humanist to do? Sophisticated scholars rationalize suicide bombing and overlook Islamic sexism, racism, homophobia and tyranny to demonize the two democracies that have tackled terrorism most effectively: the United States and Israel. What's a rationalist to do? Most academics consider Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon and U.S. President George W. Bush evil – and anyone who disagrees to be a right-wing lunatic (academic-speak for evil and stupid).

Gil Troy in Montreal

Evidence is irrelevant, alternative viewpoints unwelcome. What's a free-speech advocate to do? Pro-Israel advocates are shouted down, and even left-wing Israelis such as former prime minister Ehud Barak are banished from central venues on some campuses because universities can't guarantee their safety, creating a violence-veto that rewards hooliganism and penalizes peaceniks.

Unfortunately, most academics have done nothing. Humanists ignore the contradictions of the age of terrorism. Rationalists parrot the conventional wisdom. Free-speech advocates allow for an Israel exception, singling out Israeli speakers as radioactive.

Most academics are passive because they can be. While many outrages have occurred on campus, and while a toxic culture has developed around Israel and terror-related issues, North American campuses remain overwhelmingly peaceful and apolitical. Even activist Zionists can maintain their routines.

University life has changed. Especially in cities, academics have become commuters, coming to campus to teach but bypassing the sherry-sipping and tête-a-têtes of yesteryear. Moreover, the political correctness epidemic has inhibited scholarly exchange. Too many academics speak only to people they agree with. I have one colleague, an exuberant Southerner, who often hugs me at conferences, proclaiming: "Gil Troy is my friend. I disagree with him all the time. But I respect his work and I love him." Alas, she is exceptional. Such openness is rare on both the left and the right – indeed, in all outposts in academia's myriad methodological and curricular skirmishes.

Professors should learn from students. Pro-Israel students have learned to be strategic, proactive, positive, educational and fluent in campus argot. Being strategic means choosing your battles and clarifying your goals. In Australia, an overreaction to Palestinian legislator Hanan Ashrawi's peace award created a backlash and made her a martyr, while in North America, more disciplined attacks when the leader of the UN's failed World Anti-Racism Conference in Durban, South Africa, Mary Robinson, received various honorary doctorates forced her to condemn the infamous gathering's anti-Semitism.

Being proactive entails advancing a vision of Israel as a modern, liberal democracy, a place to be celebrated, not simply defended. Being positive involves programs such as Birthright Israel, which embraces Israel beyond advocacy – and for faculty, could involve championing the new Jewish Agency initiative encouraging serious, long-term study in Israel. Being educational means appreciating the importance of reading and learning about Israel and Zionism, not just rallying. Being fluent in campus argot means speaking to academics in their language – hammering home the anomalies of intellectual support for terror, of feminist and gay support for an oppressive patriarchy, of secularist support for bloodthirsty fundamentalists – while building coalitions with free-speech advocates who object to banning speakers and forging links with other groups, as Montreal Hillel did in the effort to have radical student leaders at Concordia University voted out of office.

Professors, like students, need to understand that the problem of intellectual anti-Zionism can't be solved overnight. The more realistic goal is to plant the intellectual seeds that will lead open-minded thinkers to more reasonable conclusions when they are ready. After 9/11, many Americans became more sympathetic than ever to Israel's positions, once the ugliness of terrorism was pounded home. Similarly, this summer, leading liberal newspapers finally realized that Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat is corrupt and should retire immediately. Those editorial boards may now be more open to the ideas of Israel's supporters.

Professors, like students, must also learn that by celebrating Israel and becoming activists, we can fight the stereotypes and stop experiencing Israel solely as the Jewish people's central headache.

By fighting terror, fanaticism and irrational violence, we can use the gifts of academic freedom, independent inquiry and intellectual integrity to empower us and remind us about the important roles that educators can play in the public sphere.

Let's declare a moratorium on Shoah analogies

It's a crass question – at best naive, at worst insidious. When posed in a classroom, it might mean, "Who has the right to speak authoritatively about the Holocaust?" Or, "Do children and grandchildren of survivors have a deeper understanding than their peers?" Or, from a non-Jewish student, "Do my thoughts and feelings count as much as those of a Jewish student?"

Sara R. Horowitz in Toronto

When posed in a public venue or at an academic forum, it is likely to mean, "Who gets to determine what comprise the 'lessons' of the Holocaust?" Or, "Aren't other people's genocides as important as the murder of the Jews?" Or, "Who's to say that abortion, animal testing, wearing fur aren't also holocausts?" Or, "Jews should stop telling us not to compare [fill in the blank] to the Holocaust."

Frankly, I don't much care for the question. I have sometimes found it useful to scrutinize and unravel it in class. But at heart, I find it discordant to bring the words "own" and "Holocaust" together. Its victims often lost everything they owned – their rights, their homes, their communities, their families, their belongings, their names and, for so many, their lives. A machine to run time backwards and undo history – that would be worth owning. But who would want to "own" the Holocaust?

Yet, many people wish to "own" the Holocaust. Underlying "ownership" is the right to interpret the Holocaust, to say what it means – not so much then as today. "Owning" the Holocaust, in other words, is possessing the right to apply knowledge of the past to our own time.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not opposed to learning from the past, from historical and collective memory. It's just that I think we should actually learn about the past before learning from it, particularly when it comes to the Shoah. And, at the very least, we should be accountable for the aptness of our analogies, for the putative correspondences posed between past and present.

Take the facile comparisons of Israeli troops to Nazi stormtroopers, or Palestinian refugee camps to Nazi concentration camps. A level-headed look at the historical record – at survivor memoirs, at ghetto diaries – would explode those comparisons. Wherever one stands on the political spectrum, surely one can articulate a view without resorting to such charged, and ultimately falsifying, terminology.

Take Nadia Matar's recent letter to Yonatan Bassi about a draft of his letter on behalf of the government of Israel to the Jews living in the Gaza Strip. Bassi, the head of the disengagement administration, asked for their co-operation and offered monetary compensation for the displacement and loss of home and land. Matar, the co-president of the right-wing Women for Israel's Tomorrow (Women in Green), compared Bassi's letter to the notice issued by the Berlin Judenrat in 1942 asking for the Jewish community's compliance in evacuating Berlin. The Jews of Berlin had nowhere to go that was not controlled by the Nazis. The Jews of Gush Katif have a country of their own. Like the Palestinian comparison of the Israel Defence Forces to Nazis, the explosive language of Matar's letter discredits her argument.

What authorizes people to make such forced, flawed and false analogies? Palestinians might say that their present suffering authorizes them. Ruth Matar, Nadia's mother-in-law and co-president, goes further. "Nadia and I are both, in a sense, Holocaust survivors," she said, taking umbrage at the criticism of her daughter-in-law's bending of history. No, they weren't there, and Nadia is far too young to be a survivor. But they claim for themselves an ownership of that past. When the rhetoric of anti-Zionists and the Women in Green converge, perhaps we should take hope rather than despair. With a shared language such as this, who knows what unimagined lines of communication might develop.

More than half a century ago, the Hebrew writer Hayyim Hazaz created a prescient but enigmatic character who declared, "I am opposed to Jewish history." I'm not opposed to history per se, but I'd like to declare a moratorium on Holocaust analogies.

Let the burden of reasoned argument fall on all points of the political spectrum. And let the victims of the Shoah be remembered and mourned. Let them be recollected, in the words of the writer Jorges Semprun, with a "pure fraternal look."

Film fest offered Modigliani, Shylock and Hitler

This year's edition of the Toronto International Film Festival cast light on, among others, the Italian Jewish artist Amedeo Modigliani, the Shakespearean character Shylock, the Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler and the African-American heavyweight boxing champion Jack Johnson.

Sheldon Kirshner in Toronto

Mick Davis' biopic, Modigliani, is set in Paris in 1919 and 1920 and zeroes in on the last year of the painter's notoriously dissolute life. Modi, as he was known, was a drug addict, an alcoholic and a womanizer who cared little for conventional norms. As portrayed by the smouldering American actor Andy Garcia, Modigliani is a dishevelled mess, a chain smoker and a serial drinker given to temper tantrums and never far removed from the ravages of poverty.

The 128-minute film turns on four broad themes: his loving but faithless relationship with Jeanne Hebuterne (Elsa Zylberstein), a Catholic whose outspoken anti-Semitic father vehemently opposed their liaison; his artistic rivalry with the effortlessly brilliant Pablo Picasso (Omid Djalili); his feverish preparations to win a prestigious art competition; and his contacts with such avant-garde Parisian contemporaries as Gertrude Stein, August Renoir, Maurice Utrillo and Chaim Soutine.

Soon be released in theatres across North America, Modigliani is competently crafted and reasonably well-acted. But there are yawning gaps. It's too self-indulgent, and its overwrought emotions are overpowering. As well, the dialogue can be stereotypical. "Let me paint you," says Picasso, trying to convince a reluctant Hebuterne to be his model. "I will make you immortal." And Davis' conceit of using the young Modigliani as the older Modigliani's alter-ego is rather clunky.

Regrettably, the movie pays too little attention to Modigliani's role as an exemplar of modernism and his mastery of the female nude. There are inevitable references to his path-breaking technique – "The future of art is in a woman's face," Modigliani declares early on. But in general, Davis glosses over Modigliani's development as a painter.

His Jewish background is also given short shrift, and when it does come up, it is depicted in negative hues. Speaking of his daughter's new baby, Hebuterne's insufferable father rants and raves about "that bastard Jew child." And in a flashback in which Modigliani's father declares bankruptcy, the bailiff says, "I thought you Jews were never poor."

There are several fine scenes that brighten up the film, including one in which Modigliani finds inspiration in Hebuterne's glittering eyes. But these moments are all too rare in a film whose priorities are occasionally misplaced.

* * *

Michael Radford's The Merchant of Venice, improbably starring Al Pacino as the defamed Jewish moneylender Shylock, is compelling cinema. Normally, Shakespeare's play is problematic because of its undercurrent of anti-Semitism. But in Radford's capable hands, The Merchant of Venice is a great human tragedy reflecting the animosities of the 16th century.

Ninety minutes in length, this nuanced, sumptuous film leaves nothing to chance, starting with a brief lesson in Christian-Jewish relations in the mercantile city state of Venice. Though liberal in spirit, Venice was typically intolerant of Jews, confining them to a ghetto and forcing Jewish males to wear red hats. No sooner are these basic facts conveyed than a Jew is summarily tossed off a bridge in an act of anti-Semitic violence, and Antonio, a merchant, spits in Shylock's face.

Shylock, neither in the original play, nor in this movie, is particularly sympathetic. Embittered by his lowly place in society, he is prickly, even arrogant. "The villainy you teach me, I shall execute," he says spitefully.

Radford, the director and scriptwriter, sticks closely to the plot. Cash-strapped Antonio (Jeremy Irons) decides to lend his friend Bassanio (Joseph Fiennes) 3,000 ducats so that he can strike out on his own as a businessman and and marry his beloved Portia (Lynn Collins). Antonio agrees to forfeit a pound of his flesh to Shylock should he be unable to repay the loan. Meanwhile, much to Shylock's distress, his daughter, Jessica, expresses a willingness to convert to Christianity in order to marry her Catholic consort, Lorenzo. Radford skillfully brings these passions and prejudices to the screen, and Pacino and Irons shine in their respective roles. Looking irrepressibly talmudic, Pacino laments the anti-Jewish hatred that consumes his fellow Venetians. "If you prick us, do we not bleed?" he asks in a poignant soliloquy. Pacino, who usually plays world-weary figures of the modern age, is a revelation here, a man foolishly grasping for revenge in a game he cannot win.

Although Radford is basically faithful to Shakespeare's classic prose, he simplifies and streamlines it here and there, thereby making The Merchant of Venice eminently accessible. This, perhaps, is Radford's greatest achievement.

* * *

Oliver Hirschbiegel's Downfall, a tense and riveting chronicle of Hitler's final days in a Berlin bunker, is a first-class film with a stellar cast. It is based on the reminiscences of Traudl Junge, a young, impressionable, apolitical woman who was Hitler's personal secretary, and on the rigorous account of able German historian Joachim Fest.

Andy Garcia in Modigliani

Downfall, which runs for about 2½ hours, begins with a short apologetic statement from Junge, who died last year. It then shifts to Hitler's headquarters in East Prussia in 1942, and finally focuses on his claustrophobic bunker in the penultimate hours of the war.

Hitler, played uncannily by Swiss actor Bruno Ganz, is convinced that Germany will prevail, even as the Red Army closes in on his dank, dim lair. So confident is he of victory that he refuses sound advice to evacuate Berlin and thus avoid unnecessary civilian losses. Inhabiting a self-contained universe, and totally self-absorbed in his paranoid fantasies as he rails against traitors and cautious generals, Hitler could not care less whether the German people suffer and perish in the apocalyptic inferno. Outside, in the bombed streets of the shattered capital, shells explode, soldiers die and desperate officials burn important documents.

Hirschbiegel tries to portray Hitler as a man rather than as a beast. He greets his secretaries like a benevolent uncle. He kisses his dog, Blondie. He kindly tolerates the dictation mistakes of a secretary. He displays warmth toward those he loves and likes. But Hitler, his palsied hand shaking uncontrollably and his body stooped, lashes out demonically at real and imagined enemies, especially the Jews, and dismisses compassion as a "primal sin."

Hitler being Hitler, he blames Germany's looming defeat on "international Jewry and its supporters" and confesses that his greatest feat was in cleansing Germany of "Jewish poison."

Apart from Hitler, the most chilling person in the bunker is Magda Goebbels, the wife of the fanatical propaganda minister. Having concluded that life will simply not be worth living in the post-Hitler era, she methodically poisons her children and then submits to being executed by her distraught, bug-eyed husband. Eva Braun, Hitler's fiancé and wife, is never less than cheerful and solicitous in this dark, eerie and tumultuous film.

* * *

Our Own, a Russian film directed by Dmitry Meskhiev, unfolds in the opening months of Germany's 1941 invasion of the Soviet Union, when panic struck the Red Army as the Wehrmacht rolled up a succession of victories. Three Russian soldiers flee a Soviet garrison overrun by German tanks, but are soon captured and interned in a prisoner-of-war camp. When a POW threatens to turn in Lifshits, a Jew, he is killed by Tolya, a decent-minded Soviet officer. Tolya, Lifshits and Mitya – a sniper – escape, and find refuge in Mitya's father's barn. But can they survive? The farmer is a collaborator, as are some of the villagers in their midst. Our Own traces the tension inherent in their plight.

* * *

In Whisky – a wry Spanish-language comedy from Uruguay and Argentina by Juan Pablo Rebella and Pablo Stoll – Jacobo Koller, a solemn Jewish factory owner and confirmed bachelor, finds himself in an uncomfortable situation when his sociably adept brother from Brazil suddenly descends on Buenos Aires for a visit and when his loyal worker, Marta, develops a crush on him. As Follows, a Uruguayan short, is about a bar mitzvah boy whose father presents him with a very unusual gift.

* * *

Ken Burns' excellent documentary, Unforgivable Blackness: The Rise and Fall of Jack Johnson, due to be broadcast by PBS in January, revolves around the first black heavyweight champion, who held the title from 1908 to 1915. This is about an intelligent, determined, high-spirited athlete who would not allow bigoted whites to define him in an era of Jim Crow racism.

Max Rebboh
General Manager

When we say, "We'll make your dream a reality", we really mean it. We'll make you happy and get you on the road in the Land Rover of your choice.

Visit our ultra-accessible new showoom today and discover the Coventry North difference.

COVENTRY NORTH JAGUAR LAND ROVER
123 Autopark Circle, Woodbridge, ON
Tel: (905) 265-8677
www.coventrynorth.com

Not Remodeled.
Not Revised.
Not Reassembled.
Not Reconfigured.
Not Redone.
Not Retrofitted.
Not Reinstalled.
Not Refreshed.

LAND ROVER

All New.
Land Rover LR3
Coming Fall 2004.

INSPIRATION

ENJOY LIFE in the forest

A ONCE IN A LIFETIME OPPORTUNITY TO LIVE IN A SECLUDED

WOODED COMMUNITY OFF BATHURST

IN RICHMOND HILL'S SPECTACULAR INSPIRATION COMMUNITY

WOODSIDE VILLAS
ON EXTRA DEEP FOREST LOTS

FROM $349,990

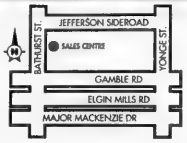
FREEHOLD TOWNHOMES
ATTACHED ONLY BY DOUBLE CAR GARAGE

INCLUDING
• 9' CEILINGS • HARDWOOD FLOORING • GRANITE COUNTER TOPS
& MUCH MORE
BROKERS PROTECTED

Rendering is artist's concept. Prices are correct at press time E. & O.E.

Sales Centre Hours
MON.-THURS.: 1 P.M. - 8 P.M.
FRIDAYS: 12 P.M. - 5 P.M.
SAT., SUN. & HOLIDAYS: 11 A.M. - 6 P.M.
905-884-8323
tributecommunities.com

Tribute communities
A Better Place to Live



Community 'generosity' helps reduce problem

Continued from page 3

"If they come across someone who identifies as a Jew, they get in touch with him and he goes into action. If they're literally without a home, he gets a roof over their heads, and makes sure they have food. If they're on the verge of eviction, he provides rent.

"All this can happen very quickly in terms of accessing services. Our financial assistance program is based on making sure people have enough for the necessities of life."

Kalkstein concedes that there are some Jewish people who are "homeless with a capital H."

Looking out his office window to the corner of Spadina Avenue and Bloor Street, he says that he can often see a homeless woman in her mid-50s.

"This woman prefers to be homeless. She has extended family, but she will not accept help. We can't assist everyone; some people are just not interested. Casework and counselling is available, but there are some people we just can't help. We try to keep our eye out, however, and attempt to make things a little more comfortable for them."

Recently, he says, he helped a man who had just gotten out of jail and had no address.

"We provided him with a place to live for a few days. I would like to say we can reform him, but it's more like a maintenance thing. This is a man in his 50s who has been in jail for petty things for half his life."

When someone comes to the agency for help, he says, they establish their situation and try to develop a short-term plan.

"We'll speak to their landlord, and assuming its doable, we'll pay the arrears on their rent. We don't have an infinite pocket, but in the meantime we'll provide them with assistance to put some food on the table."

He says that it is due to the funding the agency receives from UJA Federation that there are so few homeless Jews in the city. "If homelessness is less of a problem in the Jewish community, it is because of community generosity."

The agency will provide counselling for non-Jewish clients, he says, but only Jewish clients receive financial assistance.

JF&CS also offers a number of social programs, he says. Every Wednesday morning he gives up his office to the breakfast club, whose eight members meet for bagels and cream cheese.

"This is our longest standing program, and now there is one modelled after it in our northern office. Most members are former psychiatric patients, who often live alone in subsidized housing.

> 'We pride ourselves on covering all aspects of the life cycle'

"Typically, they are not connected to the Jewish community, except for this club."

Among its members, says Kalkstein, one is a former engineer who now lives on a disability pension, and another is a Holocaust survivor on a disability pension.

"These people are somewhat isolated; this gives them a chance to interact with friends – they often talk about politics and literature – and get a free breakfast."

The group is largely men, he says, but anyone is welcome to join.

Another club, the Chai group, meets once a month and is facilitated by its members. "They plan their own programs, and they sometimes talk about social advocacy. The idea is for them to get together and plan what they would like to do. It curbs any feelings of isolation members may have."

Teenagers in the area have access to the homework club, says Kalkstein.

"Some live on their own, and this gives them a place to do their work and get dinner twice a week. A few kids have told me that we inspired them to continue their high school studies at summer school so they would not lose their school year."

It is important to remember, he says, that misfortune can occur to anyone at any time.

"We pride ourselves on covering all aspects of the life cycle."

Ron Levin, JF&CS executive director, calls JF&CS a wrap-around agency. "We don't only hand out money. Our services include a comprehensive assessment.

"If clients are capable of changing their situation, we will work with Jewish Vocational Service to help them obtain counselling or job training. We send kids to camp, we run Just a Second Shop, we arrange for holiday food baskets, and we help clients get dental care."

Poverty is part of a constellation of needs, he says, and this causes stress in the family. "Sometimes this means abuse or marital strain, and sometimes there are psychiatric issues.

"We have seen people deal with their crisis situation and move on to become self-sufficient."

The agency's central intake system is unique, says Levine. "Someone can make a call, and they will be dealt with by an intake worker. We also have a school social work system, so we can deal with students in that arena as well."

People may feel desperate, says Levin, but there is a response. "There is help out there."

Shmuel Zahavy Cheder Chabad

16th Annual Dinner & Draw

Honouring Alfred Kwinter

Monday, October 18, 2004
Cheshvan 3, 5765
at Le Parc
8432 Leslie Street, Thornhill, Ontario

For further information, please call 416-663-1972.

JNF Blue Box! AMNESTY!
Do You Have a JNF Blue Box?

Thousands of JNF Blue Boxes are out there. Please...we want them back! We forgive you for not returning them yet!

Now, more than ever, you can help in the important work of the JNF - building a strong and beautiful Israel for all of its people...and receive a charitable tax receipt!

Call Debbie at the JNF office 416-638-7200 ext. 22 and we will pick up your Blue Box and replace it! Or, bring it in to our office. It's your move.

And, if you haven't yet got a Blue Box, call us, and we'll be happy to send you one.

October -"Blue Box Amnesty Month"
We are waiting for your call!

The tradition continues...

Tel: Debbie 416-638-7200 ext 22 • Fax: 416-638-7345

Jewish National Fund of Toronto
1000 Finch Avenue West, # 700, Toronto, Ontario M3J 2V5

'People at this agency care about me'

Continued from page 3

"They set me up with a case worker who arranged for me to get on the Ontario Disability Support Plan. I have also received counselling, and they've tried to help me arrange visits with my daughter.

"People at this agency care about me. All the workers know me, and when I come in I am surrounded by friends."

Sam attends the Bagel Club regularly, and he might become chair of the Chai group this year, he says.

"I want to motivate other members to become active. It gives clients a voice, and it gets them out of the house. I've also made some friends. We support each other emotionally and we have people we can rely on.

"It makes me feel as if I am giving something back to the agency. I have been able to help clients with their computer problems, and that made me feel good about myself. Without the agency, I surely would have committed suicide."

Mark, 45, a father of three who has university degrees in business and design, is bipolar.

He first came to JF&CS about three years ago, when he was trying to deal with his drug addictions. "I saw someone here weekly, and I found everyone here to be caring and compassionate. I could walk in anytime and someone was here for me."

He was off drugs for two years, he says, "and then I crashed. I had no permanent address for eight months. I lived with my girlfriend, on the street and with friends. [Prior to this] I ran a business with more than 1,000 employees. I lost it, and I lost my marriage."

The agency has provided him with financial help, with counselling, and has helped him deal with his children whom he sees regularly.

"When I was homeless, I did not want to face people. I have a support system there, though, that has helped.

"My kids have been hit badly. It took me a long time to look them in the face, but the agency helped me put it together."

He has lived in his current apartment, which he rents with help from JF&CS, for 5 months, the longest he has lived anywhere in more than five years. "Including hospitals and treatment centres, I have lived in 55 places in the past five years."

JF&CS deals with human beings, he says. "They don't judge. I got back my self-respect because I was treated with care.

"My son got arrested, and the first person I called was my case worker. Part of my weekly routine is to come here."

He recently saw a man on Avenue Road, "who had that lost look in his eyes. I knew he was existing for the next meal. That man was me, but I've gotten past that.

"It has taken a lot of therapy and encouragement, and Simon [Kalkstein] always tells me to keep going. He has helped me rebuild trust. I'm one of many people but they have made me feel as if I am the only one."

Sam says that "we're all survivors. We've travelled our own routes and when we reached a point where we had no choice, we asked for help."

APPRECIATION AWARD: Paul Bain, second from right, the outgoing president of the Downtown Jewish Community School, recently received an appreciation award in recognition of his leadership as school president for the past two years. With him, from left, are school principal Joan Schoenfeld, current school co-president Beth Sulman, and current co-president Ted Winick.

AWESOME CONFERENCE
You Are Invited to
JUMP in to it!
Jewish University Multi-track Program
Explore cutting-edge approaches to social action, arts and culture and the environment.
Deepen your understanding of the many issues that effect Israel today.
Meet students from across Canada, and have a fun weekend in downtown Toronto!
Contact your campus Hillel to find out how to become part of this awesome experience, or contact Ravit Kadosh, ravit@hilleltoronto.org
Tel:416-913 2424, REGISTER NOW !
HILLEL OF GREATER TORONTO
hilleltoronto.org
Hillel of Greater Toronto
October 15-17, 2004 The Wolfond Centre for Jewish Campus Life, Toronto
Featuring: Direct from Israel, Neil Lazarus, Director of Awesome Seminars and from New York, Ruth Messinger, President of the American Jewish World Service
Cost: $90 includes 2 nights accommodation, meals, and all conference seminars.

Village Park Retirement Residence
OUR SERVICES INCLUDE
FRIENDSHIP & COMPANIONSHIP
The opportunities for friendship happen every day.
You'll discover a fulfilling lifestyle where you can relax and spend time with old friends, while making new ones. Social outings, special events and favourite pastimes fill your day, and all the work is taken care of by our warm and friendly staff.
Call 416-925-2283
Village Park Retirement Residence
282 St. Clair Avenue West, Toronto, ON CHARTWELL
SENIORS HOUSING REIT
www.chartwellreit.ca

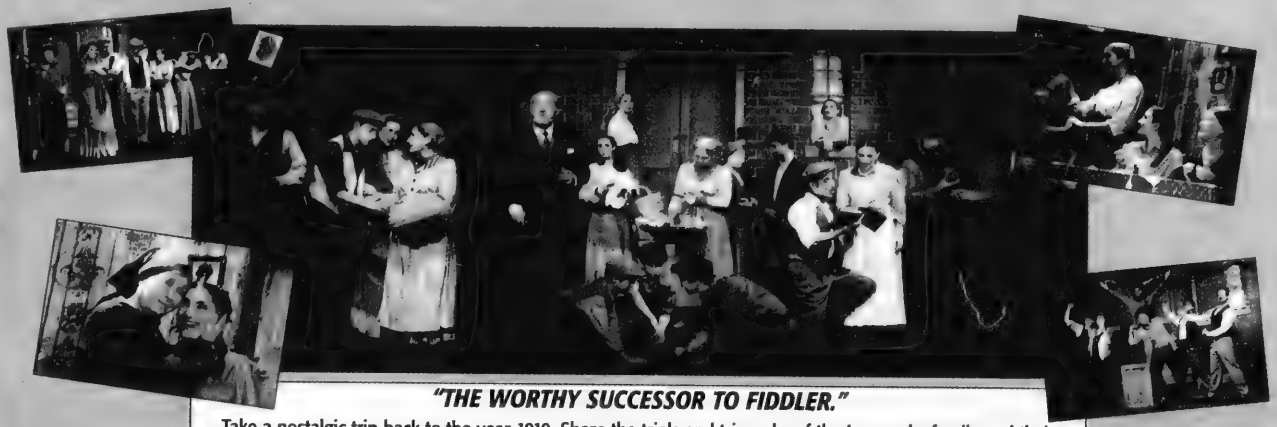
NEW YORK'S "JEWISH SOUL" MUSICAL COMES TO TORONTO!

Your Ancestors live again in...

Jay Kholos'

A Stoop on Orchard Street

DIRECT FROM NEW YORK, FOUR DAYS ONLY!!



"THE WORTHY SUCCESSOR TO FIDDLER."

Take a nostalgic trip back to the year 1910. Share the trials and triumphs of the Lomansky family and their "stoop" friends as they strive to live the American dream in the teeming tenements of the Lower East Side of New York. Don't miss this big musical with 18 original and hummable songs and a cast of 24.

Breaking records everywhere it plays, A Stoop On Orchard Street is the must see musical with "Jewish Soul."

"An extremely enjoyable musical...a glimpse into Jewish immigrant life of New York's Lower East Side...I loved the ending!"
–Dr. Ruth, TV personality, Therapist, Author, Lecturer

"It's a hit!"–New York Times

"...a modern musical with a sentimental longing for the past. What makes this theater experience successful is its heart and Jewish soul."–Thane Rosenbaum, novelist and essayist on Jewish art and culture

"The perfect show that conveys to 2nd, 3rd and 4th generation Jews, the price their grandparents paid to build a life in America!"
–June Walker, National President of Hadassah

"...one of the finest pieces of musical theatre anywhere..."–BEST OF publishers

ZAGAT® rates it EXCELLENT!–Wall Street Journal Survey says "smart story, well-crafted songs...not a dry eye in the house."

"The best musical I've seen On or Off-Broadway in years..."
–Joe Franklin (WOR Radio)

Celebrate 350
Jewish Life in America
1654 - 2004

SHOWS WILL SELL OUT! ORDER TICKETS SOON! DIRECT FROM NEW YORK!

A Stoop on Orchard Street

LEAH POSLUNS THEATRE of the BATHURST JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTRE, 4588 Bathurst Street, Toronto

Mon. 10/25	Tue. 10/26	Wed. 10/27	Thur. 10/28
8pm	2pm & 8pm	2pm & 8pm	2pm & 8pm

For tickets, call 866-527-8667. For group rates (20 or more), call 877-358-7764. Four Days Only! October 25th–28th.

Tickets from 39.95 to 49.95

For more information about this critically acclaimed production visit www.astooponorchardstreet.com

We Create Millionaires

You are: Entrepreneurial, Influential, Resourceful and... have a strong desire to pursue a lifestyle instead of a job.
We are looking for you. We will help you capitalize on the emerging Wellness Boom.
Opening new countries:
Czechoslovakia, Poland, Romania, South Africa & India.
Special program for professionals.
To learn more call 416-760-2002 - 24 hours Ahuva Simone

The Jews For Judaism

COUNTER-MISSIONARY SURVIVAL SEMINAR

Learn How to Answer Missionary Claims!

In six exciting classes studying the Bible, history, psychology and comparative religion, you will gain an understanding of today's aggressive missionary movement and the knowledge to respond confidently to the challenges they pose.

Instructor: Rabbi Michael Skobac

Tuesday Evenings
Oct. 19 - Nov. 23
8:00 pm

Admission: FREE

TOPICS INCLUDE:
- The Virgin Birth
- Sin & Atonement
- The Real Messiah
- Missionary Tactics
- Miracles
- Isaiah 53
- Missionary Proof-Texts

JEWISH CENTRE FOR LEARNING & LIVING
9200 Bathurst, Suite 28
(at Carville Rd-Richmond Hill)

REGISTRATION REQUIRED!
Call: (905) 761-0040
www.jewsforjudaism.org

ISRAEL BONDS CANADA

SUNDAY OPENINGS

For your convenience,
ISRAEL BONDS will be open on the following SUNDAYS:

OCTOBER 17
OCTOBER 24
OCTOBER 31
FROM 10:00 AM UNTIL 2:00 PM

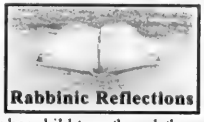
416.789.3351
www.israelbonds.ca

Jewish Life

A celebration of the Torah

By RABBI DANIEL KOMITO GOTTLIEB

I love Simchat Torah. Singing and dancing with the Torah. Passing it around to each member of the congregation. Adults and children rejoicing together. It is a deeply moving and powerfully dramatic moment when we conclude the reading of the Torah and begin again.



It is the custom in our congregation for a parent to read the end of D'varim (Deuteronomy) and his or her child to read Bereshit (Genesis), signifying the continuity of Torah learning and the passing down of Torah and tradition from one generation to the next.

When I talk with my students about the cycle of Torah reading, I ask them why they think we read and reread the Torah year after year, as opposed to just reading it once really, really well and then going on to read a different book next year. The answer, of course, is that the Torah stays the same. It is we who change as we grow from year to year, and so we see the Torah differently each year through a different lens, one that reflects another year of personal growth and life experience.

My colleague, Rabbi Arnold Gluck of Somerville, N.J., teaches that Torah learning is different from other kinds of learning.

"Most learning is intended to shape the mind through the power of ideas. But the purpose of Torah learning is not to convince us intellectually to live a certain way. Rather, like the loving wisdom we receive from our parents, the goal of Torah is to shape the heart and refine our character. Torah speaks to us above all because it is the root and record of our relationship with God. God gave us Torah and mitzvot out of love so that we might grow to reach our full potential. And we, the people Israel, have struggled throughout our history to fulfil the mitzvot as a measure of our love for God."

This view of Torah is reflected in the words that are most crucial to the reading on Simchat Torah – the last word and the first. We read in a midrash that the last word of Deuteronomy, which is Yisrael, and the first word of Genesis, which is Bereshit, are joined by the successive reading of the two portions. In that magical and sacred moment of renewal, the last letter of the Torah, lamed, joins the first letter of the Torah, bet, to spell out the Hebrew word lev, which means heart. Like a wedding ring that has no beginning and no end, the linking of the lamed and the bet that forms the word lev reminds us that the Torah links our hearts to the heart of the universe. The Torah was given to us to incline our hearts toward God and toward one another.

This we remember when we sing and dance with it on Simchat Torah. And that's why I love Simchat Torah.

Rabbi Komito Gottlieb is the rabbi of Temple Kol Ami in Thornhill, Ont.

Guest Voice

We need to think clearly about Islamism

By HENRY SREBRNIK

Award-winning novelist and journalist Mark Helprin, a past recipient of the National Jewish Book Award in the United States, published a powerful article, "Three Years On," in the Wall Street Journal of Sept. 10, marking the third anniversary of the 9/11 attacks in New York and Washington.

"We proceed as if we are fighting disparate criminals united by coincidence," Helprin wrote, "rather than the vanguard of militant Islam, united by ideology, sentiment, doctrine and practice, its partisans drawn from Morocco to the Philippines, Chechnya to the Sudan, a vast swath of the earth that, in regard to the elemental beliefs that fuel jihad, is as homogeneous as Denmark."

In his lengthy and thought-provoking piece in the September 2004 issue of Commentary, titled "World War IV," Norman Podhoretz, Commentary's former and longtime editor, expresses a related message well: "We are up against a truly malignant force in radical Islamism and the states breeding, sheltering or financing its terrorist armory." Podhoretz provides a detailed account of terrorism, particularly in the Middle East, that in fact goes back to the 1970s.

Hardly a day now passes without a suicide bombing, a hostage beheading or the destruction of an airliner, somewhere in the world. I haven't kept count, but the sum total of people who have been killed by terrorists around the world, on and since Sept. 11, 2001, must by now number in the many thousands.

Prior to 9/11, there were, on average, 250 terrorist incidents annually around the globe, which killed a total of 500 people. Since then, that number of dead has been exceeded in just a handful of attacks, and each year these attacks have become more frequent and larger in scale. October will see the second anniversary of the Bali bombing in Indonesia that claimed 202 victims. Next March, it will be a year since 191 died in Madrid. And those are just two of the many incidents of mass murder. The hundreds recently slain in Beslan, Russia, have now been added to the list.

And I have not even mentioned the numerous suicide bombers that have targeted Israel and killed more than 1,000 Israelis since the current intifadah began in September 2000. The number of Israeli fatalities in the current conflict with the Palestinians has now exceeded all but those in the 1948-49 War of Independence and the 1973 Yom Kippur War.

But as we know, there are none so blind as those who would not see, though the evidence literally surrounds them. Such wilful disregard of what stares them in the face, day after day, is an intellectual malady, usually contracted in university courses taught by the politically correct, and it particularly affects those on the left.

They will come up with any convoluted line of reasoning to explain away the worldwide outbreak of Islamist-orchestrated terrorism: American imperialism, Israeli occupation of Palestinian lands (or sometimes even the Jewish state's very existence), globalization, Third World poverty, the greed of oil companies, failed states, western "Orientalism" and racism, reaction to Christian fundamentalism and a host of other "root causes." Everything but the militant religio-fascist creed we have come to call Islamism.

The main purpose of a liberal arts education, it sometimes seems, is to ignore the principle we term Occam's Razor. William of Occam (1284-1347) was an English philosopher whose work on logic and scientific inquiry played a major role in the transition from medieval to modern thought. He based scientific knowledge on experience and self-evident truths, and on logical propositions resulting from those two sources.

Occam stressed that entities must not be multiplied beyond what is necessary. A problem should be stated in its basic and simplest terms and the simplest theory that fits the facts is the one that should be selected.

But for our learned intellectuals, trained in obfuscation and even mendacity, this would constitute being "simplistic," perhaps even "prejudiced," and therefore deemed unacceptable. Many professors pride themselves in the use of obscure language and technical terms that appear to enhance their prestige as "deep thinkers." Much of this is nothing but mystification.

It is of course true that some of the other issues they raise do play a role in fostering terrorism. Those who place the main blame on Islamism are not reductionists who fail to acknowledge other problems, but they at least know who the main culprits are.

Is it a wonder that politicians and writers from George Orwell to Preston Manning have lauded "the common sense of the common people" as opposed to the theoretical pretensions of left-wing academics?

Henry Srebrnik is a professor of political studies at the University of Prince Edward Island, Charlottetown, P.E.I., but insists that, despite his education, he can still think clearly.

Jewish Life

By RACHAEL TURKIENICZ

Planting trees for future generations

As we begin to read the Torah again, we are intrigued with the account of creation and the beginnings of our world. As each day is completed, the complexity of creation grows until we hear of the creation of humanity.

Once the first human being is formed, this person is immediately placed in a perfect garden surrounded by the harmony and lush beauty of the world.

Within the garden are unusual trees. The Tree of Life and the Tree of Knowledge are in the middle of the garden, and Adam is told not to eat from the Tree of Knowledge. Right from the start, there is a distinct relationship set up between the first person and the trees of the world.

Humanity has a very real, physical dependence upon trees. By simply existing, trees provide the oxygen essential to our lives. One could say that we inhale what the trees exhale – they breath life into our world.

Judaism also creates a distinct spiritual metaphor that brings the vision of a tree into our very souls. The Torah is referred to as the Tree of Life to those who hold fast to her. The Torah that guides us and is so central to our beings is symbolized within the image of the tree.

There is a midrash that speaks of our unending relationship with the trees. A sage named Choni Hama'agel was known as the greatest of Torah interpreters. One day, he came upon a man planting a carob tree, which does not bear fruit for 70 years. Choni asks the man planting the tree if he was certain that he would live to partake of its fruit. The man responded: "The whole world is like a carob tree. My ancestors planted for me, and I am planting for my children." Choni sat down, fell asleep and slept for 70 years. Upon awakening, Choni saw a man picking the fruit from the carob tree and he inquired if this was the same man who planted the tree. The man responded that it was his grandfather who had planted the tree.

The story of Choni and the carob tree speaks of a person's investment.

The man planting the tree knew he would not live to enjoy its fruits, but he planted nonetheless. In stating that the world is a carob tree, the man is acknowledging that the world could not function if not for the investments of those who came before us. He feels himself obligated to plant the seeds for the future, uncertain but hopeful that his investment will provide nourishment for those to follow.

Within nature, humanity has a special connection to trees, for their lifetimes span several of ours. Trees become the physical connection to our past and they embody our hopes for a safe future. The details of creation in the Torah are not simply meant to inform us of what happened. They are also meant to help us realize both the physical and spiritual importance of every aspect of this world.

When we look upon a forest, we do not only see the beauty of nature in its glory, we also see those people who lived before us and to whom we owe the very air we breathe.

By MARK MIETKIEWICZ

Jewish distance learning – Part 1

Did you made a Rosh Hashanah resolution to do more Jewish learning, but find you just don't have the time to take an evening course? Or perhaps you have the time but don't have access to a class that inspires you? Well, there is an alternative. You can be part of a virtual classroom that's as near as your keyboard. Today: Jewish university studies on the web.

First, an overview of how these courses operate: some are self-directed – you follow prescribed courses at your own pace. Others use live, classroom-based videoconferencing that allows students and instructors to communicate directly with each other, face-to-face. Still others utilize e-mail and a website. The instructor posts a lecture or assignment. Participants have a few days to do the work. This is often followed by a "virtual" class discussion, usually conducted via an e-mail list.

Courses offered by degree-granting universities normally charge a fee. (Next time we'll look at some free courses.) Access to online materials in these courses is usually restricted to enrolled students who have a password. Most universities view their distance learning courses as equal in workload to their classroom-based courses and just as demanding, and offer comparable credits. As with any product or service you order through the Internet, check the credibility of the educational institution before you invest your time and money.

Hebrew College is a pioneer in Jewish education on the Internet and has been accredited to offer a master of arts in Jewish studies since 2000. The college website suggests earning a degree that way may sound daunting but it isn't. "After a relatively short period of adjustment, online study is engaging and intellectually stimulating. Participating in an online learning community offers opportunities for interaction with instructors and fellow students not possible in classroom-based courses."

Here's a sampling of courses being offered: History and Ideology of Ancient Israel, Using Midrash Aggadah to Teach Ethics, and The Passover Haggadah: Text, Context and Subtext. [http://he brewcollege.edu]

The Jewish Theological Seminary runs a sophisticated and well-designed site, the Phyllis Kaminer Center for Distance Education. It offers credit courses toward master's degrees in Jewish education and Judaic studies. Enrol at JTS and choose from Encounters in Modern Jewish Thought, Midrash for Beginners, and Men and Women in Rabbinic Literature. [http://courses.jtsa.edu/]

Got your master's and looking for an even bigger challenge? Then consider enrolling in Spertus College's doctor of Jewish program. Course packages include audio/video tapes, reading materials, a course curriculum and assignments. Distance learners are encouraged to be in regular contact with their program advisor by phone, fax or e-mail. And for a personal feeling, distance learners are expected to spend at least five or six days a year at Spertus' home campus in Chicago. [www.spertus.edu/college/js/distance.html]

If you're not quite ready to make that commitment, you can still enrol in non-degree studies. You'll study courses like What's Next? – Jewish Views of the Afterlife, Jewish Spirituality: The Key to Jewish Continuity, and Health and Healing in Jewish Tradition. [www.spertus.edu/college/gray.html].

"A Jewish day school teacher in Australia submits a course assignment through an Internet portal in Toronto and receives a grade from a professor in Jerusalem." [http://tinyurl.com/53jls] That scenario describes the work done by the Merkaz it L'Morim. Based at Toronto's York University, this pilot project helps teachers who want to sharpen their skills but may not have access to Jewish professional development courses. So far the Merkaz has worked with 50 teachers from Canada, the United States, England and Australia. [www.arts.yorku.ca/mlm/]

Always wanted to enrol in an Israeli university? Bar Ilan University offers a wide assortment of distance courses guaranteed to challenge and stimulate. [http://tinyurl.com/4sf6n] Delve into the Judean Desert Scrolls with Hanan Eshel. David Elgavish looks at War and Peace in the Bible starting with Abraham and following the exploits of Joshua and King David. And for something a bit more peaceful, join Prof. Edwin Seroussi as he introduces you to Music in Traditional Jewish Culture and Society, where he compares and contrasts Jewish music in its diverse forms across the cultural bounds of Ashkenazi Moroccan, Yemenite and many other communities. [http://tinyurl.com/6mmz8]

Mark Mietkiewicz is a Toronto-based Internet producer who writes, lectures and teaches about the Jewish Internet. He can be reached at highway@rogers.com.

HARDWOOD & CARPET SALE

RIVIERA FLOORING

Warehouse & Showroom

JOE RIVIETZ
"The Flooring Broker"

at 8111 JANE STREET,
UNIT #6
CONCORD, ONTARIO
L4K 4L7

"NEW FLOORING WILL BE NO PROBLEM"

SPECIAL
100% Wool Sisal
$3.79 sq. ft.
ON SALE
Hardwood
•Oak, Maple, Birch
Floors Professionally Sanded & Stained

We lift and dispose of old carpets, furniture is moved and replaced, new flooring is professionally installed.

Monday - Friday 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
• Weekends by appointment

By appointment only, call JOE at 905-738-4588

PREVERCO — STAINMASTER®

Looking for a social and stimulating daytime program?
Semi-retired? Check this out!

Beth Tikvah Synagogue
3080 Bayview Ave.
is launching

LUNCH and LEARN Tuesdays

October 19 - December 7
Program: 1:00 - 2:15 p.m.

Complimentary lunch before lectures
Lunch 12:30 p.m. (Doors open at noon)

Tuesday, October 19
Robert Fulford, columnist and commentator, will inaugurate our Lunch and Learn series and discuss 'Militant Islamic Terrorism'.

Tuesday, October 26 • An historical review of mandate Palestine using video, lecture and Amos Oz's semi-autobiographical book Panther in the Basement as sources. Presenter - Abe Birenbaum

Tuesday, November 2 & 16 • A study of America's greatest Yiddish playwright, Yaacov Grodin using his great-granddaughter's play and his pre-WWII film 'Mirele Efros' as background material. Presenter - Ralph Weintraub

Tuesday, November 9 • Holocaust Education Week special program 'Jewish Resistance during the Shoah'. Presenter - Gerald Ziedenberg

Tuesday, November 23 • We will explore the fascinating history of the pale of the settlement and Jewish immigration to America in the late 19th century. Video, discussion and Mary Antin's novel The Promised Land will be used as sources. Presenter - Gerald Ziedenberg

November 30 • The life and work of the famous Yiddish writer Isaac Babel. Presenter - Ralph Weintraub

December 7 • Understanding Jewish Poland from 1880-1919. Using videos, discussion and the book The Brother's Ashkenazi by I. J. Singer as sources. Gerry Ziedenberg will lead us through a historical review.

Books are available at the public library or at Batner Books 905-731-4440. While it is not necessary to read the books, doing so will enhance your enjoyment of the lecture.

To reserve: 416-221-3433, Ext. 0
$7 per session. Package of 8 tickets - $50. Pay at the door or order package through the synagogue office.

BJE launches division for Jewish youth

By REBECCA GLUCK SOBERMAN
UJA Federation

UJA Federation of Greater Toronto's Board of Jewish Education (BJE) is taking a new direction with the introduction of Noar (Hebrew for youth), an initiative committed to providing informal Jewish education for Toronto youth.

"Noar is a logical extension of our work in schools," says Seymour Epstein, BJE's Senior Vice President for Jewish Education and Identity. "Teens are grossly under-represented in organized Jewish life and are in a critical stage regarding the formation of their Jewish identity."

Noar is designed to use Israel experiences, educational journeys such as March of the Living, youth groups, summer camps and teen study opportunities to enhance Jewish education and to open up new portals to Jewish life that are teen-friendly. According to Dani Fine, director of Noar, the new initiative will engage between 12,000 and 15,000 Jewish teens in the Toronto area.

"There are many teenagers that we are not reaching," says Fine. He explains that Noar will complement already-existing resources, such as youth groups, camps, shlichim (Israeli educators in Toronto for a set term), and Israel experience professionals.

"Everyone involved will work collaboratively, pooling their resources to tempt a wide array of students," adds Fine. "Formal and informal education go hand-in-hand."

The objective of Noar is in keeping with a global Jewish trend that is investing much of its resources in Jewish youth. "Toronto was quick to recognize the value of offering an enhanced and sustained effort to creatively engage our next generation to give them the opportunities and the channels to connect themselves in a meaningful and Jewish expressive fashion," explains Fine.

Unlike traditional methods of education, Noar won't solely be using lectures and classrooms to get its message across.

Noar is designed to enhance informal education for Toronto's Jewish teenagers.

"It's learning by doing, whether it be a summer camp experience infused with Jewish concepts or a social program with Jewish attributes," says Fine.

Program leaders will also connect with immigrant youth through agencies such as JIAS (Jewish Immigrant Aid Services) Toronto, in an effort to get them more involved in the Jewish community as well.

Pups for Peace sniff out danger

By DVORA WILSHANSKY
UJA Federation

Pups for Peace gives new meaning to the adage "a dog is man's best friend." These dogs literally prevent terror and save lives.

Pups for Peace (P4P) - created following Jerusalem's Netanya Park Hotel terror attack during Passover 2002 – trains pups to sniff out explosive materials, and to immediately alert their handlers when they smell something suspicious, without barking or tackling citizens.

"In one hundred per cent of explosions in open areas, people within a two kilometer radius from the suicide bomber are killed or seriously injured," says Ronnie Lotan, P4P founder and the organization's director general. "So, we must stop bombers from getting on buses, into cinemas and the like."

Pups for Peace was made a reality with the help of UJA Federation of Greater Toronto, which has donated nearly $170,000. It costs about $30,000 to put an effective team on the street, including purchase of the dog, training and maintenance.

P4P dog-and-handler teams have become part of Israel's public transport security system. Handlers are authorized to carry weapons and to check citizens' bags, since the government ratified cooperation between P4P and the police in June 2003.

"The police consider public transport a very important part of public security," says Lotan. "Eight teams currently work in Jerusalem. By October there will be close to 15. Ten more teams will soon start working the centre and north - the Sharon area, Afula, Haifa, Hadera, Raanana and Kfar Saba. The police determine the location."

Toronto-funded P4P teams played an important role in avoiding a catastrophe at Jerusalem's Café Caffit in mid-July, when a planned terrorist bombing was thwarted.

Pups for Peace demonstrates terror prevention at a Jerusalem bus stop.

Speaking out

This week marks the beginning of a new Jewish Toronto editorial feature on issues of concern to our community.

PETA: Making a mockery of advocacy

By BERNIE M. FARBER,
Executive Director,
Canadian Jewish Congress Ontario Region

Bernie M. Farber

Recently, Toronto's Jewish community was visually assaulted by an exhibition created by People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, or PETA. This organization purports to want to "educate" people about the need to ensure that animals are treated with dignity and kindness - noble goals indeed. However, the manner in which PETA went about its latest campaign is obscene, hurtful to many, and in the opinion of Canadian Jewish Congress, immoral and unethical.

This so-called educational exhibit, which has been installed in a number of countries around the world, including the U.S., is entitled "Holocaust on Your Plate." As if the title weren't bad enough, the exhibit juxtaposes images of Holocaust victims and survivors from death camps with those of pigs, chickens and cattle headed for slaughter. There are few words in the English language to describe how horrifying and painful this must be to those who suffered at the hands of the Nazis.

Research undertaken by Canadian Jewish Congress discovered that the Holocaust images being used in the exhibit were originally purchased from the United States Holocaust Museum in Washington. The museum issued a cease and desist order against PETA last year once it was made aware of how the images were being used. The letter from its legal counsel to PETA stated: "...as America's national memorial to the victims of the Holocaust, we find PETA's exploitation of these materials a gross perversion of our mission." Fred Zeidman, Chairman of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Council, noted that "we are especially offended that PETA has chosen to use materials obtained deceitfully from the museum."

While Canadian Jewish Congress brought all this information to bear when discussing the matter with City of Toronto and Queen's Park officials, the good news is that common sense prevailed. Both the City of Toronto and Queen's Park denied PETA permission to use their grounds to display this offensive campaign. According to both, such an exhibit would be a gross violation of societal norms and expectations. Clearly, society it seems, has much to teach PETA about the ethical treatment of human beings.

UJA Federation Campaign Update

UJA Federation Campaign 2005, an Action Plan for a safe Jewish future, currently stands at approximately $27 million. To make a donation to the campaign, please call the UJA Federation Campaign Hotline at 416.631.5705, or visit www.jewishtoronto.com

JEWISH TORONTO IS PUBLISHED AS A COMMUNITY SERVICE BY UJA FEDERATION OF GREATER TORONTO.

Ethiopian community mourns suicide bombing victim

Strong ties connect Kiryat Moshe to Toronto

By REBECCA GLUCK SOBERMAN
UJA Federation

The recent death of Mamoya 'Yonatan' Tahio, 20, killed by a female suicide bomber on September 22 in the French Hill neighbourhood of Jerusalem, has deeply affected many people at UJA Federation of Greater Toronto.

Tahio was a resident of Kiryat Moshe, a working class community housing a large number of Ethiopians with whom UJA Federation has developed a special relationship. The organization has invested significant sums of money to help those who live in Kiryat Moshe integrate into Israeli society.

Policemen Tahio and Menashe Komemi, 19, prevented a much more severe suicide attack as they questioned the suspicious woman who detonated the explosives that murdered the two border policemen.

"Yonatan wanted to give to the state of Israel, wanted to protect it," shared Abaye Zordee, a councilman from the community and distant cousin of Tahio. "He wanted to contribute, wanted to be on the front line. He was a hero."

'Yonatan' - a derivative of the Hebrew word 'natan' meaning 'to give'- was Tahio's Hebrew name and reflected who he was.

"He made it a point to give of himself, to his family and to his country," said Zordee in an interview. Tahio was the second oldest of eight children, the last four of whom were born in Israel. He left Ethiopia in May 1991 through Operation Solomon when some 14,000 Ethiopians were brought to Israel within 36 hours.

"There were at least 2,000 people at the funeral, including seven religious leaders from the Ethiopian community," said Ziki Ud, from the Jewish Agency For Israel (JAFI), UJA Federation's overseas partner. Ud was the JAFI director of absorption at the time the Tahio family came to Israel and, at the funeral, presented a wreath on behalf of the Toronto Jewish community.

Tahio's family dates back many generations in Ethiopia and is well respected within Israel's Ethiopian community. In keeping with their heritage, the family is following Ethiopian customs of mourning which emphasize the importance of attending the funeral and shiva. Eight bus-loads of soldiers, as well as many Ethiopian Israelis from other parts of the country, attended. The shiva was held in an old gymnasium - the only facility in the community large enough to accommodate the droves of mourners.

Ud had difficulty containing his emotions as he recalled the time when the family first arrived in Israel. "We tried to train parents for everything but never thought to train for this," referring to the need to offer comfort to grief-stricken parents of a child killed by terrorist.

Tahio (inset) was one of 14,000 Ethiopians brought to Israel through Operation Solomon in 1991.

Zorbee acknowledged Toronto's constant support. "We have lost one of our sons. Your sharing and expressing of sympathy helps to console us. We are one nation, no matter what side of the ocean we live on," he said.

Winter registration opens for birthright israel

birthright israel mania has swept university campuses across Toronto as winter session registration officially opened on September 22.

The birthright israel program has already attracted 6,000 young people from Toronto since its inception in 2000. birthright israel is an organized, no-cost visit to Israel for qualifying young adults and is funded by Jewish federations, North American philanthropists and the government of Israel. Funding for birthright israel is an important priority of UJA Federation Campaign 2005.

York University set up an outdoor display, along with a falafel stand which is a staple Israeli cuisine, as recruiters clad in bright t-shirts circulated the vast campus, spreading the word to interested candidates to register for this winter's session, the sixth winter season for birthright israel.

Carli Hornstein, 22, a native of Calgary, was also attracted to the recruitment display, which was her first indication that registration had begun. "It is so important for me to apply because my first visit to Israel truly enlightened my sense of [Jewish] identity and I very much want to get back there," she added.

birthright israel recruiters talk up registration to students at York University.

Winter trips begin this coming December. Twelve hundred young adults between the ages of 18 and 26 will participate from Canada; 600 will be from Toronto, the majority of whom will participate through the community-based program of Canada Israel Experience.

One group that has already signed up to go in the winter session originated in the Bathurst Jewish Community Centre's summer camp. Phil Faibish, 22, and Alyssa Kazdan, 20, were Centre Camp staff members and neither has been to Israel.

"We are so excited for the opportunity," said Faibish. "It will teach us an appreciation for Judaism and Israel." Kazdan agreed: "I can't wait to be exposed to the culture and the fun aspects of the trip," she added.

What was initially planned as a five-year project has been secured with funding to continue, remarked Michael Soberman, National Director of Canada Israel Experience. "It has passed its original planned period, so this indicates the benefit of the program," said Soberman. "We must be able to continue to offer such an invaluable Jewish identity initiative."

Interested participants should register at www.israelforfree.com

Campaign 2005 From the Front Lines

Super volunteer makes his mark on Campaign 2005

From the Front Lines will periodically feature the people behind the scenes of UJA Federation Campaign 2005

By DANIEL HOROWITZ
UJA Federation

For Moishe Goldstein, a lawyer in his fifth year as a volunteer within UJA Federation's Accountants and Lawyers Division, contacting people to donate to Campaign 2005 is something he considers an honour.

"Absolutely. This is not a chore to me, but rather a privilege to be partnered with these people for such an important cause," says Goldstein.

Undoubtedly, it's that attitude and philosophy that have made Goldstein, 53, one of the early volunteer success stories behind this year's campaign, that has already raised $27 million.

"I absolutely love it when people who have worked so hard to earn a living decide to give a portion of that money to benefit somebody else," he says. "Whatever role I might play in that decision, even if I've just reminded them of the opportunity, it just doesn't get any better than this."

Moishe Goldstein

"Quite simply, Moishe Goldstein personifies the spirit, enthusiasm, drive and commitment of UJA Federation and Campaign 2005," says campaign director Jeff Springer. "His tremendous people skills, combined with his passion, makes him an invaluable member of our volunteer team."

Goldstein began canvassing for Campaign 2005 on August 31, the same day that two suicide bombings on Be'ersheva buses killed 16 innocent Israelis and injured 93 others.

"People know the situation here and in Israel. Most people are giving me increased pledges over last year's donation, and they're giving it to me right away," he says. "I compare canvassing people this year to walking into an open door to visit someone who is eagerly waiting for you."

According to Goldstein, another motivational factor for donors this year appears to be Jewish Toronto's own need for improved security, especially at schools and community centres, one of the pillars of this year's campaign.

"Definitely," he says, "it's something that seems to be an important point for many of the people I've spoken to, especially those who have kids going to Jewish schools in Toronto. One man whose kids go to CHAT couldn't wait to up his gift from last year."

Campaign 2005 is an Action Plan for a safe Jewish future, which will invest new dollars in four key areas:

- Community Security: UJA Federation has initiated a special community task force to review local security needs, especially at schools and community centres. New dollars will fund the implementation of security measures recommended by the task force.
- A Strong Jewish Voice: UJA Federation is supporting the Canadian Council for Israel and Jewish Advocacy (CIJA) and other partner organizations that stand up for Israel and against antisemitism.
- Building a Stronger Israel: Campaign 2005 will invest in several programs in Israel with special focus on young people, to help the country recover from years of terror attacks and a weak, but recovering economy.
- Empowering a New Jewish Generation: Campaign 2005 will invest in training programs for young adults to help them counter antisemitism, and initiatives such as birthright israel and March of the Living, to help them connect more closely with Jewish life.

Any questions concerning information or photos that appear on these pages should be directed to jewishtorontonews@ujafed.org

JEWISH TORONTO IS PUBLISHED AS A COMMUNITY SERVICE BY UJA FEDERATION OF GREATER TORONTO.

Community leader known for work here and in Israel

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

Lily Silver, a longtime Toronto philanthropist and communal leader who made aliyah in 1973, died Sept. 22 in Jerusalem at the age of 85.

Her husband Nathan who died in 1997, was a Toronto builder and developer. He was the founder of Metrontario Group.

Obituary

The Silvers, members of Beth Tzedec Congregation, were known throughout the Jewish community and beyond for their communal service and voluntary endeavours.

In Toronto, Lily Silver was involved in numerous charitable causes, including Zionist Revisionist Women and raising funds for Shaare Zedek Hospital. She was a past-president of Toronto Women's ORT, and was an active volunteer for the Jewish National Fund, UJA Federation of Greater Toronto, and Ezrath Nashim-Herzog Hospital in Jerusalem – where she was often referred to as "Mrs. Ezrath Nashim."

In the late 1980s, she was invited by the late Rabbanit Sarah Herzog and Mildred Devor, then president of Ezrath Nashim-Herzog Hospital, to join the hospital's board of directors.

She inaugurated and chaired the hospital's annual dinners in Jerusalem for 12 years and opened her home for fundraising events for many charitable causes.

On Nov. 16, the Canadian Friends of Ezrath Nashim-Herzog Hospital will pay tribute to Silver at its 2004 Gala Concert, to be held at the Toronto Centre for the Performing Arts.

In appreciation of her efforts and generosity on behalf of the hospital, the Lily Silver Education Center will be established there in her memory.

In a recent interview with The CJN in Jerusalem, where she lived nine months a year in a condominium overlooking the Knesset – she lived in Toronto for the other three months – Silver also spoke of her long involvement with the Bible Lands Museum Jerusalem, which was founded by a former Torontonian, the late Dr. Eli Borowski.

Lily Silver is seen at a charitable gathering at her home.

Talking about her life in Israel, she said she was concerned about the false image of Israel in the media.

"I wouldn't want to live anywhere else but Jerusalem," she said. "We have a rich, interesting and normal life – we shop, we dine, we go to concerts and theatre. We only get worried when we watch the media from abroad."

The Silvers' homes in Toronto and Jerusalem were meeting places for politicians, communal leaders, business associates and friends. They were personal friends of the late Israeli prime minister Menachem Begin and his wife Aliza.

Lily Silver is survived by her brother Rabbi Samuel Cooper; sisters Elsie Gowar, Ettie Lubin and Bella Cooper; children Shoel and Eileen of Toronto, Debra and Yossi Karta of Netanya, Joey of Ireland and Jerusalem, Bonnie and Eyal Ranen, who live outside Tel Aviv; and 13 grandchildren.

Funeral services and shivah were held in Israel. Eulogies were given by her son Shoel and Benny Begin. Also participating in the service were her daughters Bonnie and Debra and son-in-law Eyal.

Her daughter-in-law Eileen told The CJN, "My mother-in-law was my hero."

Please join us for a special
JUDAICA 2004
FEATURE EXHIBITION
OPENING RECEPTION Thursday October 14th 5-9pm

PETROFF GALLERY
1016 EGLINTON AVENUE WEST TORONTO, ONTARIO M6C 2C5
TELEPHONE 416 782 1696 WWW.ASHOWOFHANDS.COM

Judaica 2004

OCT 14 to NOV 7

DON'T MISS IT!

Singles Events
is an advertising feature of The Canadian Jewish News
For rates or to place an ad, please call 416-391-1836
Deadline: Wednesday, 4 p.m., 8 days preceding issue date.
The CJN encourages readers to direct any queries they may have on an upcoming event to the event's organizers.

(Foreground, left to right): residents Irving Keshen, Mrs. Scher, Evelyn English, Frances Gilbert, Helen Weinberg, Rose Grader

Kensington Place Rental Retirement Residence Grand Opening

The ribbon-cutting ceremony at the recent grand opening of Kensington Place Rental Retirement Residence at 866 Sheppard Avenue West drew a crowd of some 400 people. The residence, which features a host of amenities, already enjoys 40% occupancy. For further information call 416-636-9555 or visit www.thekensingtonplace.com

CJN DATING
meet your match!
www.cjndating.com

Powered by JMATCH
JEWISH INTERACTIVE DATING

www.theplayersnetwork.ca
THANKSGIVING DANCE PARTY
THIS SATURDAY
OCTOBER. 9TH At 8:00 PM
GRAND OPENING
NEW LOCATION
NOVOTEL HOTEL NORTH YORK
3 PARK HOME AVENUE.
(At Yonge St., Southwest Corner. Direct Subway Access)
Free Rebated Parking, Big Cash Draw, Top DJ, All Hits Dance Music, Hundreds of Great People...
$13.00 PP including GST & PST
$11.00 Before 8:30 pm
24 Hr Details: 416-410-6010

Chicago Rabbinical Council – Orthodox Jewish Singles
NOVEMBER 12 - 14
SINGLES SHABBATON
$135 cost includes:
Rabbi Marc Gottlieb, Modern Orthodoxy's Rising Star
Great, Strictly Kosher Food
Friendly Chicago Atmosphere • The Famous Chicago Gangster Tour • Home Hospitality (or hotel at additional cost)
RESERVE YOUR SPACE NOW!!!
Call Jenni 773-262-8824 or Howard 847-675-2785
Email - crcojs@hotmail.com Website - crcweb.org

Greater Toronto Area

Shaarei Shomayim to celebrate 75th anniversary

By ELI SHUPAK
Special to The CJN

Israeli Consul General Ya'acov Brosh will join Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue in celebrating its 75th anniversary at a gala dinner honouring its past presidents and senior officers on Oct. 13.

And current shul president Sam Moskowitz says he will do anything he can to help, as he has for many years.

"I won't shy away from serving liquor and looking after people," he said four months into his two-year term. "I'll even sweep the floors. There's nothing that says I can't."

Moskowitz has been coming to the synagogue since he got married there in 1972. He and his wife, Shelly, have also celebrated their children's baby namings, bar mitzvahs and bat mitzvahs there.

Shaarei Shomayim has been at its current site on Glencairn Avenue since 1966, when a ceremony took place to move the Torah scrolls from their former home on St. Clair Avenue West.

The first congregation that ultimately became Shaarei Shomayim, known at the time as B'nai Jacob, was founded in 1928 on McKay Street in Downtown Toronto.

In 1931, some members of B'nai Jacob moved north towards the St. Clair Avenue area and formed the Hillcrest Congregation, which held services in various locations for five years. The name was changed to Shaarei Shomayim in 1934, and the growing congregation held its first High Holy Day services in its new synagogue in 1936.

A 75th anniversary exhibit now at Shaarei Shomayim includes Torah spindles with a Torah cover and silver crown donated by Joseph Fleishman in 1968. Also among the memorabilia in six display cases are two machzors used in the St. Clair shul, and pictures of Cantor Nathan Adler and the choir from that era.

Shul activities highlighted in the exhibit include Talmud Torah classes, education programs, and Brownies and Girl Guide meetings.

Also on display is Eugene Tozman's 1935 prize for excellence in cheder, a book of Essays on Zionism by Albert Einstein. Tozman was among the early members of the synagogue.

Brotherhood and sisterhood activities are recorded, with pictures from the sisterhood musicals that were formerly written and choreographed by members.

A section on the annual weekend retreats Shaarei Shomayim held at Maple Lake Lodge in Muskoka throughout the 1980s and '90s can also be found.

Shaarei Shomayim kicked off its 75th anniversary last spring with a concert that included cantorial, Hebrew, chassidic and operatic music, featuring the shul's chazzan Yaakov Motzen, former chazzan sheini Shlomo Sufrin, opera star Benjamin Warschawski, and Cantor Moshe Haschel of St. John's Wood Synagogue in London, England.

A souvenir book called Celebrating 75 years... It's Our Home... It's Where We Belong will be available next week's gala. The book covers the congregation's history in the last 25 years, updating the commemorative volume that was prepared for the 50th anniversary.

University of Waterloo

The Jewish Studies Program presents the public lecture:

The Longest Hatred: Then and Now presented by Dr. Stephen Berk, The Florence B. Sherwood Professor of History & Culture at Union College, Schenectady, New York

It was supposed to be dead and buried long ago, but has returned with a vengence; only this time it's not the usual suspects. Dr. Berk explores the history of anti-Semitism and the consequences such hatred can inspire.

7:30pm
Thursday, October 14, 2004
St. Jerome's Siegfried Hall, Room 133
Waterloo, Ontario

EVERYONE WELCOME FREE ADMISSION

THIS LECTURE IS MADE POSSIBLE THROUGH THE GENEROUS SUPPORT OF GARY LEVENE & DEBBIE EISENBERG OF KITCHENER, ONTARIO

for more information call the Jewish Studies Program at (519) 888-4567 ext. 2967 or visit our website www.arts.uwaterloo.ca/JewishStudies/events.htm

Family Moments

only from The Canadian Jewish news

Mazel Tov to...

Sharon & Manny Brilant are thrilled to announce the engagement of their son Jason to Olga, daugther of Zisis Tirsalis. Happy grandparents are Ida Brilant and Leo Lavine.

Happy 25th anniversary to Jo-Anne & Mark Slobodsky. We love you very much, from Bethany & Jason, Josh & Talia, and the whole Slobodsky/Tugg family.

Ashley Lauren was born on July 11. Ecstatic parents are Shoshana & Sheldon Hauer. Delighted grandparents are Barbie & Stephen Cohen and Harriet & Carl Hauer. Great-grandparents are Rose & Ralph Etigson.

Stephanie Charikar recently had her bat mitzvah. Parents are Steve & Elana Charikar. Grandparents are Samson & Yvonne Charikar, Ezekiel & Hannah Reuben.

Happy first birthday Sage Elizabeth Siegel. Love, Mommy & Daddy Michelle & Daniel, Oma & Opa Mary & Ralph Hanauer, Bubbie & Zaidie Eleanor & Jack Siegel.

Tali and Mike announce the birth of Adam Uditsky on Aug. 27. Grandparents are Harold Lusthouse, Joodi & Ron Pollock, Evy & Richard Uditsky. Great-grandparents are Sylvia & Phillip Shore, Edith & Sidney Pollock and Anne & Ossie Lusthouse.

SEND US YOUR PHOTOS!!

Label the back of all photos and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for return. Send all your photos to: The CJN, Family Moments, 1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, ON. M3B 3K4.

JNF
Say it with Trees
"Congratulations on your Special Birthday"
JEWISH NATIONAL FUND
416-638-7200

What's New

By REBECCA NADLER

CANADIAN SOCIETY FOR YAD VASHEM TRIBUTE CARDS AND CERTIFICATES FOR ALL OCCASIONS from $10
416-785-1333

What's New Deadlines: PLEASE NOTE HOLIDAY DEADLINES. Wednesday, Oct. 6, is the deadline for the Oct. 21 issue and Monday, Oct. 18, is the deadline for the Oct. 28 issue. Phone 416-391-1836, fax 416-391-0829 or e-mail rnadler@cjnews.com.

Monday, Oct. 11

CRAFT & GIFT SHOW

Clubs Beersheba and Aviva present their annual sale at Bayview Village Shopping Centre., 10 a.m.-5 p.m. The sale includes a large variety of items and hourly draws, clowns and face painting. Free.

Tuesday, Oct. 12

SISTERHOOD MEETING

Beth David Sisterhood membership drive meeting presents a panel with Cynthia Gasner speaking on "What's New in Kashruth," Esther Schwartz on "Health Issues and Kashruth" and Vivian Anhang presenting a hands-on cooking demonstration. 7:30 p.m. 55 Yeomans Rd. 416-633-5500.

ISRAEL/JEWS IN THE MEDIA

Canadian Friends of Laniado Hospital holds its 13th annual Dr. Joseph Weil Memorial Lecture, with Michael Coren speaking on "Israel and Jews in the Media" at the Shaarei Shomayim Congregation. 8 p.m. $18 in advance, $20 at the door. For tickets, call 416-785-8946.

CHUG HATANACH

Shmuel Pupko leads a discussion of chapters 21 and 22 of Psalms. 8 p.m. at Beth David Congregation. All welcome.

REAL KABBALAH

A three-part lecture series, "Real Kabbalah for Real People," with Rabbi Mendel Kaplan takes place tonight, Nov. 2 and 28, 8 p.m. at Chabad @ Flamingo, 8001 Bathurst St. 905-886-1340.

CHORALAIRS SINGERS

The Choralairs of North York rehearses every Tuesday evening 8:15-10 p.m. Repertoire includes pop, Broadway and folk songs. No auditions required. For information, call Brian Slepchik at 416-631-0029 or 416 540-7106. Call Judy Gordon 416-221-3161 to book a concert for your nursing home, home for the aged or seniors' apartment.

SINGLES DINNER

Shalom Group of singles 39+ will meet for dinner. Call information hotline, 416-631-3664.

Wednesday, Oct. 13

JEWISH LIFE IN NORWAY

Beth Tzedec Museum exhibit "Jewish Life and Culture in Norway: Wergeland's Legacy," opens today and runs through March 2005. The exhibit includes stories, photos and artifacts from members of the Toronto Jewish community who have lived in Norway. For information, contact Dorion Liebgott, 416-781-3514, ext. 32, or museum@beth-tzedec.org

HIGH SCHOOL SEMINAR

The Downtown Jewish Community School offers a high school seminar on contemporary teen dilemmas and issues of Jewish identity at the Miles Nadal JCC for students in grades 8-12. Classes are held Wednesdays 7:00-8:30 p.m. Seminars are led by rabbis from various Jewish denominations, giving students varying perspectives on Judaism. For information, contact Joan Schoenfeld, 416-924-6211, or e-mail joan@djcs.org.

CARING FOR A LOVED ONE

Baycrest Centre offers an educational and support group for adult children of dementia sufferers in the community. Wednesday nights beginning tonight through Nov. 17. 6:30-7:30 p.m. Free. To register, call 416-785-2500, ext. 2252 or 3587.

JOIN THE FOLK CHOIR

The Toronto Jewish Folk Choir is accepting new members for its 2004-05 season. Rehearsals take place Wednesdays 7:30 p.m. at the Morris Winchevsky Centre, 585 Cranbrooke Ave. This is the 79th season for the choir, and its third under the leadership of conductor Alexander Veprinsky. The choir's repertoire includes

Continued on page 23

CHANGE FOR THE BETTER
Eat healthy Stay active Manage stress

Learn more about Diabetes
From the Jewish Chapter

The Jewish Chapter of the Canadian Diabetes Association offers interesting guest speakers and informative discussions. The chapter meets five times during the year: September, November, January, March and May.

For more information about the Jewish Chapter please call 416-363-0177 extension 7403.

Chapters are volunteer groups helping people with diabetes.

1-800-BANTING (226-8464)
www.diabetes.ca

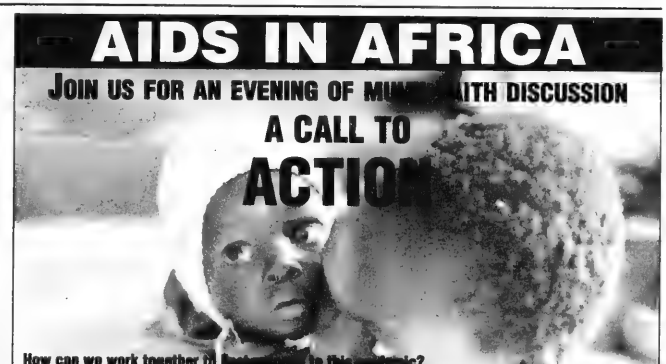
Know who to turn to

CANADIAN DIABETES ASSOCIATION | ASSOCIATION CANADIENNE DU DIABÈTE

AIDS IN AFRICA

JOIN US FOR AN EVENING OF MU[illegible]ITH DISCUSSION

A CALL TO ACTIO[illegible]



How can we work together to [illegible] to this epidemic?

What are the rewards and challenges associated with collaborative, multi-[illegible] efforts in addressing this issue?

THURSDAY, Oct. 14, 2004 7-9pm

First Narayever Congregation, 187 [illegible]unswick Ave., To[illegible]o

The multi-faith panelists' first hand perspective will [illegible] your heart and mind to the plight of the many people suffering from HIV/AIDS in Zimbabwe.
Our objective is to raise consciousness about this staggering health crisis and to mobilize personal, professional and spiritual resources to play a healing role in our world.

See a beautiful and moving Photo Exhibit [illegible] Hospital, Where HIV rate is close to 40%

For more information and to RSVP, call [illegible] at Ve'ahavta at 416-964-7898 x 19 or visit our website at www.veahavta.org

A Free Event Hosted by Ve'ahavta; The [illegible] & relief Committee

Project undertaken with the financial support of the Government of Canada provided through the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA)

Ve'ahavta

Continued from page 22

music on Jewish themes, in Yiddish, Hebrew, Russian, Judeo-Spanish and English. For information, call Jean Shek at 416-489-7681 or e-mail Howard Kaplan at tjfolkchoir@sympatico.ca.

TORAH STUDY

Beit Rayim Synagogue offers Torah study with Chana Sargon. Biblical texts with classic and contemporary commentaries. Wednesday evenings beginning tonight, 8-9:30 p.m. To register, call Marlene, 905-770-7639, ext. 31.

CURING A FANATIC

Amos Oz speaks on the topic "How to Cure a Fanatic: Bringing Peace to the Middle East," 8 p.m., University of Toronto's Medical Sciences Building, 1 King's College Circle. Call 416-978-8118 or visit www.utoronto.ca/jewish.

Other news

LEARN HEBREW

Associated Hebrew School offers Hebrew classes with Yael Lev. Classes are offered at all levels, daytime and evening, using the Ulpan method. Fall semester begins Oct. 11. Call 416-225-6151.

Beth David Congregation offers Hebrew classes with Hana Werner. Mondays 7:30-9 p.m., Oct. 18-May 16, 2005. Members $36, non-members $50. For registration and information, call 416-633-5500.

MARTIN GILBERT LECTURE

Shaar Shalom Synagogue presents Sir Martin Gilbert on "Churchill and the Little Known Jewish Contribution to World War II." Thursday, Oct. 14, 7:30 p.m. $15. For tickets, call 905-889-4975.

WRITERS IN PERSON

The public is invited to attend the York University course "Canadian Writers in Person" held on Thursday evenings. Shani Mootoo reads from Cereus Blooms at Night on Oct. 14, 7:30 p.m., Stedman Lecture Hall "D."

STUDY ECCLESIASTES

Beth Shalom Synagogue presents a three-lecture series on Ecclesiastes with Rabbi Aaron Flanzraich Thursdays, Oct. 14, 21 and Nov. 4 at 7:30 p.m. 416-783-6103.

DRAWING CLASSES

Figure and portrait drawing classes, Thursday evenings, 6:30-9:30 p.m., at Antibes Community Centre, 140 Antibes Dr. Classes begin Thursday, Oct. 14. For information, call Maya at 416-736 6709.

SINGLES DANCE

Shaar Shalom Singles and Intersynagogue Singles (35+) host their autumn dance, "Introducing Our New Dance Card for Prizes Evening," with the DJ Dave Jones. 2 Simonston Blvd. Sunday, Oct. 17, 7:30 p.m. $15. For information, call David at 416-224-9494.

STUDY OPPORTUNITIES

Mekorot Institute of Torah Studies for Women fall classes begin with day and evening text-based classes, including "Talmud: Bava Kama" with Rabbi Shlomo Gemara, Sunday evenings, Oct. 17-Feb. 6, 8-9:30 p.m; "The Legacy of Abraham" with Lori Grysman, Monday evenings. Oct. 18-Nov. 29, 8-9:30 p.m.; "The Jewish Guide to Interpersonal Relationships" with Rabbi Jay Kelman, Monday mornings, Oct. 18-Dec. 13, 9:30-10:30 a.m.; "Hebrew By Way of Dialogues" with Hilda Weil, Monday evenings Oct. 18-Dec. 13, 8-9:30 p.m.; "Birthright and Blessing: Esau and Jacob as Contrasting Archetypes" with Dr. Shoshana Zolty, Tuesday evenings, Oct. 12-Feb. 8, 7:30-9:30 p.m, and Wednesday mornings, Oct. 13-Feb. 9, 9:30-11:30 a.m. ; "The Book of Judges" with Rabbi Moshe Shulman, Wednesday mornings, Oct. 13-Feb. 9, 9:30-11:30 a.m. And "Challah, Candles and Mikvah:Three Commandments for Women" with Ilana Sober, Wednesday evenings, Oct. 13-Dec. 8, 8 -10 p.m. For information, locations and registration, visit www.mekorot.ca or call 416-398-1510.

JOSHUA NELSON RETURNS

Toronto will have two opportunity to enjoy Jewish 'soul' music featuring Joshua Nelson. On Friday, Oct. 22, at 7:30 p.m., 100 ticket holders will participate in a Shabbat prayer service, songbook and dessert reception with Nelson and Rabbi Elyse Goldstein. $54. Call 416-485-7007, ext. 0. And Saturday, Oct. 23 at 8 p.m., Nelson and Bais Groove perform in concert at Hart House Theatre. Admission in advance $23, students: $18. At the door $28, students $23. For tickets, call 416-978-8668 or visit www.harthousetheatre.ca

JF&CS GROUPS

Jewish Family & Child Service Information/registration. Call 416-638-7800, ext. 215. Lipa Green Building, 4600 Bathurst St.

Depression 101. Thursday, Oct 14, 7-9 p.m., 4600 Bathurst St.

Living With Teens. Six sessions beginning Thursday, Oct 14, 8-9:30 p.m., Promenade Mall, suite 313.

Parenting Children With Challenging Behaviour. Six sessions beginning Wednesday, Oct 13, 7-9 p.m., 4600 Bathurst St.

Bereavement Groups for Widows/Widowers – A 6-session group for men and women who have recently lost a partner or spouse. Adults (60+) Tuesday, Oct. 19, 11-12:30, 1700 Bathurst St. Adults (under 60) Wednesday, Oct. 27, 7:30-9 pm, Promenade Mall, suite 313.

FOR SENIORS

Seniors Bowling every other saturday night through June. Call Sydney Fox, 416-633-7305, or Abe Levine, 416-742-3004.

Earl Bales Seniors' Club: Saturday dance, Oct. 16; Hebrew classes, Tuesday mornings 10 a.m.-noon, $25 a month; bingo, Tuesdays 12:30-3 p.m.; Casino Rama, Wednesday, Oct. 13; Blue Heron Casino, Tuesday, Oct. 26; Dixie Outlet Mall, Monday, Nov. 1. Call 416-395-7881 Mondays to Thursdays 9 a.m-1 p.m.

LZA Seniors Cultural Club meets every Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the boardroom at the Borochov Centre, 272 Codsell Ave. Call 416-630-9444.

Aluma Canadian Israeli Club meets 7 p.m. Thursdays at 15 Hove St. Oct. 14, bingo. Call Menachem Wallach, 905-731-7748, or Malka Colla, 416-630-5771.

WAGMAN CENTRE

55 Ameer Ave. 416-785-2500.

Fall colour tour, Thursday, Oct. 14, 10:30 a.m.-2 p.m., pre-register. Members $2, non-members $5.

If you are a senior living with osteoporosis, join the fall session of "Power," a 7-week program of exercise, nutrition and education beginning Oct. 18. A referral from your family physician is required. Call ext. 2588.

BERNARD BETEL CENTRE

1003 Steeles Ave. W., 416-225-2112.

"Jews of China" with Dolly Beil, Tuesday, Oct. 12, 10-11:30 a.m.

"Nine Unusual Women Who Made or Changed History," with Barry Fluxgold of Ryerson University. Wednesdays 7:30-9 p.m., Oct. 13-Dec. 8.

"Opera For Beginners" with Morton Silverstone. Thursdays, 9:30 -10:30 a.m. Oct. 14-Dec. 23.

Israeli Club Etrog for Hebrew-speaking seniors meets Tuesdays at 7 p.m. Etrog Club 15th anniversary dinner, Tuesday, Oct. 19. Purchase tickets in advance. Call Galit Osadtsuk at ext. 115.

BATHURST JCC

Bathurst Jewish Community Centre and Koffler Centre of the Arts, 4588 Bathurst St., 416-636-1880 or www.bjcc.ca.

"Journey Home" runs to Oct. 24 in the Loggia Gallery. This exhibit documents Lena Shugar's travels through life, including her trek across Europe during and after World War II

Fitness and recreation programs are starting at the Bathurst JCC. Sign up your children for swimming, house-league basketball, soccer and funball, plus many more sports. The BJCC offers a wide range of group fitness classes, personal training, and as recreational sports for adults. For information, call ext. 0.

"Contemporary Jewish Life in Berlin" is an exhibit of 11 panels of pictures and text that documents contemporary Jewish life in Berlin, from the various magnificent, newly restored synagogues to Jewish schools, magazines and memorials. In the atrium of the BJCC. Admission free. Exhibition opening with lecture and discussion takes place on Tuesday, Oct. 12 at 7:30 p.m. with Dr. Hermann Simon, director of Centrum Judaicum, New Synagogue Berlin, and Deborah Simon. Runs through Nov. 4.

The Travellers in a concert of their original music and a look back at the Weavers, Monday, Oct. 18, at 8 p.m. Leah Posluns Theatre.

Register for programs at the Koffler Centre, including visual art, music, dance and drama. Check out the Bathurst JCC program guide or visit www.bjcc.ca or www.koffler centre.com.

MILES S. NADAL JCC

Miles Nadal Jewish Community Centre, 750 Spadina Ave., 416-924-6211 or wwwmilesnadaljcc.ca.

The Downtown Ken, a downtown Jewish Hashomer Hatzair youth group for grades 5 and up, Sunday afternoons 2-4 p.m. For information and registration, call 416-736-1339.

Hebrew marathon, Sunday, Oct. 17 & 24, 1-4:00 p.m., for absolute beginners. In two days, you will be well on your way to reading Hebrew. Study the alphabet, learn the basic skills for reading and practise reading key Hebrew prayers.

Intermediate Hebrew, an 8-week course, runs Tuesdays, Oct. 12-Nov. 30, 7:30-9:30 p.m. Hebrew conversation in a relaxed and fun setting with Cila BenAroya.

Klezmer players' workshop with clarinettist Martin van de Ven. An intensive experience of playing in the klezmer style, for all levels of instrument players. 10 weeks. Tuesday evenings, 7-9:30 p.m. Begins Oct. 14. Registration required.

SINGLES EVENTS CAN BE FOUND ON PAGE 20

Salton Stainless Steel, Electric Roaster Oven

Free up your oven. Cook your Roast, Turkey or Chicken (up to 22 lbs.) with Adjustable Surround Heat. Compare at $149.99

LOWEST PRICE IN ONTARIO

67.99

Full Money-Back Refund Policy!

Shop 24/7 Secure Online www.cayneshousewares.com

Cayne's The SUPER HOUSEWARE Store

"Cayne's Gift Certificates" The Ideal Gift Anytime.

Easy To Get To.

112 DONCASTER, Thornhill, Ont.

One Traffic Light North of Steeles Ave. East of Yonge St.

905-764-1188

SAT & SUN 10-6

MON to FRI 9-9

BRIDAL REGISTRY

OBITUARIES
and Related Notices

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
ESTHER BREGMAN ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 10th, 12:00 noon
Mount Sinai Memorial Park
Pride of Israel Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late HARVEY ROSS ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 10th, 12:30 p.m.
Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park
United Jewish People's Order Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late LEON & BELA SNIATOWSKI ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 10th, 11:00 a.m.
Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park
Lodzer Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

SERVING THE JEWISH COMMUNITY FOR OVER THREE GENERATIONS

IZENBERG GOLDBERG
Monuments
3173 BATHURST ST.
416-787-0319

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
ELEANOR MELES ז"ל
Mother of Andrew, grandmother of Joshua, Anthony & Jordan
will take place
Sunday, October 17th at 12:00 p.m.
Pardes Shalom Cemetery
Dufferin St., 3 km north of Major Mackenzie
Community Section 6
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
BERNARD (BERNIE) OFFSTEIN ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, October 17th at 1:30 p.m.
Mount Sinai Memorial Park
986 Wilson Avenue – Tiba Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

ICRF
Israel Cancer Research Fund
Your help will find a cure for cancer!
Donation cards for all occasions
Phone: 416-487-5246
Sponsored by The Elegant Garage Sale

To place an unveiling notice, please call at least 15 DAYS prior to the date of the unveiling.

BENJAMIN'S PARK MEMORIAL CHAPEL

Bernard Nathanson	Sep 15/04	239 Kenwood St
Edith Kirsh	Sep 18/04	319 Lytton Blvd
Anna Rattner	Sep 19/04	265 Fisherville Rd
Laura Friedman	Sep 19/04	2 Bucman Court
Trudy Sherman	Sep 21/04	2 Buchan Court
Gilbert Newman	Sep 22/04	100 Elm Ridge Dr
Sally Justein	Sep 23/04	1 Post Rd.
Szyja Herszkopf	Sep 22/04	30 Holly St
Cantor Joseph Cooper	Sep 24/04	22 Westover Hill Rd
Bob Landau	Sep 24/04	7300 Yonge St
Fran Ostronoff	Sep 25/04	22 Kimbergate Way
Alex Fisher	Sep 25/04	645 Castlefield Av

HEBREW BASIC

Irving Grossman	Sep 22/04	276 Acton Ave
Rachel Kirschner	Sep 25/04	1 Candy Courtway

Steeles Memorial Chapel

Rosen, Harry	Sep 23/04	Private
Glovinskaia, Zlata	Sep 25/04	5935 Bathurst St
Budd, Estelle	Sep 25/04	Private
Chrom, Vivian	Sep 25/04	89 Skymark Dr
Kelman, David	Sep 24/04	5937 Bathurst St
Gerlyand, Anna	Sep 26/04	Private
Schein, Fryda	Sep 25/04	3636 Bathurst St
Kurtz, Sheila Melanie	Sep 26/04	1181 Garden Crt
Finkle, Libby	Sep 28/04	Private
Haber, Gisele	Sep 20/04	Private
Weiss, Vilma	Sep 28/04	Private
Pizel, Sam	Sep 29/04	Private

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
TERRYE LICHTMAN ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, October 10th at 10:30 a.m.
Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park
(Bathurst & Steeles Ave. West)
Ostrovtzer Society Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

Spector Milchin, Janet
Wife of the late Dr. Leo Spector (ז"ל) and the late Jack Milchin (ז"ל)
Mother of
Connie & Philip Beinhaker, Jerusalem, Israel
Dr. Carl & Frances Spector, Boston, Mass.
Sister of
Leon & Ruth Kaufman, Boston, Mass
Ruth & the late Dr. Harry Olken (ז"ל), Boston, Mass
Grandmother of 8, great-grandmother of 8
After being in a vegetative state since January, Janet passed away quietly at the Herzog Hospital in Jerusalem, Israel, on Thurs., Sept. 23, 2004. Janet was buried Fri., Sept. 24, 2004 in Israel. Contributions may be forwarded to the "Dr. Leo & Janet Spector Fund" c/o the Jewish General Hospital Foundation at 3755 Cote St. Catherine Road, Montreal, Quebec. H3T 1E2

YIDDISH CORNER
Edited by: ALEK SILVER
יידיש־ווינקל
רעדאַגירט פון: אַלעק סילווער

שמחת תורה אין אמאליקע חסידישע הויפן
פון ישראל גומחידס

שמחת תורה איז אַ גרויסער יום־טוב ביי יידן, אַ יום־טוב איך פלעג זיך פון הארט. עס איז דער טאָג ווען יידן ליינען די תורה אין היבן אָן זי וידבר צו לייענען. גלייך ווען מען ענדיקט צו לייענען די פרשה „האת הברכה", דער סוף פון די פינף חמשים, הייבט מען באַלד אָן די פרשה „בראשית" — דאָס הייסט צוזיך צום אַנהייב פון דער תורה. עס איז שוין אַן אַלטע טראַדיציע, אַז ביי אַזאַ געלעגנהייט דאַרפן זיך יידן פריען אין פייערן לכבוד דער תורה. פריען זיך טאָקע אַלע מיט דער תורה. עס פריען זיך יונג אַן אַלט, דער טאַטע אַן דער זון, דער זיידע אַן אייניקל, דער פשוטער יד צוגליך מיטן תלמיד חכם.

עס איז מערקווירדיק, וואָס אַז דער גרויסער יידי־שער יום־טוב שמחת תורה, וואָס פאַרנעמט אַזאַ בכבודיק אָרט ביי יידן, ווערט נישט דערמאָנט נישט אין חומש אין נישט אין נביאים, נישט אין דער גמרא אין נישט אין מדרש, נאָר דערמאָנט אונטערן נאָמען פון שמיני עצרת. זיין ערשטער מקור געפינט זיך ביי די גאונים אווה חיים אין ביתּ יוסף, אין וועלט באַצייכנט ווי אַ מנהג פון די אַשכנזים, אַז עס איז צו פריען זיך ווען זיי ענדיקן ליינען די תורה.

אין די אמאליקע ציטן פלעגט מען אין ארץ־ישראל ענדיקן ליינען די תורה איין מאָל אין דריי יאָר, אַבער איצט פייערט מען אויך אין ישראל שמחת תורה יעדעס יאָר, נאָר מיט אַ טאָג פריער ווי אין די גלות־לענדער. עס איז ווי־כטיק צו באַמערקן, אַז דער האַרציקסטער יום־טוב שמחת תורה איז געשאַפן געוואָרן דווקא אין דער פערמד, אין דעם פינצטערן גלות. דער דאָזיקער יום־טוב האָט געדינט ווי אַ באַלזאַם פאַר די דערדריקטע יידן אין שוועריע לעבנס־קאַמף אויפצוהאַלטן דאָס יידישע לעבן.

ווער עס געדענקט דאָס יידישע לעבן אין דער אַל־טער היים פאַר דעם גרויסן יידישן חורבן, ווייסט וואָס שמחת תורה האָט געמיינט פאַר די יידישע פאַלקס־מאַסן. אין דעם דאָזיקן טאָג פון פרייד איז געקומען צום אויס־דרוק די העכסטע פארם פון פאַלקס־אַחדות און אהבת ישׂראל. אַלט און יונג, אַרעם און ריך, למדן און עם־הארץ, אַלע האָבן זיך אַרומגענומען, געטאַנצט און געזונגען, פאַרגעסנדיק אַלע צרות און קריזעס און איבערגעלעבט דעם העכסטן עקסטאַז פון פריד און יום־טובדיקייט.

ביי חסידים זיינען פאַראַן פאַרשידענע געדרוקטע הקפות־ספרים מיט תפילות און מנהגים נוסח באַזונ, בעלז, ראַפשיץ, ווישניץ, קאַרלין און אַנדערע. די ריזשינער חסידים פלעגן זיינגען די האַרציקע מעלאָדיע „עד בלי די". די באַדייטונג פון דעם געזאַנג באַציט זיך צו דעם ציטאַט פון חנ"ך: מלאכי, דער לעצטער יידישער נביא האָט געוואָלט באַאיינפלוסן די יידן זיי זאָלן אַריינבאַרעגנגן אַפּצאָלונגען פאַרן בית המקדש. האָט ער זיי, אין נאָמען פון רבש"ע פאַרזיכערט, אַז עס וועלן זיך פאַר זיי עפענען די פענצטער פונעם הימל אוּן עס וועט הערשן אַזאַ שפע, אַז די יידן וועלן זאָגן — שוין, גענוג עד בלי די. אוּן ווען די חסידים פלעגן הערן די וועדטער, האָבן אַלע געטאַנצט מיט גרויס דבקות אוּן שמחה.

אין דזשקאָוו, ביים רבין ר' אליעזר, איז געווען דער מנהג, אַז דער רבי אַליין פלעגט שמחת תורה וואָרפן עפעלעך צו זיינע חסידים. מיט דעם זיינען זיי שוין געווען פאַרזיכערט מיט פרנסה אויף אַ גאַנץ יאָר. דער רבי ר' מאירל פרעמישלאַנער פלעגט שמחת תורה מאַכן הקפות מיט קלייַנע ספרי תורהס, כּדי עס זאָל זיין לייכטער צו טאַנצן. אַ טייל האָבן געהאַט ספרי תורהס נאָר פּוּנעם בעל שם טוב.

לאָמיר האָפן, אַז שמחת תורה וועט צוריק באַקומען אַ ניי־עס תיקון אוּן מיד וועלן זוכה זיין צו גרויסע שמחת אין אונדזערע ציטן!

מיר וויינטשן אַלע יידן אַ פריילעכן שמחת תורה!

Coast to Coast

Splashing in the shallow end with Sacha Trudeau

According to Reports

By PAUL MICHAELS

Documentary fails to convey nuances of Mideast conflict

Viewers looking for a deeper understanding of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict did not find it in The Fence, a one-hour documentary by Alexandre (Sacha) Trudeau broadcast on CTV's W5 Sept. 18.

Trudeau, the middle son of the late prime minister Pierre Trudeau, began his film by saying, "I tried to love two peoples split by hate." He is clearly aiming to put a human face on the conflict by getting to know people on both sides of the security fence that divides Israel from the northern West Bank.

First, Trudeau introduces the Atars, a prosperous Israeli farming family who live near Afula, not far from the Palestinian town of Jenin. Rami, the Atars' employee, is a Palestinian who has been cut off from his family in Jenin by the fence.

Says Trudeau: "The fence has changed the landscape. It has been built right through people's lives." For Rami, the fence has created a "prison."

While Trudeau reminds the audience that the Israelis view the fence differently, he barely touches on the reasons for its construction. He does refer briefly to Israel's "hope" for the fence: "No more violence from the other side, no more suicide bombings."

Only once, when the Atars' son says that the Palestinians "want all of Israel, all the country, all the land," is there any explanation about why Israel needs the protection of the fence. Never is there any mention that civilians – mainly women and children – have been the principal targets of the suicide bombings.

In fact, Trudeau confuses things further when he says: "The fence has not stopped the occupation of the Palestinian territories by the Israelis." Of course, that was never its purpose. It was built solely for self-defence, and it s unfortunate that this point does not come across.

There are no scenes of the carnage caused by the scores of suicide bombers who came from Jenin. Instead, the comfort and apparent wealth of the Israelis in Afula is contrasted with the plight of the Palestinians in Jenin, who are suffering in bleak circumstances that the viewer can only attribute to the Israeli occupation, not to Palestinian policy.

In an interview with Zaharia, a leader of the Al Aqsa Martyrs Brigades in Jenin, Trudeau naively presents him as a freedom fighter, without ever explaining how Al Aqsa has targeted Israeli civilians. Zaharia is romanticized as a hero of "the resistance," waging a campaign against Israel soldiers. Says Trudeau: "With [Israeli] battle tanks and attack helicopters always on the periphery, the most powerful man in Jenin has no power over his own fate."

Trudeau also implies that while there is a vast asymmetry in firepower (illustrated by lingering shots of Israeli tanks), there is a symmetrical desire on both sides to kill one another. But it is simply not accurate or fair for Trudeau to say that the fence is "separating two peoples who want to kill each other," while omitting the story of how relatively peaceful relations between Israeli and Palestinian neighbours degenerated into the present state of conflict and despair.

Simplistically, Trudeau says: "The fence is more than just a barrier. It's a symbol of the ultimate failure of all goodwill." Whose goodwill? No explanation is given.

Some critics have applauded Trudeau's simple documentary approach of allowing people on both sides to speak for themselves. But is it ungenerous to say that such simplicity results in shallowness?

While one senses Trudeau's good intentions and a caring for social justice, what he ends up with, however unwittingly, is a portrayal of Israel as a society that has achieved wealth and comfort at the expense of the Palestinians.

Israel has succeeded against all odds in achieving great things. Even before its rebirth in 1948, and despite having a state of war imposed upon it, Israel engaged in state-building and democracy. Had the Arab leadership chosen the same path, then and now, we might not be seeing the visceral disparities and suffering we witness in such films.

But in the absence of this context, what conclusion can Canadian viewers draw about Israel?

Paul Michaels is communications director for the Canada-Israel Committee.

eileens pearls and jewelry
Expert Restringing & Restoring Pearls & Gemstones
Custom designed
• Necklaces •Earrings •Bracelets
416-630-1463

Protect Your Table
Made-To-Measure Table Pad
Prevents scratches, burns & spills
Factory Direct Pricing
Free in-home service
Dover Pad
UNBEATABLE QUALITY SINCE 1950
MagnaLoc
Canada Wide: 1-800 354-4445
www.doverpad.ca

Canadian friends of Herzog Hospital - Ezrath Nashim

2004 Gala Concert & Silent Auction

A celebration of

Lily Silver ז"ל

A tribute to her lifetime of generosity and tireless devotion to the Jewish people and the State of Israel

Tuesday, November 16th, 2004 7:00 p.m.

Toronto Centre for the Performing Arts

Featuring: Accapella Group Cadence & Jazz Harpist Joanna Jordan

Lily Silver ז"ל-a woman of valour-a pillar of the Jewish Community of Toronto and an advocate for Israel her entire life. Both in Toronto and after moving to Jerusalem in 1973 with her late husband Nathan, she held volunteer positions in many Jewish Organizations. In Jerusalem she worked diligently for three decades on behalf of Herzog Hospital.

To perpetuate its tribute to her generosity, Herzog Hospital is establishing The Lily Silver Education Center. This much needed facility will enhance the hospital, enrich the Jerusalem community and contribute to the education of hundreds of health care professionals. It is fitting that we pay tribute to Lily with music that she loved so very much.

For Ticket information or how you can join in the tribute to the memory of Lily Silver, please contact:

Canadian Friends of Herzog Hospital, 3101 Bathurst Street, Suite 606, Toronto, Ontario M6A 2A6

Tel. 416-256-4222; Fax 416-256-1446; E Mail: herzoghosp@on.aibn.com

HIGHLAND FARMS

Lower Prices

A lot Less to Pay Everyday

VISIT US TODAY AT FRESHATHIGHLANDFARMS.COM FOR MORE GREAT SAVINGS.

PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, GROWN AT THE HIGHLAND FARMS ORCHARD
fresh, fancy grade
McINTOSH APPLES
3.99 8LB POLY BAG

TROPICANA, PURE PREMIUM, CHILLED JUICE & TROPICS BLENDS
assorted varieties
2.69 1.89LT CARTON

PEPSI, 7-UP
SOFT DRINKS
• regular • diet
assorted varieties
2.99 CASE OF 12x355ML TINS

KRAFT, PHILADELPHIA
CREAM CHEESE
• brick • spreadable
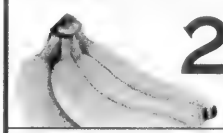
assorted varieties
1.99 250G PKG/TUB

FROM THE TROPICS
fresh
BANANAS
29¢ LB .64/KG



HERMES, FRESH
BAGELS
1.99 PKG OF 6

GAY LEA
SOUR CREAM
• regular • light • fat free
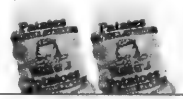
1.49 500ML TUB

OCEAN SPRAY
CRANBERRY COCKTAIL
assorted varieties
2.87 1.89LT PLASTIC BOTTLE

PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, CANADA NO.1
fresh
YUKON GOLD POTATOES
1.99 10LB POLY BAG



EMPIRE, FROZEN
BLINTZE
assorted varieties
3.27 368G PKG

MANISCHEWITZ, YOLK FREE
NOODLES
assorted varieties
87¢ 340G PKG

CERES, 100% PURE
FRUIT JUICE BLEND
assorted varieties
2.29 1LT TETRA

PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, CANADA FANCY
fresh
BARTLETT PEARS
79¢ LB 1.74/KG

STORE HOURS:
MONDAY - SATURDAY 7:00A.M. TILL 10:00P.M.
SUNDAY HOURS 8:00A.M. TILL 8:00P.M.

4750 DUFFERIN ST. AT SUPERTEST RD. 416.736.6606
[illegible] ELLESMERE RD. AT KENNEDY RD. 416.298.1999
148 BENNETT RD. AT LAWRENCE AVE. 416.282.5759
50 MATHESON BLVD. AT HURONTARIO 905.501.9910

KOSHER PRODUCTS AVAILABLE AT THE DUFFERIN LOCATION ONLY.

NESTLÉ, BACI
HAZELNUT CHOCOLATE
9.99 400G BOX

SPECIALS EFFECTIVE THURSDAY, OCTOBER 7TH TO WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 13TH, 2004
CLOSED MONDAY OCTOBER 11TH THANKSGIVING DAY.

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES • UNAUTHORIZED REPRODUCTION OR USE OF THIS ADVERTISEMENT WITHOUT THE WRITTEN CONSENT OF HIGHLAND FARMS AND ITS MARKETING AGENCY IS STRICTLY PROHIBITED.

Rosh Hashanah and Continuity...

This time of year in the Jewish calendar is all about beginnings and recommitments. Thankfully, once again, we are given the opportunity to begin anew and to recommit to the people, the values and the way of life that are most precious to us. If staying connected to the Jewish community in Canada and abroad is part of that new beginning for you, there is no better vehicle for doing so than The Canadian Jewish News.

As a way of helping individuals launch their new beginnings, The CJN is introducing a special continuity subscription offer in time for Rosh Hashanah. We have decided to offer our readers a special, one-time opportunity to provide their children or their grandchildren with their own subscription to The CJN.

A gift subscription for your child or grandchild, who does not already subscribe to The CJN, will cost $19.95 (taxes included) for one full year to anywhere in Canada.

Over the past few years, The CJN has grown and evolved into an award-winning national community newspaper widely read both here in Canada and abroad. We are extremely proud of this publication.

Could there be a better gift at Rosh Hashanah for your child or grandchild than the opportunity to feel part of the Jewish community?

Sincerely,

Mordechai Ben-Dat

The editor.

Downtown Toronto's Newest Boutique Hotel
The GRAND HOTEL TORONTO
Reservations 1.877.32.GRAND
Book On-line at www.grandhoteltoronto.com

The Canadian Jewish news
144 Pages — Thursday, September 25, 2003 — 29 Elul, 5763 — 75¢

FLY TO ISRAEL AND GET L.A. FOR $200
Ask for details (available until Oct. 31, 2003)
Call your travel agent
EL AL ISRAEL AIRLINES

This Week
National
New envoy seeks to promote tourism and trade Page 3
Israelis, Palestinians have much in common, Efrat chief rabbi says. Page 15
Rosh Hashanah 5764
Retelling the account of the expulsion of Jews from Arab countries. Section B
Arts & Travel
Anita Doron: from the Carpathians to Canada. Page 60
Sports & Leisure
New magazine focuses on skateboarding Page 70

Index
GTA ... 3
Editorials & Letters ... 10
Perspectives ... 11
Opinions ... 12
The Kirshner File ... 13
Jewish Life ... 27
Yiddish Corner ... 32
Coast to Coast ... 36
Holiday Food Ideas ... 44
Israel & the Jewish World ... 51
Arts & Travel ... 58
Health & Lifestyles ... 62
Classified ... 63
Sports & Leisure ... 70
30 Something ... 71
What's New ... B70
www.cjnews.com
Canada Post Publication Agreement #1573430 Publication Mail Registration #10989

[Sid Shoub photo]

For the sake of the children

Editorial

The two youngsters, whose unaffected curiosity is flawlessly captured by the camera, are children of Israel.

The cloudless, deep blue sky behind them belies the storm of terror that has broken upon the land these past three years. Alas, there appears no imminent sign on the horizon that the storm will abate.

Israeli cabinet minister Natan Sharansky recently told a Toronto audience about a new, terror-induced phenomenon that has taken hold in Jerusalem.

Members of families leave notes of love whenever they leave the house. However mundane and routine the reason for the departure – a child going to school, a parent to work or a sibling merely going shopping – a note of love and of possible farewell is left behind, usually on the kitchen table, so that no words might be left unsaid in the cruel event that the child or the parent does not return home.

We therefore greet the coming year as we did last the one: with hope in our hearts and a prayer on our lips that this year will bring the people of Israel closer to peace.

Rosh Hashanah is the holiday of judgment. We are sustained by the traditional belief that one of the key underpinnings of our world is justice, even though it is not always apparent to our merely human sensibility and understanding.

But where is the justice, we cry out, when suicide bombers wantonly and deliberately slaughter children returning from an outing at the Kotel?

Where is the justice, we cry out, when the United Nations General Assembly protects the chief planner and practitioner of terrorism?

Where is the justice, we cry out, over and over again?

Continued on page 10

Shabbat: Rosh Hashanah
Candlelighting: 6:51
Havdallah: 7:56
Greater Toronto Area

Don't miss an issue. Call 416-391-1836 today to have The Canadian Jewish News delivered to your door every week.

We extend greetings for a Shanah Tovah to all our readers

The Canadian Jewish news

1500 DON MILLS ROAD, STE. 205
NORTH YORK, ONTARIO M3B 3K4
TELEPHONE: 416-391-1836

SPECIAL OFFER
GIFT SUBSCRIPTION
$19.95
Offer valid until Oct. 31/04

CJN SUBSCRIPTION RATES

$19.95* 1 YR. CANADA ❑
*G.S.T IS INCLUDED
G.S.T. #R105201149
$100.00 U.S. 1YR. U.S. A. ❑
$110.00 U.S. 1YR. FOREIGN ❑

PLEASE RETURN WITH YOUR PAYMENT.

AMOUNT ENCLOSED$ _____
CHEQUE ENCLOSED ❑ OR VISA ❑
OR MASTERCARD ❑ OR AMEX ❑
NUMBER _____
EXPIRY DATE _____
SIGNATURE _____

Gift from:

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
Province _____ Postal Code _____

Please send The Canadian Jewish News to:

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
Province _____ Postal Code _____

FUTURE RENEWAL NOTICES TO DONOR ❑ RECIPIENT ❑

Fall in love with us.
Vibrant Retirement Residence and Assisted Living at Eglinton and Dufferin.

- Full range of services and care
- Not-for-profit community
- Culturally diverse/Multi-faith
- Recuperative/Respite care
- All-inclusive starting at $45/day

St. Hilda's Towers Come Smile.

416-781-6621

DAILY TOURS CALL TODAY www.sthildastowers.com

RENT A CAR

TAMIR תמיר

Enjoy your stay in Israel

with the best car rental prices, no hidden extras...

rate includes:

- All Airport charges
- Free extra driver
- Free baby seat
- Free mobile telephone
- Free delivery & pick-up anywhere in Israel (except Eilat)

For Reservation call Yehuda Ehrlich
1-800-to-TAMIR, 1-800-868-2647
or (732) 246-416. Fax: (732) 246-3935
www.tamir-rental.co.il

ALL INCLUSIVE STRICTLY KOSHER PACKAGE AT THE HYATT REGENCY HOTEL

ACAPULCO

JANUARY 18, 2005 FOR EITHER 1 or 2 WEEKS
1 Week: $1799.00 p.p. based on Double Occupancy (Tax Inc.)
2 Weeks: $2599.00 p.p. based on Double Occupancy (Tax Inc.)

WHAT'S INCLUDED
- Return airfare from Toronto-Acapulco-Toronto
- Ground Transfers Airport-Hotel-Airport
- Accommodation: 2 Doubles or 1 King Bed
- Domestic Drinks from 10:00 AM-11:00 PM
- 3 Meals a day
- Friday Night Kosher Buffet Dinner with Wine
- Shabbat Brunch Buffet with coffee & tea
- Hotel taxes, service & gratuities

Full on-site Kosher Supervision offered by the Vaad Hakashrut of Mexico - Mashgiach is Rabbi Meir Antebi, member of the USA Orthodox Union
Mashgiah on-site certification (Glatt Kosher, Mehadrin, Bishul Yisrael, Maran Beth Yossef) with exclusive Koshered kitchen. - Cholov Israel
- Magnificent Synagogue with orthodox prayer services
- Beautiful Mikveh services – reserved for women
- Shabbat Elevator

Book before October 22 & recieve this deal

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION & RESERVATIONS
CALL MAX BENAIM @ 416.644.6561 or 1.800.667.2069
E-mail: max@avenuetravel.ca
Fax: 416.787.5632
288 Lawrence Ave, Toronto, Ontario M5M 1B3

Carlson Wagonlit Travel Avenue Travel Limited HYATT

G.S.T. #100360130 - ONT> REG 2730815 & 4113833

On Campus

Guest Voice

Life on the other side

By ALISA MITCHELL
Special to The CJN

A September not filled with back-to-school blues is what every university student dreams about. No class schedules to juggle, no term papers or exams to fear, and no looming deadlines. This September, for thousands of graduates across Canada, the fantasy finally became a reality. I am one of those lucky graduates. After four years at McGill University, I can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Yet, as the excitement of graduation continues to subside, it is starting to dawn on me that perhaps the grass isn't actually greener on the other side of the schoolyard. In fact, after hours on the Internet staring blankly at intimidating graduate school applications and weeks of unsuccessful job hunting, I am beginning to realize that life after undergraduate university is actually terrifying.

Last year, I decided that I would take a year off to work and apply to graduate school for next fall, but as the time goes on, it's becoming abundantly clear that entry-level jobs for graduates are hard to come by and graduate schools are extremely difficult to get into.

While those realities were hard to digest initially, they weren't the problems that bothered me most. What did bother me most was that I didn't feel prepared to meet the challenges. I felt overwhelmed at the uncharted territory that I was facing, and suddenly the familiar horrors of school didn't seem so bad anymore. I was beginning to wonder if this plan to take a year off before graduate school was really such a good idea.

As in the case of many other graduates, my desire to take a year out stemmed from my inability to handle both the pressures of school and decision-making for the future at once. As my friend Heather, a McGill graduate, put it, "Juggling school and the anxiety over jobs and grad school was too stressful last year on top of a full course load."

Even though I knew I had made the right choice for me, I couldn't help but feel that my decision to take a year off had led me to a dead end. People around me were telling me to get used to this unsettled feeling because life itself is stressful. I decided that even if they were right, I couldn't bear feeling so defeated only weeks after graduating.

I decided to find out what resources were out there to help graduates such as myself. I started by looking close to home at the services that universities provide undergraduate and recent graduate students. All schools have services that provide job counselling, help with resumés and various ways to access job listings. The question is, however, are they helpful?

My friend Oren, a political science major from McGill, told me that the problem he is facing this year is that he can't find the right volunteer and internship positions to give him the experience he is looking for. Oren says he sought the help of the Career Advancement Placement Service (CAPS) at McGill and that the help he received was very limited: "I met with a career counsellor and they just kept saying over and over that I should pursue what I am interested in; they didn't actually give me any helpful tips on exactly how to do that."

However, another friend of mine, Eikka, a McGill economics graduate, who used CAPS but did not meet with a counsellor, told me that he finds its online website, workopoliscampus.com, extremely helpful because "it's designed for students, and the employers who use it are actually looking for students and graduates, so even if it says you need experience, you know they only mean experience such as a summer job, not actual full-time working experience."

Another friend of mine, Jessica, a York University graduate, says that the services available to her at York are wonderful. She received help making her resumé, discussed volunteer and internship programs with staff at the university's student services and got tips on filling out grad-school applications. However, Jessica does add that she has been proactive in seeking out help, emphasizing that "you have to seek it out yourself if you want it."

After evaluating the services available on campus, I looked off campus and found that Human Resources Development Canada (HRDC) provides help for resumé writing and access to job postings similar to the services available on campus. However, this route has a disadvantage because the job postings are not only for students, as they are on workopoliscampus.com. HRDC does, however, offer extensive help with resumé writing; you can take a resumé-writing workshop or you can have someone look at your resumé on a one-on-one basis.

After looking both on and off campus, the consensus seems to be that there are some resources available to help graduates and undergrads approaching graduation. Our collective experience is that some of these services are helpful and some of them simply are not. However, it is important to remember that not all the services will have what you are looking for, but that doesn't mean they don't exist somewhere else. You must be your own advocate and make the effort to find the help that suits you.

Continued on page 29

It is with great pleasure that we announce

DR. TRACY L. BERMAN

is joining

DR. SHARON PERLMUTTER

in her practice of

GENERAL, FAMILY AND COSMETIC DENTISTRY

1-500 Glencairn Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M6B 1Z1

Telephone: 416 783 2272

We welcome all new patients!

The Canadian Shaare Zedek Hospital Foundation

would like to offer
our deepest condolences to Shoel Silver and the Silver family on the passing of

Lily Silver ז"ל

an extraordinary lady of tzedaka, chessed and supreme loyalty to Israel

The Canadian SHAARE ZEDEK Hospital Foundation

Canadian leads European Jewish Students Union to new political role

Continued from page 1

The EUJS is more than an umbrella for Jewish student groups: it plays a significant political role within the European institutions and other international bodies as the representative of young Jewish people aged 18 to 30, noted Nachfolger during a recent visit to his hometown of Montreal.

His task is to promote the work of the EUJS both in Europe and internationally within other cultural and social organizations. Inter-cultural and inter-religious dialogue is a major focus.

The vibrancy of the EUJS should put to the lie the image that the European Jewish communities are old and dying out, he said. While anti-Semitism and anti-Zionism are issues, young European Jews are not cowering in fear, but rather are politically active, he said.

Nachfolger believes that Canada, with its success in multiculturalism, can serve as a model, as Europe moves toward ever greater integration and its population grapples with the meaning of nationality. This is no less true among young Jews, who generally have strong sense of identification with their country, he said.

Nachfolger was appointed to the position in June, after graduating in law from McGill University. His relationship with the EUJS began last year when he was appointed its first American Jewish Committee Fellow, and helped organize the 2003 Summer University in Thessaloniki, Greece, attended by 500 students.

Earlier that year, he was employed as a member of the legal team with the German forced labour compensation program at the International Organization for Migration in Geneva, helping to process thousands of claims. He was also involved with the Gedenkdienst program, which allows young Austrians to volunteer at Jewish institutions overseas in lieu of military service, while working at the Montreal Holocaust Memorial Centre.

With the notable exception of the United Kingdom, the national Jewish student unions in Europe are usually funded by the state and are not linked to any one educational institution, he said.

More than half of the EUJS's "large and complicated" budget, which he manages, comes from the European Commission and the Council of Europe, Nachfolger said.

"In many ways the title of student union is a misnomer, as the EUJS is active in a wide range of pan-European issues concerning the Jewish community and other minorities in Europe," he said.

Its annual programming consists of four or five regional seminars, mostly held in conjunction with the Council of Europe. This year's Summer University, the largest such event, was held outside Berlin. "The historical and cultural significance of this location was of great importance to us," he said.

Nachfolger heads four full-time staff in Brussels. His working languages are English and French, although his knowledge of German comes in handy. Being a non-European has proved to be no hindrance, he said.

"In terms of relating to what European Jewish students are concerned with, I can say that these concerns differ so much from country to country that the position requires, more than anything else, an ability to relate to a wide variety of different realities and situations regardless of nationality."

Nachfolger spends much of his time travelling to the EUJS's constituents.

"In France and Belgium, students are very concerned with the rise of anti-Semitic attacks. However, in eastern Europe, for example, students are interested in seeking out more Jewish programming focused on developing a stronger sense of Jewish identity."

Attitude starting to shift

Continued from page 28

As for my personal journey, I think my attitude is starting to shift in a positive direction. Knowing that there are resources available to me hasn't changed the fact that I face many challenges, both this year and in life. However, it is empowering to know that all I had to do to get out of my post-graduation rut was to look for tools to help me dig out.

As for life on the other side, finding some help has led me to believe that it is probably not so bad out there. So, when people tell you that this is what life is like, stressful and uncertain… just ignore them and start digging.

FAMOUS ITALIAN DESIGNER LABEL BLOW OUT
FIRST TIME EVER
DIESEL Marlboro Classics GAS
FIRST QUALITY FALL & WINTER MERCHANDISE
50-90% OFF EVERYTHING
TUESDAY, OCT. 5TH TO SUNDAY, OCT. 11TH ONLY!
MONDAY-FRIDAY .....11 AM - 9 PM
SATURDAY .....10 AM - 6 PM
SUNDAY .....12 NOON - 5 PM
2 GREAT LOCATIONS
508 Bloor St. East of Bathurst 416-532-8755
617B College St. (upstairs) West of Clinton (Next to Gigolo's) 416-536-9669
EVERYTHING MUST GO!
PRESENTED BY
brooker's & TRENDWEAR
NEW ARRIVALS DAILY
1 Hour Free Parking Minimum $125 Purchase
All Major Credit Cards Accepted
• SWEATERS • OUTERWEAR • JACKETS • SHOES •
• JEANS • PANTS • T-SHIRTS • ACCESSORIES •

YOU CAN'T PUT A BANDAGE ON TERRORISM

But you can help us try to stop the bleeding.

Within seconds, a terrorist strike in Jerusalem can cause devastating losses and massive injuries. Within minutes, victims arrive at the Shaare Zedek Medical Center. Shaare Zedek is overburdened by growing demand for its life-saving emergency care. A new 32,300 square foot Emergency Department, opening this year, will become Jerusalem's premier emergency facility. But equipment costs and other critical needs still outweigh the resources.

You can't put a bandage on terrorism. But you can help us save lives.
Please give generously to The Canadian Shaare Zedek Hospital Foundation.

The Canadian SHAARE ZEDEK Hospital Foundation

Please make a donation today.
Call 1-800-387-3595 ext 104, or 416-781-3584 ext 104.

© 2004 Canadian Shaare Zedek Hospital Foundation. All donations are tax deductible.

Books & Authors

Cohen: 'Arguably Montreal's most famous Jew'

By MICHAEL REGENSTREIF
Special to The CJN

In From the Ghetto to the Main: The Story of the Jews of Montreal, author Joe King describes Leonard Cohen as "arguably Montreal's most famous Jew."

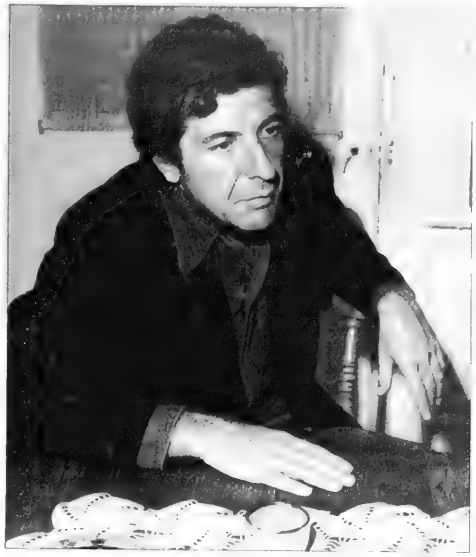
Indeed, the reclusive poet, novelist and singer-songwriter, who has lived away from Montreal – in Greece and the United States – for most of his adult life, but who visits here frequently, has been the subject of numerous books, documentary films and academic conferences.

When Cohen turned 70 in September, there were concerts, poetry readings and other gatherings held in his honour in far-flung places around the world.

Cohen was born in Montreal in 1934 to one of the city's most prominent Jewish families. That year, Cohen's paternal grandfather, Lyon Cohen, ended a 15-year tenure as founding president of the Canadian Jewish Congress. His maternal grandfather, Rabbi Solomon Klinitsky-Klein, was a prominent talmudic scholar. Nathan Cohen, Leonard's father, a clothing manufacturer, died when the boy was just nine years old. Masha Cohen, his mother, from whom he inherited a love for songs and poetry, died in 1978.

Growing up, Cohen studied extensively with his grandfather, Rabbi Klintsky-Klein, and was profoundly influenced by him on several levels. He and the rabbi would spend many hours discussing the meaning of a single sentence. Cohen has said he often devotes similar amounts of time, sometimes more, to a turn of phrase in a poem or song. As well, there are the biblical and Judaic themes in much of his work.

As a McGill University student in the early 1950s, Cohen began to make his mark as a poet. His first book of poems, Let Us Compare Mythologies, was published in 1956 and Cohen quickly became one of the city's major English-language literary figures. In 1957, along with mentors Irving Layton, Louis Dudek, Frank Scott and A.M. Klein, he was recorded for a Folkways album of Montreal poetry. Other acclaimed books of poetry soon followed.



Leonard Cohen
[CJN File photo]

In 1963, Cohen's first novel, The Favorite Game, was published. Cohen's protagonist, Lawrence Breavman, was clearly based on himself: the character is the son of a prominent Jewish family from Westmount who loses his father early and achieves literary fame as a university student. The book vividly describes Breavman's coming of age, his move from beyond the parochial world of his upbringing into Bohemian circles and the conflicts of a Jewish man falling in love with a gentile woman.

A second novel, the abstract and somewhat difficult Beautiful Losers, followed in 1966. That book was an experimental, post-modern novel about the obsessions of a love triangle that seemingly drew its inspiration from the conflicts between the French, the English and the First Nations in both colonial times and in the contemporary world of Quebec's Quiet Revolution.

In his youth, Cohen learned to play guitar and dabbled with traditional folk songs. As a McGill student, he briefly played in the Buckskin Boys, an amateur country and western trio.

Eventually, Cohen's interest in music and poetry would intertwine in song. Around the time that Beautiful Losers was published, Cohen turned his attention to songwriting.

The 1960s were an exciting time for innovative songwriters. Bob Dylan had combined the influences of Woody Guthrie and traditional American folk music with the literary influences of beat poets and novelists like Allan Ginsberg and Jack Kerouac, thereby redefining what could be accomplished in a song. Cohen attended Dylan's 1966 concert at Place des Arts and was drawn to that creative challenge. Ultimately, it was as a singer-song-writer that Cohen would attain his most enduring fame.

Continued on page 32

MARSHALL ARTS
presents
The Diary of Anne Frank by Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett, newly adapted by Wendy Kesselman

Jennifer Waiser Andrew Gillies
Carol Lempert Shira Leuchter Sarah Dodd
Philip Shepherd Gabriel Plener Eric Weinthal
Kelly Bolt William Bicket Attila Schwarze
Dan Walmsley Thom Speck

Produced by Jeff Marshall
Directed by Alexander Galant

October 1 - November 7, 2004
Bathurst Street Theatre
736 Bathurst Street

Wed - Sat @ 8pm and Sun @ 2pm
Tickets: $25/$35

TICKETKING
(416) 872-1212
Group Discount Available

www.diaryofannefrank.ca

AVODA
DOMESTIC & HOUSE CARE SERVICES
Fully Bonded & Insured
We are the solution for all your house-cleaning needs
416-650-1010
AVODA ...
Gift certificates are now available

PROVINCIAL TABLE PADS
Manufacturers of Custom-built Table Pads
•Free in-home service
•Made in Canada
•Choose from 3 qualities
•Best service -price -quality

LOWEST PRICES GUARANTEED
Toronto..... 416-283-2508
Hamilton..... 905-383-1343
Ottawa..... 613-247-3334
Canada Wide.. 1-800-668-7439
www.ptpads.com

JAGUAR
LAND-ROVER
THORNHILL
SALES • LEASING
SERVICE • PARTS
434 Steeles Ave. W.
2 Blocks W. of Yonge
905-889-0080

dominion rug a carpet adventure since 1947

Visit Our Guild Showroom For Exclusive Brands Of Fine, Luxury Carpeting.
The International Design Guild™ is the largest alliance of fine, decorative floor covering showrooms in the world. Here, you'll find the world's most extensive selection of luxury carpeting. Including our stunning elanté and Louis Dabbieri signature collections. You'll also find that our customer service is unsurpassed. Stop by today to save 50% off select items.
International Design Guild
3420 Yonge Street (1 mile South of 401) Tel: 416-485-9488

28th ANNUAL
Jewish BOOK FAIR
NOVEMBER 4-14th, 2004

Dennis Prager

Naomi Ragen

Special Speakers to Open Jewish Book Fair

Thursday, November 4 at 8:00 pm
Naomi Ragen, author of The Covenant, speaks on
A View From Israel. Sponsored by Albert J. and Temmy Latner Jewish Public Library $18

Saturday, November 6 8:30 pm
Dennis Prager, author of Why the Jews? speaks on
The Reasons for Antisemitism. Sponsored by Canadian Friends of Tel Aviv University $18

Koffler Centre of the Arts presents
28th Annual Jewish Book Fair
November 4 - November 14
Leah Posluns Theatre
Bathurst Jewish Community Centre

Norman Jewison

Peter C. Newman

Nessa Rapoport

Tobi Kahn

Saturday, November 7

7:00 pm DAVID BEZMOZGIS, author of Natasha and Other Stories speaks on The Russian Jewish Immigrant Experience in Canada and AVNER MANDELMAN, author of Cuckoo, speaks on Living in Israel - Not as Easy as You Think.

Sponsored by The Canadian Jewish News $10

Sunday, November 7

11:00 am ELANA WOLFF, author of Mask, speaks on The Art and Life of Artist Charlotte Salamon. FREE

12 NOON Shmooze with authors HY BURSHTEIN, author of Ride 'Em, Jewish Cowboy and JUDY GORDON, author of Four Hundred Brothers and Sisters, Part Two.

1:30 pm NATHAN GARNICK presents A Wedding in Shtetl - The World of Isaac Bashevis Singer, commemorating the centenary of the Nobel Laureate's Birth. A Literary - Musical Revue in Yiddish and English. With Jeannette Stein, Faye Zeidman, Cantor Ronald Graner, Avra Fainer, Nathan Garnick, Nathan Rosen and other artists.

Sponsored by the Lipa Green Endowment Fund $5

2:00 pm ANNE DUBLIN, author of Bobbie Rosenfeld, The Olympian Who Could Do Everything speaks on One of Canada's all-round Great Athletes. Slide show. FREE

3:30 pm Facing Life's Crises: Three Perspectives LAINIE COHEN, author of Crooked Smile: One Family's Journey Toward Healing; TILDA SHALOF, author of A Nurse's Story: Life, Death and In-Between in an Intensive Care Unit; MARA KOVEN and LIZ PEARL, co-authors of Mourning Has Broken: A Collection of Creative Writing About Grief and Healing.

Sponsored by Reena, supporting people with developmental difficulties. FREE

4:00 pm SIMCHA SIMCHOVITCH reads from his new book Nokh Dem Blut-Mabul; Reviews and Essays about Writers and Historical Events (After the Blood Inundation). GERRY KANE will review the book. Lenka Lichtenberg sings from SIMCHA SIMCHOVITCH'S books of poems. Introduced by Sholem Hershkop.

Program funded by The Toronto Arts Council through The League of Canadian Poets. Sponsored by LZA Seniors Yiddish Club. $5

7:30 pm DR. DAVID GREENBERG, author of Sanity and Sanctity: Mental Health Work Among the Ultra-Orthodox in Jerusalem speaks on Mysticism and Madness: The Impact of Mysticism on Mental Stability.

Sponsored by The Jewish Health Alliance: A Social and Professional Network for Health-Care Providers and Canadian Friends of Herzog Hospital - Ezrath Nashim. $10

8:00 pm LAURIE GRAFF, author of You Have to Kiss a Lot of Frogs: Tales from the Dating Pond speaks on A Remarkable Dating Career: Fix-Ups, Chance Encounters and Missed Opportunities.

Sponsored by Kolel: The Adult Centre for Liberal Jewish Learning Reviving Eden $10

Monday, November 8

1:30 pm MIRIAM BASSIN CHINSKY, reads from her book The Tailor's Daughter - Growing Up in North Toronto and EVELYN WOLFE, reads from Stray Cats and Other Loves: Growing Up Jewish in Toronto.

Sponsored by Canadian Seaway Branch, Women's League for Conservative Judaism Free

8:00 pm STEPHANIE WELLEN LEVINE speaks on her book Mystics, Mavericks and Merrymakers: An Intimate Journey Among Hasidic Girls. $10

Tuesday, November 9

10:30 am Play performed by the Dr. Abraham Shore Shearim Hebrew Day School, Sara and Sam Hennick Education Centre. Play based on book, Onions and Garlic by ERIC KIMMEL.
Ages 7+ Students $1 Adults $3

1:30 pm EVA WISEMAN, speaks on her latest book, No One Must Know. Ages 10-14. Adults welcome. Students $1/Adults $3

8:00 pm MICHAEL POSNER, arts and feature writer for the National Post, and author of The Last Honest Man: Mordecai Richler An Oral Biography speaks on Mordecai Richler's Cultural and Political Views.

Sponsored by Canadian Friends of Peace Now $10

Wednesday, November 10

10:30 am Shearim School play based on book, Onions and Garlic by ERIC KIMMEL [See Tuesday, Nov. 9, 10:30 am]

1:30 pm KATHY KACER speaks on her latest book, The Underground Reporters: A True Story. This is the fourth book in the series The Holocaust Remembrance Series for Young Readers.

For ages 8-11. Adults welcome. Students $1 Adults $3

8:00 pm Movie producer/director NORMAN JEWISON speaks on his autobiography, This Terrible Business Has Been Good to Me.

Sponsored by Canadian Friends of Hebrew University. $10

Thursday, November 11

10:30 am & 1:30 pm KATHY KACER speaks on her latest book, The Underground Reporters: A True Story [see Wednesday, November 10 at 1:30].

8:00 pm PETER C. NEWMAN, author of Here be Dragons speaks on Tales of People, Passion and Power.

Sponsored by Na'amat Canada $10

Saturday, November 13

8:00 pm STEWART BELL, author of Cold Terror: How Canada Nurtures and Exports Terrorism Around the World speaks on Our National Security and the Terrorists Who Live Among Us.

Sponsored by B'nai Brith Canada $10

Sunday, November 14

11:00 am ANDREW SANDERS speaks on his latest historical novel, My Husband Bar Kokhba.

Sponsored by Kehillat Shaare Torah FREE

11:00 am LAUNCH OF PARCHMENT
13th Annual Journal of Creative Jewish Writing.
Book Launch of Ricochet: Word Sonnets by Seymour Mayne. With Coffee and Bagels.
AT THE MILES S. NADAL JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTRE. FREE

1:30 pm The Yetta and Shloime Steinhart Yiddish Lecture featuring new book Sing and Learn Yiddish by CAROL AND MUNI BASMAN. Guest Performer JERRY GRAY.

Sponsored by Committee for Yiddish, UJA Federation, Friends of Yiddish, Kultur Geselshaft, United Jewish People's Order, Morris Winchevsky School, Workmen's Circle of Toronto and Label Basman Scholarship Memorial Fund $5

3:00 pm JOSEPH E. TENENBAUM, author of Legacy and Redemption speaks on A Life Renewed.

Sponsored by The Holocaust Centre of Toronto. FREE

3:30 pm JILL CULINER, author of Finding Home: In the Footsteps of the Jewish Fusgeyers speaks on Fleeing Persecution: The Romanian Jews Who Walked Across Europe to Find Freedom.

Sponsored by Sumach Press. FREE

4:30 pm BENNETT MURASKIN speak on his new book, Let Justice Well Up Like Water: Progressive Jews from Hillel to Helen Suzman

Sponsored by Oraynu Congregation for Humanistic Judaism FREE

7:00 pm Writing the Jewish Mystery with SYLVIA MAULTASH WARSH, author of Find Me Again; ALVIN ABRAM, author of An Eye for an Eye and ROBERT MAJZELS, author of Apikoros Sleuth.

Sponsored by The Miriam Alkin Memorial Fund in support of Jewish Education $10

8:00 pm The Marriage of Verbal and Visual. NESSA RAPOPORT, speaks on her newest book, The River: A Summer Journey and TOBI KAHN, artist and author of Objects of the Spirit: Ritual Art of Tobi Kahn [accompanying meditations by Nessa Rapoport]. An exciting literary and artistic presentation by a creative couple who say "He shows her how to see the world; she finishes his sentences." $10

UJA FEDERATION · KOFFLER CENTRE OF THE ARTS · BATHURST JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTRE · United Way of Greater Toronto

Jewish Book Fair is a program of the Koffler Centre of the Arts at the Bathurst Jewish Community Centre with the cooperation of UJA Federation.

Ticket orders by phone at 416-636-1880, ext. 368 or in person at the Leah Posluns Theatre Box Office, 4588 Bathurst Street
Box Office Hours: Monday through Friday 10:00 am to 4:00 pm. Programs subject to change. No Refunds on tickets and books.
Parking and Entrance to Jewish Book Fair is FREE. More at our website: www.bjcc.ca. Become a Patron of Jewish Book Fair!

Toronto's Ultimate Source for Carpet, Tile, Stone & Hardwood Flooring.

Toronto's only authorized Stainmaster Flooring Centre

TORONTO LOCATION:
4965 Steeles Avenue West (at Weston Road), North York, ON M9L 1R4
Tel: (416) 745-8518 www.trustflooring.com

NEWMARKET LOCATION:
105 Harry Walker Parkway, Newmarket, ON L3Y 7B3 Tel: (905) 836-8029

JOIN THE ONE ISRAEL FUND AND THE ROUTES JEWISH CENTRE IN

"A Salute to Israel's Soldiers And Her Artists"

FEATURING

THE ISRAEL DEFENSE FORCE CHOIR

INTERNATIONALLY RENOWNED PERFORMER
SHLOMO SIMCHA

SPECIAL GUEST APPEARANCE BY AVICHAI ZEHAVI

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 2004

SHA'AREI SHOMAYIM SYNAGOGUE

SHOW TIME: 8:00PM

SILENT AUCTION; ISRAELI ART VENDORS: 7:00P.M. - 8:00PM

TO PURCHASE TICKETS:
905-482-9488 EXT.3

TICKET PRICES:
$18, $36, $54, $150 TICKETS RECEIVE A $100 TAX RECEIPT

PROCEEDS FOR HUMANITARIAN PROJECTS IN ISRAEL

THE KOFFLER SCHOOL OF MUSIC

PRESENTS
Canada's Favourite Folk Group

THE TRAVELLERS

HONOURING THE MUSIC OF America's Favourite Folk Group

THE WEAVERS

Monday, October 18, 2004
8:00 pm
The Leah Posluns Theatre
4588 Bathurst St.
Tickets: $30 in advance $35 at the door.
For information & tickets please call 416.636.1880 x228

BATHURST JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTRE
UJA FEDERATION Together We're Stronger
KOFFLER CENTRE OF THE ARTS

Books & Authors

Career as a songwriter launched in 1967

Continued from page 30

When a mutual friend arranged for Cohen to meet Judy Collins, the popular folksinger, he sang two of his earliest songs for her: Suzanne, filled with images evoking Old Montreal (regarded by many to be the great Montreal song); and the harrowing, Bertolt Brecht-like, Dress Rehearsal Rag.

Collins recorded both songs on an album released in 1967 and Cohen's career as a major contemporary songwriter was launched. Within a year, his own first record album, Songs of Leonard Cohen, was released to critical acclaim.

Jewish, or Jewish-influenced, themes were present in some of Cohen's early songs and have continued to recur to the present. One of the key songs on Cohen's first album was The Stranger Song. Although Cohen voices the song as an observer singing in the third person, the listener is left with the impression that Cohen himself is, indeed, "the stranger." Cohen's imagery of the stranger in this song is highly influenced by the thesis of Jewish philosopher Franz Rosenzweig that the Jewish people are, by definition, strangers in the Diaspora countries in which they live.

Another early example of Jewish themes in Cohen's songwriting can be found in Story of Isaac, a song based on the biblical story of Abraham preparing to sacrifice his son, which appeared on his second album, Songs From a Room. Here Cohen sings in the first person, from Isaac's perspective, of being led to the sacrifice. Ultimately, Cohen turns the song into a rabbinic-style morality lesson on the ethics of one generation sacrificing the lives of the next.

Cohen was in Greece when the Yom Kippur War broke out in 1973. Immediately, he flew to Israel with his guitar and performed concerts for the soldiers at the front lines, an episode that he would invoke a quarter-century later when his commitment to Judaism was called into question when he became involved in Zen Buddhism.

As a poet and songwriter, Cohen sees himself as part of a tradition that goes back to biblical times. Hallelujah, which he first recorded in 1984 on the Various Positions album, and which is one of his most-covered songs by other artists (Bob Dylan sang it at a 1988 concert in Montreal), invokes images of King David composing his own Hallelujah, and praising God just as he's tempted by Bathsheba.

In the late 1980s and early 1990s, Cohen's career as a recording and performing artist reached new heights of popularity. Each new recording achieved great critical acclaim. His concert tours filled theatres around the world and he was the recipient of a long list of awards including several Junos, membership in the Canadian Music Hall of Fame and the Order of Canada, an honorary doctorate from McGill, the Governor-General's Performing Arts Award and many others.

Then at the height of his success, Cohen withdrew from public life in 1994 and moved to the Mount Baldy Zen Centre in California. Zen is a branch of Buddhism that stresses meditation and offers no discussion of God. In 1996, he became a Zen monk.

There were some who used the incident to call Cohen's commitment to Judaism into question. According to Cohen, his practice of Zen was not contradictory to being Jewish. In an excerpt from Not a Jew, a 1997 poem, Cohen wrote:

"Anyone who says
I'm not a Jew is not a Jew
I'm very sorry
but this is final

So says:
Eliezar, son of Nissan,
priest of Israel;
a.k.a.
Nightingale of the Sinai,
Yom Kippur 1973;
a.k.a.
Jikan the Unconvincing
Zen monk,
a.k.a.
Leonard Cohen…"

In 1999, Cohen left Mount Baldy and moved to Los Angeles. In 2002, he told an interviewer for the Los Angeles Weekly that the years he spent at the Zen centre had strengthened his commitment to Judaism.

"You just enter into that 4,000-year-old conversation with God and the sages," he said.

Plans on releasing new album soon

In 2001, Cohen released a new album called Ten New Songs, and one of the most striking songs was By the Rivers Dark, a song inspired by Psalm 137, attributed to the prophet Jeremiah, which laments the destruction of the first Temple and the exile of the Jews to Babylon.

Later this month, Cohen will release a new album of songs called Dear Heather. Interestingly, Cohen uses three songs on the album to recall his roots in the Montreal literary scene and pay tribute to Frank Scott, Irving Layton and A.M. Klein, three of his poetry mentors. To A Teacher, dedicated to Klein, is a musical setting of a poem with several Judaic references that was written while the older poet was battling mental illness. The poem was first published in Cohen's 1961 book, The Spice-Box of Earth.

In addition to the new album, Cohen is also working on a new collection of poems and drawings to be called Book of Longing.

Although Cohen has said that he has no plans to perform in concert tours, at 70, "Montreal's most famous Jew," shows no signs of retiring or slowing down from his creative drive.

A time to celebrate endings and beginnings

By LISA J. SOLOMON
Special to The CJN

I looked in the holiday section of my well-worn collection of Jewish cookbooks to see if there were foods specific to Simchat Torah. One cookbook from the Ahavath Achim Synagogue Sisterhood in Atlanta (©1975), suggested an entire menu starting with wine and challah, and continuing with chicken with almonds, a yom tov carrot ring and rum pie. It sounded interesting, but too ambitious.

Another book, Love and Knishes by Sara Kasdan (©1956), did not mention food for the holiday, but I learned the cook's version of a mechayeh (Yiddish for pleasure, joy) is "someone else doing the dishes."

Finally, in my largest book, Spice and Spirit (Lubavitch Women's Cookbook Publications, ©1990), I learned that stuffed cabbage is considered a traditional Simchat Torah food. Why? The cabbage rolled around the meat is representative of Torah scrolls.

As much as I love food images working with holiday meanings, I didn't have it in me to start rolling cabbage, or anything else, around the kitchen. It had been barely two months since my daughter and I arrived in our new apartment in Texas, and I was still trying to find my way and recover from the shock of newness.

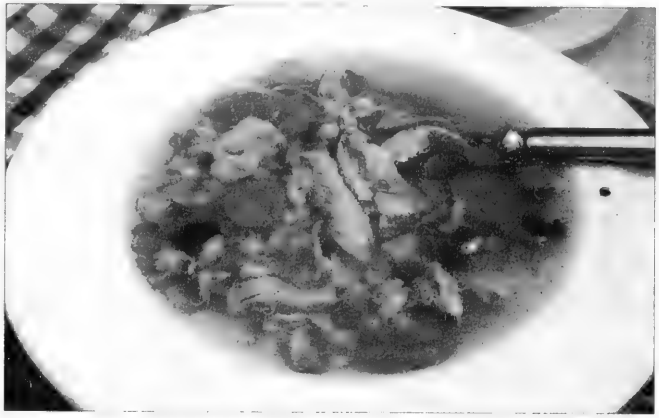
But Simchat Torah is about celebrating endings and beginnings – finishing the Torah and starting again. After having just ended five years in California, I found it astonishing that after we reach the last portion of the Torah, the we begin the first one. No pause. No break. Not even a day of rest in between.

After we completed the process of giving away old things, packing up needed ones, shutting off phones, electricity and insurance, saying goodbye to friends, and closing the door for the last time on the small, sunbaked second-floor apartment we called home, I needed to stop. Press a pause button. Float in a space between what was and what would be.

But a different door to a smaller, not quite as bright apartment had to be unlocked, the same brown boxes we packed arrived, dirtier and a bit crushed, needing to be unpacked, the phones needed to be turned on and new friends had to be made. Even as welcoming as our new city has been, moving on has been hard. And I am tired.

Still, my information packed Spice and Spirit cookbook explained, on Simchat Torah, immediately after completing the final weekly section, we start again, full of joy, with Genesis, and the words, "In the beginning of God's creating…" Maybe there is a special wisdom in the timing. Because the minute one thing ends, something new begins. It is here, whether we are ready or not.

Continued on page 34



BIALIK HEBREW DAY SCHOOL
2760 Bathurst Street, Toronto
invites
PROSPECTIVE PARENTS
to its
ANNUAL SCHOOL ORIENTATION
Wednesday, October 27, from 7:30 – 9:30 p.m.
or
Tuesday, November 2, from 9:15 – 11:15 a.m.
Tours of the school will begin promptly at 7:30 p.m. and 9:15 a.m. respectively
Call and reserve a place with Linda Wolfe: 416-783-3346
linda_wolfe@bialik.on.ca
We offer classes in the following grades:
• Full day and half day Junior Kindergarten
• Full day and half day Senior Kindergarten • Grades 1 to 8
Bialik offers
Financial Assistance for both Preschool and Grade School

Holiday Food Ideas

Stuffed cabbage traditional for Simchat Torah

Continued from page 33

So I decided to make soup, gathering up what I had left from one of my first grocery shopping trips in my new city, stirring it together in an old pot and seeing what comes. I could flow from one area of my new kitchen to the other, the lower cabinet for the soup mix, the freezer for the corn. the vegetable bin for carrots, mushrooms and zucchini, and over to the bright white counter under the window framing dense Texas green trees, for my newly arranged tray of seasonings. I could use what I had, put it all together and let it simmer, on its own, unwatched, into something soothing, and maybe better than I could imagine.

As the soup cooked, my daughter's new friend's mother came by to introduce herself. When she stepped inside she said, "It smells delicious in here, what's cooking?" It was days later, when we sat down to our first bowl of made-in-Texas soup, that I realized Simple Chicken Vegetable Soup for Simchat Torah is my idea of a mechayeh.

SIMPLE CHICKEN VEGETABLE SOUP

Using store-bought soup mix and chicken broth makes this soup very easy to prepare, but adding your own vegetables and chicken makes it wonderfully hearty and soothing.

4 cups chicken broth
4 cups water
1 medium carrot, chopped small
1 medium zucchini, chopped small
4 mushrooms, sliced thin
½ cup frozen corn kernels
1 can Great Northern Beans with liquid
1 lb. boneless, skinless chicken thighs (approximately 5-6)
1 tube vegetable soup mix
salt and pepper, to taste

In a large stockpot (7 quart works well), place carrot, zucchini, mushrooms, corn, beans with liquid, washed chicken thighs, and contents of vegetable soup mix. Add chicken broth and water, cover and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer covered, stirring occasionally. Allow to cook for approximately 1½ hours or until all vegetables are soft.

Add salt and pepper to taste in last 30 minutes. With slotted spoon, remove chicken thighs and shred or cut into bite size pieces. Return chicken to pot and serve. Although the skinless chicken produces very little fat, if a completely fat free version is desired, refrigerate overnight and skim off fat before heating. Makes 8 servings.

CANADIAN FRIENDS OF YESHIVA UNIVERSITY is saddened by the passing of

JANET SPECTOR MILCHIN ז"ל

Beloved mother of Connie and Philip Beinhaker
Yeshiva University Guardians and past honorees

May the entire family be comforted among the mourners of Zion and Jerusalem

Richard M. Joel, President, YU
Dr. Norman Lamm, Chancellor, YU
Robert Eli Rubinstein, National President CFYU
Dr. Herbert C. Dobrinsky, Vice President, YU
Stuart Razin, National Director, CFYU

451

$10,000 INVESTED IN THE STRATEGY FOCUS LIST AT INCEPTION WOULD BE WORTH OVER $239,000 TODAY!*

Since 1984, the RBC Investments Strategy Focus List of top-ranked Canadian companies has returned 17.8% annually—versus just 9.4% for the benchmark TSE 300 Index. It's a Strategy that works — through up markets and down markets.

The Strategy Focus List is created by our top strategists and analysts and updated quarterly. In order to keep your investment portfolio aligned with the top-ranked Canadian companies selected by our Strategy Team, it will be reviewed quarterly.

Call to find out how you can benefit from our Strategy.

David Gluckstein, CFP,
Investment Advisor
(905) 764-5248
david.gluckstein@rbc.com

RBC Dominion Securities Inc.,
260 East Beaver Creek Road, #301,
Richmond Hill, Ontario, L4B 3M

RBC Investments

*Hypothetical return net of fees Returns are not guaranteed and past performances may not be repeated

RBC Dominion Securities Inc. is a member company under RBC Investments. RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Royal Bank of Canada are separate corporate entities which are affiliated. Investment Advisors are employees of RBC Dominion Securities Inc. Member CIPF. ®Registered trademark of Royal Bank of Canada. Used under licence. ™Trademark of Royal Bank of Canada. Used under licence. ©Copyright 2004 All rights reserved.

SHAAR SHALOM SYNAGOGUE

is proud to present

SIR MARTIN GILBERT

Churchill and the Little Known Jewish Contribution to World War II

Thursday, October 14 – 7:30 pm

Shaar Shalom Synagogue
2 Simonston Boulevard, Thornhill
Admission $15 Call 905-889-4975

Arrangements for Sir Martin Gilbert made through the B'nai B'rith Lecture Bureau

Dining Pleasures

34

Captain John's
HARBOUR BOAT RESTAURANT AND BANQUET FACILITY

"TORONTO'S FOREMOST SEAFOOD RESTAURANT"
Sumptuous Sunday Brunch "all you can eat" only $19.25
Bring this ad and you get two Dinners for the price of "One"*
*not valid Holidays or Special Occasion Days

1 QUEEN'S QUAY W. (Foot of Yonge St.) • 416-363-6062

Book your WEDDINGS, BAR/BAT MITZVAHS, SOCIAL & BUSINESS FUNCTIONS www.toronto.com/captainjohns
e-mail: captainjohn@on.aibn.com

www.dcitelecom.com
(416) 626-7557
no activation fee
Israel, U.K. 5.5¢
no monthly fee
Morocco 35.1¢
no maintenance fee
France, Chile 5.5¢
15 000+ customers
USA / CAN 4.9¢

International

Israel & the Jewish World

Ve'ahavta
AIDS IN AFRICA:
A MULTI-FAITH
'CALL TO ACTION'
EVENING - THURSDAY,
OCTOBER 14TH 7:00 PM
Ve'ahavta
416-964-7698 ext. 16
www.veahavta.org

Analysis

IDF believes Hamas has up to 200 Qassams

By ZE'EV SCHIFF
Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

During the course of the military operation in the northern Gaza Strip, the Israel Defence Forces is taking pains to ensure its soldiers don't get drawn deep into the built-up area of Jabalya's large refugee camp.

Using precise fire and its intelligence advantage, the IDF is striving to increase the number of deaths among the Hamas men, more than 50 of whom have been killed so far. The number of civilian fatalities is estimated at around 10.

Despite this, Hamas continues to manufacture Qassam rockets and sustain itself, with assessments saying the group still has 100 to 200 rockets with a range of some eight kilometres.

Thus far, the IDF has stuck to the operational directive to focus on maintaining control over an area eight kilometres inside Gaza and to refrain from a large-scale entry into the built-up area. This penetration also allows the army to take control of "dead areas," where Qassam cells would launch the rockets from and then flee.

Taking control over this area in the north-eastern part of Gaza – between Beit Hanun, Beit Lahia, the village of Jabalya and the Jabalya refugee camp – is a geographic military solution, but it isn't enough. Hamas will undoubtedly continue to launch rockets in the face of an Israeli military presence, so the IDF is trying to increase Hamas fatalities.

This is "the price" the IDF talks about for launching rockets at Sderot and other Israeli communities.

More than 50 Palestinians have been killed so far in the operation that began after the last rocket attack on Sderot, which killed two children. Some 80 per cent of those killed are believed to be Hamas men or members of the Al-Aqsa Brigades. The remaining fatalities have been civilians, including six children.

When Hamas counts the Palestinian losses, it is very aware of civilian non-combatants who are caught up in the fire. Hamas, in general, has its ear to the street. Thus far, it has rejected calls from members of the Palestinian Authority, including Mussa Arafat, and Egyptian officials to stop the rocket attacks, but it shows sensitivity when it comes to demands from the suffering population.

But a decision by Hamas to hold its fire would be only a partial victory if the IDF fails to destroy the Qassam rocket production infrastructure. Clearly, despite repeated strikes on the workshops, the manufacturing of Qassams is continuing somewhere in Gaza.

It is highly likely that a large number of workshops have been moved into underground structures and are being better defended. Israel's lowest estimate puts Hamas' Qassam arsenal at a few dozen rockets. The highest estimate speaks of more than 100, and up to 200, such rockets.

The infrastructure is clearly not only industrial and technological. The Qassam production infrastructure also includes engineers, technicians and chemists.

If the entire infrastructure isn't destroyed, it's only a matter of time before Hamas manages to increase the range of the rockets to allow them to be fired from deeper inside the Gaza Strip.

Hamas members on payroll: UNRWA

Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

JERUSALEM — The Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA), Peter Hansen, on Monday told the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation that he was sure members of the militant Hamas organization were on the payroll in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, but that he did not "see that as a crime."

UNRWA distributes aid to the Palestinians in the territories and has frequently been accused by Israel of turning a blind eye to terrorist activity. "Oh I am sure that there are Hamas members on the UNRWA payroll and I don't see that as a crime," the CBC website quoted Hansen as saying. "Hamas as a political organization does not mean that every member is a militant and we do not do political vetting and exclude people from one persuasion as against another."

Hansen told the CBC, however, that the UN expects all employees to act with neutrality.

"We demand of our staff, whatever their political persuasion is, that they behave in accordance with UN standards and norms for neutrality," he said.

According to the CBC website, the Canadian government, which donates some $10 million to UNRWA annually, said it would be "deeply concerned" should Hansen's remarks have been taken in context, and said it "will immediately seek clarification from Mr. Hansen directly and from UN authorities."

UNRWA on Sunday demanded an apology from Israel over accusations that Gaza militants used a UN vehicle to transport a home-made rocket.

The world body sought to refute the charges at a news conference in Gaza on Sunday. It showed what it said was the ambulance seen in footage released by the Israel Defence Forces and presented its driver and rescue workers to reporters.

Israeli Ambassador to the UN Dan Gilerman has sent a letter to UN Secretary-General Kofi Annan demanding the dismissal of Peter Hansen from his post. The letter communicates Israel's claim that Hamas is using UN ambulances as a means of smuggling arms and terrorists through the Gaza Strip.

Last Wednesday the Israel Defence Forces relased footage showing what it said were two men loading a Qassam rocket onto a van bearing a large UN logo.

The photographed images, taken from an unmanned plane in the Jabalya refugee camp, were broadcast Friday night on network television. After the object was loaded, the vehicle left the spot. Army sources say that the IDF avoided firing at the vehicle, as it had done in other instances, fearing that it might be a UN ambulance.

But rescue worker Wahel Ghabayen, 38, said he had run with a stretcher to a school in Jabalya on Friday after he heard that someone there may have been wounded. The wounded boy had already been moved by the time he arrived, he said.

Canadian Friends of the HEBREW UNIVERSITY OF JERUSALEM
האוניברסיטה העברית בירושלים

The Hebrew University of Jerusalem
and
Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University extend heartfelt condolences to

Shoel, Debra, Bonnie and Joey
and their families
on the passing of their beloved mother

LIL SILVER ל"ז

May her memory be as a blessing to all those who were privileged to have known her.

Menachem Magidor
President, The Hebrew University of Jerusalem

Ronnie Appleby, Q.C.
National President

Charles Diamond
National Director

I Hate Huntin' Critters!

Century 21 Centre Point
ARIZONA PROPERTIES

MICHAEL RAPAPORT
Realtor & Business Consultant
Toll Free 866-686-1751

Specializing in:
- Luxury Homes
- Vacation Homes
- Relocation Properties
- Investment Property
- Trusts & Estates

email: raptwice@cox.net website: www.raprealty.net

REGENT TOURS
The Best Prices at Hotels in Israel!
Friendly, Professional Service
Deal direct with a wholesaler in Tel Aviv
Over 100 hotels currently on special offer
www.regent.co.il
Call us in Tel Aviv toll free 1 866 886 0967

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY

Director of Kashrut

Senior professional responsible for the operations of the Ottawa Vaad HaKashrut (OVH). Ensuring that the high standards of kashrut as set by the rabbinic and lay committees are maintained.

- Scheduling and supervising a team of kosher supervisors.
- Supporting the rabbinic and lay committees of the OVH.
- Expanding the availability of kosher products and services in Ottawa and the surrounding area.
- Acting as a liaison between the license holders, the consumers and the OVH.
- Leading Shabbat and holiday services at a home for the aged.

The successful candidate will have:

- Orthodox smikhah (rabbinic ordination).
- Knowledge of kashrut and experience in hashgacha.
- Good organizational and communication skills.
- A proven track record working as part of a team.
- Strong business management skills.

Please submit confidential résumés by October 22, 2004 to vaad@jccottawa.com

For a full job profile visit www.jewishottawa.org

WOMEN'S WEEKEND

THE VOICE OF WOMEN ... RESPONDING TO VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN

Highlights

- Dr. Amy Robbins Ellison, Survivor of Domestic Violence
- JWI Needs Assessment, A Portrait of Domestic Abuse in the Jewish Community
- Ruth Flicker, President RRF Consultants, Research Reports on Violence Against Women in the Workplace, Sports, on Campuses & Hospitals
- Marilou McPhedran, Human Rights Lawyer & Activist
- Channa Sargon, Jewish Women in History

October 22-24, 2004

Renaissance Fallsview Hotel, Niagara Falls, ON

To register please call:* 416-630-9313

Sponsored by JWIC ... A Force for Social Change Ending Violence Against Women

JWIC Jewish Women International of Canada

After four years of the intifadah, violence continues at brisk clip

Continued from page 1

Either way, rioting soon engulfed the territories, spilling over briefly into Arab population centers inside Israel, and Israel reacted harshly. The area has since been caught in a bloody cycle of action and reaction whose end is not in sight.

This intifadah, the second such uprising against Israel, has been the longest war in the long Arab-Israeli conflict.

In pure military terms, there is no doubt that Israel has won the war. Israel has conducted a targeted and extensive military campaign to go after the terrorists. And Israeli forces now control most of the major population centers that the Palestinians had regained during the Oslo process.

Palestinian terrorism is being contained and Israelis have learned to live with whatever terrorism remains.

If the Palestinians had hoped to shift the national mood in Israel toward defeatism, they have achieved the opposite: Many Israelis who had been strong advocates of dialogue with the Palestinians no longer believe the conflict can be resolved.

In the face of Israeli military superiority, the Palestinians turned to their own so-called "F-16," the suicide bomber. Palestinian groups – first the Islamist Hamas, and then secular organizations such as the Al-Aksa Brigade of Palestinian Authority President Yasser Arafat's Fatah faction – have staged 138 suicide attacks and 13,730 shooting attacks since the start of the intifadah, according to the Shin Bet statistics.

Suicide bombers have staged some of the most horrendous terrorist attacks in the history of the Middle East. They have included the June 2001 Dolphinarium disco attack in Tel Aviv, in which 21 youngsters were killed, and the 2002 Passover massacre at the Park Hotel in Netanya, in which 30 people were killed and more than 100 wounded.

Nevertheless, the Palestinian cause has lost little credit in world public opinion. By and large, the outside world linked Palestinian terrorism with the Israeli occupation. There was the paradox: As Israel paid a steadily growing price in blood, anti-Israeli and anti-Jewish feelings in Europe soared.

Still, there is evidence that this may be changing. Last week, U.S. Secretary of State Colin Powell said that the lack of Palestinian political reform has led donors who provide financial assistance to the Palestinians to grow weary.

U.S. President George Bush, who has shunned Arafat since entering the White House, called on the world community to end its support of "corrupt" Palestinian leaders in a speech to the UN General Assembly.

After recent meetings with Arab diplomats on the sidelines of the UN General Assembly, American Jewish Committee executive director David Harris said, "There's a change in the tone and the substance of these meetings."

Arab officials, he said, spoke openly about their hope for a successor to Arafat.

And the Palestinian Authority's prime minister, Ahmed Qurei, called on his people to rethink their fight against Israel.

"This anniversary should make us all – the people, factions and Palestinian Authority – reconsider the past four years, where we went wrong and where we went right," he said.

Still, the Palestinians are largely seen as the underdogs in the conflict with Israel, and in that regard, the writing was on the wall almost from day one.

On Sept. 30, 2000, as the intifadah was erupting, Mohammed Al-Durrah, a 12-year-old Palestinian boy, was shot dead in his father's arms, tragically caught in the crossfire between Israeli soldiers and Palestinian policemen.

Though investigations later showed that Al-Durrah probably was killed by a bullet from the Palestinian side, in the Palestinian narrative, he has become a symbol of the innocent Palestinian victim in the conflict with the mighty Israelis.

In July, the International Court of Justice sided with the Palestinians against Israel's security barrier, and the European Union in general endorses the Palestinian demand that Israel quit the territories and dismantle settlements.

In addition to the heavy toll in human life, both the Israelis and the Palestinians have paid a high economic price.

The Palestinians have lost their primary place of work, with foreign workers replacing Palestinian labourers in Israel proper. The Israelis have lost investors and tourists, though tourism, too, seems to be recovering somewhat.

The year of the millennium should have been an economic boon, drawing waves of pilgrims and tourists from all over the world, but it ended as a disaster. New hotels built to accommodate the projected influx of tourists closed. One hotel in Nazareth was turned into a detention camp for foreign workers, just before they are deported.

Some say former Prime Minister Ehud Barak lost his job to Sharon because of his failure to reach an agreement with Arafat and prevent the intifadah.

But four years later, Sharon has been unable to deliver on his own election promise of "peace and security." Now, as Sharon's Gaza disengagement plan gains steam, some in Israel are worried that the country faces a potential civil war.

And Arafat, though confined to his Ramallah headquarters by the Israelis, is still considered the leader of the Palestinians. Although Bush, in his UN speech, insinuated that Arafat was doing disservice to his people, the European Union still regards Arafat as the legitimate leader of the Palestinians, the one with whom Israel should negotiate.

And so, on the eve of the fifth year of the intifadah, both parties are caught in the ring, like exhausted boxers. Sharon believes the disengagement from Gaza could create a change.

But no one knows for sure – perhaps even not Sharon himself – what kind of a future he envisages after the Israeli withdrawal from Gaza.

Israeli diplomats, dreading the vacuum the pull-out set for mid-2005 might create, have scrambled in recent weeks for American, European and Arab help in propping up an Israel-free Gaza Strip.

And Palestinian factions have recently been trying to achieve an agreement on keeping the peace once Israel leaves Gaza.

Some, though, believe that nothing will really move as long as Arafat is around. Perhaps the parties must wait for Arafat's successor to bring about the end of the intifadah, to create some sort of a modus vivendi with the Israelis.

After all, say the optimists, Anwar Sadat signed a peace treaty with Israel after the brutal Yom Kippur War in 1973. At his wink, tens of thousands of Egyptians gathered along the streets of Cairo to greet Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, who until then was among the most hated Israelis in the Arab world.

The truth is that any guess could be right. Meanwhile, as commentators and headlines blared the fourth anniversary of the intifadah's outbreak, violence in the region carried on at a brisk clip.

An Israeli settler killed a Palestinian, claiming self-defence; the Israeli army detained a 15-year-old would-be suicide bomber in Nablus; three Kassam rockets landed in Sderot, and Israel again appeared to be ramping up its attempts to kill terrorist leaders, with the car-bomb killing of a Hamas leader in Damascus being widely attributed to Israel and the attempted assassination of a terrorist from the Popular Resistance Committees that ended up killing a Hamas man.

And Riad Ali, 42, a Druse Israeli journalist working for CNN, was kidnapped in Gaza last week. Though he was released the next day, Ali's kidnapping is another example of the continuing anarchy in the territories.

"Ashdod Spared Mega-Terror Attack" "Who's next after Madrid?"

DEBKA-Net Weekly

Intelligence – Terror – Mid East – Islam

International Conflicts – Security – Political Analysis

We Start Where The Media Stop

Subscribe Today at www.Debka.com

Israel to expand buffer zone

Prime Minister Ariel Sharon said the army will expand the "buffer zone" in northern Gaza to spare Israeli towns from rocket attacks and ensure there is no withdrawal under fire next year. The army launched a massive military operation last week to stop Palestinians from firing rockets at Israeli towns. As of Monday morning, at least 65 Palestinians had been killed. A number of Palestinian civilians caught in the crossfire between the army and Hamas were among the dead. While pointing a finger at Israel, Palestinian Prime Minister Ahmed Qureia said the rocket attacks should stop because they give Israel a pretext for more raids. He said "all Palestinian factions" should "seriously consider the higher national interest."

Tourism up

Israeli officials say the number of visitors to Israel increased by 58 per cent, to 821,800 between January and July, compared to the same period last year. At 207,959, Americans comprised a quarter of the visitors, followed by 132,048 French and 78,681 British tourists. Visitors from Canada rose 61 per cent to 24,147. The number from Russia rose 52 per cent to 28,429. Visitors from Italy jumped 82 per cent to 21,091.

CNN producer freed

A CNN producer who was kidnapped in Gaza was freed. Riad Ali, an Israeli Druze, was freed last Tuesday, a day after he was seized in Gaza City by four armed men who approached the car he was travelling in. Palestinian Authority officials, perhaps concerned the kidnapping could be seen as an indication of their inability to keep Gaza secure if Israel carries out its planned withdrawal next year, are believed to have been involved in negotiating Ali's release.

Israeli innovators honored

Two Israelis were named among the world's 100 top innovators. Kinneret Keren and Yaakov Benenson were both commended in Technology Review's innovation roundup this month. Keren was honoured for her research at Israel's Technion – Israel Institute of Technology that used DNA to create the world's first self-assembling nonotransistor. Benenson was named for his research on miniaturizing medical techniques. Benenson is a doctoral student at the Weizmann Institute of Science in Rehovot. His machines "represent a quantum leap not only in medicine but also in DNA computing," said George Church, director of the Center for Computational Genetics at Harvard Medical School.

Israel is emerging as No. 3

Israel was ranked third among 25 emerging markets in an economic survey. The Jewish state's gross domestic product per capita is third, trailing only Hong Kong and Singapore, according to the Economist magazine. Israel's per capita GDP is almost $20,000 (US), the magazine said.

Files from JTA and Ha'aretz

Bible texts on amulets dated to First Temple period

One of the Amulets [Ha'aretz photo]

By AMIRAM BARKAT
Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

JERUSALEM — U.S. and Israeli researchers claim to have discovered proof that the Five Books of Moses were in existence during the First Temple period.

The findings are based on new laboratory techniques used to date two small silver amulets, inscribed in ancient Hebrew and discovered in a burial cave in Jerusalem in 1979. Published recently in a scientific journal in the United States, the results were reported extensively in The New York Times.

The amulets contain the text of the Priestly Benediction, which appear in Chapter 6 of Numbers, and are still recited today in synagogue prayer by descendants of the Jewish priestly clan.

The dating of the amulets, which were not deciphered fully until recently, has been the subject of scholarly debate. Tests carried out in NASA laboratories have now allowed the artifacts to be dated to the end of the First Temple period, circa 600 BCE.

Archaeologist Gabi Barkai of Bar Ilan University, who discovered the amulets during a salvage excavation on the slopes overlooking the Hinnom Valley in Jerusalem, said that additional fragments of texts on the amulets have been deciphered and one identified as a verse from the book of Deuteronomy.

Treasure found inside one of the burial caves, which held the remains of 90 members of one of Jerusalem's wealthy clans, included thousands of valuable objects, such as arrowheads, jewelry, stoneware, marble, ivory and various metals.

'Critical importance for theology'

The two central findings were a seal with the name "paltah" in ancient Hebrew script and two amulets made of fine sheets of pure rolled silver.

After the amulets were unrolled at the Israel Museum, and following their initial publication, it was unclear whether the artifacts should be dated to the First or Second Temple period. "The dating of the scrolls has critical importance for theology and for biblical studies," says Prof. Menachem Haran of Hebrew University.

According to traditional Jewish belief, the Five Books of Moses were delivered to Moses at Mount Sinai, but biblical scholarship attributes the Pentateuch to four distinct sources that were compiled together.

The most important source, "the Priestly Code," comprising more than 50 per cent of the Pentateuch, includes the verses inscribed in the amulet. Since the end of the 19th century, mainstream biblical scholarship has dated the Priestly Code to the Second Temple period, while a minority of scholars, including Haran, claim that it had already been compiled by scribes during the First Temple period.

"Judaism became an established national religion only after the destruction of the First Temple," says Haran. "Whether we are dealing with a product of Second Temple Judaism or of Ancient Israelite religion is a fundamental question." Haran adds that the recent laboratory results are important scientific confirmation of his opinion, "confirmation that we have all been waiting for."

31ST ANNUAL FLORIDA
Medical, Dental, Legal and Podiatric Seminar
DECEMBER 19-JANUARY 2/05
RADISSON SUITES HOTEL OF BOCA RATON
BOCA RATON, FLA.
Continuing Education Credits & Appropriate Tax Documentation Given
REGISTRATION: $525 U.S.
Contact: Linda Golnick, Co-ordinator, 4826 Cliffside Dr., West Bloomfield, Michigan 48323.
Tel. (248) 681-0211 or (248) 388-1959 Fax: (248) 681-0315
Special hotel, air & car rates available

NEW DATE Wednesday, Oct. 13, 2004
Notice of Special General Meeting
Canadian Magen David Adom for Israel
Take notice that the Special General Meeting of CMDAI will be held on Wednesday, October 13, 2004, 6:00 p.m. at CMDAI Headquarters, 6900 Decarie Blvd. Suite 218, Montreal, Quebec.

The Latest From Eden Hills
Ground breaking will, b'eH, take place in mid January
NBA Phase II will close on October 26, 2004
Those interested in our new electronic brochure may e-mail: brochure@edenhills.com
WISHING ALL OUR FRIENDS/FUTURE NEIGHBORS AND THE ENTIRE HOUSE OF ISRAEL שנה טובה וחג שמח

Eden Hills Team
Initiators Jake and Devorah Lebowitz
Architects & Planners: Ulrich Plesner/Ital Linenberg
Environment & Ecology: E.S.L/Dr. Ron Leshem
Electrical & communications: Itkin Blum Engineers
Economics: Halevi Dwek & Co/Yaakov Dweck
Land Counsel: Yehuda Raveh & Co/Uri Yemin Esq
Traffic & Roads: Rosenblum, Amir, Moneta
Land Issues Consultants: Tafnit Wind/Shlomit Shaar
Water & Sewage: Zafrir Weinstein Engineers
General Legal Counsel: Silber, Schottenfels & Gerber
Joel Silber, Esq. 02-625-7751 jsilber@ssgslaw.co.il

Eden Hills, the new gated community southwest of Jerusalem inside the green line dedicated to quality living
A modern paradise... on ancient lands
Eden Hills
972-2-567-0666 212-561-5737
www.edenhills.com

DELMAR
www.delmar-group.com
INTERNATIONAL FREIGHT FORWARDERS
US & CANADIAN CUSTOMS BROKERAGE INTERNATIONAL TRADE CONSULTANTS
A WORLD OF SERVICE
1 888 4 DELMAR

Presbyterians stand by divestment despite dialogue with Jews

By URIEL HEILMAN
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK — Not long ago, the Presbyterian Church (USA) managed to do something most Jewish organizations can only dream of: It generated Jewish unity.

Jewish groups were outraged when the organization passed a resolution over the summer calling for divesting from companies that do business in or with Israel.

The church is sticking to its position after meeting here last week with Jewish religious leaders and organizational officials, who aired their sentiments face to face with the Presbyterians for the first time since the July decision.

As the Jews expressed unanimous, vehement opposition to the move, church officials said they were eager to "dialogue" with the Jews and expressed regret that the discussion had not taken place earlier.

But they also insisted that the church, representing three million-plus members, would not back away from the decision, which passed by a 431-62 vote at the group's General Assembly.

The bulk of the meeting was devoted to the issue of divestiture, participants said, with the Jews arguing that the decision was patently unfair and the Presbyterians arguing that it is meant to promote peace in the region.

The Presbyterian Church (USA) has about $7 billion in assets, most of it earmarked for pensions. Church officials could not say how much of their assets are invested in companies that do business in Israel.

No accord was reached, except to step up dialogue efforts.

While this is hardly the first conflict between Jews and Presbyterians, even on issues relating to Israel, the decision to divest from Israeli companies or companies doing business in Israel touched a particularly raw nerve among Jews.

It could do serious damage to Jewish-Christian relations, some observers said.

It could also have a domino effect on other churches considering similar moves, resulting in substantial economic hardship to Israel.

Already, there are signals that the Anglican Church could be next. The Anglican Peace and Justice Network last week issued a report that alarmed Jewish officials in its placement of the lion's share of the blame for the Israeli-Palestinian conflict on Israel.

> 'It could also have a domino effect on other churches considering similar moves'

"If the Presbyterians go ahead with any kind of divestment, the Anglicans are not far behind," said Rabbi A. James Rudin, senior inter-religious adviser at the American Jewish Committee.

The July resolution at the Presbyterian General Assembly was substantially different than past Presbyterian resolutions perceived by Jews as hostile to Israel, Rabbi Rudin said.

"Up to now it's been: Cut off aid, Israel should stop building settlements – it's verbal. This is the first one that I know of that a resolution coming out of a church body has talked about divestment."

Rev. Clifton Kirkpatrick, clerk of the Presbyterian Church, said the General Assembly vote did not mandate divestiture as a first step, but as a last resort, after other attempts to change Israeli policy vis-a-vis the Palestinians have been exhausted.

Divestment in Israel is not on the immediate or future agenda of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. "There are no current plans to do anything," spokesperson Keith Knight told The CJN.

Stephen Allen of the Canadian church's justice ministry told The CJN that a decision made in one country does not necessarily affect priorities in another. "Something done in Scotland has no effect on the church in Hungary," he tersely noted.

The Anglican Church of Canada, meanwhile, has not turned its attention to the Sept. 21 announcement by members of the Anglican Peace and Justice Network to recommend financial divestment in Israel ("Anglican leaders urge Israel divestment," CJN, Sept. 29.).

The network will recommend that the global church's decision-making body, the Anglican Consultative Council, adopt a resolution calling for divestment in Israel.

"It has not come to us," said the Canadian church's Maylanne Maybee, co-ordinator for justice, education and networking. "It's a bit premature."

With files from Ron Csillag.

CAMP DIRECTOR
For Mon. to Fri., 8-week summer day camp program at Balfour Beach (Keswick), Lake Simcoe.
During the year, hire staff, programming, assist in recruiting campers, work with camp committee. Live on site in summer. Bring us your experience and creative spirit! Email resume to:
CAMP KATONIM
info@campkatonim.com

Craft & Gift Sale
MONDAY, OCT. 11, 2004
10 A.M. - 5 P.M.
BAYVIEW VILLAGE SHOPPING CENTRE
SHEPPARD AVE. EAST & BAYVIEW AVE.
Free admission Free parking
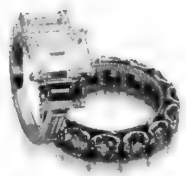
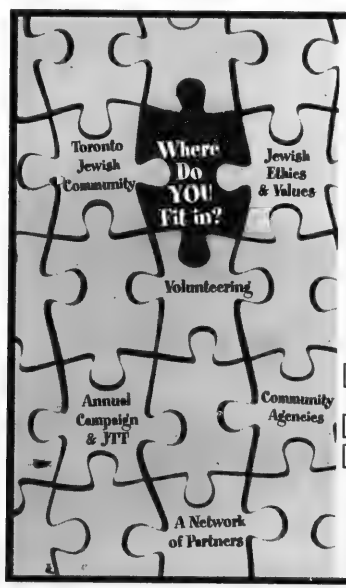
CLUBS BEERSHEBA & AVIVA
NA'AMAT TORONTO

Lilliane's FINE JEWELLERY
Specializing in New & Estate Jewellery


HOTEL INTERCONTINENTAL • 220 BLOOR ST. WEST, TORONTO
416-920-7676

COMMUNITY 101
Puzzled? Here's everything you always wanted to know about your Jewish community!
UJA Federation is pleased to offer COMMUNITY 101 – a six week introduction to your Toronto Jewish community - one of the most admired in the world.
Be part of this innovative, exciting and interactive experience where you will learn all about Jewish Toronto including:
- How does it function?
- How does it impact my family and me?
- How can I get more involved?

WHEN: BEGINS MONDAY, NOVEMBER 1st and runs for six consecutive Mondays from 7:30 – 9:00 pm. (no session on November 15)
WHERE: Lipa Green Building, 4600 Bathurst Street
COST: $50 includes materials and refreshments (Kashruth observed)
Limited space available
RSVP by October 18 to Lil Nobel at 416-635-2883 ext. 111 or e-mail:lnobel@ujafed.org
UJA FEDERATION Together We're Stronger
www.jewishtoronto.com



HERUT-LIKUD — We mourn the passing of — BETAR TAGAR www.betar.ca

LILY SILVER ז"ל

former president of the Johanna Jabotinsky Chapter.
Beloved wife of

Nathan Silver ז"ל and loving mother of Shoel & Eileen Silver,

Debra & Yossi Karta,
Joey Silver,
Bonnie & Eyal Ranen
and their families.

She was a true devotee to the Jewish people in Canada and Israel.

We extend our sincere condolences to her entire family.

May her memory be a blessing for us all.

Johanna Jabotinsky Chapter
Herut Likud - Betar Tagar

Rose Lax National President

CJ Kids

KIDDISH

Jewish Kids' Fun Page
by Ellene Newman and Hallel Newman

Simchat Torah

"Tonight's Simchat Torah! It's going to be awesome at shul tonight, Adam!"

Adam groaned. He was having a great Sukkot holiday visiting at his cousins' house, but they went to synagogue so much! "I'm sorry, Dov," he replied, "but I've gone to shul enough this Sukkot. Can't we stay home and do something else?"

Dov and Michael, his two cousins, looked at him as if he had just fallen off the moon. "On Simchat Torah?" "You want to stay home?" "Are you nuts?" they burst out.

"What's Simchat Torah?" asked Adam, taken aback.

"It's when we dance with the Torah."

"You mean the Torah that Rabbi Perlow reads from at shul?"

"That one, and all the other ones in the Ark too!"

"That sounds fun. Okay, I'll come."

* * * * *

The Ark was open, and the people in the shul were chanting something. Adam looked around in disbelief. The tables and chairs were gone. Aside from a few chairs lining the walls, the only thing left was the bimah, where they read the Torah. The room looked so big! Small children, waiting expectantly, clutched paper flags and brightly coloured plush toy Torahs.

The chanting stopped, and someone began removing the Torahs from the open Ark, handing the first one to the rabbi, the second one to someone Adam didn't know, and the third one to someone else Adam didn't know. Out came a fourth, and a fifth. "I didn't know there were so many Torahs here!" he told Michael.

"Shhhh", whispered Dov. "We're about to start. He pointed to his prayerbook. "Repeat what the Rabbi says."

The people holding the Torahs were standing in a circle around the bimah, slowly walking around it.

"Ana Hashem Hoshiah Na," chanted Rabbi Perlow, and everyone chanted it back.

"Ana Hashem Hatzlicha Na," and everyone chorused it back.

"Ana Hashem Aneinu B'yom Koreinu."

The Shul exploded in singing and dancing so suddenly that Adam jumped back, startled.

Kids excitedly waving flags, adults singing as they danced vigorously in a circle around the Torahs — Adam had never seen anything like it.

"C'mon Adam! Let's go!" demanded Michael, and they joined the joyous circle. "What are the words to this song?" asked Adam.

"WHAT?" shouted Dov over the singing.

"WHAT ARE THE WORDS?"

"TORAT HASHEM TEMIMAH"

"WHAT DOES THAT MEAN?"

"GOD'S TORAH IS PERFECT!"

In the centre, Rabbi Perlow was dancing with sheer joy, clutching the Torah tightly. The rabbi's feet seemed to skim the floor, dancing faster and faster, until they were just a blur. The circle parted, and in danced a man carrying his daughter on his shoulders. She looked nervous, but when she saw the Rabbi dancing, her face lit up. Rabbi Perlow danced over, and lifted the Torah high so the girl could kiss it.

Around and around they danced. Adam wished it would go on forever. But one by one, the Torahs were being put back in the ark.

The singing swelled...and stopped. "Awww..." moaned Adam, collapsing into a chair, "Why did it have to end so fast?"

"Whaddaya mean? That was only the first hakafah. We have six more to go!"

"Are you serious?"

"Look!"

The Torahs were being taken out of the Ark again. This time, Adam's uncle got to hold one.

"All right!" Adam grinned, and the singing and dancing erupted around him again.

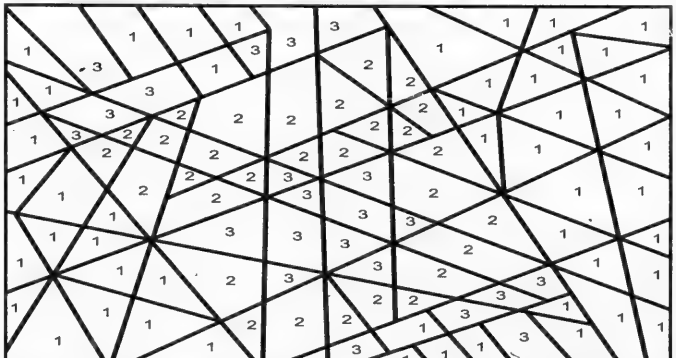
QUOTEFALL

To solve a Quotefall, insert the letters in each column into the boxes below them to form the words of this quotation from Deuteronomy 16:14 and 16:15.

The letters are not necessarily in order — you need to determine which letter goes in which box below it.

Y	O	I	L	S	H	B	E	I	D	N	L	Y	A	H	A	E	P	O	U
Y	W	U	R	L	H	O	L	L	O	R	Y	J	O	N	D	P	Y	Y	N
	O	U				A	L			A	E			I	C			O

COLOR BY NUMBER



1. Pink 2. Blue 3. Yellow

Every week in the synagogue we read from the Torah — the books of Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy. On Simchat Torah, we celebrate the completion of the cycle: we finish reading the last book and start from the beginning again.

©2004 Ellene Newman and Hallel Newman
Write to us at Ehnewman613@aol.com

See what we're creating at Annie's Art House
Art, Classes and More
766 Woburn Ave. (at Bathurst) 416.781.7767

Karate For Kids
Back to School
Quick Start Program
3 classes for $19.99
BudoCan Karate Schools
Improves: self-confidence, self-control, focus, security, self-defence, concentration, fitness, self-respect & lots of fun!
Tel: 647-896-1711
email: budocan@hotmail.com

Baby Massage
Establish sound sleep pattern
Develop calm, confident, loving child
Form a bond for life
Learn procedure in your home.
Dynamic Healing Centre
Tel: 905 773 8211
http://www.acupuncture.dynamic-healing.com/
Acupuncture Aromatherapy Baby Massage Reflexology

Give Your Child An Educational Advantage
Math Masters
Don Valley Academy
• One-To-One Tutoring
• Achievers Program
• SSAT & GMAT Preparation
• Summer Programs
• Motivational and Study Skills
• Credit Courses
• Recognized by the Ministry of Education
• Grade 9 to Grade 12
• Small Classes or Private Instruction
280 Sheppard Ave. E., Ste. 202, (Between Yonge & Bayview) www.mathmasters.ca
416•223•MATH (6284)

DEAR-BORN BABY
Celebrating 25 Years

BIG V
NEW! Just Arrived
Tots in Mind
Maternity & Nursing Pillow
$79.99
Cozy Crib Tent
Reg. $119.99
$99.99
CAR SEAT INSTALLATIONS
Authorized PEREGO Repair Centre
72 Doncaster Ave. Thornhill
(One stop light North of Steeles, East off of Yonge)
905 881-3334

Jewish Singles Cruise To Alaska!

JANUARY 16-23, 2005
* AMAZING JEWISH SINGLES.
* AGE GROUPS: 20's - 40's AND 40's - 60's.
* PARTIES, ENTERTAINMENT, SPEAKERS, CASINOS AND NON-STOP FUN!
* GLATT KOSHER, CHALOV YISROEL, PAS YISROEL
* TAKE 10% OFF IF BOOKED BEFORE NOV. 1ST.

www.JSinglesCruise.com or 323-640-7230
HAVE FUN. SEE THE WORLD. MEET YOUR BASHERT.

"A Jewish Journey Throughout EASTERN EUROPE"

Join us on this exciting and unforgettable tour of European and Jewish cultures. This memorable adventure includes a blending of Jewish history, outstanding cultural performances and our Eastern European connection.

Visiting:
BUDAPEST
SZENTENDRE
PRAGUE
DRESDEN
NEW BERLIN

March 21 - April 2, 2005
12 Day Package Including Air From Toronto

Personally Escorted by Harriet Morton

Package Includes: Return Air from Toronto • Group Transfers • 4 & 5 Star Accommodation • Porterage at Hotels & Airports • Guided Sightseeing • Most Meals • Cultural Performances • Danube Boat Cruise • Special Hungarian Concert Evening and Much More!

For our complete tour brochure & information, call HARRIET or BELLE at
NEW WAVE TRAVEL
416-928-3113 or Toll Free 1-800-463-1512 Ext. 245 or Ext. 273
hmorton@newwavetravel.net OR baraneta@newwavetravel.net

LOWEST AIRFARES GUARANTEED
FLIGHT CENTRE guarantee to BEAT any genuine quoted price!

ISRAEL British Airways	$1198	RTN PP*
LAS VEGAS Imperial Palace – Hotel Special	$29	PP*
NEW YORK Westjet	$158	RTN PP*
ROYAL CARIBEAN 7 night Mexican Riviera	$459	PP*
ROYAL CARIBEAN 7 night Western Carribean	$609	PP*

ASK ABOUT OUR NEW BLOCK SPACE CRUISE SPECIALS!!

*CONDITIONS APPLY - Prices are per person unless otherwise stated. Transportation taxes, fuel surcharges and GST (where applicable) are extra. All above prices are the Lowest available and are subject to availability at advertising deadline. See Tour operator brochure. EX Toronto.
All products are with World of Vacations, Conquest, Signature, Air transat Holidays & AlbaSunquest. For full terms and conditions

FOR MORE INFO PLEASE CALL
LOWEST AIRFARES GUARANTEED
AARON LEVINE at Yonge & Summerhill
1238 Yonge Street 416 966 4333
ANDREA FREED at Forest Hill
396 Spadina Road 416 485 5577
GORBY SALTZMAN at Bathurst & Eglinton
972 Eglinton Ave. W. 416 789 5262
RON SCHUR at Yonge & Sheppard
4841 Yonge Street 416 222-1390
TICO

FLIGHT CENTRE
WORLD'S NO 1 DISCOUNT SPECIALISTS

Arts & Travel

Moscow Virtuosi program includes Mozart, Boccherini and Shostakovich

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

One of the world's most acclaimed chamber orchestras, Moscow Virtuosi, led by internationally renowned violinist and conductor, Vladimir Spivakov, will perform on Oct. 30 at 8 p.m. at George Weston Recital Hall, Toronto Centre for the Arts, 5400 Yonge St.

He will be joined by the Canadian Opera Company's Canadian Children's Opera Chorus.

The Moscow Virtuosi performed with rave reviews in Toronto in 1996 to a sold-out audience at the Metro Toronto Convention Centre's 1,300 seat John Bassett Theatre.

"The majority of Toronto classical music lovers were not aware of the Moscow Virtuosi concerts," said Svetlana Dvoretskaia, president of Show One, one of the show's producers.

The event was so popular within the Russian community that tickets sold out within two weeks of the sale announcement, even before it was publicized in the mainstream media, she said.

"This year, we want to give fair notice to the entire community."

The program will include music by Mozart, Shostakovich and Boccherini. Along with the Children's Opera Chorus, a prodigy of Spivakov's, a 19-year-old-flautist, Anastasia Petanova, will be a guest performer.

The Moscow Virtuosi was formed in 1979, and each of the musicians is a top ranking soloist picked from the great orchestras of Russia.

The orchestra has recorded more than 30 CDs on the BMG/RCA Victor Red Seal label. Its repertoire ranges from Bach, Haydn and Schubert to such 20th-century composers as Prokofiev, Shostakovich and Schnittke, as well as Gershwin, Ravel and Debussy.

Spivakov has been decorated by Russia's prize, the National Cultural Heritage Award, and he is ambassador of the arts at the World Forum in Davos, Switzerland.

In May 1994, Spivakov established the International Charity Foundation to offer creative and financial support to talented young people and needy children from his homeland.

Tickets for the Moscow Virtuosi concert are $55, $75 and $95. For more information or to order tickets contact Show One, 416-737-6785, or Ticketmaster 416-870-8000, or visit Toronto Centre for the Arts box office.

Inadequate travel insurance could affect your health and financial future!

Your provincial health insurance doesn't come close to covering the costs of emergency medical treatment while you're travelling out of province – this means a sudden illness or accident could not only ruin your trip but the medical expenses could ruin you. One hour in a US hospital could cost you $10,000...and it gets worse, you could be denied treatment without adequate medical coverage!

Please call Marilyn: 416-636-3575
Travel Secure
Your travel insurance specialist

Planning a Simcha does not have to be stressful or expensive...Let us show you how

www.TorontoPartyGuide.com

TORONTO'S #1 FALL
WEDDING, BAR/BAT MITZVAH
Party Planning Show
6:00 pm - 10:00 pm

Wednesday, OCTOBER 20th, 2004

BETH TZEDEC Synagogue • 1700 Bathurst St., Toronto

FEATURING: KOSHER CATERING • FLORISTS • CONSULTANTS • MAKE UP • PHOTOGRAPHY
PARTY FAVOURS • VIDEOGRAPHY • BANDS • KETUBAH • D.J.'S • DECOR • BRIDALWEAR
DESSERTS • INVITATIONS • PARTY FAVOURS • FORMALWEAR • JUDAICA • GIFTWARE & MUCH MORE...

FREE ADMISSION • BRING THE WHOLE FAMILY • FREE SIMCHA PLANNING DIRECTORY

For details on the Winter & Spring Party Planning Events &
For all the latest Party Planning Information Visit: www.TorontoPartyGuide.com or call:
Rick Levine 905 881-6400 or Lynn Cohen 905 889-1007

VENDOR ENQUIRIES WELCOME • SHOW PRODUCED BY CUSTOM GRAPHICS INC.

Arts & Travel

The circus with jazz and just a touch of klezmer

By DAVID SILVERBERG
Special to The CJN

David Buchbinder is so fulfilled by his recent project he can barely contain his excitement. The multi-talented trumpeter and composer speaks about blending exploratory jazz and acrobatics like a mother would boast about her child.

"I love doing this show," he beams.

Buchbinder's Shurum Burum Jazz Circus is returning to the Distillery Historic District on Oct. 6 after a successful stint at the 2003 Distillery Jazz Festival.

Featuring 18 performers, Shurum Burum is a multimedia event combining circus acts, dance pieces, jazz, and innovative lighting. To Buchinder's knowledge, this is an original show never done before by any other artist.

"I'm taking disparate things and uniting them," he says from his rehearsal space at Greenwood Avenue and Gerrard Street in Toronto. While we speak, the performers – his wife Roula among them – practice circus acts with a high-flying swing, hanging fabric and hoops.

"This isn't just an aural experience. I want to make this a lasting visual and spiritual experience."

Audiences can expect experimental jazz playing alongside choreographed dance sets which flow into acts such as fire-spinning and trapeze. The evening isn't divided into "episodes," like Cirque de Soleil sets where acts have a set beginning and ending.

"It's layered, there are multiple stages, and the audience can choose where to look," he says.

That kind of collage impressed audiences and critics in its debut in 2003 and recently at Québec City's d'Eté Festival but Buchbinder assures me this event will be even tighter.

Shurum Burum combines circus acts, dance, jazz and innovative lighting.

"The music is more developed with new tunes, there's a higher degree of comfort and now there's lighting techniques that go beyond provisional."

Buchbinder is known for founding The Flying Bulgar Klezmer Band and the Ashkenaz Festival of New Yiddish Culture and he says Jewish audiences will appreciate brushstrokes of klezmer influencing the music he composed for Shurum Burum. On a deeper level, though, Buchbinder wants to achieve a fusion that will take music to the next level.

"There is rhythm in everything and I want the music to bring that out," he says, his eyes scanning the practicing performers. "The best show should make people say 'Wow!'"

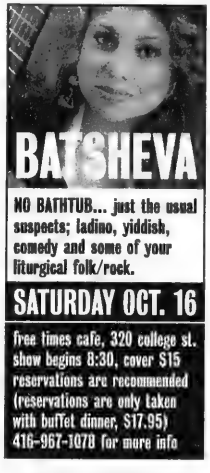
The last time Shurum Burum touched down in Toronto, audiences were so wowed 500 people had to be turned away from the sold-out performances. This time playing at the Stone Distillery, which can hold up to 600, Buchbinder hopes the "rich organic space" will impart a unique intimacy.

Shurum Burum is not a jaunt to the circus or the jazz club, Buchbinder notes. Rather, consider it a blend of the best of those two worlds while still creating a stand-alone event "born from order and chaos."

He explains how jazz has elements of both structure and freedom – solos rely on improvisation while still framed in the overall mood. With Shurum Burum's acrobatic performances, Buchbinder still sees that "chaos of potentiality," as he calls it. For example, an electric guitar solo will complement the thrilling movements of a fire-spinner.

"This is the best project for me," Buchbinder says matter-of-factly. "It makes me rethink the possibilities of artistic expression," he says and his eyes flicker back to the performers, who are bending their own artistic limits.

Shurum Burum Jazz Circus runs from Oct. 6 – 17 at the Stone Distillery, 55 Mill Street. Show times are Wednesday to Sunday at 8 p.m., and matinees on Oct. 10 and 17 at 2:30 p.m. All tickets are $32 and available by calling 416-872-1212.



BATSHEVA
NO BATHTUB... just the usual suspects; ladino, yiddish, comedy and some of your liturgical folk/rock.
SATURDAY OCT. 16
free times cafe, 320 college st. show begins 8:30, cover $15 reservations are recommended (reservations are only taken with buffet dinner, $17.95) 416-967-1078 for more info

Kosherica Cruises
Leader in Glatt Kosher, Cholov Yisroel, Pas Yisroel cruising
Celebrity Cruises
Caribbean Jan. 16-23, 2005 Jan. 23-30, 2005 from $999*
*Early Bird Special until Nov. 1st, 2004
www.kosherica.com
(305) 695-2700 toll free (877) 724-5567

OUR NETWORK IS YOUR ADVANTAGE
Only Aerosvit Airlines provides non-stop service between Toronto and Kyiv, and offers smooth connections to:
– major cities in Ukraine
– Middle East: Tel Aviv
– Central and Eastern Europe: Moscow, St. Petersburg, Riga, Budapest, Warsaw, Prague
– and more!
1.416.961.KYIV
1.416.961.5948
www.aerosvit.com
AEROCBIT AEROSVIT
УКРАЇНСЬКІ АВІАЛІНІЇ UKRAINIAN AIRLINES

Message to CJN Snowbirds

If you will be spending all or part of this winter outside of Canada, there are three options available to you regarding delivery of your Canadian Jewish News.

1/ Continue regular delivery to your home, and arrange for Canada Post to forward The CJN on with your other mail each week.

2/ Advise our Circulation Department to suspend delivery until your return to Canada with no weeks lost in your subscription period.

3/ Arrange with our Circulation Department to redirect The CJN to your winter address at a cost of $10.00 per month for U.S. addresses and $11.00 per month for foreign addresses.

This charge -- payable by cheque, Visa, Mastercard or American Express before departure -- covers the cost of additional postage incurred for out of country mailings.

To make any change in your delivery please fax 416-391-0949 or call the Circulation Department at 416-391-1836 (ext. 224), allowing a minimum of three weeks notice.

Eye on Arts

By Bill Gladstone

THE TRAVELLERS PAY HOMAGE TO THE WEAVERS AT LEAH POSLUNS THEATRE

The 52-year-old legendary folk group The Travellers pay homage to another folk legend, The Weavers, in an upcoming concert.

"When was the last time anyone sang along with Goodnight Irene, Kisses Sweeter Than Wine, On Top of Old Smoky and so many other Weaver hits?" asks Jerry Gray, one of the original Travellers.

Presented by the Koffler School of Music, The Travellers perform their Salute to the Weavers at the Bathurst JCC, Leah Posluns Theatre. Tickets $30 in advance, $35 at the door. Monday Oct. 18, 8 p.m. 416-636-1880, ext. 228.

* * *

What's Doing at Israel's: Muriel Gold, author of Tell Me Why the Nights are Lonesome (Shoreline Press) reads from and discusses her book, a portrait of her parents who came to Canada in the early years of the last century. Admission free; refreshments. Israel's Judaica, 870 Eglinton Ave. W. Monday, Oct. 11, 7 p.m. 416-256-2858, ext. 33.

Israel's also presents Dr. Annette Poizner, writer, psychotherapist and graphologist, speaking on "The Kabbalah and the Psychology of Handwriting." Admission $10; refreshments. Thursday, Oct. 14, 8 p.m. 416-280-6442.

* * *

Grant Money for Jewish Writing: The San Francisco-based Koret Foundation, which has awarded $282 million in grants since 1979, is seeking applicants for its annual $25,000 Koret Young Writer on Jewish Themes award.

The award is for fiction, non-fiction or poetry. Writers up to 40 years old who have published no more than one book are invited to apply. Some eligibility requirements are in effect for writers outside of the United States.

Besides the cash prize, the winner will spend three months in residence at Stanford University writing, participating in workshops, possibly even designing a course. Application deadline, Nov. 15; the awards ceremony is scheduled for next April. www.koretfoundation.org

* * *

Names in the News: Acclaimed Israeli singer Dudu Fisher performs here next month as part of a seven-city North American tour. He's bringing his show, which includes material from various Jewish-oriented musicals, to the Toronto Centre for the Arts on Nov. 7. Tickets are $28 to $64 (416-872-1111)... The Toronto premiere of a newly adapted version of the famed Goodrich-Hackett play The Diary of Anne Frank is being presented here in honour of the 75th anniversary of Anne Frank's birth.

Adapted by Wendy Kesselman, the production runs Oct. 5 to Nov. 7 at the Bathurst St. Theatre, 736 Bathurst St. Tickets are $25 and $35 (TicketMaster, 416-872-1212)... Pedlar Press recently held a launch party for Ronna Bloom's third collection of poetry, Public Works... Israeli rock band RockFour, whose sound reveals influences like the Moody Blues, Zombies and Byrds, have gained a huge international following since switching to English lyrics in 2000. Producer Zaphod Beeblebrox and the Heritage Brewery present RockFour in concert at 27 York St., Ottawa, on Oct. 13. 613-237-5301.

* * *

Scary Tales: Haunted Master, featuring dramatic enactments from the ghost tales of Henry James, Edith Wharton, D. H. Lawrence and Charles Dickens, premieres here in mid-October.

The Troubled Souls Co-op presents the production in the Spadina Museum Historical House & Gardens. The four cast members portray a wide range of characters, including a jilted American fiancée bent on revenge in 1896; a decrepit English murderer haunted by his victims in 1950; a German widow who enjoys a Lady Chatterley interlude with her husband's ghost in 1922; and a Roman nobleman killed supernaturally in 1747 by his wife's dead dogs.

At 285 Spadina Rd. at Davenport. Adults $25; free parking next door at Casa Loma. Oct. 14 to Nov. 6, 8 p.m. Special Halloween performance, Oct. 31. 647-436-1519.

* * *

Arts in Brief

• Direct from London's West End, The Rat Pack Live from Las Vegas celebrates the talents of Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis Jr. and Dean Martin. Producers David and Ed Mirvish and Paul Walden and Derek Nicol, in association with Paul Woolf, present the North American premiere. Canon Theatre, 244 Victoria St. $26 to $75. Previews Oct. 5 and 6, opens Oct. 7 and continues until Nov. 14. 416-872-1212 or 1-800-461-3333.

• Rabbi Elyse Goldstein, editor of The Women's Haftarah Commentary (Jewish Lights Publishing) speaks at the next Books and Bagels literary event. Nadal JCC, Bloor at Spadina. Members $5, non-members $8; includes coffee and bagels. Sunday, Oct. 17, 11 a.m. 416-924-6211.

• Integrity Entertainment requires a non-Equity actor to complete the ensemble cast for Word Games, a comedic mystery that centres around four business women who play Scrabble once a week. Kurt is a charming, slightly mysterious stranger somewhere between his late 30s and 50. Performances scheduled for Dec. 8 to 18. Kelly Burnett, 416-482-1027.

* * *

At the Galleries

• "Approaches to the Figure," an exhibition of oil paintings by Toronto artist and Yiddish translator Vivian Felson, opens Tuesday, Oct. 5 (reception 5 to 8 p.m.) and continues until Oct. 23. Northrop Frye Hall, Main Floor, Victoria College, U of Toronto, 73 Queen's Park Cres. E. 416-928-5904.

• Josie Schwarzli, Mary Foord and Janet Copps present "Sharing Our Vision," an art show. Kathleen Gormley McKay Gallery, 197 Main St., Unionville. Oct. 6 to 10. Free admission. 905-946-4472.

• "Touched by Indigo: Chinese Blue and White Textiles and Embroidery" is a new exhibition of more than 100 objects including clothing, home furnishings, tools and paintings from the 19th century to the present. Royal Ontario Museum's European Temporary Exhibition Gallery (third floor). Oct. 9 to Feb. 13, 2005.

• A Show of Hands Petroff Gallery presents "Judaica 2004," an exhibition of innovative Judaic ceremonial pieces by 18 international artists including two Israelis, Anat Basanta and Laura Cowan. Opens Oct. 14, 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. Free admission. 1016 Eglinton Ave. W. Until Nov. 7. 416-782-1696.

City of Vaughan — The City Above Toronto

NOTICE OF 2004 WARD 5 BY-ELECTION NOMINATIONS/NOMINATIONS

N.B. Ce document est également disponible en français au Bureau du Secrétaire, a l'Hôtel de Ville de Vaughan au 905-832-8504.

Are you intending to be a candidate for the 2004 Ward 5 By-Election - Office of Local Councillor, Ward 5? If so, please take note:

Nominations for the Office of Ward 5 - Local Councillor must be filed in the Clerk's Department during regular business hours, Monday to Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. On Nomination Day, Tuesday, October 12, 2004, nomination papers may be filed between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

NOMINATION PERIOD BEGINS ON MON., SEPT. 27, 2004. NOMINATION DAY IS TUES., OCT. 12, 2004.

Need more information about Nomination Papers? Read on:

Nomination Papers are available in the Clerk's Department, Vaughan Civic Centre, 2141 Major Mackenzie Drive, Vaughan (Maple), Ontario, Monday to Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

A prescribed nomination filing fee of $100. must be paid at the time of filing the nomination either by cash, money order or certified cheque payable to the municipality. In order to raise campaign funds or incur campaign expenses you must first be nominated.

Qualifications: A person is qualified to be elected or to hold office as a member of council of a local municipality if on voting day, he or she:

- resides in the municipality or is the owner or tenant of land in the municipality, or the spouse or same-sex partner of such owner or tenant;
- is a Canadian citizen;
- is at least 18 years old;
- is not disqualified by any legislation from holding municipal office.

For further information, please call the Clerk's Department at 905-832-8504.

First published: September 29, 2004

John D. Leach
City Clerk and Returning Officer, City of Vaughan

Watch for notices in the local papers and the City of Vaughan website www.vaughan.ca for more information on the 2004 Ward 5 By-Election

City of Vaughan — The City Above Toronto

NOTICE OF WARD 5 BY-ELECTION/ AVIS D'ÉLECTION PARTIELLE DANS LE QUARTIER 5

N.B. Ce document est également disponible en français au Bureau du Secrétaire, à l'Hôtel de Ville de Vaughan au 905-832-8504

When is the By-Election?
Voting Day is Thursday, November 25, 2004. Polls will be open from 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.

How many candidates can you vote for?
All qualified electors in Ward 5 are entitled to vote for one (1) candidate for the Office of Local Councillor, Ward 5.

Who Can Vote?
A person can vote in the municipal by-election if he or she is a Canadian citizen, at least 18 years old, resides in Ward 5 in the City of Vaughan or is the owner or tenant of land in Ward 5, or is the spouse or same sex partner of such person and is not prohibited from voting by law. Note: Corporations or Limited companies are not eligible to vote.

Where Do You Vote?
A notice will be sent to each voter appearing on the Voters' List advising of the location of your polling station. This notice will also contain information such as your ward, poll number and residency status. Please watch for your notice during the first week of November and if any of the information listed is incorrect, contact our offices.

Advance Voting Dates and Times
You will be able to vote at one of the Advance Voting days to be held on November 13 and 14, 2004 from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. and November 17, 2004 from 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. Watch for notices in the local papers regarding Advance Voting locations.

Questions?
For further information, please contact the Clerk's Department at 905-832-8504

First Published: September 29, 2004

John D. Leach
City Clerk & Returning Officer
City of Vaughan

YOUR VOTE COUNTS!

Watch for notices in the local papers and the City of Vaughan website www.vaughan.ca for more information on the 2004 Ward 5 By-Election

Arts & Travel

Something's rocking at Yeshivat Or Chaim

By SIDURA LUDWIG
Special to the CJN

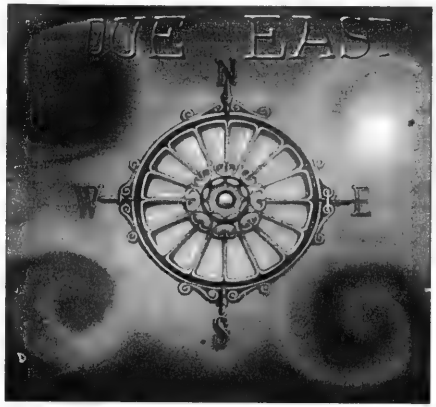
Ariel Kirzner and Josh Koperwas, of the band Shirat Chaim, don't always agree.

"The truth is, if you described us, we're Jewish progressive rock," says Kirzner.

"We don't have to make it so complicated," Koperwas counters.

Call it progressive rock or call it a fusion of musical styles, but both 16-year-old boys agree they've had a unique opportunity as members of the first school band for Yeshivat Or Chaim – and to have had the chance to record the full-length album Due East.

"It's been a really good experience," says Kirzner, with Koperwas nodding his head. "We are very appreciative that the school allowed us to put this out."



Due East: The debut album from Shirat Chaim

The name Shirat Chaim, which means "Song of Life," was given to the band by the school's rosh yeshiva Rabbi Shlomo Gemara when the band was formed two years ago. Their first concert was at a school Sukkot party. The boys assembled on stage and, just as they were being introduced, Rabbi Gemara realized they didn't have a name.

"I came up with Shirat Chaim on the spot," he says. "And it stuck!"

Koperwas, who plays drums and bass guitar, has been with the band from the beginning. Kirzner, the lead singer on the CD, joined the band soon after. Other musicians have come and gone, and both Kirzner and Koperwas express appreciation to everyone who has played with them.

"Without those people, we wouldn't be where we are now," Kirzner says. "Everything works in steps. They were like rungs in a ladder."

The band, in various forms, has played at a number of venues throughout Toronto, including Beth Avraham Yoseph Synagogue of Toronto, Shaarei Shomayim Congregation, NCSY Battle of the Bands and the Barry Zukerman Amphitheatre with the Mosh'av Band. The concerts featured traditional Jewish covers "with a rock-ey twist."

At the end of the 2002-2003 school year, the boys asked Rabbi Gemara if they could produce a CD of their own music. The school agreed to sponsor the CD, which it now uses as a fundraiser.

"We had nothing to lose," says Koperwas. "We get a free CD out, we don't have to pay for it, and they get money. It was a win-win situation for everybody."

Other musicians on the CD include Yosef Tradburks (guitar/vocals/bass guitar), Noam Green (keyboard/harmonica), Aaron Rosenberg (guitar/vocals) and Danny Rende (bass guitar). Shirat Chaim takes traditional prayers or psalms and puts the words to contemporary music. With the exception of one song, all of the tracks were composed by members of the band.

"Everyone in the band wrote a song," says Koperwas.

"Everyone has a different musical style," Kirzner adds. "For example, our lead guitarist is very bluesey, our bassist and rhythm guitarist are very psychedelic, '60s… I'm classical and heavy metal. Those are my styles – it's called neo-classical."

The result is an eclectic CD filled with energetic music. The songs are diverse and the band moves smoothly between the different styles: rock, jazz and folk.

"I think it's great," says Rabbi Gemara. "Part of the school philosophy is to bring out the best in students in every case. This is a great opportunity for these students to be recognized for their talents."

Rabbi Gemara also points out yeshiva high school bands are not typical.

"I worked in Israel for many years and I can't remember something like this," he says. "Many yeshivot see this kind of thing as an enemy. They think it takes away from the boys studying. But I think it enhances the relationship with the students and the school and ultimately it helps in other areas."

Yeshivat Or Chaim starts at 7.30 a.m. for morning prayers and the students don't leave until 6.30 p.m. after evening prayers. They also attend school on Sundays. Even with a full academic schedule, the boys still found time to practice at least once a week – and twice when they were preparing for a concert.

"We are quite proud about the whole thing," says Rabbi Gemara.

The band members continue to come and go. Two of the older musicians have left for Israel, while Kirzner has transferred to a yeshiva in Rochester, N.Y.. Koperwas is currently recruiting new members for the band.

However, both boys remain optimistic about the band's future.

"It will be a different sound, but just as good professionally," says Kirzner.

Copies of Due East can be obtained through the Yeshivat Or Chaim office by calling 416-630-6772.

FLORIDA, ARIZONA, CALIFORNIA, CANADA
WE SEND YOUR CAR & CONTENTS (and return)
CALL 416-225-7754
www.torontodriveaway.com
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY SERVICE
5803 Yonge St., #101
North York M2M 3V5
Since 1959

GERDA ROSNER

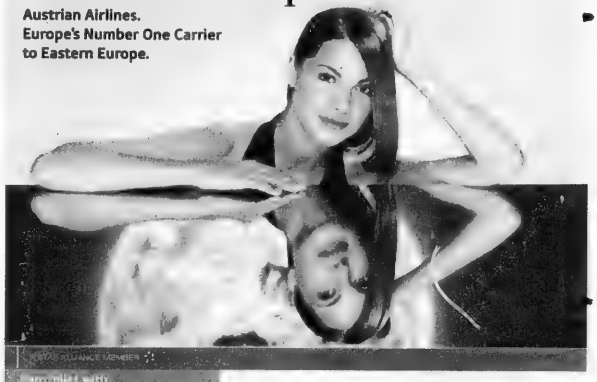
SPA SPECIAL
The Saxony Resort & Spa
3201
Three meals daily. • Luxury accommodations
• Daily Massages, Facials
• Brand New Equipped Fitness Center
• Chair Aerobics, Water Aerobics
• Yoga, Linedancing, Craft Studio
• Exciting Daily & Nightly Shows
• Oceanfront Boardwalk & Beach
• 5 minutes from South Beach
• Flea Markets & Chauffeur Service
$79 daily U.S.
p.p. dbl. occ. plus air fare gratuities & tax
Rates apply to Jan 20/05 and March 3 - April 29/05
Call Gerda Toll Free 1-866-489-4148

FAMILY & BAR/BAT MITZVAH TOURS
DEC. 19-JAN. 3
MARCH BREAK & PASSOVER '05
MARCH 10-22
MARCH 17-29
APRIL 21-MAY 4
(PASSOVER)
SUMMER '05
JULY 3-17
JULY 10-24
JULY 31-AUG. 14
AUG. 18-SEPT. 1
SUMMER YOUNG COUPLES TOUR
JULY 5-17 '05
TRAVEL TO ISRAEL ON AN AMAZING TRIP WHILE YOUR KIDS ARE IN CAMP

ISRAEL 2004-2005
We know Israel best. We send more people to Israel than any other travel agency.
December Family Tours almost SOLD OUT!
CALL TODAY! BOOK NOW!
• The best deluxe tours in North America
• All-inclusive deluxe hotels • More days of sightseeing
• More meals • A true family itinerary • Greatest value
Our website: www.israelfamilytours.com
PEERLESS TRAVEL
YOUR FULL SERVICE TRAVEL AGENCY
We will match or beat any internet price worldwide 9 times out of 10 on any flight or package while providing personal service. Check us out!!!!
For daily worldwide specials - www.peerlesstravel.com
905-886-5610
Toll Free 800-294-1663
info@peerlesstravel.com
7117 Bathurst St. #200, Thornhill, Ont. L4J 2J2

ISRAEL
March 20-31/05
Led by Rabbi Scheim
Very innovative itinerary
Canadian Hadassah-WIZO Solidarity Mission
Israel & Budapest
March 16-28/05
Machal & Israeli War Veterans
May 8-19/05
Join Yom Hazikaron/Yom Ha'atzmaut Ceremonies
Incl. 7 days touring, many meals & more!! Call us now!
CALL US FOR BEST
•AIR FARES TO TEL AVIV
•HOTEL RATES IN ISRAEL
Ask about our Prestige tours departing weekly
ELAL
AIR CANADA

Via Vienna to the New Europe.
Austrian Airlines.
Europe's Number One Carrier to Eastern Europe.



from TORONTO and MONTREAL in economy class
$870 TO VIENNA
$870 TO BUDAPEST
$770 TO PRAGUE

Fly Austrian Airlines to 38 destinations in 23 countries in Eastern Europe, including our new destinations Lviv, Podgorica and Riga. Travel via Vienna - Europe's fastest transfer airport - to benefit from convenient connections. Discover a new way of travelling with Austrian Airlines, where you can enjoy ultimate comfort, unique culinary delights and a wide range of in-flight entertainment.

Reservations: www.austrianairlines.ca
514-842-2500 / 1-888-817-4444 or your travel agency.

VIA Vienna International Airport
Austrian
EUROPE'S BEST ADDRESS

CJN Profile

Communications partners share life inside and outside business

By CAROLYN BLACKMAN
Staff Reporter

David and Rhoda Eisenstadt, partners in The Communications Group Inc. (TCG), a Toronto-based public relations consulting firm, attempt to have a life outside of business.

"Things encroach, however, there is an obvious spillover effect. We get late-night e-mails and week-end phone calls," says David.

"We have an innate understanding of deadlines," says Rhoda who joined the business as a volunteer researcher while on maternity leave from teaching.

David, a native of Calgary, is a graduate of the University of Alberta, and has a master's degree in journalism from Carleton University in Ottawa.

He started the business in 1973 as a sole practitioner after working in the field as public relations manager at an advertising agency and corporate public relations representative with IBM Canada Ltd. in Toronto. He also worked at the Calgary Albertan and Canadian Press Wire Service.

The Eisenstadts, parents of two sons ages 29 and 20, now have about 15 employees at their Overlea Boulevard office, as well as telecommuters and consultants across the country.

Rhoda, who has a degree from Carleton University – the couple met at Carleton – and a teaching certificate from Ontario Teacher's College, says her job "has grown" over the years. She now manages the firm's real estate practice, while David manages the high-tech clients.

"We're more than publicists," says David. "We do a lot of strategic planning and crisis management. We develop a plan [for our clients], and that plan takes us beyond publicity.

"We're thorough, and we go beyond the obvious when we are searching out opportunities for our clients."

The average length of time a public relations firm retains a client is 2.8 years, says David. "We've had client relationships that have [lasted] four years, plus."

In June, David, a fellow of the Public Relations Society of America and the Canadian Public Relations Society, received this year's Philip A. Novikoff Memorial Award at the Canadian Public Relations Society annual conference.

The award is presented to an accredited member of the society who has furthered the awareness of the public relations profession in Canada over time, through professional and public relations practice, service to CPRS and the community at large.

For about three years, the firm has done pro bono work for Friends of Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies, a human rights organization dedicated to fostering tolerance and understanding through community involvement, educational outreach and social action.

Recently, however, they were appointed Canadian communications counsel for the organization.

"We'll be more involved than we were and we will get a fee, but we'll still do some pro bono work."

It is a cause that is paramount, David says. "It is not just local or national – it is global."

Over the next six months, he says, he is planning news conferences in six to 10 Canadian cities – he has already been to Vancouver and Calgary – which will focus on the sixth edition of the centre's CD ROM, Digital Terrorism and Hate 2004.

The CD ROM exposes the growing use of the Internet as a key propaganda weapon, marketing tool and fundraising engine by terrorist groups and traditional extremist groups such as Ku Klux Klan and neo-Nazis.

Based on over 4,000 problematic websites, it is designed to assist law enforcement, public officials, educators, parents and the news media to better grasp the scope of digital hate.

"Our mandate is to always be aware; always know what is going on out there. It is important to us to be involved in the Jewish community, and the Wiesenthal Center is our organization of choice.

"What we like about the centre, is that it represents equality; it is not just about Jewish issues. It looks at the notion of crimes against humanity," says David.

An important part of their work is issue management, says Rhoda.

"Sometimes reporting has not been balanced and we need to get the proper message out there."

In 1990, she says, prior to the summer Ontario election campaign, TCG worked closely with Canadian Jewish Congress to publicize the issue of public funding for independent Jewish day schools.

A Toronto news conference generated radio, television and print coverage, and TCG arranged for CJC spokespeople to meet with newspaper editorial boards and appear on a number of television and radio talk shows in Ottawa, London, Kitchener-Waterloo, Hamilton and Toronto.

David and Rhoda Eisenstadt, partners in The Communications Group Inc. [Joy Van Tiedemann photo]

The agency then ran a full-page ad in the Toronto Star sponsored by CJC and the Alliance of Christian Schools that elicited support from other lobby groups and kept the issue on the public agenda, says Rhoda.

"Our job is to help make sure the client position is understood. We try to ensure balance to the reporting."

Among their most exciting assignments, says David, has been their recent work with the Israel Government Tourist Office, in which Dan Bahat, former chief archeologist of Jerusalem spent a week in Western Canada talking to Christian clergy about Jerusalem at the time of the Ark of the Covenant.

"He spoke to packed audiences by invitation only, and we were involved with the local media. In five days he did about seven to 10 interviews in each market.

"We were able to arrange everything from here because we understand the market and we have connections across the country," says David.

This past summer, he says, TCG did pro bono work for the Mikey Network, a fund established by their clients, The Heron Group of Companies and Heathwood Homes, to purchase public-access defibrillators.

The fund is in memory of Mike Salem, a partner at Heathwood Homes who died on a golf course in 2002 as the result of a sudden cardiac arrest. Immediate access to a defibrillator might have saved his life, David says.

The goal of the Mikey Network is to place Mikeys – named after Salem – in as many public places as possible and to spread the word about heart-healthy living as a preventive measure.

This summer's event, the second annual Mikey Golf Tournament raised about $125,000, enough to purchase about 25 Mikeys in addition to the 50 Mikeys the fund has already purchased.

Just as they share their hectic work schedule, David and Rhoda also share an active personal life.

They speak proudly of their two sons and daughter-in law– Harris and his wife Sara Shoenbeck are professional musicians in Los Angeles and Evan is a student at Nova Scotia College of Art and Design – and they are active members of Temple Sinai.

They attend services regularly, and as a member of the temple's pulpit and services committee, David often leads morning or shivah services.

"We work together, but we work apart. It works out well. We don't see any future changes," says Rhoda.

Sonny Goldstein, CFP
President

PLANNING FOR RETIREMENT?

What Price an Education?
Costs are Spiraling!

Are you planning to have your children attend post-secondary education?
Do they have a Registered Education Savings Plan?

Let us show you how utilizing a well-diversified portfolio within an R.E.S.P. may make you eligible for government grants and help you with the costs.

For a free consultation with no obligation, call 416-221-0060

MUTUAL FUNDS PROVIDED BY GOLDSTEIN SNIDER INVESTMENTS INC.

Creative Ideas in Financial Planning

Michelle Goldstein Zaldin
Chief Operating Officer

Israel as low as 5¢ per minute*
Dial 10-10-620 And Save On Long Distance
*Based on first 20 minutes for $1.50 each additional minute.
TALK MORE PAY LESS
10-10-620
Call the WORLD for $1

Health & Lifestyles

GRAND OPENING
NIJI salonspa
Tel: 416 488 7530

Accident prevention programs save children's lives

By DR. ORNA BLONDHEIM and DR. DAN MIRON

The media often report horrifying incidents in which children are injured or killed in automobile accidents. But the truly shocking number of accidents that occur in and around households is not reported. Those accidents have unfortunately injured or killed a significantly higher number of children than automobile accidents.

Household or neighbourhood accidents may not grab the headlines in the daily newspapers or TV news, but the spiralling number of these accidents represents one of the greatest challenges to the overall health system. Certainly they are responsible for the majority of young people requiring medical treatment and hospitalization.

Statistically speaking, one child out of 10 will have an accident in or around home during his or her adolescence. Studies conducted in the United States have shown these largely preventable accidents claim the majority of lives of people ranging from one to 19 years of age, significantly more than all of the fatal diseases combined. The high numbers of children brought to hospital emergency rooms and subsequently admitted to hospitals represent only the tip of the iceberg of injured youngsters who are treated within their communities.

The only Israeli study of this phenomenon was conducted in 2000 by Emek Medical Center in Afula, Israel, in conjunction with Clalit Health Services, and included 60,000 children from northern Israel. It was discovered that 3.2 per cent of these children were in home and neighbourhood accidents that included falls from high places, bicycles, skateboards, impact injuries from automobiles or heavy objects, burns from hot liquids, fire or electricity and cuts from sharp objects. Other injuries include swallowing and/or choking on foreign objects and poisoning.

These injuries often have long-term effects on the children. According to statistics, 38 per cent of children up to the age of three years old who were hospitalized showed behavioural differences after the accidents, while 19 per cent still hadn't returned to normal even after six months of hospitalization. Of the children ages four to 17, 47 per cent who were hospitalized were immediately limited in their daily activities, 53 per cent were limited in their school activities and 59 per cent were limited in their sport activities. After six months, six per cent were limited in their daily activity, 1.7 per cent were limited in their school activity and 18 per cent were limited in sports.

Accident prevention education for parents has had a positive effect on lowering the number of injuries to children. In the U.S., a program called the Injury Prevention Program has been used for the past few years. This program calls for accident prevention education by pediatric physicians during treatment and/or routine checkups. Results have shown significant decreases in accidents if parents have undergone accident prevention training.

Emek Medical Center is actively involved in educating parents and youngsters, in co-ordination with local municipalities. Emphasis is on the proper use of automobile safety belts and baby seats, protective head and body gear while bicycling or skateboarding, hand and guard rails on stairways, keeping a safe distance from open flames and electrical appliances, keeping children away from hot or boiling liquids and making sure that youngsters do not have access to sharp objects.

Orna Blondheim is the director/CEO of Emek Medical Center and Dan Miron is a children's pediatric specialist there.

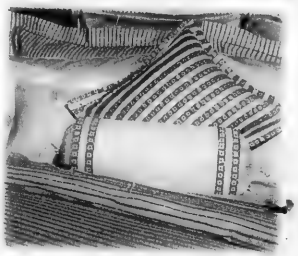
STANDARD Property Management Corporation
management & services
call David 416.928.4885

Cleaning Protection Restoration
For All Your Stone Surfaces
MARBLE RESCUE
Insured and Bonded
Technicians with over 15 years experience.
We'll beat any written residential quote by 20%
416-782-BUFF(2833)
Don't replace your dull, damaged stone & marble. Turn to us!

Vinnette Mohan, C.C.Ht.
Director & Certified Clinical Hypnotherapist
A message from the Director of Positive Changes Toronto
Dear Valued Customer:
After five years at 421 Eglinton Avenue East, we've moved to York Mills and Leslie to serve you better.
If you're planning to lose weight, stop smoking, or make any other Positive Change in the New Year, we can help. Give us a call; it will be our pleasure to assist you in attaining your goals.
– Vinnette Mohan, C.C.Ht., Director Of Operations Canada
CALL TODAY FOR YOUR FREE CONSULTATION
Positive Changes Yes, It Works.
POSITIVE CHANGES TORONTO
416.488.4724 • 801 York Mills Road at Leslie
www.positivechangestoronto.com

Looking for a top notch photographer?
check out
The Canadian Jewish news
Party Planner
Nov 18, 2004

Caring is not what I do, it's who I am.
Dear Friend:
There are many retirement homes to choose from, but I can guarantee you that none will be as warm and caring as L'Chaim Retirement Home.
How can I make such a promise?
Because I'm the one who's here for you, in person, every day. This isn't just my business; it's my life.
Call me and tell me how I can help.
— Judy Cohen
L'chaim retirement homes
416.398.7898
718 SHEPPARD AVE. WEST
OPEN HOUSE EVERY THURS. 10 – 4
www.lchaimretirement.com

DEBLINS LINENS
Quality Bedding from Israel
by Revelle and Israeli manufacturers
• World-class designs
• High thread count
• Beautifully finished
Consumers' Choice Award 2004 For Business Excellence
www.deblins.com


39 Orfus Road off Dufferin, S. of Yorkdale
7979 Weston Road Just north of Highway 7
Mississauga Home & Design Centre 2575 Dundas West

REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

DAVID EICHORN REALTY LIMITED

416 787•1712 Visit our website: eichornrealty.com

BATHURST / LAWRENCE — NEW LISTING!
A REAL CHARMER! Exquisite Cape Cod style 3 bdrm., renovated & decorated throughout. Open concept, gleaming hardwood floors, modern eat-in kit., w/o to huge deck, gorgeous landscaping, attached gar. ONLY $429,000! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

• • •

BATHURST / LAWRENCE APARTMENTS FOR RENT — NEW LISTING!
TWO BRIGHT, SPACIOUS UNITS! 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, w/o to balcony, quiet building close to TTC, subway, shops, schools, shuls. $1,250 — $1,400 / mo. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

• • •

BATHURST / DELL PARK — STUNNING CUSTOM HOME!
Approx. 3,500 sq. ft. + fin. bsmt., 5 + 1 bdrms., sep. entry to in-law suite, dream kit., main floor fam. room + library. All the bells & whistles — oak hrdwd. flrs.., limestone, granite, skylights ++. Asking $1,029,000. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

• • •

ATTENTION BUILDERS:
Dream home opportunities on these ideally-situated building lots!

AVENUE / BATHURST SOLD OLDSTREAM 50 x 150 ft.
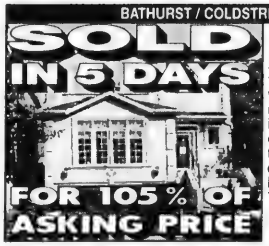
BATHURST / LAWRENCE 50 ft. frontage, $419,000
AVENUE ROAD / LAWRENCE 44 ft. frontage, $449,000
CLANTON PARK Magnificent 63 x 150 ft., $459,000

• • •

BATHURST / LAWRENCE — REDUCED!
MAGNIFICENT CUSTOM LUXURY HOME on 58 x 132 ft. lot that widens to 83 ft. at rear. Unique opportunity, condo alternative, huge palatial bungalow. ideal for entertaining, indoor pool. Only $849,000. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / COLDSTREAM



Custom executive 4 bedroom home, attention to detail throughout. Loaded with upgrades! Dream maple kitchen, granite in kitchen & foyer, exquisite mouldings & trim, w/o to deck, double garage. Call David Eichorn* at (416) 787-1712.

SOLD

BATHURST / WILSON
SPACIOUS NEW TOWNHOMES in prime central location! Choice of 3 & 4 bdrm. units, each individually customized, attached garages and features galore, priced from $399,000. Model home available for viewing. Call David Eichorn* NOW at (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / GLENGROVE — EXQUISITE NEW CUSTOM HOME!

5 + 2 bdrms., 5 baths, fin. bsmt., sep. entry to in-law suite, fam. room, dream kit. Luxurious upgrades throughout! Lowest priced new home in area. REDUCED TO $979,000! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712. Visit our website for a virtual tour.

*BROKER

Call 416-441-2888 ext 545 or visit www davidzaikin com

We are N°1 in Toronto in selling Luxury properties 1 mln + in Thornhill, Richmond Hill, Markham and Central Toronto, NO1, NO2, NO4 and C14 (by the # of transactions combined and gross volume sales including MLS and exclusive listings) in 1999-2000-2002-2003

David Zaikin
VP/Associate Broker

Recognized by WHO'S WHO IN LUXURY REAL ESTATE

HARVEY KALLES REAL ESTATE LIMITED

Yana Zaikin
Sales Representative

Custom Residence Under Construction designed by Richard Wengle on 1.3 acres south lot. Featuring 10' ceilings, 3-4 car garage, 5 bdrms, 5 ensuites

361 Longmore St & 361A Longmore St
Two lots 35' x 100' Bayview & Sheppard area building permit for up to 3000 sq ft on each lot.
Asking $349,000 each

Custom Residence
under construction in the Bridle Path area.
5 bdrms, 8 bthrms, high ceilings, 3 car garage, multilevel security system. Designed by Lorne Rose. Built by Valentino Fine Homes.

Wanted by Qualified Buyers! 5-6 Bdrm house at • Arnold Ave., • Spring Gate Blvd., Franmore Circle, • Franklin Ave., • Rodco Dr., • Tangreen Circle • Thornridge Dr.

Call 416-441-2888 ext.545 for Free Confidential Evaluation

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

Forest Hill
Real Estate Inc. Realtor

416-488-2875 Forest Hill Village | 416-785-1500 Central | 416-226-1987 Bayview

List with us and appear on our Website: www.foresthill.com

CENTRAL PROPERTIES

226 COLDSTREAM AVE! 4+1 BDRM, 4 BATHS!
$959K! Bathurst/Glencairn! total reno! Breathtaking 47x201'! In-ground pool! Immediate! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

50 X 140' QUIET 2 STOREY WITH FAMILY ROOM
4 bedroom, finished basement, prime locale. Wilson/Bathurst. Gary Pollock* and Patti Pollock* 416-226-1987

12 LISTER DRIVE! 3+1 BDRM, 2 BATH BUNGALOW!
$420K! Yonge N/Finch! Try Your offer! Updated! Nanny ste! 2 car garage! 67x113'! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

BAYVIEW/NORTH PROPERTIES

165 STEELES AVE E! LIVE/WORK @ HOME!
$969K! W/Bayview! Vendor says Sell! 7+bdrm, 6 baths! 2 Nanny Stes! Rare 81 x 123'! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

GREENLANE AREA - THORNHILL - 4 BDRM
Quiet court, main floor family room + office, gorgeous hardwood floors, finished basement, pool! Hedda Zaionz* 416-226-1987

NEW PRICE - 2 YR OLD $425,000 THORNWOOD WEST
4 bedroom, 3 baths, large family room, separate breakfast room, double garage. Saul Merrick* 416-488-2875

DETACHED 3 BDRM BUNGALOW @ BATHURST/SHEPPARD
Hardwood floors, eat-in kitchen, Income potential. Unbelievable $339K. Terry Sulley* 416-226-1987

STEELES & BATHURST! 3 BDRM, EAT-IN KITCHEN
Family room with fireplace, basement finished, great family home in fabulous location! $325,000. Cari Cogan* 416-488-2875

CONDOMINIUM PROPERTIES

RARELY OFFERED! FIRST AD! 3 BDRM!
Condo Penthouse Forest Hill, 3 baths, gorgeously renovated! Indoor pool, concierge! Saul Merrick* 416-488-2875

LUXURY PENTHOUSE FOREST HILL $699,000!
1 bedroom + den, 2 baths, recent reno, upgraded finishes, tree top views, indoor pool, concierge. M. Merrick* 416-488-2875

4200 BATHURST ST $629,000
2 bedroom condo, view of Earl Bales Park! T. Cousens* & K. Gurland* 416-785-1500

4200 BATHURST ST $559,900
2+bedroom condo, view of Earl Bales Park! T. Cousens* & K. Gurland* 416-785-1500

LOWER VILLAGE GATE IN FOREST HILL
$349,000. 1 bedroom+den, eat-in kitchen, 2 baths, fac bal, parking, outdoor pool, near subway. Saul Merrick* 416-488-2875

RENTAL PROPERTIES

197 SHELDRAKE, 2 STOREY LOFT!
Large 2 bedroom, totally renovated, great locale, available now! Gary Pollock* 416-226-1987

Associate Broker  Sales Representative

ROB GASNER

If a new home is part of your plan for 5765, Call the Real Estate Professional who

GETS RESULTS

RE/MAX REALTRON REALTY INC.

Anything else is second best !!

416-782-8882
www.gasner.ca

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

SEIDMAN
REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR
416-633-7373

PRIMROSE 1 - $264,900
Bathurst/Steeles, lrge bright corner unit, 2 bedroom, 2 baths, kitchen with window, 2 walkouts to balcony, parking, locker, A-1 buy.

BATHURST/BJCC
Custom built, 3 bdrm, 5 baths, huge liv & din, fam room, walkouts, main floor laundry, fin bsmnt with private entrance, double gar, quiet crescent, steps to everything.

416-633-7373

EXCEPTIONAL VALUE
$449K LAWRENCE/BATHURST
3 Bdrms, Huge Main Floor Family Rm. 59.95'x120' lot. CAC, Hardwood, Fireplace.
TERRY HERSENHOREN
Royal LePage RE/J&Div.
416-489-2121

BATHURST-LAWRENCE
2 bedroom renovated home from $1,650 + utilities. Walking distance to Synagogues, TTC, Schools and Bathurst St. Call 416-633-3833 or to view pictures of our properties... www.adenathomes.com

OPEN SAT./SUN.
OCT. 9TH & 10TH – 2-4pm
3322 Bathurst Street
Spectacular renovated freehold townhome, 2 bdrm., hrdwd. flrs. throughout, solid oak eat-in kitchen, fin. bsmnt. Neutral décor. 2 car prkng. A must see!
Kathy Botteas, Sales Rep.
Graydon Hill Realty Ltd., Broker
416-922-1142

FINCH & YONGE
Elegant 4,200 sq. ft. property in top condition, huge lot, close to all amenities. See it – love it. SALLY ROSEN, Century 21 Heritage Grp. Ltd. 905-764-7111

10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE

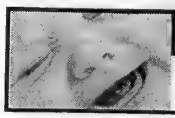
SAVE REAL ESTATE FEES
50 Lower Village Gate
Spadina - Lonsdale Area
3 bedroom Condominium Townhouse
About 3300 sq. ft. $900,000
416-922-1967

20 HOUSES FOR SALE/RENT

Promenade, 2 bdrm, 2 full bath, 1300 sq. ft., 12 floor, southwest exposure. Nice view. Call 7-10 pm. 905-709-0673.

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

Atkinson/Centre, 1 bdrm. bsmnt. Nov. 1, lge liv. rm, stove, fridge. Close to TTC, mail/shul. $795/all incl. 416-809-5406.



30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE

SANTEE REALTY INC. 416-441-2003

SKYMARK
DON MILLS & FINCH - UPDATED LISTINGS
Skymark S5 Zenith: 3 bedroom + solarium $299,900 Hurry.
Skymark H: renovated, open concept, south exposure. $299,900
Skymark I: unique penthouse, 2 bdrm. + den. Over 2,000 sq. ft $375,000
For my updated inventory, colour brochures & 360° virtual tour, call
SANTEE LEUNG, B.A., SKYMARK SPECIALIST

STEELES/TORRESDALE
Corner unit, 1 bdrm. + solarium + den + balcony! 5 appl., prkng. Very spacious! Sublet until April 2006. $1275/mo. Rose Gelman B.A., Sales Rep., Century 21 Heritage Grp. Ltd. 905-764-7111

35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT

Bathurst/Centre (Promenade), 1550 sq. ft., 2 bdrm., 2 bath, 2 prkng., corner unit. Avail. Nov. 1, 416-460-9390.

Luxury 2 bedroom condo, 135 Antibes, 2 washrooms, 905-771-6666, 647-293-6769.

60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE

1-2 tenants, home with furnished rooms, fireplace and deck, parking included, rent negotiable. Call 905-763-7331.

Yonge/401, rooms in lux. house. All appliances, utilis., cable & internet incl. Suits 1 person. Nr. subway & 401. 416-224-0808, leave message.

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

BATHURST-LAWRENCE-WILSON
1, 2 & 3 bedroom renovated, from $850. Walking distance to Synagogues, TTC, Schools and Bathurst St. Call 416-633-3833 or to view pictures of our properties... www.adenathomes.com

Bathurst/Sheppard, lux., spacious, bright apts., in quiet ravine setting off main streets, newly reno'd, walk to TTC, utilities incl. 1 bdrm. avail. immediately/November 1. Call 905-474-3600, 416-633-1484.

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

BATHURST-SHEPPARD
ELEGANT TWIN BLDS.
Very lrg. 1, 2, 3 Bedrooms, 2 & 3 Bdrms. w/2 balconies and 2 baths.
Ample closets plus cedar. Roof laundry, ravine setting, pool, pkg. incl.
6 Apts. per flr.
416-960-3238 - Bus.
416-631-9377 or 416-631-0388 - Supt.

Allen/Sheppard, unfurn. apt., 1 br., priv. entr. no smoke/pets. $800/mo. 416-636-9858.

78 SHORT TERM RENTAL AVAILABLE

Bathurst/Steeles, 2 bdrm., 2 bth, furn. condo. Nov. 1-May 1/05. 6 appl., lndr., prkng., adults only. 416-665-8303.

Reas. winter indoor prkg. for car, motorcycle or small boat in apt. bldg. in Bathurst/Steeles. 416-496-2900, ext. 113.

130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT

Miami Bch, tastefully furn. 2 bdr., 2 bath, on Collins Ave. overlooking Indian Cr. Dramatic view, 30 ft. terr., prkg, pool, gym. No pets. Adult bldg. $1500 US. Yearly rental 215-627-3356.

100 Arlen House East, 1 bdr., conv., min. 3 mos. Free daily bus to mall. 416-636-6470.

Rent 2 bdr., 2 bath condo, adults, 55 yrs., 4 mos. or more. $1250/mo. US. Inverrary Fla. Tel. 954-733-1835, Fax # same. e-mail: elel2206@aol.com

Hollybrook, Pembroke Pines, 55+, gated commun. FREE golf, tennis, heated pools, 1 bdrm., 1.5 bath, Towers, 6th flr. corner., beaut. views, new kit. & bath, n/pets/smkr, $1500/mo Avail. Nov. 1st. 516-674-8415.

Lux. condo on Millionaire's Row, 5555 Collins Ave., Miami Beach. Oceanfront, 2+2, fully furnished. $3000/mo. US. Please call 305-525-5142.

Ft. Lauderdale, commercial/university, Oakbrook Village. 1 bed., 1 1/2 bath, equipped. $1100/mo. US plus utilities. 3 mos. 416-636-3845.

Miami Beach, beachfront apt. Surfside, sleeps 4-6, full furn. Walking distance to Bal Harbour shops, restaurants & Surfside shul. Weekly or monthly. December-April. 416-783-3020.

Hollywood beachfront, studio apt. on beach. Great location, by month or season. 416-992-8995.

Longboat Key, beautiful 2 bdrm., 2 bath lux condo on beach at Veranda. From Sat. Dec. 4 for 1 or 2 wks., bargain at $1000/wk US. Call 905-731-0880.

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT

ALTER REALTY INC.
The Leading Specialist In Adult Communities
Gerry Alter, Broker
Toll Free: 866.421.5669 Office: 954.421.4886
Cell: 954.421.4886 Fax: 954.421.2725
www.alterrealestate.com
BUY WITH US - No Transaction Fees
LIST WITH US 5% Commission Rate
FULL BROKERAGE SERVICES
A Top Team of Realtors
Multiple Listing Service
U.S. & International Advertising
Internet Exposure with Photos

ANBER MOVERS
SPECIALIST IN:
TORONTO - VANCOUVER
NEW YORK - FLORIDA
(514) 735-8148
1-800-561-MOVE
"BONDED"

165 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT

PROPERTIES IN ISRAEL
PRESTIGIOUS PROJECT IN REHAVIA - Radak Street. Prime location, deluxe interior, very large units - duplex or full floor, large garden or terrace. Exquisite architecture. Genuine Grandeur. Exclusive to PROSPERITY REAL ESTATE.
Tel. +972-2-567-0303
www.prosperity-realestate.com

190 VACATION PROPERTY AVAILABLE

Mt. Tremblant, 5 bed., 2 bath, sleeps up to 12. Pool, close to skiing. Shuttle. Very lux. Reas. rates. Short term or seas. Also avail. for sale. 1-866-955-9961.

PALM SPRINGS, CA
VACATION RENTALS
We have 1-2-3 bedroom condos. Nicely furnished in super locations. From $1250 - $4500 per mo. U.S.
CHOPSY SAMUELSON REALTY
760-327-8429

240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY

Experienced cook for Yeshiva required. 150 meals, 3 times per day. Start Oct. 13th. Refs. required. 416-629-8739.

Midrasha High School in Hamilton is seeking qualified Hebrew teacher for a part-time evening position teaching intermediate & senior Hebrew. Please forward resume to the Director, A. Zians@hotmail.com or by fax to 1-905-648-8350.

North York massage therapy clinic position for RMT avail. Please call with resume and refs. Car ownership is a plus. 416-633-0977 Tamara Gilden.

240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY

IMMEDIATE OPENING
Nursery Co-Teacher Position
Personality: Warm & friendly, creative, diligent & hardworking. Professional: ECE diploma. Classroom experience (5 years minimum). Judaic background. For information or interview please call 905-763-4040 or e-mail: Faygie@chabadflamingo.com

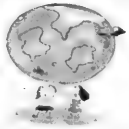
250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

WEE CARE!
PLACEMENT AGENCY
Dedicated to Caring Since 1996
Nannies ● Housekeepers ● Baby Nurses
Sponsoring from abroad
Live In & Live Out ● Full Time & Part Time
Candidates pre-screened ● References checked
Service guaranteed
416-789-3070

Experienced cleaning lady, can do some cooking. Available 2 days a week. Call after 6 pm. 416-630-4748.

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

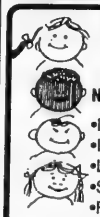
Del's Cleaning Service, we clean condos, offices, houses and renovation clean up, after party clean. 416-651-9688.

ShineX Caregivers Inc
Quality Caregivers, Nannies and Immigration Services


Licensed Immigration Consultant, C.S.I.C. Member #M041220
www.shinexcaregivers.com
Tel: 416-218-9537
7 Steeles Ave. East, Suite 4, Toronto, ON M2M 3Y2
Fax: 416-221-7866
Email: nannies@shinexcaregivers.com

McCaskill Household Services Ltd.
Homemakers, H.C.A., P.S.W.'s
Live in - Day/Night Shifts
•The Elderly •The Chronically Ill
•Hospital Recovery
We cover all your needs to help you stay at home
Personal care, Light housekeeping, Meal preparation
Providing service for over 57 years
416-431-2443

Z's DOMESTICS
NANNIES • HOUSEKEEPERS • ELDERCARE
EURO-FILIPINAS • CLEANERS • EXPERIENCED
• Live-in/out in Toronto • Screened, Guaranteed
• F/T, P/T, Certified • Kashruth & Hebrew
• Local Placement • Free sponsorship of Filipinas
From ISRAEL & EUROPE
905-731-1845

DIAMOND PERSONNEL INC.
NANNIES • HOUSEKEEPERS • HOME CARE


•LIVE-IN/LIVE-OUT
•PERMANENT
•LOCAL & OVERSEAS
•SCREENED CANDIDATES
•FRIENDLY, PERSONAL SERVICE
BEST NANNY AGENCY 2003 & 2004 CITY PARENT
4841 YONGE ST. at Sheppard Subway
416-730-8866
OTTAWA 1-888-886-8209
www.diamondpersonnel.com

family matters
Caregivers • Nannies • Housekeepers
Live-in, Live-out • All candidates pre-screened
Many of our candidates are personally interviewed by us in Hong Kong
Service guaranteed
Contact Tova Rich @ 416.633.0017
familymatters@rogers.com

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

P.J.'s Caregiving Services
helping you care for your loved ones
Experienced live-in/out caregivers, f/t or p/t.
NO FEE to sponsor our applicants overseas.
www.pjcares.com
(416) 266-0130

Shiny cleaning for houses, apts. & condos. 11 yrs. exper., refs. Call 416-289-4392 (leave msg.).

257 HEALTH CARE AVAILABLE

Qualicare
www.qualicare.ca
- Private nursing
- Homecare support
- Retirement living services
- Short or long-term care

For a free consultation, call:
416 628-7449

273 INTRODUCTION SERVICES

Bringing People Together, the top-rated service in Ont., view photos. Ruth 905-731-5204.

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS

Replying to an ad with a CJN Box Number?
Address your mail to:
The Canadian Jewish News
1500 Don Mills Rd.
Suite 205
North York, Ont.
M3B 3K4
Don't forget to put the Box Number on your envelope.
CJN Box #'s are valid for 30 days.

257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE

Careable Inc.
GERIATRIC CARE MANAGEMENT
HEALTH CARE EQUIPMENT
FACILITY PLACEMENT
HOMECARE SUPPORT
Telephone: 416 362-9176 Fax: 416 362-3035
Mobile: 416 219-5290 E-mail: careable@sympatico.ca

Top Notch
Caregivers and Health Care Aides
Quality elderly & disability care
PSW's, HCA's, RN's,
Baby Nurses and Homemakers
Live-in/out, Temp Placements and Overnight Care 416-785-3939
topnotchcare@rogers.com

259 SENIORS

Reliable lady avail., FT or PT to take care of elderly (at home/hospital). Exper. & refs. 416-631-6929.

275 INTRODUCTION SERVICES

B"H
SOULMATES WORLDWIDE JEWISH MATCHMAKERS
Matches are made in heaven... We just assist!
Call now! 905-709-3868.
www.soulmates.net.

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS

Attractive, 51 year old, separated Jewish executive looking for his soulmate for possible long term relationship. Please send a letter telling me about yourself accompanied by a recent photo to CJN Box #4585.

305 ARTICLES WANTED

Books & diaries bought by Ben. Instant cash for 1-1000 books. Call Ben, 416-890-9644.

Wanted: quality antiques, fine art, watches, jewellery, estates. Please call 905-764-1112.

SERVICE DIRECTORY Section

350 APPLIANCES

Sobie's 416 224-2526
162 Willowdale Ave. (Yonge / Sheppard area)
www.sobies.com • 30+ years in-home service
We repair all major appliances including:
SUB-ZERO • JENNAIR • THERMADOR

370 CATERING

Dairy Treats Restaurant & Catering
Brit Milah • Bar/Bat Mitzvahs (COR)
Home or Office • Shiva Meals • Corporate Accounts
3522 Bathurst St. (S. of Wilson) 416-787-0309
www.dairytreats.com

BUSINESS CATERING
SHORT NOTICE & SAME DAY SERVICE
• DELIVERY AVAILABLE
416-789-7651
3457 BATHURST ST.
(COR) milk 'n honey
THE DAIRY RESTAURANT

CHICKEN NEST (COR)
Kosher Restaurant
• DINE IN
• TAKE OUT
• CATERING
Home & Office Parties • Babynamings
Bar / Bat Mitzvahs • Sheva Brachot
"SHIVA CATERING A SPECIALTY"
416-787-6378

385 COMPUTERS

Computer handyman avail., home and home office. Resonable rates, PC & Mac. Updates, upgrades & service. Jonathon at (647) 891-7188.

395 ELECTRICAL

All kinds of electrical jobs. For great service call Serge. Licensed. 416-834-4312.

Electrician seeks small jobs only, no appliances. Please call 416-636-5732.

405 FURNITURE

Carrocel Restorations NEW LOCATION
Antique and Fine Furniture Gallery
• TABLES • CHAIRS • OCCASIONAL TABLES
• BEDROOM SUITES • DINING SUITES
• REFINISHING • REUPHOLSTERY
WE CUSTOM BUILD
3255 - 14TH AVENUE, UNIT 4
905-475-6942

RENDE WOOD DESIGN
Custom Entertainment & Wall Units, Furniture Refinishing.
Jeff Rittenberg - 416-247-3565

Marcantonio Furniture Repair Specializing in touchups
Restoration & general repairs done on premises. 416-654-0518.

Earl Bales Sr. Woodworkers. We do minor furn. repairs on chairs & replace caning. Our prices are reas. We also do custom work. Phil or Jack 416-630-6487, 10-3, Mon.-Thurs.

412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING

24 hr. repairs, services & installs a/c, heat & refrigeration, commercial & residential, licens-ed tech. Call Alex 416-671-0267.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENT

AlphaSolutions
Flooring & Painting Contractor
Hardwood–Marble–Carpeting
Antique Effects & Murals
FREE ESTIMATES
416-488-2162
Steve Jonas

City East Hardwood Flooring
Sand, stain, finish.
905-839-0733.

Renovations & repairs. Drywall, flooring, painting, minor plumbing & electrical. Call Joe, 416-636-7935.

EPHRAM, carpentry, ceramic, electrical, plumbing, drywall & more. 416-636-3425.

A-1 Handyman, specializing in indoor repairs, drywall, electrical, plumbing, painting & finished bsmnts. 647-887-5075.

Exper. handyman. All home repairs & improvements, electrical, plumbing, kitchen, baths, roof, fence & deck. Sun.-Fri. 905-709-4906.

Before signing any contract, make sure your contractor is appropriately licensed with the Metropolitan Licensing Commission 416-392-3000

415 HOME IMPROVEMENT

Handyman, home repairs, paint, tile, bathroom re-grout, re-silicone. Ben, 416-372-2255.

438 LOCKSMITH

LOCKS - DEADBOLTS
Schlage, Special
1 for $85; 2 for $160
installed
Fast, reliable service, guaranteed!
Call Moshe 416-445-6438

445 MOVING

TURNADOS MOVING & STORAGE
HOMES • APARTMENTS • OFFICES
Local, Long Distance, Storage
SENIOR'S DISCOUNT
Two Professional Movers — Free Estimate
Cell: 416-414-0920

TRANSNET CO. MOVING & STORAGE
Homes * Apartments * Offices * Storage
Packing Materials & Service
416-704-6881
http://members.Rogers.com/moving

WWW.GTAMOVERS.COM
Fully equipped, insured. Local and long distance. Mid months discount. 416-918-2957

BestWayToMove.com
26' trucks, experienced professional movers.
Low rates, good reliable service.
Moving & Free Storage.
Call 416-999-MOVE
or 416-875-MOVE (6683)

G&M Moving and Storage. Apts., homes, offices. Short notice. Large or small. We carry supplies. 905-738-4030.

srmmovers.com - A-1 Short Notice. Insured. Homes, apts., offices, businesses. 1-man $40/hr., 2-men $55/hr, 3-men $70/hr. & up. 416-747-7082.

B-K Movers. 2-28' trucks. Boxes, homes, offices, apts. Family business. Reas. Packing & packing materials avail. Call 905-274-6144 or 905-278-0939.

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPER

Painting, wallpapering, plastering, stucco repair. Samy, 905-738-1532, no SAT. calls.

All home, paint, tile & repairs. Bathroom re-grout, re-silicone & more! Ben, 416-372-2255.

Experienced painter, plasterer, vinyl, tile flooring. Best prices. Free estimates. Guaranteed. Bill, 416-638-9249.

Prof. painting, ext./int., wallpapering, drywall, all renov. of houses, apts., offices. Licensed. Stan, 416-201-9079.

Masters Choice Painting
Paint/plaster/stucco/small renos. Free est. Reas. 416-402-5768.

Bargain painter/handyman, apt., houses, offices. Call Alex, 416-633-5973.

Best Prices!!! Best Quality!!! Best Service!!! Painting. Licensed & Bonded. Call Shlomo 416-804-1706.

Prof. painting/paper-hanging
Jacob 416-567-9869
Shabbos calls please

452 PARTY SERVICES

The CandyMan
MACHINE RENTALS
SNO CONE, POPCORN, CANDY FLOSS & MINI DONUT
CENTREPIECES
SOFT PRETZELS
BALLOONS
416-789-7173

455 PHOTOGRAPHY /VIDEO

Our "UNIQUE" 3 FT. Photo Puzzle of your child...your "alternative" to the Candle-lighting Ceremony. DVD's are Forever! Don't lose your "Memories of a Lifetime". We'll transfer your movie reels and slides. MADISON VIDEO, Fred 416-229-6000 or call toll free 1-877-847-1263.

465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICE

Full Service Glass and Windows Inc.
Tel: 905-731-8446
• Windows • Doors • Screens
• Mirror Walls & Doors
• Frameless shower & tub doors
• Pivots • Locks • Closers
• Beveled Glass and Mirrors
• Thermopanes - Storefronts
• Security Bars • Skylights
Fast & Reliable Service
Quality & Customer Satisfaction

472 RETIREMENT HOMES

Ahavath Achim Retirement Home. The– home with a Neshama. Planned activities, 24 hr. supervision. For information contact Joseph or Louise Sahar, office 416-398-5486 or 905-660-4831.

495 TILING

TILE REPAIRS. Bath & shower cleaning, silicone re-grouting & more! Ben, 416-372-2255.

500 TUTORING

Piano/flute lessons by pro musician, home/studio, all levels. Sue @ 416-406-0609.

Tutoring in MATH & SCIENCE grades 9 to OAC by experienced high school teacher. Please call 905-886-6689.

TUTORSHIP EDUCATIONAL SERVICES
Support, encouragement and expert help - SK to University -
Math • Chemistry • Biology
Physics • English • ESL •
Essaywriting • Exam preparation
Study skills • French • Spanish
New this fall: Hebrew by experienced Israeli teachers
Book a tutor now for the fall:
416-573-0274
tutorship@rogers.com

Have you subscribed to The Canadian Jewish News? If not . . . visit us at www.cjnews.com

CLASSIFIED DIRECTORY

5 HOUSES FOR SALE
10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE
15 HOUSES FOR RENT
20 HOUSES FOR SALE/RENT
24 HOUSES WANTED TO BUY
25 HOUSES WANTED TO RENT
30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE
35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT
40 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE/RENT
45 CONDOMINIUM WANTED
50 ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
55 ACCOMMODATION WANTED
60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
62 SHARED ACCOMMODATION WANTED
65 ACCOMMODATION/SWAP/EXCHANGE
67 HOUSE SITTERS WANTED
68 HOUSE SITTERS AVAILABLE
70 UNIVERSITY ACCOMMODATION
75 APARTMENT FOR RENT
78 SHORT TERM RENTAL AVAILABLE
80 SHORT TERM RENTAL WANTED
81 APARTMENT TO SUBLET
82 ROOM AVAILABLE FOR RENT
84 ROOM WANTED FOR RENT
85 APARTMENT WANTED
87 PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
105 COTTAGE FOR SALE
110 COTTAGE FOR RENT
115 COTTAGE FOR RENT/SALE
120 COTTAGE WANTED
122 TIME SHARE FOR SALE
123 TIME SHARE FOR RENT
125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE
130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT
135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED
145 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. AVAIL.
145 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. WANTED
147 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION
150 FLORIDA TRANSPORTATION
155 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE
160 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT
165 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
170 ISRAEL PROPERTIES WANTED
175 ISRAEL ACCOMMODATION WANTED
178 ISRAEL TRANSPORTATION
180 OUT-OF-TOWN PROPERTIES
185 OUT-OF-COUNTRY PROPERTIES
190 VACATION PROPERTY AVAILABLE
195 VACATION PROPERTIES WANTED
196 VACATION PROPERTIES-EXCH./SHARE
198 SPACE FOR LEASE
199 COMMERCIAL PROPERTY AVAILABLE
200 OFFICE SPACE AVAILABLE
201 OFFICE SPACE WANTED
202 STORAGE SPACE WANTED
203 STORAGE SPACE AVAILABLE
205 SAND/LOTS FOR SALE
210 LAND/LOTS FOR LEASE
220 INVESTMENT PROPERTIES
225 INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES
230 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES
232 BUSINESS FOR SALE
235 BUSINESS WANTED
240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES
245 EMPLOYMENT WANTED
246 VOLUNTEERS
247 DAY CARE AVAILABLE
248 DAY CARE WANTED
250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE
255 DOMESTIC HELP WANTED
257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE
258 HEALTHCARE WANTED
259 SENIORS
260 BUSINESS PERSONALS
265 PEOPLE SEARCH
270 PERSONALS
273 INTRODUCTION SERVICES
275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED
279 PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY
280 ANNOUNCEMENTS
290 LOST & FOUND
295 PETS
300 ARTICLES FOR SALE
305 ARTICLES WANTED
313 BOATS
315 CARS
320 CONTENTS SALE
325 GARAGE SALE

SERVICE DIRECTORY
345 ACCOUNTING
350 APPLIANCES
355 AUDIO-VISUAL SALES/REPAIRS
357 AUTOMOTIVE
358 BRIDAL
365 CARPENTRY
368 CARPETS
370 CATERING
371 CERAMICS
372 CHUPPAHS
375 CLEANING/CLEANING SUPPLIES
379 CLOCKS/WATCHES
380 CLOTHING
382 COUNSELLING
385 COMPUTER
386 DANCING
387 DECORATING
390 DRIVING
392 DRY CLEANING/LAUNDRY
394 EDUCATION
395 ELECTRICAL
396 ELECTRONICS
400 ENTERTAINMENT
404 FITNESS & WEIGHT LOSS
405 FURNITURE
406 GARAGE DOORS
407 GIFT SERVICES
410 HEALTH & BEAUTY
412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING
415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS
416 HOME INSPECTION
419 INTERNET SERVICE
420 INVITATIONS/PRINTING/CALLIG.
425 JEWELLERY
427 JUDAICA
430 LEASING
431 LANDSCAPING/LAWNCARE
432 LAWYERS
433 LESSONS
434 LIMOUSINE/TAXI SERVICES
435 LIQUIDATION
438 LOCKSMITH
439 MAKE-UP
440 MISCELLANEOUS
442 MUSICAL SERVICES
445 MOVING
449 PEST CONTROL
450 PAINTING/WALLPAPERING
452 PARTY SERVICES
455 PHOTOGRAPHY/VIDEO
460 PLUMBING
465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES
470 RENOVATIONS
472 RETIREMENT HOMES
475 ROOFING
477 SECOND HAND STORES
478 SCHOOLS
480 SECURITY SYSTEMS
481 SEWING
482 SIGNS
485 SNOW REMOVAL
490 TABLE COVERING
493 TAILORING/ALTERATIONS
495 TILING
496 TRAINING
498 TRAVEL & TOURISM
500 TUTORING
510 UPHOLSTERY
515 WATERPROOFING
520 WINDOW COVERINGS
525 WINDOW REPLACEMENT
530 WINDOW CLEANING
550 WORKSHOPS

Coast to Coast

Flooding forces Winnipeg congregation to find alternative venue for Yom Kippur

By MYRON LOVE
Prairies Correspondent

WINNIPEG — Basement flooding caused by heavy rains forced the Herzlia-Adas Yeshurun Congregation to scramble to find an alternative location for Yom Kippur.

It happened on the Monday evening after Rosh Hashanah and it was fortunate that a shul member was still in the building, says Rabbi Tzvi Muller, the congregation's spiritual leader. "He had gone back to check on something, saw the water rising and called in help. After it was cleaned up, we saw the extent of the damage."

The area that was damaged houses a multi-purpose room and classrooms for Ohr HaTorah day school, as well as a washroom. The damage, Rabbi Muller says, is in the tens of thousands of dollars and insurance covers just $25,000.

"We worked round the clock to try to restore the synagogue for Yom Kippur," he says, "but we couldn't do it. Although the building was functional, there was still a smell. We were concerned about possible effects on children or seniors."

The synagogue then began searching for an alternative site for its Yom Kippur services. With only a day to spare, services were transplanted to the J.B. Mitchell School, a nearby public high school.

"A wellspring of volunteers emerged to help relocate the congregation to a place that would suit the needs of everyone," says Ellery Broder, a Herzlia board member and head of the Ohr HaTorah parent committee. "With a makeshift ark [made from a kitchen cabinet] to house our Torah scrolls, we were able to replicate the exact layout of our sanctuary.

"People were called, services went on, and it was a meaningful, spiritual and slightly unusual Yom Kippur for over 400 congregants. Our profound thanks are extended to the wonderfully accommodating people at J.B. Mitchell, who went the extra mile in ensuring a comfortable and easy transition during such a difficult time."

Ohr HaTorah Day School has been relocated to a nearby community centre until the synagogue renovations are complete. The students missed only two days of classes.

Rabbi Muller says almost right up to the beginning of Yom Kippur he was helping to move everything to the school's temporary location. "I barely had time to eat before Yom Kippur."

Five of the students, ranging from three to 10 years old, decided that they wanted to do something to help their school.

They got together on the first day of classes and set up a lemonade stand. They tried selling lemonade outside on the street, then went door-to-door with it, asking for donations to help in the flood relief.

"The recipients of the slightly-too-sweet lemonade were generous, giving anything from pennies to dollars," Broder says. "In the end, the children raked in $40 and proudly handed it over to Rabbi Amihai Bannett, principal of Ohr HaTorah Day School. It was this show of compassion, generosity and ambition that are in part the cornerstone of our school."

While the congregation is using the synagogue again, Rabbi Muller notes that the downstairs has extensive damage. "I like to say though that we are going from wetter than ever to better than ever," he says.

To make a donation to Herzlia Synagogue, call 204-489-6262 or visit www.herzlia.org. To contribute to Ohr HaTorah Day School, call 204-489-1147 or visit www.ohrhatorah.ca.

Meeting held to discuss synagogue spitting incident

By JANICE ARNOLD
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL – A meeting of representatives of Wagar High School, the Kol Yaacov Synagogue, Canadian Jewish Congress (CJC) and the police was held a week after an altercation between students and a congregant took place at the synagogue, that resulted in the congregant's being charged with assault.

CJC community relations chair Casper Bloom described the meeting as an attempt to make the school and police more aware of the small storefront synagogue's concerns. It also allowed for a discussion of the differing versions of what took place and why.

The congregant interpreted a youth's spitting at or near the synagogue entrance as an anti-Semitic gesture. The boy, a former Wagar student, has denied that and maintained he was merely spitting on the sidewalk.

On the basis of what is known, CJC is not calling this an anti-Semitic act, but Bloom termed it a "nasty little incident" reflecting "a lack of sensitivity" and "ignorance" on the part of the youth involved.

Although he did not attend personally, Bloom said the meeting was "very positive" and expressed hope that there is now a better understanding among the parties involved.

Wagar's principal, Michael Cristofaro, found the meeting "mostly positive," but is firm that the adult congregant's alleged resorting to violence against the teens was wrong and he considers it a serious matter.

All parties appear to agree that on Sept. 14 a boy who formerly attended Wagar on Parkhaven Avenue in Cote St. Luc was passing the synagogue, which is located in a strip mall on nearby Caldwell Avenue, at lunch time, with some students from the school.

Kol Yaacov's Rabbi Tal Abitbol alleges the boy spat into the open door of the synagogue. He came out to call the youth to task. The youth and then some of the others went back to the synagogue.

An argument ensued that involved the congregant later charged. The congregant allegedly head-butted the youth who had previously spat, Cristofaro said. He is also alleged to have punched another boy in the face, slammed a third boy into a car and threatened to do the same to another.

The boy who was allegedly punched is also alleged to have then broken a glass door of the synagogue with his hand.

The congregant has no criminal record and was released on his own recognizance. He had not appeared in court at time of writing and his name has not been released.

Cristofaro said he became aware of the incident that day when a student with a bleeding hand came to his office, apparently the result of hitting the door. Cristofaro said he went to the scene to see what was going on and found the police had the situation under control.

Cristofaro said the boy who spat had been a student at Wagar for four years until last year, and he knows that he did have a habit of spitting.

Cristofaro agreed that at this point, it is unclear who is telling the truth about where the boy spat and what his motivation was. Nevertheless, he feels there is no justification for assault.

"The [congregant in question] sent the wrong message to the kids that issues can be dealt with in a violent manner," the principal said. On the other hand, he said, the rabbi acted appropriately in telling the teen, without being rude, that what he did was disrespectful.

There have been complaints in the past about the behaviour of some Wagar students at the Caldwell strip mall, a popular hangout, but nothing on this scale has occurred in recent memory.

Cristofaro noted that more than 40 cultural communities are represented among Wagar's 280 students, and, by and large, they get along well. Education in respecting others is an integral part of everyday school life, he said.

"We have attempted to show that the great majority of our student are good kids. That's not to say they are perfect."

PEERLESS TRAVEL
Cruise in and see us!
NEWEST LOCATION!
9200 BATHURST ST.
(at Rutherford Road)
Thornhill
905-482-0105

Sports & Leisure

CJN DATING
MEET YOUR MATCH
www.cjndating.com
powered by JMATCH
JEWISH MATCH INTERACTIVE DATING

Pearl inducted into basketball hall of fame

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

Longtime high school basketball coach Marvin Pearl was recently inducted into the Ontario Basketball Hall of Fame in a gala affair attended by the who's who of Ontario hoops.

Pearl, for many years coach at Jarvis Collegiate in downtown Toronto, was recognized as one of six "outstanding members of the basketball community" and inducted as a builder by Basketball Ontario. He joined players James Russell, Pat Tatham and Misty Thomas, as well as coaches Peter Ennis and Al Quance, as 2004 inductees.

Pearl retired from active coaching about eight years ago, but has remained involved in directing and organizing boys' tournaments in Toronto, a task he first assumed 30 years ago. In announcing his induction, Basketball Ontario noted Pearl's devotion to growing the sport and for being the key person behind local tournaments that included teams from southern Ontario and the United States.

Marvin Pearl

In addition, Pearl was recognized for directing the Metro Toronto Boys' All-Star Game for 30 years and for implementing school competition classifications based on school populations and geographic locations. He received the prestigious Pete Beach OFSAA (Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations) Achievement Award for the Toronto Secondary Schools Athletic Association in 1990.

Pearl said he felt gratified when he was nominated to the hall, but he never expected to be selected. He was a little surprised at that turn of events. "It's nice to be recognized," he said. "It's not something you expect, but now we'll make a nice family evening of it."

Pearl expected about 25 family members to join him and his wife, Mary, in celebrating at the induction ceremony at Humber College.

Pearl said his effort to create a successful basketball program at Jarvis Collegiate was a case of "being in the right place at the right time." When he took the job as gym coach there more than 30 years ago, the school had a new gymnasium that was state of the art at the time.

It allowed him to showcase the sport and he did so by organizing tournaments. The Jarvis International attracted the best teams from Toronto, southern Ontario and the United States. American squads from Long Island, Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Rochester increased the calibre of play, with the Americans showing Canadian boys some new moves that ultimately improved local basketball, he said.

In addition, Pearl introduced basketball clinics with quality U.S. coaches and conceived of the idea for an all-star game that pitted a city team versus one from the suburbs.

That event outgrew high school gyms and went on to be held at York University, Varsity Arena and even the Air Canada Centre.

Pearl said he was privileged to coach many outstanding athletes, many of whom went on to college careers or to play for the national team.

Even for those who were not that calibre, basketball and other sports programs provided them with an opportunity to achieve success in an organized program and to apply the lessons of the court to challenges they faced outside school. His greatest satisfaction comes when meeting his former students who tell him his classes provided a stepping-stone to other success in their lives, he said.

Pearl keeps busy working on a contract basis as sports co-ordinator for the CNE, overseeing the implementation of dozens of sports programs, including National Collegiate Athletic Association and Raptors basketball clinics, a three-on-three tournament, player appearances and community competitions.

He's also organized a woman's fastball tournament, bocce events – and even weightlifting demonstrations.

From 1991 to '93 he served as chair of Maccabi Ontario's basketball committee, recruiting players and organizing tryouts for the Maccabi Games in Israel.

Two for Bridge

By ERIC KOKISH and BEVERLY KRAFT

Beverly: The 2004 World Bridge Teams Olympiad will be held in Istanbul in late October and early November. Each country is entitled to send one team to compete in each of the Open and Women's Series and the Seniors International Cup. In addition there will be the World University Teams and the (no-quota) World Trans-national Mixed Teams.

Eric: Although Istanbul is a wonderful and exciting city, the choice of venue has been the subject of controversy, particularly in North America. While Turkey is a modern secular state with strong ties to the West, it's a predominantly Muslim nation bordering Iraq with a history of terrorist activities, including last year's synagogue bombings in Istanbul. The World Bridge Federation was urged by the US Bridge Federation to relocate the Olympiad to a less threatening site, as it did the Bali World Championships (to Paris) in 2001, following the events of 9/11. This time, however, the threat to Westerners was not considered as serious.

Beverly: Canada, biding its time to see which way the American wind would blow, held its own trials a week after the United States. Canada will be represented in the Open Series by Ray Jotcham/Lew Richardson, Jim Priebe/Steve Mackay, David Lindop/Michael Cummings, Paul Thurston non-playing captain. Canada's Women's team will be: Ina Demme/Hazel Wolpert, Irene Hodgson/Katie Thorpe, Linda Lee, Shelagh Paulsson, John Rayner npc. Both teams are based in Toronto. In order for Canada to remain eligible to compete in the 2005 Bermuda Bowl and Venice Cup World Championships both those teams will have to finish in the top half of their qualifying groups in Istanbul. That's a bizarre WBF rule, but we seem to be stuck with it. For the Seniors Cup Canada will field Don Piafsky/Fred Hoffer, Jon Robinson/Andre Laliberte, John Carruthers/Joey Silver, an experienced Quebec/Ontario combination expected to contend for a medal.

Eric: In the U.S. Trials the winning teams were offered the choice of playing in Istanbul or competing instead as one of two U.S. entries in the 2005 World Championships, slated for Estoril, Portugal. This was the USBF's way of catering to the reservations of many of its members about the security of the 2004 venue. In practice, both the Open and Seniors' winning teams elected to play in 2005, opening the door for the runners-up in those Trials to represent their country in the upcoming Olympiad.

The U.S. Open Trials were won yet again by Nick Nickell/Richard Freeman, Bob Hamman/Paul Soloway, Jeff Meckstroth/Eric Rodwell, but they deferred to the team they defeated in the final – Roy Welland/Bjorn Fallenius, Zia Mahmood/Michael Rosenberg. Bobby Levin/Steve Weinstein were added after the Trials.

In the U.S. Open Trials, the Nickell team trailed by at least 50 IMPs in each of their three 120-board matches before rallying strongly to win, in two cases by nearly 100 IMPs. Their closest match was the semi-final against Rose Meltzer/Kyle Larsen, Chip Martel/Lew Stansby, Peter Weichsel/Alan Sontag. With 15 deals remaining, Nickell had reduced a 60-IMP deficit to 26, and with two boards to play still trailed by 11 IMPs. This was the penultimate deal:

BD: 20
DLR: W
VUL: Both

NORTH
♠ 1064
♥ 10852
♦ KQJ643
♣ —

WEST
♠ AKQ975
♥ QJ
♦ A82
♣ J4

EAST
♠ 2
♥ A764
♦ 105
♣ AKQ865

SOUTH
♠ J83
♥ K93
♦ 97
♣ 109732

West	North	East	South
Soloway	Sontag	Hamman	Weichsel
1♣(1)	2♦(2)	3♣(3)	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♣	Pass
4♦	Pass	4♥	Pass
5♣	Pass	6♣	All Pass

(1) Strong, artificial; (2) Weak jump overcall; (3) Natural, game forcing.

At the other table Stansby/Martel, for Meltzer reached 6♣ from the East side after North (Rodwell) had overcalled 1♠ with a vastly under-strength 2♦. Declarer won the diamond lead and placed North with the ♠K for his two-level overcall. He drew four rounds of trumps, leaving South with a high trump, then cashed three high spades to discard a diamond and a heart. Then he passed the ♥Q, whether North covered or not, declarer could return to dummy or remain there to discard his last heart loser on a spade winner as South ruffed. When the ♥K turned up in South, however, the contract had to fail.

Soloway, declaring 6♣ for the Nickell team from the West seat after opening a strong club, made 6♣ on the lead of the ♦K. Can you see how?

He won the ♦A, cashed the ♣J and got the bad news about the trump suit. Then, playing remarkably quickly, he cashed three high spades to discard a diamond and a heart, then ruffed a diamond and played four rounds of trumps, giving South the lead. With nothing but hearts remaining, South had to lead away from his king, allowing declarer to avoid a heart loser and to reach his hand for his remaining spade winner.

Note that if North were dealt the ♥K, South would be able to defeat 6♣ by unblocking the ten-nine-seven of trumps and sacrificing his trump trick. Declarer could draw trumps but then would have to allow North to gain the lead in hearts to cash a diamond winner.

The Nickell team gained 17 IMPs on this deal to win the match at the eleventh hour, 254-248.

Beverly: "You know, Kokes, that all these last-second victories can be hazardous to your health! It must be fun coaching the Nickell team, but your family still needs you and your heart isn't getting any stronger. Why are you smiling at me like that?"

Finding freedom with a spider and a motorboat

something

By MIRIAM PORTER

Remember when we were kids and we thought we were invincible?

As a young tomboy, I would climb forbidden trees, ride my cool Invader skateboard around the neighbourhood and jump from rock to rock in the river behind my house. I rode my bright blue 10-speed boys racing bike down steep hills with the wind in my hair, smiling the whole time. There weren't too many things I wouldn't try, at least with a helmet. Somewhere in my 20s, though, I started getting nervous and thinking too much. My complex brain began analyzing and dissecting each new situation and I stopped feeling as free.

On Labour Day weekend, I was at a cottage on Balsam Lake with friends and I unintentionally recaptured the feeling of being a teenager.

I was outside on the deck, safely sitting five feet from the water on a white plastic chair with my feet up on a tree stump. I was eating fat-free licorice and watching tiny, almost see-through bugs dance in front of my face. I recalled that someone once told me about a species of bug that only lives one day. I am sure these were the ones, because they appeared to be trying to get a lot done in a short amount of time.

Suddenly, my thoughts were interrupted by the violent jerk of a motorboat engine being revved up. My boyfriend thought it would be fun for us to go on a boat ride together. From the look on my face when he asked me to come along, you would have thought he just invited me to kill innocent baby harp seals and use their beautiful skins for fur. Yet, 20 minutes later and some calm coaxing that included, "Get in the boat… honey," I stepped in.

Seconds later, I let out a shrill scream and jumped back out. There was a creepy-crawly spider on my seat! After another 20 minutes, I grudgingly got back in. And I am very glad I did. The transformation that took place within me was astonishing. As we travelled around the lake, the natural beauty of the trees and water was mesmerizing. But it was the intense speed of the boat – what is it with men and fast vehicles? – that brought me back to my childhood. We were zooming across the water so rapidly that I had to hold tightly onto my seat. The other cottages became a blur as we road out into the wild blue yonder.

At that moment, I felt entirely free. I was free from analyzing what would happen if I were violently thrown from the boat and forced to swim in the murky waters to shore. Free from worrying if the water would ruin my newly done golden highlights, or if the shirt I was wearing made me look fat. Free from the makeup I wear every day to make me feel more comfortable with myself in society. Free from worrying if I will pay my rent on time this month. And what about my phone bill? Will I be forced to live on the street without a cellphone? Who will feed my cats? Who will water my plants? This vicious cycle of thinking leads me nowhere very quickly.

I sometimes remind myself of my favourite author, Richard Bach, who wrote Jonathan Livingston Seagull. In it, an inspirational seagull, Jonathan, teaches us to be free and not to put limitations on ourselves or let fear stand in the way of inner peace, our goals, happiness and taking risks. Jonathan was my inspiration when, as a teenager, I felt trapped by society's unwritten rules.

Today, I believe that if we can find a way to get back to being tree-climbing, skateboarding, "riding at top speed in a motor boat with spiders" kind of people, we might begin to feel free again and stop putting limitations on ourselves. At least I hope so.

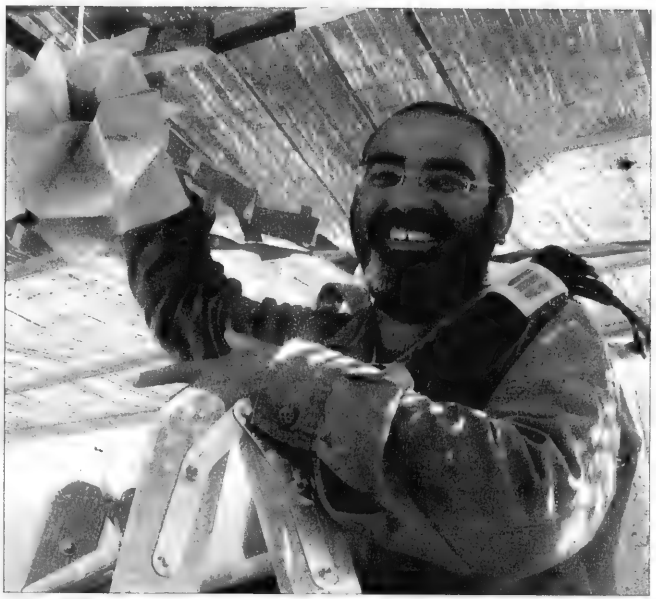
MOROCCAN PEANUT & TOMATO SOUP

1 onion, finely chopped	2 tblsp. chili powder
4 cloves of garlic, minced	1 tsp. cumin
2 tblsp. margarine	1 tsp. black pepper
1 (28-oz) can tomatoes, crushed or diced	1 tsp. hot pepper sauce
1 cup peanut butter	1 tsp. mustard powder
1/4 cup ketchup	1 tsp. parsley flakes (optional)
1/4 cup vinegar	2 cups water

In a large pot, saute onion and garlic in margarine until translucent. Add remaining ingredients, except water. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly, being careful not to burn the mixture. Add water slowly. Reduce heat to simmer and cook uncovered for 10-15 minutes. Stir occasionally. Enjoy!!!! From "Gatherings" - Netivot HaTorah Cookbook.

1111 Weston Rd. (S. of Eglinton) 416-767-1655 www.caplanappliances.com

HERB CAPLAN
THE APPLIANCE PROS RECOMMEND
dacor Now Kosher! RANGES



A DUTY TO DECORATE TOO: This IDF soldier takes time out from his other responsibilities to decorate the sukkah on his army base. [Israel photo]

One Jewish people, on Sukkot

By AVRUM ROSENSWEIG

URBAN WRITER

The morning winds blew and the Jewish people huddled inside their sukkot.

It had been a month since the Ben Aminadav family fled Egypt with 600,000 other Jews. The anguish of their years of enslavement, of humiliation, remained within them, but despite this, the morning sun rose for them with supremacy, and its rays shone through a cloud that had accompanied them since their exodus from Egypt.

The Ben Aminadavs opened the wooden door of their sukkah and made their way outside. The manna, a sweet food from heaven, had fallen, and Miriam – the mother of the family – scooped some up for her children. Nachshon, her husband, stretched his arms as widely as a big burly bear-like man can, then smiled as he began to sing and dance with uncontrollable delight.

Today Nachshon was an emancipated Jew, unstoppable, no longer at the mercy of pitiless Egyptian taskmasters. Today he was a Jew with the ability to actualize his individual spirit, his neshamah, and partake in the greatest divine gift of all – Jewish unity and peoplehood.

Nachshon felt a tap on his back and heard a humble voice call his name. He turned around and realized that his friend Moses had been watching him.

An angelic smile defined Moses' demeanour.

"Nachshon, I see you are better at being a free Jew than an enslaved one," Moses quipped.

"I must tell you," he continued, "I often worried for the slave drivers who oversaw your work on the storehouses, wondering if they were aware of your strength and stubbornness."

The two brave friends laughed heartily and embraced each other with admiration and love. Moses and Nachshon Ben Aminadav danced. Hundreds of Jews joined them in a freedom chain, holding hands tightly so that their bond would never be broken again.

The Children of Israel circled the rows of sukkot and shouted "Am Yisrael chai" – "The Nation of Israel shall live". The musicians blew their shofars. Long blows. Short ones. Then came the tekiah gedolah – a grand and undying blast that shook the hills and almost toppled the sukkot, and scared off some of the mental chains of slavery present in the souls of our people.

That evening, the Children of Israel feasted. Jewish children chanted poems, and fathers and mothers expressed words of praise to God for the chance to raise their families with beauty, goodness and the truth of Torah, and to one day do so in our land flowing with milk and honey, Israel. Moses and Aaron were hoisted onto the shoulders of every Jew, of every generation, and embraced for their courage and absolute love of the Jewish people.

It was the first Sukkot and the Jewish people were free. It was a glorious time and one that would forever be remembered and imitated.

Soon, the sun began to set. The winds began to blow and the Jews made their way back to their tiny sukkot. As they did, they extended wishes of eternal freedom, sweetness and solidarity among Jews – forever, everywhere, always.

As silence overtook the camp, Nachshon gazed at the sky and remembered the moment when he was the first Jew to leap into the sea as the Egyptian chariots were about to trample the B'nai Yisrael.

"Thank you God," he whispered, "for swimming with me. Thank you for our freedom. We will always be a people with great love for each other, and creative partners with you in this magnificent world you have made."

With that, Nachshon stepped into his sukkah, kissed the foreheads of his children as they slept and hugged his wife with the passion and romance of a free man.

(E-mail avrum@veahavta.org. Help the people of Sudan.)

Sunroof
Retractable/removable cargo cover
Digital trip computer
Heated sport front seats
Electronic cruise control
Rear climate control
Floor-mounted cargo tie-downs
Electronic Stability Program (ESP)
Protective-coated roof rails
Special Edition floor mats
3-position memory system for each front seat
Chrome-ringed gauges
8 air bags including Head Protection Curtains
5 cupholders
Leather-trimmed steering wheel and shift knob
Brushed stainless-steel door sill trim
Four 12-volt power outlets
60/40 split folding rear seats
Auto-dimming left-side mirror
Alcantara leather upholstery
Dual power mirrors, automatically heated
Hand-polished wood trim
Power-dome hood
Silver painted grille with chrome ribs
Jewel-effect tail-lamp lenses
2,300 litres of cargo space
5-speed automatic transmission with Touch Shift
Halogen front foglamps
Brake Assist (BAS)
4-Wheel Electronic Traction System (4-ETS+)
Front and rear tow hooks
5-wide-spoke aluminium alloy wheels
High performance tires

ML350 SPECIAL EDITION
$699* A MONTH
4.9% LEASE RATE

For those who want it all, the SUV that has it all.

The 2005 Special Edition M-Class.

With a long, long list of standard features, like leather heated sport front seats, brushed aluminum roof rails, and a power-dome hood, this SUV makes anything less feel like, well, less. Come in for a test drive today. Mercedes-Benz. You're ready.

Mercedes-Benz

TORONTO AREA RETAIL GROUP www.mbtoronto.ca

Downtown 761 Dundas St E (416) 947-9000
Newmarket 230 Mulock Dr (905) 853-6868
Thornhill 228 Steeles Ave W (905) 886-6881
Etobicoke 3120 Lake Shore W (416) 255-1132
Midtown 849 Eglinton Ave E (416) 847-7400
Mississauga 6120 Mavis Rd (905) 363-3322
Markham 8350 Kennedy Rd (905) 305-1088
Ajax 190 Westney Rd S (905) 426-7866

MSRP for 2005 ML350 Special Edition, $58,750. *39-month walkaway lease at 4.9% with $4,999 down, or equivalent trade. 18,000 km/yr. allowance, 25¢ per km excess. Taxes, licence, freight, PDI, and security deposit extra. OAC. Limited time offer. See dealer for details.

Downtown Toronto's Newest Boutique Hotel
The GRAND HOTEL TORONTO
Reservations 1-877-32-GRAND
Book On-line at
www.grandhoteltoronto.com
Earn Double or Triple Aeroplan Miles when using CIBC Aerogold® VISA

The Canadian Jewish news

48 Pages | Thursday, October 14, 2004 | 29 Tishrei, 5765 | $1.00

SAVE $200
per couple on
EL AL packages!
These prices won't last.
Book Now!!
Contact your travel agent
ELYALYNE
416-967-4222

This Week

National

Concordia University bars Ehud Barak. Page 3

High day school tuition sends parents to public schools. Page 14

Volunteer devotes over 60 years to Stashover. Page 21

Books & Authors

Israeli diplomat recounts Ethiopian airlift. Page 41

Arts & Travel

Allen Altman steams up the television screen. Page 42

Index

Coast to Coast 3
GTA 4
Editorials & Letters 8
Perspectives 9
Opinions 10
The Kirshner File 11
School Parents Speak 14
Jewish Life 16
According to Reports 20
What's New 26
Obituaries and Notices 28
Food, Scrumptious Food 32
Israel & the Jewish World 33
Health & Lifestyles 36
Arts & Travel 38
Books & Authors 41
Classified 43
Sports & Leisure 46

www.cjnews.com
Canada Post Publication Agreement #40010684
Publication Mail Registration #09894

One week, two rallies

Last week, in two cities on two different continents, people rallied in support of causes close to their hearts. In Montreal, hundreds of people protested the decision by Concordia University to bar former Israeli prime minister Ehud Barak from speaking on campus. (Please see related stories on pages 3 and 8.)

In Jerusalem, thousands of Christians from around the world marched in the annual Feast of the Tabernacles solidarity parade.

[Yossi Lanton photo]

[Israel Sun photo]

Readers should know ...

Because our offices were closed on Thanksgiving and the Jewish holidays, our production schedule was severely truncated. As a result, this issue of The CJN went to press on Wednesday, Oct 6.

Shabbat Rosh Chodesh: Noach
Candlelighting: 6:14
Havdallah: 7:19

Greater Toronto Area

1836 today
News
week.

IDF must keep Qassams out of West Bank — please see page 33

News in Brief

CANADA

Israel at Space Meet

VANCOUVER— The Israel Export and International Co-operation Institute and the Israel Space Agency took part in the 55th International Astronautical Conference in Vancouver, Oct. 8 to 15. The ISA and IEIC jointly sponsored a booth that featured large Israeli companies such as Israel Aircraft Industries and and Elbit Systems. The IEIC also unveiled a memorial to Israel's first astronaut, Ilan Ramon, who died in the Columbia shuttle disaster last year.

New Hate Complaint

WINNIPEG — The Canadian Antiracism Education and Research Society said last month that Ottawa lawyer Richard Warman has launched complaints with the Canadian Human Rights Commission against the Alberta-based group Western Canada for Us and its leaders Glenn Bahr and Peter Kouba. The group, founded last January, ran a website with alleged hate material and held rallies in Edmonton for Holocaust denier Ernst Zundel, who is fighting deportation. Last May, police raided an Edmonton home where Bahr was staying and seized neo-Nazi material and computers that ran the website. Police are investigating Bahr for wilfully promoting hatred.

Cut Off Agency: SWC

TORONTO — The Simon Wiesenthal Center wants Canada and the United States to suspend payments to the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees (UNRWA) pending a probe into its hiring of Hamas members. The call came after UNRWA director Peter Hansen admitted Hamas members are among its personnel, stating: "Hamas is a political organization and not every one of its members is a militant and we do not do political vetting." Leo Adler, director of national affairs for Canada's Friends of SWC, said equating Hamas with a political party is "ludicrous. Hamas has been specifically outlawed in Canada and elsewhere."

WORLD

She's Fired – Again!

NEW YORK— A contestant on TV's The Apprentice lost her real job for comments she made on the show that were seen as anti-Semitic. In her final episode, Jennifer Crisafulli, 32, got into an argument with two customers at a restaurant she was managing for the show, which puts contestants in real-life business situations as they vie for a job with billionaire Donald Trump. Crisafulli later referred to the customers as "those two old Jewish fat ladies." After the show aired, she was fired from her job at Douglas Elliman, a Manhattan real estate firm. She said she mentioned on camera that she has Jewish relatives, but the comments were edited out.

Nominations Sought

NEW YORK — The Charles Bronfman Prize is seeking nominations for Year 2 of its Humanitarian Award. Deadline is Oct. 30. The $100,000 prize, funded by the children of Charles Bronfman, celebrates people under 50 "whose accomplishments on behalf of others enrich Jewish life." It will be presented in the spring. Jay Feinberg, 35, a leukemia survivor and founder of the Gift of Life Bone Marrow Foundation, won the inaugural prize this year. Forms can be obtained at www.theCharlesBronfmanPrize.com or by calling 212-931-0127.

Gibson Muse Beatified

ROME — The Pope last week beatified a 19th-century German nun who inspired Mel Gibson's The Passion of the Christ. After Anna Katharina Emmerick's death in 1824, grisly visions of Jesus' torture were attributed to her in a book, The Dolorous Passion of Our Lord Jesus Christ. A 1976 biography said she described one vision of an "old Jewess" who said Jews "strangled Christian children" and used their blood for "suspicious and diabolical practices." The visions had nothing to do with the honour, but the Anti-Defamation League, which accused The Passion of fostering anti-Semitism, expressed "deep distress" and said the move could "harm Christian-Jewish relations." Emmerick was one of five people the Pope beatified as the last step before sainthood.

Citizenship for Anne?

AMSTERDAM— The Dutch government faced pressure last week to grant citizenship to Anne Frank, the teenage Jewish diarist who hid from the Nazis in Amsterdam. Some 60 years after her death in the Holocaust, the issue arose after a TV contest listed her among 202 candidates for history's greatest Dutch person. Frank's family fled Germany when she was four, and the Nazis later stripped all Jews outside the country of their citizenship. Expecting to return, the family never sought Dutch citizenship. The government said it's legally impossible to grant her citizenship, but would try to do so.

THE VEHICLE EVERYONE HAS BEEN WAITING FOR!

2005 DODGE MAGNUM

Book your test drive NOW!

Luxurious! Powerful! Rear wheel drive with ESP. Made in Canada.

$389 LEASE PER MONTH

NOW IN STOCK

*Lease 48 months with 20,400 KM allowed per year with $.15 for excess KMs. Freight, PDE, admin and taxes extra. OAC. Downpayment or trade equivalent $1660. See Downsview Chrysler for details. Vehicle may feature optional equipment.

DOWNSVIEW CHRYSLER DODGE • JEEP 416-635-1660

On the Allen Road, N. of Sheppard Ave./401

N.Z. Passport Probe Over, Ottawa Says

OTTAWA — An Israeli man wanted in New Zealand did not travel in northern Asia using a stolen Canadian passport, a spokesperson for Foreign Affairs Canada told the New Zealand Herald last week.

Zev Barkan is wanted in New Zealand as the ringleader of an alleged Mossad spy ring that tried to illegally procure a New Zealand passport. But the passport in the name of Kevin Hunter that he was reportedly using has resurfaced, "so there is no way… [Barkan] was travelling on the passport reported stolen," Reynald Doiron told the Herald, adding that Canada's probe of the case is over.

Two Israelis, Eli Cara and Uriel Kelman – a dual Canadian citizen who used a Canadian passport to visit New Zealand in 1999 – were jailed in the case and are to be released soon. Barkan fled the country, while a fourth man, a New Zealander, is thought to have fled to Israel, which has neither confirmed nor denied that Cara and Kelman are spies.

Nathan Disenhouse • Zale Newman • Gordon Berger • Jack Pollak

Finally, a fear-free investment plan in which:

• ultimately the deposits are deductible • all money grows tax sheltered • you can access all funds tax free • you can transfer any balance to your heirs tax free • and it is creditor proof!

To qualify for this investment you must be a professional or entrepreneur taxed at the highest marginal tax rate and willing to commit on an annual basis. Minimum $35,000 investment.

PANFINANCIAL Tel: 416.499.4222 x456

The Canadian Jewish news

Vol. XXXIV, No. 41 (1,668)*

Gary Laforet General Manager

Mordechai Ben-Dat Editor

Vera Gillman Advertising & Assistant General Manager

Carol Jamieson Controller

Jeff Rosen News & Internet Editor

Joseph Serge, Arts, Travel and Supplements Editor

Janice Arnold, Carolyn Blackman, Ron Csillag, Sheldon Kirshner, Frances Kraft, David Lazarus, Elias Levy, Paul Lungen, Anna Morgan, Leila Speisman Staff Reporters

Jesssica Apter, Rabbi Bernard Baskin, Ross Culiner, Gerald Gall, Jean M. Gerber, Bill Gladstone, Joanna Grossman, Lawrence Hart, Sara Horowitz, Norma Joseph, Dr. Gidi Koren, Rabbi Dow Marmur, Rebecca Nadler, Miriam Porter, Avrum Rosensweig, Alek Silver, Heather Solomon, Gerald Steinberg, Rabbi Chaim Steinmetz, Gil Troy Columnists

Diane Koven, Myron Love Canadian Correspondents

Edgar Asher, Jenny Hazan Israel Bureau

Carolan Halpern, Ruth Schweitzer, Daniel Wolgelerenter Copy Editors

Cynthia Gasner, Special Assignments

Ella Burakowski Assistant Advertising Manager

Bev Bergman, Gloria Clamen, Lisa Freid, Faina Garber, Sarah Laiken, Eric Layman, Honey Mahl, Jonathan Turner, Sholom Wargon, Grace Zweig Sales Representatives, Toronto

Doris Perez, Office Manager

Alma Delory, Lucy Semtchenko, Karen Syptak Office Staff, Toronto

Janice Atkinson Circulation & Promotions Manager

Brian Stoneman Composing Room Manager

José De Freitas, Edward Dunbar, Ronald G. Hagel, Britta Montgomery, Anahit Nahapetyan, Nick Radelja, Michael Stavsky Production Staff

Donald Carr, George A. Cohon, Steven Cummings, Murray Koffler, Julia Koschitzky, Albert J. Latner, Lionel H. Schipper, Robert Vineberg, Rose Wolfe, Rubin Zimmerman Directors

Ray D. Wolfe Founding President (1971-1990)

CIRCULATION

Total circulation: 40,197 copies.
Total paid circulation: 39,504 copies.

CCNA verified circulation Feb. 18, 2004

SUBSCRIPTIONS

Canada: $34.95, 1 yr. incl. GST.
$62.95, 2 yr. incl. GST.
U.S.A.: $100 U.S funds, 1 yr.
All other countries: $110 U.S. funds, 1 yr.

Postmaster: Please return 29Bs and changes of address to Toronto office.

Postage Paid at Toronto
Canada Post Publication Agreement #40010684
Publication Mail Registration #09894

*Under current ownership

We acknowledge the financial support of the Government of Canada, through the Publications Assistance Program, towards our mailing costs.

Canada

The Canadian Jewish news

How To Reach Us

Head Office: 1500 Don Mills Rd., Ste. 205, North York, Ont.. M3B 3K4
Tel: 416-391-1836
Advertising Fax: 416-391-0949
Advertising E-mail: ads@cjnews.com
Editorial Fax: 416-391-0829 Editorial E-mail: info@cjnews.com
Website: www.cjnews.com
Subscriptions E-Mail: jatkinson@cjnews.com
IMP - Israel Advertising Representatives, POB 7195, Jerusalem, Israel
Tel. 02-625-2983 Fax. 02-624-9240 Email:info@impmedia.co.il

ISRAEL'S
The store for people who love their Jewish home
Now you can shop for all your Jewish and Hebrew studies schoolbooks from the comfort of home.
Come visit us at at our website www.israelsjudaica.com
click on school book lists to order online
441 CLARK AVE. W. THORNHILL (905) 881-1010 OR 870 EGLINTON AVE. W. TORONTO (416) 256-1010

National

Coast to Coast

Sonny Goldstein, CFP
Planning For Retirement?
Confused about your financial future? Let us help you understand how to reach your financial goals
Call Sonny Goldstein
Chartered Life Underwriter
Chartered Financial Consultant
416-221-0060
HIGHEST QUOTES ON RRIF's, ANNUITIES, etc.
Creative Ideas in Financial Planning

Concordia decision called win for 'the violent ones'

By JANICE ARNOLD
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL – The administration of Concordia University was not swayed by charges that it is suppressing free speech and caving in to those with the potential for violence in not permitting former Israeli prime minister Ehud Barak to speak on campus.

Hillel, with the support of community leaders, also stood by its refusal of Concordia's offer to stage the event at one of several possible off-campus sites, with the university's co-sponsorship.

Concordia vice-president of services, Michael di Grappa insisted that the decision not to grant Hillel's request to have Barak deliver a public lecture, tentatively scheduled for Oct. 19 at the Loyola campus, was based solely on an audit conducted by the university's internal security team, in consultation with the Montreal police and RCMP.

Di Grappa said the administration admires Barak's peace efforts and is cognizant of the university's responsibility to foster free speech, but safety "unfortunately" has to be the first consideration.

At a rally organized by Hillel outside Concordia's downtown Hall Building, heavily guarded by police, McGill University professor Gil Troy accused the administration of "hiding behind a security assessment that gives a veto to the violent ones.

"Putting [the event] off-site is not the solution to the problem – it is the problem. It means something is fundamentally wrong here."

Wearing the ceremonial pink gown and cap of his Harvard alma mater, Troy said he did this because he feels the academic values of "free speech, open inquiry and civility are at risk."

Others who spoke in support of Barak's right to speak at Concordia included Rev. Darryl Gray, president of Alliance Quebec and one-time U.S. civil rights activist; and Concordia Student Union (CSU) president Brent Farrington. Rev. Gray said he would support even a Ku Klux Klan member speaking at Concordia because the best way to engage those with whom you disagree is directly.

Hillel co-president Jason Portnoy said the Concordia chapter of Amnesty International also lent its support.

Concordia's decision was denounced in the strongest terms by FEDERATION CJA president Sylvain Abitbol who told The CJN, "It's too easy. For the sake of not disturbing things, the Jews are being sacrificed."

He believes that two years after the "fiasco" that resulted in former Israeli prime minister Benjamin Netanyahu's talk being aborted, the university and police had time to learn how to deal with a similar situation.

"Either the threat is real or [it's] not." If it is only hypothetical, Abitbol said Concordia is setting a precedent that will make it difficult for any Israeli political figure to speak on campus and has "abdicated its responsibility" to provide for the exchange of views.

He said he expressed those views in a meeting between community leaders and administrators.

Asked if he feels Jews, who are among the university's most generous donors, should withhold their gifts, Abitbol responded: "Each donor can decide what to do. It is not for us to pressure anyone."

Israeli Consul General Marc Attali also expressed "outrage" at Concordia's decision. "How long must Concordia be at the mercy of a small, violent group of students?… Does this mean an Israeli cannot speak there ever?" He he told The CJN it is up to Concordia to see that Barak has adequate security for him to speak there. But, more importantly, he feels more should have been done over the past two years to see that the appearance of an Israeli does not pose a security risk.

Di Grappa said the audit found that security for Barak or any VIP, as well as for those on campus and the residents and four other institutions in the neighbourhood, could not be "guaranteed." He said he was not aware of any threat of violence, but that it was the judgment of the police that if anything got out of hand, they would have difficulty containing the situation.

Continued on page 29

Ask our informed staff and we'll point you in the right direction.

• Extensive Supplements • Sports Nutrition • Women's Health Nutrition • Specialized Nutrition • Extensive Grocery Selection • Organic Produce • Organic Pastas • Organic Meats • Bulk Foods • Organic Herbs • Vegetarian Needs • Organic Dairy Products • Organic Chicken • Gluten Free Products • Natural Home & Housecare Cleaners • Bodycare • Baby Needs • Homeopathy

EVERY TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY ARE SENIORS DAYS - 10% off REGULAR PRICES

150 caps — Ester C Supreme • All the benefits of Vitamin C and more
30 mg/100 caps — Co Q-10 • Increases cellular oxygenation
60 caps — Ginkgo Biloba • Phytosome memory enhancer
60 tabs — Super Once A Day • Multi vitamin and mineral
90 caps — Hi Potency B Complex • Multi B vitamin, helps combat stress
400 I.u./90 caps — Vitamin E • Natural source • Mixed Tocopherols
120 caps — Glucosamine & Chondroitin • For joint pain relief
500 ml — Floradix Iron • Liquid iron supplement
90 caps — Kyolic Formula 103 • Freeze dried garlic • Immune booster formula
1000 mg/100 caps — Omega-3 • Essential fatty acid • Fish oil concentrate

Healthy Food & Beauty Choices

Rapunzel true to nature — Organic Swiss Chocolate, Assorted 85 g $2.49
Fantastic — Big Bowl Noodle Soups, 51-68 g $1.69
Bulk — Cashews Salted and Roasted $5.99 lb.
Bulk — Organic Lundberg Long Grain Brown Rice $1.29 lb.
Van's — Frozen Waffles, Wheat Free 269 g $2.69
Pamela's — Wheat Free Cookies, Assorted 150 g $2.29
Bulk — Organic Flame Raisins $2.39 lb.
MICHAEL SEASONS Potato Chips — No hydrogenated oils, reduced fat, Assorted Flavours 241 g $2.79
Country Fresh — Almond Butter 500 g $6.99
Bulk — Organic Green Lentils $1.99 lb.
Nuscience — Skin Care 20% off excludes Beta Ginseng line

HWY. 407 — BATHURST — Noah's 7117 BATHURST TOWNSGATE STEELES
7117 BATHURST ST. (1 light N. of Steeles) Free Parking 905-731-2098

EVERY TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY ARE SENIORS DAYS - 10% off REGULAR PRICES

Noah's Natural Foods

Pricing in effect at 7117 Bathurst only. Sale ends October 25, 2004.

Steeles Memorial Chapel

www.steelesmemorial.com

•Current Listing of Funerals
•Listing of Cemeteries and Maps of Sections
•Yahrzeit Calculator for Civil & Hebrew dates
•Kaddish Texts
•Educational Information about Shiva - Unveiling - After-Care - Prayers - Jewish Burial Rites
•Jewish Holiday Dates

905-881-6003

Serving the Jewish Community since 1927.

The Canadian Jewish news GIVEAWAY!!

5 LUCKY CJN READERS
will win a pair of tickets
(valued at $90 per ticket)
to see
Les Grands Ballet Canadiens de Montreals perform the exhilarating
MINUS ONE
a collection of Ohad Naharin's best choreographies for a Wed., Nov. 3, 8:00 p.m. performance at the Hummingbird Centre
1 Front Street East, Toronto

Rules: To be eligible to win please print your name, address and daytime phone number on a piece of paper along with the answer to this question:

Ohad Naharin was formerly the Artistic Director of which Israeli dance company?

(Hint: the answer can be found in their advertisement printed elsewhere in this newspaper!)

All correct answers received by 4 p.m. on Monday, October 25, 2004 are eligible. The winning entries will be randomly selected from all correct answers received at The CJN offices on Tuesday, October 26, at 10 a.m. The winner will be notified the same day. Odds of winning depend on the number of entries received. The CJN will not enter into any correspondence with contestants.

Send your response to: "MINUS ONE" Contest, The Canadian Jewish News, 1500 Don Mills Road, Suite 205, North York, Ont. M3B 3K4 or fax to: 416-391-0949.

Employees and family members of The CJN and The Hummingbird Centre are not eligible to enter.

Greater Toronto Area

Lessons for fighting terror

From the editor's desk

The Sept. 27 issue of The New Republic, a weekly magazine of politics and the arts based in Washington, contains a superb essay by Yossi Klein Halevi and Michael B. Oren titled Center Right: Israel's Unexpected Victory Over Terrorism.

The authors are accomplished thinkers, writers and analysts, and astute observers of the multi-faceted and multi-troubled Israeli body politic.

Klein Halevi's most recent book is At the Entrance to the Garden of Eden: A Jew's Search for God with Christians and Muslims in the Holy Land. Oren's is Six Days of War: June 1967 and the Making of the Modern Middle East. They are both fellows at the Shalem Center in Jerusalem, a non-partisan research institute and think-tank for Jewish and Israeli social thought.

The article was written a few weeks before Israel's army entered northern Gaza to root out and destroy the Qassam missiles and their Hamas operatives. Thus, in the midst of the military campaign Israel is waging in Gaza against Hamas and its supporters, which, as of this writing, is in its eighth day, it may seem somewhat premature, if not inappropriate, to use terminology that suggests "victory over terrorism."

But the article is compelling, and not a paean of tribute to the besieged Jewish state, but rather a cold-hard assessment of the facts and a bold statement of what they perceive to be the lessons for other sovereignties of the very painful past four years of the intifadah.

Indeed, one of the important points the authors make about the intifadah is that it is inaptly called an "intifadah."

"Rather than calling the terrorism assault a war," they write, "Israelis reflexively adopted the misleading Palestinian term intifadah – implying an unarmed civilian uprising against an armed occupation. In fact, this was a war by armed Palestinians aimed mostly at Israeli civilians and launched after Israel had agreed to end the occupation – an anti-intifadah."

The authors do not equivocate. They attribute the success of Israel's campaign against the terrorists directly to the policies of Prime Minister Ariel Sharon.

"Israel's triumph over the Palestinian attempt to unravel its society is the result of a systematic assault on terrorism that emerged only fitfully over the past four years. The fence, initially opposed by the army and the government, has thwarted terrorist infiltration in those areas where it has been completed. Border towns like Hadera and Afula, which had experienced some of the worst attacks, have been terror-free since the fence was completed in their areas. Targeted assassinations and constant military forays into Palestinian neighbourhoods have decimated the terrorists' leadership, and roadblocks have intercepted hundreds of bombs, some concealed in ambulances, children's backpacks, and, most recently, a baby carriage."

But the battle for Israelis, the authors forcefully explain, has not been simply to destroy the terrorists intent on the Jewish state's demise. It has also been to fight the terrorists while ensuring the pillars of their democratic society are not toppled.

"In its victories and defeats, Israel is a test case of what happens to a democracy forced to confront non-stop terrorism. In their daily lives, Israelis must contend with the most pressing questions of the global war against terrorism: Can terrorism be defeated? And, in doing so, can basic democratic principles be maintained? Finally, does the moral necessity to defeat terrorism supersede the moral necessity to address the grievances of those in whose name terrorism is committed?"

The authors contend that "so far, Israel has answered these questions affirmatively." But they go further than assessing the merits of Israel's response. They distill from the prime minister's approach to fighting terrorism a number of lessons for "democratic leaders facing a war against terrorism."

"The first lesson," the authors suggest, is to "insure domestic consensus and the support of vital allies." Sharon did not fully engage the terrorists until he knew a majority of Israelis were with him and until he had established a supportive relationship with the American administration.

The utility and wisdom of this approach has proven itself again when the United States vetoed a lopsided, anti-Israel resolution in the UN Security Council condemning the Jewish state for its incursion into northern Gaza.

The authors posit three other lessons for the world to learn and absorb.

- "Addressing terrorists' grievances before terrorism is defeated only encourages terrorism and makes those grievances harder to resolve.
- "One can defeat terrorists without annihilating the society that hosts them.
- (And this one intended primarily for the American government) "Perhaps, the greatest danger in fighting terrorism is the polarizing effect such a campaign can have – not just internationally, but domestically. [A] strong political consensus for military action is necessary."

Klein Halevi and Oren have written an instructive retrospective of the Palestinians' four-year campaign of terror against the Jewish state. They emphasize that Israel is the vanguard foot soldier in the fractured army of the West fighting terrorism.

We would hope some of the generals of the West's army will read their essay, too.

—MBD

SeeJN

CHRISTIANS MARCH FOR JEWS:
Thousands of Christians from around the world marched in Jerusalem last week, waving banners with signs such as "We love Israel" and singing Hebrew songs. Some 4,000 pilgrims took part in the 25th Feast of the Tabernacles parade in the capital of the Jewish state. Another 6,000 Israelis, including representatives of El Al, the postal service and the national arms manufacturer Rafael, also took part in the march that snaked through west Jerusalem, shutting down traffic for several hours. The annual event is organized by the International Christian Embassy in Jerusalem.
[Israel photo]

Rabbi's mother killed on erev Yom Kippur

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

Only hours before prayers would begin on Yom Kippur asking God to seal us in the book of life, the mother of Toronto Rabbi Yoseph Zaltzman was killed in a car crash in Fair Lawn, N.J.

The Rebbetzin Chaya Esther Zaltzman was in the passenger seat of the car driven by her husband, Rabbi Chaim Dovber Zaltzman, when they were involved in a head on collision with a car driven by a 17-year-old girl who was speaking on a cell phone. Rebbetzin Zaltzman was killed instantly.

She and her husband were returning home after participating in a kapparot ceremony that is part of the ritual surrounding Yom Kippur. Rabbi Zaltzman was taken to the Hackensack University Medical Center with six broken ribs and a broken leg.

His son, Rabbi Yoseph Zaltzman, spiritual leader of the Russian Jewish community of Toronto, was immediately notified of the accident and flew to New Jersey prior to the onset of Yom Kippur. He spent the day in hospital with his father, who was only told of his wife's fate more than a week later when he was strong enough to take the news, Rabbi Yoseph Zaltzman said.

Speaking from New Jersey, Rabbi Zaltzman said "it is very painful to lose a mother like this. She was in Toronto for my son Levi's bar mitzvah on Aug. 31 and I took her to the airport on Sept.1. On Sept. 24 we lost my mother tragically," he said.

"We cannot ask questions to God, as we can't get answers," he continued. "We have to be strong and see what we could do for Mommy's soul."

Rabbi Zaltzman said his mother took a great deal of "naches" (pleasure) in her seven children, 55 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.Three of her sons are serving as Lubavitch rabbis in North American communities as are her four sons-in-law.

Chaya Esther Zaltzman is seen here with her husband, Rabbi Chaim Zaltzman, in a file photo.

The tragedy brought the family together from Denver, Colo..New Haven, Conn. and Toronto. When their father was told his wife of 50 years had died, "my father after a short while said, 'kinderlach (children), I hope you establish institutions in Mommy's name.'"

Rabbi Zaltzman said he planned to commission a new Torah in his mother's name that will unify the Russian Jewish community. He said he would solicit donations towards the cost of the Torah with any surplus going for mezuzot on the homes of Russian Jewish families. His mother was a great advocate of encouraging Russian Jews to place mezuzot on their homes, he recalled.

Rabbi Zaltzman, who returned to Toronto for two days of the seven day (shivah) mourning period, said "I was humbled by the outpouring of solidarity, sympathy, condolences by the Russian Jewish community and the [broader] Jewish community."

Chaya Esther Zaltzman was born 68 years ago in what is today the Republic of Georgia but which at the time was part of the Soviet Union. Her husband was born two years earlier in Kharkov, Ukraine and the two met in Moscow in 1954. They were married shortly thereafter.

Life was difficult for observant Jews in Communist Russia, but in 1957 the two established an underground yeshiva in Moscow along with a mikvah.

In August 1971, the family, which then included six children, made aliyah to Israel. In 1981, Rabbi Zaltzman's father accepted a position as rabbi and cantor for the Russian Jewish community in Los Angeles. In 1993, his parents moved to Fair Lawn where they opened the Brith Avraham Congregation.

Canada's LARGEST selection for new & used Fitness Equipment!!!

AMAZING DEALS ON PRE-OWNED EQUIPMENT

Top Pre-owned equipment from:
SCHWINN • NORTHERN LIGHTS • LIFE FITNESS • PRECOR • STAIRMASTER • PACEMASTER

TAKE OUR 30-DAY PRICE CHALLENGE AND GET STARTED TODAY!

STEPPERS from $188
ELLIPTICALS from $288
HOME GYMS from $388
We BUY, SELL, TRADE & RENT Fitness Equipment

UPRIGHT CYCLES from $88
RECUMBENT BIKES from $88
ROWING MACHINES from $128
THE BEST BRANDS AT JAW-DROPPING LOW PRICES!

WEIGHT PLATES From58¢/lb.
HEX DUMBBELLS From68¢/lb
HEART RATE MONITORS From$38
HEAVY BAGS From$48.88
WEIGHT EQUIPMENT From$49.95
FAT SCALES From$68

TREADMILLS from $298

FINANCING AVAILABLE

BOOMERANG HOME FITNESS

MISSISSAUGA
6991 Millcreek Dr.
905.819.9877

SCARBOROUGH
143 Bermondsey Rd.
416.288.1673

Store Hours:
Monday to Friday 10 - 9 • Saturday 10 - 6 • Sunday 12 - 5

PRICES AND AVAILABILITY SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

We Create Millionaires

You are: Entrepreneurial, Influential, Resourceful and... have a strong desire to pursue a lifestyle instead of a job.

We are looking for you. We will help you capitalize on the emerging Wellness Boom.

Opening new countries:
Russia, Singapore, Poland, Romania & South Africa.
Special program for professionals.

To learn more call 416-760-2002 - 24 hours Ahuva Simone

It's Nobody's Choice... But Your Own.

Nobody can dictate which funeral chapel a family must use. By law, there are no formal or binding agreements between synagogues, burial societies, cemeteries, and funeral chapels.

Deciding on a funeral chapel is an important family decision. The decision is yours; the choice is clear.

BENJAMIN'S PARK MEMORIAL CHAPEL
416 663-9060
2401 Steeles Ave. W. • www.benjamins.ca

STATE OF ISRAEL BONDS CANADA

SUNDAY OPENINGS

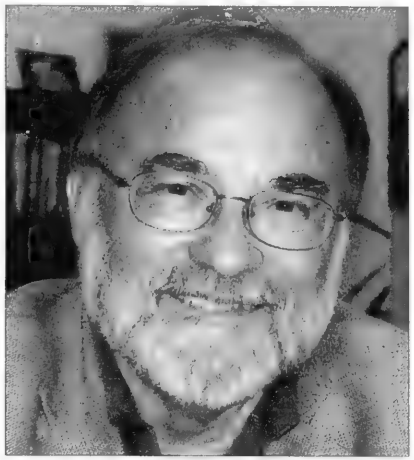
For your convenience, ISRAEL BONDS will be open on the following SUNDAYS:

OCTOBER 17
OCTOBER 24
OCTOBER 31
FROM 10:00 AM UNTIL 2:00 PM

416.789.3351
www.israelbonds.ca

Outgoing Herut-Likud president 'can't sit back'

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter



Harry Wolle

Once you're a Betari, you're always a Betari, says Harry Wolle.

A second-generation member of the right-wing Zionist group Betar, the youth wing of Herut-Likud, Wolle stepped down this summer after a total of 16 years in senior lay leadership positions. Most recently, he served four years as president of Herut-Likud of Canada, which has a list of approximately 1,000 members countrywide.

"The overriding factor for my continued involvement – and I will continue to be involved – is for the Betar-Tagar youth group [which has an active presence on half a dozen Ontario campuses following its revitalization in Toronto in the mid-1990s] and the tremendously important work they do fighting anti-Zionism and anti-Semitism on campus."

The 63-year-old Toronto insurance broker, whose successor Rose Lax shares his passion for helping students on campus, has a low-key manner belying his assertion that he "can't sit back and assume someone else is going to [take action]."

In January 2003 he joined Betar-Tagar members to protest outside the CBC building for media coverage that was seen as not being objective.

In a late summer interview in his office, decorated with family pictures and other paraphernalia including a framed picture of Zionist leader and Betar founder Ze'ev Jabotinsky, Wolle spoke of his early years that led to involvement with the organization.

Wolle's parents, natives of Sgiersz, a suburb of Lodz, fled Poland for Russia when Hitler came to power, following a tip from a gentile co-worker of Wolle's mother who had a German boyfriend. Close family members who stayed behind all perished, he said.

Born in Russia in November 1940, Wolle returned with his parents to Poland at age five. They didn't stay long, leaving when the Kielce pogrom broke out in 1946 and spending the next three years in a DP camp in Germany.

The family came close to making aliyah, but immigrated to Canada on hearing that the country needed tailors.

Decades later, Wolle and his family (he now has three children and two grandchildren) spent five years living in Raanana. In Israel, which Wolle still visits at least once a year, he was also involved with Likud on a volunteer basis, welcoming olim and helping organize a national election campaign.

Among other community activities, Wolle is a board member for Canadian Volunteers for Israel, and has been a brotherhood vice-president and Holocaust education committee chair at Shaar Shalom Congregation.

Although Wolle joined Betar as a young adult in Toronto, his membership predates his immigration. "My father was a Betari in Poland... While living in the DP camp, there was a Betar group – nothing to do with my father, just by coincidence – and I joined that Betar group."

Today, in addition to securing financial support for Herut-Likud's work, he sees one of the biggest priorities for the organization as informing people about "slanted" media and educating Jewish youth about Israel and Zionism. "Sometimes you have Jewish students, for lack of their own knowledge, working against Zionists," he lamented.

Has he ever come close to burning out? "Well," he said, "you question every once in a while, 'Is this effort worth it?' But then when you meet a student who says, 'Thanks so much, I was looking for somewhere where I could express my feelings of frustration,' it rekindles it.'"

The CJN talks with incoming president, Rose Lax, in next week's issue.

Please join us for a special

JUDAICA 2004
FEATURE EXHIBITION

OPENING RECEPTION Thursday October 14th 5-9pm

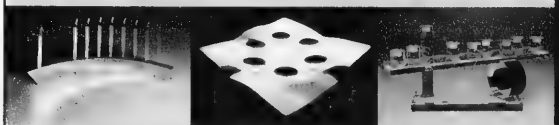
Judaica 2004

OCT 14 to NOV 7



PETROFF GALLERY
1016 EGLINTON AVENUE WEST TORONTO, ONTARIO M6C 2C5
TELEPHONE 416 782 1696 WWW.ASHOWOFHANDS.COM

DON'T MISS IT!

Hadassah Bazaar turns 80

By CAROLYN BLACKMAN
Staff Reporter

Bobby Wilson, a member of Toronto Hadassah-WIZO's Tel Hai chapter for 60 years, has been attending the organization's annual one-day bazaar for almost that long.

Recalling the earlier days of the bazaar, which is celebrating its 80th anniversary on Oct. 27, she says it was different back then.

"It was smaller, and we did everything ourselves. When I was bazaar chair in 1958 and 1959, I would come in my good suit and white gloves. I was going to an important function and I had to dress that way. I had a lot of respect for my role."

The bazaar is an institution, says Wilson. "When I went to Israel in 1958, I was literally greeted with a red carpet. When I visited one of the hospitals we help support, I was treated with such respect it was almost embarrassing.

"Still today, recipients know where the money is coming from, and they truly appreciate it."

Annual event set for Oct. 27

The bazaar, which features, among an array of items, food, new and used clothing, kitchenwear, toys and books, was actually started in 1917 by a group of local women, but in 1924, it joined Hadassah-WIZO, which has been running it non-stop since.

It has been held in such venues as the Masonic Temple, the Royal York Hotel and Varsity Stadium. Since 1949, it has been at Exhibition Place.

The organization attempted a two-day bazaar in the 1930s, but tired volunteers drastically reduced prices to sell out their merchandise on the first day. Since then, it has been one day only.

Over the years, according to bazaar statistics, more than 80,000 volunteers have helped out, and the more than 1.5 million shoppers have consumed about 100,000 bowls of matzah ball soup, 200,000 home-made blintzes and 300,000 corned beef sandwiches.

They have bought millions of books, millions of pairs of socks and shoes and more than 20,000 wedding gowns.

DooDoo the clown, who has volunteered at the bazaar for the last 25 years, estimates that he has given away more than 11,000 sticks of cotton candy, blown up 14,000 balloon animals, and walked around the bazaar floor about 500 times.

Judy Zelikovitz, president of Toronto Hadassah-WIZO, says the bazaar is an important part of the Toronto community.

Continued on page 23

THE NEW HOLOCAUST HISTORY MUSEUM
... A VIEW TO MEMORY

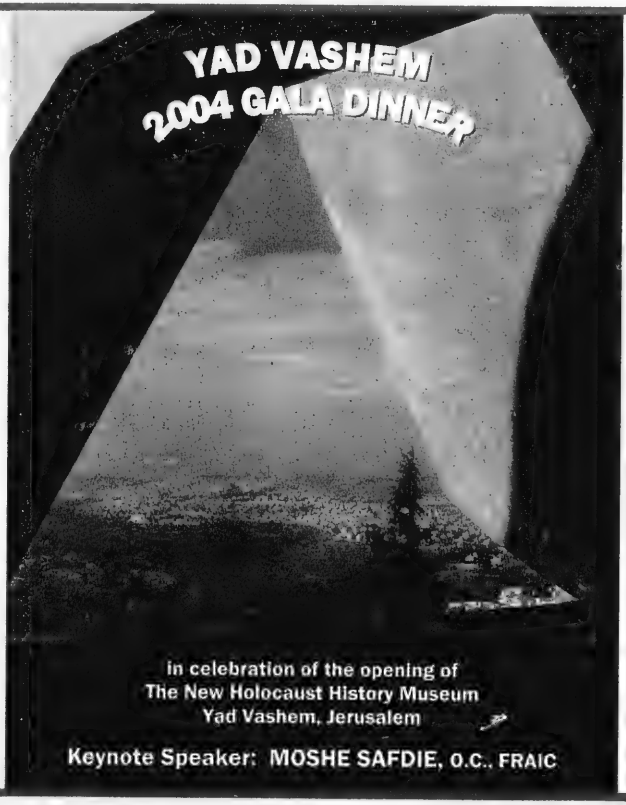
"I face this task with humility," were the opening words of world-renowned architect, Moshe Safdie, at the groundbreaking ceremony for the new Holocaust History Museum in May, 2000.

Safdie developed a prism-like structure 175 metres long, mostly underground, cutting into the Mount of Remembrance. The Museum entry cantilevers over the mountain, across the valley to the south, as its triangular shape disappears into the slopes with only its uppermost edge, a skylight, protruding through the mountain ridge — a luminous marker in the landscape.

The end of the Museum bursts forth from the mountain's slope; emerging from the story of destruction of the past to the breathtaking view of modern-day Jerusalem. This "World Rebuilt" balcony was generously endowed by Dr. Max and Gianna Glassman of Toronto.

The official opening of the New Museum will be held on March 15, 2005.

Proceeds from this campaign will purchase shuttle buses to provide comfortable touring of the 45-acre Yad Vashem campus.



YAD VASHEM
2004 GALA DINNER
in celebration of the opening of
The New Holocaust History Museum
Yad Vashem, Jerusalem
Keynote Speaker: MOSHE SAFDIE, O.C., FRAIC

The community is cordially invited to attend the

YAD VASHEM 2004
GALA DINNER

Sunday, November 14, 2004
The Marriott Hotel, Toronto

Yad Vashem Awards will be presented to:

DR. MAX and GIANNA GLASSMAN
and the KOSCHITZKY FAMILY

Dinner Chair:
The Hon. Art Eggleton, P.C.
Campaign Chair:
Will Hechter
National Chair:
Hank Rosenbaum
Executive Director:
Hetty Shapiro

416-785-1333 1-888-494-7999
Fax: 416-785-4536
yadvashem@bellnet.ca

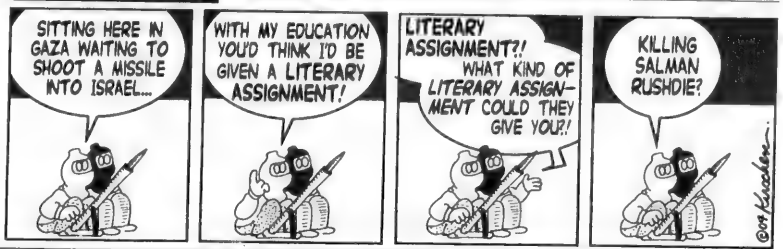
Canadian Society for
YAD VASHEM
The Holocaust
Martyrs' and Heroes'
Remembrance Authority

The Canadian Jewish news

An independent community newspaper serving as a forum for diverse viewpoints

Publisher and Proprietor:
The Canadian Jewish News, a corporation without share capital.
Head Office:
1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, Ont. M3B 3K4

Dry Bones



SITTING HERE IN GAZA WAITING TO SHOOT A MISSILE INTO ISRAEL...
WITH MY EDUCATION YOU'D THINK I'D BE GIVEN A LITERARY ASSIGNMENT!
LITERARY ASSIGNMENT?! WHAT KIND OF LITERARY ASSIGNMENT COULD THEY GIVE YOU?!
KILLING SALMAN RUSHDIE?
©04 Brookins

A veto to the thugs and extremists

It would appear that the administration of Concordia University learned the wrong lesson from the sorry events of Sept. 9, 2002, when an unruly mob of howling anti-Israel demonstrators, through violence and brazen intimidation, prevented former Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu from speaking at the university.

Instead of learning of the high importance of constantly reaffirming the sanctity of our fundamental freedoms of speech and of peaceful assembly, they apparently learned that our freedoms are not so fundamental after all, that they can be subordinated to the dictates of thugs, brutes and anti-democratic bullies.

How else can one understand the administration's lamentable decision last week to bar another former Israeli prime minister, Ehud Barak, from speaking to the university's students and faculty?

To be sure, the administrators did not make their decision lightly. They undoubtedly agonized over it. They were worried about safety. "We cannot deny that the events of Sept. 9, 2002 have influenced us," Concordia official Michael Di Grappa said. And so Barak was told to speak somewhere else, but not at Concordia University.

The consequences of the university's decision are horrendous, and they will surely spill onto other university campuses and linger there in the fields of intellectual discourse like scythes ready to cut down other tall principles of free inquiry and respectful debate.

The university has effectively taught the threateners of violence that their threats are effective. It stands to reason, therefore, that there will be more such threats.

The university has effectively given a veto to the extremists and the abhorrers of tolerance on the question of who is a permissible campus guest.

The university has effectively sided with the individuals who show contempt for and abuse the rules of democracy against those for whom the rules are the sustaining soil of civil society. As Prof. Gil Troy told a noonday rally of some 200 people protesting the ban last Tuesday, "the decision… punishes the potential victims and not the potential perpetrators of the crime."

"Who would have thought that in 2004 we'd be standing here today fighting for free speech at a university campus in Canada," Jason Portnoy, co-president of Concordia Hillel, plaintively asked last Tuesday. His plea was poignant. It was no mere rhetorical question. It points to an ominous horizon.

In justifying the university's decision Di Grappa said, "We look at our facilities from the point of view of 'What would happen if things go wrong?'" Sadly, for Mr. Di Grappa, for Concordia and, alas, for the rest of us – the society that cherishes our fundamental freedoms – things have already gone wrong.

LET OUR PEOPLE GO...

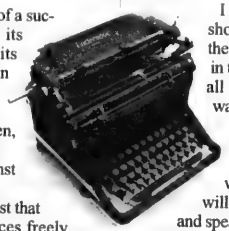
MIAs: Ron Arad, Zachary Baumel, Tzvi Feldman and Yehuda Katz.

Editorial Advisory Board: Irving Abella, Michael Brown, Sandra Brown, Donald Carr, Paul Cooper, Rabbi Elyse Goldstein, Zac Kaye, Igor Korenzvit, Lou Ronson, Jacques Sayegh, Mike Shriqui, Ron Somogyi, Pamela Medjuck Stein, Rabbi Reuven Tradburks

Jack Layton's capitulation

As reported in the media, Jack Layton's recent capitulation to Muslim New Democratic Party members and party supporters who criticized the NDP caucus for sending two MPs to Israel without the party's permission is laughable yet mortally dangerous to our society.

Israel was and remains the only example of a successful socialist society, particularly with its kibbutz movement, its trade unions and its national health, welfare and immigration support programs.



Israel is the only democracy and protector of human rights, with equality for women, in the Middle East.

Israel is alone regionally in its fight against Islamism and related Muslim terrorism.

Israel is the only country in the Middle East that allows all religions to observe their practices freely, openly and without fear.

Layton's position against Israel, and by extension world Jewry, which is experiencing a rise in the most dangerous forms of anti-Semitism, will be viewed historically as part of what will eventually be seen as factors that contributed to bringing Islamism, with its car and suicide bombs and societal destabilization, to Canada. And come it will.

Layton's weak backbone is identical to that of the Spaniards and the French and all other nations who ignore the plight of Israel. Israel is the canary in the coal mine. When democracy and demagogy coincide, evil can ensue.

Layton should be ashamed, not that the other parties are much better.

We must be vigilant. Layton's party should carefully consider the messages of Jane Jacobs' new book, Dark Age Ahead.

Sander Gladstone
Toronto

* * *

Thugs must not make the law

I am an alumnus of Concordia University and sat on the health and safety committees and sub-comittees after the riot of 2002. I was also in the Hall Building Room H110 when the speech by former Israeli prime minister Benjamin Netanyahu was cancelled. I was attending the speech out of personal interest and because my field of study is Judaism and Islam.

At the time, the protesters said, it was because Netanayhu was a criminal and hated Palestinians. Netanyahu has always been tough on Palestinians and I could understand their anger. But I could not understand the fact that they prevented him from speaking and stopped him from entering Concordia, which they labelled "our university."

Concordia is my university, too. I have served it well, first as a loyal student, then as a member for two years, 2001 to 2003, of the Graduate Student Association, vice-president, advocacy. I graduated with a master's degree in June in history and philosophy of religion, and I am a member of the Alumni Association. I am also a mentor, helping mature students adjust to life on campus.

Now another former Israeli prime minister, Ehud Barak, is forbidden to speak. He tried to make peace with the Palestinans and took part in peace talks with Syria. He was seen as a hope for peace. Now Concordia is refusing to give him a voice.

I am appalled and disgusted at the weakness shown by the administration of Concordia and by their blindness to the reality on campus. By giving in to the thugs, vandals and bullies, they are hurting all students and preventing free speech. I do not want bullies taking control of my university.

The bullies are winning. Thugs are making the law.

Now it is Barak. Who will it be next? Jews will be forbidden to talk at universities, then it will be gays, and then everyone else. We must act and speak out against this injustice. Barak must speak on campus. Bring in the RCMP, Sûreté du Québec, the army, if needed. But make it safe so that he can speak.

Celine Leduc
Montreal

* * *

Said's views distorted

In her column "War of the worlds" (CJN, Sept. 23), Jean Gerber accuses the late Palestinian scholar Edward Said of having "rejected Oslo and all other attempts to reconcile Palestinian aspirations with Israeli realities," of having "failed his people miserably by toeing his consistently hard line," and of having been a "stumbling block" to reconciliation.

This is a grievous distortion of Said's views, whether one agrees with them or not. Said was indeed critical of Oslo and the official "peace process," because he saw it as entailing a disguised continuation of the post-1967 Israeli occupation. He also condemned the systemic discrimination against Palestinian citizens in Israel. But this did not entail the denial of Israel's right to exist as a national entity. Said expressed support for the idea of a bi-national state, one that would "preserve for Palestinians and Israeli Jews a mechanism or structure that would allow them to express their national identity," he said in an interview with Ha'aretz in 2000. In an interview in the Minneapolis Star Tribute in 1999, he spoke of the need to "devise a means where the two peoples can live together in one nation as equals."

Said strongly condemned Palestinian terrorist attacks against Israeli civilians. Writing in the Egyptian weekly Al Ahram (March 16, 2003), he denounced "Palestinian Islamists" for their "wantonly barbaric suicide bombings," and rejected the term "resistance fighters" for the perpetrators of such attacks.

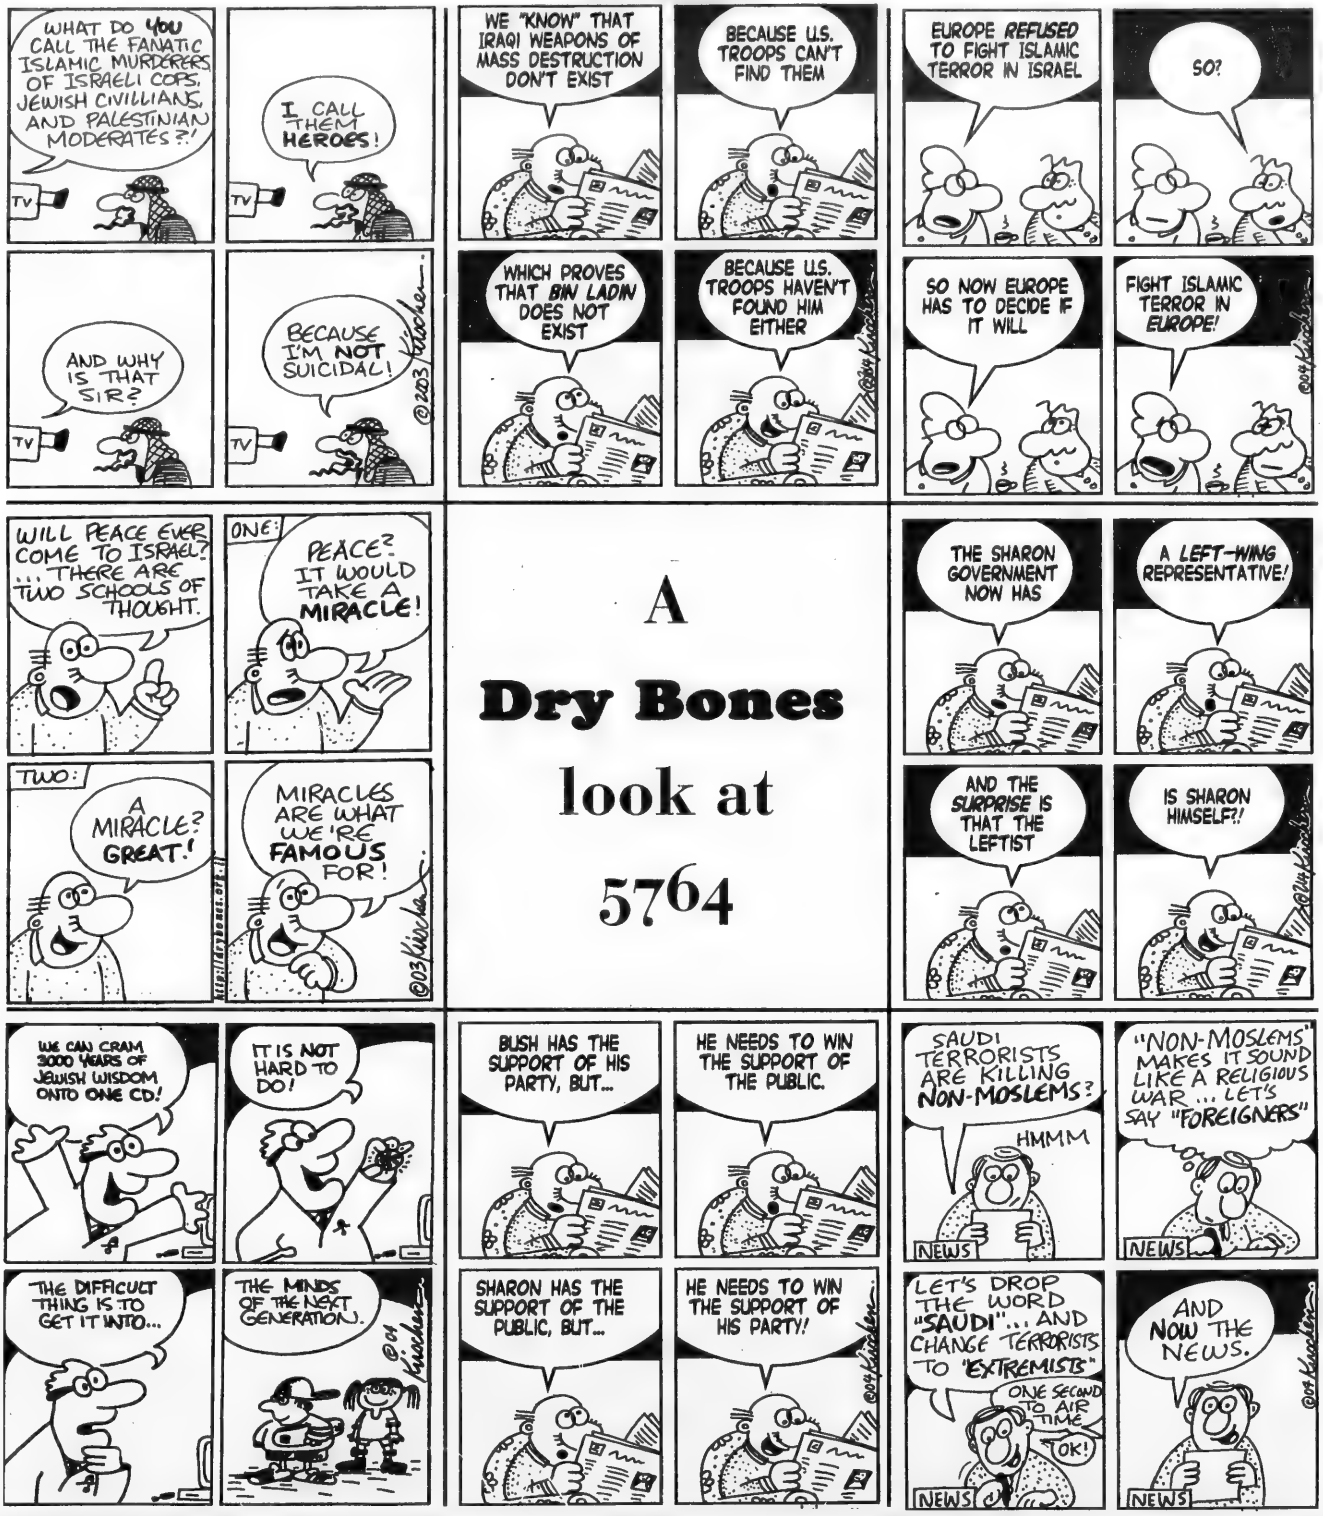
Further, Said was a founder, together with Argentine-born Israeli conductor Daniel Barenboim, of the West-Eastern Divan Orchestra, which brings together Arab and Israeli musicians. All this hardly amounts to adopting a "hard line" and being "a stumbling block to reconciliation."

Carl Rosenberg
Vancouver

The Canadian Jewish News reserves the right to refuse advertising that in its opinion is misleading, in poor taste or incompatible with the advertising policies of the newspaper. Acceptance of advertisng does not imply endorsement by The Canadian Jewish News. The CJN makes no representation as to the kashruth of food products in advertisements.

Letters are welcome if they are brief, in English or French, typewritten with lines double spaced, and of interest to our reading public. Readers are cautioned not to make sweeping claims against persons or institutions which they cannot verify, as libel laws are very stringent. We reserve the right to edit and condense letters, which must bear the sender's address, phone number and both handwritten and typed signatures. Letters sent by e-mail must also include the sender's municipal address.

A Dry Bones look at 5764



WHAT DO YOU CALL THE FANATIC ISLAMIC MURDERERS OF ISRAELI COPS, JEWISH CIVILLIANS, AND PALESTINIAN MODERATES?!
TV
I CALL THEM HEROES!
AND WHY IS THAT SIR?
BECAUSE I'M NOT SUICIDAL!
©2003 Kirschen
WE "KNOW" THAT IRAQI WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION DON'T EXIST
BECAUSE U.S. TROOPS CAN'T FIND THEM
WHICH PROVES THAT BIN LADIN DOES NOT EXIST
BECAUSE U.S. TROOPS HAVEN'T FOUND HIM EITHER EUROPE REFUSED TO FIGHT ISLAMIC TERROR IN ISRAEL
SO?
SO NOW EUROPE HAS TO DECIDE IF IT WILL FIGHT ISLAMIC TERROR IN EUROPE!
WILL PEACE EVER COME TO ISRAEL? ... THERE ARE TWO SCHOOLS OF THOUGHT.
ONE:
PEACE? IT WOULD TAKE A MIRACLE!
TWO:
A MIRACLE? GREAT!
MIRACLES ARE WHAT WE'RE FAMOUS FOR!
http://drybones.org
©03 Kirschen
THE SHARON GOVERNMENT NOW HAS A LEFT-WING REPRESENTATIVE!
AND THE SURPRISE IS THAT THE LEFTIST IS SHARON HIMSELF?!
©04 Kirschen
WE CAN CRAM 3000 YEARS OF JEWISH WISDOM ONTO ONE CD!
IT IS NOT HARD TO DO!
THE DIFFICULT THING IS TO GET IT INTO...
THE MINDS OF THE NEXT GENERATION.
©04 Kirschen
BUSH HAS THE SUPPORT OF HIS PARTY, BUT...
HE NEEDS TO WIN THE SUPPORT OF THE PUBLIC.
SHARON HAS THE SUPPORT OF THE PUBLIC, BUT...
HE NEEDS TO WIN THE SUPPORT OF HIS PARTY!
©04 Kirschen
SAUDI TERRORISTS ARE KILLING NON-MOSLEMS?
HMMM
NEWS
"NON-MOSLEMS" MAKES IT SOUND LIKE A RELIGIOUS WAR... LET'S SAY "FOREIGNERS"
NEWS
LET'S DROP THE WORD "SAUDI"... AND CHANGE TERRORISTS TO "EXTREMISTS" ONE SECOND TO AIR TIME
OK!
NEWS
AND NOW THE NEWS.
©04 Kirschen
NEWS

Opinions

An anti-Chomsky reader, at last

For more than 40 years, Noam Chomsky has revelled in the role of intellectual flag-bearer for many lefties and peaceniks across the planet. Having established himself as a linguist of international stature, he has deftly exploited his scholarly fame to gain respect for his political agendas. What one necessarily has to do with the other is a matter of contention, but as mesmerized as they usually are with his messages, few of his disciples find it necessary to ask this question.

Lawrence Hart in Hamilton

What is even more incongruous is that many of those who might ordinarily assess Chomsky's record as a linguist according to the highest possible standards seldom find it necessary to apply similar criteria when it comes to critiquing his political views.

In the absence of such scrutiny, Chomsky has been able to weave a vast and complex web of misleading ideology – based usually on sloppy logic and often couched in the telltale rhetoric of conspiracy theorists and social anarchists. Central to his writing is a visceral and boundless anti-Americanism that first emerged under cover of U.S. involvement in Indochina in the 1960s. It then morphed into a wider polemic during the resurgence of Cold War tensions in the 1980s. Similar invective has followed in the aftermath of 9/11 and President George W. Bush's declaration of war on global terrorism.

But inasmuch as anti-Americanism is his primary obsession, Chomsky has also found sustenance in his relentless attacks on Israel, which he has described as a terror state "with points of similarity" to the Third Reich, and as the "Little Satan" operating alongside the American "Great Satan." His stewardship of the divestiture campaign against Israel is yet a further manifestation of his animus towards the country and its interests. Moreover, it has been his long-held view that Israel's establishment as a Jewish state was a mistake in the first place.

Debunking the myths, misinterpretations and historic distortions that are so intrinsic to the Chomsky mystique can be difficult. Doing so requires academic skill and sound judgement – both of which are clearly demonstrated in the just-published Anti-Chomsky Reader, edited by Peter Collier and David Horowitz (Encounter Books, San Francisco). In nine well-written and exhaustively researched chapters, various authors meticulously dissect Chomsky's arguments on a number of important topics. The sections about his "war against Israel," his foray into the murky world of Holocaust denial, and his criticism of the media are especially compelling.

At last, we have, in one volume, a comprehensive and easily accessible resource that can be used by both scholars and laymen alike to more effectively challenge the misguided Chomsky dogma that has so far seemed to escape the neutralization it so richly deserves.

To Montreal with love

Having recently returned from a week as a guest of FEDERATION CJA in Montreal, I am reminded of an old saying – it takes travelling abroad to make us realize how fine is the home we have left behind. I am reminded of it because I came back from Canada persuaded yet again that with us, the Jews, it's a lot more complicated, that the cozy warmth one identifies with a sense of home can be experienced very far from home, whenever we are with one another.

Ross Culiner in Jerusalem

A prolonged national homelessness lasting close to 20 centuries contributed greatly towards the shaping of our particular psychology and outlook. Through much of that period, the single home that really did matter to us, the Land of Israel, was remote and inaccessible. Having, therefore, to make do with a string of temporary lodgings in other people's backyards, we evolved into a civilization in a suitcase – portable, self-sufficient and geographically transferable. We compensated for our lack of a permanent dwelling place with a highly developed sensibility of being part of a widely dispersed collective, the Jewish people.

This fellowship spanned continents and diverse cultures, knew no barriers or borders and fed upon the poignancy of our essential rootlessness. It imbued casual encounters between Jews, however different their backgrounds and circumstances, with an immediate intimacy and sympathy. There was a host of shared values, attitudes, traditions, memories and dreams. There was also a historical and religious consciousness, sometimes acute, sometimes more vague, but sufficiently compelling to inspire many of us to great deeds and outstanding achievements.

What is remarkable to me, however, is that modern Zionism, while giving us back the homeland we'd lost in antiquity with its identifiable geography and permanence of place, has not deprived us of that extra-territorial dimension of belonging, so to speak, to the great extended "Jewish family" – something that even today continues to colour our perceptions, as well as enhance and enrich our relationships.

In this light must be seen the Israel-Diaspora interaction, which does not fit the usual homeland-versus-expatriate community model, or centre-versus-periphery one. What we seem to have, rather, is the modern-day embodiment of an ancient and successful paradigm – a symbiosis and cross-fertilization between differing but equally worthy types of Jewish experience.

Which brings me back to the Montreal Jewish community and my stay there. It is far too tempting for us living here in this dusty, dry and dear land of Israel, this seething cauldron of our contemporary national renaissance to lull ourselves into the illusion that around our sun revolve all those little planets of Diaspora Jewish life, like bravely, if faintly, twinkling celestial bodies hopelessly adrift in the big black chill of dispersion. Which is why it is of paramount importance that as many Israelis as possible gain a firsthand glimpse of what I myself glimpsed in Montreal – the vibrancy, richness of Jewish cultural expression, concern and compassion that underlie a sure sense of direction and a sure instinct for self-preservation. The outstanding achievements in all institutional areas – culture, education, health and care for the aged and needy – are dazzling and, speaking as an Israeli, profoundly humbling.

But above all, it was the sense of warmth, that sense of being "at home" I have been talking about, that most impressed me. With us, the Jews, the old saying is wrong. Home will always be where we can be with one another and share that very special, hard-to-define something that makes being Jewish a pleasure and privilege.

Perhaps too much blood, sweat and tears have flowed under my own bridge for me to ever reconsider a swim back upstream into the clear, blue and tranquil waters of the St. Lawrence River to reside contentedly on Canadian shores. But I know that you there, and we here, are each doing our part to ensure that this incredible enterprise called Jewish civilization remains on a steady course into the future. I also know that you are with us and behind us when it really counts. I know it, because I can feel it. And it feels, to be honest, just like home.

To comment, contact culiner@netvision.net.il.

Dennis Ross and the myths of Oslo

Despite the catastrophic failure of the Oslo peace process and four years of terror, many diplomats, journalists and academics repeat the mantras about restarting negotiations. But after the publication of Dennis Ross's monumental memoir The Missing Peace, the myths of Arab-Israeli peacemaking are even shakier than before.

Gerald Steinberg in Jerusalem

For 15 years, Ross was a senior American policy maker dealing with this issue, and his experience and expertise are unique. As this detailed memoir demonstrates, the peace efforts didn't fail due to personality clashes or because negotiators lacked the creativity to close gaps on borders and Jerusalem, as is often claimed. In more than 800 fascinating pages, Ross unintentionally demonstrates that the core obstacle to compromise and peace has been, and continues to be, the Palestinians' unwillingness to forgo the option of destroying Israel.

This book is a cautionary tale that should be required reading for Canadian diplomats and pundits who claim expertise on the Middle East, although most will try to avoid the obvious conclusions. Like many members of this fraternity, Ross was emotionally committed to the "peace process," which blinded him to the evidence that the Palestinian leadership is neither ready for nor interested in a two-state solution. While providing a very detailed account of innumerable meetings, tactics, negotiation sessions, phone calls and summits, Ross also reveals how he missed the big picture.

For example, until everything unravelled after the Camp David summit, the American peace team never took a step back to ask whether a foundation for peace even existed. Their emotional commitment to "the process" blocked this kind of cold and unemotional assessment. As a result, they ignored evidence of massive corruption in the Palestinian leadership and paid little attention to the incitement in official Palestinian media and repeated in speeches by Palestinian Authority President Yasser Arafat.

Most diplomats, including the security-minded Americans, also gave relatively little weight to Palestinian terror. In this otherwise comprehensive volume, Ross omits the key information related to Arafat's involvement – such as when the PLO leader's limousine entered Gaza after the 1994 agreement carrying terrorists Jihad Amarin and Mamduh Nofal. Both were denied entry under terms of the deal signed with Israel.

Similarly, would-be peace-makers consistently dismissed the impact of terror attacks, facilely blaming them on "radical opponents of peace." But Arafat's fingerprints were quite visible – he fanned the flames by providing weapons, funds and other forms of support for terror bombings. After each wave, his forces would round up the usual suspects, then let them go as soon as the pressure dropped. The Americans explained this as a tactic designed to get a better deal, but for Israelis, the promised exchange of land for peace – meaning the end of terror – turned out to be a mirage. To his credit, Ross recalls that the suicide bombings in early 1996 ended Israelis' faith in Oslo and resulted in Benjamin Netanyahu's electoral victory, and not the reverse.

Ten years later, after more than 1,000 Israelis have been killed by Palestinian violence, there is no basis for believing that the "land for peace" equation can be revived in the foreseeable future. This history clearly shows that the simplistic mantra calling on Israel to "end the occupation" in order to create the basis for a Palestinian state and for peace has run its course. Complex proposals such as the so-called "road map for peace" will simply allow Palestinian terror groups to re-arm and plan for the next round of the continuing effort to destroy Israel. Even Ross fails to understand that in 1999, then prime minister Ehud Barak realized that without a clear end to the conflict, every Israeli concession (particularly regarding Jerusalem) would simply become another lull that would allow the Palestinians to wage war.

As a result, we are left with two bad options – maintaining the status quo or unilateral disengagement. For veteran diplomats such as Ross, neither provides hope for a grand breakthrough. And since the status quo – meaning more suicide bombings and international pressure on Israel – is unacceptable, the only remaining option is unilateral separation. This will not satisfy the emotional desire for real peace, but by reducing daily friction between Israelis and Palestinians, it might help promote pragmatic coexistence. When compared to the prospect of unmitigated terrorism, this option looks relatively hopeful.

The Kirshner File

Palestinian uprising simmers after four years

Hamas, the Islamic movement bent on Israel's destruction, marked the fourth anniversary of the intifadah on Sept. 28 by firing three Qassam rockets into the western Negev. One rocket hit Sderot, a dusty development town inhabited mainly by Sephardi and Ethiopian Jews, while two others landed near kibbutzim in the region.

Sheldon Kirshner in Toronto

As 10 people were treated for shock, Sderot's mayor, Eli Moyal, demanded that the Israeli government find an immediate solution to the problem. In the past three years, some 70 Qassams – a crude missile with a maximum range of about nine kilometres – have fallen on Sderot, which is adjacent to the Gaza Strip, home to 1.3 million Palestinians.

Shaul Mofaz, the defence minister, promised Moyal that the army would take further steps to counter the Qassams. But on the following day, Sderot was subjected to the most deadly Qassam barrage to date. A rocket crashed into a house and killed two children, despite the fact that Israel had just installed a new radar system to give residents a 15 to 20 second warning of incoming Qassams. Not since late June had a Qassam caused a fatality in Sderot.

Israel responded by attacking northern Gaza – Beit Hanoun and the Jabalya refugee camp in particular, the sources of the Qassams. It was Israel's 13th incursion into the Gaza Strip in three months. But this operation, code named Days of Reckoning and described as the biggest Israeli thrust into Gaza since the Six Day War, was clearly different, aimed at creating a sizable buffer zone between Israel and Gaza so that towns and settlements in Israel are no longer within range of the increasingly effective Qassams.

The raid, which may last for weeks, according to Gen. Moshe Yaalon, the chief of staff, seems paradoxical.

Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon said last week that it is designed to show the Palestinians that Israel will not withdraw from Gaza under fire and thus encourage more attacks from militants who want to fight on. But can Israel achieve this objective without occupying Gaza indefinitely or without entering into direct negotiations with the Palestinians?

Palestinian technicians are working feverishly to expand the range of the Qassams, and if they succeed, the security zone Israel is currently carving out in Gaza will have to be enlarged so that a city such as Ashkelon cannot be threatened. But Sharon insists that his unilateral disengagement plan, which is scheduled to be implemented next year in the face of fervent opposition from Jewish settlers of Gaza, will be carried out.

Israel's incursion into northern Gaza, which is modelled on Operation Defensive Shield and Operation Determined Path, undertaken in the West Bank in the spring of 2002, sharply belies the claim in some quarters that the Palestinian uprising is drawing to a close. Various observers, from Yaalon to syndicated conservative American columnist Charles Krauthammer, have declared that Israel has "won" the intifadah. But this assertion stretches the truth.

Israel has succeeded in dampening the intifadah, the low-grade war of attrition that reached a peak of intensity in 2002 when 456 Israeli civilian and soldiers were killed. But its embers still flare up and have yet to be extinguished, proving the old adage that a rebellion like this cannot be stamped out solely by military means.

This intifadah, which is actively supported by Hezbollah and its patron, Iran, is far more serious in scope than the first uprising, which broke out in the Jabalya refugee camp in December 1987 and essentially ended when the first Olso accord was signed in September 1993.

Israel basically used riot control methods to deal with the first eruption, which claimed the lives of less than 200 Israelis and about 1,000 Palestinians. More often than not, Palestinian demonstrators vented their fury at the occupation by throwing stones and Molotov cocktails, and the violence was virtually confined to the West Bank and Gaza. But in the latest reincarnation of the intifadah – which has often spilled into Israel proper, unmasking some Israeli Arabs as perpetrators and collaborators – the Palestinians have drawn on weaponry such as Qassams and anti-tank missiles.

What also distinguishes the current intifadah from the first one is the deployment of the Palestinians' newest terror weapon, the suicide bomber. The Palestinians have staged 138 such bombings in the past four years, the last two having occurred in Be'er Sheva on Aug. 31 and in Jerusalem on Sept. 22. Israel, however, has foiled some 600 attacks. The indiscriminate bombings have sown fear, anger and disgust in Israel and hardened the political views of most Israelis, making the attainment of peace all but impossible for now.

These attacks have killed more than 1,000 Israeli civilians and soldiers and wounded an additional 5,600. Israel's fatalities in the intifadah are exceeded only by two previous conflicts – the 1948 War of Independence and the 1973 Yom Kippur War.

Israeli forces storm into the northern Gaza Strip after Qassam rockets kill two children. [Israel Sun photo]

Observers guessed this intifadah would be a bloody affair. Before it erupted, the Israeli chief of staff warned the Palestinian Authority, headed by Yasser Arafat, that Israel would not hesitate to use tanks and helicopters to try to crush a revolt. And that is precisely what has happened since a Palestinian mob murdered two Israeli reservists in Ramallah in October 2000.

Since that ugly incident, which outraged Israeli public opinion and cast a pall on the faltering Olso peace process, Israel has been ceaselessly on the offensive. It has launched punitive raids, assassinated terrorist leaders (even as far afield as in Damascus, where a Hamas operative was blown up by a car bomb on Sept. 26), arrested ring leaders, imposed curfews and closures and razed the homes of suicide bombers and their supporters.

The seemingly never-ending series of retaliatory and pre-emptive land, air and sea strikes, which have exposed Israel to condemnation and demonization overseas, have killed more than 3,000 Palestinians and injured upwards of 20,000. The raids have also torn apart the Palestinian Authority, exacerbated the misery and hopelessness of ordinary Palestinians and, of course, impeded the chances of a rapprochement between Israel and its Palestinian neighbours.

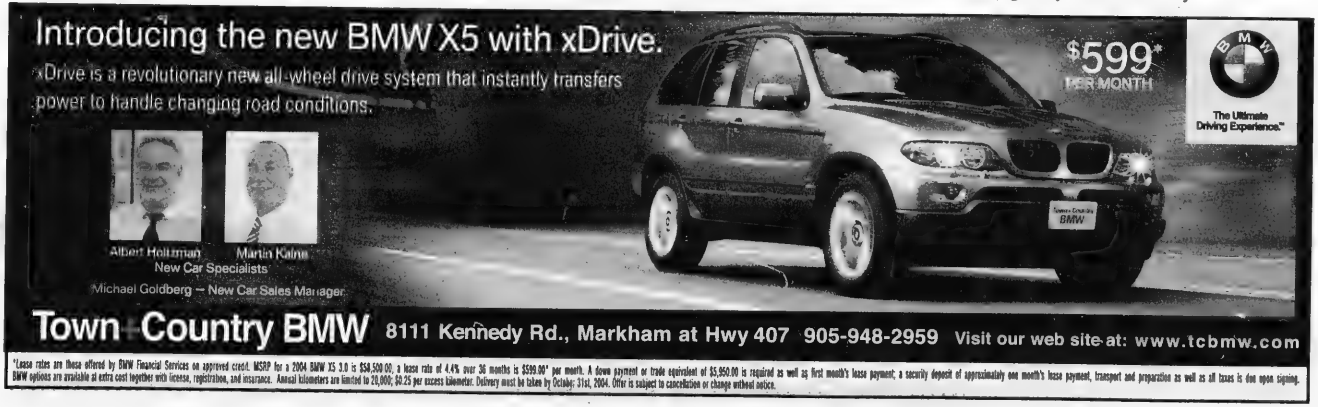
Indeed, with the internationally sponsored "road map to peace" having imploded since its introduction last year, the Palestinians are no closer to achieving their primary goal – statehood. (Two weeks ago, the Palestinian prime minister, Ahmed Qureia, who has deplored suicide bombing as damaging to the Palestinian cause, called on his fellow Palestinians to rethink their tactics).

These measures, plus Israel's construction of a separation fence that runs mainly through the West Bank rather than along the old Green Line, have significantly lowered the Israeli death tolls. The Palestinians killed 213 Israelis in 2003, but the figure in the first eight months of this year was 80.

As a result of its draconian methods, Israel's armed forces have managed to minimize the dreadful impact of the intifadah on Israeli society. The Israeli economy, after three years of recession, is showing signs of life again. The growth rate in the second quarter was 5.6 per cent, compared to 6.8 per cent in the first quarter. Exports were up and tourism was recovering.

But, as last week's massive Israeli raid into Gaza demonstrates, the intifadah is still simmering, and sometimes boiling over, with no real end in sight. And Hamas is still firing Qassams into Israel.

What is required, now more than ever, is a multilateral political solution that courageously addresses the key issues.



Introducing the new BMW X5 with xDrive.
xDrive is a revolutionary new all-wheel drive system that instantly transfers power to handle changing road conditions.
$599* PER MONTH
The Ultimate Driving Experience.
Albert Holtzman
Martin Kalina
New Car Specialists
Michael Goldberg – New Car Sales Manager
Town Country BMW 8111 Kennedy Rd., Markham at Hwy 407 905-948-2959 Visit our web site at: www.tcbmw.com
Lease rates are those offered by BMW Financial Services on approved credit. MSRP for a 2004 BMW X5 3.0i is $58,500.00, a lease rate of 4.4% over 36 months is $599.00 per month. A down payment or trade equivalent of $5,950.00 is required as well as first month's lease payment; a security deposit of approximately one month's lease payment, transport and preparation as well as all taxes is due upon signing. BMW options are available at extra cost together with license, registration, and insurance. Annual kilometers are limited to 20,000; $0.25 per excess kilometer. Delivery must be taken by October 31st, 2004. Offer is subject to cancellation or change without notice.

School daze

New location for Heschel

Teacher Ehud Viner supervises students in grades 5, 6 and 7 at The Toronto Heschel School as they take part in a track and field activity at Heschel's new branch at 819 Sheppard Ave. W., near Faywood Avenue. The school moved its 111 students in grades 5 to 8 into the building this fall after outgrowing the school wing of Adath Israel Congregation. Heschel shares the facility – which is owned by the Toronto District School Board – with Hudson College, a private, non-denominational school.

Sukkot celebration at Leo Baeck

Grade 2 students at Leo Baeck Day School's Atkinson campus celebrated Sukkot with their teacher Judy Shigris in a new sukkah donated by school's parent association. The children decorated the sukkah, sang songs and recited the blessing over the lulav and etrog.

[Jan Lapedus photo]

Ounce for Ounce the best deal in town

24 oz. prime rib shown above

Currently featuring 14 oz. prime rib – $17.95*

Enjoy tender prime rib and steak, including Le Biftheque's everyDay specials – served with all the trimmings – from under $20. Or sample our menu selections for every taste and diet, presented in a tasteful setting that is uniquely Le Biftheque. Terrific for lunch or dinner. Great for business or pleasure. Perfect for banquets or special events. And it's only at Le Biftheque. Who Knew?

*Limited time offer

LE BIFTHÈQUE STEAKHOUSE Who knew?

7501 Woodbine Ave. (N. of Steeles) 905-305-1808; 25 Carlson Court (W. of Dixon Rd. and Hwy. 27) 416-798-4333
96 Richmond St. W. (Downtown Sheraton Centre) 416-366-4333; www.lebiftheque.com

NEW YORK'S "JEWISH SOUL" MUSICAL COMES TO TORONTO!

Your Ancestors live again in...

Jay Kholos'

A Stoop on Orchard Street

DIRECT FROM NEW YORK, FOUR DAYS ONLY!!

"THE WORTHY SUCCESSOR TO FIDDLER."

Take a nostalgic trip back to the year 1910. Share the trials and triumphs of the Lomansky family and their "stoop" friends as they strive to live the American dream in the teeming tenements of the Lower East Side of New York. Don't miss this big musical with 18 original and hummable songs and a cast of 24.

Breaking records everywhere it plays, A Stoop On Orchard Street is the must see musical with "Jewish Soul."

"An extremely enjoyable musical...a glimpse into Jewish immigrant life of New York's Lower East Side...I loved the ending!" –Dr. Ruth, TV personality, Therapist, Author, Lecturer

"...one of the finest pieces of musical theatre anywhere..."–BEST OF publishers

"It's a hit!"–New York Times

"...a modern musical with a sentimental longing for the past. What makes this theater experience successful is its heart and Jewish soul."–Thane Rosenbaum, novelist and essayist on Jewish art and culture

ZAGAT® rates it EXCELLENT!–Wall Street Journal Survey says "smart story, well-crafted songs...not a dry eye in the house."

"The perfect show that conveys to 2nd, 3rd and 4th generation Jews, the price their grandparents paid to build a life in America!" –June Walker, National President of Hadassah

"The best musical I've seen On or Off-Broadway in years..." –Joe Franklin (WOR Radio)

Celebrate 350 Jewish Life in America 1654 - 2004

SHOWS WILL SELL OUT! ORDER TICKETS SOON! DIRECT FROM NEW YORK!

A Stoop on Orchard Street

LEAH POSLUNS THEATRE of the BATHURST JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTRE, 4588 Bathurst Street, Toronto

Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thur.
10/25	10/26	10/27	10/28
8pm	2pm & 8pm	2pm & 8pm	2pm & 8pm

Tickets from 39.95 to 49.95

For tickets, call 866-527-8667.

For group rates, call 877-358-7764. Four Days Only! October 25th–28th.

For more information about this critically acclaimed production visit www.astooponorchardstreet.com

High tuition makes public schools more attractive

By SARI ZON

School Parents SPEAK

Recently I have been forced to seriously examine my reasons for enrolling my kids in a Jewish day school despite the financial strain it imposes. After all, the provincial government says we have a choice. Every Canadian is entitled to a free secular or Catholic education, with the option of providing a different, faith-based education at their own expense should they choose to do so.

But many families who would choose a faith-based school are prohibited by financial constraints from making that choice. More and more Jewish students are entering public schools because their parents can't afford day school, and many fear that shrinking day school enrolment will trigger a slow erosion of Jewish faith and culture.

Although a Jewish education has always been a fundamental priority in our family, we are now forced to explore the local public schools. With the provincial Liberal government's retroactive removal of the Education Equity Tax Credit, and with day school tuitions skyrocketing to cover costs, we're paying $21,000 this year for two kids. While families with the lowest earnings receive subsidies, the largest group, those in the middle-income bracket, are stuck. For some, the cost is prohibitive, yet for many, a Jewish education is essential.

> 'But school is where our kids gain the understanding of what it means to be a people'

Our home is a Jewish one. We observe holidays and rituals, and if we do take our kids out of day school, we will practise more at home to compensate. Why then is it so distressing that their Jewish education may be short-lived? What precisely are they gaining there that we can't provide?

Largely it is the Hebrew language. We don't speak it at home and yet the ability to speak and understand Hebrew connects us in a vital way to the State of Israel. For those of us who want Israel to be a part of our children's consciousness, the strong connection they develop through knowledge of the language is invaluable.

As a family, we celebrate the holidays, but learning about them in a day school environment offers a level of understanding and sharing that we can't match. The holidays are times to remember our history as a people. Pesach recalls the exodus of the Jewish people from Egypt; Shavuot commemorates the giving of the Torah; Purim is about victory for the Jewish people – and so on. Even Yom Kippur, a day of introspection and thought, is an occasion to ponder our actions toward others. Judaism is not a solitary religion.

As a family, we can maintain our faith through prayer and by observing Shabbat and the holidays. But school is where our kids gain the understanding of what it means to be a people. It's where they feel that connection every day. School is where they study it, share it, sing it, dance it, re-create it and rejoice in it. There is no Judaism without Jewish learning, and only the school environment can foster that learning, making it part of daily routines and ensuring its continuity.

Whether or not we all agree on the merits of a day school education, one thing is certain: each province should be funding at least the general studies portion of every Canadian child's schooling. The fact Catholic schools are fully funded and no other faith-based schools receive any funding is a blatantly discriminatory practice, one that even the United Nation Human Rights Committee has censured.

As a community, we need to make ourselves heard on this fundamental matter. We must pursue those provincial and federal representatives who think this system is acceptable. Other provinces have extended significant funding to faith-based schools with no adverse affects, and I am confident that, with enough prompting, Ontario will too.

Sari Zon is the mother of two children at the Montessori Jewish Day School. This article is the first of an occasional series.

INCREDIBLE VALUE - FULLY ESCORTED CHRISTMAS & NEW YEAR'S
16 DAYS - DEC. 17 - JAN. 1 IN SUNNY THAILAND
UNBELIEVABLE PRICE $3690 U.S.
(Total package worth over $5000 U.S.)
"New Year's Eve Gala in Bangkok"
Includes Cathay Pacific round trip, superior 1st class accommodation, several meals included, all side trips including PHUKET & all domestic flights. Limited Seats!
For full itinerary & more information contact
Itia Golan 905-886-6770

The Orthodox Union and NCSY are pleased to announce that their 2004
National Business Leadership Award will be presented to RONNIE & CHANA RUTMAN
at the
24th Annual NCSY Concert
A Jewish Music Extravaganza featuring SHALSHELES,
PIAMENTA, SHLOIME DACHS & NAFSHENU ORCHESTRA
Sunday, November 14, 2004
Toronto Centre for the Arts
formerly The Ford Centre, 5040 Yonge Street
A Gala Dinner will immediately precede the concert
Honourary Dinner Chairs:
Dov & Nancy Friedberg, Tommy & Judy Hofstedter, George & Vivian Kuhl,
Ralph & Ada Reichman, Kurt & Edith Rothschild, Edward & Fran Sonshine
Proceeds to The Ronnie & Chana Rutman
NCSY Campaign for Continuity
For ticket information and reservations please contact NCSY
7000 Bathurst Street, Thornhill. Ontario. L4J 7L1
Tel: 905-761-6279 ext. 32 Fax: 905-761-9115 Email: ncsy@ncsy.ca

HIGHLAND FARMS

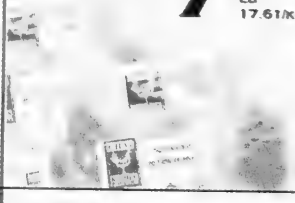
Lower Prices

A lot Less to Pay Everyday

VISIT US TODAY AT FRESHATHIGHLANDFARMS.COM FOR MORE GREAT SAVINGS.

PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, GROWN AT THE HIGHLAND FARMS ORCHARD
fresh, fancy grade
McINTOSH APPLES
3.99 8LB POLY BAG

CHAI KOSHER, COR 218
fresh, boneless
CHICKEN BREAST
7.99 LB 17.61/KG



CHAI KOSHER, COR 218
fresh
CHICKEN LEGS
(backs attached)
2.49 LB 5.49/KG

WHITE SWAN, REGULAR PAPER TOWELS
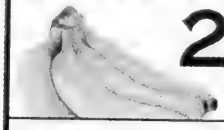
69¢ 2 ROLL PKG

FROM THE TROPICS
fresh
BANANAS
25¢ LB



HERMES, FRESH
BAGELS
1.99 PKG OF 6

BNEI-DAROM
CUCUMBERS
• in vinegar • in brine
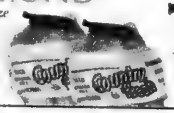
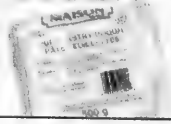
1.49 540G TIN

MAJESTA
BATHROOM TISSUE
7.99 PKG OF 32 ROLLS

PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, CANADA NO.1
fresh
COOKING ONIONS
large size
1.99 10LB BAG



MAISON, FROZEN
PUFF PASTRY DOUGH
1.29 500G PKG



LA BISCOTTE
RICE CAKES
assorted varieties
99¢ 150G PKG

CLOVERLEAF, SKIPJACK
LIGHT TUNA IN WATER
• flake • chunk
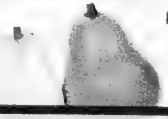
79¢ 170G TIN

PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, CANADA FANCY
fresh
BARTLETT PEARS
79¢ LB 1.74/KG



DIRECT PAYMENT · VISA · MasterCard

STORE HOURS:
MONDAY - SATURDAY 7:00A.M. TILL 10:00P.M.
SUNDAY HOURS 8:00A.M. TILL 8:00P.M.

4750 DUFFERIN ST. AT SUPERTEST RD. 416.736.6606
850 ELLESMERE RD. AT KENNEDY RD. 416.298.1999
148 BENNETT RD. AT LAWRENCE AVE. 416.282.5759
50 MATHESON BLVD. AT HURONTARIO 905.501.9910

KOSHER PRODUCTS AVAILABLE AT THE DUFFERIN LOCATION ONLY.

CHAPMAN'S, LIGHT
ICE CREAM
assorted varieties
1.99 2LT TUB

SPECIALS EFFECTIVE THURSDAY, OCTOBER 14TH TO WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20TH, 2004

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES • UNAUTHORIZED REPRODUCTION OR USE OF THIS ADVERTISEMENT WITHOUT THE WRITTEN CONSENT OF HIGHLAND FARMS AND ITS MARKETING AGENCY IS STRICTLY PROHIBITED.

RENT A CAR
TAMIR תמיר
Enjoy your stay in Israel
with the best car rental prices, no hidden extras...
rate includes:
• All Airport charges • Free extra driver
• Free baby seat • Free mobile telephone
•Free delivery & pick-up anywhere in Israel (except Eilat)
For Reservation call Yehuda Ehrlich
1-800-to-TAMIR, 1-800-868-2647
or (732) 246-4163 Fax: (732) 246-3935
www.tamir-rental.co.il

Join us as we talk with Ed Olkovich, lawyer and author of Estate to the Heart, and Jamie Golombek, Vice-President of Tax and Estate Planning for AIM/Trimark.
Getting to the Heart of what Matters
This free video broadcast will address:
▮ Protecting yourself and your loved ones
▮ Learning your ownership rights
▮ Ways to help reduce taxes
Date: Tuesday, October 19
Time: 11:30 a.m., 6:30 & 8:30 p.m.
Location: 7700 Bathurst St., Unit 11, Thornhill
RSVP 905-889-8535
Monica J. Weissmann, CFP
Edward Jones
Serving Individual Investors
Member CIPF
www.edwardjones.com

STERLING SILVER and SEMI-PRECIOUS
DESIGNER SAMPLES
ONE-OF-A-KIND CLOSEOUTS
OVERSTOCK DISCONTINUED ITEMS SECONDS
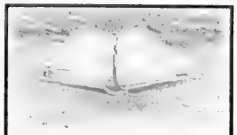
Vivah OUTLET
WAREHOUSE SALE
OCT. 18th TO 23rd ONLY
STERLING SILVER UP TO 80% OFF
FASHION JEWELLERY FROM $2
BODY JEWELLERY FROM $5
While Quantities Last
995 FINCH AVE. WEST
416-661-7188 MON TO FRI 9-8 SAT TILL 6 PM
Behind Scotia Bank at corner of Dufferin
WATCHES TRIBAL PEARL and CRYSTAL

We cannot rationalize everything

By RABBI MARK FRIEDMAN



Recently, I read I a review of a new book written by a PhD candidate in neuroscience at UCLA. The book's main theme is an attack upon organized religion and, in particular, upon the tolerance exhibited by religious moderates. It sounded, according to this review, like an angry, confrontational work.

Nonetheless, the reviewer observes that the author does concede that there exists in the world a place for the mystical and the numinous. He acknowledges that there are experiences that can be characterized as "religious" in nature, experiences that reflect an awareness of transcendence and one's humility before the complexity of nature and the world. Following immediately upon this observation, the reviewer adds the coup de grace. The writer, maintaining his atheistic stance, assumes that all such phenomena will one day be explained and accounted for through neuroscience and the continued study of the human brain.

I attended high school with someone like this author. He had great doubts about a supernatural deity but he maintained no doubts about science. Everything may be explained; all phenomena are comprehensible through the scientific method.

I had an easy riposte to this claim. I asked him to explain how Nazism arose, and I asked him how he could account for the fact that the most scientifically advanced culture in the world could commit such atrocities and destroy millions of lives. I asked if he believed there was a rational explanation of why all these people had to be killed. He, as one might expect, could not respond. He simply repeated his position that, in the end, science would prevail and find a logical explanation.

Yet, the PhD candidate in question appears to go a step farther than my young friend. He seems to be convinced that even internal experience and emotion are comprehensible. Apparently, any semblance of religious experience can be reduced to a matter of neurons.

> 'We risk not apprehending the presence of the Divine'

I beg to differ with this author. It seems to me that he would do well to read some of the works of the modern Jewish philosopher Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel.

Heschel writes, for example, "Beyond our reasoning and beyond our believing, there is a preconceptual faculty that senses the glory, the presence, of the Divine. We do not perceive it. We have no knowledge; we have only awareness."

According to Heschel, our awareness of the Divine comes to the surface in moments of awe. At such a time, we are aware, in a heightened way, of the created nature of the universe. Heschel argues that even the most cynical of people have experienced moments like these. The experience may originate, for instance, in viewing a spectacular natural phenomenon such as the Grand Canyon or the Rocky Mountains.

Heschel observes, "The beginning of awe is wonder and the beginning of wisdom is awe."

I believe this neuroscientist may be repressing his sense of awe and wonder so that he can rationalize everything. As a matter of fact, the very organ he is studying is an endless source of awe and wonder. The more we learn about the complexity of the human brain, the more we understand how unique is its functioning. This knowledge should inspire us with an overriding sense of wonder. Indeed, as we learn more about the human body and its complicated mechanisms, the more in awe we should be.

Doubt is not a negative attribute. A critical sense is a valuable trait. Science is made up of many invaluable disciplines. Nevertheless, if we are not careful about applying our knowledge, we risk not apprehending the presence of the Divine in our lives and our world.

Rabbi Friedman is a hospital chaplain in Montreal and rabbi of Congregation Shaar Shalom in Chomedey, Que.

Civil discourse a higher goal than unity

By ELLIOTT MALAMET

Is Jewish unity a myth? With all of the talk in Jewish communities about the need for oneness and solidarity, and educational imperatives stressing the bonds that connect Jewish people together, the fact remains that Jews maintain radically disparate and often mutually contradictory views, especially when it comes to Judaism itself. Is this a bad thing? Should we try to achieve an expedient harmony for the sake of our children?

I think not. It has always seemed to me that the goal should be civil and open discourse rather than theological conformity. And indeed, if you review statements by leaders of different denominational and religious persuasions, the relationship, or tension, between unity and truth becomes clearer. Hence Rabbi Eugene Borowitz, one of Reform Judaism's major recent thinkers: "If Klal Yisrael had been our most significant concern, we could never have brought Progressive Judaism into being, for its creation seriously divided the Jewish community by defying the accepted community leadership and the established traditions of our people."

No great slaving after unity there. Implicit in Rabbi Borowitz's statement is the idea that unity is fine, but fighting for what you think is the truth is, shall we say, even finer. So too the contemporary Orthodox writer and chief rabbi of the United Kingdom, Jonathan Sacks: "Unity is undeniably a Jewish value, but not necessarily and in all circumstances a supreme and overriding one."

And if unity is so important, then what about the group that is anathema to almost everyone in the Jewish community, even as they see themselves as closer to salvation than all others. In staking his claim to being part of the Jewish people and Jewish destiny, L. Brandt states on behalf of Jews for Jesus: "There is no universally accepted standard or authority in Judaism... I believe in Jesus. Many Jews believe in Buddha, or Krishna, or nothing at all. Who tries to stop them from being Jewish? Why should I be treated differently?"

If pluralism implies that I give the same credence to this opinion as well as any other, then I guess I will have to plead guilty to being an intolerant barbarian. If unity means that I have to intellectually and emotionally treat all claims and manifestations of Judaism as equally valid, then I am disembarking from that train, as painful as that may be. But I am quite willing to argue with Brandt or anyone else for what I see as the core of the Jewish truth. We need not be afraid of a differing opinion, but nor must we feel compelled to feel united with those who cross our red lines for negotiability.

A personal note: in 2002, Rabbi Jay Kelman and I founded Torah in Motion, an organization dedicated to exploring the fundamental religious and spiritual issues of our time and to expanding the kinds of voices that people in our city, Toronto, usually hear. On Sunday, Nov. 7, we'll be holding our third annual conference, where along with rabbis Norman Lamm, Yosef Reinman, Nathan Lopes-Cardozo and several others, we will wrestle with Jewish unity or the lack thereof, and the future of this glorious but always contentious project called Judaism.

Jewish Life

Vignettes from Appelfeld's life

The Story of a Life by Aharon Appelfeld, Random House, $33.

The author of this autobiographical memoir – the haunting story of his survival and rebirth – is an internationally acclaimed, award-winning Israeli novelist.

He was born in 1932 into an assimilated family in Bukovina. His mother was murdered during the Nazi occupation and he was deported to a concentration camp. He managed to escape and joined bands of children wandering in the trackless forests of Poland. After three years, he was picked up by the Soviet army in 1944 and put to work in Ukrainian kitchens until the end of the war. Eventually, he found haven in Italy and finally settled in what is now Israel in 1946.

Books
Bernard Baskin

In his writings, Appelfeld studiously avoids any realistic depiction of the Holocaust, preferring allegory to the fictional representation of historical events. He implies that any attempt to describe what actually happened in the ghettos and death camps would be impossibly grotesque and even obscene.

His early novel, Badenheim 1939, depicts the false tranquillity of segments of European Jewry just before the outbreak of war. Set in an Austrian resort town, it moves from incredulity on the part of the victims to their orderly departure in boxcars. Even at the end, one of the key figures in the story is left speculating that the dirty state of the coaches must mean that they were not going far.

Applefeld continued to be a major literary figure into the 1990s. His translated books, which include The Healer (1990), The Railway (1991), The Iron Tracks (1998) and The Conversion (1998), have a worldwide audience.

The Story of a Life is a slim volume of 30 vignettes that attempt to integrate disparate aspects of the author's life. It is not a sequential or detailed account.

At the outbreak of war, Applefeld's life was irreparably altered. He writes: "Within a few weeks, the seven-year-old who had been enveloped in so much love and warmth had lost his mother and became an abandoned ghetto child, and eventually this child would up trudging alongside his father on a forced march across the Ukrainian steppes. The dying lay beside the dead along the road, and the child limped on with his remaining strength, accompanied by the few who could still walk."

He remembers a teacher who led his young students to the dreaded railway station. "The children halted and again broke into song. The guards must have been taken by surprise and let them sing at first, but not for long. They immediately set upon the children with their clubs, and the children, who were holding another's hands, trembled as one body. At the railway station, they still managed to sing their anthem in its entirety before being pushed into the cattle cars."

Summing up his life experience, the author comes to a surprising conclusion: "I made a survey and a reckoning: every person I knew who was saved during the war was saved solely by the grace of someone who, at a time of great danger, extended a hand to him. It was not God that we saw in the camps, but good people. The old Jewish saying that the world continues to exist only by virtue of a few righteous people is as true today as it was back then."

The Story of a Life is an unforgettable account of an unremitting struggle for life and meaning that stretches across a broad canvas. It is warmly recommended.

Jewish distance learning – Part 2

By MARK MIETKIEWICZ

Last week, we began our look at universities and other institutions that offer "distance learning courses" on the Internet. Today, we look at some online courses that won't get you a master's degree but will round out your Jewish education. Since most of these courses are free, you won't usually get ongoing input from a teacher. On the other hand, you can do them at your own pace and many of them offer discussion areas where you can share your thoughts with other students.

Torah.org offers more than 40 classes on topics ranging from the Book of Jonah to the ethics of speech. One of the most stimulating courses is titled "Honesty." Here's how it works. Every week an ethical question such as "If the motel operator says they accept three children in a room, can you bring a fourth?" is posted. You can send your views to the "Honesty Forum," and the following week, Rabbi Yisroel Belsky sends out his response – and poses a new question. [www.torah.org/learning/]

MyJewishLearning.com offers courses on kashrut, tzedakah, free will, and Kabbalah. [http://tinyurl.com/53var/] The Jewish Theological Institute's learn@jts offers a self-guided learning experience into the holidays and the Book of Job. [http://learn.jtsa.edu/] And the Electronic Torah Warehouse links to enough sites to keep you busy for years. [http://eparsha.com/]

Aleph: the Alliance for Jewish Renewal offers several intriguing-sounding courses, including "Acts of Loving-kindness/Interpersonal Mitzvot" and "God, Earth and Torah: Eco-Judaism and Eco-Kabbalah." Unlike other Internet-based courses mentioned in this column, these are live, interactive, telephone-based conference-call classes. [www.alephu.homestead.com/]

Russian speakers will appreciate the Machanaim website. [www.machanaim.org/] It offers interactive academic courses such as "Jewish Life Cycle" and "The World of Talmud and Aggada Sages." The Israel-based site offers Jewish distance-learning courses by broadcasting lectures via videoconference. The site is in Russian, with a large informational section in English. [www.machanaim.org/about/booklet/internet.htm]

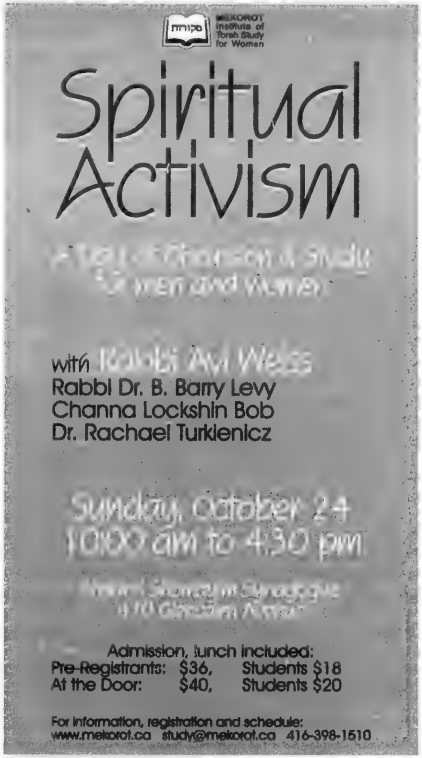
Kolel: The Adult Centre for Liberal Jewish Learning offers a couple of self-taught "how to" courses that I found quite intriguing. Of particular interest to me is one called, "How to Write a Dvar Torah." Those who have white-knuckled their way preparing a talk about the week's Torah portion will appreciate Kolel's methodical approach. And when you're ready, read the tips for running a Torah discussion. [www.kolel.org/pages/elearning.html]

One of the most wonderful distance learning sites I came across is based in Israel. Children who are hospitalized at the Soroka Medical Center in Be'er Sheva have access to enriched school programs thanks to the efforts of teachers and classmates in the Negev. [http://tinyurl.com/3qbhj] Through the program, students from Eshel Ha Nasi Regional School in Be'er Sheva who are hospitalized can "meet" with their home-room teachers and fellow students, and are able to take an active part in the lessons. The school also produces a weekly radio show devoted to hospitalized children. [www.edu-negev.gov.il/bs/soroka/]

At Jewish Interactive Studies, participants correspond with a Jerusalem-based staff to learn more about a variety of Jewish topics. These courses last one to two months and start throughout the year. The Jewish ethics course, "Getting Along with People – and Yourself," uses material from Maimonides, Rabbi Yonah and the Talmud to examine a Jewish view of the work ethic, strife and anger and wealth and happiness. [www.jewishstudies.org]

What is it like to participate in a world-wide classroom? A while back, Massachusetts-based Hebrew College posted these comments from one of its students: "When I describe our class to other people, I'm sure they think I'm a little crazy to be so entranced by a bunch of people I've never met. I try to visualize all of us typing away at keyboards all over the world, at all times of day, and it's as if I finally understand why spider silk, nearly invisible, is one of the strongest natural fibers. We're spinning line after line on our own, releasing words that are then caught and webbed together in a sticky, translucent net, one edge hooked over Jerusalem, the other stretched over Cambridge." [http://tinyurl.com/5jjzf]

Mark Mietkiewicz is a Toronto-based Internet producer who writes, lectures and teaches about the Jewish Internet. He can be reached at highway@rogers.com.



ALL INCLUSIVE STRICTLY KOSHER PACKAGE
AT THE HYATT REGENCY HOTEL

ACAPULCO

JANUARY 18, 2005 FOR EITHER 1 or 2 WEEKS
1 Week: $1799.00 p.p. based on Double Occupancy (Tax Inc.)
2 Weeks: $2599.00 p.p. based on Double Occupancy (Tax Inc.)

WHAT'S INCLUDED
- Return airfare from Toronto-Acapulco-Toronto
- Ground Transfers Airport-Hotel-Airport
- Accommodation: 2 Doubles or 1 King Bed
- Domestic Drinks from 10:00 AM-11:00 PM
- 3 Meals a day
- Friday Night Kosher Buffet Dinner with Wine
- Shabbat Brunch Buffet with coffee & tea
- Hotel taxes, service & gratuities

Full on-site Kosher Supervision offered by the Vaad Hakashrut of Mexico - Mashgiach is Rabbi Meir Antebi, member of the USA Orthodox Union
Mashgiah on-site certification (Glatt Kosher, Mehadrin, Bishul Yisrael, Maran Beth Yosef) with exclusive Koshered kitchen. - Cholov Israel
- Magnificent Synagogue with orthodox prayer services
- Beautiful Mikveh services – reserved for women
- Shabbat Elevator

Book before October 22

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION & RESERVATIONS
CALL MAX BENAIM @ 416.644.6561 or 1.800.667.2069
e-mail: max@avenuetravel.ca
Fax: 416.787.5632
288 Lawrence Ave W., Toronto, Ontario M5M 1B3

Carlson Wagonlit Travel — Avenue Travel Limited — HYATT

G.S.T. #100360130 - ONT> REG 2730815 & 4113833

Composer's great-grandson to participate in HEW

By DANIEL HOROWITZ
UJA Federation

The great-grandson of German composer Richard Wagner, whose music has been unoffically banned in public in Israel, will be participating in this year's Holocaust Education Week (HEW), held from October 28 to November 11.

Dr. Gottfried H. Wagner, who is also the great-great grandson of composer Franz Liszt – will be in Toronto to discuss his great-grandfather's antisemitism and its consequences for German politics and culture.

Dr. Wagner, an international multi-media director known for his humanitarian efforts, and the co-founder of The Post-Holocaust Dialogue Group, will be speaking on Saturday, October 30 at 8:00 p.m. at Temple Emanu-El.

Although Wagner died in 1883, 50 years before Hitler's rise to power, experts believe that his music – considered by many to be the "anthem" of Nazism - had influence on the Nationalist Socialist movement and its leader. Wagner was Hitler's favourite composer and he reportedly carried Wagner's music in his knapsack and requested that Wagner's musice be performed at Nazi party rallies and functions.

The program is just one of the 125 offered at this year's 24th annual HEW, an educational initiative made possible through the UJA Federation Holocaust Centre of Toronto. HEW illustrates the painful lessons of the Holocaust to thousands of people from a full spectrum of religions and nationalities.

Another highlight of this year's HEW – chaired by Honey Carr and Joan Shapero - is expected to be "To Better Serve and Protect: Preserving the Peace and Protecting Human Rights Through the Lessons of the Holocaust." The program, on October 28 at Adath Israel Congregation, features Washington DC police chief Charles Ramsay who visited the U.S. Holocaust Museum in 1998.

Gottfried Wagner, seen here in front of an image of his great-grandfather, German composer Richard Wagner, will address the musician's antisemitic legacy during Toronto's upcoming Holocaust Education Week.

"It was without question the most powerful experience I'd ever had in my life," says Ramsay. "I began to recognize that it just wasn't Nazi soldiers who were the oppressors, but local police officers as well. I had never known of the involvement of the local police in rounding up Jews."

Following a subsequent visit, Ramsay initiated a sensitivity training program, now mandatory for all new police recruits, which includes a guided tour of the museum with a docent and a series of lectures.

For more information about Holocaust Education Week, please contact the HEW Hotline at 416.631.5689 or visit the website at www.holocausteducationweek.com

Leo Goldhar named Vice Chair of JDC Committee

By REBECCA GLUCK SOBERMAN
UJA Federation

UJA Federation of Greater Toronto's ties to the Jewish community of Kishinev, the capital city of Moldova in the Former Soviet Union, have been strengthened with a new appointment by the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee (JDC). Toronto's Leo Goldhar now sits on the committee for Moldova and Belarus, making him one of three Canadian JDC board members.

Through the twinning of cities in North America and the Former Soviet Union by JDC - one of UJA Federation's overseas partners - UJA has been committed to assisting the community of Kishinev to care for the elderly and to help the community build facilities so that Jewish life can flourish.

Recently, a $500,000 UJA Federation gift from a Toronto family estate has enabled the building of a Jewish community centre in Kishinev that is currently under construction and, when completed, will house agencies and services for all ages including a Hillel chapter, a recreational facility, and a myriad of programs for the elderly.

The Kishinev JCC, currently under construction, is one of the projects Leo Goldhar (inset) will be overseeing as vice-chair of the Committee for Moldova and Belarus.

"This is a two-fold opportunity," said Goldhar, who is also a past UJA Federation campaign chair and currently serves as chair of the Vaughan City North steering committee – a key initiative of UJA Federation's Tomorrow Campaign. "My position with JDC will afford the Toronto community direct contact with the Jews of Kishinev, and it will enhance a dialogue between the two communities."

Goldhar's goal is to develop a committee at UJA Federation that will work to maintain a quality of life for Kishinev Jewry. With the establishment of the independent states of Moldova and Belarus in August 1991, after the fall of Communism, Jews from both states were determined to restore the Jewish life that had flourished there prior to World War II. However, they lacked the organizational and communal skills needed to give that life full expression. They were also severely hampered by the subsequent collapse of the economy. UJA Federation has played a central role in helping to restore the community, through the presence of JDC. Moldova's Jewish community now numbers roughly 30,000 while Belarus has approximately 75,000 Jews.

Since the collapse of Communist regimes, JDC has been helping Jewish communities rediscover their heritage and rebuild a vibrant Jewish communal life. For more than a decade, JDC has also been providing food, clothing and medicine to some 250,000 elderly and impoverished Holocaust survivors in the former Soviet Union. JDC's mission is to serve the needs of Jews throughout the world, particularly where their lives as Jews are threatened or they face severe difficulty.

Campaign reaches $30 million

UJA Federation Campaign 2005, an action plan for a safe Jewish future, recently surpassed the $30 million mark.

The campaign, launched at the end of August, received a major boost during the recent Super Week telethons - the first of Campaign 2005.

From September 19 to 23, more than 500 volunteers took to the telephones at the Lipa Green Building to contact an estimated 10,000 homes throughout the Greater Toronto Area. More than $2.5 million was raised during the week, with $1.5 million on Super Sunday, alone.

Campaign 2005 has surpassed the $30 million mark, thanks in large part, to the recent Super Week telethons.

The next set of Campaign telethons takes place from Sunday, October 17 to Wednesday October 20. New dollars from Campaign 2005, chaired by Robert Harlang and Chuck Winograd, will be invested in four essential areas:

- Community Security: UJA Federation has initiated a special community task force to review local security needs, especially at schools and community centres. New dollars will fund the implementation of security measures recommended by the task force.
- A Strong Jewish Voice: UJA Federation is supporting the Canadian Council for Israel and Jewish Advocacy (CIJA) and other partner organizations that stand up for Israel and against antisemitism.
- Building a Stronger Israel: Campaign 2005 will invest in several programs in Israel with special focus on young people, to help the country recover from years of terror attacks and a weak, but recovering economy.
- Empowering a New Jewish Generation: Campaign 2005 will invest in training programs for young adults to help them counter antisemitism, and initiatives such as birthright israel and March of the Living, to help them connect more closely with Jewish life.

To make a donation to the campaign, please call the UJA Federation Campaign Hotline at 416.631.5705, or visit www.jewishtoronto.com. To volunteer for the upcoming telethons, please contact Michelle Golfman at 416.631.5854.

JEWISH TORONTO IS PUBLISHED AS A COMMUNITY SERVICE BY UJA FEDERATION OF GREATER TORONTO.

Concert proceeds to support Poverty Relief Fund

By DANIEL HOROWITZ
UJA Federation

Proceeds from an upcoming cantorial concert at Adath Israel Congregation will go to UJA Federation's Jewish Poverty Relief Fund to assist Toronto's hungry and vulnerable who are among the city's 20,000 Jewish Torontonians living below the poverty line.

The Toronto Council of Hazzanim, representing cantors from all streams of Judaism, has teamed up with UJA Federation for The International Stars of the Cantorate, scheduled for Sunday, October 31 at 7:30 p.m. The concert will feature four internationally renowned cantors: New York's Ben Zion Miller, Chicago's Alberto Mizrachi, Ramat Gan's Israel Rand and Florida's Benjamin Warschawski.

"We decided that part of our mission should be to use our talents to help both our local Jewish community, as well as Israel," says Adath Israel's Cantor Eliezer Kirshblum, chairman, Toronto Cantorial Trust Fund. "We met with representatives of UJA Federation and we were absolutely astounded to hear of the 3,000 children who are living without. Nobody in our community should go hungry or homeless. We knew then that it was important to contribute to UJA's Relief Fund."

"This concert will not only provide people with a tremendous evening of entertainment and culture, but it will also make them feel good as their dollars go to help those less fortunate," says Samuel Cohen who is chairing the event with Alex Eisen.

Eisen, who has already raised close to $60,000 through ticket sales, is happy to be involved.

"When the cantors approached me to help, I told them 'how can I say no, I was once hungry myself,'" says Eisen referring to his days in a concentration camp.

Funds raised for the Jewish Poverty Relief Fund will be administered by Jewish Family and Child Service (JF&CS) - a beneficiary agency of UJA Federation – ensuring that all the money will directly benefit vulnerable Jewish families.

Proceeds from the upcoming cantorial concert at Adath Israel synagogue will assist Toronto's vulnerable Jews.

"We hope to use these funds for a number of initiatives, that include helping to send poor children to summer camp," says Teri Kaye, director of family and community service, JF&CS. "Also, depending on the amount of money raised, we hope to assist large Jewish families around holiday time, when things become so expensive that the poor can't afford to celebrate the Jewish holidays the way the rest of us can."

"As it is in our Jewish traditions and values, we must always take care of one another," says Kirshblum. "This is our mission by making the Jewish Poverty Relief Fund known throughout the community."

For more information, or for tickets, call Adath Israel at 416.635.5340.

From generation to generation

Holocaust conference explores family issues

By WENDY LAMPERT

Sharing stories is an important part of family life. It's how parents pass down the lessons of their lives and build a legacy to share with generations to come. And while it may be a painful and difficult process, no one knows better than Holocaust survivors and their families how important sharing that legacy can be.

That's why Eva Dojc and Margi Levitt, both the children of Holocaust survivors, are co-chairing Survivor Families: From Generation to Generation, a conference for adult children of Holocaust survivors and their partners on October 31 at the Baycrest Wagman Centre.

Back row: Conference co-chairs Margi Levitt (l) and Eva Dojc (r) with Canadian Jewish Congress Ontario Region executive director Bernie Farber (c), one of this year's speakers. Seated in front: New York playright Lisa Dobi (l) and Israeli poet Martin Hershkovitz (r), two of last year's speakers.

Sponsored by UJA Federation of Greater Toronto, Canadian Jewish Congress Ontario Region and the Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care, the full-day conference will allow children of Holocaust survivors to explore family issues. Workshops and lectures are designed to help them understand the links between their families' past and the future, and learn how to teach their children about the painful history in a meaningful way.

"My parents are both gone now, and I'm so grateful for the memories and the legacy they left me," said Levitt. "It's so important to carry that into the future," she added.

Participating in this special conference "will help people heal and learn – about themselves, and about their parents," added Dojc. "My hope is that participants will think about their special responsibility and personal knowledge, and hopefully channel their feelings into action," she said.

"Nobody knows better than survivors where racism and intolerance can lead," says Paula David, coordinator of the Holocaust Resource Project at Baycrest, who sits on the conference planning committee. "When survivors are gone, a huge piece of the family history will go with them. This conference is for their families, who are starting to understand the moral imperative of this legacy. Once the original survivors are gone, no one is closer to the experience than their families."

For Levitt, learning and sharing is the Holocaust legacy her parents gave her. "It's our responsibility to learn from our parents' experiences and educate others to make the lessons relevant in today's society."

The conference includes three keynote speakers: Lev Raphael, an American second-generation author, Susan Jackson, director of UJA Federation Engagement and Outreach, and Jeanette Friedman, an American activist known for her effort in identifying and supporting the needs of Holocaust survivors and their families.

Social workers undeterred by hurricanes

By REBECCA GLUCK SOBERMAN
UJA Federation

The county of Palm Beach, Florida has been particularly affected by the onslaught of four hurricanes in a period of six weeks, the latest assault by hurricane Jeanne. Within three weeks, two storms made landfall within a two-mile radius. Because of the unrelenting pounding, the Alpert Jewish Family and Child Service (JF&CS) of Palm Beach County – a beneficiary agency of the West Palm Beach Jewish Federation – has had little time to focus on their losses.

"Our offices have been closed and, despite great personal losses to our own service providers as well as revenue losses to our agency, we have been operating in full force, working from cell phones and by any other means to reach clients," says Neil Newstein, executive director of JF&CS for Palm Beach County.

Even with the physical closure of agency headquarters due to power outages and damages, employees have been working tirelessly to assure the well being of their clients. Particular attention has been given to the elderly and the disabled who require ongoing attention.

"Despite fallen cypress trees blocking a case manager's driveway, she visited an 98-year old Holocaust survivor in her West Palm Beach nursing home when she could not reach her by phone," said Sharon Geltner, public relations director for JF&CS of Palm Beach County in an interview. Stories of selfless commitment by staff have been commonplace.

"Another case manager checked in on 40 of his incapacitated clients, who are wards of the courts and unable to manage their own affairs," continued Geltner. "He was able to contact all his vulnerable clients, including stopping by a nursing home that had no working phones, to personally ascertain that his client was in good health."

Palm Beach seniors check out the weather forecast at a local makeshift shelter. (Photo by AP/Worldwide)

An isolated senior told Geltner it was a very scary time for for her. "The senior realized how alone she could have been as she went through this but having us to look out for her when she needed us most; it is something she will never forget," Geltner shared.

Estimated total hurricane-related damages to Florida runs in the billions of dollars but have not yet been fully ascertained. The havoc caused by hurricanes Charley, Frances, Ivan and Jeanne has prompted the largest relief effort ever undertaken by the United States' Federal Emergency Management Agency. Florida is the first state to get pounded by four hurricanes in one season since 1886, when Texas was struck.

Any questions concerning information or photos that appear on these pages should be directed to jewishtorontonews@ujafed.org

JEWISH TORONTO IS PUBLISHED AS A COMMUNITY SERVICE BY UJA FEDERATION OF GREATER TORONTO.

CanWest tells it like it is

According to Reports

By PAUL MICHAELS

The Canadian media gave a great deal of attention last month to CanWest's decision to change the term "militant" to "terrorist" in Reuters stories that describe attacks involving the deliberate targeting of civilians.

It is clear that this controversy is not just about the use of a word but about broader journalistic policy and even an outlook on the world.

National Post foreign editor Kelly McParland, the man responsible for the editorial change, explained ("Call them the terrorists they are," National Post, Sept. 25) that the CBC made a story out of the Post's having added the term "terrorist group" to a Reuters report about the Al Aqsa Martyrs Brigades. McParland defended the change by noting that "(t)he original story didn't come close to conveying to readers what [the group] is really all about." He continued, "It's hard to imagine how it could be controversial to identify members of this organization [which typically targets Israeli civilians] as terrorists, but apparently at the CBC this is the case."

As it turned out, this was much more of a concern for the CBC than for Reuters.

Some news organizations will perform all manner of mental gymnastics to rationalize their avoidance of plain language in this case. CBC's news chief Tony Burman insists the corporation has a policy of avoiding the word unless it's attributed to a source. There is, however, no official written policy insisting on that. It is an ad hoc convention at best, and one that has been violated on many occasions. CBC reporters have themselves used the T-word to describe attacks on civilians in New York, Bali, Madrid, Beslan and Kenya – virtually anywhere except in Israel.

David Bazay, the CBC's ombudsman, has himself underscored the confusion and inconsistency in the corporation's "policy" by explaining that CBC has no ban on use of the word "terrorist." Indeed, CBC's own guidebook, Journalistic Standards and Practices, uses the word to explain how their journalists should cover events involving terrorism and terrorists.

Time to call a spade a spade

In a letter published in the Globe and Mail (Sept. 23) in response to an opinion piece by Mazen Chouaib ("CanWest: Don't vilify Muslims" Sept. 22), CanWest editor-in-chief Scott Anderson wrote: "[O]n the charge that CanWest uses 'terrorist' in some stories and editorials, we plead guilty. Those who blow up family pizza parlours in Jerusalem or commuter trains in Madrid are terrorists. The people who shot their school hostages in Russia were terrorists. Terrorism is a technical term to describe the deliberate, politically motivated killing of civilians. It is alternatives such as 'gunmen' or 'activist' that betray a bias, insofar as they sanitize what groups such as Al Qaeda are really about."

Several days earlier, in his "Letter from the Editor" column, Globe and Mail editor Ed Greenspon said much the same thing in a very thoughtful reflection on the use of the term "terrorist." Greenspon drew attention to his paper's own style guide, which defines the word as follows: "Use this term to describe groups or individuals who use violence against the innocent public, or threat of it, to achieve political ends." Having drawn certain distinctions to avoid the misuse or overuse of the term in keeping with the paper's full definition, Greenspon concluded that, "In my view, to be terrified of the word terrorist is to give in to the terrorist."

The Reuters admission (most recently espoused by its global managing editor David Schlesinger) that the news agency avoids the T-word out of concern for the safety of its reporters, vindicates Greenspon's point about the effects of being "terrified" about using this word when it so obviously applies.

Also referring to this controversy ("Too much politeness, too little candour," National Post, Sept. 25), media and cultural critic Robert Fulford reached the bottom line: Someone (in this case Chouaib) who insists on avoiding calling a terrorist a terrorist "opposes the doctrine of plain language that all good editors try to teach writers."

Some journalists, who insist that they particularly avoid the T-word in the Israeli context because they want to be "neutral," have no difficulty calling Israel's targeted killing of wanted Palestinian terrorists "assassinations" (often improperly called "targeted assassinations"). Yet it's lost on them that if they have no problem with a term such as "assassination," they should have no problem with the word "terrorist."

The time has clearly come – as both the Globe and Mail and National Post agree – to call a spade a spade.

Paul Michaels is communications director for the Canada-Israel Committee.

Generation to Generation

A one-day conference for Adult Children of Holocaust Survivors

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31, 8:30 AM– 3:30 PM

Baycrest Wagman Centre , 55 Ameer Avenue, Toronto

The Work Continues ....

Last year we met to discuss aspects of our Legacy, to examine the impact of the Holocaust on our families, and to consider our shared issues, thoughts and questions. Through presentations and workshops, we will continue the dialogue and further clarify the questions and the challenges.

This year, we welcome back those participants who wish to continue the process and warmly invite those of you who will attend for the first time.

Guest Speakers:

JEANETTE FRIEDMAN, author and editor of survivor memoirs for the U.S. Holocaust Museum

LEV RAPHAEL, prize-winning author and one of America's earliest 2G writers

Other Speakers:

Paula David, Coordinator, Holocaust Resource Project, Baycrest Centre
Bernie Farber, Executive Director, CJC Ontario Region
Susan Jackson, Director, Community Planning, Outreach and Engagement, UJA Federation
Illyse Lustig, Resource Consultant, York Region District School Board
Lorraine Sandler, Chair, Holocaust Education, The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, UJA Federation

$36 per person, includes lunch and materials (Kashruth observed)

Pre-registration required by October 22
For more information and to print a registration form, visit www.baycrest.org (go to all events) or call Brenda @ 416-785-2500 ext. 2853

Sponsored by

Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care — UJA Federation, Together We're Stronger — Canadian Jewish Congress Ontario Region

UJA Federation 24th Annual Holocaust Education Week
and
The Koffler School of Music

United Way of Greater Toronto

CHILDREN OF A VANISHED WORLD

Music arrangement and direction by SABATINO VACCA
Produced and directed by JUDY KOPELOW
In collaboration with MARA VISHNIAC KOHN

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 24, 2004 at 8PM

Leah Posluns Theatre at the Bathurst Jewish Community Centre

TICKETS:
(416) 636-1680 x228
General Admission $25.00
Students and Seniors $18.00

INFORMATION:
416-787-1060
j.kopelow@sympatico.ca

From 1935-1938, ROMAN VISHNIAC photographed the shtetlekh of Poland, Romania, Hungary and Russia. With his daughter Mara Vishniac Kohn, director JUDY KOPELOW uses his photographs for a special remembrance of the lives of children who vanished in the Holocaust. Yiddish folk songs accompanied by guitar, cello, violin, clarinet and piano and dramatic narration will be performed.

With special permission from the International Center of Photography

Volunteer has devoted more than 60 years to Stashover

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

Albert (Al) Wise, 90, has devoted most of his life to the landsleit of Stashov, the town in Poland where his family lived and where he was born in 1914.

His father, Benjamin Weisberg, a tailor, came to Canada in 1920, and two years later, he brought his wife, Al, and Al's brother and sister.

Like many new Canadians, Wise's father joined the Stashover landsmanshaft, where he served as president from 1932 to '39.

Wise recalls that as a child, he was taken to the house on Dundas Street that served as Stashover's synagogue and meeting place, where he later had his bar mitzvah.

"When I was 18, I had to become a member and it cost $2 a year," he says.

Al Wise, 90, joined Stashover (now Anshei Stashover-Slipia) when the membership fee was $2 a year.

When his father was dying, he asked his son to take care of the shul. And throughout his life, Wise has, with loyalty and love, dedicated a major part of his life to the survival of the Stashover organization.

In 1967, the Dundas Street location was sold and a new building was erected on Sultana Avenue, near Bathurst Street, south of Wilson Avenue, under the leadership of Morris Hauer, a builder. His son, Saul Hauer, is currently the organization's president.

Wise now lives in a seniors' residence and surrounds himself with photographs of his late wife, Ann, and his nieces and nephews. During an interview, he spoke of his early years – his house without a toilet, Friday night visits to the Harrison Steam Baths near Queen and McCaul streets, and as a young man, becoming involved with Stashover.

The nonagenerian reminisced about his sports activities, which included playing baseball for the Lizzies in 1929 and 1930, when the team won the city championship. Wise takes pride in the fact that he was one of the first people, in 1941, to organize a mixed bowling league, which was then almost unheard of –The Montrose Bowling League.

"I also played handball, basketball and hockey. My first pair of ice tubes [skates], which were new, cost me 50 cents from a peddler, but they were size 12 and I wore size 6. I had to stuff the toes for years and I only got to size 10. Then I passed them on to my brother."

Wise attended Hester Howe Public School, now the location of the Hospital for Sick Children. He then went to Ryerson and Orde public schools.

"When I finished public school, I had to get a special permit from the Board of Education to work because we needed the money," he says. "They gave me the permit, but I had to go to school two nights a week."

Wise worked as a cutter in a dress factory, and in 1939, when there was a general strike, he followed the company to Montreal. He returned to Toronto in 1941 and founded a dress manufacturer, Klever Klad Dress Co. He left the company in 1943 to open, with his father, a ready-to-wear store on Yonge Street south of Bloor. The property was expropriated in 1955 for the subway.

"Ann [Layefsky] came to work for us in the store in 1941 and the following year we were married." Ann died 11 years ago. They never had children, he says, but their nieces and nephews are close to him, and he considers them his children.

Gloria Roden, Wise's niece, says, "Although he never had children, Uncle Al was always there for everyone. When you said you needed something, he was always there first."

In 1970, Stashover amalgamated with the Slipia organization, and the congregation became known as Anshei Stashover-Slipia. Slipia was a town near Stashov. Wise says he continues to be active in the shul.

Jack Lipinsky, an educator who was hired as Stashover-Slipia's ba'al koreh 23 years ago, and is the ba'al tfillah and ba'al musaf on the Yamim Nora'im, said that "it is unparalleled, to my knowledge, that Al Wise has volunteered for a shul for some 60 or 70 years."

He adds that despite being a busy and successful businessman, Wise always made time for his shul. To this day, he takes care of the books, supervises repairs, is in the office to update the records and davens loudly, effectively and passionately.

"Despite his bluster, he is very modest about his role in the shul. As a historian, I honestly don't know anyone else who has given six decades plus of their lives to a single institution with such singular loyalty, tenacity and colourful opinionatedness like Al," Lipinsky says.

"He is truly unique – one of a kind – an institution in himself."

Wise laments that the Stashover-Slipia building is now open only for Saturday morning services, on Sunday morning and for holidays.

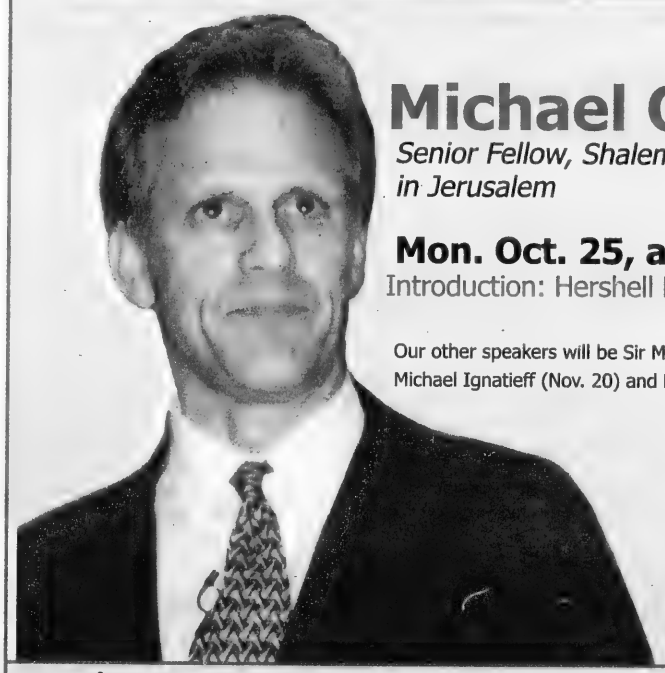
"Although I have kept my promise to my father to keep the Stashover organization operating, I am fearful that the Stashover-Slipia and other shtetl-based groups will not survive."

A conversation with Al Wise is like a walk down memory lane in the city of Toronto.

The Gerald Schwartz/Heather Reisman
Fall 2004 Lecture Series at Holy Blossom Temple

Terror and the Defence of the West

Can the West maintain itself as a liberal and democratic society in the face of a new kind of war, one which may require changes to Western society? What is the place of Israel and the Jews in this war against terrorism — separate from the West or part of the defence of the West? What are the roles of Canada and America in this war on terror? How do we understand the new onslaught of Radical Islamic terrorism from a historical perspective? Join us for this first of four lectures that will reflect on the new age of terrorism and the dilemmas posed for the liberal democratic West.



Michael Oren
Senior Fellow, Shalem Center in Jerusalem

Mon. Oct. 25, at 8 p.m.
Introduction: Hershell Ezrin

Our other speakers will be Sir Martin Gilbert (Nov. 2), Michael Ignatieff (Nov. 20) and Paul Berman (Nov. 29).

HOLY BLOSSOM TEMPLE
קיק פרחי קדש

1950 Bathurst Street, Toronto, ON M5P 3K9
phone: (416) 789-3291 fax: (416) 789-9697
e-mail: templemail@holyblossom.org
www.holyblossom.org

For a complete list of our offerings — more than 70 classes and lectures, for all ages and all levels, on a variety of topics — please call the Temple at (416) 789-3291, ext. 527, to request our 2004/2005 Gerald Schwartz/Heather Reisman Centre for Jewish Learning Calendar of Events, or download a copy online at www.holyblossom.org from Publications – Schwartz/Reisman Centre.

Doors open at 7 p.m. for Holy Blossom Temple members and Friends of Holy Blossom Temple with Advance Seating Cards, and at 7.30 p.m. for our friends in the greater community. Admission Free

Sheila Cohen, MD, FRCS (C) ז"ל

A wonderful wife, daughter, sister and aunt.
An extraordinarily caring physician and surgeon

In loving memory of Sheila, who died ten years ago, on 3 Cheshv . ר 5755, but whose spirit and compassion and generosity and kindness and great sense of fun, light our lives to this day.

As long as we live, so, too will she live;
for she is now a part of us, as we remember her.

Bob, Ellen, Norton, Vicky and Molly

The Eastern Canadian Region of United Synagogue Youth seeks an Outreach/Administration Intern

For immediate part-time employment (~10 hours/week) in Toronto

Responsibilities will include:

- Coordinating outreach programs for pre-teens and teens affiliated with the Conservative movement including creative school-based programming.
- Assisting with the administration of the regional youth program, including database support, marketing and public relations.
- Working with the various arms of the organization, including the USY leadership, the Kadima staff and synagogue lay and professional leadership.

University-age students with a background in camp and/or Youth Movements are welcome applicants. Previous experience in USY is not necessary. A background in public school is an asset. To apply, fax 416-667-1881 or e-mail info@ecrusy.org by Thursday, October 21, 2004.

Toronto Council of Hazzanim
& UJA Federation

To Assist the Jewish Hungry & Homeless Present

International Stars of the Cantorate

Ben Zion Miller
New York City, N.Y.

Alberto Mizrachi
Chicago, Ill.

Israel Rand
Ramat Gan, Israel

Benjamin Warschawski
Boca Raton, Fla.

Premier Cantorial Accompanist
Cantor Daniel Gildar, Pianist
Philadelphia, Penn.
and
"Instrumental Trio"

Sunday Evening October 31st, 2004

7:30 p.m. at Adath Israel Synagogue
Main Sanctuary

Concert Co-Chairmen: Alex Eisen and Samuel H. Cohen

TICKETS:
CENTER SECTION - RESERVED # SEATS, RECEPTION & LISTING IN PROGRAM

PATRONS:	$1000.00 & above	- 4 tickets (Full receipt)
BENEFACTORS:	$ 500.00	- 2 tickets (Full receipt)
SPONSORS:	$ 250.00	- 2 tickets ($200.00 receipt)
DONORS:	$ 120.00	- 2 tickets ($ 70.00 receipt)
GENERAL ADMISSION:	$25.00 per ticket - Side section and balcony

Cheques/Visa Tel: 416.635.5340 fax: 416.635.1629 e-mail: cantor@adathisrael.com

Cheques made payable to TORONTO CANTORIAL TRUST FUND
37 Southbourne Ave., Toronto, Ontario, M3H 1A4

Proceeds: UJA Federation Jewish Poverty Relief Fund to assist the hungry & homeless who are among the 20,000 Jewish Torontonians living below the poverty line. A portion of the proceeds will be allocated for Cantorial Scholarships.

Greater Toronto Area

Author Alvin Abram, left, is seen with Ben Prossin, executive director of Jewish National Fund, right, with some of the survivors who received JNF certificates.

Author donates royalties to JNF

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

When Alvin Abram self-published The Light After Dark in 1997 – six stories about Holocaust survivors – he vowed to donate the profits to Jewish organizations.

In 1998, Canadian publisher Key Porter Books purchased the rights to the book. The first edition sold out and it was reprinted twice.

Abram fulfilled the promise he made and gave the $20,000 in royalties earned by The Light After Dark to five charities.

Recently, he and his wife Marilyn held a reception at their home for the survivors he interviewed for the book – Zalman (Eugene) Katz, Michael Kutz, Moishe Perlmutter, Dubi Arie, Michael Rosenberg and Fagie Libman.

Each one was presented with a certificate by Ben Prossin, executive director of the Jewish National Fund (JNF), as a memento of the $15,000 donated to the JNF in their names.

The presentation "was a joyous occasion, with tears, reminiscing of the past, and the satisfaction that from something bad, something good has happened, and the knowledge that each of the survivors has a piece of Israel that is theirs," Abram said.

The remaining $5,000 of the royalties from The Light After Dark went to several organizations, including Survivors of Shoah, the March of the Living, the National Council of Jewish Women, Toronto section, and the B'nai Brith Youth Organization.

The Light After Dark is out of print, but Abram says the copies he has in his possession will be given to schools, both Jewish and non-Jewish, "in the hope that the stories will remind the children that war is pain and not glory."

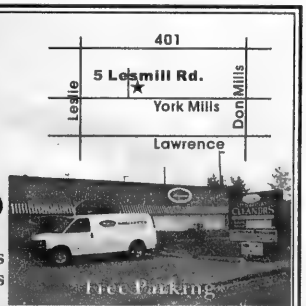
Abram says he wrote his first story about a Holocaust survivor after he was asked by the children of a friend to write their mother's story. That led to requests for more stories, and by 1997, Abram had completed 12. He selected six of the stores for The Light After Dark.

"I realized that the stories I had written were stories that focused on the person and not the event, stories of chance and circumstance," he says.

Abram has also written Why, Zaida?, a children's book; The Unlikely Victims, six stories about a homicide cop in Toronto; and Stories I Wrote, a collection of 18 short pieces. He recently published a Holocaust murder mystery, An Eye for An Eye, which takes place in Lodz, Poland, from 1921 to '46.

Abram's writing has been published in numerous magazines and newspapers in Canada and the United States and he has been a guest on radio and television. He has made more than 100 speeches and serves on many boards of charitable organizations.

Bayview
CUSTOM CARE CLEANERS
416-444-9571 416-844-8111



Why Try Bayview Cleaners?

- Friendly Family Operations
- All Work Done on the Premises
- Environment Friendly Processes
- Free Pickup & Delivery
- Satisfaction Guarantee(It's ready, It's right or It's FREE.)
- Free Cleaning of your Tallis, All Year Round
- Free Trial Cleaning up to $10 by bringing this Ad. in

Hadassah-WIZO Bazaar celebrates its 80th anniversary

Continued from page 7

"We get busloads of shoppers every year. One shopper has told me that so many people from her department at work have skipped out to attend the bazaar that it has since closed for the day.

"People line up at 5 a.m. There used to be line-ups going around the block," she says.

Debbie Krofchick, who joined Aliyah chapter three years ago, worked at last year's bazaar for the first time. "I'll never forget seeing the throngs of people piling in. Each one knew exactly where they needed to go. We stood there with our mouths open."

This year's bazaar chair, Fran Luborsky, says customers are discriminating. "They know what they're looking for, and they throw aside anything [that does not meet their standards]."

Gertrude Manishevitz, a member of Ajalon chapter for about 35 years, used to make blintzes – one year she made 800 – to sell at the bazaar.

"Food is an important part of the day. We feed them so they'll have energy to shop more," she says with a laugh.

Bazaar publicity co-chair Shayla Gunter-Goldstein has been a member of Atid chapter for nine years. Her chapter, which now has two booths, spent a day pricing and packing their merchandise. "It's a lot of work, but it's worthwhile. Last year, we had a turnstile at our booth, and the line-up snaked around."

At 8 p.m., she says, they see people buckling under the weight of their parcels.

Manishevitz says that in the years before they had a parcel check, someone sold her jacket. "Everything went, including that."

Above all else, the women agree, it is the camaraderie that keeps them coming back. "It's a day when 3,000 members come out for a common purpose and have a good time at the same time," says Zelikovitz.

Wilson adds that they look forward to seeing people from year to year. "We make friends in neighbouring booths, and we look for them when we arrive. The basis of the bazaar is friends, fun and charity."

Money raised at the bazaar will be directed to three hospitals: the trauma units at Hadassah Medical Centre in Israel and at Sunnybrook and Women's College Health Sciences Centre in Toronto, and the Comprehensive Breast Care Institute at the Assaf Harofeh Hospital in Israel.

This year's bazaar runs from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the National Trade Centre, Exhibition Place. Admission is $4 – the original price was 25 cents – and features a Fabulous Finds Auction, a fashion auction, 80-cent specials to celebrate the 80th anniversary, sports memorabilia, celebrity cooking demonstration and door crasher loot bags.

$10,000 INVESTED IN THE STRATEGY FOCUS LIST AT INCEPTION WOULD BE WORTH OVER $239,000 TODAY!*

Since 1984, the RBC Investments Strategy Focus List of top-ranked Canadian companies has returned 17.8% annually—versus just 9.4% for the benchmark TSE 300 Index. It's a Strategy that works — through up markets and down markets.

The Strategy Focus List is created by our top strategists and analysts and updated quarterly. In order to keep your investment portfolio aligned with the top-ranked Canadian companies selected by our Strategy Team, it will be reviewed quarterly.

Call to find out how you can benefit from our Strategy.

David Gluckstein, CFP,
Investment Advisor
(905) 764-5248
david.gluckstein@rbc.com

RBC Dominion Securities Inc.,
260 East Beaver Creek Road, #301,
Richmond Hill, Ontario, L4B 3M

RBC Investments
Dominion Securities

*Hypothetical return net of fees Returns are not guaranteed and past performances may not be repeated

RBC Dominion Securities Inc. is a member company under RBC Investments. RBC Dominion Securities Inc. and Royal Bank of Canada are separate corporate entities which are affiliated. Investment Advisors are employees of RBC Dominion Securities Inc. Member CIPF. ®Registered trademark of Royal Bank of Canada. Used under licence. ™Trademark of Royal Bank of Canada. Used under licence. ©Copyright 2004 All rights reserved.

Begin with beautiful lingerie
You'll find it at TRYST
the new lingerie store on the Eglinton Way

Expert bra fitters & excellent service
Over 100 bra sizes
Quality merchandise
Lingerie, Sleepwear
Yogawear, Sports bras
Maternity lingerie
A child-friendly store
A reading area for friends

465 Eglinton Ave West
416.484.6678

tryst
A romantic interlude

. . . . . NEW ARRIVALS DAILY . . . . .

FAMOUS ITALIAN DESIGNER LABEL BLOW OUT

FIRST TIME EVER

DIESEL Marlboro Classics GAS

FIRST QUALITY MEN'S FALL & WINTER MERCHANDISE

UP TO 90% OFF EVERYTHING

THURSDAY OCT. 14TH TO SUNDAY OCT. 31ST ONLY!

HELD OVER!

MONDAY-FRIDAY .....11 AM - 9PM
SATURDAY .....10AM - 6PM
SUNDAY .....12 NOON - 5PM

2 GREAT LOCATIONS

508 BLOOR ST.
EAST OF BATHURST
416-532-8755

617 B COLLEGE ST (UPSTAIRS)
WEST OF CLINTON
(NEXT TO Gigolo's)
416-536-9669

EVERYTHING MUST GO!

PRESENTED BY
brooker's
&
TRENDWEAR

1 HOUR FREE PARKING MINIMUM $125 PURCHASE

ALL MAJOR CREDIT CARDS ACCEPTED

Bring in this ad and receive 10% off at Gigolo's

SWEATERS . . . OUTERWEAR . . . JACKETS . . . SHOES . . . JEANS . . . PANTS . . . TSHIRTS . . . ACCESSORIES . . .

The Beth Sholom Music Series

Chazzan Naftali Herstik

Chief Cantor of the Jerusalem Great Synagogue

Accompanied by Stephen Glass

Music Director of Congregation Shaar Hashomayim, Montreal

Wednesday, November 10, 2004 at 8pm

The Elmer Iseler Singers
Celebrating Shabbat Shira

Golden harmonies and flawless technique...'glorious choral music'

January 22, 2005

'Love and the Seasons'
A magical evening of song, piano and poetry

David Dunbar, voice
Gloria Saarinen, piano

March 9, 2005

Tickets $18 each

Subscription Series Tickets:
Subscriber $54 – 1 ticket to each concert
*Friend $180 – 2 tickets to each concert
*Patron $250 – 2 tickets to each concert
*Benefactor $360 – 4 tickets to each concert
partial tax receipt will be issued*
Each concert is followed by a dessert reception for all ticket holders

Tickets -- 416-783-6103
Beth Sholom Synagogue, 1445 Eglinton Ave. W.
Across from Eglinton West Subway

Rosh Hashanah and Continuity...

This time of year in the Jewish calendar is all about beginnings and recommitments. Thankfully, once again, we are given the opportunity to begin anew and to recommit to the people, the values and the way of life that are most precious to us. If staying connected to the Jewish community in Canada and abroad is part of that new beginning for you , there is no better vehicle for doing so than The Canadian Jewish News.

As a way of helping individuals launch their new beginnings, The CJN is introducing a special continuity subscription offer in time for Rosh Hashanah. We have decided to offer our readers a special, one-time opportunity to provide their children or their grandchildren with their own subscription to The CJN.

A gift subscription for your child or grandchild, who does not already subscribe to The CJN, will cost $19.95 (taxes included) for one full year to anywhere in Canada.

Could there be a better gift at Rosh Hashanah for your child or grandchild than the opportunity to feel part of the Jewish community?

The Canadian Jewish news
1500 DON MILLS ROAD, STE. 205
NORTH YORK, ONTARIO M3B 3K4
TELEPHONE: 416-391-1836

SPECIAL OFFER GIFT SUBSCRIPTION
$19.95
Offer valid until Oct. 31/04

Gift from:

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
Province _____ Postal Code _____

Please send The Canadian Jewish News to:

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
Province _____ Postal Code _____

FUTURE RENEWAL NOTICES TO DONOR ❑ RECIPIENT ❑

CJN SUBSCRIPTION RATES

$19.95* 1 YR. CANADA ❑
* G.S.T IS INCLUDED
G.S.T. #R105201149

$100.00 U.S. 1YR. U.S. A. ❑
$110.00 U.S. 1YR. FOREIGN ❑

PLEASE RETURN WITH YOUR PAYMENT.

AMOUNT ENCLOSED$ _____
CHEQUE ENCLOSED ❑ OR VISA ❑ OR MASTERCARD ❑ OR AMEX ❑
NUMBER _____
EXPIRY DATE _____
SIGNATURE _____

On Campus

Seen, from left, are Don Barkley, CEO of International Scholarship Foundation (ISF) and USC Education Savings Plans Inc.; ISF scholarship winner Sharonna Greenberg; Poly Edry, agency director; Arnold Edinborough, founding chair of ISF.

Toronto student receives scholarship for grad studies

Sharonna Greenberg, 24, a recent University of Toronto graduate, is a recipient this year of the Arnold Edinborough Award, earning her $20,000 towards her post-graduate studies.

Greenberg graduated from the University of Toronto with a double major in chemistry and mathematics. She will be studying for a master's degree in chemistry at the University of Windsor, with an option to transfer to a PhD program next year.

She would like to start a Windsor chapter of Let's Talk Science, a student outreach group that works to get elementary and high school students excited about science.

"This award has opened up a lot of doors for me," Greenberg says. "It will help alleviate any financial strains for me and allow me to focus on my studies."

Greenberg was one of nine winners from across Canada who shared a total of $75,000 in scholarships awarded by the International Scholarship Foundation (ISF), a not-for-profit organization that is the parent company of Registered Education Savings Plan (RESP) provider USC Education Savings Plans Inc. (USCI).

'Award has opened up a lot of doors for me'

The award is named after the ISF founding chair.

The nine students were selected from more than 62 applications this year. To be eligible for the scholarships, students must meet strict criteria including excellent academics, extracurricular involvement, significant contributions to their university, and they must have funded their undergraduate degrees with a USCI RESP. Greenberg was enrolled in her plan as an infant.

"These students not only have an enormous capacity academically, but they are also socially aware and have a great energy to be involved," Arnold Edinborough says.

USCI publishes an annual Guide to University Costs in Canada, a comprehensive look at tuition costs and expenses in over 50 universities across the country. The guide reports that for a child born today, a four-year undergraduate program (not including residence), could cost as much as $70,000.

Only paid Mazel tov announcements can be guaranteed to appear in a specific issue, when received by deadline, 10 days prior to publication date. All other items will appear on a first come, first served basis as space allows.

Family Moments

only from The Canadian Jewish news

Mazel Tov to

SEND US YOUR PHOTOS!!

Label the back of all photos and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for return. Send all your photos to:

The CJN, Family Moments, 1500 Don Mills Rd., #205 North York, ON. M3B 3K4 or email them to:
cblackman@cjnews.com

Mazel tov to Lynn & Marvin Katz and to Danielle, Dianna, Jessica, Nathan, Rozzie, Stephanie, and Amanda & Cameron on your first anniversary as a great and loving family.

MAX & MARY HAIN
Dear Mom & Dad
Wishing you health and happiness on your 60th Wedding Anniversary.
With Love,
Lena, Marty, Paula, Henry, Bernie, Judy, Gary and all your grandchildren.
Mazel Tov

Nancy & Steve Favor of Montreal and Gail & Len Diamond announce the upcoming marriage of Stacey & Brad. Grandparents, Sylvia Favor, Alice Berger, Goldie & Sam Rubin.

To our darling daughter Rebekah, a very happy sixth birthday. Keep on smiling that beautiful smile.

Congratulations to Marilyn Bromberg, who graduated with an honours bachelor of business administration from the Schulich School of Business at York University, and for winning the Initiative award.

Happy first birthday to Lauren Schatzky, daughter of Evie Cowitz & Tommy Schatzky, sister of Tyler, and granddaughter of Debbie & Ron Cowitz and Linda Schatzky.

Alex Isabelle arrived early but safely on May 14. Parents, Ron & Fredell Schwartz. Grandparents, Barbara & Jerry Mortfield and Aliza & Meir Schwartz.

DESIGN AND MANUFACTURE OF CUSTOM FURNITURE: WALL UNITS • DINING ROOMS • BEDROOMS • ENTERTAINMENT CENTRES

• KITCHENS & VANITIES •

FABULOUS NEW CUSTOM DESIGNS FROM

REGENCY INTERIORS 2000 INC.

MANUFACTURERS OF CUSTOM FURNITURE FOR HOME OR OFFICES SINCE 1970

Let us create a masterpiece for you!

38 MARTIN ROSS AVE.

WEEKDAYS 9 - 5 • WEEKENDS BY APPOINTMENT ONLY. • 416-661-9100

• RESIDENTIAL/COMMERCIAL •

COFFEE TABLES • SIDE TABLES • FIREPLACES • FURNITURE REFINISHING • WALL UNITS • DINING ROOMS • BEDROOMS

JNF
Say it with Trees
"In Loving Memory"
JEWISH NATIONAL FUND
416-638-7200

What's New

By REBECCA NADLER

YAD VASHEM
GALA DINNER
NOV 14, 2004

Guest Speaker:
MOSHE SAFDIE
Architect of the New Museum
416-785-1333

What's New Deadlines: Monday, Oct. 18, is the deadline for the Oct. 28 issue and Monday, Oct. 25, is the deadline for the Nov. 4 issue. Phone 416-391-1836, fax 416-391-0829 or e-mail rnadler@cjnews.com.

Thursday, Oct. 14

A CALL TO ACTION

Ve'ahavta, The Canadian Jewish Humanitarian and Relief Committee hosts "AIDS in Africa: A Multi-Faith Discussion" with Rev. Bill Peacock, Larry Gillman, Jennifer Reid, Brother Muhammad Saleem Shaikh and Sarah Zelcer. 187 Brunswick Ave., 7-9 p.m., 416-964-7698, ext. 16. Free.

MARTIN GILBERT LECTURE

Sir Martin Gilbert speaks on the topic of "Churchill and the Little Known Jewish Contribution to World War II," at Shaar Shalom Synagogue., 7:30 p.m., $15. For tickets, call 905-889-4975.

STUDY ECCLESIASTES

Beth Shalom Synagogue presents a three-lecture series on Ecclesiastes with Rabbi Aaron Flanzraich, Thursdays. Continues Oct. 21 and Nov. 4 at 7:30 p.m. 416-783-6103.

Saturday, Oct. 16

B'nai Shalom Congregation of Halton-Peel holds its first monthly Shabbat service, 10 a.m. Services will be held on the third Saturday of each month. Call Judi at 905-469-4344.

Sunday, Oct. 17

W.O.W. EVENT

Join a social group for widowed people 50-70 for a guided tour of McMichael Gallery. For reservations, call Norm, 905-770-0478, or Marilyn, 416-226-6622.

GENERAL WINGATE MTG

The General Wingate Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion meets at 9:15 a.m., 788 Marlee Ave. 416-782-5024.

ARYEH BARAF MEETNG

The Aryeh Baraf Chesed Network for Jewish Singles meets at 10 a.m. at Adath Israel Synagogue. 416-221-3782.

BOOK CLUB

The Winchevsky Centre Book Club discusses Mme. Proust and the Kosher Kitchen by Kate Taylor. 585 Cranbrooke Ave. 10:30 a.m. Free. 416-789-5502.

CHAI TEA & MOVIE

The Toronto Jewish Film Festival series begins with a screening of Gloomy Sunday, the true story of the Hungarian suicide song, at the Sheppard Grande. Tea 4 p.m. Movie 5 p.m. For tickets, call 416-324-9121.

ROSH CHODESH GROUP

The Beach Synagogue's Rosh Chodesh Group meets at 7 p.m. for videos and discussion on all aspects of Jewish life. 109 Kenilworth Ave. 416-763-2799.

SINGLES DANCE

Shaar Shalom Singles and Intersynagogue Singles (35+) host their Autumn Dance "Introducing Our New Dance Card for Prizes Evening," with the D.J. Dave Jones. 2 Simonston Blvd. 7:30 p.m. $15. For information, call David at 416-224-9494.

HOMELESS JEWS

Shaarei Shomayim Entertainment and Cultural Committee presents Darryl Borden, Ve'ahavta director of homeless initiative, on "Jews on the Street." 8 p.m. Members free, non-members $2.

YIDDISHLAND CAFE

The Workmen's Circle Yiddishland Café presents "Not Raisins, Not Almonds: A Celebration of the Spirit of the Lodz Ghetto" with singers Denise Williams and Michael Mandel, actor Alon Nashman and musicans Brahm Goldhamer and Noah Miller. 7:30 p.m. 471 Lawrence Ave. W. $12. To reserve, call 416-787-2081.

TRANSNISTRA MEMORIAL

The Transnistra Survivors Association annual memorial is at Shaarei Shomayim, 2:00 p.m.

Continued on page 27

CHANGE FOR THE BETTER
Eat healthy Stay active Manage stress

Learn more about Diabetes
From the Jewish Chapter

The Jewish Chapter of the Canadian Diabetes Association offers interesting guest speakers and informative discussions. The chapter meets five times during the year: September, November, January, March and May.

For more information about the Jewish Chapter please call 416-363-0177 extension 7403.

Chapters are volunteer groups helping people with diabetes.

1-800-BANTING (226-8464)
www.diabetes.ca

Know who to turn to
CANADIAN DIABETES ASSOCIATION | ASSOCIATION CANADIENNE DU DIABÈTE

Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda Synagogue
Kadima School and Centre

Honour
Suzanne Agasee

In recognition of her more than 30 years of dedicated service as supervisor of the Kadima Centre, a recreational programme for developmentally challenged adults.

Join us for Brunch and a Silent Auction
Sunday, October 24, 2004
9:30 am • Fischtein Hall with Special Guest Speaker
Diane Dupuy
Founder of the "Famous People Players"

Brunch Tickets are $36.00 per person—available from the Shul Office.

100 Elder Street, Toronto, Ontario M3H 5G7 • T: 416.633.3838

What's New

Continued from page 26

Monday, Oct. 18

BOOK CLUB: CALL IT SLEEP

Holy Blossom Temple Library Book Club with Prof. Andrea Most, of the University of Toronto, will meet at 10 a.m. to discuss Call It Sleep by Henry Roth. 416-789-3291, ext. 235.

WAR ON TERROR

Elyakim Haetzni speaks on "Israel and the Palestinian War of Terror: Triumph and Tragedy," at Shaarei Tefillah Synagogue. 7:30 p.m.

ANTI-SEMITISM & ISRAEL

Aurel Braun, professor of international relations at the University of Toronto, speaks on "Being Ourselves: Helping Israel Effectively," Temple Har Zion at 8:15 p.m. Continues Oct. 25 and Nov. 1. $5 for non-members. 905-889-2252.

JWI MEETING

Jewish Women International, Nagillah Chapter, women 55+, holds a meeting tonight at Kensington Place. For information, call 416-638-4326 or 416-992-7792.

Tuesday, Oct. 19

LUNCH AND LEARN

Beth Tikvah Synagogue presents the first of a series of eight Tuesday afternoon seminars inaugurated by Robert Fulford, columnist and commentator, on "Militant Islamic Terrorism." Lunch 12:30 p.m. Program 1-2:15 p.m. $7 per session, series $50. To reserve, call 416-221-3433, ext 0.

THE JOYS OF JUDAICA

Holy Blossom Temple presents Corey Keeble, curator of Western Art and Culture, Royal Ontario Museum, with a slide show and lecture on "The Joys of Judaica: Decorative Arts in the Synagogue." 7:30 p.m. 416-789-3291, ext. 235.

BOOK & FILM CLUB

The Adath Israel Sisterhood Book and Film Review Series speaks about the film Barbarian Invasions. 8 p.m. 416-635-5340.

Wednesday, Oct. 20

HEALTH CARE FORUM

The Alliance of Seniors is sponsoring a forum on "Your Health: Can You Afford to Grow Older?" with Shirley Douglas, health-care activist, the Hon. Roy J. Romanow, head of the federal government's commission on the future of health care in Canada, Dr. Patricia Spindel of Humber College and Armine Yalnizyan, economist, Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives. 1- 4 p.m. Toronto City Hall, 100 Queen St. W. Free. allianceofseniors@bellnet.ca or 416-260-3429.

CANADA AND TERRORISM

Beth Tzedec Library hosts Stewart Bell of the National Post, the author of Cold Terror: How Canada Nurtures and Exports Terrorism Around the World, on "Cold Terror: Canada and the War on Terrorism." 7:30 p.m. 416-781-3514 ext. 25.

CONCERT FOR ISRAEL

One Family presents "A Salute to Israel's Soldiers and Her Artists" a concert supporting humanitarian projects in Israel, featuring the Israel Defence Force Choir, Shlomo Simcha and Avichai Zehavi. Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue at 8 p.m., preceded by a silent auction and Israeli art and jewelry sale at 7 p.m. For tickets, call 905-482-9488, ext. 3.

Other news

STUDY OPPORTUNITIES

Mekorot Institute of Torah Studies for Women fall classes begin with day and evening text-based classes, including, "Talmud: Bava Kama" with Rabbi Shlomo Gemara, Sunday evenings, 8-9:30 p.m., Oct. 17-Feb. 6; "The Legacy of Abraham" with Lori Grysman, Monday evenings, 8-9:30 p.m., Oct. 18-Nov. 29 ; "The Jewish Guide to Interpersonal Relationships" with Rabbi Jay Kelman, Monday mornings, 9:30-10:30 a.m., Oct. 18-Dec. 13; "Hebrew By Way of Dialogues" with Hilda Weil, Monday evenings, 8-9:30 p.m., Oct. 18-Dec. 13.; "Birthright and Blessing: Esau and Jacob as Contrasting Archetypes" with Dr. Shoshana Zolty, Tuesday evenings, 7:30-9:30 p.m., Oct. 12-Feb. 8 and Wednesday mornings, 9:30-11:30 a.m., Oct. 13-Feb. 9; "The Book of Judges" with Rabbi Moshe Shulman, Wednesday mornings, 9:30-11:30 a.m., Oct. 13-Feb. 9; and "Challah, Candles and Mikvah:Three Commandments for Women" with Ilana Sober, Wednesday evenings, Oct. 13-Dec. 8. For information, locations and registration, visit www.mekorot.ca or call 416-398-1510.

DANGERS OF DENIAL

Reva Stern, chair of Anti-Semitism Must End Now, talks about "The Dangers of Denial" at Beth Tikvah Synagogue on Thursday, Oct. 21 at 8 p.m.

NASHIRA SHABBAT

Join a Kabalat Shabbat service followed by dinner and singing for those in their 20s and 30s at First Narayever Congregation, Friday, Oct. 22, 6 p.m. To reserve, 416-487-7597.

SINGLES EVENTS CAN BE FOUND ON PAGE 30

JOSHUA NELSON RETURNS

On Friday, Oct. 22, at 7:30 p.m. Joshua Nelson and Rabbi Elyse Goldstein lead a Shabbat prayer service and songbook, followed by a dessert reception. $54. Call 416-485-7007, ext. 0. And on Saturday, Oct. 23 at 8 p.m., Nelson and Bais Groove perform in concert at Hart House Theatre. For tickets, call 416-978-8668 or visit www.harthousetheatre.ca

OAKVILLE CONCERT

Shaarei-Beth El Congregation, Oakville presents Jon Simon in concert singing traditional Jewish melodies and folk songs. Saturday, Oct. 23, at 8 p.m. Patron $36, senior and student $25. VIP $75, includes a pre-concert reception with Simon. 186 Morrison Rd. For tickets, call Suzy, 905-849-3929, or the synagogue office, 905-849-6000.

SPIRITUAL ACTIVISM

Mekorot presents a day of discussion and study with Rabbi Avi Weiss on "Faith and Leadership: A Guide to Spiritual Activism," Channa Lockshin Bob on "Parents' Role in the Spiritual Growth of their Children," Dr. Barry Levy on "Mind and Soul: Can the Orthodox Jew March to Two Drummers Simultaneously?" and Dr. Rachael Turkiencz on "Spiritual Politics: Rebellious Sages." Sunday, Oct. 24., 10-4:30 p.m. To register, call 416-398-1510 or visit www.mekorot.ca.

BLOOD DONOR CLINIC

Kehillat Shaarei Torah, Temple Emanu-El, Beth Tikvah, Temple Har Zion and Beit Rayim, in conjunction with Canadian Blood Services, are holding a blood donor clinic at Beth Tikvah Synagogue, 3080 Bayview. Sunday, Oct. 24, 12-4 p.m. All donors welcome. Call Anita, 416-391-5688 or Gerim, 905-889-7767 to book an appointment.

ADATH SHOLOM CONCERT

Adath Sholom Synagogue presents "Magic of the Greatest Composers" with pianist Natalya Tyomkina, Sunday, Oct. 31, at 7:30 p.m. $12. For tickets, 416-635-0131.

JIAS TORONTO

Jewish Immigrant Aid Services, 4600 Bathurst St. #325. 416-630-6481.

Information sessions for new immigrant are held every Tuesday mornings 9 a.m. Registration required.

Conversation Café. Newcomers to Toronto are invited to The Second Cup at the Bathurst Jewish Community Centre for an hour of English conversation every Thursday at 7 p.m. Call Suzie at ext. 30.

FOR SENIORS

Beth Tzedec Congregation Senior Haverim Programme, "The Life & Music of Noel Coward," a film and commentary with Gordon A. Bean. Monday, Oct. 18, 1:30 p.m.

Earl Bales Seniors' Club: Saturday dance, Oct. 16; Blue Heron Casino, Tuesday, Oct. 26; Dixie Outlet Mall, Monday, Nov. 1. Call 416-395-7881 Mondays to Thursdays 9 a.m-1 p.m.

LZA Seniors Cultural Club meets every Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the boardroom at the Borochov Centre, 272 Codsell Ave. Call 416-630-9444.

Aluma Canadian Israeli Club meets 7 p.m. Thursdays at 15 Hove St.; Oct. 14, bingo. Call Menachem Wallach, 905-731-7748.

BERNARD BETEL CENTRE

1003 Steeles Ave. W., 416-225-2112.

Etrog Club 15th anniversary dinner, Tuesday, Oct. 19. Purchase tickets in advance. Call ext. 115.

BATHURST JCC

Bathurst Jewish Community Centre and Koffler Centre of the Arts, 4588 Bathurst St., 416-636-1880 or www.bjcc.ca.

"lay of the land" by Steven Cruise at The Koffler Gallery Oct. 21-Dec. 12. Opening reception, Thursday, Oct. 21, 6-8 p.m. Artist talk 6 p.m. Artist-led nature walk in Earl Bales Park, Sunday, Oct. 24, 2-4 p.m.

"Contemporary Jewish Life in Berlin:" 11 panels of pictures and text documenting contemporary Jewish life in Berlin, including newly restored synagogues, Jewish schools, magazines and memorials. In the atrium of BJCC. Admission free.

The Travellers in a concert of their original music and a look back at The Weavers, Monday, Oct. 18 at 8 p.m. Leah Posluns Theatre.

Register for programs at the Koffler Centre. Check out the Bathurst JCC program guide or visit the website.

MILES S. NADAL JCC

Miles Nadal Jewish Community Centre, 750 Spadina Ave., 416-924-6211 or wwwmilesnadaljcc.ca.

The Downtown Ken, a downtown Jewish Hashomer Hatzair youth group for grades 5 and up, Sunday afternoons 2-4 p.m. 416-736-1339.

Lunch & Learn, Sunday, Oct. 14, 12-1 p.m. with Karen Mock on "Anti-Semitism and Race Relations in Canada Today". Members and seniors $7, non-members $10.

Books & Bagels, Sunday, Oct. 17, 11 a.m., with Rabbi Elyse Goldstein on "The Women's Haftorah Commentary: New Insights from Women Rabbis on the 54 Weekly Haftorah Portions." Members $5, non-members $8.

KitchenAid Custom 300 Watt
Metallic Chrome 10 Speed
Heavy Duty Stand Mixer
Includes 3 Qt. & 4.5 Qt. Stainless Steel Bowls, Pouring Shield, Flat Beater, Dough Hook, Wire Whip.
LIMITED TIME Offer. Compare at 469.99
LOWEST PRICE IN ONTARIO
339.99
Full Money-Back Refund Policy!
Shop 24/7 Securely online
www.caynehousewares.com
Cayne's
The SUPER HOUSEWARE Store
1997-2004
"Cayne's Gift Certificates"
The Ideal Gift Anytime.
Easy To Get To.
112 DONCASTER, Thornhill, Ont.
One Traffic Light North of Steeles Ave. East of Yonge St.
905-764-1188
SAT & SUN 10-6
MON to FRI 9-9
WORRY FREE BRIDAL REGISTRY

OBITUARIES
and Related Notices

FRAN OSTRONOFF ז"ל

Graciously passed away late Saturday, September 25, 2004. She is survived by her husband Brahm, daughter Yardana and son Howard. Fran will be grieved and missed by her family, community and professional colleagues. An icon in the field of home based early childhood education, Fran leaves a wonderful legacy in J & F Home Child Care Services, a non profit day care fostering children's early development.

Fran was Co-founder and Executive Director of J & F Home Child Care for 25 years. Under her leadership, J & F Child Care Services has grown to include 60 home based providers, that provides quality home based childcare to over 150 children in Toronto, Scarborough, Thornhill, Richmond Hill and Maple. The Board of Directors of J & F Home Child Care are acting to ensure its continued success.

This Board of Directors, staff and all who knew Fran join in the sorrow of the Ostranoff family.

May her memory be for a blessing to all.

BENJAMIN'S PARK MEMORIAL CHAPEL

Leah Naglie	Sep 27/04	135 Antibes Dr
Lew Lewis	Sep 26/04	112 Baycrest Av
Max Martin	Sep 27/04	3560 Bathurst St
May Ekstein	Sep 27/04	3560 Bathurst St
Dorothy Donaghy	Sep 27/04	110 Promenade Cir
Heddy Rydel	Sep 27/04	172 Shelbourne Av
Mary Alter	Sep 27/04	3560 Bathurst St
Oscar Skopitz	Sep 29/04	75 Allingham Grdns
Nat Lieberman	Sep 30/04	65 Skymark Dr
Irene Anne Zackheim	Sep 29/04	58 Banntyne Dr
Minnie Katzman	Sep 30/04	3560 Bathurst St
Jack Schwartz	Sep 29/04	240 Heath St W
Charles Appel	Oct 3/04	131 Torresdale Av
Dorothy Volt	Oct 3/04	6250 Bathurst St

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late

LOUIS SPRING ז"ל

will take place

Sunday, October 17th at 1:30 p.m.

Jones Avenue Cemetery

480 Jones Ave. (1 stoplight past Pape Ave., s. of Danforth)

Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late

DEBBY AUSTIN ז"ל

Wife of Ned Austin

will take place

Sunday, October 17th at 12:00 noon

Beth Tzedec Memorial Park

Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late

MAE TENENHOUSE ז"ל

will take place

Sunday, Oct. 17th, 11:00 a.m.

Pardes Shalom Cemetery

Dufferin St., 3 km. north of Major Mackenzie

B'nai Brith Section

Relatives and friends are invited to attend

SERVING THE JEWISH COMMUNITY FOR OVER THREE GENERATIONS

IZENBERG GOLDBERG Monuments

3173 BATHURST ST.

416-787-0319

SHIVA CATERING

SAME DAY SERVICE

*Tasteful Presentation *Hot/Cold Platters and Full Course Meals

• DELIVERY AVAILABLE

416-789-7651

3457 BATHURST ST.

milk 'n honey

THE DAIRY RESTAURANT

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late

BERNARD (BERNIE) OFFSTEIN ז"ל

will take place

Sunday, Oct. 17th, 1:30 p.m.

Mount Sinai Memorial Park

986 Wilson Avenue

Tiba Section

Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late

ELEANOR MELES ז"ל

will take place

Sunday, Oct. 17th, 12:00 p.m.

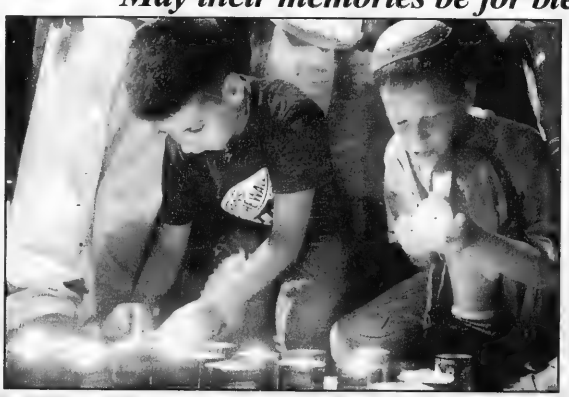
Pardes Shalom Cemetery

Dufferin St. 3 km north of Major Mackentie

Community Section 6

Relatives and friends are invited to attend

May their memories be for blessing ...



Every age and every generation learns to remember and honour the memories of those whom we once loved. At a recent service in Sderot, Israel, these young Israeli boys lit yizkor candles in memory of the victims of the Qassam rockets that have rained down on the southern Negev town. [RNS/Reuters photo]

ש'שאר י'נינו

גידי קורן וחברים

נעגועים 1

אני לבדי על ה-401, אמצע הלילה, חג סוכות. תקליטור רווי נעגועים משמיע את שלום חנוך שר מאיה יפה שלי וחקחל שר איתו. ואני, כמה הייתי רוצה לחיות עכשיו ב"צוותא" לשיר עם שלום חנוך. דמעה בזווית העין. התקליטור "יציאה" של שלום חנוך ומשה לוי הוא ציוד חובה לנשמה. מגיע לכם לשנה החדשה.

נעגועים 2

נתן יונתן כתב על נעגועים: "חופים הם לפעמים נעגועים לנחל",

וגם:

"הבית הוא מקום שאם אתה חייב לשוב אליו,
תמיד פתוחה בו דלת לקראתך,
שירים הם לפעמים האהבה האחרונה
לבית שרחק"

שנדע לשמור קשר עם הבית בשנה החדשה. ושנחיה בקשר עם מה שבאמת חשוב לנו.

רפואה ישראלית

מטבע הדברים מרבים אנשים לדבר איתי על רפואה. וההשוואה בין הרפואה הישראלית לבין זו הקנדית עולה לדיון כמעט מיידית. רוב האנשים אומרים לי ישר שלדעתם הרפואה הקנדית "יותר טובה", "יותר מפותחת" יותר כל מיני דברים. ממש לא נכון. במדדים האמיתיים לבריאות-תמותת תינוקות, תוחלת חיים- ישראל נמצאת לפני רוב מדינות העולם, כולל קנדה. הרפואה בישראל מבוססת על כוח אדם מעולה. בישראל-גם באמצע הנגב, אתה נמצא במרחק של שעה מבית חולים.

ברוב שטחי קנדה-אתה עלול לנסוע שעות רבות כדי להגיע לתחנת בריאות מאוישת באחות. אפילו בפרברי הערים הגדולות-בתי החולים מאוישים בעיקר על ידי רופאי משפחה שרואים את חוליהם במרפאות, וחולה מאושפז יכול לשכב שעות רבות עד אשר הרופא שלו יראה אותו במחלקה. בישראל-בכל בית חולים יש "הוספיטאליסטים"-רופאים שכל תפקידם מוקדש לחולים מאושפזים. מחקרים מראים שיש קשר מובהק בין הזמן שלוקח להביא אנשים לבית חולים אחרי התקף לב, למשל, לבין סיכויי ההישרדות שלהם.

אם כך- מדוע הישראלים מתלוננים כל כך?

הישראלים הם, לדעתי האישית, העם המקטר ביותר בעולם. תמיד יותר טוב אצל השכן. אין יום שלא עולות בעיתונים, בכנסת, איפה לא, נעויות בנושא "המדינה בהדרדרות", "המדינה מתמוטטת", "חורסים את המדינה" ועוד כהנה וכהנה. ואיך אני יודע שזה הכל דאווין? אותם ישראלים, במשאלי דעת קהל, אומרים שוב ושוב ש "ישראל היא המקום הכי טוב בעולם", ש "אין חברים כמו בישראל", "אין.....(השלם את החסר) כמו בישראל". טוב, או תחליטו.

מה גורם למוות

ידידי שמחה שלח לי את-המילה המדעית האחרונה לגבי מה שגורם למותם של אנשים בארצות שונות. חשוב שתרשמו ותפעלו בהתאם:

ביפן אוכלים מעט מאוד שומנים ו.....
נרשמים הרבה פחות התקפי לב מבאנגליה ואמריקה.
בצרפת אוכלים המון שומנים רוויים ואף על פי כן.....
נרשמים פחות התקפי לב מבאנגליה ואמריקה.
בהודו שותים מעט מאוד יין אדום ו.....
נרשמים פחות התקפי לב מבאנגליה ואמריקה.
בספרד לעומת זאת מרבים לשתות יין אדום ו....
נרשמים פחות התקפי לב מאשר באנגליה ואמריקה.
באלגיריה מקיימים מעט מאוד יחסי מין ו.....
נרשמים פחות התקפי לב מבאנגליה ואמריקה.
בברזיל מקיימים הרבה יחסי מין ו....
נרשמים פחות התקפי לב מבאנגליה ואמריקה.

אז מה המסקנה???

מה שהורג זה לדבר אנגלית.....

Coast to Coast

Concordia president silent on Barak ban

Continued from page 3

Di Grappa also stressed that, in the aftermath of the Sept. 9, 2002 violent protest against Netanyahu, the administration had made a commitment to staff and students not to allow any such "disruption" on campus again. The fact that Barak's appearance would require armed police officers to be on campus was deemed to be an unacceptable disruption, he indicated.

Asked if the university plans to bar all Israeli politicians, past or present, in the future, di Grappa replied that it will review each request on "a case-by-case basis."

Concordia president Frederick Lowy and provost Martin Singer have been silent on the issue.

Hillel first approached the university in June about bringing in Barak, the Labor prime minister from 1999-2001. The Concordia administration suggested to Hillel that the Loyola campus could be a possible alternative, either the Oscar Peterson Hall or the arena, after refusing Hillel's first choice – the H110 auditorium in at the downtown campus. That was where Netanyahu's lecture was to have been held. (The university's security staff had at that time recommended that Netanyahu appear at Loyola because it would be easier to secure, advice that was ignored by the administration.)

On Sept. 29, the administration informed Hillel the event could not take place at either Loyola site because of a "significant risk" to security, di Grappa said. He denied the administration had been influenced by pro-Palestinian students.

Solidarity for Palestinian Human Rights (SPHR) spokesperson Erik Yingling said his organization did ask that Barak not be given a forum at Concordia because he has been "accused" of being a war criminal and it would be an "insult" to the large Arab student population.

He said SPHR would organize a demonstration if Barak speaks, but denied any threat of violence. Former SPHR leader Samer Elatrash, who now contributes occasionally to the Arabic-language news organization Al Jazeera, said Barak should not even be allowed into Canada, claiming that the government denounced Barak's for excessive force against the Palestinians in 2000.

The CJN learned from a reliable source that a group of Jewish students wrote to the administration advising it not to let Barak's lecture go ahead because it might upset the relative calm on campus over the past year. In the past two elections, a moderate executive has led the CSU, whose former leaders were regarded as complicit in SPHR's campaign to keep Netanyahu away.

The Concordia decision was swiftly condemned by FEDERATION CJA. "Concordia has allowed itself to be taken hostage by a small and violent group within its campus. With this decision, Concordia has demonstrated that the right to free speech is only as strong as the institutional will to protect it," it said in a press release.

The federation called on Concordia to formulate and make public an "action plan with concrete steps and a definitive timeline leading to the return of freedom of expression on its campus."

Two years ago, Yale University allowed a lecture by Barak to proceed even though opponents were expected to protest. Security measures included body checks of everyone entering the hall. As it turned out, there was no disturbance.

Di Grappa said that case was different because security guards at Yale carry firearms and the physical premises used allowed better control.

Anti-Semitism not suspected in sukkah torching

By DAVID LAZARUS
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL — Jewish community representatives and administrators at Royal Vale School in Notre Dame de Grace are leaning toward vandalism as the motive behind the torching of the school's sukkah earlier this month, but they're not ruling out anti-Semitism.

The incident, which occurred over the weekend of Oct. 2 and 3, upset parents, including those with children in Royal Vale's Jewish Heritage Studies program. The school, part of the English Montreal School Board public school system, has erected a sukkah for the past decade as part of the program.

"The children were supposed to go see the sukkah and then were told it burned down over the weekend," said Faye Gordon, whose two children attend Royal Vale. "It is very upsetting."

School principal Howard Posh told The CJN that even though anti-Semitism could have been the motive, the fire was likely an act of vandalism. He said there's been other vandalism at the school in recent months, including graffiti and fires in the trash dumpster behind the school. The plywood sukkah stood not far from the dumpster.

Also indicating vandalism was the fact the sukkah was next to a chain-link fence behind the school in an area not visible to the public, Posh said.

"The back of the building cannot be seen from any street. Some mornings you find beer bottles there."

The Montreal Gazette quoted a police spokesperson as saying two teenagers were arrested near the school over the same weekend after they were caught setting a garbage can on fire, but investigators weren't sure the incident was connected to the sukkah fire.

Officers from the police arson squad could not be reached for comment before The CJN's early deadline last week.

Gordon said the arson reminded parents of the firebombing of the United Talmud Torahs' school library in St. Laurent five months ago.

But unlike at UTT, whoever burned down the sukkah left no note or evidence indicating a motive, Posh said. "There was no hate literature or graffiti."

He said that "of course there's been some concern that this incident would be painted the same way as UTT, but right now I think it's vandalism because there's just nothing else to go on."

Jeff Boro, chair of Canadian Jewish Congress' Quebec region, agreed.

"It's unfortunate it had to be a sukkah, but we're pretty certain it was a random act of mischief. That's what we feel so far from the information that's been gathered. But we'll keep on top of it."

Bill Surkis, director of B'nai Brith in Quebec, said his organization is also not prepared to classify the sukkah-burning as anti-Semitic without concrete evidence.

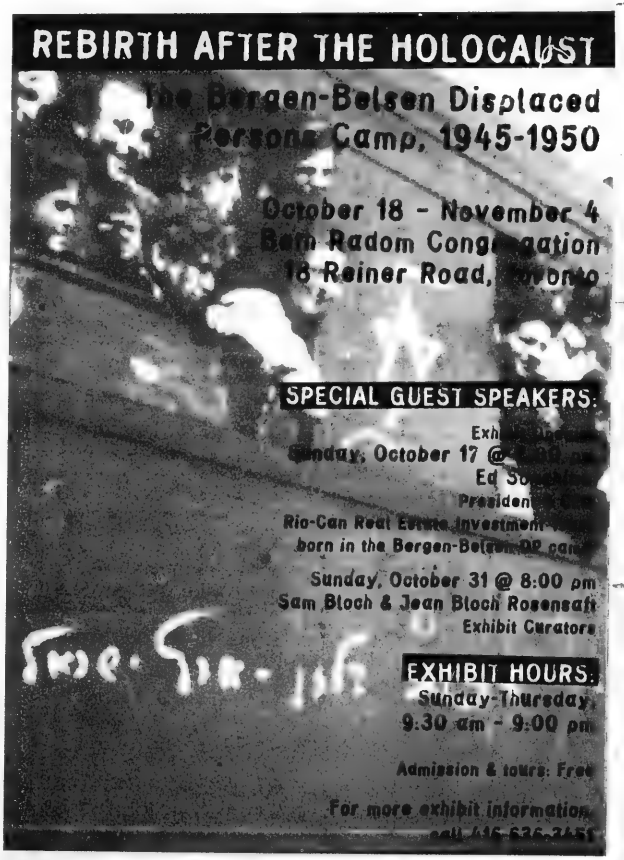
We mourn the passing of

Lily Silver ז"ל

A woman of Hadar who dedicated her life to Tikkun Olam and the rebuilding of Eretz Yisrael

May her cherished memory be a comfort to her family and to all who knew her

Canadian Friends of
The Menachem Begin Heritage Foundation



REMEMBER זכור

Co-sponsored by Beth Radom Congregation and The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, UJA Federation, in conjunction with the 24th Annual Holocaust Education Week

UJA FEDERATION
Together We're Stronger

Singles Events
is an advertising feature of The Canadian Jewish News

Deadline is Wednesday, 4:00 p.m., 8 days preceding issue date.

The CJN encourages readers to direct any queries they may have on an upcoming event to the event's organizers.

Shaar Shalom Singles
In conjunction with the Intersynagogue Singles (35+)
Invites you to our
Autumn Dance
"Introducing our New Dance Card for Prizes Evening"
Shaar Shalom Synagogue
2 Simonston Boulevard
(one light north of Don Mills and Steeles)
Sunday, October 17 - 7:30 P.M.
With the Fabulous D.J.
Dave Jones
Admission $15.00
Cash Bar / Includes refreshments
For information call David at 416-224-9494

"Looking for Love in all the Right Places" Adath Israel invites all Dynamic Singles 35+ to brunch with A Guest Speaker Sunday, October 24th at 11:30 a.m. 37 Southbourne Avenue. $15 if reserved by Thursday, October 21st; $20 at the door. RSVP Rachel 416-635-5340 or rachel@adathisrael.com Vist us: www.adathisrael.com

JEWISH CONNECTIONS INC.
Professional, Personalized, Upscale
Introduction Service
for Selective Singles (since 1994)
To arrange a confidential consultation call
Carole: 905-889-3900
carole.linden@sympatico.ca
Please ask us about our parties "By Invitation Only"

Coast to Coast

GrowWinnipeg job fair draws locals as well as immigrants

By MYRON LOVE
Prairies Correspondent

WINNIPEG — Participants in the Jewish Federation of Winnipeg GrowWinnipeg Initiative inaugural job fair say they were happy with the results.

The three-hour networking session was held recently at the Asper Jewish Community Campus.

"Most employers responded that the evening was worthwhile, and that they would be willing to participate in future events like this," says Cliff Huot, a placement consultant with GrowWinnipeg.

"Many also said they would recommend this to their colleagues."

One of the job seekers, 22-year-old Argentinian Jewish immigrant Luciano Kryger thought the program was a great idea.

"I hope they do this again next year," says the programming and networking administration expert. "I was able to make some contacts which I hope will lead to something."

Kryger does have a job but not in his area of specialization.

"We weren't expecting anyone to be offered a job by the end of the evening," Huot says.

"The idea was to give employers and job seekers the opportunity to meet each other. Employers were able to survey the range of skills available out there and job seekers could see the range of opportunities available."

GrowWinnipeg was established by the Federation about two years ago to try and inerease the size of Winnipeg's Jewish population through greater immigration. They also wanted to encourage former Winnipeggers to move back, and to persuade younger members of the community to stay. A major key to population increase is the availability of suitable jobs.

The initiative has been successful in encouraging more immigration, particularly from Argentina. More than 100 Argentinian Jewish families have settled here in the past four years.

"I was originally thinking of a meet-and-greet workshop," Huot says. "Steven Kroft, a member of our steering committee, proposed a job fair. We combined the two ideas."

Huot reports that the job fair attracted 27 employers , including the City of Winnipeg, Manitoba Hydro, Canwest Communications, employment agencies, IT firms and manufacturers.

As well, there were 89 job-seekers, local people as well as immigrants.

"We supplied the potential employees with business cards and ran a few workshops during the course of the evening," he says.

"We also hosted a reception, and had three young entrepreneurs on hand to talk to the job seekers."

Dr. Richard Tapper, a chiropractor who was one of the young entrepreneurs, thought the evening was a good idea.

"It gave Jewish Winnipeggers a chance to see that there are opportunities in Winnipeg and that young people can start businesses in Winnipeg and be successful."

Tapper felt, however, that the job fair needed to be better advertised.

George Klein Designs
Designer of Fine Jewellery

Large Selection of Bar/Bat Mitzvah Gifts
Creative Custom Work
&
Remodelling
1575 Steeles Ave. E. Ste. 103
416-730-1755

The Jews For Judaism
COUNTER-MISSIONARY SURVIVAL SEMINAR
Learn How to Answer Missionary Claims!
Instructor: Rabbi Michael Skobac
Tuesday Evenings
Oct. 19 - Nov. 23
8:00 pm
Admission: FREE
In six exciting classes studying the Bible, history, psychology and comparative religion, you will gain an understanding of today's aggressive missionary movement and the knowledge to respond confidently to the challenges they pose.
TOPICS INCLUDE:
• The Virgin Birth
• Sin & Atonement
• The Real Messiah
• Missionary Tactics
• Miracles • Isaiah 53
• Missionary Proof-Texts
JEWISH CENTRE FOR LEARNING & LIVING
9200 Bathurst, Suite 28
(at Carville Rd-Richmond Hill)
REGISTRATION REQUIRED!
Call: (905) 761-0040
www.jewsforjudaism.org

The Association for The Soldiers of Israel

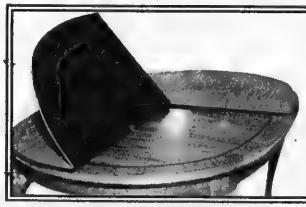
The Association for the Soldiers of Israel announces the unveiling of a monument to the memory of a dear friend and supporter

Dr. Isaac (Stary) Josy ז"ל

Sunday, October 17, 2004 at 11:30 a.m.
Pardes Shalom Cemetery
Community Section AA

All are invited to attend

CHECK OUT OUR INTERNET EDITION AT
www.cjnews.com
The Canadian Jewish news



FREE Leaf Bag with order
Protect Your Table
Made-To-Measure Table Pads
Prevents scratches, burns & spills
Free in-home service • Factory Direct Pricing
MagnaLoc
DOVER PAD
QUALITY SINCE 1950
Montreal: (514) 420-6030
Canada: (800) 354-4445
www.doverpad.ca
20% Off!
CHANUKAH EXTRAVAGANZA
Sale ends October 29th

Coast to Coast

Montreal approves $30-million museum project

By JANICE ARNOLD
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL – The Montreal executive committee has given the go-ahead for a $30-million Jewish museum/office complex in the downtown core, which its developers say will be unique in Canada.

The city will sell a 20,000-square-foot lot at the southeast corner of de Maisonneuve and St. Laurent boulevards to the Montreal Jewish Museum (MJM) committee and has approved the architectural plans. The MJM committee is co-chaired by Joshua Ronn, a retired textile merchant who conceived the idea of the museum, and Herschel Segal, founder and chair of the Le Chateau retail clothing chain, now semi-retired and with time to devote to the project.

Construction must begin within one year, according to the deal, and Segal believes the MJM will open in 2½ years. Despite the name, the museum is to be national in scope, reflecting the Jewish experience in Canada, Segal said.

Ronn, who immigrated to Montreal after World War II, wanted to pay homage to the country where he and so many other Jews could prosper.

Adding a commercial component to the project appeared to be the only way to make it economically feasible, Segal said. Revenue from the rental of space above will help finance the museum, which will be a non-profit institution.

The complex, whose chief architect is Harry Parnass, consists of a 50,000-square-foot museum on three floors – two below street level and the third above a main-floor concourse.

Above that will be eight to 10 storeys of office and/or residential space. Other than restaurants serving "Jewish food from around the world" and gift and book shops connected to the museum, there will be no retail business, Segal said.

Segal said the locale is ideal. Not only is it in the heart of what was a Jewish immigrant district, but today it is at the crossroads of Old Montreal, Place des Arts and the trendy section of St. Laurent, north of Sherbrooke Street. A constant flow of traffic is guaranteed because the St. Laurent metro station will be incorporated into the site. It is also near the outdoor venues of the jazz, comedy and other summer festivals.

The immediate neighbourhood is rundown, but that has worked in the project's favour. The museum committee, which has been in discussion with the city for more than a year, persuaded Mayor Gerald Tremblay that the project fits in with his administration's revitalization plans for the area. Except for the metro station, that corner has been vacant for 30 years.

The committee had hoped to get the city to donate the land, but in the end, it agreed to sell it for the municipal evaluation, which Segal thinks is a good price.

The building will be ultra-modern, plans show. An enclosed "urban plaza," more than 10 metres high, is to serve as a public meeting place. Open "pneumatic pods" transport visitors to the various levels. A glassed-in circular staircase leads from the plaza down to the lower floors.

The exterior of the front of the building is covered with tiny diode electronic bulbs, which at night project images and messages. Parnass said he was inspired by the biblical injunction: "Ye shall be a light unto the nations."

Former Quebec cabinet minister and community leader Victor Goldbloom is president of the museum committee. Among the members of its provisional board are McGill University Prof. Morton Weinfeld, an expert on Canadian Jewry; Superior Court Judge Herbert Marx; past FEDERATION CJA president Stanley Plotnick; Victor Rabinovitch, director of the Museum of Civilization; and former McGill University principal Bernard Shapiro.

Several leading real estate developers are also involved, including Sam Aberman, Eugene Riesman, Richard Dubrovsky, Jonathan Wener and Harvey Wolfe.

Eventually, the MJM will have to do some fundraising, Segal said.

He said the MJM will be for exhibition only; it will not have archival or storage facilities. About two-thirds of the space is to be devoted to its permanent collection, and the other third to temporary displays, not necessarily of Canadian content, but reflecting the diversity of Jewish culture and history, Segal said.

"The MJM will become this city's home to travelling exhibits, films and multimedia presentations created by the worldwide network of Jewish museums that have up till now bypassed Quebec for lack of an appropriate milieu," he said.

"The permanent exhibition is going to be interesting, using the latest technology," he said. "It is not going to be just a collection of relics. It can't be dull." He hopes, for example, that the Montreal Jewish Film Festival, of which he is chair, will become a year-round event.

"The MJM will show the contributions Jews have made to Canadian society. It will be the first of its kind in Canada, and a multifunctional institution providing our community with culture, education and entertainment."

He hopes it will be a place where all Jews feel at home. "This will be our 'Judenplatz'," he said.

The overarching goal is to reach the broadest possible audience, and the MJM will make it its mission to reach out to non-Jews, from all ethnic groups.

"We are all immigrants, and we have an uplifting story to tell about struggle, adaptation and success," Segal said.

He admitted he has not given much thought to security. "Naturally, steps will have to be taken. But we can't give in to fearmongering. We have to live."

A WORLD OF POSSIBILITIES

JOIN US FOR OUR
OPEN HOUSE
Monday, Oct. 25, 2004
AND
Tuesday, Oct. 26, 2004

Branksome Hall is proud to be the only International Baccalaureate girls' school in central Ontario.

Discover the advantages of a Branksome Hall education for your daughter

- International Baccalaureate programs
- New Middle School wing (Sept. 2004)
- Holistic education
- Individual attention and guidance
- Wireless laptop technology
- Rich leadership opportunities
- Many clubs, sports and arts activities
- Excellent university preparation
- A vibrant, caring community of learners

BRANKSOME HALL
10 Elm Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M4W 1N4
(416) 920-9741 • www.branksome.on.ca

JNF Blue Box! AMNESTY!
Do You Have a JNF Blue Box?

Thousands of JNF Blue Boxes are out there. Please...we want them back! We forgive you for not returning them yet!

Now, more than ever, you can help in the important work of the JNF - building a strong and beautiful Israel for all of its people...and receive a charitable tax receipt!

Call Debbie at the JNF office 416-638-7200 ext. 22 and we will pick up your Blue Box and replace it! Or, bring it in to our office. It's your move.

And, if you haven't yet got a Blue Box, call us, and we'll be happy to send you one.

October -"Blue Box Amnesty Month"
We are waiting for your call!

The tradition continues...

Tel: Debbie 416-638-7200 ext 22 • Fax: 416-638-7345

Jewish National Fund of Toronto
1000 Finch Avenue West, # 700, Toronto, Ontario M3J 2V5

SEEING IS BELIEVING - NOW OPEN
The Furniture Dump
New Samples by Famous Designers at Giveaway Prices!
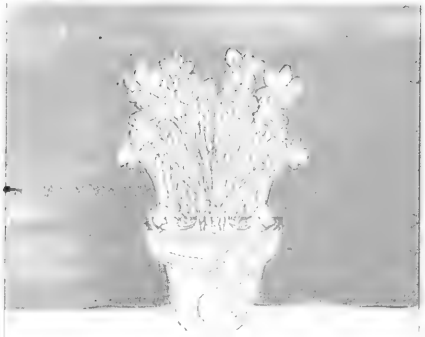
ONLY AT
The Furniture Dump
905-761-6077
7855 Keele St. Unit 1 (at Hwy. #7), Concord, ON L4K 1Y6
Store Hours: Mon.-Wed. 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Thurs. & Fri. 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Sat. 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Sun. 12 noon to 5 p.m.



Room to grow!
Periwinkle is moving to an expanded location with plenty of space to dream up even more unique floral arrangements to delight you and yours.
Come visit our new shop — opening on Monday, September 27th!
PERIWINKLE FLOWERS 1957 AVENUE ROAD TORONTO, ONTARIO M5M 4A3 416.322.6985

GOODFIELD'S
Meats
OPEN SUNDAY
800 Steeles Ave. West 905-738-1856
Northwest corner of Bathurst & Steeles
"CONTINUING A FAMILY TRADITION OF QUALITY MEAT AND LOW PRICES FOR OVER 70 YEARS"
BEEF BRISKET $2.99 LB. Single Brisket $3.99 lb.
BEEF RIBS $1.79 LB.
BONELESS CHICKEN BREAST $4.99 LB.
1 L LOGANBERRY SYRUP $3.50 EA.
LEAN GROUND BEEF $2.49 LB.
BEEF OR CHICKEN KREPLACH $3.99 PKG. OF 12
Prices valid until Sun. Oct. 24 or while supplies last
We accept Visa, Mastercard & Interac

PROVINCIAL TABLE PADS
Manufacturers of Custom-built Table Pads
•Free in-home service
•Made in Canada
•Choose from 3 qualities
•Best service -price -quality
PTP

LOWEST PRICES GUARANTEED
Toronto..... 416-283-2506
Hamilton..... 905-383-1343
Ottawa..... 613-247-3334
Canada Wide.. 1-800-668-7439
www.ptpads.com

JAGUAR
LAND ROVER
THORNHILL
SALES • LEASING
SERVICE • PARTS
434 STEELES AVE. W.
2 BLOCKS W. OF YONGE
905-889-0080

A menu from the field of dreams

MARCY GOLDMAN
Special to The CJN

Not too long ago, the capital of American baseball, Cooperstown, N.Y. , held a celebration of Jewish baseball players at the Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum.

Why now? It was always a good idea, but this particular tip of the baseball cap ended up being nicely timed to be one the first of many programs this year celebrating the 350-year history of Jewish life and contribution in America.

As the event occurred just before the Jewish New Year in the late-day summer sun in upstate New York, Cooperstown, always a field of dreams, became a little more the stuff of legends. Fall is also about the "boychicks" of October – the sultans of swing.

As a mother of three sons, a nine-year veteran of coaching boys baseball and a Jewish baker, I was, as you can imagine interested in such an event. It celebrates a fusion of things: pride in our culture, the vital role of sports and sports models for youth, and the discipline of Jewish traditions alongside the discipline of the athlete. Cooperstown is hallowed ground enough; honouring sports heroes of yesteryear, as well as those still active in MLB rosters, is really special.

Remember the old joke about Jewish history – forget how it goes, but it ends with "let's eat!" As with all Jewish gatherings, we ask about the food. So what did they eat at Cooperstown's first-ever, kosher-sanctioned meals?

There were several informal meals served at the Hall of Fame, the first one being a simple dairy meal that included bagels, lox, cream cheese, egg, tuna and whitefish salad.

At another lunch, kosher hot dogs, snacks and salsa were provided by the Manischewitz Company at an all-American baseball BBQ.

Here are some recipes from the Baseball Hall of Fame Celebration of Jewish Major Leaguers to recreate at home. In honour of baseball's long history, I also offer some vintage stadium eats. Batter up and bon appetit!

WHITE FISH SALAD

Among other salads and spreads, Jewish Hall of Famers munched on a delicate fish salad made with smoky whitefish and herbs. You can use light sour cream and light mayonnaise. Serve with black bread, crackers or mini-pitas.

2 generous cups, smoked whitefish, coarsely chopped or flaked ½ cup mayonnaise juice of half a lemon
salt, freshly ground black pepper, to taste
2 tbsp. minced chives
2 tbsp. parsley, finely minced
⅓ cup sour cream

Trim the fish of bones and skin, making sure you remove all small bones. Gently flake fish into small chunks. Place in a bowl and toss with remaining ingredients. Chill well. Makes about 2 cups, serves 4-6 as an appetizer.

BALL PARK KOSHER FRANKS AND ONIONS

kosher all beef frankfurters
4 large onions, finely sliced oil

Extras
toasted hot dog rolls, split and toasted garnishes (relish, mustard, etc.)

To prepare onions, sauté in 1-4 tbsp. of oil in a large, heavy-bottomed skillet. Allow to cook down until thoroughly caramelized, about 20 minutes on lowest heat. Meanwhile, simmer frankfurters to heat through. Drain after about 5 minutes and sauté in a little oil to cook outer skin (or grill after boiling).

Serve each on a hot dog roll, covered with mustard, relish and/or ketchup, then top with some caramelized onions.

FIELD OF DREAMS FRIED DOUGH

A doughnut is essentially the stuff of state fairs and many a ballpark. This is my own recipe I developed and use to treat my own baseball teams that I coach. This is terrific if you win – even better, after a loss! Not too sweet, not too rich, stretched and briefly fried (forget a deep fryer – I use my wok and tongs). Add a bit of sugar and a touch of cinnamon. Fresh from the fryer or even at room temperature, these are the next best thing to being at a country fair. You may have encountered the same sort of treat under different appellations (beavers often figure in the name). A bread machine does a super job making the yeasted dough for this recipe.

Dough:
½ cup warm water
5 tsp. dry yeast
pinch of sugar
1 cup warm milk
⅓ cup sugar
1½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla, optional
2 eggs
⅓ cup oil
4¼-5 cups unbleached all-purpose flour oil for frying
granulated sugar for dusting cinnamon

In a large mixing bowl, stir together the yeast, warm water and a pinch of sugar. Let stand a couple of minutes to allow yeast to swell or dissolve.

Stir in remaining sugar, milk, vanilla, eggs, oil, salt and most of the flour to make soft dough. Knead 5-8 minutes (by hand or with a dough hook), adding flour as needed to form a firm, smooth, elastic dough. Place in a greased bowl. Place bowl in a plastic bag and seal. (If not using right away, you can refrigerate the dough at this point). Let rise in a covered, lightly greased bowl, about 30-40 minutes. Gently deflate dough (if dough is coming out of the fridge, allow it to warm up for about 40 minutes before proceeding).

Pinch off a golf ball-size piece of dough. Roll out into an oval and let rest, covered with a tea towel, while you are preparing the remaining dough.

Heat about 4 inches of oil in fryer (a wok works best but you can use a Dutch oven or whatever you usually use for frying). Temperature of the oil should be about 385. I toss in a tiny bit of dough and see if it sizzles and swells immediately. If it does, the oil temperature is where it should be.

Stretch the ovals into a "tail"-like shape, like a beaver tail, thinning them out and enlarging them as you do. Then add the dough tails to the hot oil, 1 or 2 at a time. Turn once to fry until the undersides are deep brown. Lift out with tongs and drain on paper towels (I use newsprint).

Fill a large bowl with a few cups of white sugar. Toss beaver tails in sugar (with a little cinnamon if you wish) and shake off excess.

This recipe makes many odd shaped strips (about 2-3 dozen). They are also delicious with a smear of jam or apple pie filling.

www.dcitelecom.com
(416) 626-7557
no activation fee
Israel, U.K. 5 5¢
no monthly fee
Morocco 35 1¢
no maintenance fee
France, Chile 5 5¢
15,000+ customers
USA / CAN 4 9¢

International

Israel & the Jewish World

RAPE, GENOCIDE, WAR CONTINUES IN SUDAN.
HELP! FIGHT!
STAND UP AGAINST EVIL.
NEVER AGAIN!
Ve'ahavta: The Canadian Jewish Humanitarian & Relief Committee
416-964-7698
www.veahavta.org

Comment

Keep Qassams out of the West Bank

By ZE'EV SCHIFF
Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

The battle taking place in the north of the Gaza Strip is about more than the firing of Qassam rockets at Sderot. The results of the operation will certainly affect the efforts of Hamas and its cohorts to advance to the next stage and turn the West Bank into a much broadened base for launching Qassams.

Hamas has made serious attempts to do this, all thwarted so far. Therefore, what is happening in Operation Days of Penitence (the current Israel Defence Forces' incursion into northern Gaza) is a sign of what can be expected – on a greater scale – in the West Bank.

If Ashkelon comes under fire, that could also serve as an impetus for a broader Israeli action, but if Hamas succeeds in establishing a rocket-launching system in the West Bank, the Qassam problem will be transformed from a purely military one to one of strategic magnitude. Anyone who doubts this is invited to study the map and check the number of kilometres between major cities in Israel and the West Bank.

Cities like Kfar Sava, Rosh Ha'ayin, Hadera and Beit She'an will be within range of the rockets, as will Jewish neighbourhoods in Jerusalem. This is the assessment being heard in Israeli intelligence. Even if we adopt the rather unlikely premise that Hamas will not succeed in extending the range of the rockets beyond nine kilometres, it would take no more than a little drizzle of Qassams toward Ben-Gurion Airport for most airlines to cease flying here.

The possibility of Qassam rockets being launched from the West Bank

Such a development would leave Israel no choice but to take extremely harsh military measures against the Palestinians. It's doubtful that Israel would then have the patience to take care of "the humanitarian needs that arise in wake of the IDF's military activity," as it is currently doing in the Gaza Strip, according to an Israel Defence Forces spokesperson.

Such a deterioration could be reminiscent in many ways of what occurred between the two populations during the War of Independence, something Hamas, whose actions are also undermining what's left of the Palestinian Authority, would like to see happen.

The possibility of Qassam rockets being launched from the West Bank is not just a figment of some intelligence officer's overactive imagination. Five attempts at large-scale Qassam production have been foiled by the Shin Bet and the IDF. At a Hamas factory in Nablus, 60 rockets were in an advanced stage of production. Ten rockets had already been transferred to Jenin, where they were seized. Several other complete rockets were also seized. Most of the know-how for Qassam production came from the Gaza Strip.

Thus, beyond the need to defend Sderot, Operation Days of Penitence has another clear purpose – to demonstrate to the Palestinians what will happen in the West Bank if they bring the Qassam method there. In the present operation, there is no superfluous bombast (aside from some exaggerated newspaper headlines). There is no indiscriminate artillery being used against the population, as some in the cabinet had proposed, nor is there any attempt to establish a new line of IDF positions in the Gaza Strip. Despite the large amount of force being employed by the IDF, there is restraint in its use. Obviously, this will not be the case should Qassam rockets be launched from the West Bank.

The problem, or drawback, one could say, of the operation in Gaza lies in the general perception arising from Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's avowal that the disengagement plan must be unilateral and that there is no need to reach agreements with the Palestinians.

There have, however, been some secret meetings between Israeli security personnel and figures like Gen. Abdel Raziq el-Majayda and Musa Arafat. As usual, the Israeli representatives heard many promises that were not kept, and once again ended up feeling that even if the Palestinians really wanted to, they are incapable of fulfilling their commitments. Still, Israel must not give up altogether on such efforts.

FROM OHAD NAHARIN
FORMER ARTISTIC DIRECTOR OF ISRAEL'S BATSHEVA DANCE COMPANY
COMES A SPELLBINDING SHOW THAT DEFIES CONVENTION...
Featuring dances to:
Hava Nagila & Ehad Mi Yodea,
Que Sera Sera & Somewhere Over the Rainbow
...comedy, tragedy, irreverence, lyricism...
irreverence
MANULIFE FINANCIAL PRESENTS
LES GRANDS BALLETS CANADIENS DE MONTRÉAL
MINUS ONE NOVEMBER 3 & 4, 2004
CHOREOGRAPHED BY: OHAD NAHARIN
Manulife Financial HUMMINGBIRD CENTRE ticketmaster.ca
To reserve your tickets call 416•872•2262

חבר חדר
Cheder Chabad

SHMUEL ZAHAVY CHEDER CHABAD

16th Annual Dinner & Draw

Honouring Alfred Kwinter

Monday, October 18, 2004
Cheshvan 3, 5765
at Le Parc
8432 Leslie Street, Thornhill, Ontario

For further information, please call 416-663-1972.

Canadian filmmakers expose the Impact of Terror

By JENNY HAZAN
CJN Israel Bureau

JERUSALEM — When firefighter Michel Amar arrived at the scene of the terror attack on the Sbarro pizzeria in Jerusalem on Aug. 9, 2001, he was shocked to see the burned, empty stroller of his two-year-old daughter, Gafnit.

"I went into shock," says Amar, who while scanning the rubble, spotted the body parts of children, strewn about. "I thought that's it… I had no children."

After a frantic and fruitless search of the restaurant and all of the ambulances, Amar finally found his wife, son and daughter at the hospital. Unlike the 15 people who were murdered (including seven children) the Amars were among some 130 injured survivors of the bombing

They are among the handful of survivors who are the focus of Impact of Terror, a 40-minute documentary film that goes behind the headlines with an in-depth look at the aftermath of the Sbarro bombing.

Co-produced by Canadians Simcha Jacobovici and Ric Bienstock and directed by Canadian filmmaker Tim Wolochatiuk, the film follows survivors for almost a year to discover how deeply their lives were altered by the experience.

Michel Amar and his daughter Gafnit

"A lot of the times terror attacks happen in Israel, the Israeli victims become mere statistics. You see the numbers, but no one spends any time on the victims themselves," says Petach Tikvah-born Jacobovici, the 51-year-old producer of Emmy Award-winning documentaries The Plague Fighters/Ebola: Inside an Outbreak and A Child's Grief. "We thought it was important to put a human face onto terrorism.

"On one level, the whole Israeli-Palestinian conflict is so politicized, with Israel often being portrayed as the aggressor, that people can even look at something like the murder of an Israeli child through political glasses," Jacobovici says. "Our hope is that the film will force people to deal with tragedy on a human level."

Jacobovici, who is with the company Associated Producers, says the filmmakers chose to focus on the Sbarro attack in particular because it could speak to the widest possible audience.

"Everyone can relate to eating in a pizza parlour," he says, "and in fact, the victims of the attack provide a good cross-section of Israeli society – religious, non-religious, Arab, Jew, old and young – everyone was in there.

"Hopefully, by connecting people abroad to the stories of people in Israel, perhaps for a short moment, even a nanosecond, people abroad will feel the same thing that Israelis feel."

Jacobovici says people outside of Israel could stand to benefit from putting themselves in Israeli shoes for at least 40 minutes. "I think the amazing thing is how strong and resilient these people are," he says. "You see this over and over in Israel. There's no one dancing on the street when a Palestinian loses his kid, and you don't see victims of terror swearing to kill someone, in vengeance.

"What comes across most strongly to me is the nobility of these people and their families," he says. "One thing this age of terrorism has done is to highlight how noble people in democratic societies are. This [nobility] is the great secret weapon that people who don't live in democratic societies just don't understand."

Impact of Terror had its Canadian debut at the Toronto Jewish Film Festival this summer, afterwards airing on the CBC and finally on CNN in the United States. The document was to air for the first time in 250 other countries (including Israel) on CNN International on Oct. 9 and 10.

REGENT TOURS
The Best Prices at Hotels in Israel!
Friendly, Professional Service
Deal direct with a wholesaler in Tel Aviv
Over 100 hotels currently on special offer
www.regent.co.il
Call us in Tel Aviv toll free 1 866 886 0967

FROM 15.90* US$ PER DAY
YOUR CAR IN ISRAEL
SPECIAL OFFER
*FREE SHABBAT

	TYPE OF CAR	PER WEEK
A	FIAT PUNTO 3 DR	$112
B	OPEL CORSA	$133
D	HUNDAI GETZ 1.3	$203
F	TOYOTA COROLLA	$259
XL	MAZDA 6	$371
KX	MAZDA MPV	$693
ES	B.M.W 520	$1008

Valid 26 Aug 2004 - 01 Dec 2004
Exc. ins. subject to offer / requirements
eldan car rental
U.S.A
Tel: 1-800-938-5000
718-998-5500
www.eldan.co.il

Left is outraged by Sharon aide's claim that pullout plan freezes peace process

Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

JERUSALEM — Lawmakers from the Israeli left responded furiously last week to an interview given to Ha'aretz by Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's senior adviser, Dov Weisglass, in which he claimed that the disengagement plan means a "freezing of the peace process."

"The significance of the disengagement plan is the freezing of the peace process," Weisglass, one of the initiators of the disengagement plan, said in an interview for Friday Magazine.

"And when you freeze that process," he added, "you prevent the establishment of a Palestinian state, and you prevent a discussion on the refugees, the borders and Jerusalem.

"Effectively, this whole package called the Palestinian state, with all that it entails, has been removed indefinitely from our agenda. And all this with authority and permission. All with a presidential blessing and the ratification of both houses of Congress."

"The disengagement is actually formaldehyde," Weisglass said. "It supplies the amount of formaldehyde that is necessary so there will not be a political process with the Palestinians."

In the wake of the comments, Hadash MK Ahmed Tibi sent a letter to U.S. Ambassador to Israel, Dan Kurtzer, questioning whether "the American administration is a partner to Sharon's political deceit, which Weisglass revealed with incriminating candor."

Tibi said that Weisglass' comments "bolster what we have said all along, that the [disengagement] plan is a 'Sharon bluff.'"

Labor Party chairman Shimon Peres said Sharon had never told him that the disengagement plan was meant to freeze the peace process.

"He who seeks half peace will bring half war," Peres said.

Yahad MK Yossi Beilin said Weisglass' "frightening comments" were uttered in a rare moment of truth, and show Sharon's real, dangerous intentions.

The remarks "reveal the fact that it is Sharon who is not a partner for peace, and the peace camp must work for him to be overthrown," said Beilin.

Hadash MK Mohammed Barakeh called the statements grave, saying they prove that the Sharon government must be toppled as soon as possible.

These comments, Barakeh said, affirm the importance of refusing to serve in the Israel Defence Forces and the relevance of the Geneva Initiative, a peace plan co-authored by Beilin and former Palestinian minister Yasser Abed Rabbo.

Asked why the disengagement plan had been hatched, Weisglass said: "Because in the fall of 2003 we understood that everything was stuck. And although by the way the Americans read the situation, the blame fell on the Palestinians, not on us, Arik [Sharon] grasped that this state of affairs could not last, that they wouldn't leave us alone, wouldn't get off our case. Time was not on our side. There was international erosion, internal erosion. Domestically, in the meantime, everything was collapsing. The economy was stagnant, and the Geneva Initiative had gained broad support.

"And then we were hit with the letters of officers and letters of pilots and letters of commandos [refusing to serve in the territories]. These were not weird kids with green ponytails and a ring in their nose with a strong odour of grass. These were people like Spector's group [Yiftah Spector, a renowned air force pilot who signed the pilots' letter]. Really our finest young people."

Weisglass does not deny that the main achievement of the Gaza plan is the freezing of the peace process in a "legitimate manner."

"That is exactly what happened," he said. "You know, the term 'peace process' is a bundle of concepts and commitments. The peace process is the establishment of a Palestinian state with all the security risks that entails. The peace process is the evacuation of settlements, it's the return of refugees, it's the partition of Jerusalem. And all that has now been frozen… what I effectively agreed to with the Americans was that part of the settlements would not be dealt with at all, and the rest will not be dealt with until the Palestinians turn into Finns. That is the significance of what we did."

Sharon, he said, could also argue "honestly" that the disengagement plan was "a serious move because of which, out of 240,000 settlers, 190,000 will not be moved from their place."

U.S. vetoes Gaza resolution

The U. S. vetoed a UN Security Council resolution calling on Israel to halt its military operation in the Gaza Strip. Eleven countries backed the resolution last week in the Security Council, with Germany, Britain and Romania abstaining. In explaining the U.S. veto, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, John Danforth, said the resolution "does not mention even one of the 450 Qassam rocket attacks launched against Israel over the past two years," nor does it acknowledge that two Israeli children were killed by one of the attacks the previous week.

Israelis win Chemistry Nobel

Two Israelis and an American won the 2004 Nobel Prize for chemistry for helping to understand how the human body gives the "kiss of death" to faulty proteins to defend itself from diseases like cancer. Aaron Ciechanover, 57, Avram Hershko, 67 – the first Israelis to win the chemistry Nobel prize – and Irwin Rose, 78, were honoured by the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences for their work in the 1980s that discovered regulated protein degradation, one of the cell's most important cyclical processes.

UN employees arrested

Israel Defence Forces chief of operations Yisrael Ziv said the IDF arrested 13 Palestinian UN employees suspected of participating in terror activities in the Gaza Strip.

Libya eyes Israel ties

The son of Libyan leader Muammar Gadhafi met Israeli diplomats as part of efforts to normalize relations between Libya and the Jewish state. Saif Al-Islam Gadhafi held private talks with the Israeli delegation at an interparliamentary convention in Geneva last week, Yediot Achronot newspaper reported. According to the daily, this was the latest round of contacts the Libyan leader's heir apparent has initiated with Israel in hope of paving the way to normalization. Libya has already won some diplomatic admiration by offering Jewish émigrés who resettled in Israel the opportunity to return for visits.

Deadly sniper captured

The Israel Defence Forces and the Shin Bet security service arrested a Palestinian man whom they believe had killed seven soldiers and three Israeli civilians in March 2002 in a sniper attack at an IDF roadblock north of the West Bank city of Ramallah, near Ofra. Fatah member Taer Kaed Hamad, 24, was arrested in the village of Silwad, north of Ramallah, where he lives.

Iraqi visitor in trouble

An Iraqi court issued an arrest warrant for a politician who visited Israel. Mithal Al-Alusi had already been thrown out of the Iraqi National Congress after he visited Israel for a conference on terrorism last month. "What madness is this?" Al-Alusi was quoted as telling Associated Press. "They want to put me in prison with terrorists."

Files from JTA and Ha'aretz

Iran adds a new missile to its arsenal

Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

TEHRAN — Iran is able to launch a missile with a range of 2,000 kilometres, the official IRNA news agency Tuesday quoted influential former President Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani as saying. The missile could reach Israel and parts of southeastern Europe.

"Experts know that a country that possesses this can obtain all subsequent stages" in missile production, Rafsanjani told staff at the Aerospace Research Institute in Tehran.

His statement came days after Iran said it had added a "strategic missile" to its arsenal after a successful test.

In August, Iran test-fired a new version of its Shihab-3 missile. The old version was known to have a range of 1,296 kilometres (about 810 miles) – making it capable of reaching Israel and various U.S. military bases in the Middle East.

In the same month, Iranian Defence Minister Ali Shamkhani said Iran was working to improve the range and accuracy of the Shihab-3 in response to efforts by Israel to upgrade its missile system.

Israel has expressed increasingly vocal concern over Iran's nuclear development program, which, Jerusalem says, is aimed at producing nuclear weapons. Iran denies the charge, saying it is intended for electricity generation, and has warned Israel against any efforts to destroy its atomic facilities.

Israel and the United States have developed the Arrow anti-ballistic missile system. The Arrow is one of the few systems capable of intercepting and destroying missiles at high altitudes. Its development followed the 1991 Gulf War, when Iraq fired 39 Scud missiles that struck Israel.

Arrow was developed by Israel Aircraft Industries and Boeing Co. at a cost of more than $1 billion.

The "Shihab" – shooting star in Farsi – is Iran's longest-range ballistic missile. The country launched an arms development program during its 1980-88 war with Iraq to compensate for a U.S. weapons embargo.

Visit the website & mark these Dates in your Calendar
www.TorontoPartyGuide.com
PRESENTED BY CUSTOM GRAPHICS INC.
Lynn
Rick
TORONTO'S #1 FALL
WEDDING, BAR/BAT MITZVAH
Party Planning Show
6:00 pm - 10:00 pm
Wednesday, OCTOBER 20th, 2004
Beth Tzedec Synagogue • 1700 Bathurst St. Toronto
Visit website for details on the WINTER Show Jan. 18/2005 at Premiere Banquet Hall & the exciting New Spring Party Planning Showcase
FEATURING: KOSHER CATERING • FLORISTS • CONSULTANTS • MAKE UP
PHOTOGRAPHY • PARTY FAVOURS • VIDEOGRAPHY • BANDS • KETUBAH • D.J.'S • DECOR • BRIDALWEAR
DESSERTS • INVITATIONS • PARTY FAVOURS • FORMALWEAR • JUDAICA • GIFTWARE & MUCH MORE...
Planning a Simcha does NOT have to be Stressful or Expensive...Let Us Show You How!
Meet ALL The Event Planning Professionals Who Can Help Make Your Party A Success!
FREE ADMISSION • BRING THE WHOLE FAMILY • FREE SIMCHA PLANNING DIRECTORY
www.TorontoPartyGuide.com
For Information Call: Rick Levine 905 881-6400 or Lynn Cohen 905 889-1007
Fall, Winter & Spring show information will be available on the TPG website soon • Vendor Enquiries Welcome
• SHOW PRODUCED BY CUSTOM GRAPHICS INC. (CGI) • *SHOW COORDINATORS UNDER SUB-CONTRACT TO CGI • ©2004 Reproduction not permitted without written permission of the publisher CGI

Israel 5¢ per minute*
Dial 10-10-620 And Save On Long Distance
*Based on first 20 minutes for $1, each additional minute 5¢
TALK MORE... PAY LESS!
10-10-620

Health & Lifestyles

GRAND OPENING
NIJLI salonspa
521 Eglinton Avenue West
Tel 416. 488 7630

The healing power of prayer

When I reflected on my synagogue experience during the recent High Holy Days, it occurred to me that prayer, on a personal level, can be powerful.

Although I provide stress reduction and wellness coaching to others, and I try to incorporate into my regular week opportunities for personal renewal and invigoration, I now have a deeper understanding of the benefits of prayer.

Like yoga, meditation and exercise, prayer allows us to achieve a state of calm and a sense of well-being. When in synagogue, if we concentrate on understanding the prayers, focusing inward as well outward – on being kind and feeling gratitude for the people in our lives and in our community – prayer can be a truly uplifting experience.

Prayer can move us to tears of sadness, tears of joy and tears of resolve to do better, and can create in us energy and urgency to move forward in our lives. Hearing the ancient melodies of the Yom Kippur service uplifted my spirit to a level of clarity that I rarely otherwise achieve.

Being together in a synagogue with family, friends and acquaintances brought us a strong sense of community that seemed to put a smile on everyone's face. We all seemed to feel that we were connected to something significant – and that each and every one of us was a special and unique part of the whole.

I closed my eyes as the congregation sang together, feeling shivers go through me as the power of our voices and the melodic chanting of the cantor evoked emotions that restored in us a sense of hope, meaning and purpose.

Seeing my children next to me in such a holy place reminded me of what is truly meaningful, and reinforced my commitment to build on and enhance our family values and close connection to one another.

If we can't get to synagogue, heartfelt personal prayer can also be very moving. Just as I try to work out and stretch every day, I know many women who are committed to formal prayer each day. They find a quiet place in their home where they can recite both Jewish and personal prayers that help them to reconnect, on a daily basis, with what is truly important to them. It helps them to keep life's challenges and daily struggles in perspective.

If we could find a few extra minutes each day to pray, and combine that with some sort of regular physical activity, imagine how strong, supple and resilient our mind-body connection would be.

I know that, for me, prayer adds a new dimension to my ability to focus and attain a sense of calm and well-being. I plan to add prayer to my repertoire of strategies for achieving balance, inner peace and vitality.

Shelley Millman Herman provides both personal and corporate lifestyle and wellness coaching. She can be reached at shelley.millman@sympatico.ca.

L'Chaim
CANCER SUPPORT FOR JEWISH WOMEN
CANCER?
We've "been there."
We are Jewish women cancer survivors who can "be there" for you during your cancer journey.
We provide confidential support via phone or visit to Jewish women undergoing cancer treatment.
Please call: 416-633-0409

Clinic to screen for hereditary genetic diseases

By LEILA SPEISMAN
Staff Reporter

A free screening clinic for hereditary genetic diseases will be held Oct. 24, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Council House, 4700 Bathurst St.

You must be at least 16 years old, and provide your family physician's name and contact information.

Hereditary genetic diseases can appear when both parents carry the same recessive genetic trait. They themselves will not necessarily have the disease; indeed, they may not even be aware that their family is at risk.

Some ethnic groups are at higher risk for certain diseases. For example, sickle cell anemia is found mainly in blacks, and thalassemia in Mediterranean, African and southeast Asian populations.

Ashkenazi Jews are also at risk for particular diseases, especially Tay-Sachs, Canavan and Familial Dysautonomia. These are all fatal diseases that primarily strike young children. They attack the central nervous system and cause early death by progressive degeneration. There are no known cures.

With each pregnancy, if both parents are carriers, there is a one in four chance of conceiving a child with that disease, a two in four chance of having a healthy child who is a carrier, and a one in four chance of having a healthy child who is not a carrier.

If only one parent carries the gene, any child may also be a carrier. Anyone may be a carrier for more than one of these or other inherited diseases.

The screening clinic at Council House, in collaboration with the Hospital for Sick Children, will test for these three diseases, through a simple blood test.

Results will be sent to your family doctor. If at least one partner is a carrier, the information will also be sent to you, and you will be informed about how and where to get genetic counselling.

It should be noted that in the past 25 years, testing of high-risk populations has greatly reduced the number of children born with Tay-Sachs disease, according to a National Council of Jewish Women website.

Screening clinic sponsors are National Council of Jewish Women of Canada, Toronto Section, Jacob's Ladder, UJA Federation Board of Jewish Education, national Tay-Sachs and Allied Diseases, Dysautonomia Foundation Inc. and The Canadian Society for the Weizmann Institute of Science. A donation from the estate of Louis Uger has funded the screening program.

For more information, call 416-633-5100, or go to www.whatsinyourgenes.com.

Exhibition:

Contemporary Jewish Life in Berlin
Admission free

presented by:
Bathurst JCC/Koffler Centre, Goethe-Institut,Holocaust Education Week, Miles Nadal JCC

Sept 20 - Nov 4, 2004
Bathurst JCC and
Koffler Centre of the Arts
4588 Bathurst St.
416-636-1880
www.kofflercentre.com

Nov 7 - Dec 6, 2004
Miles Nadal JCC
750 Spadina Ave.
416-924-6211
www.milesnadaljcc.ca

Tue, Oct 12, 7.30 pm - Exhibition Opening lecture and discussion with Dr. Hermann Simon, Director Centrum Judaicum, New Synagogue Berlin, and Deborah Simon in the Jerusalem Room of the Bathurst JCC/Koffler Centre; Moderator and Respondent Prof. Michael Bodemann

Wed, Oct 13, 7.30 pm - Lecture and Discussion with Dr. Hermann and Deborah Simon; Moderator and respondent Prof. Michael Brown at the Goethe-Institut, 163 King St. W, co- hosted by Miles Nadal JCC for more information visit www.goethe.de/toronto

Vinnette Mohan, C.C.Ht.
Director & Certified Clinical Hypnotherapist

Making Positive Changes

Dear Valued Customer:
If you're planning to lose weight, stop smoking, or make any other Positive Change, we can help. Visit us at www.positivechangestoronto.com and view the many testimonials from people just like you ... people for whom hypnosis has succeeded where other methods have failed. Give us a call; it will be our pleasure to assist you in attaining your goals.
– Vinnette Mohan, C.C.Ht., Director Of Operations Canada

CALL TODAY FOR YOUR FREE CONSULTATION
Positive Changes Yes, It Works.
POSITIVE CHANGES TORONTO
416.488.4724 • 801 York Mills Road at Leslie
www.positivechangestoronto.com

STANDARD Property Management Corporation
management & services
call David 416.928.4885

EMPIRE AUCTIONS is offering by public auction an outstanding collection of Canadian paintings, international artwork, outstanding fine antique French furniture as well as other fine antique and contemporary furniture, superb wristwatches and jewellery, beautiful rugs, rare coins, collectibles, decorative items, and more!

More than 1,000 lots to be sold!

Great Bargains! PUBLIC ESTATE AUCTION

Auction to be held:

Sunday, Oct. 17
starting at 1pm and
Monday, Oct. 18
starting at 7pm and
Tuesday, Oct. 19
starting at 7pm

Viewing will be on Saturday, Oct. 16, 10am to 5pm and Sunday, Oct. 17, 11am until the start of the auction.
Sorry, no children please.

Georgian-style 7-piece carved mahogany bedroom suite, just one of hundreds of lots of fine and antique furniture: dining room sets, chairs, sofas, tables, commodes, etc.

5-piece Continental .835f silver tea and coffee service, Germany

48-pc. Bulgari (Rosenthal, Germany) porcelain dinner service, "Frutta Finestra" pattern, complete for 12 persons. Also... many other lots of porcelain and crystal tablewares.

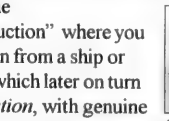
Dear friend,

I want you to come see what we offer here at EMPIRE AUCTIONS. This is not some hyped-up "airport-hangar-auction" or "hotel-auction" where you are led to believe that seized treasures are taken from a ship or airplane to be offered at unbelievable savings, which later on turn out to be no great deals at all. This is a real auction, with genuine high-quality merchchandise, consigned by real people like you, and offered in a legitamate auction. We are a family business serving Canadians for over 40 years. We own our own buildings in Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal, with a full time staff of professionals including art experts, gemologists, numismatists and certified appraisers. We are here to serve you, whether you are selling or buying, on a regular basis.

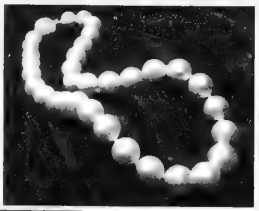
Check out our website to see more of what is in this auction; www.empireauctions.com. I invite you to come and visit us at the viewing, our open house, to see what we have to offer. Our repeat customers keep coming back because of the great variety of beautiful merchandise offered and because of the great bargains they go home with.

When you visit, mention this ad for your free catalogue.

Michael Rogozinsky
President, EMPIRE AUCTIONS
Certified Appraiser



18 karat white gold 2.08 carats diamond ear-studs, from a fabulous selection of jewellery including beautiful diamond and coloured gemstone rings and bracelets



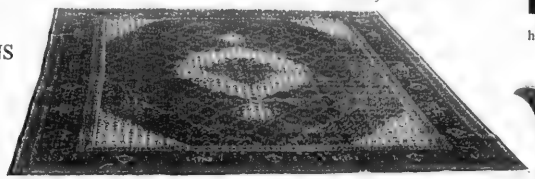
Superb princess-length necklace of 33 cultured South Sea 10.80 mm. to 14.80 mm. pearls

Gabriel Guay (French, b. 1848) Drawing water at the riverbank, oil on canvas, 22½" x 27", from a large collection of Canadian and International paintings: Canadian paintings include: C. Krieghoff, F.S. Coburn, H. Masson, R. Richard, and many others.

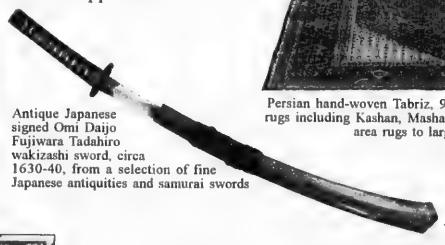
Selection of chandeliers, hanging fixtures, and lamps

Large selection of fine and vintage wristwatches for men and ladies: Several Rolex watches including: Man's white gold and stainless Datejust, Man's 18 karat gold "Daytona" Cosmopgraph, Lady's yellow gold and stainless Datejust

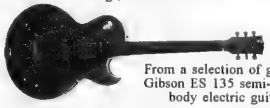
Men's 18 karat yellow gold Patek Philippe wristwatches. Also in this auction: Vacheron Constantin, Jaeger LeCoultre, Omega, etc.



Persian hand-woven Tabriz, 9'8" x 13'1", from a collection of more than 150 fine rugs including Kashan, Mashad, Kerman, Nain and others, in many sizes, from small area rugs to large full-room-size rugs, as well as runners



Antique Japanese signed Omi Daijo Fujiwara Tadahiro wakizashi sword, circa 1630-40, from a selection of fine Japanese antiquities and samurai swords



From a selection of guitars: Gibson ES 135 semi-hollow body electric guitar

XIXth C. American silver-plated pitcher with hinged lid, by Simpson, Hall, Miller & Co., 12" tall

Collection of gold coins, high-grade Canadian certified coins, sets, and bulk lots

Canadian stamps including Queen Victoria Jubilee commemorative issues

More than 1,000 lots are offered in this auction. To see many more, visit our website:

www.empireauctions.com

Feel free to call us for more information (estimates, diamond grades, etc.). We also provide the following services: Appraisals, Free estimates, outright purchase of estates and select articles.
Gemologists, Art experts and Rare Coin experts on full-time staff.
If you would like to receive our full colour flyers in the mail each month, at no charge, please call us to be added to our confidential mailing list.

Lady's 14 karat white gold tennis bracelet set with 10.06 carats round brilliant cut diamonds

EMPIRE AUCTIONS

Established 1964. Permanent showrooms in Montreal - Toronto - Ottawa
165 Tycos Drive, Toronto, Ont. M6B 1W6 Tel: 416-784-4261 www.empireauctions.com

FLORIDA, ARIZONA, CALIFORNIA, CANADA
WE SEND YOUR CAR & CONTENTS (and return)
CALL 416-225-7754
www.torontodriveaway.com
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY SERVICE
5803 Yonge St., #101
North York M2M 3V5
Since 1959

Subscribe to
The Canadian Jewish news

GERDA ROSNER
SPA SPECIAL
The Saxony Resort & Spa
3201
Three meals daily. • Luxury accommodations
• Daily Massages, Facials
• Brand New Equipped Fitness Center
• Chair Aerobics, Water Aerobics
• Yoga, Linedancing, Craft Studio
• Exciting Daily & Nightly Shows
• Oceanfront Boardwalk & Beach
• 5 minutes from South Beach
• Flea Markets & Chauffeur Service
79$ daily U.S.
p.p. dbl. occ. plus air fare gratuities & tax
Rates apply to Jan 20/05 and March 3 - April 20/05
Call Gerda Toll Free 1-866-489-4148

encore entertainment presents
A Thousand Clowns
A comedy by Herb Gardner

October 28th-November 7th, 2004
Toronto Centre for the Arts
(formerly Ford Centre)
5040 Yonge Street, Toronto

Adults:	Students/Seniors:
$26.00 evenings	$24.00 evenings
$24.00 matinees	$22.00 matinees

GROUP DISCOUNTS... Call (416) 733-0558
Tickets: (416) 733-0558
Or in person at the Toronto Centre Box Office
www.encoreshows.com

Message to CJN Snowbirds

If you will be spending all or part of this winter outside of Canada, there are three options available to you regarding delivery of your Canadian Jewish News.

1/ Continue regular delivery to your home, and arrange for Canada Post to forward The CJN on with your other mail each week.

2/ Advise our Circulation Department to suspend delivery until your return to Canada with no weeks lost in your subscription period.

3/ Arrange with our Circulation Department to redirect The CJN to your winter address at a cost of $10.00 per month for U.S. addresses and $11.00 per month for foreign addresses.

This charge -- payable by cheque, Visa, Mastercard or American Express before departure -- covers the cost of additional postage incurred for out of country mailings.

To make any change in your delivery please fax 416-391-0949 or call the Circulation Department at 416-391-1836 (ext. 224), allowing a minimum of three weeks notice.

Arts & Travel

Film pays homage to Argentina explosion

By DAVID SALVADOR
Special to the CJN

The Argentine film 18-J which recently premiered in Canada at the Bloor Cinema in Toronto, takes its title from the terrorist bombing in Buenos Aires which killed 85 people on July 18, 1994.

The bombing of the Argentina-Israel Mutual Association (AMIA) also injured 300.

The AMIA had just celebrated its centenary, and its explosion by a bomb-laden van, was the deadliest single incident of terrorism against Jews since World War II.

The film comprises 10 stories of approximately 10 minutes each directed by 10 directors.

Starting with a brief history of the AMIA and an account of the terrorist attack, the film pays homage to the memory of the victims.

The filmmakers demand justice and for the truth to be known. At the beginning and end of the film, the names of the victims are written and the film reminds us that "without memory it is impossible to build the future."

The films range from the traditional narrative, to the testimonial and the experimental, and flow with surprising cohesion considering the diverse styles of the directors.

The strengths of most of the episodes, especially towards the end, compensate for a few weak, confusing segments. The directors use their particular vision and fictional stories focused on the lives of the victims and of the survivors and families to give their impressions of the attack that day.

Among the best directed episodes, Alberto Lecchi's The Call stands out.

Choosing the perspective of a humble family living in The Quebrada in the mountainous north far away from Buenos Aires whose son may have died in the attack, he shows how the anti-Semitic attack was a crime against all Argentines.

Their son had left the village to find employment in the capital and was living in Barrio 11 near the AMIA. Watching the terrible event unfold on the television news, the younger sister asks "What's a Jew?" and is told "Jesus was a Jew darling."

Alejandro Doria directs the actress Susu Pecoraro in Shame, an intense monologue in which she tells the history of the trial denouncing the complicity of the state intelligence apparatus, of the ex-president Carlos Menem, and of the judge Juan Jose Galeano in the cover up and failure to capture the perpetrators.

Warnings from foreign secret services and Argentina's ambassador in Lebanon several months before the attack were ignored, and the trail that led back to Syria and Iranian-backed Hezbollah was never properly investigated. Evidence was destroyed in order for the government to protect itself.

In Adrian Suar's segment Surprise a man videotapes himself in front of the AMIA stressing the "duty to value and watch over our traditions" before looking for a gift to take to his nephew's ritual circumcision. He will never make it.

The last episode Memory is directed by Carlos Sorin. It shows family photos of the victims, with the names of these men, women and children, putting human faces on the tragedy.

The choreographer Mauricio Wainrot directs a ballet scene which may seem out of place, but its understated suffering is more emotionally moving than a few overwrought segments that show the explosion.

Lucia Cedron's Mitzvah has the popular Argentine comic actor Norman Erlich who introduced the film at the Toronto premiere. He plays Jaco in the scene where his wife Marga shows concern for their daughter in Israel hearing a news report about casualties there. They are unprepared for the unexpected violence in Buenos Aires.

A scene from the ballet segment in 18-J.

In his introduction at the screening, Erlich talked about the generosity of the directors who worked for free on the project. He recalled his days in the seminary of Hebrew teachers at the AMIA, and the important history that was lost with the destruction of its library.

The AMIA has been rebuilt and is again the centre of the Jewish community's cultural, social and artistic activities he stated.

All the box office proceeds are going to 10 charitable organizations in Argentina including the AMIA, Family and Friends of the Victims, Active Memory, Grandmothers of the Plaza de Mayo, and the Simon Wiesenthal Centre, making it a good candidate for fundraising events.

The film premiered in movie theatres in Argentina last August.

It was shown here in its original Spanish with English subtitles as part of Si Si Cine, the oldest Latin film festival in Canada, celebrating its 13th year.

Arts & Travel

The Diary of Anne Frank a sensitive portrayal of a precocious teen

By SHELDON KIRSHNER
Staff Reporter

Wendy Kesselman's adapted version of The Diary of Anne Frank, playing at the Bathurst Street Theatre until Nov. 7, is a sensitive portrait of a feisty and precocious Jewish teenager under siege whose personal tragedy was a microcosm of the Holocaust.

The diarist who appears in this two-hour play – ably directed by Alexander Galant, himself the son of Holocaust survivors – is a heart-breaking symbol of the 1.5 million Jewish children who were brutally murdered during this frightful era.

As poignantly portrayed by Jennifer Waiser, Anne is a bouncing girl whose youth and vitality are jostled by external events beyond her control and that of her parents, Otto and Edith.

In an entry that signifies her ambivalence, she writes, "I see the world being slowly transformed into a wilderness, I hear the approaching thunder that, one day, will destroy us too, I feel the suffering of millions. And yet, when I look up at the sky, I somehow feel that everything will change for the better, that this cruelty too shall end, that peace and tranquility will return once more."

The person who writes these piercing words is both a pessimist and an optimist, someone who has taken the measure of reality, but who feels in her heart of hearts that this immense shadow will pass.

In this revamped edition of The Diary of Anne Frank, Anne is a far more realistic character than she was as originally conceived by the playwrights Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett. She is also more Jewish. Thankfully, having been de-sanitized by Kesselman, Anne is presented as a normal, vulnerable teenager rather than as a virtual saint.

Here, on a plain set that conveys the bleakness of the secret annex she and seven other Jews had to endure until they were betrayed and shipped off to death camps, Anne blossoms socially and intellectually.

Longing for the fun and normality that eludes her, she flirts with Peter Van Daan (Gabe Plener), a rather shy 16-year-old whose parents, Herman (Philip Shepherd) and Petronella (Sarah Dodd), are constantly at odds.

And as she comes to grips with her evolving femininity, Anne seizes the initiative in their budding but doomed romance.

Throughout the play, Anne is seen jotting entries in her diary, which has been translated into 67 languages and, after the Bible, is the world's most widely read book. It is a source of comfort to her, an alternative universe where she can "shake off her cares" and unburden herself of her anxieties and record her joys.

Anne's troubled relationship with her mother (Carol Lempert) is hardly glossed over. Anne clearly dislikes her, and at one point, she actually imagines life without her. Certainly, Edith is not as attached to Anne as she is to her older, more subdued daughter Margot (Shira Leuchter).

Edith, though maternal and well-meaning, simply rubs Anne the wrong way. When, for example, Edith demands that the Van Daans leave the annex after the ravenous Herman steals a half-eaten loaf of bread, Anne practically goes ballistic.

By contrast, Anne's special relationship with her father is characterized by unconditional love and mutual trust. Otto (Andrew Gillies), a businessman who fled Nazi Germany in 1933, is a tower of strength. He is convinced that the annex, above his warehouse in central Amsterdam, is the "perfect hiding place."

And he has no doubt that Miep Gies (Kelly Bolt), the fine Dutch Christian woman who provides them with food, drink and news, will not betray them.

The Diary of Anne Frank, which takes place between 1942 and 1944, unfolds against the backdrop of crackling newscasts, the swing version of Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen and mounting tension.

When Dussel (Eric Weinthal), the dentist, joins the Franks and the Van Daans in their confined, somewhat claustrophobic quarters, he informs them that the Jews of Amsterdam are fast disappearing under the pressure of the Nazi dragnet. He adds that Westerbork, the transit camp en route to Auschwitz, awaits all Jews unlucky enough not to have found a haven.

But as fortunate as they may be, they are constantly assailed by the fear of discovery and by pangs of hunger. In the play's most powerful scene, Otto Frank sits forlornly at a kitchen table and recounts the terrible fate of his family after their betrayal.

In The Diary of Anne Frank, whose actors acquit themselves with aplomb, Anne hears the distant storm closing in on her and her loved ones. But their hour of liberation never comes, and the Franks, like the Jews of Europe, are scattered by the winds of war.

TARRAGON
The Unexpected Man
By Yasmina Reza
Translated by Christopher Hampton
"What an exquisite brief encounter this is." – Newsday
STARRING Les Carlson and Deborah Kipp DIRECTED BY Chris Abraham
SET & COSTUME DESIGN Aidan Leroux LIGHTING DESIGN Kevin Lamotte
SOUND DESIGN Rick Hyslop STAGE MANAGER Kate Macdonnell
Oct. 5 to Nov. 7 previews Sept. 28 – Oct. 3
Tarragon Theatre www.tarragontheatre.com

FAMILY & BAR/BAT MITZVAH TOURS
DEC. 19-JAN. 3
MARCH BREAK & PASSOVER '05
MARCH 10-22
MARCH 17-29
APRIL 21-MAY 4 (PASSOVER)
SUMMER '05
JULY 3-17
JULY 10-24
JULY 31-AUG. 14
AUG. 18-SEPT. 1
SUMMER YOUNG COUPLES TOUR
JULY 5-17 '05
TRAVEL TO ISRAEL ON AN AMAZING TRIP WHILE YOUR KIDS ARE IN CAMP
ISRAEL 2004-2005
We know Israel best. We send more people to Israel than any other travel agency.
December Family Tours almost SOLD OUT!
CALL TODAY! BOOK NOW!
• The best deluxe tours in North America • All-inclusive deluxe hotels • More days of sightseeing • More meals • A true family itinerary • Greatest value
Our website: www.israelfamilytours.com
PEERLESS TRAVEL
YOUR FULL SERVICE TRAVEL AGENCY
We will match or beat any internet price worldwide 9 times out of 10 on any flight or package while providing personal service. Check us out!!!!
For daily worldwide specials - www.peerlesstravel.com
905-886-5610
Toll Free 800-294-1663
info@peerlesstravel.com
7117 Bathurst St. #200, Thornhill, Ont. L4J 2J2
ISRAEL
March 20-31/05
Led by Rabbi Scheim
Very Innovative Itinerary
Canadian Hadassah-WIZO Solidarity Mission
Israel & Budapest
March 16-28/05
Machal & Israeli War Veterans
May 8-19/05
Join Yom Hazikaron/Yom Ha'atzmaut Ceremonies
Incl. 7 days touring, many meals & more!! Call us now!
CALL US FOR BEST
•AIR FARES TO TEL AVIV
•HOTEL RATES IN ISRAEL
Ask about our Prestige tours departing weekly
ELYAVNI
AIR CANADA

OUR NETWORK IS YOUR ADVANTAGE
1.416.961.KYIV
1.416.961.5948
www.aerosvit.com
Only Aerosvit Airlines provides non-stop service between Toronto and Kyiv, and offers smooth connections to:
– major cities in Ukraine
– Middle East: Tel Aviv
– Central and Eastern Europe: Moscow, St. Petersburg, Riga, Budapest, Warsaw, Prague
– and more!
AEROCBIT AEROSVIT
УКРАЇНСЬКІ АВІАЛІНІЇ UKRAINIAN AIRLINES

Toronto Film College
Join Our Exciting Workshops for Adults & Youth! Filming, Acting, Editing, Writing
Check Website for Details!
36 Eglinton Ave West, 7th Floor, Toronto, Ontario, Canada M4R 1A1
Tel: (416) 484-1577
tfc@torontofilmcollege.ca
www.torontofilmcollege.ca
Now Offering a December Break Program

Eye on Arts

By Bill Gladstone

PUBLIC IS INVITED TO 'FIRST OF ITS KIND' CHASSIDIC STORYTELLING SYMPOSIUM AT QUEEN'S

The Jewish studies department of Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., is hosting a symposium on chassidic storytelling this month that is believed to be the first of its kind at any university. All events are free and the public is warmly invited.

The Harry Rosen Memorial Symposium on Hasidic Tales takes place Oct. 16 to 18, with famous storytellers and leading scholars in attendance. Acclaimed storyteller Diane Wolkstein, author of The Magic Orange Tree and other works of myth and folk tales, is slated to open the symposium with a discussion of biblical and chassidic stories. Other participants include storyteller and spiritual teacher Yitzhak Buxbaum from New York City, and storyteller Moishe Yida Leibowitz from Brooklyn, nephew of the chassidic grand rabbi of Nikolsburg.

Canadian scholars in attendance are to include Rabbi Neal Rose from Winnipeg, William Shaffir from McMaster University, Ira Robinson from Concordia University and Anna Shternshis from the University of Toronto. Numerous international scholars are also expected.

"This is a major cultural event," said co-ordinator Rabbi Justin Jaron Lewis, director of Jewish studies at Queen's. "These speakers and storytellers are leading lights, and this is the first time they will all be together under one roof... There is something in this symposium for everyone – whether you appreciate Jewish culture, are searching for spiritual wisdom, or simply enjoy good stories."

The symposium is being sponsored by the family of the late Kingston philanthropist Harry Rosen, with some additional funding from the Kingston Arts Council. 234 Theological Hall, Queen's University. 613-533-6359. E-mail judaism@post.queensu.ca. Website qsilver.queensu.ca/jewishstudies/.

* * *

Yiddishland Café: Workmen's Circle presents "Not Raisins, Not Almonds: A Celebration of the Spirit of the Lodz Ghetto Jews." This Yiddishland Café evening in Yiddish and English features singers Denise Williams and Michael Mandel, actor Alon Nashman and musicians Brahm Goldhamer and Noah Miller. Tickets $12. 471 Lawrence Ave. W. Sunday, Oct. 17, 7:30 p.m. (Doors open 7 p.m.) Reservations, 416-787-2081 (Monday to Friday).

* * *

Names in the News: Theresa Tova & Friends salute Broadway at two shows at the Top of the Senator on Victoria Street, Oct. 25 and Nov. 1... The U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum and the Holocaust Survivors Memoirs Project of the World Jewish Congress have published Legacy and Redemption: A Life Renewed, a Holocaust memoir by Joseph E. Tenenbaum. A survivor of several forced labour and concentration camps including Mauthausen and Ebensee, Tenenbaum became a major figure in Canada's philanthropic and business communities... After living in Los Angeles for a few years with husband, pop composer John Capek, Batsheva (and family) has returned to Canada – and the concert stage. The folksinger-songwriter brings her signature repertoire of Ladino and Yiddish songs and satire to the Free Times Cafe, 320 College St. Saturday, Oct. 16. Reservations, 416-962-1078.

* * *

Books & Bagels: Rabbi Elyse Goldstein discusses The Women's Haftarah Commentary (Jewish Lights Publishing). The book, which Goldstein edited, is "a major contribution to modern biblical commentary and the ideal companion to Rabbi Goldstein's earlier collection, The Women's Torah Commentary."

Nadal JCC, Bloor at Spadina. Members $5, non-members $8; includes coffee and bagels. Sunday, Oct. 17, 11 a.m. 416-924-6211.

Future programs include Andrea Most, author of Making Americans: Jews and the Broadway Musical (Harvard University Press) on Sunday, Oct. 24; and the 13th annual launch of Parchment, Canada's only journal of contemporary Canadian Jewish writing, Sunday, Nov. 14.

* * *

Literary Events

- Dr. Annette Poizner, writer, psychotherapist and graphologist, speaks on her book The Kabbalah and the Psychology of Handwriting. Admission $10; refreshments. Israel's Judaica, 870 Eglinton Ave. W. Thursday, Oct. 14, 8 p.m. 416-280-6442.
- The Winchevsky Centre Book Club discusses Mme. Proust and the Kosher Kitchen, the novel by Kate Taylor that won the 2003 Canadian Jewish Book Award for fiction. Sunday, Oct. 17, 10:30 a.m. 416-789-5502.
- The Brown Bag book discussion group starts Thursday, Oct. 21 with The Singing Fire by Lilian Nattel. Nadal JCC. 416-924-6211.

* * *

Arts in Brief

- Children's entertainers Judy & David perform for youngsters ages 3 to 8 at the Living Arts Centre in Mississauga. $10 to $25. Sunday, Oct. 17, 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. 905-306.6000.
- Toronto Jewish Film Society continues its 26th season with the recent Israeli short features Three Fingers, directed by Daphna Levin, and Mother V, directed by Shachar Rozen. Nadal JCC, Al Green Theatre. Sunday, Oct. 17, 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. 416-924-6211, ext. 222.
- The Koffler School of Music presents The Travellers, honouring the music of The Weavers. $30 in advance, $35 at the door. Leah Posluns Theatre, 4588 Bathurst St. Monday, Oct. 18, 8 p.m. 416-636-1880, ext. 228.

Chief Executive Officer

Our client, The Jewish Foundation of Manitoba, receives and invests capital gifts and distributes the income to local, national and Israeli communities to support educational, cultural, health and social service organizations.

Reporting to the Board, the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) is responsible for providing leadership and direction to the Foundation. The CEO will actively participate in the community, developing outstanding relationships with donors, community members and stakeholders. Responsible for renewing the vision, the CEO will increase the visibility and profile of the Foundation in the community. The CEO will continually build the organization and assist the Board in achieving accelerated financial and growth targets. Additionally, the CEO will support the investment committee, direct the annual budgeting process, and review the Foundation's operating plans.

As the ideal candidate, you are a confident, results-oriented senior leader who sets high standards for achievement and accomplishments. Polished communication skills and exceptional interpersonal skills gain you credibility and trust inside and outside the organization. You have a strong understanding of the Jewish community and solid managerial experience with investments.

Should this exceptional opportunity be of interest to you, please forward your MS Word format resumé quoting file #042160 in the subject line to Careers@ArmstrongDay.com

Armstrong International

We thank all applicants for their interest; however, only those selected for an interview will be contacted.

Member of World Search Group
37 Offices in 24 Countries

Armstrong Day International
A division of People First HR Services
The 3rd Fastest Growing Company in Manitoba www.armstrongday.com

Vancouver Edmonton Calgary Saskatoon Winnipeg Toronto Montreal

CJN DATING

Meet Your Match!

Visit www.cjndating.com today - the best choice for Canadian Jewish singles!

New: CHAT!
Participate in live one-on-one chat sessions, in real-time... See who is online right now, and chat away!

Visit CJNDating to:
Join Free!
Reply to messages Free!
Participate in Chat for Free!
And much more....

CJNDating helping the community:
Jewish Singles With Special Needs: JSWSN.org is a FREE service helping anyone with a disability find love & companionship! For more Info call: 514-487-2451.

Powered by JMATCH
JEWISH INTERACTIVE DATING

Canadian Jewish News Dating. Well read. Well Matched!

Books & Authors

Israeli diplomat recalls dramatic airlift of Ethiopian Jews

By SHELDON KIRSHNER
Staff Reporter

Asher Naim, Israel's former ambassador to Ethiopia, played an integral role in one of the most inspirational movements of people in history – the airlift of thousands of Ethiopian Jews to Israel in Operation Solomon in 1991.

Within a frenetic 25-hour period from May 24 to May 25, which taxed Israel's resources to the limit, 35 military and civilian planes flew 14,200 Falashas to their new home in Israel.

Asher Naim

Naim, a seasoned diplomat, tells this story of secrecy, stealth and calculation in an exceptionally well-written book, Saving the Lost Tribe (Random House).

His narrative brims with drama and foreign intrigue and unfolds against the turbulent backdrop of civil war in Ethiopia, an underdeveloped country whose Jewish population lived in isolation and had little or no contact with Diaspora Jewry for centuries.

Naim, the son of a barber who was born in Libya, arrived in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia's ramshackle capital, in the autumn of 1990, fresh from a two-year ambassadorship in Finland. In Helsinki, he had orchestrated the emigration of tens of thousands of Russian Jews to Israel.

Understandably enough, he must have dreaded his new assignment in Ethiopia, a mainly Christian nation with a sizable Muslim minority. His immediate predecessor, Meir Yoffe, had been the subject of a Libyan assassination attempt.

Naim's mission was to expedite the transfer of Ethiopian Jews, otherwise known as Falashas or Beta Israel, to their ancestral homeland.

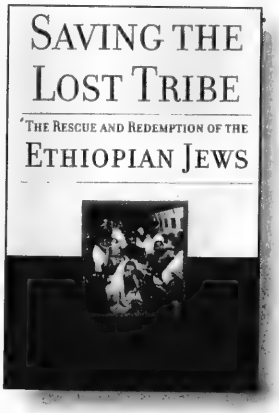
Predominantly farmers, weavers, potters and craftsmen, the Beta Israel lived primarily in villages in the rugged highlands of northern Ethiopia.

Cut off from developments in Judaism, the Falashas knew nothing about the Mishnah, Talmud and other rabbinical literature. Nor did they celebrate Chanukah and Purim.

Though they co-existed with their non-Jewish neighbours, they were demonized and regularly persecuted. And they were not permitted to be landowners.

The Christians in their midst called them Falashas, or strangers.

In Amharic, Ethiopia's national language, the word Falasha was considered a derogatory term.



These black and brown complexioned Jews were "discovered" in the 1860s by British missionaries, who were surprised that the Beta Israel observed the Sabbath, maintained strict dietary laws, performed religious rituals as described in the Hebrew Bible and yearned to return to Israel.

The first Beta Israel immigrated to Israel in the mid-1950s, shortly after the Jewish Agency – an arm of the Zionist movement – established a Jewish school in Asmara, a city in the province of Eritrea.

By the early 1970s, several hundred Ethiopian Jews lived in Israel. Once the rabbinate formally recognized them as Jews, they came to Israel in much greater numbers.

Ethiopia, which was of strategic concern to Israel, severed diplomatic ties with Israel during the 1973 Yom Kippur War. But within several years, the two countries resumed normal relations.

When Naim took up his post in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia was in utter turmoil. Two Arab-supported rebel groups, the Eritrean Peoples Liberation Front and the Tigrean Peoples Liberation Front, had declared war on the central government and demanded independence in Eritrea.

The president of Ethiopia, Mengistu Haile Miriam, a Marxist who had flirted with the Soviet Union and whom Naim describes as a "killer," attempted to stem the tide. The problem was that his ragtag army was short of modern military equipment.

Moscow and its Eastern European allies had supplied Ethiopia with arms. But after the collapse of the Soviet Union and the end of the Cold War, Mengistu switched sides and turned to the United States and Israel for assistance.

Naim quickly recognized that Mengistu would not permit the Beta Israel to leave en masse unless Israel co-operated. As he puts it none too diplomatically: "He was holding Jews hostage for weapons to keep his bloody regime afloat."

Naim's chief interlocutor in the Ethiopian government was Kasa Kabede, an urbane and wily official who was Mengistu's chief advisor on relations with the United States and Israel.

He had studied at the Hebrew University and was fluent in Hebrew. His father had gone into exile in Jerusalem with Haile-Selassie – the Ethiopian emperor – after Italy's invasion of Ethiopia in 1935.

When Kasa met with a senior Israeli diplomat in Washington, he demanded a $100 million "loan" to facilitate the emigration of Ethiopian Jews.

"It was pure blackmail," fumes Naim in this surprisingly frank memoir.

He was not the sole Ethiopian official on the take.

When he was asked whether it would be possible to increase the number of Beta Israel emigrants, the foreign minister, Tesfaye Dinka, replied, "As many as you want."

"As many as you want for the right price was what he meant," observes Naim caustically.

As Naim reveals, "We began to think of evacuating all the Falashas before the country collapsed."

He enlisted the help of the Americans, particularly President George Bush, and Operation Solomon was set into motion.

The Ethiopians initially agreed to let 9,000 Beta Israel leave, but when Naim balked, they acceded to his demand. Israel paid Ethiopia $35 million (US) for its co-operation.

Gen. Amon Shahak, the Israeli army's deputy chief of staff, mapped out the plan for Operation Solomon.

It was modelled after Operation Moses in 1984, which brought some 9,000 Ethiopian Jews to Israel.

The route from the Israeli embassy grounds, where the Beta Israel had gathered, was secured by Israeli commandos flown in expressly for the occasion.

Eight Israeli Foreign Ministry officials, including Haim Divon, Israel's future ambassador to Canada, were also on hand.

The scale of the operation was mind-boggling, and Naim suggests that it could not have been pulled off without the help of, among others, the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee.

Interestingly enough, the advancing rebels promised they would neither interfere with nor disrupt the operation.

Realizing that his days in Ethiopia were numbered under a new regime, Kasa joined the flight of Jews to Israel.

Such was the rush that the planes were stripped of their seats to make more room for more passengers.

"One jumbo jet, which usually carried fewer than 500 passengers, took 1,087, a feat recorded in the Guinness Book of Records," Naim adds.

Upon his return to Jerusalem, Naim was duly honoured for his exemplary work

He had achieved something of a miracle, and his good works are felicitously recorded in Saving the Lost Tribe.

Dining Pleasures

Meron
BANQUETS
Tel: 905-669-0777
Fax: 905.669.2201
• Weddings • Bar/Bat Mitzvahs • Corporate Events
Elegance for every Occasion
1600 Steeles Ave. West (at Dufferin)

Pâtisserie La Cigogne
FINE FRENCH PASTRIES
WEDDING CAKES
DESSERTS FOR ALL
YOUR SPECIAL OCCASIONS
European Culinary Salon
Gold Medal Winner
20% OFF
WHEN YOU PRESENT THIS AD
VALID UNTIL DECEMBER 31st, 2004
1626 Bayview Avenue
(just south of Eglinton)
416-487-1234
Mon.-Fri. 7:30am-7:00pm, Sat. 8:00am-7:00pm, Sun. 8:00am-5:30pm

Arts & Travel

Montreal actor steams up the tube in Paradise Falls

By KATHRYN KATES
Special to The CJN

When Allen Altman attended Montreal's Rabbinical College as a young man, not many would have imagined that years later he would be steaming up the small screen with his sultry good looks on the provocative television series Paradise Falls.

Altman, 40, plays folk artist Billy Hunter, a lifelong resident of Northern Ontario's fictional Paradise Falls.

"During the first season Billy was going through a lot; he acted more like an adolescent," Altman said.

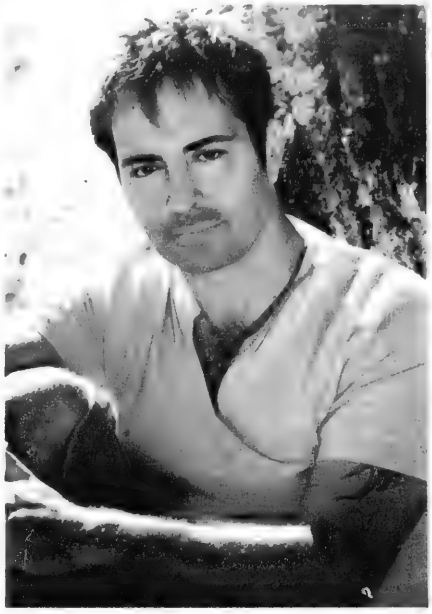
"This season is based on him coming to terms with growing up and dealing with what it is like to be fully responsible. He is married to Val and has a newborn son Jackson.

"The dynamic there is that my character is an artist and I'm married to a cop, so we come from very different worlds.

"Billy is based on emotions and a lot of things Val does are based on the law and semantics. Many elements of the storyline are great for my character, making him face the truth and deal with life as a fully grown man," says Altman.

For those who haven't seen Paradise Falls, be forewarned there is plenty of nudity but except for a two-second view of Altman's backside last season, the actor has kept himself fully clothed.

"There are storylines that have a lot of sexual elements because that is the nature of the character. My storyline has a lot of drama and the nature of my character is about real life – I think nudity would take away from the seriousness of the subject matter," he explains.



Allen Altman plays Billy Hunter.

It does not always feel like paradise while shooting Parodise Falls. Altman says occasionally sets have fallen on heads, and he vividly remembers shooting a scantily clad summertime seduction scene outdoors, when in reality it was a minus 26C November day.

According to the actor, it is difficult to keep focused when you're that cold.

Altman has worked in the theatre, on television and in the movies, in both French and English.

On stage his work includes performing in Fineman's Dictionary with character actor Fyvish Finkle at Montreal's Saide Bronfman Theatre.

On television he's been seen in Canada: A People's History, was in the HBO Emmy Award-winning film Degas & The Dancers and starred in the popular French sitcom Les Héritiers Duval.

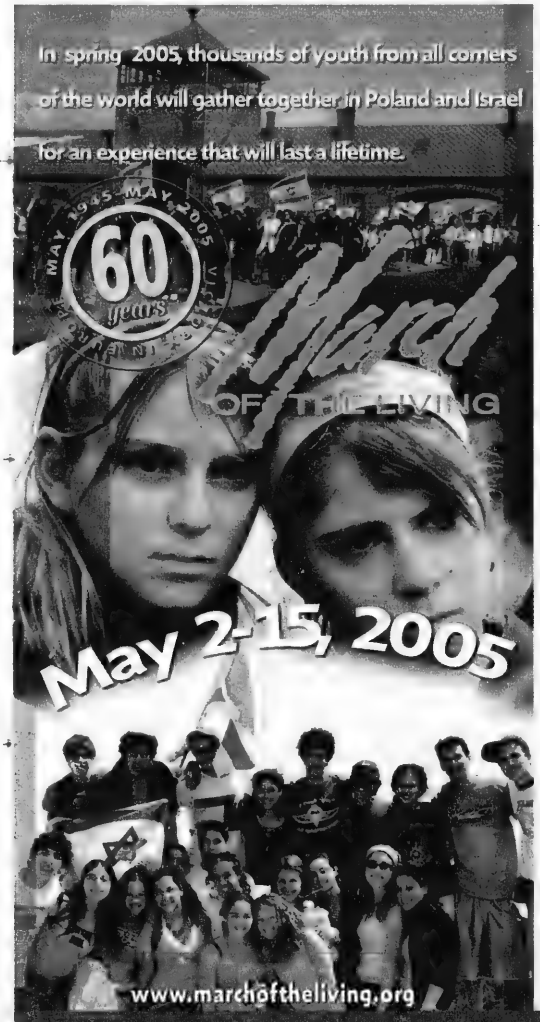
His numerous movie credits include three action films with Dolph Lundgren – The Peacekeeper, which reached No. 1 in Israel, The Minion and Fallen Knight. Currently playing in theatres is the film Head in the Clouds starring Charlize Theron, Stuart Townsend and Penelope Cruz, in which Altman plays a French resistance fighter.

"I like film the best because you have more time and you get to really explore the scene a lot more. But I like television for another reason, because you get to work with the same group of people and build on the relationships.

"The experience with Paradise Falls is that we get to come back to the same group of people and I think the second season is so much stronger because the actors are so much more comfortable with each other."

When not working, Altman spends time renovating his Toronto home in the Riverdale area, which he's owned for three years. In the warmer weather, he can be found outside tending to his garden – apparently the envy of his neighbourhood – when he's not helping his friends renovate their homes.

Catch Altman on Paradise Falls, from Breakthrough Film and Television, on Saturdays at 9 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. on Showcase, and on Sundays at 12:30 a.m. on Showcase Diva.



In spring 2005, thousands of youth from all corners of the world will gather together in Poland and Israel for an experience that will last a lifetime.
MAY 1945 - MAY 2005
60 years
March
OF THE LIVING
May 2-15, 2005
www.marchoftheliving.org

IN POLAND the group's visit will culminate with the "March of the Living" on Holocaust Remembrance Day, as they march together the 3-kilometre distance separating Auschwitz from Birkenau.

IN ISRAEL participants will celebrate the 57th anniversary of the creation of the State of Israel on Independence Day along with thousands of other teenagers from Israel and other parts of the world.

You could be one of the 350 Canadian high school students privileged to take part in this event!

TORONTO INFORMATION MEETING:

Wednesday, Oct. 20, 2004
7:30 p.m.
Adath Israel Syngogue
37 Southbourne Avenue
Bathurst & Wilson, Toronto

GENERAL INFORMATION:
Joyce Rifkind / Jennifer Turack
Board of Jewish Education /
UJA Federation of Greater Toronto
T: 416.633.7770 x256 or
T: 416.635.2883 x270
jrifkind@ujafed.org / jturack@ujafed.org

The March of the Living is subsidized by local UJA/CJA Federation campaigns, UJA Federations Canada and private contributions

DESIGN: BIG DIPPER COMMUNICATIONS PHOTOGRAPHY: RYAN BLAU

special this year

"V-E DAY" COMMEMORATION: World War II ended in Europe on May 8, 1945. 18,000 people – including Holocaust survivors and WWII veterans – will assemble in Poland to commemorate the 60th anniversary of V-E Day and remember this important date in history.

Dates subject to change — space is limited.

Forest Hill

Real Estate Inc. Realtor

416-488-2875 Forest Hill Village | 416-785-1500 Central | 416-226-1987 Bayview

List with us and appear on our Website: www.foresthill.com

CENTRAL PROPERTIES

ABSOLUTELY PERFECT LOWER VILLAGE
Custom built 4 bdrm, 5 baths, 2 storey, kitchen/family combined, exquisite built-ins, double garage. Reesa Sud* 416-488-2875

DUNBLAINE BELOW 401/AVE RD $1,149,000
Beautifully constructed 3 year old home. 10' ceilings, 4+1 bedroom, 5 baths, gourmet kitchen. Linda Reitapple* 416-488-2875

AVENUE/LAWRENCE
Exquisite custom home, 4 bedrooms with ensuites. Gourmet kitchen, hardwood throughout. 10+. Anna Pollock* 416-488-2875

PRIME ARMOUR HEIGHTS – JUST $899K
SOLD
Custom built home on sought after Cul-de-Sac. Main floor family + den. 4 bedrooms. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

UPPER FOREST HILL VILLAGE $899K
Custom Built Home – Top Quality Finishes. 1.5 years new, 3 bedrooms, 4 baths. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

WONDERFUL CEDARVALE HOME! $875K
Centre Hall Plan, 4 bedrooms, 4 baths, huge main floor family room, 55x120 ft. Garage. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

REDUCED TO SELL! $849,000!
Cedarvale! 4 bedrooms, 4 baths, Main Floor family room, Bright + spacious! Double garage. Brenda Westbrook* 416-226-1987

PRIME UPPER FOREST HILL - JUST $799K
Extensively Renovated 2002 + 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, main floor Family Room. 46 x 121 ft., 10+. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

ARMOUR HEIGHTS! CUL-DE-SAC! $799K
Renovated 5 bedroom home, open concept, family room/kitchen. 43 x 116 ft. lot. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

201 ARMOUR BLVD $789,000
Stunning renovated 4 bedroom, family home. Huge lot! 10+++. Leslie Dennis* 416-785-1500

1ST AD FABULOUS BUNGALOW $619,000
Lawrence/Bathurst. 3+1 bedroom sidesplit, 55 ft. lot. Huge LR, Dr, Main Floor family roooom, 4 parking. Saul Merrick* 416-488-2875

111 HILLSDALE AVENUE EAST $469,000
SOLD
A delicate, detached 3 bedroom, new kitchen, main floor powder room. Leslie Dennis* 416-785-1500

BAYVIEW/NORTH PROPERTIES

4 BEDROOM FAMILY HOME DUFFERIN/10 OAKS
$425,000. 2 year new, open LR, DR, eat-in kitchen. Walkout to deck, large family room, b/i garage. M. Merrick* 416-488-2875

NEW PRICE! DON MILLS/FINCH $329,000
Raised Bungalow, 3+1 bedroom, 2 baths, large LR, DR, separate entrance to fin basement, B/I garage. Saul Merrick* 416-488-2875

CONDOMINIUM PROPERTIES

2727 YONGE ST. PH 6 $899,000
Elegant 2 bedroom penthouse, SW views. Corner suite. Leslie Dennis* 416-785-1500

STUNNING 3 BEDROOM FOREST HILL PENTHOUSE
Recent renovated, open LR, DR room, eat-in kitchen, 3 baths, 2 parking. Concierge, pool, near subway. M. Merrick* 416-488-2875

"BREATHTAKING" FOREST HILL PENTHOUSE $699K
Newly Renovated 1 bedroom+den, 2 bath corner spectacular views + finishes. Near Village Shops. M. Merrick* 416-488-2875

LUXURY LIVING! BLOOR WEST @ OLD MILL
2 bedrooms, 2 baths, 1,167 sq. ft. overlooks the Humber Valley. $359,900. Allen Tobe 416-488-2875

LOWER VILLAGE GATE IN FOREST HILL
$349,000. 1 bedroom+den eat-in kitchen, 2 baths, fax balcony, parking, outdoor pool, near subway. Saul Merrick* 416-488-2875

FOREST HILL VILLAGE CONDO
Beautiful 2 bedrooms, 2 baths, East Exposure, hardwood floors throughout. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

COLLEGE/LITTLE ITALY – TOWNHOME
SOLD
Just renovated, New kitchen, new baths, new hardwood floors throughout, 3 bedrooms. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

JUST REDUCED! 2 BEDROOM IN FOREST HILL
$225,000. Approx 825 sq. ft., sep LR, DR, hrdwd, 2 baths, prkng, locker, excellent local, near subway. M. Merrick* 416-488-2875

Associate Broker  Sales Representative

REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

DAVID EICHORN REALTY LIMITED

416 787•1712 Visit our website: eichornrealty.com

AVENUE ROAD / EGLINTON — REDUCED
Magnificent custom home, 4 years new! Over 3,100 of finished living space. 4 bdrms., 4 baths, high ceilings, open concept. Ideal for home office. Contemporary design with warm traditional finishes. ONLY $849,000 — ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

* * *

BATHURST / DELL PARK — MAGNIFICENT CUSTOM HOME!
Approx. 3,500 sq. ft. + fin. bsmt., 5 + 1 bdrms., sep. entry to in-law suite, dream kit., main floor fam. room + library. All the bells & whistles — oak hrdwd. flrs.., limestone, granite, skylights ++. Asking $1,029,000. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

* * *

BATHURST / WILSON
EXQUISITE NEW TOWNHOMES in prime central location! Choice of 3 & 4 bdrm. units, each individually customized, attached garages and features galore, priced from $399,000. Model home available for viewing! Call David Eichorn* NOW at (416) 787-1712.

* * *

BATHURST / GLENGROVE — EXQUISITE NEW CUSTOM HOME!
5 + 2 bdrms., 5 baths, fin. bsmt., sep. entry to in-law suite, fam. room, dream kit. Luxurious upgrades throughout! Lowest priced new home in area. REDUCED TO $979,000! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712. Visit our website for a virtual tour.

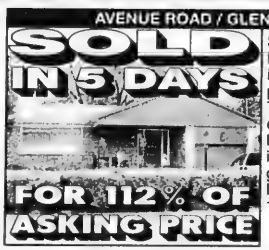
* * *

BATHURST / LAWRENCE — REDUCED!
MAGNIFICENT CUSTOM LUXURY HOME on 58 x 132 ft. lot that widens to 83 ft. at rear. Unique opportunity, condo alternative, huge palatial bungalow. ideal for entertaining, indoor pool. Only $849,000. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

* * *

BATHURST / LAWRENCE— APARTMENTS FOR RENT!
TWO BRIGHT, SPACIOUS UNITS! 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, w/o to balcony, quiet building close to TTC, subway, shops, schools, shuls. $1,250 — $1,400 / mo. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

AVENUE ROAD / GLENCAIRN



Spacious 3 + 1 bdrm. bungalow on magnificent 50 x 150 ft. lot in prestigious location! Totally renovated & decorated! 2 kitchens, huge recreation room in basement, attached garage. Call David Eichorn* at (416) 787-1712.

SOLD

BATHURST / DELL PARK — STUNNING CUSTOM HOME
Approx. 3,600 sq. ft. of luxury + fin. bsmt., 5 + 2 bdrms., upgrades throughout. Stone front, extensive use of limestone, marble & granite, main flr. 9.5 ft. ceilings and custom library w/ built-in bookcases, dream kit., sep. entry to 2 in-law suites, w/o to deck. ONLY $999,000! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712 or visit our website for a virtual tour.

* * *

ATTENTION BUILDERS:
Dream home opportunities on these ideally-situated building lots!

AVENUE / BATHURST SOLD OLDSTREAM 50 x 150 ft.
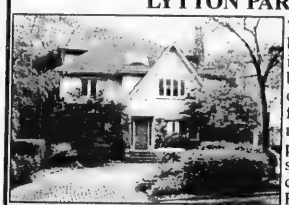
BATHURST / LAWRENCE 50 ft. frontage, $419,000
AVENUE ROAD / LAWRENCE 44 ft. frontage, $449,000
CLANTON PARK Magnificent 63 x 150 ft., $459,000

*BROKER

PERFECT FOR A LARGE FAMILY: LYTTON PARK



This tasteful 6+1 bedroom home has it all. 2 kitchens, 5 bathrooms, 2 offices, main floor family room, huge rec room, large principal rooms, 2 story entrance + circular drive. Room for a pool.

WANDA J. LALONDE
Royal Lepage R.E.S. Ltd. - Johnston & Daniel Div.
416-489-2121

SEIDMAN
REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR
416-633-7373

BATHURST/STEELES-$264,900
Primrose 1, sunny bright condo, large corner unit, 2 bdrm, 2 baths, kitchen with eating area, 2 walkouts to balcony, prkng, locker, Don't Miss the best buy in the area.

BATHURST/FINCH
Quality built, large 3 bdrm, 5 baths, L-shaped living & dining, walkout to yard, kitchen with eating area, main floor powder & laundry room, family room, finished basement with private entrance, double drive, garage, large lot, steps to all.

416-633-7373

FINCH & YONGE
Elegant 4,200 sq. ft. property in top condition, huge lot, close to all amenities. See it – love it. SALLY ROSEN, Century 21 Heritage Grp. Ltd. 905-764-7111

BATHURST-LAWRENCE
2 bedroom renovated home from $1,650 + utilities. Walking distance to Synagogues, TTC, Schools and Bathurst St. Call 416-633-3833 or to view pictures of our properties... www.adenathomes.com

20 HOUSES FOR SALE/RENT

Promenade, 2 bdrm, 2 full bath, 1300 sq. ft., 12 floor, southwest exposure. Nice view. Call 7-10 pm. 905-709-0673.

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

Atkinson/Centre, 1 bdrm. bsmnt. Nov. 1, lge liv. rm, stove, fridge. Close to TTC, mall/shul. $795/all incl. 416-809-5406.

30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE

SANTEE REALTY INC. 416-441-2003

SKYMARK
DON MILLS & FINCH - UPDATED LISTINGS
Skymark 89 Excellence: Exclusive 2 bedroom + family, approx. 1,835 sq. ft.
Skymark II: renovated, open concept, south exposure. $299,900.
Skymark I: unique penthouse, 2 bdrm. + den. Over 2,000 sq. ft. $375,000.
For my updated inventory, colour brochures & 360° virtual tour, call:
SANTEE LEUNG, E.R.I., SKYMARK SPECIALIST

Bathurst/Wilson, spacious. 3 bed. condo for big family. Fully reno'd w/much closet space & huge balcony. Shabbat elevator. $204,900. Please call Eleonora @ 416-450-8114.

60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE

Yonge/401, rooms in lux. house. All appliances, utils., cable & internet incl. Suits 1 person. Nr. subway & 401. 416-224-0808, leave message.

1-2 tenants, home with furnished rooms, fireplace and deck, parking included, rent negotiable. Call 905-763-7331.

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

BATHURST-LAWRENCE-WILSON
1, 2 & 3 bedroom renovated, from $850. Walking distance to Synagogues, TTC, Schools and Bathurst St. Call 416-633-3833 or to view pictures of our properties... www.adenathomes.com

Bathurst/Sheppard, lux., spacious, bright apts., in quiet ravine setting off main streets, newly reno'd, walk to TTC, utilities incl. 1 bdrm. avail. immediately/November 1. Call 905-474-3600, 416-633-1484.

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

BATHURST-SHEPPARD
ELEGANT TWIN BLDS.
Very lrg. 1, 2, 3 Bedrooms, 2 & 3 Bdrms. w/2 balconies and 2 baths.
Ample closets plus cedar.
Roof laundry, ravine setting, pool, pkg. incl.
6 Apts. per flr.
416-960-3238 - Bus.
416-631-9377 or 416-631-0388 - Super

82 ROOM AVAILABLE FOR RENT

Furn'd room in 2 bdrm. apt., quiet, $540/mo. Bathurst/Sheppard. Call 416-638-7541.

130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT

SUNRISE, beautiful lg. twnhse. 3 bdrms, 3 baths, pool, tennis, Jan.-March '05. 416-964-1228.

Hollywood beachfront, studio apt. on beach. Great location, by month or season. 416-992-8995.

Hallandale, Parker Plaza on ocean. 1 bed. convertible. 2 bath. From Jan.-March, min. 3 mos. $6500/US. 416-324-8611.

160 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT

Jerusalem, central, new 4 bedroom lux. apt., CAC. Short-term rentals. Kosher & Shomer Shabbos only. 416-782-6791.

125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE

GOING SOUTH? - SOUTH FLORIDA
For a "Steal of a Deal" or a "Condo to Sell", call "CONDO CAROL" Carol Nadel (fellow Canadian) specializing in Sales in, Hallandale, Hollywood, Sunny Isles, Aventura, Bal Harbour and Boca Raton.
E-mail: condocarolteam@aol.com
305-937-4074
BEACHFRONT REALTY INC.

130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT

Longboat Key, beautiful 2 bdrm., 2 bath lux condo on beach at Veranda. From Sat. Dec. 4 for 1 or 2 wks., bargain at $1000/wk US. Call 905-731-0880.

N. Miami Beach, Arlen House East, 1 bdrm., 1 1/2 bath, avail. Jan. 5, 3 mo. @ $1650/mo. US. Call 905-889-1234.

Sunrise Lake, Ft. Lauderdale, 2 bdrm., 2 bath, kosher, on golf course. Call 416-560-2496.

Ft. Lauderdale, commercial/university, Oakbrook Village. 1 bed., 1 1/2 bath, equipped. $1100/mo. US plus utilities. 3 mos. 416-636-3845.

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT/SALE

ANBER MOVERS
SPECIALIST IN:
TORONTO - VANCOUVER
NEW YORK - FLORIDA
(514) 735-8148
1-800-561-MOVE
"BONDED"

165 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT

PROPERTIES IN ISRAEL
PRESTIGIOUS PROJECT IN REHAVIA - Radak Street. Prime location, deluxe interior, very large units - duplex or full floor, large garden or terrace. Exquisite architecture. Genuine Grandeur. Exclusive to PROSPERITY REAL ESTATE.
Tel. +972-2-567-0303
www.prosperity-realestate.com

190 VACATION PROPERTY AVAILABLE

Enjoy your winter vacation in sunny Palm Springs, Ca, 2 bdrm./2.5 bath + extra rooms, priv. pool/spa, bbq, pool table. $1800/wk., $4000/mo., longer stay negotiable. (323) 650-1705. sandygilad@hotmail.com

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT/SALE

ALTER REALTY INC.
The Leading Specialist In Adult Communities

Gerry Alter, Broker

Toll Free: 866.421.5669 Office: 954.421.4886
Cell: 954.421.4886 Fax: 954.421.2725
www.alterrealestate.com

BUY WITH US - No Transaction Fees
LIST WITH US 5% Commission Rate

FULL BROKERAGE SERVICES
A Top Team of Realtors
Multiple Listing Service
U.S. & International Advertising
Internet Exposure with Photos

190 VACATION PROPERTY AVAILABLE

PALM SPRINGS, CA
VACATION RENTALS
We have 1-2-3 bedroom condos. Nicely furnished in super locations From $1250 - $4500 per mo. U.S
CHOPSY SAMUELSON REALTY
760-327-8429

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

Del's Cleaning Service, we clean condos, offices, houses and renovation clean up, after party clean. 416-651-9688.

White Lily (Cleaning Service) houses, apts., offices, any day, any time. 24 hrs. 416-917-3450.

ShineX Caregivers Inc
Quality Caregivers, Nannies and Immigration Services

Licensed Immigration Consultant, C.S.I.C.
Member #M041220
www.shinexcaregivers.com
Tel:
416-218-9537
7 Steeles Ave. East,
Suite 4, Toronto, ON M2M 3Y2
Fax: 416-221-7866
Email:
nannies@shinexcaregivers.com

McCaskill Household Services Ltd.
Homemakers, H.C.A., P.S.W.'s
Live in - Day/Night Shifts
•The Elderly •The Chronically Ill
•Hospital Recovery
We cover all your needs to help you stay at home
Personal care,
Light housekeeping,
Meal preparation
Providing service for over 57 years
416-431-2443

Golden Care Ltd.
People you trust, taking care of people you love
Caregivers Live-in/out
Health Care Aides, Sitters, Cooks, Housekeepers & Companions
THE BEST FOR LESS
www.goldencare.ca
Hourly, daily or 24-hour live-in
Home, hospital & palliative care
416-665-4229

P.J.'s Caregiving Services
...helping you care for your loved ones
Experienced live-in/out caregivers, f/t or p/t.
NO FEE to sponsor our applicants overseas.
www.pjcares.com
(416) 266-0130

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

Professional Care PERSONNEL INC.
"The Household Help Specialist"
• Quality Staff • Screened & Assessed
Housekeepers • Cooks • Infant Care • Elder Care
Nannies • Companions • Overseas Sponsorship
Erin Rogul 416-504-8589 Kelly Jacques

family matters
Caregivers • Nannies • Housekeepers
Live-in, Live-out • All candidates pre-screened
Many of our candidates are personally interviewed by us in Hong Kong
Service guaranteed
Contact Tova Rich @ 416.633.0017
familymatters@rogers.com

We provide excellent caregivers for
Elderly, Nannies, Housekeepers
Live-in/Live-out, Part time/Fulltime
Toronto's most reliable/reputable agency, since 1981
REMED PERSONNEL SERVICES INC.
Tel No: (416) 789-5382
Toll free: 1-877-820-9089
NO FEE to sponsor our applicants overseas
Website: www.remedpersonnel.com

Z's DOMESTICS
NANNIES • HOUSEKEEPERS • ELDERCARE
EURO-FILIPINAS • CLEANERS • EXPERIENCED
• Live-in/out in Toronto • Screened, Guaranteed
• F/T, P/T, Certified • Kashruth & Hebrew
• Local Placement • Free sponsorship of Filipinas
From ISRAEL & EUROPE
905-731-1845

In a PINCH
Your Temporary Care Solution
416.785.3939
• Emergency care
• Day/Evening
• Occasional
• Short/long term
• Professional and Experienced Caregivers

WEE CARE! PLACEMENT AGENCY
Dedicated to Caring Since 1996
Nannies • Housekeepers • Baby Nurses
Sponsoring from abroad
Live In & Live Out • Full Time & Part Time
Candidates pre-screened • References checked
Service guaranteed
416-789-3070

257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE

Qualicare
www.qualicare.ca
♥ Private nursing
♥ Homecare support
♥ Retirement living services
♥ Short or long-term care
For a free consultation, call:
416 628-7449

273 INTRODUCTION SERVICES

Bringing People Together Inc. It only takes one match to light a fire! Ruth, 905-731-5204.

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS

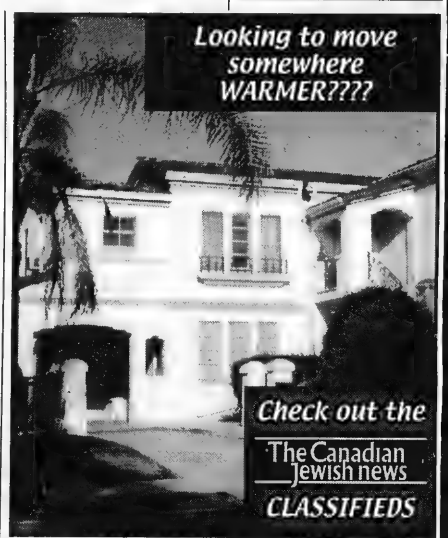
Replying to an ad with a CJN Box Number?
Address your mail to:
The Canadian Jewish News
1500 Don Mills Rd.
Suite 205
North York, Ont.
M3B 3K4
Don't forget to put the Box Number on your envelope.
CJN Box #'s are valid for 30 days.

Attractive, 51 year old, separated Jewish executive looking for his soulmate for possible long term relationship. Please send a letter telling me about yourself accompanied by a recent photo to CJN Box #4585.

305 ARTICLES WANTED

Wanted: quality antiques, fine art, watches, jewellery, estates. Please call 905-764-1112.

Books & diaries bought by Ben. Instant cash for 1-1000 books. Call Ben, 416-890-9644.



SERVICE DIRECTORY

350 APPLIANCES

Sobie's 416 224-2526
162 Willowdale Ave. (Yonge / Sheppard area)
www.sobies.com • 30+ years in-home service
We repair all major appliances including:
SUB-ZERO • JENNAIR • THERMADOR

Mike's Appliance Service. Installation, repair and maintenance or air conditioning, refrigeration, residential, commercial appliances. Over 30 years of experience. 905-770-7244.

370 CATERING

CHICKEN NEST (COR)
Kosher Restaurant
• DINE IN
• TAKE OUT
• CATERING
Home & Office Parties • Babynamings
Bar / Bat Mitzvahs • Sheva Brachot
"SHIVA CATERING A SPECIALTY"
416-787-6378

Dairy Treats Restaurant & Catering
Brit Milah • Bar/Bat Mitzvahs (COR)
Home or Office • Shiva Meals • Corporate Accounts
3522 Bathurst St. (S. of Wilson) 416-787-0309
www.dairytreats.com

395 ELECTRICAL

Electrician seeks small jobs only, no appliances. Please call 416-636-5732.

All kinds of electrical jobs. For great service call Serge. Licensed. 416-834-4312.

405 FURNITURE

Carrocel Restorations — NEW LOCATION
Antique and Fine Furniture Gallery
• TABLES • CHAIRS • OCCASIONAL TABLES
• BEDROOM SUITES • DINING SUITES
• REFINISHING • REUPHOLSTERY
WE CUSTOM BUILD
3255 - 14TH AVENUE, UNIT 4
905-475-6932

Marcantonio Furniture Repair Specializing in touchups Restoration & general repairs done on premises. 416-654-0518.

RENDE WOOD DESIGN Custom Entertainment & Wall Units, Furniture Refinishing. Jeff Rittenberg - 416-247-3565

412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING

24 hr. repairs, services & installs a/c, heat & refrigeration, commercial & residential, licens-ed tech. Call Alex 416-671-0267.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENT

Handyman, home repairs, paint, tile, bathroom re-grout, re-silicone. Ben, 416-372-2255.

City East Hardwood Flooring Sand, stain, finish. 905-839-0733.

Renovations & repairs. Drywall, flooring, painting, minor plumbing & electrical. Call Joe, 416-636-7935.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENT

Beaver Valley Stone LIMITED
Quality Landscaping Products for the Contractor & Do-It-Yourselfer
• Natural Stone
• Interlocking & Retaining Wall Systems
• Precast Concrete Products
• Stone Building Products
• Accessories
• Fireplace Materials
416-222-2424 Toronto Line
905-886-5787 Local Line
www.beavervalleystone.com

370 CATERING

415 HOME IMPROVEMENT

AlphaSolutions
Flooring & Painting Contractor
Hardwood–Marble–Carpeting
Antique Effects & Murals
FREE ESTIMATES
416-488-2162
Steve Jonas

EPHRAM, carpentry, ceramic, electrical, plumbing, drywall & more. 416-636-3425.

A-1 Handyman, specializing in indoor repairs, drywall, electrical, plumbing, painting & finished bsmnts. 647-887-5075.

Exper. handyman. All home repairs & improvements, electrical, plumbing, kitchen, baths, roof, fence & deck. Sun.-Fri. 905-709-4906.

TILE INSTALLATION, ceramic, slate, limestone, flagstone & porcelain. Quality work since 1965. Low rates, free estimates, excellent references, licensed and insured. Please call Peter, 416-733-2237.

Before signing any contract, make sure your contractor is appropriately licensed with the Metropolitan Licensing Commission 416-392-3000

445 MOVING

TRANSNET CO. MOVING & STORAGE
Homes • Apartments • Offices • Storage
Packing Materials & Service
416-704-6881
http://members.Rogers.com/moving

BestWayToMove.com
26' trucks, experienced professional movers. Low rates, good reliable service. Moving & Free Storage.
Call 416-999-MOVE or 416-875-MOVE (6683)

TURNADOS MOVING & STORAGE
HOMES • APARTMENTS • OFFICES
Local, Long Distance, Storage
SENIOR'S DISCOUNT
Two Professional Movers — Free Estimate
Cell: 416-414-0920

WWW.GTAMOVERS.COM
Fully equipped, insured. Local and long distance. Mid months discount. 416-918-2957

B-K Movers. 2-28' trucks. Boxes, homes, offices, apts. Family business. Reas. Packing & packing materials avail. Call 905-274-6144 or 905-278-0939.

G&M Moving and Storage. Apts., homes, offices. Short notice. Large or small. We carry supplies. 905-738-4030.

srmmovers.com - A-1 Short Notice. Insured. Homes, apts., offices, businesses. 1-man $40/hr., 2-men $55/hr. 3-men $70/hr. & up. 416-747-7082.

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPER

Painting, wallpapering, plastering, stucco repair. Samy, 905-738-1532, no SAT. calls.

All home, paint, tile & repairs. Bathroom re-grout, re-silicone & more! Ben, 416-372-2255.

Experienced painter, plasterer, vinyl, tile flooring. Best prices. Free estimates. Guaranteed. Bill, 416-638-9249.

Prof. painting, ext./int., wallpapering, drywall, all renov. of houses, apts., offices. Licensed. Stan, 416-201-9079.

Masters Choice Painting
Paint/plaster/stucco/small renos. Free est. Reas. 416-402-5768.

Bargain painter/handyman, apt., houses, offices. Call Alex, 416-633-5973.

Best Prices!!! Best Quality!!! Best Service!!! Painting. Licensed & Bonded. Call Shlomo 416-804-1706.

Prof. painting/paper-hanging Jacob 416-667-9869 No Shabbos calls please

465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Full Service Glass and Windows Inc.
Tel: 905-731-8446
• Windows • Doors • Screens
• Mirror Walls & Doors
• Frameless shower & tub doors
• Pivots • Locks • Closers
• Beveled Glass and Mirrors
• Thermopanes - Storefronts
• Security Bars • Skylights
Fast & Reliable Service
Quality & Customer Satisfaction

465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

– FOR ALL TRAFFIC OFFENCES –
Former Traffic Court Judge Will Ensure the Best Defence in Court
ARTHUR TANNENBAUM
JUSTICE OF THE PEACE (RETIRED)
JUSTICE FOR YOU
Free Consultation
416-222-6526
1110 Finch Ave. W., Suite 400
Demerit Points Could Mean Higher Insurance Costs FIGHT THEM

470 RENOVATIONS

REPAIRS & RENOVATIONS
• Drywall • Plaster • Painting •
Carpentry
• Fences • Decks • Doors • Locks • Tiles
Specializing in:
• Basement Finishing
• Bathroom/Kitchen Renovations
MOSHE 416-445-6438

495 TILING

TILE REPAIRS. Bath & shower cleaning, silicone re-grouting & more! Ben, 416-372-2255.

500 TUTORING

High school teacher with M.A. Education will motivate your child to be successful in all Hebrew & Judaica subjects. Shoshana, 905-731-4569.

Piano/flute lessons by pro musician, home/studio, all levels. Sue @ 416-406-0609.

510 UPHOLSTERY

Bathurst Upholstery. Reupholstering sofas, chairs. Low prices 416-781-1995, 905-886-3148.

Rent out your apartment
Call Classified
(416) 391-1836
The Canadian Jewish news

CLASSIFIED DIRECTORY

5 HOUSES FOR SALE
10 HOUSES FOR SALE/PRIVATE
15 HOUSES FOR RENT
20 HOUSES FOR SALE/RENT
24 HOUSES WANTED TO BUY
25 HOUSES WANTED TO RENT
30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE
35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT
40 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE/RENT
45 CONDOMINIUM WANTED
50 ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
55 ACCOMMODATION WANTED
60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
62 SHARED ACCOMMODATION WANTED
65 ACCOMMODATION/SWAP/EXCHANGE
67 HOUSE SITTERS WANTED
68 HOUSE SITTERS AVAILABLE
70 UNIVERSITY ACCOMMODATION
75 APARTMENT FOR RENT
78 SHORT TERM RENTAL AVAILABLE
80 SHORT TERM RENTAL WANTED
81 APARTMENT TO SUBLET
82 ROOM AVAILABLE FOR RENT
84 ROOM WANTED FOR RENT
85 APARTMENT WANTED
87 PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
105 COTTAGE FOR SALE
110 COTTAGE FOR RENT
115 COTTAGE FOR RENT/SALE
120 COTTAGE WANTED
122 TIME SHARE FOR SALE
123 TIME SHARE FOR RENT
125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE
130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT
135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED
143 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. AVAIL
145 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. WANTED
147 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION
150 FLORIDA TRANSPORTATION
155 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE
160 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT
165 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
170 ISRAEL PROPERTIES WANTED
175 ISRAEL ACCOMMODATION WANTED
178 ISRAEL TRANSPORTATION
180 OUT-OF-TOWN PROPERTIES
185 OUT-OF-COUNTRY PROPERTIES
190 VACATION PROPERTY AVAILABLE
195 VACATION PROPERTIES WANTED
196 VACATION PROPERTIES-EXCH./SHARE
198 SPACE FOR LEASE
199 COMMERCIAL PROPERTY AVAILABLE
200 OFFICE SPACE AVAILABLE
201 OFFICE SPACE WANTED
202 STORAGE SPACE WANTED
203 STORAGE SPACE AVAILABLE
205 LAND/LOTS FOR SALE
210 LAND/LOTS FOR LEASE
220 INVESTMENT PROPERTIES
225 INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES
230 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES
232 BUSINESS FOR SALE
235 BUSINESS WANTED
240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES
245 EMPLOYMENT WANTED
246 VOLUNTEERS
247 DAY CARE AVAILABLE
248 DAY CARE WANTED
250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE
255 DOMESTIC HELP WANTED
257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE
258 HEALTHCARE WANTED
259 SENIORS
260 BUSINESS PERSONALS
265 PEOPLE SEARCH
270 PERSONALS
273 INTRODUCTION SERVICES
275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED
279 PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY
280 ANNOUNCEMENTS
290 LOST & FOUND
295 PETS
300 ARTICLES FOR SALE
305 ARTICLES WANTED
313 BOATS
315 CARS
320 CONTENTS SALE
325 GARAGE SALE

SERVICE DIRECTORY

345 ACCOUNTING
350 APPLIANCES
355 AUDIO-VISUAL SALES/REPAIRS
357 AUTOMOTIVE
358 BRIDAL
365 CARPENTRY
368 CARPETS
370 CATERING
371 CERAMICS
372 CHUPPAHS
375 CLEANING/CLEANING SUPPLIES
379 CLOCKS/WATCHES
380 CLOTHING
382 COUNSELLING
385 COMPUTER
386 DANCING
387 DECORATING
390 DRIVING
392 DRY CLEANING/LAUNDRY
394 EDUCATION
395 ELECTRICAL
396 ELECTRONICS
400 ENTERTAINMENT
404 FITNESS & WEIGHT LOSS
405 FURNITURE
406 GARAGE DOORS
407 GIFT SERVICES
410 HEALTH & BEAUTY
412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING
415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS
416 HOME INSPECTION
419 INTERNET SERVICE
420 INVITATIONS/PRINTING/CALLIG.
425 JEWELLERY
427 JUDAICA
430 LEASING
431 LANDSCAPING/LAWNCARE
432 LAWYERS
433 LESSONS
434 LIMOUSINE/TAXI SERVICES
435 LIQUIDATION
438 LOCKSMITH
439 MAKE-UP
440 MISCELLANEOUS
442 MUSICAL SERVICES
445 MOVING
449 PEST CONTROL
450 PAINTING/WALLPAPERING
452 PARTY SERVICES
455 PHOTOGRAPHY/VIDEO
460 PLUMBING
465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES
470 RENOVATIONS
472 RETIREMENT HOMES
475 ROOFING
477 SECOND HAND STORES
478 SCHOOLS
480 SECURITY SYSTEMS
481 SEWING
482 SIGNS
485 SNOW REMOVAL
490 TABLE COVERING
493 TAILORING/ALTERATIONS
495 TILING
496 TRAINING
498 TRAVEL & TOURISM
500 TUTORING
510 UPHOLSTERY
515 WATERPROOFING
520 WINDOW COVERINGS
525 WINDOW REPLACEMENT
530 WINDOW CLEANING
550 WORKSHOPS

CJN DATING
MEET YOUR MATCH
www.cjndating.com
powered by JMATCH
JEWISH MATCH INTERACTIVE DATING

Sports & Leisure

PEERLESS TRAVEL Cruise in and see us!
NEWEST LOCATION!
9200 BATHURST ST.
(at Rutherford Road)
Thornhill
905-482-0105

Les Expos: memories of a fair-weather fan

By DAVID LAZARUS
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL – I confess. I am one of the reasons – among many – that the Montreal Expos are no more.

I was that most ignominious of all species, a fair-weather fan. If the Expos were a handful of games out of first or in contention for a wild-card spot with a few weeks to go in the season, I was there.

Comment

There were thousands – maybe tens of thousands – of Montrealers just like me. And that's one of the reasons the Expos are gone.

But it wasn't always that way.

Back in 1969, when I was 15 years old and for many years after, my family used to tune into Dave Van Horne and Russ Taylor (and then Duke Snider), and there were games, boy, when we hung on every pitch, every word – even every syllable.

I remember one time they came back from a deficit of something like 10 runs in the late innings, and we all just stared at each other in disbelief, screaming and pounding our feet and jumping up and down.

It was sheer joy.

Those were magical days. Jarry Park and Rusty Staub – and later Valentine, Carter, Parrish and Dawson. I can remember in 1973 when the Expos were only a few games out with just weeks to go in the season – hanging in there right up to the last weekend.

"Only four years old, and they're still in it?!," we declared, looking at each other in disbelief.

Then came the heart-wrenching years – 1979, 1980, 1981. Rick Monday's homer. Willie Stargell's homer. Cruel bloopers that cost us divisions and pennants and whole World Series championships. At least that's how we felt.

The final straw, of course, was 1994, when it was all ours. Only it wasn't. There was a strike – the Expos were way out in front of the pack with a 74-40 record when it hit – and it was over.

Claude Brochu, Jeffrey Loria, greedy owners, greedy players, a downtown stadium that never was to rise like the Phoenix. Fans who showed up about as often as I did.

The Expos were a team built with a lot of Jewish support, although you won't read that in the obits. Charles Bronfman loved the Expos, the club he founded, but he gave it up in 1991 because he just couldn't take it anymore. I have an old photo somewhere of him standing next to Youppi, the team mascot, beaming.

Bronfman's son, Stephen, tried to get a downtown stadium built, but it didn't happen.

Some of the team's greatest supporters and most loyal fans were Jewish. (Let's not count Loria here.) Like the disproportionate number of Jewish season ticket-holders who took up a disproportionate number of seats at field level at the Big Owe. Like Sydney Maislin, who was one of the team's original investors. Like the late Jerry ("Manush") Price, one of the team's biggest boosters in the stands (and father of sportscaster Elliott Price). Like another great Expos radio man, Mitch Melnick. Like local baseball man Johnny Elias, who often pitched batting practice. Or like, as local media man Mike Cohen reminded me, Eddie Steinman and Paul Shubin, who for many years ran the stadium scoreboard. Like Cohen's own dad, Larry Fredericks, who had an Expos pre-game radio show for awhile. Or like Mark Routtenberg, who had the luckless fate to join the consortium of people chipping in real money some years ago to help save the team.

Little did he know. Little did we all.

So that's the way it was, and is. But a question lingers: was Montreal a town that deserved to have a Major League ball team in the first place?

If you only measure such things by the actual number of rear ends in seats, then the answer has to be no.

We're a fickle lot, we Quebecers. We'll wait, but if you don't give us a real winner, at least after a while, then we're outta here. Even the fabled Canadiens – the Canadiens! – are leaving a fair number of regular season seats vacant in the new Forum (or Molson centre, or Bell Centre, or whatever it's called this week). You can't say the same about some U.S. baseball markets that haven't seen a World Series since the days of Dimaggio, yet they still fill their stadiums.

But if you measure such things purely by the city's rich baseball legacy and the loyalty of the true-blue fan, the answer the question of whether Montreal deserved a team is – or at least could have been – yes.

Yes, I am one of the reasons the Montreal Expos are no more. There's no getting around it.

But it's still a little sad to see, because after 35 years, the city's world-class stature has dropped a notch. We can no longer say we're a Major League – or major league – city, which was a nice way to think of ourselves.

Wheelchair player directs tennis program at Camp George

By ELI SHUPAK
Special to The CJN

Joel Dembe didn't have a lot of camping experience under his belt prior to heading for Parry Sound this past summer. But the new tennis director at Camp George knew a thing or two about playing the game, which would more than suffice.

The 20-year-old wheelchair tennis player spent July and August teaching kids to play the game he loves. Most of the 600 children, who ranged in age from seven to 15, are affiliated with a Reform congregation. They attended one of two, 3½ week sessions.

Camp George, which has been in operation since 1999, is the only Reform movement camp in Canada.

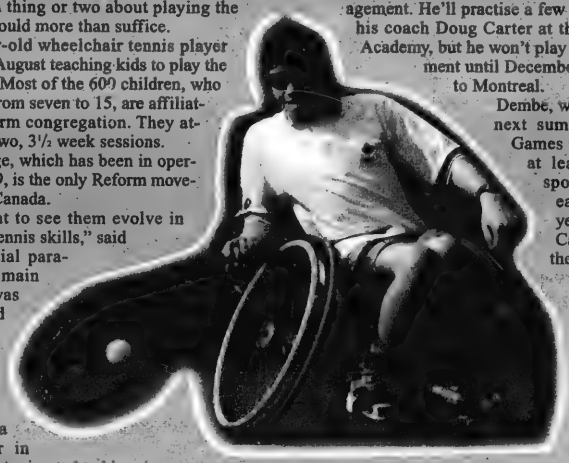
"It was great to see them evolve in terms of their tennis skills," said Dembe, a partial paraplegic whose main limitation was getting around the camp grounds, particularly in the rain.

He was born with teratoma, a benign tumour in the abdomen that migrated to his spine, compressing it and causing nerve damage.

Dembe was glad he could play tennis every day, and he managed to combine his days off to squeeze in a couple of tournaments. He was a finalist at the Capital Classic in Ottawa and also participated in an event in Grand Rapids, Mich.

The ninth-ranked player in the country made it to the doubles semi-finals with his partner Jamie Lauzon at the recent Canadian Nationals in St. Jerome, Que., but was knocked out in first-round singles play after receiving a bad draw.

Dembe is now back at Brock University in St. Catharines for his second year studying sports management. He'll practise a few times a week with his coach Doug Carter at the Niagara Tennis Academy, but he won't play in another tournament until December, when he travels to Montreal.



Joel Dembe

Dembe, who plans to play in next summer's Maccabiah Games in Israel, hopes to at least move up one spot in the rankings early in the new year, as the top eight Canadians comprise the national team.

Over the summer, Dembe got to rally with some of the other counsellors, but said he missed Carter's coaching expertise.

His presence and efforts at the camp, however, did not go unnoticed.

"I got great joy out of watching him teach," said Ron Polster, Camp George's director. "He was as competitive as any able-bodied person.

"Wheelchair tennis participants are able to have the ball bounce twice on their side, and despite this, he tries not to. That goes to speak as to how competitive he is."

Starting a new, not final, phase

When I was 12, I had a horrible dream that has haunted me ever since. I vividly remember overlooking a scene with only a single booth on the horizon. Although I can't see myself, I know I am inside the booth, and when I emerge, I know that a rabbi has just told me that I am going to die of an illness when I am 24 years old.

BY SANDIE BENITAH

This past Yom Kippur, I celebrated my 24th birthday.

How interesting that the one birthday I've been dreading should fall on the one day where you're forced to do nothing else all day long but think. Yet, I kept my hypochondriac tendencies to a minimum and instead thought about the significance of having such a special day fall on an even more special one.

I can't help but think that it's some kind of sign that my 13th birthday also fell on Yom Kippur. I remember how disappointed I was that I couldn't celebrate the one birthday I had been looking forward to all my life with my friends at the mall that sunny Saturday afternoon. But a more mature person emerged after that Yom Kippur, as I sincerely felt inspired and lucky to have celebrated such a personal milestone on such a holy day. I took it as a sign that I am truly special in God's eyes and that I was entering this new phase in my life with a clean slate. At that moment, the world was in front of me to conquer.

But today, I'm only hoping that it isn't all behind me.

Since I turned 20, I've felt my life has become defined by crossroads. "Every decision you make in your young adulthood is going to affect you for the rest of your life," my sister often told me when I was growing up. Perhaps as a result of those traumatic words, since then I have struggled with every decision I've had to make, from choosing between continuing school and starting a career to deciding which colour to dye my hair. It seems as if I can't make a decision anymore without hearing her words.

Nonetheless, on my birthday, I thought only about the paths I have chosen and how they've brought me to this point.

All my life, I have followed my heart and done what I thought would make me happy. That's a surefire way to make stupid decisions, but I wouldn't have done it any other way.

I thought about the time I took my sister's car when I was 15 and itching to drive. I crashed it into my neighbour's parked car and, like a coward, ran away from the scene and hid in my room for the rest of the week.

I thought about the time I ran into the big boss at work at a mutual friend's party one night. Although I knew the situation was ideal for networking, I let my shyness get the best of me and hid behind the buffet all night.

After talking with a close friend about my fate as a wimp, she gently reminded me about my dream.

Dreams about death are often about the end of something in your life, she said. Think of all your childish traits and rash decisions as illnesses that kept you from being who you will become.

After careful consideration, I realized how true her words were and once again thought about how significant it was to have this birthday on Yom Kippur. Although the decisions I've made haven't been the best, I've learned from each of them, and they have all prepared me for this new chapter in my life.

My 24th year and my childhood are behind me now. Thankfully, just as when I turned 13, my slate has once again been wiped clean for this new phase of my life.

SPAGHETTI SQUASH KUGEL

2 eggs
2/3 cup lowfat cottage cheese
1/8 tsp. ground cinnamon
1 1/2 tsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1 1/2 cup cooked, drained spaghetti squash (made from large spaghetti squash halved lengthwise & seeded)

Preheat oven to 350°F. In large bowl, beat eggs. Add cottage cheese, cinnamon, sugar & vanilla. Beat well. To make spaghetti squash "noodles", place squash halves, cut sides down, in glass baking dish. Add a cup of water & cover with plastic wrap. Microwave on high 8-10 mins. until tender; cool slightly. Using fork, discard seeds & scrape squash strands into bowl with egg mixture; mix well. Pour into casserole dish sprayed with cooking spray. Sprinkle with additional cinnamon. Bake 30 mins. or until set & lightly browned. Serves 2 but recipe doubles well.

1111 Weston Rd. (S. of Eglinton) 416-767-1655 www.caplanappliances.com

HERB CAPLAN
THE APPLIANCE PROS RECOMMEND
dacor Now Kosher! RANGES

About Life

Dear Ella,

Mark, one of my oldest and dearest friends, is a bright and wonderful person, but very obese. It doesn't seem to bother him. He continues to hold down a job, have an active social life and attend family functions. Mark is in his early 40s and has never been married.

Recently one of his family members approached me and asked me to get involved. She knew she was putting me on the spot but she was concerned about Mark and thought he was not long for this world in his condition. She felt that since our friendship is so close and he respects my opinion, he would listen to me.

I too am worried about Mark, but I don't think it is my place to exert pressure on him to deal with his obesity. Am I shirking my responsibilities as a friend or am I being a better friend by letting him alone?

Fearful Friend

Dear Fearful Friend,

According to Statistics Canada, by 2003, 14.9 per cent of adult Canadians were considered obese and 33.3 per cent were considered overweight.

. Obesity may have psychological, genetic or environmental causes, or even a combination of all three. There is no easy fix or there would not be a multi-billion-dollar diet industry.

Losing weight is a complex and complicated issue. All the key factors have to come together to have weight loss work, but the most important one is will. Not your will or Mark's relative's will, but Mark's will.

Of course you as his dear friend should be there to help him on his journey, if and when he asks. He will have good days and bad and you can be there through this process, but his physical and psychological health will be his ultimate payoff.

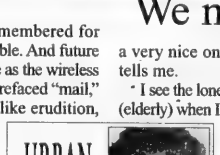
It is hard to watch someone you love self-destruct when in your mind, it could be remedied. The problem is, it is not your mind, it is Mark's. Take his hand and let him know you are there for him and hope he makes the right choices.

Readers may submit their questions to Ella at The CJN., email: eb@cjnews.com. But Ella is not a professional counsellor. She brings to the questions posed by readers her unique brand of earthy wisdom. Her advice is not a replacement for medical, legal or any other advice. For serious problems, consult a professional.

We must revere the wisdom of age

By AVRUM ROSENSWEIG

Humankind will not be remembered for its buildings, for they will crumble. And future generations may look at our time as the wireless generation when the letter "e" prefaced "mail," and rarely conjured up words like erudition, education and empathy. This, of course, is an oversimplification of what our place in history may be.



Our contribution to humankind will be more than a paraphrased label conjured up by historians, but will lie in the souls and actions of the children we create and the ethical legacy we bequeath.

I fear, however, that our generation will be remembered as the one that consciously and deliberately marginalized our elderly and subsequently demonized the process of growing old.

I say this, as I am privy to this nasty revolution. "This business of growing old is not a very nice one," my 87-year-old aunt often tells me.

I see the loneliness in the eyes of our z'kainim (elderly) when I conduct services at a local home for the aged. It is a loneliness that stems from familial, societal and communal abandonment.

Imagine you are 78, a woman who loved socializing with your friends, all of whom are now gone. The phone rings. It is a young man selling time-sharing. You talk for a long while and ask him to call tomorrow, because you need to look forward to something.

Imagine you are 85. Your mind is rich with wisdom you have accrued from your love of literature, fighting anti-Semitism, emigrating with a baby in your arms, starting a community – and yet your days are spend in a room of insulting space, waiting for the soap opera Days of our Lives so that you can bury yourself in some drama.

We have abandoned our old folk and done a very effective job. Why? They are not wounded animals with jumbled ideas, unable to spar with the bad guys or lead us on freedom marches. They are not ugly because of their wrinkles or yellowing fingernails. Their folds and crinkles are exquisite like the trunks of an aging redwood. We are the ugly ones, members of this silly "Botox Age," committed to the absurd and fleeting dogma of physical perfection.

Let us make a powerful mark while we can, and reverse the disrespect we have shown our elderly. First, we need to apologize. This can be done in classy, quiet ways such as taking our aging family members home so that they don't sit alone, feeling abandoned in strange places, but instead are surrounded by the love they introduced us to.

For those we cannot take home, we need to re-establish regular visiting programs through our shuls, schools and families.

Let us adopt the practices of natives who bestow the valued title of "elder" upon their aged, and from the Asians who position their matriarchs and patriarchs in places of honour by asking them for advice with serious intent. Let us do the same with our z'kainim.

In short, we need to revisit a Jewish model of reverence and value for the aged that integrates them back into our community, to prop them up as our wise leaders and teachers, and ultimately to give them back the gift Judaism says they deserve – respect.

Soon, if not yet, we will be the elderly. We need to prepare. Let us do so, in order that the angels will not laugh at us, knowing our natural inheritance includes weakened and spindly legs and a spine that will curve like the bend of a shofar.

"Fight," the angels shout. "Run, but be aware the nubile nature of youth is followed closely by the creases, and wisdom, of age."

E-mail avrum@veahavta.org. Help the people of Sudan.

PERSONALIZED MEDICINE
Treatment as unique as you are.

SHE INHERITED HER MOTHER'S FRIZZY HAIR AND PREDISPOSITION TO CROHN'S DISEASE.

SORRY, WE CAN'T DO ANYTHING ABOUT HER HAIR.

Mount Sinai has developed the ability to diagnose Crohn's disease earlier and with higher accuracy, which will lead to faster treatment, better care, and just might put us on a path to a cure. This is all thanks to personalized medicine. It's the latest advancement in our ability to deliver The Best Medicine that asks the question: If every patient has their own unique biological, sociological, and psychological make-up, then shouldn't their treatments be just as unique? Mount Sinai's incredible success in researching the human genome, our genetic blue print, has lead to the translation of targeted research into customized treatment for the prevention, detection, and curing of diseases. Helping us to not just understand how diseases work, but how they affect each and every one of us in different ways. And Crohn's disease is just the tip of the iceberg. With similar breakthroughs in the diagnosis of colon cancer, there seems to be no limit to what personalized medicine can do. It may very well be one of the most important medical breakthroughs in recent times, and the key to the future of modern medicine. But we can't do it without you.

MOUNT SINAI HOSPITAL | THE BEST MEDICINE

FOR INFORMATION ABOUT OUR $400 MILLION FUNDRAISING CAMPAIGN, CALL 416.586.8203

Downtown Toronto's Newest Boutique Hotel
The GRAND HOTEL TORONTO
Reservations 1-877-32-GRAND
Book On-line at
www.grandhoteltoronto.com
Earn Double or Triple Aeroplan Miles when using CIBC Aerogold® VISA

The Canadian Jewish news

64 Pages | Thursday, October 21, 2004 | 6 Cheshvan, 5765 | $1.00

SAVE NOW ON AIR + HOTEL!
Nov. 1 – Dec. 15
Jan. 1 – Feb. 28
Starting at $1370
Combining 7 nights air & hotel. PP based DBL.
Certain conditions apply
Contact your travel agent
ELTVALTX
416-967-4222

This Week

National

Cotler's proposals on hate Web sites welcomed. Page 3

Liberal rabbis back gay marriage at Supreme Court. Page 5

New exhibit highlights Jewish life in Norway. Page 12

On Campus

McMaster café caters to Jews, Muslims, Hindus. Page 28

Coast to Coast

NDP MPs defend their trip to Israel. Page 31

Index

GTA 3
Editorials & Letters 8
Perspectives 9
Opinions 10
The Kirshner File 11
Jewish Life 14
Yiddish Corner 23
On Campus 27
Coast to Coast 30
What's New 34
Obituaries & Notices 36
Food, Scrumptious Food 41
Israel & the Jewish World 43
Health & Lifestyles 49
Arts & Travel 52
Books & Authors 56
Classified 57
Sports & Leisure 62

www.cjnews.com
Canada Post Publication Agreement #40010684
Publication Mail Registration #09894

UNRWA funding to stay: Ottawa

A Hamas gunman patrols the streets of Jabalya in northern Gaza. Last week, the Israel Defence Forces began to wind down its operation there against Hamas terrorists. The three-week offensive exposed severe tensions between Israel and the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees after UNRWA head Peter Hansen admitted that Hamas members work for the agency. [RNS / Reuters photo]

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

Canada has no plans to cut, suspend or discontinue funding to a United Nations agency whose head has admitted that some of his employees are members of Hamas.

Peter Hansen, commissioner general of the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees (UNRWA), created a stir earlier this month when he told CBC television news: "I am sure there are Hamas members on the UNRWA payroll. And I don't see that as a crime."

The comment raised the possibility that Canada is supporting a group it outlawed as a terrorist organization last year, and it reinforced Israel's long-held suspicion that UNRWA is a front for extremists.

Canada's Foreign Affairs department expressed concern at the remark and said it would seek clarification from Hansen and UN authorities.

Canada's special co-ordinator for the Middle East peace process, Jill Sinclair, spoke to Hansen on Oct. 5 and 7 to request "formal clarification" of the comment, foreign affairs spokesperson Marie Christine Lilkoff told The CJN.

Lilkoff said Hansen provided an explanation in a letter to Canada's ambassador to Jordan, Roderick Bell, on Oct. 7.

As well, Sinclair had a "formal meeting" with Hansen during last week's conference in Amman of 26 major donor countries to UNRWA and "reiterated Canada's concerns and policy regarding Hamas."

Continued on page 37

Foreign media see only stereotypes, novelist says

By SHELDON KIRSHNER
Staff Reporter

The complexity of Israeli society is reduced to a few distorted sound bites and a miasma of clichés by the international media, says Israeli novelist and political commentator Amos Oz.

Amos Oz

Foreign journalists too often simplify Israel by essentially partitioning it into two broad and seemingly irreconcilable camps, he suggested at a breakfast meeting sponsored by the Canada-Israel Committee and Canadian Jewish Congress at the InterContinental Hotel last week.

When these broadcast and print reporters look at Israel, they see fanatical West Bank settlers, black-clad haredim and ruthless soldiers on the one hand and liberal intellectuals working for peace on the other, Oz said.

In the process, they overlook what he described as "the real Israel" – the secular, divided, argumentative, noisy Israel on the coastal plain, he added.

Continued on page 25

Ex-NHLers to coach Israeli hockey teams

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

Israel's under-18 and senior national teams, which toil in the lower divisions of the International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF), will be led by two former NHL coaches this season, one of them a Stanley Cup winner.

Former Hartford Whalers coach and current TSN hockey analyst Pierre McGuire will coach the senior team, while one-time Montreal Canadiens head man Jean Perron, who led the Habs to a championship in 1986, will work behind the bench with the under-18 team, said Alan Maislin, chair of the Ice Hockey Federation of Israel (IHFI).

Maislin, a Montreal businessman involved in the trucking industry, said the two coaches will bring a winning attitude to Israeli hockey and immediately improve the teams' level of play.

Continued on page 62

Lech Lecha
Candlelighting: 6:03
Havdallah: 7:08

Greater Toronto Area

Don't m... to ... de...

Sharon rules out referendum on Gaza plan — please see page 43

News in Brief

CANADA

Man Barred from Web

EDMONTON — An Edmonton man facing charges of promoting hatred against Jews on his website – and who claims to have links to extra-terrestrials and to be working to bring Earth into the fictitious United Federation of Planets – has been barred from using the Internet. At a bail review hearing last month, Reinhard Mueller, 61, denied the hate charges and told a provincial court judge that he needed the web to research his defence. The judge said other research avenues are available to him.

Cyclists Ride for Love

TORONTO — Twenty cyclists from the Toronto area will be among 250 riders in Wheels of Love, Israel's largest multi-day charity sports event, on Oct. 24 to 28. The five-day, 245-mile ride will benefit Alyn Hospital in Jerusalem, Israel's only rehabilitation centre for children and young adults. More than half the participants in the fifth annual event will come from North America. Riders, who each must raise at least $2,000 for Alyn, range in age from 15 to 73. Among the oldest riders will be Al Rubinoff, 73, and his brother Marvin, 68, both of Toronto.

WORLD

Cemetery Desecrated

CINCINNATI — More than 100 tombstones were knocked over at a Jewish cemetery in suburban Cincinnati. The desecration, discovered Oct. 4 at a United Jewish Cemeteries location in Walnut Hills, Ohio, was the third such incident since July 2003. On Aug. 19, vandals toppled 102 stones, and in July 2003, nearly 40 were desecrated. Cemetery officials said more police supervision and media attention is needed to prevent further acts.

Bombed Bus Displayed

DURHAM, N.C. — The remains of an Israeli bus bombed by terrorists earlier this year was displayed last week at Duke University. It was shown courtesy of Chabad in advance of a pro-Palestinian conference scheduled to be held on campus last weekend.

Sportscaster Returns

NEW YORK — A Fox Network sports announcer is back for the baseball playoffs after being suspended without pay for on-air comments seen as anti-Semitic. Steve Lyons questioned Shawn Green's commitment to Judaism after the Los Angeles Dodgers slugger sat out a key game on Yom Kippur. Green's "not a practising Jew," Lyons said. "He didn't marry a Jewish girl." He added: "And from what I understand, he never had a bar mitzvah, which is unfortunate because he didn't get the money." Fox apologized and said Lyons expressed remorse.

Shoah Remembered

BUCHAREST — Romania held its first Holocaust Remembrance Day last Tuesday. The annual commemoration was one of several measures Romania put in place after government officials were criticized last year after denying the Holocaust took place on Romanian soil. Both houses of Parliament held a joint session to mark the day.

Tory Thanks Britain

LONDON — In an emotional keynote speech to his party's annual conference earlier this month, British Tory leader Michael Howard said he owed Britain a debt for giving his family refuge from Nazi Europe. "My grandmother was one of those killed in the concentration camps," said Howard, whose father came to Britain in 1939 from Romania. "If it hadn't been for Winston Churchill, and if it hadn't been for Britain, I would have been one of them too. That's why when I say I owe everything I am to this country, I mean it." Howard, Tory leader since October 2003, said his background inspired his political career. "I want to give Britain just a tiny bit back in return for what Britain has given to me."

Student Sues York

TORONTO — A student activist is suing York University for defamation, abuse of power and breach of academic freedom after it suspended him last May without a hearing for participating in two unauthorized pro-Palestinian protests on campus during the 2003-04 school year.

York suspended Daniel Freeman-Maloy for three years for what its officials called flagrant disruption of campus life and the unauthorized use of a bullhorn in contravention of university policy. York lifted the suspension in July after it lost a bid to block him from seeking a judicial review.

Freeman-Maloy, 22, is suing York for $850,000 in damages. In a statement of claim filed last week, he accused York president Lorna Marsden of suspending him from classes and barring him from campus without giving him a proper opportunity to respond. He also said the suspension prevented him from earning money at two campus jobs this past summer, and he alleged statements by York officials defamed him by falsely suggesting he favours violence.

In a statement, the school said it acted in good faith and would defend its actions.

Stone Craft מצבות המפעל MONUMENT FACTORY

We have a very large inventory of top quality

Granite Monuments

For a limited time, we can offer

Single Stones at $750.

(while factory stock lasts)

All sizes for all Jewish Cemeteries in Ontario

•Factory Direct Prices •Monuments Available Within 1 week •Cemetery Lettering and Restoration •We use the finest granite

SERVING THE JEWISH COMMUNITY FOR MANY YEARS

121 BRISBANE RD., #1 DOWNSVIEW 416-667-1474

Steeles Memorial Chapel

www.steelesmemorial.com

- •Current Listing of Funerals
- •Listing of Cemeteries and Maps of Sections
- •Yahrzeit Calculator for Civil & Hebrew dates
- •Kaddish Texts
- •Educational Information about Shiva - Unveiling - After-Care - Prayers - Jewish Burial Rites
- •Jewish Holiday Dates

905-881-6003

Serving the Jewish Community since 1927.

THE VEHICLE EVERYONE HAS BEEN WAITING FOR!

2005 DODGE MAGNUM

Book your test drive NOW!

Luxurious! Powerful! Rear wheel drive with ESP. Made in Canada.

$389 LEASE PER MONTH

NOW IN STOCK

*Lease 48 months with 20,400 KM allowed per year with $.15 for excess KMs. Freight, PDE, admin and taxes extra. OAC. Downpayment or trade equivalent $1660. See Downsview Chrysler for details. Vehicle may feature optional equipment.

DOWNSVIEW CHRYSLER DODGE • JEEP 416-635-1660

On the Allen Road, N. of Sheppard Ave./401

The Canadian Jewish news

Vol. XXXIV, No. 42 (1,669)*

Gary Laforet General Manager

Mordechai Ben-Dat Editor

Vera Gillman Advertising & Assistant General Manager

Carol Jamieson Controller

Jeff Rosen News & Internet Editor

Joseph Serge, Arts, Travel and Supplements Editor

Janice Arnold, Carolyn Blackman, Ron Csillag, Sheldon Kirshner, Frances Kraft, David Lazarus, Elias Levy, Paul Lungen, Anna Morgan, Leila Speisman Staff Reporters

Jesssica Apter, Rabbi Bernard Baskin, Ross Culiner, Gerald Gall, Jean M. Gerber, Bill Gladstone, Joanna Grossman, Lawrence Hart, Sara Horowitz, Norma Joseph, Dr. Gidi Koren, Rabbi Dow Marmur, Rebecca Nadler, Miriam Porter, Avrum Rosensweig, Alek Silver, Heather Solomon, Gerald Steinberg, Rabbi Chaim Steinmetz, Gil Troy Columnists

Diane Koven, Myron Love Canadian Correspondents

Edgar Asher, Jenny Hazan Israel Bureau

Carolan Halpern, Ruth Schweitzer, Daniel Wolgelerenter Copy Editors

Cynthia Gasner, Special Assignments

Ella Burakowski Assistant Advertising Manager

Bev Bergman, Gloria Clamen, Lisa Freid, Faina Garber, Sarah Laiken, Eric Layman, Honey Mahl, Jonathan Turner, Sholom Wargon, Grace Zweig Sales Representatives, Toronto

Doris Perez, Office Manager

Alma Delory, Lucy Semtchenko, Karen Syptak Office Staff, Toronto

Janice Atkinson Circulation & Promotions Manager

Brian Stoneman Composing Room Manager

José De Freitas, Edward Dunbar, Ronald G. Hagel, Britta Montgomery, Anahit Nahapetyan, Nick Radelja, Michael Stavsky Production Staff

Donald Carr, George A. Cohon, Steven Cummings, Murray Koffler, Julia Koschitzky, Albert J. Latner, Lionel H. Schipper, Robert Vineberg, Rose Wolfe, Rubin Zimmerman Directors

Ray D. Wolfe Founding President (1971-1990)

CIRCULATION

Total circulation: 40,197 copies.
Total paid circulation: 39,504 copies.

CCNA verified circulation Feb. 18, 2004

SUBSCRIPTIONS

Canada: $34.95, 1 yr. incl. GST.
$62.95, 2 yr. incl. GST.
U.S.A.: $100 U.S funds, 1 yr.
All other countries: $110 U.S. funds, 1 yr.

Postmaster: Please return 29Bs and changes of address to Toronto office.

Postage Paid at Toronto
Canada Post Publication Agreement #40010684
Publication Mail Registration #09894

*Under current ownership

We acknowledge the financial support of the Government of Canada, through the Publications Assistance Program, towards our mailing costs.

Canada

The Canadian Jewish news

How To Reach Us

Head Office: 1500 Don Mills Rd., Ste. 205, North York, Ont., M3B 3K4 Tel: 416-391-1836
Advertising Fax: 416-391-0949 Editorial Fax: 416-391-0829
Advertising E-mail: ads@cjnews.com Editorial E-mail: info@cjnews.com
Subscriptions E-mail: jatkinson@cjnews.com Website: www.cjnews.com

IMP - Israel Advertising Representatives
POB 3166, Jerusalem, Israel Tel: 02-625-2522 Fax: 02-624-9240 E-mail: imp@netvision.net.il

Critical Illness
Taking care of tomorrow - TODAY
Rates are going up NOW!
Monica J. Weissmann, CFP
905-889-8535
Edward Jones
Serving Individual Investors
Member CIPF

National

Greater Toronto Area

Sonny Goldstein, CFP
Planning For Retirement?
Confused about your financial future? Let us help you understand how to reach your financial goals.
Call Sonny Goldstein
Chartered Life Underwriter
Chartered Financial Consultant
416-221-0060
HIGHEST QUOTES ON RRIF's, ANNUITIES, etc.
Creative Ideas in Financial Planning

Cotler's proposals on hate Web sites welcomed

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

Jewish organizations that track hatemongers are backing proposals by the Minister of Justice to strengthen legislation addressing Internet hate sites while beefing up enforcement of current laws.

Leo Adler, Canadian spokesperson for the Simon Wiesenthal Center, said proposals announced by Justice Minister Irwin Cotler will address a phenomenon the centre has been monitoring for seven years – the use of websites to promote hatred. Stronger government measures that would address this growth would be welcomed by the centre, Adler said.

"The real difficulty won't be so much about Canadian-based sites… Most of the hatemongers find it extremely difficult to have hate sites in Canada. If the legislation will make it an extraterritorial crime, that certainly is welcome news," he said.

Minister of Justice Irwin Cotler

Ed Morgan, president of Canadian Jewish Congress, said CJC has "long been advocating that hate laws needed continuing bolstering, so we're happy that the government is focusing on it."

Although the minister did not specify how he planned to strengthen Canadian law, his comment that he would encourage police departments across Canada to set up specialized hate crimes units is a positive step, Morgan said. While such police units generally come under municipal or provincial jurisdiction, Morgan said it would make sense if federal funds flowed to the new hate crimes units.

Cotler announced the government's plans to beef up hate crimes legislation in an interview with CanWest News Service.

"We have to send out the message unequivocally, as a government and as part of our shared citizenship and shared values, that our Canada is one in which there will be no sanctuary for hate and no refuge for bigotry," he said in the interview. "We will use all the panoply of remedies to bring that about. Legal remedies, intercultural dialogue, promotion of multiculturalism, anti-discrimination law and policy. A national action plan against racism."

Need to criminalize activities that take place abroad

Morgan suggested the minister was responding to an increase in racist incidents in Canada and to a worldwide climate of anti-Semitism. "I think it's a positive thing for him to be flagging it on behalf of the government," he said.

Adler suggested that to effectively address Internet hate, Canadian law would have to criminalize activities that take place abroad, such as Canadians setting up hate sites in other jurisdictions like the United States. "There is a gradual coming together in the world in terms of certain crimes that are deemed to be crimes regardless of where they're done, as long as you have authority over the person," he said. Adler cited the work of the International Criminal Court and the British Privy Council ruling giving Britain jurisdiction over former Chilean dictator Augusto Pinochet as examples.

Other examples include the extradition of suspects from Canada to the United States for mail fraud and laws against travelling abroad to sexually exploit children, he added.

Cotler also said the proposed legislation would outlaw human trafficking, "the new global slave trade."

2005 X-TYPE 3.0 Sedan/2005 S-TYPE 3.0 with auto/matic/2005 XJ8/2005 XK8. MSRP $44,995/$62,795/$87,500/$96,350. 4.9%/4.9%/4.9%/4.9% lease rate available on all new 2005 X-TYPE 3.0 Sedan/2005 S-TYPE 3.0 with automatic/2005 XJ8/2005 XK8 models for a maximum of 39/39/n.a./n.a. months. E.g.: Lease a new 2005 X-TYPE 3.0 Sedan/2005 S-TYPE 3.0 with automatic/2005 XJ8/2005 XK8 for $59.9/$799/n.a./n.a per month based on a 4.9%/4.9%/4.9%/4.9% lease rate over 39/39/n.a./n.a. months with $2,120/$5,584/n.a./n.a. down payment or equivalent trade. Total lease obligation is $29,303.27/$42,256.83/n.a./n.a. Residual is $24,886.00/$33,222.80/n.a./n.a. Some conditions and a kilometre restriction of 14,769/14,769/n.a./n.a. apply. A charge of 15 cents/25 cents/n.a./n.a. per km over kilometre restriction applies. FOR ALL OFFERS: Lease terms and rates available from Jaguar Credit Canada, O.A.C. First month's payment and security deposit equal to approximately one month's payment required at lease inception. Special order may be required. Offers exclude freight and PDI ($1595), options, license, insurance, administration fees, and all applicable taxes. Vehicle may not be exactly as shown. Lease offer not available with any other offer. Offer ends October 31, 2004. Offer may be cancelled at any time without notice. See Grand Touring Automobiles for details.

YOU HAVEN'T LIVED UNTIL
YOU'VE SAID "THAT'S MY JAG."

For most, it is a thing long wished for, three words dangling somewhere in a hopeful future. A declaration more thrilling than any you have yet made. It's time to say them. Time to put an end to dreamy looks and wishful promises. Because now is the perfect time for you to discover the unimaginable thrill of owning one of the finest automobiles on the planet. Thanks to astonishing lease and finance offers that are better than any we can remember, there has never been a more opportune time to find yourself within the finely crafted interior of a Jaguar. Meaning, unlike those destined to remain forever hopeful, you can soon know the sheer thrill that comes with simply saying three little words: "That's my Jag."

2005 X-TYPE 3.0 Sedan | Attainable luxury
Lease for $599
Lease Rate 4.9% up to 48 months

2005 S-TYPE 3.0 | Beautiful performance
Lease for $799
Lease Rate 4.9% up to 48 months

2005 XJ | Ultimate luxury
Lease 4.9% Rate
Available up to a maximum of 48 months.
XJR model shown.

2005 XK | Ultimate performance
Lease 4.9% Rate
Available up to a maximum of 48 months.
XKR model shown.

Grand Touring Automobiles
740 Dupont Street
Toronto, ON M6G 1Z6
tel: (416) 530-1880
fax: (416) 530-4495
www.grandtouringautos.com

WHY PAY MORE?

Graveside Services at the Lowest Cost Available From Any Jewish Establishment. GUARANTEED.*

A NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION
HEBREW BASIC BURIAL
TRADITIONAL GRAVESIDE SERVICE

3429 Bathurst Street
(416) 780-0596

*Guarantee based on published prices.

REDUCE 2004 TAXES IMMEDIATELY!

- 100% tax deduction
- 15% Federal tax credit in 2004
- 5% Provincial tax credit (ON)
- Tax benefits are protected by statute!
- minimum $10,000 investment
- Augen Limited Partnership 2004

AUGEN CAPITAL CORP.

IPC Investment Corp.
Member of the CIPF

Irwin Igra Tele.: (416) 565-2732
Email: iigra@ipcsecurities.com
3910 Bathurst Street, Suite #404 Toronto, Ontario M3H 5Z3

Please note that investments of this nature are not suitable for all clients, and that the clients should seek the advice of their accountant.

THANK YOU !

The Lisa Coristine Brave Heart Foundation has raised over $150,000 for cancer research at Princess Margaret Hospital. Our 2004 Walk for a Cure was a tremendous success, and we gratefully acknowledge the following corporate sponsors:

Bais Burger	Magen Boys Entertainment
Banty's Roost Golf Club	M&M Meat Shops (Promenade)
BioLab	Nortown Meats
CAA	Rain Day Spa
Clio-Oz Jewellery	Route One (Tom Ungar)
Concord Market	Schneider Foods of Canada
Costco (Markham)	Sobeys (Thornhill)
Enbridge Gas Distribution	Sony
Fortinos (Maple)	Spinmaster Toys
Framar Salon	Tennis Canada
Giftcraft	Terra
Hartman's Kosher Meats	The Beauty Supply Outlet (Yonge & Eglinton)
Hill Street Blues	The Canadian Jewish News
Ilana Valo	The Falcon & Firkin
Jennifer & Leon Lenchner	The Pickle Barrel
Joseph's Estate Wines	The Toronto Argonauts
Krispy Kreme Doughnuts	The Travel Network
Le Biftheque (Woodbine Ave.)	Totto Spa & Salon
Loblaws (Steeles & Dufferin)	Oakridge Golf Club

For more information about our foundation or to make an online donation, please visit http://www.pmhf-uhn.ca/html/events/whatson.asp and click on the Brave Heart Foundation link.

Greater Toronto Area

Democracy, terrorists and the rule of law

From the editor's desk

Prof. Emanuel Gross teaches law at Haifa University. He has spent a great deal of his life reflecting upon how democracies can carry on the struggle against terrorism and how they can protect human rights in times of emergency.

For the second consecutive year he is teaching a seminar at Osgoode Hall Law School at York University in Toronto on law and terrorism, exploring how democratic societies can cope with terrorism without impairing the rule of law.

Last week, at a meeting of lawyers, jurists and other interested individuals organized by Osgoode Hall Law School and sponsored by the Canadian Council for Israel and Jewish Advocacy, Gross shared his views on the subject.

"Terrorism is the new enemy of civilization," Gross said at the outset of his remarks. "It is the great problem of our time, not only a regional threat, but a threat to the whole world. We should, therefore, be developing a new [international] jurisprudence that responds to it."

Gross is eminently qualified to expound upon the dangers terrorism poses to free societies, for he has studied terrorism up close, in the field, as it were, and not merely in the classroom.

For 13 years, Gross was a military judge in the Israel Defence Forces. The last six of those years, until 1993, he served as the chief judge of the District Military Court, Southern Command. Unfortunately, he has presided over too many trials of terrorists.

His purpose last week, however, was not to share any details or conclusions from those trials.

Rather, it was to compare and contrast the recent rulings on Israel's security fence – by the International Court of Justice in the Hague (ICJ) and by Israel's Supreme Court (ISC) – as a case study illustrating how the rule of law was applied by the two different judicial bodies.

Both courts were asked to rule on the legality of the fence. The ICJ was directed to do so by a resolution of the General Assembly of the United Nations. The ISC ruled on the matter as a result of a petition filed with the court by the Village Council of Beit Sourik.

The ICJ ruled that the fence was illegal. It also effectively ruled that Israel has no right to defend itself against terrorist attack emanating from the West Bank and Gaza.

The court found that Israel was not entitled to invoke the right of self-defence under section 51 of the UN Charter because that section applies only to other states. "Nothing in this Charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defence if an armed attack occurs against a Member of the United Nations, until the Security Council has taken measures necessary to maintain international peace and security."

According to the ICJ, because Israel was not being attacked by another state, the UN charter provisions permitting self-defence did not apply to Israel against the Palestinians.

"If the ICJ is right," Gross said, "no country in the world can respond to terrorists, who, by definition, are not uniformed soldiers of a nation state." What particularly disturbed Gross about the ICJ ruling was the court's complete disregard for the facts of the case.

"There was not even one word about why Israel had to erect the fence. The word 'terrorism' is missing from the 100-plus page decision of the court," Gross said. "There is a feeling that the court decided this case in advance."

"One expects a court of law – all courts of law – to rule only after they have the facts and the evidence. Thus, how could the ICJ rule without the facts, without the evidence regarding the reasons for the fence?" Gross demanded to know.

By comparison, Gross pointed out that the ISC first marshalled the facts surrounding the construction of the fence before it ruled on its legality. As we all know, the court ruled that the fence was justifiable on the basis of the legitimate security needs of the State of Israel.

But, as we know too, it also ruled that the security needs had to be balanced by the equally legitimate humanitarian needs of the Palestinians affected by the route of the fence.

"Both rulings anticipate that Israel will move the fence," Gross said. "But the two decisions cannot be reconciled. The ICJ ruling was based on politics. ISC was based on law."

Gross wanted his listeners to understand that even though Israel has had to live under the constant threat of terrorism, since its creation, its Supreme Court ruled that "security is not an absolute value. It is a relative one. It must always be balanced against humanitarian needs."

The decision was a living display of the application of the rule of law in Israel, how the besieged Jewish state strives to be true both to its Jewish and democratic nature while fighting the fight against terrorists.

"Israel's security fence," Gross commented, "encompasses all the legal and the moral problems" when democratic societies try to cope with terrorism without impairing the rule of law.

Israel's answer, which combines political, defence and judicial responses, is imperfect, to be sure. But it is a testament to a society that invokes the rule of law even in its life and death struggle against a multi-headed, terrorist enemy.

—MBD

SeeJN

HELPING TO SAVE LIVES IN KIRYAT SHMONA: A Magen David Adom intensive care ambulance has been donated to the people of Kiryat Shmona, Israel, by the Sephardi community of Toronto. Salomon Queroub, inset, who organized the project, sits behind the wheel of the ambulance, which was on display last week at the Sephardic Kehila Centre in Thornhill.

[Josh Meles photos]

Liberal rabbis back gay marriage at Supreme Court

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

Because marriage holds a central place in Judaism, it's "natural" that Jewish gays and lesbians want to be included in an institution "that is at the heart of their religious belief and practice," a group of liberal rabbis who support homosexual marriage told the Supreme Court of Canada this month.

The Canadian Coalition of Liberal Rabbis for Same-Sex Marriage told the court it represents "a significant and growing constituency in Jewish religious life in Canada in support of same-sex rights."

The coalition, comprised of about two dozen Reform and Reconstructionist rabbis across Canada, was one of 28 intervenors before the Supreme Court, which heard three days of hearings on both sides of the same-sex marriage issue.

Same-sex marriage legislation was referred to the Supreme Court last year by former prime minister Jean Chrétien. The government has asked the court to rule on whether the draft bill is within Parliament's authority, if it's consistent with the Charter of Rights, whether the Charter protects unwilling clergy from having to perform same-sex marriages, and if the present law on opposite-sex marriages is consistent with the Charter.

The rabbis argued that allowing same-sex couples to marry is legal, that the Charter protects clergy who would refuse to conduct same-sex weddings, and that current laws restricting marriage to a man and a woman violate the Charter's equality rights provisions.

Liberal rabbis believe that same-sex couples should be able to choose to have a civil marriage ceremony, and that religious groups should be able to choose whether to conduct same-sex marriages, the coalition's lawyer, University of Toronto law professor Ed Morgan, told the court.

The group's 21-page submission is similar to the argument the rabbis made to Ontario's Court of Appeal, which legalized same-sex marriage in the province in June of last year.

Marriage in the Jewish tradition, "is not centred solely on procreation," Morgan, who was not acting in his capacity as president of Canadian Jewish Congress, told the Supreme Court.

While the Jewish family is a "primary vehicle for transmitting Jewish identity and values, families have taken different forms during the historic evolution of Judaism."

The nuclear family is a relatively recent development, Morgan argued, and its predecessors have included polygamous marriages. "Many kinds of families, including those with same-sex partners, are capable of fulfilling Jewish family values," he said, adding that supporting gay and lesbian Jewish families "helps to strengthen the Jewish family in its diversity."

Liberal Judaism "recognizes the right of individuals to listen to their own consciences in making life choices."

While Jewish law may be rooted in tradition, it is "not immutable," and liberal Judaism regards social institutions such as marriage as "open to interpretation in accordance with community, values and individual morality."

There is a broad range of views and interpretations within Judaism, as in other faiths, Morgan said. "There is certainly no single spokesperson for Jewish law and its interpretation, and the Jewish position on homosexuality is not unanimous among religious scholars."

In fact, the trend in Judaism, outside Orthodoxy, is toward a "modernized reading of Jewish values affirming the inherent dignity of all persons." The Reform approach is to stress modern equality rights over historic views based on biblical and medieval texts that condemn homosexuality outright.

Liberal rabbis are committed to an inclusive Jewish community and have a special concern about just and fair treatment for all, Morgan said. That includes gay and lesbian congregants, "whose religious needs must be met and whose legal rights must be protected just as much as any other members of the community."

The need to protect gay Jews is pronounced, he stated, because there can be "little doubt" they suffer from the "pre-existing" double blows of anti-Semitism and homophobia.

Continued on page 23

HARDWOOD & CARPET SALE
RIVIERA FLOORING
Warehouse & Showroom
at
8111 JANE STREET, UNIT #6
CONCORD, ONTARIO
L4K 4L7

JOE RIVIETZ
'The Flooring Broker'

"NEW FLOORING WILL BE NO PROBLEM"

SPECIAL
100% Wool Sisal
$3.79 sq. ft.
ON SALE
Hardwood
•Oak, Maple, Birch
Floors Professionally Sanded & Stained

We lift and dispose of old carpets, furniture is moved and replaced, new flooring is professionally installed.
Monday - Friday 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
• Weekends by appointment
By appointment only, call JOE at 905-738-4588
PREVERCO
DUPONT STAINMASTER®

Canadian Society for
YAD VASHEM
The Holocaust Martyrs' and Heroes' Remembrance Authority זכור

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31, 2004
7:30 p.m.
Beth Tikvah Congregation,
3080 Bayview Avenue

Hear two internationally-renowned educators, lecturers and activists in a provocative presentation:

"THE LANGUAGE OF ANTI-SEMITISM: CHALLENGES TO HOLOCAUST EDUCATION AND REMEMBRANCE TODAY"

SHULAMIT IMBER, Pedagogical Director of the International School for Holocaust Studies at Yad Vashem, Jerusalem, is a member of the International Task Force for International Cooperation on Holocaust Education, Remembrance and Research and Committee on Remembrance Days under the auspices of the Council of Europe. She has lectured at many International Conferences and Forums including Amsterdam, Stockholm, United Kingdom, U.S.A. and Israel.

DR. KAREN MOCK, Executive Director of the Canadian Race Relations Foundation, is a registered psychologist and an expert on anti-racist education. She served twelve years as National Director of the League for Human Rights, B'nai Brith Canada. Among her many board and advisory positions, Dr. Mock chaired the National Advisory Committee to the Secretary and Canadian Secretariat for the UN World Conference Against Racism and was a delegate at the 2001 conference in Durban, South Africa.

THE CANADIAN SOCIETY FOR YAD VASHEM IS PROUD TO SUPPORT HOLOCAUST EDUCATION WEEK.

ADMISSION IS FREE

Please call the Yad Vashem office for further information: 416-785-1333

ORCA

PINE VILLA

Retirement Living
that is right for you

In the heart of Toronto's Jewish community, Pine Villa is surrounded by wonderful shops & boutiques, banks and convenient transit. At Pine Villa you will discover quality services and amenities for the independent senior in a gracious and caring environment. Our trained staff cater to meet your needs.

- Fine Jewish cuisine
- 24 Hour supervised care
- Daily activities, live entertainment and outings
- Nurse call bell in each suite
- Additional care available
- Spacious newly renovated suites
- Housekeeping, linen and laundry services
- Physiotherapy services
- Married couple accommodation
- Respite & short term stay

For detailed information and a personal tour call us or visit our website today!

(416) 787-5626
1035 Eglinton Avenue West Toronto
www.retirementresidences.com

Greater Toronto Area

Rae to receive Canadian Friends of Hebrew U Scopus Award

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

Former Ontario premier Bob Rae, who is currently heading a review on the province's post-secondary school system, is being honoured by Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University – an institution that does not figure in his report, but one with which he is quite familiar.

Most recently, Rae, a partner in the law firm Goodman Phillips & Vineberg, spent a week as a visiting professor last December at the Jerusalem-based institution. He also spoke there in 1994, when he led a delegation to Israel, the West Bank and Jordan.

"Probably next to Oxford [which he attended more than 30 years ago as a Rhodes scholar], it's the closest association I have to another university outside of Canada," he said in a phone interview, adding that he is currently chancellor of the University of Waterloo.

Bob Rae

Rae, 56, will receive the Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University's Scopus Award, its highest honour, at a dinner Oct. 24 at the Fairmont Royal York Hotel. Funds will be directed to the university's law school.

"I'm really thrilled with this honour," said Rae, citing the role the university plays in Israeli society and the world. "Throughout its history, it has been a source of learning, tolerance and understanding."

Although Rae has been examining approaches to tuition funding at universities outside of Canada, Israel's situation is very different, he said. "They have their own funding challenges."

In his interim report to the Ontario government released earlier this month, Rae said the province's post-secondary system is in jeopardy because of rising tuition and inadequate government funding.

"Both the provincial and federal governments are beginning to get the message about the need to invest in post-secondary education," said Rae. "I'm confident we'll see new approaches that are creative."

He anticipates partnerships among government, students, the private sector, and universities and colleges.

Colleges, he believes, are "a critical part of the picture.

"I think the colleges have got a very clear role to play in providing education and job training… We need to look hard at how to make sure the work students do in the college system is taken seriously, and recognize the advantages to the economy of having institutions that have a much more applied approach to job training and a broader education."

Since Rae left political life in 1996, he has not had a role in the NDP and is no longer a member of the party. "I felt a partisan role was quite inappropriate," he said of his decision to accept public policy assignments once he retired from politics.

Among the reasons he did not rejoin the party was its approach to the Middle East. "I believe strongly that Canada needs to play a constructive role in the Middle East, and that we need to do everything we can to support or re-establish a peace process, but it's difficult in the context of suicide bombers, rocket grenade attacks and people who don't recognize the legitimate claim of Israel to be a country. It's a tremendous challenge, not only for Israel but the whole world."

Politically, Rae describes himself as a social democrat. "I'm a strong supporter of peace. I strongly believe there's going to have to be a return to a process of discussion and real negotiation about mutual recognition and I hope that will come, but I think we all have to recognize that groups who advocate the use of terror against civilians are not going to be constructive partners in any kind of peace process."

Rae is often mistaken for Jewish – in part because of his Jewish paternal grandfather, wife and children – but lately he has taken to referring to himself as "Chai Anglican," a term he says his wife, Arlene Perly Rae, came up with.

Vinnette Mohan, C.C.Ht.
Director & Certified Clinical Hypnotherapist

Positive Changes after holiday dining!

Dear Valued Customer:
If you're planning to lose the weight you already needed to lose before your holiday dining indulgences, we can help. Visit us at www.positivechangestoronto.com and view the many testimonials from people just like you .:. people for whom hypnosis has succeeded where other methods have failed. Give us a call; we'll show you how to have your cake and eat it too.

Vinnette Mohan, C.C.Ht., Director Of Operations Canada

Call today for your FREE consultation!

Positive Changes Yes, It Works.

POSITIVE CHANGES TORONTO
416.488.4724
801 York Mills Road at Leslie
www.positivechangestoronto.com

UJA Federation

GET ON THE BUS!

Mission to the General Assembly
November 14 - 17, 2004 - Cleveland, Ohio

Join the world's largest gathering of Jewish community leadership

Have fun at the Rock 'N Roll Hall of Fame

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon outlines his government's plans for Gaza, security & peace in the Middle East, moderated by journalist, Dan Raviv

James Carville, Bill Kristol, & Shoshana Cardin
"Making Sense of the 2004 Election"

Shabtai Shavit, former Mossad head
& Jamie Gorelick, 9/11 Commissioner
"National Security and Terrorism"

David Stillman
"When Generations Collide"

MEET

Joshua Malina
actor on "The West Wing"

Gal Fridman
Israeli Olympic Gold Medalist

MISSION CHAIRS

Les Aaron • Josh Cooper
David Peltz • Dodi Weill

REGISTER TODAY!

Call the GA Hotline
416-849-1000

Bus Fare $100 return

The Canadian Jewish news

An independent community newspaper serving as a forum for diverse viewpoints

Publisher and Proprietor:
The Canadian Jewish News, a corporation without share capital.
Head Office:
1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, Ont. M3B 3K4

Craven mandarins, worrisome attitude

Last week, unidentified "senior government officials" – presumably within the Foreign Affairs establishment – used the respected Globe and Mail columnist John Ibbitson to leak a story that they are "increasingly angry about what they claim is a major but surreptitious (all emphasis mine) shift in foreign policy… away from a balanced approach toward the Middle East in favour of explicit and virtually unqualified support for Israel."

As proof of the incipient "shift in foreign policy," the anonymous "people close to the issue within the bureaucracy" cited Canada's recent abstention in the UN General Assembly vote "criticizing Israel's security wall" in the face of the 150 nations who joined in the criticism. They also cited "a statement by Canada strongly criticizing Peter Hansen [commissioner general of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency]… who acknowledged that UNRWA may have Hamas members on its payroll."

These faceless whiners are complaining over an abstention! What if Canada had actually voted alongside Israel, God forfend? Perhaps they would have resigned en masse to protest so blatant a violation of their "balanced" almost always anti-Israel voting record at the UN.

And why does it not seem to bother these shadowy senior government officials that Hansen is employing people whom Jean Chrétien's government would have considered as belonging to a terrorist organization that is outlawed in Canada, or that Canadian taxpayers are contributing to Hansen's payroll for these criminal Hamas members?

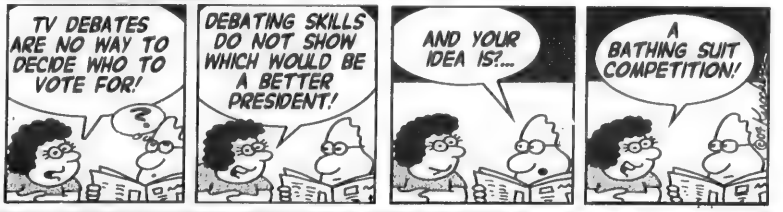
The unhappy bureaucrats even cite as a reason for their unhappiness that Justice Minister Irwin Cotler is meddling in "Foreign Affairs deliberations," as if somehow it is unseemly of a cabinet minister to actually want to make his voice heard around the cabinet table on matters of important – albeit foreign affairs – cabinet policy.

There is a great deal in Ibbitson's column which is troubling and even offensive but which, alas, cannot be rebutted in this space. Most unsettling, however, is his breathtaking, throwaway line at the very end of the column: "Foreign policy is too important to be left to politicians." He implies that the unnamed bureaucrats are correct to feel "alarm," that only they, "the people close to the issue within the bureaucracy" should be the fashioners and repositors of government policy. If that be true, then why bother holding general elections? We always believed that it fell to the elected officials, the "politicians," to establish policy and to the bureaucrats to execute it.

Ibbitson's column appeared during the same week as a report that the Israeli Foreign Ministry was worried that the increasingly anti-Israel stance of the European Union bloc of 25 nations was leading inexorably to the branding of Israel as a pariah state, to be outcast, to be made to bear international sanctions. This, of course, has always been the strategy of the Palestinian leaders and their peace-loving confederates at the UN. The irony of this timing was too unsubtle to ignore and betrayed too worrisome an attitude among the craven mandarins to leave unheeded.

LET OUR PEOPLE GO…

MIAs: Ron Arad, Zachary Baumel, Tzvi Feldman and Yehuda Katz.



Dry Bones
TV DEBATES ARE NO WAY TO DECIDE WHO TO VOTE FOR!
?
DEBATING SKILLS DO NOT SHOW WHICH WOULD BE A BETTER PRESIDENT!
AND YOUR IDEA IS?...
A BATHING SUIT COMPETITION!

Editorial Advisory Board: Irving Abella, Michael Brown, Sandra Brown, Donald Carr, Paul Cooper, Rabbi Elyse Goldstein, Zac Kaye, Igor Korenzvit, Lou Ronson, Jacques Sayegh, Mike Shriqui, Ron Somogyi, Pamela Medjuck Stein, Rabbi Reuven Tradburks

Objects to handling of story

It's unacceptable that The CJN has succeeded in reinforcing several well-entrenched myths, falsehoods and slanders in its front-page story of the four-year terrorist war against Israel ("Israel's longest war: after four years of intifidah, violence continues," CJN, Oct. 6).

Jews and Muslims did not start "killing each other, hating each other…" in September 2000. PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat and his terrorist network launched a war of terror and murder against Israelis – pure and simple.

Comparing the 3,300 Arab dead with 1,017 Israelis dead reinforces the falsehood that the Palestinians are somehow on the weaker side of the equation, whereas in truth Israelis are murdered, while Palestinians are either targets because they are terrorists or they have been accidentally caught in the crossfire. Israel does not launch murderous attacks against innocent Arabs. And it's shocking that The CJN would repeat that long-demolished lie that perhaps Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's visit to the Temple Mount triggered the war, when it's well known that the Palestinians merely used that as a pretext to start their murderous rampage. And to state that "Israel reacted harshly" in response to this war is not only false – having waited until Passover 2002, after the Park Hotel Passover seder massacre, to launch a full-scale effort against relentless Arab suicide bomb attacks and shootings – but also ignores the fact that the Israeli army goes out of its way to minimize innocent loss of life.

David E. Bronfman
Toronto

* * *

Save a Child's Heart now in Canada

I am writing this letter as the new director of Friends of Save a Child's Heart (SACH) in Canada. We are thankful and excited for the coverage we received in The Canadian Jewish News ("Israelis fixing hearts in Third World, CJN, Sept. 23) and delighted about our new home in Toronto.

As mentioned in the article, SACH is an Israel-based international humanitarian organization that provides lifesaving heart surgeries and follow-up care for children from developing countries. Our mission is to improve the quality of pediatric cardiac care for children from all four corners of the world who suffer from congenital heart disease and to create centres of competence in these countries.

Since its inception in 1996, the SACH medical team has examined and evaluated more than 4,000 children. The number of cardiac surgeries performed by SACH has grown dramatically, from 48 cases in 1996 to 173 in 2002. To date, more than 1,100 cardiac surgeries have been performed.

There are now more than 900 children on our waiting list, 900 lives that we intend to save. We have the facilities to save 250 children this year alone but can only do so with your support.

It is indeed an honour to give the Canadian Jewish community the ability to play a role in giving life to little people. For more information, call 416-324-5413, fax 416-961-3232, e-mail info@sachf.ca or visit www.saveachildsheart.com.

Rachel Mamann
Executive Director
Friends of Save a Child's Heart

* * *

Is this the Creator's will?

I am sure you all must have heard that Israel is, nowadays, near the bottom of the list of countries where a high standard of mathematics is taught to the children. Like myself, you also must have been surprised, shocked and then horrified. But it shouldn't really be at all surprising.

Because they don't know simple mathematics, about one-third of the population is opposed to leaving the Gaza Strip, Judea and Samaria. If we keep all those areas that we conquered – or occupied – or even freed in the 1967 Six Day War, we will soon be outnumbered. We will become another Arab state and Jews will once again be a tolerated minority, just as we are everywhere else in the world. Really now, is that what the Creator promised our ancestors?

Ezra Halevi
Moshav Habonim
Israel

* * *

What are we worried about?

I read with interest the front-page story and editorial concerning the proposed divestment by the Presbyterian and Anglican churches of their investments in Israel and (presumably) in companies doing business with Israel ("Anglican leaders urge Israel divestment," CJN, Sept. 29). While I agree completely with the editorial's characterization of this proposal as "morally repugnant," I really must ask – what are we so worried about?

If these churches do sell their investments, they will do so on the stock market, where some other party or parties will buy them. So all that happens is that different investors would become part owners of these companies, something that happens every day on the market. Knowing that these companies do business with Israel, the new investors might be more open-minded with respect to the causes of the Arab/Israeli conflict. Why would we want people who blindly and uncritically blame Jews for the ills of the world owning our resources? Indeed, it would be a golden opportunity for Jews themselves to acquire these securities. If the chuches are so convinced that they are doing the right thing, they should even be willing to sell these investments at below market price.

If what we are worried about is the anti-Israel public position of these churches, rest assured that they will hold those views whether or not they own Israeli stocks, and their blindness to the real root of the problem will transcend any attempts by the Jewish community to convince them otherwise. We should not spend our Jewish communal funds on trying to do so. Instead, we should spend them on quietly bringing recognized Israeli academics (and I don't mean high-profile politicians) to our college and university campuses to speak directly to students and faculty.

That is what happened here in Vancouver last February, when a highly knowledgeable and articulate professor of history from Tel Aviv University spent a month as scholar-in-residence. Besides the usual Jewish venues, he spoke at the University of British Columbia (including the Vancouver School of Theology), various community colleges, and other sites not all of which were previously friendly to Israel. Wherever he went, he was well received, even by students of Arab background. It was a fruitful investment.

Let's not waste our hard-won money on trying to convince the unconvincible. If they want to split, let them go.

Irving Nitkin
Vancouver

The Canadian Jewish News reserves the right to refuse advertising that in its opinion is misleading, in poor taste or incompatible with the advertising policies of the newspaper. Acceptance of advertising does not imply endorsement by The Canadian Jewish News. The CJN makes no representation as to the kashruth of food products in advertisements.

Letters are welcome if they are brief, in English or French, typewritten with lines double spaced, and of interest to our reading public. Readers are cautioned not to make sweeping claims against persons or institutions which they cannot verify, as libel laws are very stringent. We reserve the right to edit and condense letters, which must bear the sender's address, phone number and both handwritten and typed signatures. Letters sent by e-mail must also include the sender's municipal address.

Sinai attacks offer opening for Israeli-Egyptian co-operation

By LESLIE SUSSER

The co-ordinated terrorist attacks on Israeli tourists in Sinai earlier this month may have some significant, unintended consequences: a deepening of anti-terrorism co-operation between Israel and Egypt, and greater Egyptian readiness to guarantee security in the Gaza Strip after Israel's planned withdrawal next summer.

Analysis

At first glance, the Oct. 7 attacks were a blow to Middle Eastern rapprochement. It could take years before Israeli tourism to Sinai – one of the few signs of people-to-people normalcy in Israel's relations with the Arab world – returns to anything like the dimensions of this holiday season.

There was a symbolic blow to peace too: Israeli reporters recalled that the Hilton Taba hotel, targeted by the terrorists, had hosted hundreds of hours of peace talks over the years between Israelis and Egyptians and Israelis and Palestinians.

Egyptian and Israeli rescue workers pull a body out from the rubble of the Hilton Hotel in Taba. Some 32 people were killed and 124 were wounded on Oct. 7 in co-ordinated attacks on two Red Sea holiday resorts packed with tourists. Thirteen Israelis were among the dead. [Israel Sun photo]

With one wing of the hotel reduced to rubble, one reporter said the shattered building suggested a scarred monument to failed visions of peace. But some noted another image: Israeli and Egyptian rescue workers sifting through rubble together.

Behind the scenes, top Israeli and Egyptian officials discussed intelligence and other co-operation against the common threat of Islamic terrorism. Avi Dichter, head of Israel's Shin Bet security service, visited the site of the Hilton attack and met with his Egyptian counterparts.

Soon afterward, Israeli field agents were allowed to scour the scenes of the Sinai bombings for evidence. They worked closely with Egyptian security agents and were given information from Egyptian interrogations of suspects and eyewitnesses.

This constituted co-operation of an unprecedented nature for Egyptian authorities, who have been wary of co-operating with security agents of what many Egyptians still consider the "Zionist enemy."

> Ties had been warming for several months before the terrorist incident

According to initial Israeli intelligence estimates, the three co-ordinated bombings, one on the Hilton Taba and two at the Sinai resort of Ras Satan, were carried out by "Global Jihad," a network of radical Islamic groups directed by Osama bin Laden's Al Qaeda organization.

Though Israeli tourists were targeted, some Israeli counterterrorism experts believe the Sinai attackers' primary goal was to destabilize the Egyptian regime.

"Global Jihad's main aim is to topple moderate Arab and Muslim regimes, like that in Egypt, and bring like-minded Islamic radicals to power," said Boaz Ganor of the Herzliya Interdisciplinary Center.

The attacks were designed mainly to hit Egypt's tourism industry, weaken the economy and destabilize the regime, Ganor said. If that's indeed the case, Egypt has an obvious interest in co-operating with all intelligence services, including Israel's, that can supply advance warning of planned attacks and help target would-be perpetrators.

For most of the 25 years that Egypt and Israel have been nominally at peace, such co-operation would have been unthinkable. A former Egyptian foreign minister (and former UN secretary general), Boutros Boutros-Ghali, coined the term "cold peace" to describe how Egypt had resisted normalizing relations even after signing a peace treaty.

Still, despite strong Egyptian criticism of Israel's handling of the Palestinian intifadah, ties had been warming for several months before the Sinai attacks. The most significant upgrading came in late May, when President Hosni Mubarak affirmed Egypt's readiness to help keep the peace in Gaza after Israel's planned withdrawal.

Mubarak agreed to beef up Egyptian forces to patrol the border between Egypt and the Gaza Strip, prevent the smuggling of weapons from Sinai into Gaza and send Egyptian instructors to train Palestinian Authority security forces.

Since then, the Egyptians have been trying to mediate a ceasefire involving all Palestinian organizations, including radical groups such as Hamas and Islamic Jihad.

In late May, Mubarak and Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon agreed to set up political, security and economic committees to upgrade all aspects of the countries' bilateral relationship. The move coincided with the conclusion of the biggest deal ever between the two countries: a contract worth $2.5 billion (US) for Egypt to supply Israel with natural gas for 15 years, beginning in 2006.

Israeli analysts attribute the change in Egypt's attitude to Sharon's plan to disengage from the Palestinians. They say the Egyptians are motivated by fear that after Israel's withdrawal, Hamas will seize control of the Gaza Strip and make it a hotbed of Islamic fundamentalism that could spill over into Egypt.

Now, after the Sinai bombings, Egypt has far more reason for concern. There is a palpable danger that Global Jihad would see a Hamas-controlled Gaza as a golden opportunity to establish a land base against Cairo. That gives Egypt added incentive to co-operate with Israel.

Giora Eiland, head of Israel's national security council, summed up Israeli expectations: In the past, he said, the Egyptians had been lax about cracking down on criminal activities and weapons smuggling in Sinai, and had allowed "hostile elements" to get too close to the border with Israel.

Eiland said he hoped the Egyptians now would clamp down as strongly as they did against radical Islamic groups in Egypt in the 1990s.

But it won't all be clear sailing. Egypt still sees itself as competing with Israel for regional hegemony, a perception that may lead Cairo to continue its efforts to compel Israel to give up its nuclear capability. And the sharp, often vitriolic, criticism of Israel's response to Palestinian violence will almost certainly continue, at least in the press and on the Egyptian street.

Eventually, ties between Cairo and Jerusalem could mirror those Israel has with Jordan and Turkey – where, despite abiding popular hostility toward Israel, the regimes work closely at the highest strategic levels.

Leslie Susser is a political analyst with the Jewish Telegraphic Agency and diplomatic correspondent for the Jerusalem Report.

Al Qaeda foiled in efforts to infiltrate territories: Ya'alon

By GIDEON ALON
Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

JERUSALEM — Al Qaeda has tried to infiltrate the territories but has been foiled by Israeli security forces, IDF Chief of Staff Moshe Ya'alon told the Knesset foreign affairs and defence committee last week.

Ya'alon said global terrorism is a threat to Israelis everywhere, that Israel is prepared to deal with the threat of Al Qaeda, and that international co-operation is required.

The deputy head of the research branch of military intelligence, Col. Zohar Alfi, said the Sinai attacks were carried out by local cells of World Jihad. He said the group has discrete cells in dozens of countries and is directed by Al Qaeda.

According to Alfi, the ideology of all World Jihad cells is based on hatred of Christians and Jews and an intent to topple heretical Islamic regimes. Such cells operate in various countries in Europe and Africa (particularly in Kenya and Tanzania). Their activities do not have a target date and each cell is self-directed. The cells rely on paid help from local elements in each country.

Funding for World Jihad operations comes from Sunni radicals in the Persian Gulf. According to figures presented by Alfi, World Jihad attacks in the past three years have killed 1,788 people worldwide: 573 people were killed in 59 attacks in 2002; 510 people were killed in 66 attacks in 2003; 705 people were killed in 66 attacks in 2004.

The victims of these attacks included 23 Jews or Israelis. In 2002, there were three attacks on Jewish targets in Kenya and the island of Djerba in Tunisia that killed three people; in 2003, three attacks killed eight people in Turkey and Morocco; in 2004, three attacks killed 12 people in Uzbekistan and Sinai.

Lessons learned at Concordia?

In my first column for The CJN, I praised Concordia University. What I wrote then is equally applicable today. I love where I work. Concordia – the institution, administration, faculty and student body – nourishes me as a scholar and educator in remarkable ways. Nonetheless, I am compelled to ask what have we learned and what are we teaching?

Norma Baumel Joseph in Montreal

I am, of course, alluding to the recent fiasco in which former Israeli prime minister Ehud Barak was barred from speaking on campus. After the incident surrounding another former Israeli prime minister, Benjamin Netanyahu, in 2002, Hillel students searched for ways to reclaim their position on campus. Consequently, they invited Barak to speak on campus. Claiming security concerns, the university rejected the idea. With the counter-claim that freedom of speech was being violated, the students, and the Montreal Jewish community, reacted with dismay and unyielding condemnation.

So what are we teaching and what have we learned from these incidents?

After the riot of 2002, a colleague articulated a commonly held view. "If only they had invited someone less controversial than Bibi, this wouldn't have happened." I countered that any Israeli representative would have received the same reaction. Regrettably, the Barak incident proved me correct. Many also argued that if Netanyahu's speech had been scheduled at Concordia's Loyola campus, as opposed to downtown, security could have been maintained. But again, this plaintive position was misplaced.

Is the lesson learned: No lecture by any Israeli political figure on campus, ever?

I'm sure that's not the the administration's intent, but I fear it's the lesson learned. I am equally sure that what's at stake is not a particular Jewish or Israeli argument. The substantive issue is the incorruptibility of an education.

Concordia is, after all, an academic institution dedicated to promoting knowledge and excellence in teaching. It's committed to introducing students of all ages and backgrounds to new ideas and perspectives. Students must learn to tolerate, and even celebrate, that human and cultural diversity. They must be taught to embrace new perspectives and understand divergent persuasions – no matter what their own convictions. You do not need to agree, but you must allow another's right to exist. That's the premise of democracy.

I don't see this as an issue of free speech or academic freedom. The issue goes to the heart of Concordia's raison d'etre. If fear of an outburst controls what can be heard on campus, if we can't insist on open dialogue and discussion, then we have surely yielded our position as educators.

This is not the Concordia I know. I know of its uncompromising devotion to honest scholarship and academic integrity, to student diversity and advancement. I pray it continues to pursue and teach those principles.

All beginnings are hard

The proverb has it that all beginnings are hard – when we begin something new, it requires a change in our regular habits of thought. That change is not only difficult, it can be exciting as well.

We have just begun the book of Bereshit, Hebrew for the first word in the book. It is a profound "just so" story (with no apologies to Rudyard Kipling).

Jean M. Gerber in Vancouver

Reading the first chapters of the Torah, we look back at an era when people took seriously the intervention of the divine in the affairs of humankind. Today, that feeling of awe is mostly reserved for advances in medical science, astronomy or the explanation of how the brain works, to give just a few examples. But the creation of the entire universe out of nothing – or out of some primordial chaos – may no longer move us the way it did past generations.

Yet what a wonderful beginning to the world those first chapters give us. Not a scientific account, to be sure, but a more visceral one, more in tune with the unknowable universe that still exists out of sight of our most powerful telescopes. The only way to really appreciate the power of the idea that some divine being actually moved across the face of a chaotic waterworld is to look at what the mystics of the Zohar wrote.

"When the will of the King began to take effect, he engraved signs into the heavenly sphere. Within the most hidden recess a dark flame issued from the mystery of eyn sof, the Infinite, like a fog forming in the unformed – enclosed in the ring of that sphere, neither white not black, neither red nor green, of no colour whatsoever… From the innermost centre of the flames sprang forth a well out of which colours issued and spread upon everything beneath, hidden in the mysterious hiddenness of eyn sof. The well broke through and yet did not break through… It could not be recognized at all until a hidden, supernal point shone forth under the impact of the final breaking through.

"Beyond this point nothing can be known. Therefore it is called reshit, beginning –the first word by means of which the universe has been created" (from Zohar: the Book of Splendor, edited by Gershom Scholem).

That description, more than any scientific one, gives you the chills.

Then, just when everything seems to be going well, comes the flood, ushering in a new beginning. That story always struck me as so much more ambivalent, as if God, having had second thoughts about the plan to wipe out the human race and all the animals, felt he had over-reacted, a bit.

The flood epic has a rather different twist. Recently, archeologists surveying the Black Sea have concluded that there was indeed a flood, only not one quite so universal. According to this theory, agricultural settlements had sprung up around the shores of a very small lake east of the Mediterranean. When the Ice Age ended rather abruptly, water poured into the rivers and seas, broke through the Straits of Gibraltar, filled up the Mediterranean basin and continued east through the Dardanelles, forming the Black Sea in a very short period of time. Refugees from the inundated farms spread into the Anatolian and Mesopotamian regions, taking with them not only agricultural techniques but also their account of what to them was the end of their world. Everyone had a story, and ours seems as plausible as any other. (See Noah's Flood, by William Ryan and Walter Pitman.)

But the hardest beginning is just coming up: the beginning of the Jewish people, starting with the words "Lech lecha."

As a founding story, the travels and travails of Abraham and his descendants are amazing – rich in detail, metaphor and tidbits of daily life in the ancient Middle East, not to mention family tragedies and rivalries, and loves and hatreds that span generations. It's no wonder we continue to probe these stories thousands of years later for the riches they contain.

Again the Zohar: "Just as wine must be in a jar to keep, so the Torah must be contained in an outer garment. That garment is made up of the tales and stories; but we, we are bound to penetrate beyond."

Human rights and Jewish organizations

A country's constitution is said to mirror the values of the nation.

In Canada, our constitution, among other things, reflects the values set out in the constitutionally enshrined Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms – values that include the fundamental freedoms of expression and religion. The Charter also entrenches egalitarianism and multiculturalism. It is a value-laden document that incorporates into our national life human rights and civil liberties, the fabric that binds the Canadian mosaic.

Gerald L. Gall in Edmonton

As members of the Jewish community, we must foster those fundamental Canadian values. As Canadians, it is our individual and collective responsibility to do so. As members of a minority community, it is in our collective interest to promulgate these Canadian ideals. But as Jews, we should feel a special responsibility to respect Canada's human rights tradition.

That is why the voices of Canada's organized Jewish community, at both the local and national levels, must include the protection of human rights in their mandates and agendas. And, in fact, they do.

Many of Canada's Jewish organizations have a social justice component in their ongoing agendas. Indeed, the two largest national organizations, Canadian Jewish Congress and B'nai Brith, have always viewed human rights and social justice as key elements in their continuing work.

The Canadian Jewish Congress, through the work of its national law and social action committee, has served in the past as a strong advocate in the promotion of human rights. In the 1980s and '90s, the committee was a dynamic presence in Ottawa as a major national advocate.

Over the 12 years that I served on the committee, it dealt with such issues as gun control, capital punishment, employment equity, immigration and refugee determination, HIV/AIDS, the disabled, the poor and a host of other human rights and social justice issues.

Some members of the Jewish community did, however, express objection to CJC's involvement with some of these issues and with some of the viewpoints advocated by Congress. They believed that some of these issues had no place on the agenda of an essentially Jewish advocacy organization.

Ultimately, of course, the committee's views had to be vetted and supported by the national executive committee and CJC officers before the issues could actively be promoted through advocacy.

When governments were apprised of the CJC position on these issues, they listened, responded and respected the CJC voice, a voice that ultimately appears to have made a difference in policy determination by government.

One does not have to look solely at national organizations to see evidence of a commitment to social justice – it has manifested itself at local levels, within federations, lodges and individual synagogue congregations.

In Edmonton, all the congregations and Jewish organizations work together for Mitzvah Day, collecting, sorting and distributing, to various social agencies, food, clothing, money and other essentials. People in need – both Jewish and non-Jewish – benefit.

Why is it important that CJC and other Jewish organizations continue this public policy/social justice/human rights advocacy? Essentially, there are three reasons.

First, our history dictates that our experiential exposure to these issues should bestow upon us a unique sensitivity to social justice issues. We have been the victims of state policies abroad that caused death and destruction in our communities. In Canada, we were the victims of a restrictive policy on refugees at a time when refuge was most needed. History has sensitized us to the importance of an enlightened approach to these issues.

Secondly, our own theology provides us with a message and an imperative. As the late Rabbi Alexander Schindler wrote: "To be a Jew is to be a goad to the conscience of humankind, to bear a heart of flesh and blood and not of stone.

"To be a Jew means to weep where there are tears of suffering.

"To be a Jew is to be part of the civilizing and humanizing force of the universe."

Finally, because of our organizational experience and acumen, we are effective advocates and should take advantage of that effectiveness.

Human rights and social justice are Jewish issues and their advocacy must continue to be part of our collective community experience. We are citizens of the world and with that citizenship comes the responsibility of ensuring a better world for today and for future generations.

The Kirshner File

Israel's peace treaty with Jordan has frayed

Ten years ago, on a sunny autumn day in the Negev desert, Israel signed a peace treaty with Jordan, thereby removing a gigantic obstacle in its march toward acceptance by the Arab world.

Hailed as a diplomatic triumph, and favourably compared to Israel's 1979 peace agreement with Egypt and Israel's 1993 Oslo accord with the Palestinians, it was the culmination of decades of informal contacts between Israel and Jordan.

Sheldon Kirshner in Toronto

But since that euphoric moment in Wadi Araba – the border point where the pact was signed by the Israeli and Jordanian prime ministers on Oct. 26, 1994 – Israel's complex relationship with Jordan has frayed.

Against the backdrop of the second Palestinian uprising, Israel's construction of a separation fence and the unravelling of the internationally sponsored "road map to peace," Israel's relations with Jordan have deteriorated. Jordan's recall of its ambassador to Israel in the early days of the second intifadah is symptomatic of the deterioration.

To observers who thought that Israel's peace treaty with Jordan would be a model of its kind and warmer than its generally chilly treaty with Egypt, the disillusionment has been profound. But no one should be surprised by the turn of events. Two-thirds of Jordan's population consists of Palestinians who were displaced by the 1948 and 1967 Arab-Israeli wars and who have yet to shed their status as refugees and reconcile themselves to Israel's very existence.

King Hussein, the late pro-Western Jordanian ruler who tirelessly promoted the treaty in tandem with his partner, Yitzhak Rabin, knew that it did not enjoy widespread grassroots support, especially in certain Palestinian and Islamic circles. But he regarded the treaty as a strategic asset. His motives were clear. He wanted to normalize relations and resolve border disputes with Israel, bolster ties with the United States, improve Jordan's anemic economy and take advantage of the extra water supplies being offered by Israel.

King Hussein believed that he could perform a delicate balancing act, maintaining reasonably good relations with Israel while preserving Jordan's special links with the Palestinians in particular and with the Arabs in general.

But King Hussein, who had met secretly with virtually every Israeli prime minister from David Ben Gurion on down, underestimated the impact that the unresolved and festering Palestinian problem would have on his treaty with Israel.

The rise of Benjamin Netanyahu as Israel's new prime minister in 1996 was a turning point in Israel's relations with Jordan. Netanyahu was a fierce critic of the Olso peace process, which Jordan fervently supported, and King Hussein did not appreciate Netanyahu's gloomy evaluation of its usefulness.

In the wake of the so-called tunnel riots in contested eastern Jerusalem, which broke out in the late summer of 1996 and caused the deaths of 15 Israeli soldiers and 80 Palestinians, King Hussein's attitude toward Netanyahu soured still more. Such was the temper of the times that Jordan's ambassador to Israel, Omar Rifai, warned that his country's relations with Israel had worsened and could not be mended until Netanyahu changed his attitude toward Oslo.

Netanyahu ruffled Jordan's feathers yet again in March 1997, when he ordered the building of a massive housing complex in Har Homa, in eastern Jerusalem. In response, the Palestinians suspended bilateral negotiations with Israel, while Jordan questioned Israel's basic commitment to peace

The subsequent Mashal affair, in which Mossad agents carrying Canadian passports tried to assassinate Khaled Mashal – a senior Hamas official – in broad daylight in Amman, was perhaps the nadir in Israel's bumpy relationship with Jordan.

The Israeli operatives were caught, and in a huff, Jordan temporarily ended security cooperation with Israel. In an attempt to appease King Hussein, who was acutely embarrassed by the incident, Netanyahu fired the director of the Mossad, Danny Yatom, and released Sheik Ahmed Yassin, Hamas' spiritual leader, from prison.

But the damage was done. Israel's former ambassador to Jordan, Shimon Shamir, observed that "impatience, apprehension and suspicion" now characterized Israel's relations with Jordan.

The death of King Hussein in February 1999 brought his untested son, Abdullah II, to the throne. As he emerged from obscurity, some Jordanian observers speculated that King Abdullah II would distance Jordan from Israel. But in a meeting with Israeli parliamentarians shortly after King Hussein's funeral, he promised to continue his father's policy toward Israel.

True to his word, King Abdullah visited Israel, upgraded economic relations, agreed to create more joint venture industrial zones and signed memorandums to increase tourism and build a joint airport straddling their common border, Israel's longest with an Arab state.

In accordance with the spirit of Abdullah's pledge, the Jordanian prime minister, Ali Abu al-Ragheb, criticized Jordanian professional associations and unions that are opposed to normalizing relations with Israel. Claiming they were harming Jordanian interests, Ragheb said Jordan would "protect all those who establish ties with Israel."

Nevertheless, many Jordanians still boycott Israel, while regarding the peace treaty as a curse and referring to it contemptuously as "the king's peace."

Jordanians who have bucked this trend and favour co-operation with Israel must endure the fear of ostracization and blacklisting. Several years ago, two reporters who travelled to Israel for a week at the invitation of Haifa University's Center for Arab-Jewish Studies were summarily dismissed from their unions. Sensing the chill in the air, Jordanian physicians have stopped attending the annual meeting of the Israel Association of Emergency Medicine.

These incidents, grave as they are, pale in comparison to the violent attacks that Jordanian extremists have perpetrated against Israelis.

Some examples:

In 1997, an apparently deranged Jordanian soldier killed seven Israeli school children in a border area near the town of Beit Shean. King Hussein, in an unprecedented and extraordinary gesture, travelled to Israel to offer his condolences to the bereaved families.

The Israeli embassy in Amman has been targeted twice, in 1997 and again in 1999, by gunmen who have wounded Israeli guards. In November 1999 and in December 2000, two Israeli diplomats were fired upon while driving their cars.

There have also been a number of cross-border infiltrations, although the Arab Legion – the Jordanian army – watches the frontier carefully. An Israeli reservist was killed and two reservists were seriously wounded in an attack in December 2001. Last November, a South American tourist was killed when a gunman sprayed bullets at a group of tourists near Eilat. And this past July, Jordanian troops killed two armed men and wounded a third as they tried to sneak across the frontier.

The rare instances of border infiltrations attest to the fact that Jordan and Israel maintain a high level of security co-operation. But Jordan, in a show of support for the Palestinians, has refused to send its ambassador back to Tel Aviv.

The Jordanian foreign minister, Marwan Muasher, who was Jordan's first ambassador to Israel, has informed the Israelis that the return of an ambassador is contingent on Israel's implementation of the road map. As he put it last January, "Our ties with Israel will be largely dependent, from a political point of view, on the commitment of Israel's government to the peace process with the Palestinians. If the Israeli government is serious, the ties between the two countries will improve greatly."

Muasher's statement is hardly surprising. In February 2001, on the eve of Ariel Sharon's election victory, Muasher's predecessor, Abdullah Khatib, said Jordan would be hard-pressed to nurture relations with Israel if Sharon failed to demonstrate his seriousness toward peace.

King Abdullah II

Lately, Musasher has lambasted Israel's separation fence as a "grave national threat" to Jordan's vital interests. King Abdullah, who hosted last year's peace summit in the Red Sea port of Aqaba, fears the current route of the fence will prevent the establishment of a viable Palestinian state and may yet prompt an exodus of Palestinians into his kingdom. And Prime Minister Faisal al-Fayez said Jordan does not want to be a "substitute homeland" for the Palestinians, and rejects the inflammatory slogan, once propounded by Sharon, that "Jordan is Palestine."

Jordan is also critical of Sharon's unilateral disengagement plan from the Gaza Strip. In line with Palestinian thinking, King Abdullah holds that a pullout from Gaza should be part of a total Israeli withdrawal from the West Bank. But since the Israeli government disagrees with that notion, Israel's relationship with Jordan is unlikely to improve.

Max Rebboh
General Manager

The all new LR3

We'll be happy to make this dream vehicle yours ... visit our ultra-accessible new showoom today and discover the Coventry North difference.

COVENTRY NORTH LAND ROVER
123 Autopark Circle, Woodbridge, ON
Tel: (905) 265-8677
www.coventrynorth.com

Not Remodeled.
Not Revised.
Not Reassembled.
Not Reconfigured.
Not Redone.
Not Retrofitted.
Not Reinstalled.
Not Refreshed.

All New.
Land Rover LR3
Available for sale November 1.

LAND ROVER

Greater Toronto Area

New exhibit highlights Jewish life in Norway

Sheila Abrahamsen Moskoff in traditional garb. [Frances Kraft photo]

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

Jewish immigrants to Norway participated in Norwegian traditions while maintaining their Jewish lifestyle and culture, and also made remarkable contributions to the country in the areas of politics, business, culture and academia, said Norway's ambassador to Canada.

Speaking at Beth Tzedec Congregation for the opening of a new exhibit at the synagogue's Reuben & Helene Dennis Museum, Ingvard Havnen said that "Jewish Life and Culture in Norway: Wergeland's Legacy" tells "a small but significant part of Norwegian history."

The exhibit's name makes reference to Norwegian poet Henrik Wergeland, who fought for repeal of the so-called "Jewish clause" in Norway's 1814 constitution. The clause, which prohibited Jews (as well as Jesuits and monastic orders) from entering the kingdom, was repealed in 1851, six years after Wergeland's death. (Monastic orders and Jesuits did not attain the same rights until many years later.)

The earliest Jewish immigrants – about two dozen in all – arrived in Norway from Denmark, said Abel Abrahamsen, the Norwegian-born New Yorker who was instrumental in bringing the exhibit, organized by Oslo's Norwegian Folk Museum, to North America earlier this year, and in publishing an accompanying book. Before its run at New York's Scandinavia House, the exhibit was displayed in 90 libraries in Norway.

Among the 1,200 eastern European Jewish immigrants who arrived between 1881 and 1920 were Abrahamsen's parents, a Lithuanian peddler and seamstress who married 102 years ago Oct. 12, the same date the exhibit opened in Toronto.

About 400 European Jews fled to Norway in the late 1930s, but the community of 2,200 was almost halved during the war, when Norway was Nazi-occupied and many local Jews were deported and killed. Abrahamsen lost 63 relatives.

In 1999, he noted, Norway became the first European nation to grant economic restitution to Jews, a total of $58 million US.

Two of Abrahamsen's nieces, who live in Toronto, are among members of the local Jewish community with ties to Norway. Beth Tzedec's museum curator Dorion Liebgott, who booked the exhibit after being "immediately taken with [its] stories and the incredible family photos," enhanced the display with local stories and contributions.

Tove Abrahamsen Swartz, who lived in Norway from 1949 to 1962 and whose childhood wooden sleigh is part of the exhibition, said that despite being a tiny minority at her school, she was always very proud to be Jewish. As a second-generation Norwegian Jew, she felt her contemporaries were more open about being Jewish than the previous generation.

Lena Bienstock Shugar – a Torontonian whose family fled Poland for Russia in 1939 and ended up in Norway in 1947 when she and her brother Emil were children – recalls the Norwegians as "lovely people" who were very accepting of the small Jewish community. On a 1964 visit, 13 years after she left for Toronto at the age of 12, she was greeted by her old schoolmates, all carrying bouquets of flowers, she recalls.

In Norway, she said, Jewish immigrants were looked after and respected. "They arranged for housing, and classes for language. They made sure you were ready to become independent."

The Bienstocks lived on the outskirts of Oslo, where Emil had his bar mitzvah. The siblings used to cross-country ski to school.

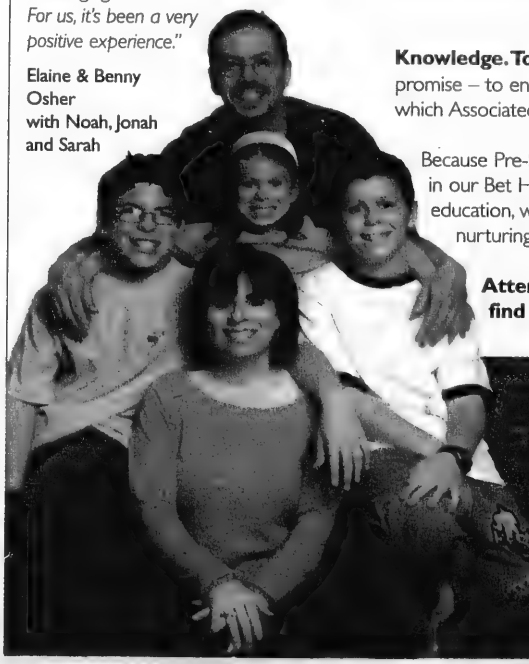
Liv Sigel, who left Norway in 1940 when she was in her early 20s, told The CJN her grandparents were among the earliest Jewish immigrants in the 1870s. Although she belonged to a Scandinavian Jewish youth organization, she has – like Shugar – retained her non-Jewish school friends, one of whom she visited this summer.

Sheila Abrahamsen Moskoff was born in Toronto, but has strong ties to Norway. Wearing a bunad, or traditional Norwegian working girl's costume, with long skirt, embroidered bonnet and pilgrim-style black shoes, she pointed out her Uncle Abel and her late father Julius in a large photo of a 1926 Abrahamsen family seder in Trondheim.

The exhibit will be on display until March 31.

"Associated has met the individual needs of each of our children and has provided them with a strong Jewish identity and a challenging curriculum. For us, it's been a very positive experience."

Elaine & Benny Osher with Noah, Jonah and Sarah



At Associated, we're building Jewish generations – one family at a time

Knowledge. Torah. Tradition. These are the essentials that we give our children so they fulfil our promise – to ensure the future vitality of the Jewish community. And these are the cornerstones upon which Associated is providing children with the opportunity to flourish as Jews and accomplished students.

Because Pre-School is the foundation for your child's growth, we are making an unparalleled investment in our Bet Hayeled programme. In consultation with leading experts in Jewish early childhood education, we are creating an innovative and individualized programme that will combine a loving and nurturing environment with a richness of resources.

Attend one of our many information sessions and find out how your family can become a part of ours.

Associated Hebrew Schools of Toronto

Sessions will provide information about Nursery, JK, SK and Grade One

NORTH
At the home of
Geoffrey and Stephanie Fages
Wednesday, November 3, 8-9:30 p.m.

At Kamin Education Centre
300 Atkinson Ave, Thornhill
Wednesday, November 10
9:30-11 am and 8-9:30 pm
Sunday, November 7, 10-11:30 am

SOUTH
At the home of
Benny and Elaine Osher
Tuesday, November 2, 8-9:30 p.m.

At Posluns Education Centre
18 Neptune Dr, Toronto
Thursday, November 11
9:30-11 am and 8-9:30 pm
Sunday, November 14, 10-11:30 am

TO REGISTER FOR ANY OF THESE SESSIONS, CONTACT GAIL LOVI AT 905-889-3998, EXT. 2

Website showcases downtown Toronto shuls

By BARBARA SILVERSTEIN
Special to The CJN

To mark his eldest son's bar mitzvah in 2002, Robert Burley began a project to photograph old shuls that are still in operation in the southern parts of Toronto.

The project grew in scope, and by last spring it had evolved into Toronto's First Synagogues, a virtual exhibition of three of the city's oldest shuls: the First Narayever Congregation, Congregation Knesseth Israel – known as the Junction Shul– and Rodfei Sholem Anshei Kiev, commonly called the Kiever Synagogue.

Burley, a professor of image arts at Ryerson University, and Ellen Scheinberg, director of the Ontario Jewish Archives, recently gave a visual presentation and lecture at the Miles Nadal Jewish Community Centre to publicly launch the online exhibit, which can be found at http://collections.ic.gc.ca/TorontoSynagogues/.

Burley and Scheinberg are the co-ordinators of the virtual exhibit, a compilation of photographs and documents such as letters, pledge books, cemetery records and other artifacts, as well as oral histories collected in the 1970s by Stephen Speisman, author of The Jews of Toronto (McClelland and Stewart 1979). Speisman also wrote the introduction to the site.

Scheinberg said it provides an in-depth history of the shuls, which became important centres of Jewish communal life following the wave of immigration from eastern Europe in the early decades of the 20th century.

Burley, a convert to Judaism, was unaware of the existence of the old Toronto synagogues until the mid-1990s when he attended a bar mitzvah at the Kiever Shul on Bellevue Avenue in Kensington Market.

"I found myself transfixed by the simple beauty of the space and drawn into the service. I immediately became interested in the building's history and others like it."

Although he researched the synagogues, he did not actively begin photographing them until a fire, allegedly caused by arson, broke out at the Anshei Minsk in 2002.

"When I heard the news about the fire at the Minsker, I thought I'd better get to it. The fire was on a Thursday and the following Sunday I went out to photograph the shul.

"We arrived and found that most of the damage was in the library on the second floor. The sanctuary was covered in plastic and a conservation team from UJA Federation was out surveying the damage."

In 2003, Burley visited the Ontario Jewish Archives and was wowed by its wealth of information.

Familiar with the federal government's Canada's Digital Collections program, he thought "the synagogue project would be a wonderful fit" for the Web project.

Burley and Scheinberg received a $25,000 grant to hire five students under 30 to create the Toronto's First Synagogues website. He found two Ryerson photography students, while she found three history students from York University and the University of Toronto.

"The team came together in September 2003 and completed the project in March 2004. This was, in large part due to the efforts of Ellen Scheinberg, who quickly took on the role of project leader.

"I was really pleased. It went beyond what I had expected," Burley said, adding that they only documented three synagogues because of funding limitations.

Scheinberg stressed that the three synagogues chosen are only a starting point. "There are so many important synagogues."

She pointed out that Holy Blossom Temple is, in fact, the city's oldest congregation, although it's housed in a building constructed relatively recently.

Scheinberg explained that Toronto's early shuls initially operated out of small houses or shteiblech until they could afford to erect a building. For example, the First Narayever was founded in 1914, but did not occupy its present building on Brunswick Avenue until 1940.

She also highlighted some of the shuls' early fundraising practices, such as a 1932 notebook from the First Narayever indicating that people pledged money to the shul – anywhere from 25 cents to $4 –when they had aliyahs, and the custom at Congregation Knesseth Israel, where for $155 you could purchase seats for life.

Scheinberg made an open request to the community for other old artifacts and documents connected to Toronto's synagogues so that the online collection can be expanded.

"The exhibit has been a wonderful collaborative adventure," she said.

Exterior view of the First Narayever Congregation. [Robert Burley photo]

ATTENTION FORMER MONTREALERS!

JNF

Since the early seventies, many former Montrealers have made Toronto their home, travelling that 500 miles down the 401, settling here, raising families and becoming an integral part of Toronto's Jewish community. Many have fond memories of growing up in Montreal, in "La Belle Province". Time to remember! Time to see old friends!

Jewish National Fund is sponsoring a very special evening for you and your family.

A " TASTE OF MONTREAL" in Toronto!

A Reunion To Remember

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 7:30 P.M.
BETH EMETH BAIS YEHUDA SYNAGOGUE
100 ELDER STREET
(Lots of free parking)

Admission – a minimum donation of 2 trees ($36)
(tax receipts will be issued)

To make your reservation, please contact JNF Toronto at:
416-638-7200 Sheila, Ext. 24 or Toby, Ext. 23
email: tor@jnf-canada.org or fax 416-638-7345

See you at the party!

SILENT AUCTION, FOOD, ENTERTAINMENT, FUN, MEMORIES

Anecdotes from a very special guest
Tommy Schnurmacher
well-known and popular Montreal Journalist and Broadcaster

RENT A CAR

TAMIR תמיר

Enjoy your stay in Israel

with the best car rental prices, no hidden extras...

rate includes:

- All Airport charges
- Free extra driver
- Free baby seat
- Free mobile telephone
- Free delivery & pick-up anywhere in Israel (except Eilat)

For Reservation call Yehuda Ehrlich

1-800-to-TAMIR, 1-800-868-2647

or (732) 246-4163 Fax: (732) 246-3935

www.tamir-rental.co.il

JIAS TORONTO

Heartfelt thanks to the Rabbis, Executive & volunteer leadership and congregants of the following synagogues for opening their doors and sharing their holiday services with Jewish immigrants to Toronto:

Adath Israel
Beth David
Beth Emeth
Beth Shalom
Beth Tikvah
Beth Tzedec
Darchei Noam
First Narayver
Holy Blossom
JRCC
Kehillat Sharei Torah
Maon Noam
Pride of Israel
Shaar Shalom
Temple Emanu'El
Temple Kol Ami
Temple Sinai

With appreciation,
The Board of Directors, Staff and the newcomer community of JIAS Toronto

UJA Federation — Ontario — Citizenship and Immigration Canada

- All makes and models – New & Used
- Custom leases to fit your budget
- Flexible Terms – Competitive Financing
- Personalized "White Glove" Service

CORPORATE CARS

DAVID BERMAN
416-736-7666 ext. 30

Jewish Life

Author's superb description strengthens new novel

Heir To The Glimmering World* by Cynthia Ozick, Houghton Miffin Company, $25.

Cynthia Ozick is widely recognized as one of the most accomplished literary stylists of our time. Her four books of critical essays as well as her many works of fiction are both accessible and challenging – reflecting a good deal of knowledge, insight and wit.

Books
Bernard Baskin

Some of her best work delves into the realm of Jewish mysticism and magic. Her earlier novel, The Puttermesser Papers, for example, involved a female golem, a giant and awesome figure fashioned from clay by a human creator, who helps Ruth Puttermesser to become mayor of New York. In the end, however, the redeeming figure in this fantasy turns out to be a false messiah.

Heir to the Glimmering World (the book's cryptic title is subject to various interpretations) concerns orphaned 18-year-old Rose Meadows, who, in 1935, answers a newspaper advertisement and takes on the formidable job of ministering to the Mitwissers, a refugee German family. Her responsibilities include being a nanny to five children, caring for the psychologically damaged mother – formally an honoured professor in a Berlin Institute – and serving as secretary to Rudi the patriarch of the family.

Rudi Mitwisser is a passionate scholar, a product of European culture who appears lost and bewildered in a strange new world. His particular passion is a seventh-century Jewish sect known as the Karaites. They were scriptural fundamentalists who opposed all later accretions to Jewish religious thought and practice. They regarded all rabbinic and talmudic teachings as improper and unnecessary. It takes awhile for Rose to realize that what Rudi is really concerned with are "schismatics, fiery heretics, apostates – the lunatics of history."

Overworked and overwhelmed, poor Rose has entered more than the usual household. Living with the Mitwissers is a "cosmos of shattered identities and shipwrecked cultures."

Into this hectic and troubled scene comes James A'Bair, a rich and tormented American who as a child served as a model for his father – an author-illustrator, who made a fortune writing books about the Bear Boy, based on his young son, obviously a character reminiscent of A. A. Milne's Christopher Robin.

An unhappy and restless wanderer, he supports the Mitwisser family financially, but causes irreparable damage before he takes his own life.

The plot may be tenuous, material about the Karaites arcane and some of the characters less than believable, but what really matters is the author's gift for superb description. Almost every page cries out for passages to be reread – they resound, resonate and demand attention.

Here's a rundown of upstate New York in the 1930s: "Half decayed, with its dilapidated farms, barns and silos rotting, and in the towns tired from houses with warped porches pleading for paint, town after town sluggish in the dazing summer glare, the business district – three streets lined with sickly stores darkened by canvas awnings – surrendered to exhaustion."

Here's James thinking about his father's artistry: "At first the Bear Boy loved the pictures his father made. He stood behind his father's drawing board and saw how the watercolours, pale and magical, flooded the sinews of the drawings. He watched himself slowly bloom into being: it was himself, a furry-haired boy, posed as his father had had him pose, sitting on a branch, say, or poking a stick into a puddle, or painting a face on an onion, all those curious ideas his father had about what he liked to do."

The redoubtable Cynthia Ozick has added an arresting new work to her growing oeuvre.

Carlebach yahrzeit – Part 1

By MARK MIETKIEWICZ

On the 16th day of Cheshvan, 5755, the Jewish world lost one of its most famous storytellers, singers and rabbis. This November marks the 10th yahrzeit of Rabbi Shlomo Carlebach.

Rabbi Carlebach left behind a rich tapestry of story, inspiration and, of course, joyous songs.

"Rabbi Shlomo Carlebach, the foremost songwriter in contemporary Judaism... used his music to inspire and unite Jews around the world," the New York Times wrote in its obituary. "Rabbi Carlebach, who was Orthodox... operated outside traditional Jewish structures in style and substance, and spoke about God and His love in a way that could make other rabbis uncomfortable." [www.arigoldman.com/articles/carlebach.html]

As you visit a few sites dedicated to "Reb Shlomo," you begin to feel the powerful sense of community and caring the man instilled. Click on a page called "Our Rebbe's Most Humble Abode" and you are greeted by a picture of the rabbi and the following message: "Where in the world have you been??? I am so unbelievably OVERJOYED to see you!!!" [www.rebshlomo.org/abode.html]

That page, part of the site run by the Rabbi Shlomo Carlebach Foundation, has links to Rabbi Carlebach's writings, his teachings and his charitable institutions. [www.rebshlmo.org/]

For an early insight into the Carlebach family, I recommend the memoir written by his twin brother, Rabbi Eli Chayim Carlebach. Even from a young age, everyone knew there was something special about Shlomo. He excelled intellectually but it was his neshamah, his soul, and his love for others that made him remarkable. [www.rebshlomo.org/story/rebbes/rec.txt]

Eventually, many followers of the rabbi found themselves at Congregation Kehilath Jacob, better known as The Carlebach Shul. The synagogue has been a New York institution for years. [http://carlebachshul.org/]

The Carlebach community stretches around the world with synagogues and minyanim where followers of the rabbi can feel at home. [http://tinyurl.com/55pct] The community has a prominent presence on the web. The Reb Shlomo e-mail list was established in 1995 and is still going strong. You can subscribe [http://tinyurl.com/4q22q] or browse the archives of all messages sent. [http://tinyurl.com/4o7ts]

Rabbi Carlebach's yahrzeit is being marked by special activities, the most significant being New York's First International Carlebach Conference. The four-day gathering includes workshops on such topics as "Writing With Joy/Working With Joy," "I Am My Brother's Keeper" and "The Challenges of Spiritual Leadership." [http://jccnyc.org/category.asp?c=1076]

Another move tied to the yahrzeit was a bid to rename a stretch of Manhattan's West 79th Street "Rabbi Shlomo Carlebach Way" [www.petitiononline.com/Yartzeit/petition.html] However, that proposal was withdrawn when opponents criticized the initiative. Rabbi Carlebach had no shortage of critics during his lifetime and criticism continues to resurface after his death. The Jewish Week's report, "Facing a Mixed Legacy," explains the controversy over Rabbi Carlebach. [http://tinyurl.com/4ra29]

The most stirring article that I came across appeared in the Jerusalem Post to mark the rabbi's fourth yahrzeit. In Missing Reb Shlomo, David Weinberg examines the irony that the unconventional Rabbi Carlebach only truly gained respect and acceptance after his death. [http://tinyurl.com/5l3cj]

"So misunderstood and unappreciated in his lifetime, yet so celebrated and yearned for after death – such was Rabbi Shlomo Carlebach. Who else was prepared to foray into the ashrams, hippie villages and pubs of the 1960s flower-child generation, showering love and acceptance of all? Only Reb Shlomo.

"'If you want to raise a man out of the mud,' Reb Shlomo would quote his namesake Rabbi Shlomo of Karlin, 'you have to go all the way down yourself into the mud, and then pull him and yourself into the light.'"

Mark Mietkiewicz is a Toronto-based Internet producer who writes, lectures and teaches about the Jewish Internet. He can be reached at highway@rogers.com.

Jewish Life

Tel Aviv's Hemda Center cultivates Israel's future scientists

By SIMON GRIVER

"Hemda has changed the way that I see science," says Eden Nisanov, a 17- year-old high school student from south Tel Aviv. "Thanks to my experience here, after I've completed my army service, I would like to study physics at university."

The Hemda Center for Science Education, a unique teaching institution located in the heart of Tel Aviv, was established in 1991 following a report by Haim Harari, then president of the Weizmann Institute of Science and a world-renowned scientist, which slammed the level of science teaching in Israeli schools.

The situation deteriorated even more when the government reduced its allocations for science education due to increased security spending and the arrival of more than one million immigrants to the country. From having the third highest level worldwide of science performance in schools, Israel eventually dropped to 27th place.

Hemda was established by the Rothschild Foundation in partnership with the Tel Aviv municipality. Supported by the Tel Aviv Foundation and chaired by Harari, it has played a leading role in enabling Israeli students to regain ground in science education. The centre's mission is to raise the level of the country's human resources in the field of science and technology. Human resources are crucial for research and development in academia, the military and high-tech industries.

In 13 short years, Hemda has already transformed science teaching in Tel Aviv from below average to levels of excellence previously unknown in Israel.

"Hemda is all about excellence and the highest standards of scientific teaching," said Tehilla Ben-Gai, executive director of Hemda. "In essence, the high schools of Tel Aviv outsource their science teaching to us."

Hemda serves high school students in Tel Aviv who choose to specialize in physics and chemistry. During the current school year, the centre is educating nearly 1,000 students from 17 schools in the city.

Hemda's thousands of graduates, although still in their 20s, include senior officers in elite Israel Defence Forces intelligence and research units as well as high tech entrepreneurs and executives and the most promising postgraduate students.

The spacious lobby of Hemda Center stimulates curiosity and challenges both the senses and intellect. A giant chess set, a series of pyramids, which when taken apart are not assembled so easily, and a large dolphin with a point of balance that defies visual logic are among many games to whet the students' scientific appetite.

"Our emphasis is on showing the wonders of science to our students by using equipment which brings science alive," said Ben-Gai.

Such equipment includes a Vandegraaf generator, a device designed to create static electricity for purposes of experimentation. In a typical lesson, physics teacher Eyal Cohen invites 17-year-old Bar Katz to the front of the class to touch the generator. The student's thick mop of black hair stands on end and the class fall around laughing with wonder. Cohen has their attention now; they all want to know how such an amazing phenomenon occurs.

Teens play chess with very large chess pieces in the lobby of Tel Aviv's Hemda Center for Science Education in one of many games intended to whet the students' scientific appetite. [IPS photo]

The teacher explains about the generator's electric charges and is then bombarded by students' questions. Curious teenagers surround Cohen after class, eager to delve more deeply into what they have learned.

Katz, an 11th grade student, confirms Ben-Gai's assessment of what the 21st century student expects from the centre, which is presently expanding its activities by building a hologram laboratory, an acoustic laboratory, a spectroscopic laboratory and a remote control laboratory. "This place is cool," Katz said. "I enjoy coming here because I learn a lot and its fun. The teachers are always surprising us and opening up new horizons. I've got friends in other cities who tell me that their physics lessons put them to sleep."

Over the past three years, Hemda Center has trebled its intake and diversified the population base of students, who previously came almost exclusively from the wealthier northern neighbourhoods of the city.

"The reason we had few students from disadvantaged neighbourhoods," said Ben-Gai, "was that they had little grounding in math. So instead of starting our program for 10th graders, we started taking in eighth graders and offering junior high courses for talented students."

As a result, many of the students are now new immigrants and Arabs, and there are special courses for the visually impaired.

In addition to Hemda's state-of-the-art laboratories and equipment, the quality of its staff has much to do with the centre's success. Ben-Gai herself has a PhD in geophysics from Tel Aviv University and almost the entire teaching staff of 17 have doctorates. "We demand the highest standards of our teachers," she said, "who are only offered year-long contracts, renewable before each new school year if they meet our requirements."

Hemda is open 11 months of the year and 18 hours a day, with teachers not only giving classes but working in the laboratories and communicating with students through e-learning. Promising students who cannot afford home computers are helped to acquire them, as well as Internet connections, through a special Hemda fund.

In addition, the Stanley and Pamela Chais Teachers Center within Hemda plays an important national role by providing courses for science teachers from throughout the country on how to teach science.

While Hemda is largely maintained by the Tel Aviv municipality, the city has not been able to enlarge its budget to match the rapid increase of students at Hemda. The Tel Aviv Foundation, however, has mobilized its donors worldwide so that funds will be available to meet the growing needs of the city's talented schoolchildren through the provision of additional classes.

"Hemda is proof that you can teach high school physics, which is exciting and enriching, while allowing students to excel in their formal government examinations," said Harari. "It is also the proof that you can convince excellent people with PhD and MSc degrees to devote themselves to high school teaching, if you provide them with challenges and outstanding facilities. We hope that Hemda will become a model for imitation and replication all around Israel."

Simon Griver is a writer with the Israel Press Service.

We Create Millionaires

You are: Entrepreneurial, Influential, Resourceful and... have a strong desire to pursue a lifestyle instead of a job.

We are looking for you. We will help you capitalize on the emerging

Wellness Boom.

Opening new countries:
Russia, Singapore, Poland, Romania & South Africa.

Special program for professionals.

To learn more call 416.760-2002 - 24 hours Ahuva Simone

Jewish Family and Child Service is seeking a

MANAGER, JUST-A-SECOND SHOP

A unique opportunity to manage a "new and gently used" clothing store. The candidate must be a reliable and energetic leader who can manage people, work hard, organize sales events, manage and source inventory and take the initiative to implement changes when necessary. This person should have retail experience and must be willing to work on the floor to increase sales. An interest in helping the community will make this position even more rewarding. The store is open every day except Saturday and closes early on Friday. Interested candidates should fax their resume to:

416-545-0010

Only those candidates selected for an interview will be contacted.

כנסת ישראל למדינת
WEIZMANN CANADA

You are cordially invited to attend the National Annual Meeting of

The Canadian Society for the Weizmann Institute of Science

Sunday, October 31, 2004
10:00 a.m. (Lunch to follow)
at
The Sutton Place Hotel
Queen Victoria Ballroom, 955 Bay Street, Toronto

Guest Speaker
Prof. Ilan Chet
President, Weizmann Institute of Science

Couvert $50 per person
Reservations Required Guests Welcome

Kindly RSVP to Sheri Federman at 416-733-9220 by Monday, October 25, 2004

The Canadian Society for the Weizmann Institute of Science
218-45 Sheppard Ave. E. Toronto, ON M2N 5W9
Tel: 416-733-9220 Fax: 416-733-9430
weizmann@ca.inter.net www.weizmann.ac.il

Rabbi 'concerned about insularization of Orthodoxy'

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

Rabbi Avi Weiss is well known for his political activism, but from the standpoint of spiritual activism, he says his greatest joy professionally has been his involvement with Yeshivat Chovevei Torah, the modern Orthodox yeshiva he founded in New York in 1999.

On Sunday, the New York-based rabbi will discuss spiritual activism at a day-long program of MEKOROT Institute of Torah Study for Women. The event, for both men and women, will be held at Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue. Rabbi Barry Levy, dean of McGill University's faculty of religious studies, and educators Channa Lockshin and Rachael Turkienicz will also be on the program.

Activism means any action on behalf of another, said Rabbi Weiss last week in a phone interview from his office at the Hebrew Institute of Riverdale, where he is spiritual leader.

Spiritual activism – about which he has written a book, The Principles of Spiritual Activism – "comes from the spark of good that we all have within us… Spiritual activism also states that my activism is shaped by the Torah." It also extends to the realm of Jewish education and spirituality, he believes.

Rabbi Weiss, 60, said he is "very concerned about the insularization of Orthodoxy" and the denomination's move to the right.

His yeshiva ordained its first nine rabbis this year, one of whom, Rabbi Adam Scheier, is serving at Congregation Shaar Hashomayim in Montreal. "Our mission over the next 10 years is to place 130 or 140 rabbis in synagogues and on campuses throughout North America," said Rabbi Weiss. He believes this can "change the face of Judaism" through the yeshiva's philosophy of openness, inclusivity and non-judgmentalism.

Open Orthodoxy – a term the rabbi prefers over Modern Orthodoxy – is inclusive of all Jews, he said. "We're not in this to reach only 10 per cent of our people," referring to the proportionally smaller Orthodox Jewish community in North America relative to the Conservative and Reform denominations.

Rabbi Avi Weiss

He believes that everyone has something to contribute. Referring to women specifically, he said that inclusivity involves Jewish ritual, learning and leadership "to the full extent of halachah," he said.

Although his yeshiva is a rabbinical school for men only, he said he does foresee women gaining expertise in all areas of Jewish law and playing "more and more important roles in spiritual leadership," as they do now in places like rabbinical courts, acting as toanot (advocates) in Jewish divorce cases.

Although he concedes there are benefits to insularity, "in my mind, we pay an enormous price. I think we are very much enriched when we can interact with all of Am Yisrael.

"The Jewish people is my family," he said. But attesting to his feelings for the larger community, he cited the "countless" demonstrations he has attended to protest genocide in Sudan. "But still, I have a special love for my inner family, my wife and children. And I have a special love for my larger family, the Jewish people… and that family includes those to my left and to my right."

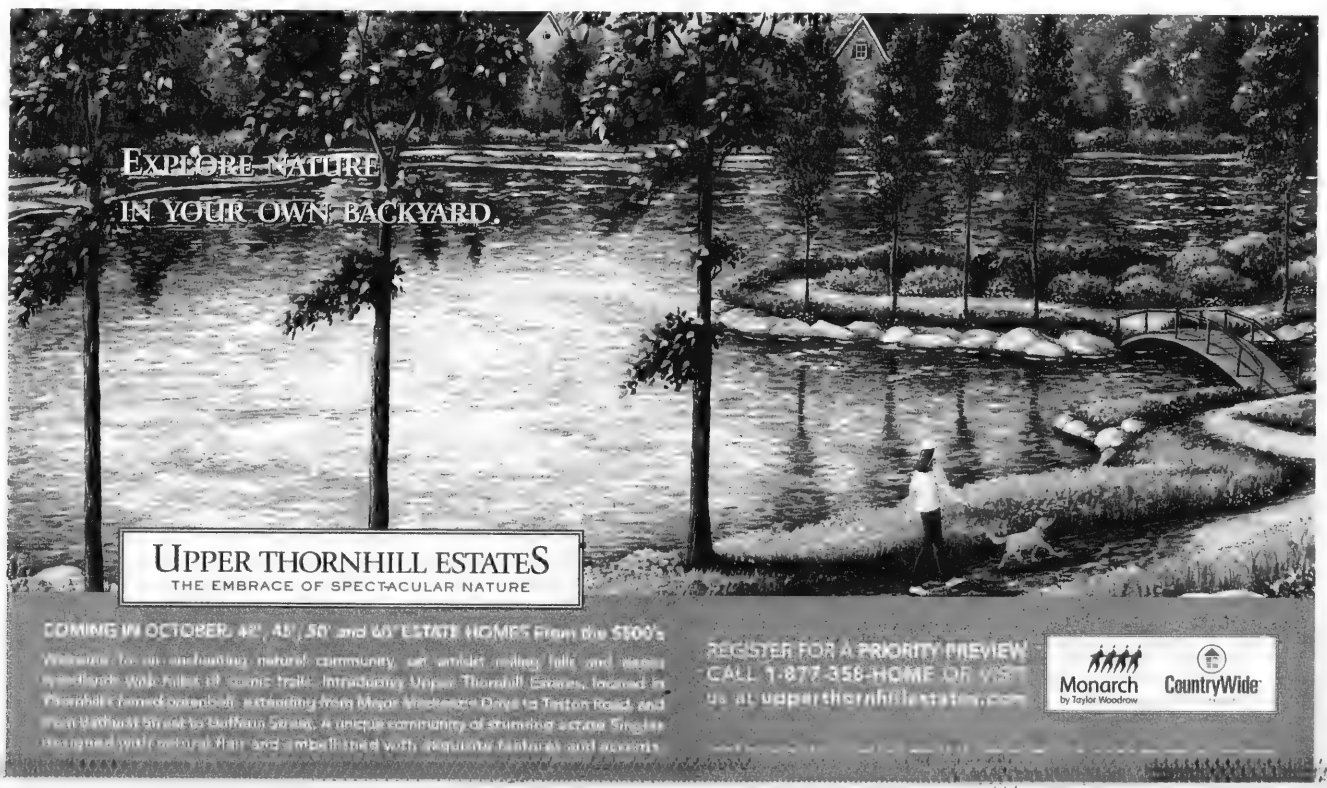
Whether or not those to his right feel the same way about interacting with him is "not relevant to me," he said, explaining that he believes familial love should be unconditional.

He believes it is important to "create a new culture among young people that the greatest honour is to serve one's people.

"I think our community desperately needs rabbis, educators and Jewish communal leaders, and we have to attract the best."

The dearth of modern Orthodox rabbis in North America is "a great problem," Rabbi Weiss said. On American campuses, for example, there are only five modern Orthodox rabbis but 191 of their Chabad counterparts, he noted.

"When I'm with these students who are going to change the face of the Jewish world, it lifts me," he said. "And I soar, literally soar."



EXPLORE NATURE
IN YOUR OWN BACKYARD.
UPPER THORNHILL ESTATES
THE EMBRACE OF SPECTACULAR NATURE
COMING IN OCTOBER. 40', 45', 50' and 60' ESTATE HOMES From the $500's
REGISTER FOR A PRIORITY PREVIEW
CALL 1-877-358-HOME OR VISIT US AT upperthornhillestates.com
Monarch
by Taylor Woodrow
CountryWide

Rose Lax takes reins at Herut-Likud Canada

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

Like her predecessor Harry Wolle, Rose Lax – the new president of Herut-Likud Canada – has a long history of involvement with the organization.

Her late father, a scrap metal dealer in Hamilton who was murdered at his place of business 12 years ago, was a strong supporter of Herut-Likud. A Betar member since his early childhood in Poland and later a member of the Irgun, Morris Lax had shared a jail cell with Menachem Begin in Russia.

Rose Lax

Rose, who was born in 1946 in an American barrack in Uzbekistan and came to Canada as a preschooler, recalls sitting on Begin's knee as a child.

"I was raised to be a revisionist," said Lax in a recent interview in a Toronto coffee shop, referring to early Zionist "revisionist" ideology that called for a Jewish homeland in Palestine that would be independent – not a protectorate of Britain as per earlier proposals.

As Lax explained, it would be "a Jewish state for the Jewish people, with a Jewish majority, Jerusalem as its capital, with all the rights and freedoms that are ascribed to free people." This, she said, was seen as the only way Jews could be safe.

As a young adult, Lax believed she would not have to continue the fight that Begin and her father had waged. "I had thought – naively so – that anti-Semitism had been taken care of when the State of Israel was founded."

Much of her passion for Herut-Likud revolves around its campus arm. "Begin understood that the only way we were going to survive – and I know it sounds cliché – was to pass the torch on to the youth. That's why Betar is of such ultimate importance."

Until recently, Lax – who has also been involved with Hadassah-WIZO – had a low profile in Herut-Likud, and she feels strongly that young Betar members should be the ones at the forefront.

Following the death of her father, Lax immersed herself in business and family, not even realizing that Betar had become active again. About four years ago, she set up Hadar: The Morris Lax Centre, to embody the ideals of Betar. Hadar – meaning "pride" or "dignity" – has since provided funding for the campus group, locally at McMaster University as well as at a few other Ontario campuses.

It was only within the last two years that Lax discovered the revitalized Betar group in a chance meeting with a young member and a subsequent meeting with Betar shaliach Itay Gadot. "I can't tell you the thrill of hearing there was a Betar," she said. "I felt like I was at home again."

Her recent decision to accept an active role in the organization was prompted in part by the resurgence of what she calls "old-fashioned, ugly anti-Semitism" on Canadian university campuses – one of several warning signs her father had told her to pay heed to.

The Jewish community "has to understand how deep this problem is," she said.

Canadian Jews, "at the very least, have a profound obligation to help our kids defend themselves, and I don't mean through violence," she said. "I mean [that] mentally they need to prepare themselves, they need to understand they're being attacked by bullies and if they stand up they will win. If they don't, they lose."

Na'amat's Tree of Love Club Ahava
Proudly present the sing-along stars of Treehouse TV
Judy & David
CHANUKAH LIVE 2004
Toronto's favourite Chanukah show! Join the fun with Boomie the Boom Box • The Magic Menorah • Bagel the Dog and lots of great new surprises!
A portion of every ticket supports Na'amat's Tree of Love, providing non-profit daycare for the children of Israel.
Save Ticketmaster service charges! Call Na'amat: (416) 636-5425
NORTH: Burton Auditorium
York University • Keele & Steeles
Dec 4 - 4:30 pm
Dec 5 - 10:30 am • 1:30 pm
SOUTH: Al Green Theatre
Bloor JCC • Bloor & Spadina
Dec 11 - 6:30 pm
Dec 12 - 10:30 am • 1:30 pm • 4:30 pm

24TH ANNUAL HOLOCAUST EDUCATION WEEK

OPENING NIGHT

Thursday, October 28 – 7:30 pm
Adath Israel Congregation
37 Southbourne Avenue, Toronto

TO BETTER SERVE AND PROTECT

Charles H. Ramsey

Meet CHARLES H. RAMSEY, the Police Chief of Washington, D.C., whose visit to the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum was so personally powerful that it changed his thinking about modern police practices.

Join us to inaugurate our community's internationally recognized Holocaust Education Week and hear how Chief Ramsey turned Holocaust history into positive action by initiating a program of Holocaust education and sensitivity training that is now mandatory for his police force, in addition to the police forces of many U.S. cities, and all FBI agents.

Free Admission.
For information call 416-635-5340.

This program is generously co-sponsored by Larry and Bonnie Moncik, George and Eleanor Getzler and their families, in loving memory of their parents Abraham and Ida Moncik.

For a detailed brochure of more than 125 Holocaust Education Week events, to be held from October 28-November 11, call 416–631–5689 or visit www.holocausteducationweek.com

UJA FEDERATION Together We're Stronger
REMEMBER לזכור

Holocaust Education Week is coordinated by The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, UJA Federation

Faith Leaders Build helps erect 40 Habitat homes

Beth Tzedec seeks volunteers for one-day blitz

By ALISA MITCHELL
Special to The CJN

Habitat for Humanity Toronto has been building homes for families in need since 1988. Last month, the second annual Faith Leaders Build helped advance the cause as volunteers gathered to lend a hand in the building of 40 homes at Nielson Road and Highway 401.

The Faith Leaders Build takes place each year during Habitat for Humanity's International Faith Week. The build aims to emphasize the importance of faith partnerships and put the ideal into action.

The 60 volunteers this year represented various Christian and Muslim congregations from across the Toronto area. They emphasized the importance of interfaith co-operation and friendship in the light of recent hate crimes and acts of discrimination both in Toronto and across Canada.

"This year's build was fantastic," said Adrienne Finlay, Habitat Toronto's faith relations co-ordinator. "We engaged so many denominations and so many new people came out to build, which means we can spread the word about our mission and more people will have homes."

As with all Habitat for Humanity Toronto housing, the two-storey townhouse condominiums that were part of this year's build are available to families living at or below the poverty line, but who can make minimal mortgage payments. They buy the homes through long-term interest-free mortgages, and each family is required to donate 500 hours of "sweat equity" by volunteering in various capacities, including building actual houses.

Partnership and co-operation were displayed in many ways at this year's Faith Leaders Build, as the friendly faces and helping hands prevented building beginners like me from feeling intimidated. Whether it was drywalling, hammering, sawing, or in my case sweeping, there was a job for everybody regardless of construction experience or background.

The effort also raised $12,000 in pledges, four times what it made last year.

While the day was a success, there is still much work to do. Habitat for Humanity Toronto plans to build 51 homes in Toronto this year, including the ones at Neilson and 401, and it's always looking for individual volunteers to lend a hammering hand.

Synagogues and other organizations can also participate in the "Adopt-a-Day" program, in which one group can build together as a community.

Beth Tzedec Congregation has taken as active interest in Habitat for Humanity Toronto's mission and on Nov. 7 will sponsor its own Adopt–a–Day build called "Beth Tzedec Builds," headed by Rabbi Aubrey Glazer, the shul's third rabbi.

Beth Tzedec's senior rabbi, Baruch Frydman-Kohl, said that to get the congregation interested, he has "devoted sermons, bulletin articles and teaching sessions to this mitzvah."

He said he is hoping to get 50 congregants involved in the build and the roster is almost full.

Christian group holds pro-Israel conference

BRANTFORD, Ont. — A pro-Israel conference held here last weekend urged Christians to "stand with the Jewish people" during a time of rising anti-Semitism.

"Celebrate! Israel" took place at New Covenant Congregational Church in Brantford, Ont., on Oct. 15-17. Sponsored by the pro-Zionist group Christians for Israel Canada, it featured several workshops with Jewish and non-Jewish speakers.

Spokesperson Ray MacDonald said the purpose was to raise awareness among Christians of growing anti-Semitism and Israel's plight, and to remind them "of the biblical mandate to stand with the Jewish people."

Keynote speaker was slated to be Stockwell Day, the Conservative Party's foreign affairs critic, who was to address the gathering Saturday night.

Other scheduled speakers included Holocaust survivor Sally Wasserman, media monitor Shirley Anne Haber, Dr. Norman Epsten, founder of CASTS (Canadian Against Slavery and Torture in Sudan), and Joseph Ben-Ami, director of communications for B'nai Brith Canada.

Paul Penna Downtown Jewish Day School

Tuesday, November 2

7:30pm - 9pm, Miles Nadal JCC
750 Spadina Avenue (at Bloor)
Please R.S.V.P. 416.928.3537
doris@djds.ca www.djds.ca
Registering now for SK to Grade 6

OPEN HOUSE

Visit the classrooms, meet the teachers, see for yourself!

FOR SALE
HOCKLEY HIGHLANDS INN & CONFERENCE CENTRE
ORANGEVILLE, ONTARIO

CONFERENCE CENTRE AND LEARNING RETREAT ON 192 SCENIC ACRES ON THE NIAGARA ESCARPMENT

- 174 GUEST ROOMS AND SUITES HOUSED IN TWO BUILDINGS
- OVER 30,000 SF OF DEDICATED CONFERENCE & CLASSROOM SPACE IN A VARIETY OF ROOM SIZES
- TWO DINING ROOMS, BAR & TWO LOUNGES
- INDOOR POOL, FITNESS CENTRE, GAMES ROOM, BASEBALL DIAMOND & ROPE COURSE
- HIKING ON THE BRUCE TRAIL WHICH RUNS THROUGH THE PROPERTY
- EXCESS LANDS PROVIDE DEVELOPMENT POTENTIAL

LOCATED EAST OF THE TOWN OF ORANGEVILLE, LESS THAN 45 MINUTES FROM TORONTO'S PEARSON INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT

Deadline for submission of offers: November 30, 2004

COLLIERS INTERNATIONAL
www.colliers.com

BILL STONE
Bill.Stone@colliers.com
416-643-3412

STEPHEN HO
Stephen.Ho@colliers.com
416-643-3478

JONATHAN GOLDMAN
Jonathan.Goldman@colliers.com
416-643-3490

Information contained herein has been obtained from the owners or other sources deemed reliable. We have no reason to doubt its accuracy but regret we cannot guarantee it. All properties subject to change or withdrawal without notice.
Colliers Macaulay Nicolls (Ontario) Inc., Realtor

מכון ויצמן למדע
WEIZMANN CANADA

WEIZMANN WOMEN & SCIENCE
presents
LOOKING GREAT, FEELING BETTER – THE MIND-BODY CONNECTION

Thursday, November 4, 2004
10:00 a.m. – 2:00 p.m. – Park Hyatt Hotel
4 Avenue Road, Toronto – Roof Salons

GUEST SPEAKERS

MARK A. HYMAN, M.D.
Co-Medical Director
Canyon Ranch in the Berkshires

STEPHEN P. KRAFT, M.D., FRCSC
Professor of Ophthalmology, Department of Ophthalmology and Vision Sciences, University of Toronto
Staff Ophthalmologist, The Hospital for Sick Children and Toronto Western Hospital

R. STEPHEN MULHOLLAND, M.D., FRCS(C)
Cosmetic Plastic Surgeon and Surgical Director
SpaMedica

Lunch will be served Dietary laws observed
Couvert: $100.00 per person – Men and women welcome

Sponsored by
EQUITABLE LIFE OF CANADA

To register or for more information, please call 416-733-9220 by Wednesday, October 27, 2004.

ROLEX•PATEK•CARTIER
DIAMONDS
BUY•SELL•TRADE
VAN RIJK JEWELLERS
440-1233 INSTANT CASH

Subscribe to
The Canadian Jewish news

INSPIRATION

ENJOY LIFE in the forest

A ONCE IN A LIFETIME OPPORTUNITY TO LIVE IN A SECLUDED

WOODED COMMUNITY OFF BATHURST

IN RICHMOND HILL'S SPECTACULAR INSPIRATION COMMUNITY

WOODSIDE VILLAS
ON EXTRA DEEP FOREST LOTS

FROM $349,990

FREEHOLD TOWNHOMES
ATTACHED ONLY BY DOUBLE CAR GARAGE

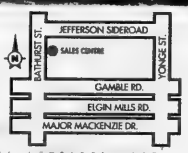
INCLUDING
• 9' CEILINGS • HARDWOOD FLOORING • GRANITE COUNTER TOPS
& MUCH MORE

BROKERS PROTECTED

Rendering is artist's concept. Prices are correct at press time E. & O.E.

Sales Centre Hours
MON.-THURS.: 1 P.M. - 8 P.M.
FRIDAYS: 12 P.M. - 5 P.M.
SAT., SUN. & HOLIDAYS: 11 A.M. - 6 P.M.
905-884-8323
tributecommunities.com

Tribute communities
A Better Place to Live



Women's Campaign & Advocacy closing in on $5 million

By DANIEL HOROWITZ
UJA Federation

UJA Federation Women's Campaign & Advocacy 2005 (WC&A), led by chair Fran Sonshine and vice chair Linda Frum, is well ahead of last year's pace at this point in the campaign with $4.5 million raised to date.

Sonshine credits the important message behind Campaign 2005, an action plan for a safe Jewish future, for the positive start, and for inspiring the 150 volunteers involved.

"The whole idea of working together as Jewish women, to do everything in our power to ensure a safe Jewish future, and to protect our children here and in Israel, has galvanized our volunteers this year," says Sonshine. "They really seem to understand and relate to that message, and it has inspired them to step up to the plate this year with passion and commitment. The future looks bright."

One reason for Sonshine's optimism is based on a new WC&A initiative - the first ever Atarah Upgrade event, which proved very successful. Over 30 women from UJA Federation's Atarah Division, whose members contribute at least $10,000 to the annual campaign, gathered for the event which raised an additional $57,000.

"It's innovative thinking like this that makes me feel anything is possible this year," says Sonshine. "It just goes to show that when you give women a job to do, they get it done. I hope that these upgrade events become an annual occurrence."

Another highlight of this year's WC&A promises to be the upcoming Lion of Judah Luncheon, on October 26 at the Eglinton Grand. Keynote speaker for the event is Barbara Amiel.

New dollars from Campaign 2005, chaired by Robert Harlang and Chuck Winograd, will be invested in four essential areas:

- Community Security: UJA Federation has initiated a special community task force to review local security needs, especially at schools and community centres. New dollars will fund the implementation of security measures recommended by the task force.
- A Strong Jewish Voice: UJA Federation is supporting the Canadian Council for Israel and Jewish Advocacy (CIJA) and other partner organizations that stand up for Israel and against antisemitism.

Fran Sonshine (left), chair of UJA Federation's Women's Campaign & Advocacy, shares a smile with vice chair Linda Frum.

- Building a Stronger Israel: Campaign 2005 will invest in several programs in Israel with special focus on young people, to help the country recover from years of terror attacks and a weak, but recovering economy.
- Empowering a New Jewish Generation: Campaign 2005 will invest in training programs for young adults to help them counter antisemitism, and initiatives such as birthright israel and March of the Living, to help them connect more closely with Jewish life.

"We must, and we will, raise our voices, as women united, about the issues that affect us, our families, and the Jewish world. The more we accomplish, the more we help to ensure that safe Jewish future," says Sonshine.

To make a donation to the campaign, please call the UJA Federation Campaign Hotline at 416.631.5705, or visit www.jewishtoronto.com.

October Telethon Week

UJA Federation held its second round of telethons this week, and is expected to raise $1 million. The chairs of UJA Federation Telethons (pictured left) are Mark Satok and Ruth Ekstein.

To date, the overall Campaign 2005 total stands at $33 million.

The next round of telethons will take place between November 14 and 18. If you would like to volunteer for a telethon shift, please call Brenda at 416.635.2883 extension 135.

Speaking out — This week's Speaking Out editorial focuses on Concordia University's recent decision to bar former Israeli PM Barak from speaking on campus.

Concordia: The issue is freedom of speech

By JASON PORTNOY,
Co-president, Concordia Hillel Students Association

Jason Portnoy

The Concordia University administration has blown it again, and on no less important an issue than freedom of speech. Earlier this month, after months of negotiations to ensure that former Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak had a chance to speak to Concordia students in a safe, constructive environment, the university barred Barak from speaking anywhere on campus.

Hiding behind a "security risk assessment", the University is depriving students of a chance to learn from a distinguished Israeli peacemaker because hoodlums might disrupt a visiting statesman's speech in an academic environment. At issue is the university's responsibility to ensure that Canadian students conduct a conversation peacefully, with civility, and with mutual respect.

University campuses must be places where debate can be carried out in a serene and respectful climate. The issue is not Barak - it's Concordia.

I, like the overwhelming majority of my fellow students, enrolled in school at Concordia because I wanted to hear provocative thinkers, to be stimulated, to learn from many different perspectives.

It was in this spirit that I invited Ehud Barak to speak at Concordia, and asked the university administration for space at either the downtown or Loyola campuses.

The university barred Barak. Who's next to be silenced?

All members of the University community and of Canadian society have a stake in this question.

Concordia's students have demonstrated a commitment to academic excellence and to social activism that is deeply rooted in our school's history. We all share a desire to be able to study in an environment that will nurture our intellects and help us to grow as individuals. We can only do this if ideas can be exchanged freely and respectfully, and if censorship is excluded. I call upon all Concordia students to stand up for free speech at Concordia.

We all share a desire for peace in the world's troubled regions, including the Middle East. No single speaker or ideological framework can represent the full story in this or any other region. It is manifestly unfair to ban one point of view from the university. All members of our society who value fairness should be outraged at the dangerous precedent set by the university's decision to ban Barak.

I want to know, from the University administration, from faculty, from my fellow students, and from our society's political leadership – what will you do to guarantee my basic security as a student who wishes to learn from a distinguished guest speaker?

The spirit and fundamental purpose of the university is compromised when the mere threat of violence can silence a point of view on campus.

We have been told that the Concordia administration has restored peace to this campus. Peace should not be confused with appeasement. Peace will come when we can all learn together, when we can all reason together, safely, intelligently, constructively. That is why my parents and I - and so many other parents and students - are sacrificing in order to pay tuition and learn at this school.

All I ask, all I demand, is equal treatment and a safe learning environment, just like everybody else. Is that too much to ask?

JEWISH TORONTO IS PUBLISHED AS A COMMUNITY SERVICE BY UJA FEDERATION OF GREATER TORONTO.

Toronto funding helps victims of Taba terror attacks

By DVORA WILSHANSKY
UJA Federation

At 9:50 p.m. on Thursday, October 7, Simchat Torah eve, a car bomb exploded at Egypt's Taba Hilton Hotel, near the Eilat border. "The firefighters heard the explosion," said Eldad Halachmi, director general of the Friends of Israel Firefighters. "They rushed to the fire truck bearing the UJA Federation of Greater Toronto logo and drove in the direction of the blast. When Egyptian border officials demanded passports, the firefighters made a wise decision and drove right through. They reached the devastated hotel at about 10:30 p.m."

"The Egyptians were totally confused," said Halachmi. "The border was virtually closed, and until 7:00 a.m. the Eilat firefighters worked practically alone, with the few Magen David Adom (MDA) ambulances that managed to get through the border. Danny Harari, chief of Eilat's Fire and Rescue Services, the commander of the entire operation, told everyone to keep quiet and to switch off all engines. He yelled out to see if any survivors could hear him. He heard a voice from above." A young Russian woman was rescued, lightly injured, but hysterical. Her mother, who had been trapped in a bathtub under two tons of concrete, did not survive.

Power failed after the explosions and the hotel was in total darkness. The Toronto-funded equipment was extremely helpful, said Halachmi. The crane and ladder - which could reach the 13th floor - have a special spotlight, which enabled the rescue teams to work.

Thirty-two people - including 12 Israelis - died as a result of the two terror attacks in Egypt, at the Taba Hilton and the Ras a'Satan holiday resort, the site of the second explosion. More than 180 were wounded.

The Toronto Jewish community played another vital role in helping the terror victims. Israel Emergency Campaign funding purchased equipment used by Eilat's Joseftal Hospital to treat many of the wounded.

Meir Yitzchak Halevy, Mayor of Eilat, which is twinned with Toronto through the Jewish Agency Partnership 2000 (P2K) program, was proud of how Eilat responded to the terrible emergency.

"Now is the time to thank all the people who helped after the attack and, of course, the Jewish community of Toronto."

(AP Photo/Brennan Linsley)

Pictured right: Cars are piled with debris as Israeli and Egyptian rescuers look for survivors in the partially-destroyed Taba Hilton Hotel, which was car-bombed on Thursday, October 7.

Miles Nadal JCC set to open refurbished fitness centre

The Miles Nadal JCC, a 117,000 square foot facility located in Toronto's downtown district at the corner of Bloor and Spadina - the original enclave of the city's Jewish community - will be holding an open house for the newly completed renovations of its fitness centre on Sunday, October 24, between 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. Then, on November 1, the Miles Nadal JCC, an initiative of UJA Federation of Greater Toronto's Tomorrow Campaign, will be open for full operation.

Key features include all new weight training equipment and over 45 pieces of the latest cardio machinery; studios for Aerobics classes, Yoga, Pilates and Spinning; separate and dedicated weight rooms for heavy free weights; a rebuilt, wheelchair accessible swimming pool with an extended shallow end for classes; new locker facilities, including steam, sauna, massage therapy and whirlpool rooms; and, much more.

"What's most important is the underlying message behind the reconstruction," says Bryan Keshen, executive director of the Miles Nadal JCC. "The fitness centre is part of a commitment to building community. UJA Federation's latest demographic study shows strong downtown growth. That's what this centre is about. It says you can live a meaningful, significant Jewish life downtown," he adds.

The new centre offers the latest cardio equipment among many other features.

But, according to Keshen, the facility serves as much more than a recreational centre. "We are unique because we combine fitness, community resources, and Jewish identity. We have a spirit no one else has – our message is 'you belong here'."

Currently, the facility has 1,000 members and, with its recent updates, is excited to grow with the community it is serving. For Keshen, the undertaking would not have been possible without the volunteer members of the design and construction committee, including chair Michael Levy, who brought ample experience as the founding president of Sports Clubs of Canada, David Green of Greenwin Properties Management, and Phil Levine of the IBI Group.

The Miles Nadal JCC and the nearby Wolfond Centre for Jewish Campus Life are centerpieces of the downtown district, one of three campuses under development by UJA Federation's Tomorrow Campaign. The two other campuses are Central Square on Bathurst north of Sheppard, site of the Bathurst Jewish Community Centre, and City North on 50 acres of land in the city of Vaughan.

For more information on the fitness centre opening, e-mail chambers@milesnadaljcc.ca or phone 416-924-6211 ext. 129.

Israeli teens learn the recipe for success

By REBECCA GLUCK SOBERMAN
UJA Federation

Two Israeli youths, whose recent visit to Toronto was made possible by UJA Federation, Air Canada and Ve'ahavta - the Canadian Jewish Humanitarian and Relief Committee - are tasting a life they never thought possible just a few years ago.

Naor, 17, and Nissim, 19, who asked to be identified by first name only, were troubled Israeli teenagers with no ambition or direction. They were mixed up with the wrong crowd but, with the help of their social worker and ELEM – an Israel-wide organization that helps youth in distress to learn job skills – the two were enrolled in a special chef training program at the five-star Lilit restaurant in Tel Aviv, a not-for-profit establishment committed to helping troubled youth develop culinary expertise.

As part of their training and, in recognition of their tremendous accomplishments over the past two years, the two young men were in Toronto for one week earlier this month, working in the kitchen of a high-end Italian restaurant. During their time here, they also visited with distressed youth in and around Toronto.

"Before I started working at Lilit, I didn't know what would become of me," says Nissim, who dropped out of school in grade 11. "I had no self esteem or confidence." Nissim is now a mentor to program newcomers and hopes to continue in the field once he completes it.

For Naor, the program offered at Lilit was his saviour. "I was behaving badly and Lilit taught me how to be a mentsch. It taught me to get serious with my studies and to regain my confidence." A relative of Naor has already graduated from the program and is currently serving in Israel's Defense Forces. Naor not only plans to follow in his footsteps, but he has also managed to recruit a distraught friend to Lilit.

Nissim (left) and Naor were in Toronto recently for a culinary internship.

Lilit's initiative, established in 2000, is the first of its kind in Israel. Under the mentorship of a team of chefs, participants are trained in a safe and supportive environment, enabling them to acquire skills for a career. Those who have completed the program have gone on to cook in some of Israel's top restaurants.

"Chefs are not merely chefs," comments Nissim. "They act as confidants and offer tremendous support when necessary," he explains. The staff is carefully selected for professional skills as well as social awareness.

Lilit, which offers the best of kosher Mediterranean cuisine, has welcomed many tourists from around the world, including participants on UJA Federation missions.

Any questions concerning information or photos that appear on these pages should be directed to jewishtorontonews@ujafed.org

JEWISH TORONTO IS PUBLISHED AS A COMMUNITY SERVICE BY UJA FEDERATION OF GREATER TORONTO.

News in the schools

For the last four years, The CJN has asked the Jewish schools in the GTA for news about staffing and campus developments. As a service to the community, we provide the following information sent by the schools that responded.

Ruth Portnoy

Gail Freeman

ASSOCIATED HEBREW DAY SCHOOLS

Bill Misener

Associated Hebrew Day Schools has appointed Sandy Rabinowitz as senior principal. He will also continue to serve as general studies principal at the Kamin Education Centre.

Longtime middle school principals Jerry Rosenfield and Rabbi Pinchas Brumer did not return this year. At the Danilack Middle School, Bill Misener will serve as acting principal of general studies, Ruth Portnoy becomes acting principal of Judaic studies, Gail Freeman has been appointed vice-principal, head of guidance, and Elisabeth Segal has been promoted to vice-principal.

Elisabeth Segal

Jackie Weintraub has been appointed Grade 1 transition co-ordinator.

COMMUNITY HEBREW ACADEMY OF TORONTO

New vice-principal Helen Fox will oversee the general studies program at the Tanenbaum campus. Fox worked at the Toronto District School Board, was vice-principal at Earl Haig Secondary School and worked as assistant principal at the University of Toronto Schools before her appointment at CHAT.

Rabbi Moshe Yeres has been appointed vice-principal, Jewish studies at the Richmond Hill campus. Rabbi Yeres has been a teacher of Talmud, rabbinics and Tanach at CHAT since September 1999.

EITZ CHAIM SCHOOLS

Lillian Fogel recently retired from Eitz Chaim School after serving as vice-principal of general studies at the Viewmount Avenue and Spring Farm campuses. She was at the school for almost 25 years.

TORONTO HESCHEL SCHOOL

Soheila Sabeti, a founding staff member of the Toronto Heschel School, was recently appointed admissions co-ordinator and administrative co-ordinator for the elementary campus.

Klara Romm

Soheila Sabeti

Klara Romm has worked at the school for two years, and has been appointed to the position of administrative co-ordinator for the junior high.

YESHIVOT BNEI AKIVA OF TORONTO

Rabbi Eitan Haglili

Rabbi Eitan Haglili has been appointed the menahel (Jewish studies principal) at Ulpanat Orot Girls' School. He has come to the Ulpana on shlichut from Givatayim, where he was the principal of the Mamad Experimental School since 1987.

ZAREINU AND YESHIVA DARCHEI TORAH JOINT PROGRAM

A joint program for high school age boys has been set up by Zareinu Educational Centre, which provides special education for students with physical and developmental challenges, and Yeshiva Darchei Torah. This program will enable students graduating from Zareinu to continue their education in a religious setting.

LEO BAECK DAY SCHOOL

Desmond Bender

Desmond Bender has been appointed co-ordinator of program development at Leo Baeck Day School. Part of his new position's mandate is to continue to develop the civilization course for the middle school that he initiated in 2003, and to co-ordinate an international baccalaureate program, which the school is in the first phase of exploring. A pilot project for grades 5 and 6 will be run in May 2005.

PAUL PENNA DOWNTOWN JEWISH DAY SCHOOL

Franklin Smith, business manager of the Paul Penna Downtown Jewish Day School, will also co-ordinate the school's ongoing fundraising program while Ruth Zive is on maternity leave. Smith is vice-chair of the Association of Jewish Day School Administrators and co-chair of the 2004 Association of Administrators and Principals of Jewish Schools annual conference.

Join the residents and staff of Forest Hill Place for our upcoming

Open House

Sunday, October 31st from 2 to 4 p.m.

Enjoy refreshments and live jazz music from the Michael Golden Duo.

Our staff will be available to take you on a tour of Forest Hill Place and answer any questions you might have.

To register, please call Karen at Forest Hill Place
(416)785-1511

Forest Hill Place
645 Castlefield Avenue, Toronto
Ask about our locations in Burlington, Oakville, North York, Thornhill, Toronto & Mississauga.

LIFESTYLE
Retirement Communities

Current laws create 'a barrier' to freedom of conscience

Continued from page 5

Prohibiting same-sex marriage impinges on three areas, Morgan argued: Jewish homosexuals who wish to wed in religiously sanctioned, legally binding ceremonies; clergy who want to perform the ceremonies; and the community at large, "whose members wish to support and hallow the marriage and participate in its celebration."

Current laws forbidding same-sex marriage create "a barrier" to freedom of conscience and religion of all gays, as well as impose majority religious views on a wider community. Allowing same-sex marriage, either in a religious or civil ceremony, would not infringe on the right of other Jews to withhold their affirmation of such unions, Morgan said.

He went on to explain that Judaism has always been able to adapt to the rules of secular societies, even if they conflict with Jewish norms, such as the sale and consumption of non-kosher foods or allowing marriages between Jews and non-Jews.

The rabbis were joined in their views by the Attorney General of Canada, the Canadian Human Rights Commission, various gay rights groups, and the United Church of Canada.

The court is not expected to rule until next year.

YIDDISH CORNER

Edited by: ALEK SILVER

ייִדיש־ווינקל

רעדאַגירט פון: אַלעק סילווער

בערעק יאָסעלאָוויטש אין דער פּוילישער אַרמיי

פון שלום הערשקאָפּ

וועג מען דערמאָנט ייִדן אין אַמאָליקן פּוילן, אין 17טן און 18טן יאָרהונדערט, זעט מען פֿאַר זיך ייִדן מיט בערד אַן פּאות, אין לאַנגע קאַפּאָטעס, חסידים אַן מתנגדים, באשפּריצקלט מיט אַ קליינער גרופּע משפּילים. אין ווירקלעכקייט, אז עס זיינען אויך געווען אַנדערע ייִדן, מיט וועלכע מיר קענען שטאָלצירן. אָבער, נישט קיין גרויסע צאָל, אַבער זיי זיינען געווען.

בערעק יאָסעלאָוויטש, געלעבט פון 1770 ביז 1809, איז געווען אַ פּולקאָווניק אין דער פּוילישער אַרמיי. ער האָט זיך באַטייליקט אין קאָשטשושקאָס אויפֿשטאַנד קעגן רוסלאַנד, וואָס האָט געהאַט אָקופּירט דעם מזרח־טייל פון פּוילן. יאָסעלאָוויטש האָט אַנטיילּ גענומען אין מאַרש פון נאַפּאָלעאָן באָנאפּאַרטע אויף רוסלאַנד. געבוירן נישט וויַיט פון ווילנע, האָט ער געאַרבעט ווי אַ שליח (קוריער) ביים בישאָף מאָסאָלסקי פון ווילנע. בעת אַ שליחות קיין אויסלאַנד, האָט ער דאָרטן זיך געטראָפן מיט רעוואָלוציאָנערן פון ווענגע ווערט שטאַרק באַאיינפלוסט. וועג ער קומט צוריק באַזוצט ער זיך מיט זיין פרוי רבקה אין פּראָגע, אַ פּאָרשטאָט פון ווארשע.

אין יענער צייט האָט זיך געפֿירט אַ היסע דעבאַטע אין פּוילישן סיים וועגן געבן ייִדן גלייכע רעכט. זיינען אַ סך ייִדן אונגעשטעקט געווארן מיטן פּוילישן פּאַטריאָטיזם און געהאַלטן, אז ייִדן דאַרפן העלפן פּוילן אין איר קאַמף קעגן רוסלאַנד. אין זעלבן יאָר האָט זיך באַוויזן אַן אויפֿרוף פון צוויי ייִדן: בערעק יאָסעלאָוויטש און יאָסעף אַראָנאָוויטש, מען זאָל זיי דערלויבן צו אַרגאַניזירן אַ ייִדישן רעגימענט פון לייכטע קאַוואַלעריע, צו העלפן דער פּוילישער אַרמיי. טאַדעוש קאָשטשושקאָ איז געווען באַגייסטערט פון דער אידעע און זיי געגעבן אַזאַ דערלויבעניש. עס האָט זיך אַרגאַניזירט אַ רעגימענט פון 500 ייִדן מיט בערעק יאָסעלאָוויטש בראש.

אין 1794 האָט קאָשטשושקאָ געמאַכט אַן אויפֿשטאַנד קעגן רוסלאַנד און אַ גרעסערע צאָל ייִדן האָבן זיך אַנגעשלאָסן. נאָכן דורכפאַל פון אויפֿשטאַנד האָט יאָסעלאָוויטש זיך דערשלאָגן קיין פראַנקרייך, וווּ ער ווערט טעטיק אין די פּוילישע אימיגראַנטן־קרייזן. אין פראַנקרייך ווערט אַראַנזירט אַ פּוילישער לעגיאָן ווי אַ טייל פון דער פראַנצויזישער אַרמיי, מיט דער האָפענונג, אז זיי וועלן קעמפֿן אויף צו באַפרייען פּוילן.

בערעק יאָסעלאָוויטש שלאָסט זיך אַן מיט דער ראַנג פון פּולקאָווניק. אַ חוץ די אַנדערע מעדאַלן, וואָס ער באַקומט, קריגט ער אויבט אַ ניימע מעדאַל פֿאַר זיין העלדישקייט, די העכסטע אויסצייכענונג פֿאַר אַ פּוילישן זעלנער: „וירטוטי מיליטארי". ער טרעפט זיך אַן אויף אַ שטאַרקן אנטיסעמיטיזם אין דער אַרמיי, אָבער אין די לייבערלע קרייזן ווערט ער שטאַרק רעספּעקטירט.

אין 1807 ווערט זיין רעגימענט אַנגעשלאָסן אין דער פּוילישער אַרמיי. אין 1809 פירט ער אַן מיט צוויי סקוואַדראָנען פון פּרינץ יוזעף פּאָניאַטאָווסקיס אַרמיי. אין אַ שוועדן קאַמף נישט ווייט פון דער שטאָט קאַצק איז ער געפֿאַלן אין אַ העלדן־טויט. ער ווערט דערמאָנט אין די פּוילישע היסטאָרישע ביכער ווי אַ פּוילישער העלד.

זיין זון, יאָסעף בערקאָוויטש, וועלכער האָט געלעבט פון 1789 ביז 1848, איז אויך געווען אַ פּוילישער אפיציר אין נאַפּאָלעאָנס פּוילישן לעגיאָן. ער קעמפט אין דער זעלבער שלאַכט וועג זיין פאָטער איז אומגעקומען. אין 1812, בעת נאַפּאָלעאָן מאַרשירט אויף רוסלאַנד, נעמט בערקאָוויטש אַנטיל אין די שלאַכטן און ווערט שווער פֿאַרוווּנדעט. ער פֿאַרלאָזט די אַרמיי און ווערט אַ וואַלד פֿאַרוואַלטער („לעשניצער").

אין די יאָרן 1830־31, וועג עס ברעכט אויס דער פּוילישער אויפֿשטאַנד, רופט בערקאָוויטש די ייִדן צו קעמפֿן פֿאַר פּוילנס אומאָפּהענגיקייט. נאָך פּוילנס מפלה באַוצט ער זיך מיט זיין פאַמיליע אין פראַנקרייך. פון דאָרטן פֿאָרן זיי קיין ענגלאַנד. דאָרט שרייבט ער אַ נאָטיץ: „אַ פּוילישער אפיציר אין דינסט פון נאַפּאָלעאָן". ער זעצט עס אַליין איבער אויף ענגליש און זיינט זיך פֿאַרעפֿנטלעכן די נאָוועלע אין 1846, שוין נאָך זיין טויט.

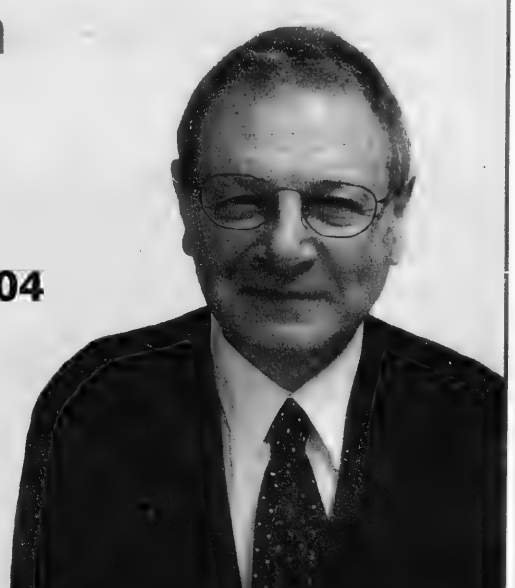
The Gerald Schwartz/Heather Reisman
Fall 2004 Lecture Series at Holy Blossom Temple

Terror and the Defence of the West

Can the West maintain itself as a liberal and democratic society in the face of a new kind of war, one which may require changes to Western society? What is the place of Israel and the Jews in this war against terrorism — separate from the West or part of the defence of the West? What are the roles of Canada and America in this war on terror? How do we understand the new onslaught of Radical Islamic terrorism from a historical perspective? Please join us for the second of four lectures in this series on the new age of terrorism and the dilemmas posed for the liberal democratic West.

Sir Martin Gilbert

Leading historian of the modern world



Tue. Nov. 2, 2004 at 8 p.m.

Introduction:
Margaret MacMillan

Our upcoming speakers will be Michael Ignatieff (Nov. 20) and Paul Berman (Nov. 29).

HOLY BLOSSOM TEMPLE
קהילת מרחי קדש

1950 Bathurst Street, Toronto, ON M5P 3K9
phone: (416) 789-3291 fax: (416) 789-9697
e-mail: templemail@holyblossom.org
www.holyblossom.org

For a complete list of our offerings — more than 70 classes and lectures, for all ages and all levels, on a variety of topics — please call the Temple at (416) 789-3291, ext. 527, to request our 2004/2005 Gerald Schwartz/Heather Reisman Centre for Jewish Learning Calendar of Events, or download a copy online at www.holyblossom.org from Publications – Schwartz/Reisman Centre.

Doors open at 7 p.m. for Holy Blossom Temple members and Friends of Holy Blossom Temple with Advance Seating Cards, and at 7.30 p.m. for our friends in the greater community.
For information on how to become a 'Friend of Holy Blossom,' please visit our Web site. Admission free.

Beth Tzedec chazzan chanted Kol Nidrei at Sosnowitz

By LEILA SPEISMAN
Staff Reporter

Obituary

Chazzan Joseph Cooper, longtime cantor at Toronto's Beth Tzedec Congregation, died the day before Yom Kippur of a heart attack. He was 81.

Although he officially retired in 1980, he was appointed chazzan emeritus, and remained interested and active with the congregation, as well as with the Toronto Council of Hazzanim, which he helped found.

Good friend Eli Kirshblum, chazzan of Adath Israel congregation, praised him for his great sense of humour, laid-back personality, and for the fact that "he never had a bad word to say about anyone."

Beth Tzedec's senior rabbi Baruch Frydman-Kohl, and Rabbi Benjamin Friedberg, who was formerly with the synagogue, both noted that he managed to maintain good relations with everyone with whom he was involved, even during the most turbulent events at the shul.

Cooper was born in Kielce, Poland, in 1923, one of a family of nine siblings. Always interested in music, he sang in the synagogue choir.

He spent the war years in various slave labour and concentration camps, until he was liberated by American forces in May, 1945. Outside of an older brother who had come to Canada before the war, and a younger brother, all his family were lost.

In 1944, he was prevailed upon to chant Kol Nidrei in Sosnowitz concentration camp, knowing that if he were caught by the guards, he would have been killed. The Kol Nidrei he was going to recite the day he died was to mark the 60th anniversary of that service.

To honour him, the choir sang the service to tunes he had composed.

After liberation, he went to Austria and to Italy, where he studied opera. He gave concerts in refugee camps, singing in Hebrew, Italian and Yiddish.

Cooper also played goal for an Italian soccer team. He maintained his love of sports, avidly watching soccer, football, baseball, hockey, basketball and even golf.

In 1948, his older brother brought him and his younger brother, Albert, to Canada. Eager to hone his operatic skills, he studied at the Royal Conservatory of Music, and appeared in opera productions and concerts. As well, he sang in the Shaarei Shomayim and Hebrew Men of England choirs.

Cooper was asked to fill in at the first High Holy Days service at Beth Tzedec in 1955, when the chazzan at the time, Akiva Bernstein, became ill. He then assumed the position officially.

He met his wife, Ruth, at a bar mitzvah at the shul, and the couple were married after a six-month courtship.

Joseph Cooper

While he was too modest, Ruth Cooper said, to produce tapes or records, he travelled to different Ontario communities together with United Jewish Appeal or Jewish National Fund, and gave concerts to help raise funds for them.

Even after his retirement, members of the congregation often asked him to take part in their life cycle events. As well, he visited the sick and those in nursing homes.

He got a kick out of his association with the movie industry. He acted as adviser on Jewish content to the Canadian movies Charlie Grant's War and Two Men. He also had small roles in the films.

His horrendous experiences during the Holocaust didn't dampen his enthusiasm for life. "He made up his mind to live life to the fullest," his wife said. "He decided to make every moment count."

Nearly 1,200 people attended his funeral, where his coffin was brought into the sanctuary. "I knew that he had a positive impact on people, but I didn't realize quite how much," said Ruth.

Chazzan Cooper is survived by his wife of 47 years, Ruth, his two sons, Jeffrey and David, and grandchildren Ben and Taylor.

• Toronto's Most Popular Rabbi-Cantor • Multi Talented
• Magnificent Operatic-Lyric Tenor Voice • Dynamic Speaker

RABBI-CANTOR MARSHALL E. REISS

Tel: 905-762-9838
or 416-573-2549

All Who Are In Attendance, Will Greatly Appreciate And Enjoy The Outstanding Talent, Vocal Versatility, And Art Of Rabbi-Cantor Marshall Reiss

(1) YES! You Can Have Your Wedding, Bar Or Bat Mitzvah, Baby Naming, Redemption Of The First Born, Engagement And Wedding Anniversary Ceremony And Dinner Part At Any Banquet Hall - Restaurant - Hotel - Party Room - Or Private House Or Apt.

(2) YES! With 30 Years Of Personalized, Superb, Efficient Service To Jewish Families, I Will Help You Plan Your Simcha - Party

(3) YES! Phone The Most Popular Dynamic - Eloquent Speaking "Rabbi" And Magnificent - Beautiful Opera Tenor Voice "Cantor" - Fluent In Many Languages

(4) YES! A Mobile Multi-Talented Conservation Rabbi-Cantor "Have Wedding Canopy - Chupa - Torah - Van - Will Travel" At Your Service

(5) YES! I Perform At Fundraising Concerts And Dinner Parties And Funerals And Unveilings

Rabbi Marshall E. Reiss, B.A.
Rabbi and Cantor
• Dynamic, Eloquent Speaker
• Magnificent, Operatic-Lyric Tenor Voice
Tel: 905-762-9838
or 416-573-2549
For All Ritual Ceremonies, Celebrations Services

Marshall's Mazel Tov Orchestra And DJ Service Fabulous Entertainment

BIALIK HEBREW DAY SCHOOL
2760 Bathurst Street, Toronto
invites
PROSPECTIVE PARENTS
to its
ANNUAL SCHOOL ORIENTATION
Wednesday, October 27, from 7:30 – 9:30 p.m.
or
Tuesday, November 2, from 9:15 – 11:15 a.m.
Tours of the school will begin promptly at 7:30 p.m. and 9:15 a.m. respectively
Call and reserve a place with Linda Wolfe: 416-783-3346
linda_wolfe@bialik.on.ca
We offer classes in the following grades:
• Full day and half day Junior Kindergarten
• Full day and half day Senior Kindergarten • Grades 1 to 8
Bialik offers
Financial Assistance for both Preschool and Grade School

Amos Oz hears Israel's many voices

Continued from page 1

By focusing on the so-called "good guys" and "bad guys," the media creates a fictionalized version of Israel, said Oz, whose latest work, A Tale of Love and Darkness, is a memoir of his youth.

According to Oz, the problem is that reporters are "present-tense" oriented and don't pay sufficient attention to the past.

The skewed picture they paint of Israel is not necessarily a function of anti-Semitism, but of unfulfilled expectations of, and disappointment with, the Jewish state.

In a stimulating talk that combined a bracing blend of gentle humour and trenchant commentary, Oz said that "intellectual restlessness" is the hallmark of Israeli society.

Israelis hardly concur on any of the pivotal issues of the day. "We all shout and scream and rarely agree," said Oz, a small, compact man who spoke without notes and with few pauses.

The argumentativeness of Israelis stems from Jewish tradition and the open-ended nature of Judaism. "It's a legacy of Jewish civilization."

Novelists in Israel, including himself, strive to capture the cacophony, diversity and depth of Israeli voices.

When Oz, a founder of the Peace Now movement, hears only one voice in his mind's eye, he said he writes angry political articles condemning the Israeli government. But when he hears a panoply of conflicting voices, he knows he is ready to begin a short story or a novel.

His fictional characters are neither "good guys" nor "bad guys." As he put it, "I'm not in this business." He is much more interested in conveying qualities such as understanding and empathy.

Oz made a point of saying that his stories, while not directly political, deal with politics because Israelis are so politicized.

Author's stories deal with politics

He hates the word "fiction" – there is not even a word for it in Hebrew – and prefers to regard his work as "narrative prose," a mixture of facts, imagination, fantasies and suppositions.

Born in Jerusalem in 1939 to a cultured European family of staunch Zionists and scholars, Oz said that Hebrew is Israel's "real treasure."

A century ago, prior to its revival, Hebrew was largely the preserve of rabbis, and Jews rarely used it in their everyday lives, said Oz, who is also a professor of Hebrew at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev.

But today – when Israelis, Israeli expatriates and Palestinians are counted – Hebrew is spoken by about eight million people in Israel and around the globe.

There are more Hebrew speakers nowadays than, say, Danish or Norwegian speakers, he noted. And Hebrew-language novels published in foreign languages are more likely to be found in a bookshop than novels written in Dutch.

During a question-and-answer session, Oz turned to contemporary politics, saying that Israelis and Palestinians have embarked on the road toward "a painful compromise."

The vast majority of Jews and Arabs believe that a two-state solution is inevitable. "The patient – Israelis and Palestinians – are prepared for painful surgery, but the doctors – the leaders – are cowards."

Even Israelis and Palestinians who view partition as a dangerous and unjust idea are reconciled to a two-state solution, said Oz, who has campaigned for mutual recognition and co-existence since the Six Day War.

"How soon, I can't tell you," he said, referring to a timeline for two states.

In his view, the Geneva Accord, a joint Israeli and Palestinian plan for peace that was unveiled last year in Switzerland, offers the best hope for a negotiated two-state agreement.

Once Israel achieves peace with its Arab neighbours, Israel will positively thrive. "We need a workable, livable, painful compromise with the Palestinians."

Oz, who called himself an evolutionist rather than a revolutionary, said, "We don't need love between nations, only neighbourliness."

Constantly in contact with moderate Palestinians such as Sari Nusseibeh, he commented: "It's easier dealing with pragmatic Palestinians than with dogmatic friends of Palestinians abroad."

In his assessment, Israel's peace movement was "badly hit" by the failure of the Camp David summit in July 2000, when then prime minister Ehud Barak offered the Palestinians statehood in much of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

In a flash of annoyance, Oz lambasted Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat, saying he did not present a counter-offer. "What came instead was a condemnation of Barak's proposal and a violent intifadah."

The goals of the uprising were two-fold: to shatter the fabric of Israeli society and exert international pressure on Israel to comply with Palestinian demands, Oz said. "This tactic has failed… The intifadah has failed."

Only now are the Palestinians learning that "no one will lift a finger for them."

Asked to comment on the separation barrier Israel is currently building mainly through the West Bank, he replied, "My problem with it is that it is being built in the wrong place."

Israel has a right to defend itself by erecting a fence separating itself from the West Bank, he said. But when that fence intrudes on the lives of Palestinians, Israel is committing a sin and attaching itself to the "wrong cause."

During his visit, Oz also addressed students at the University of Toronto.

NEW ARRIVALS DAILY
FAMOUS ITALIAN DESIGNER LABEL BLOW OUT
FIRST TIME EVER
DIESEL Marlboro Classics GAS
FIRST QUALITY MEN'S FALL & WINTER MERCHANDISE
UP TO 90% OFF EVERYTHING
THURSDAY, OCT. 20TH TO SUNDAY, OCT. 31ST ONLY!
HELD OVER!
MONDAY-FRIDAY .....11 AM - 9 PM
SATURDAY.....10 AM - 6 PM
SUNDAY .....12 NOON - 5 PM
2 GREAT LOCATIONS
508 BLOOR ST. EAST OF BATHURST 416-532-8755
617B COLLEGE ST. (UPSTAIRS) WEST OF CLINTON (NEXT TO Gigolo's) 416-536-9669
EVERYTHING MUST GO!
PRESENTED BY brooker's & TRENDWEAR
1 HOUR FREE PARKING MINIMUM $125 PURCHASE
ALL MAJOR CREDIT CARDS ACCEPTED
Bring in this ad and receive 10% off at Gigolo's
SWEATERS . . . OUTERWEAR . . . JACKETS . . . SHOES . . . JEANS . . . PANTS . . . TSHIRTS . . . ACCESSORIES . . .

JNF Blue Box! AMNESTY!
Do You Have a JNF Blue Box?

Thousands of JNF Blue Boxes are out there. Please...we want them back! We forgive you for not returning them yet!
Now, more than ever, you can help in the important work of the JNF - building a strong and beautiful Israel for all of its people...and receive a charitable tax receipt!
Call Debbie at the JNF office 416-638-7200 ext. 22 and we will pick up your Blue Box and replace it! Or, bring it in to our office. It's your move.
And, if you haven't yet got a Blue Box, call us, and we'll be happy to send you one.
October -"Blue Box Amnesty Month"
We are waiting for your call!
The tradition continues...
Tel: Debbie 416-638-7200 ext 22 • Fax: 416-638-7345
Jewish National Fund of Toronto
1000 Finch Avenue West, # 700, Toronto, Ontario M3J 2V5

HIGHLAND FARMS

Lower Prices

A lot Less to Pay Everyday

VISIT US TODAY AT FRESHATHIGHLANDFARMS.COM FOR MORE GREAT SAVINGS.

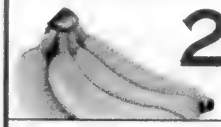
PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, GROWN AT THE HIGHLAND FARMS ORCHARD
fresh, fancy grade
McINTOSH APPLES
2.99 8LB POLY BAG

CHAI KOSHER, COR 218
fresh
CHICKEN LEGS
(backs attached)
2.49 LB 5.49/KG

COTT & RC COLA
SOFT DRINKS
• regular • diet
assorted varieties
67¢ 2LT PLASTIC BOTTLE

PRIMO
PASTA
assorted regular cuts
77¢ 900G PKG

FROM THE TROPICS
fresh
BANANAS
25¢ LB .55/KG



OSEM
TEA BISCUITS
• classic • chocolate
2/1.00 155G PKG

BNEI-DAROM
CUCUMBERS
• in vinegar • in brine
1.49 540G TIN

SEALTEST
BUTTER
• salted • unsalted
3.19 454G PKG

PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, CANADA NO.1
fresh
COOKING ONIONS
large size
1.99 10LB BAG

OSEM
WAFERS
• vanilla • chocolate
99¢ 230G PKG

GEFEN, INSTANT, CUP
NOODLE SOUP
no msg
assorted varieties
99¢ 68G PKG

CHAPMAN'S, ORIGINAL
ICE CREAM
assorted varieties
1.97 2LT CARTON

PRODUCT OF U.S.A., CALIFORNIA
fresh
POMEGRANTES
large size
1.49 EACH

STORE HOURS:
MONDAY - SATURDAY 7:00A.M. TILL 10:00P.M.
SUNDAY HOURS 8:00A.M. TILL 8:00P.M.

4750 DUFFERIN ST. AT SUPERTEST RD. 416.736.6806
850 ELLESMERE RD. AT KENNEDY RD. 416.298.1399
140 DENNETT RD. AT LAWRENCE AVE. 416.282.5755
MATHESON BLVD. AT HURONTARIO 905.501.9910

KOSHER PRODUCTS AVAILABLE AT THE DUFFERIN LOCATION ONLY.

OSEM
HONEY CAKE
2.99 450G PKG

SPECIALS EFFECTIVE THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21ST TO WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27TH, 2004

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES • UNAUTHORIZED REPRODUCTION OR USE OF THIS ADVERTISEMENT WITHOUT THE WRITTEN CONSENT OF HIGHLAND FARMS AND ITS MARKETING AGENCY IS STRICTLY PROHIBITED.

On Campus

Peace Now establishes journalism, academic writing awards

Hopes to contribute to more peaceful Middle East

Canadian Friends of Peace Now (CFPN) announced last week that it has established two annual awards for university scholarship and print-media commentary that is consistent with its mission, goals and values.

"CFPN is launching these awards because we want to give recognition to serious scholarship and journalism that contributes to a more peaceful Middle East," said the group's policy director, Sheldon Gordon.

"If, as has often been said, 'War begins in the mind,' then peace must begin there, too, through the kind of research and writing that we intend to honour each year."

CFPN will present an annual $2,000 fellowship to a doctoral student at an Ontario university whose research is consistent with Peace Now's advocacy of a Palestinian-Israeli peace based upon mutual recognition, a secure, viable state for Palestinians and a secure, Jewish state for Israelis.

Students in political science, economics, business, education, history, psychology, sociology, environmental science, social work and law are eligible, as are students in other areas relevant to the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Eligibility may be expanded in 2006 to include all Canadian universities.

Three judges will choose the recipient from among applications submitted each year by March 1: Derek Penslar, a professor of history and the director of the Jewish studies department at the University of Toronto; Mira Sucharov, an assistant professor of political science at Carleton University; and Fred Zemans, a professor emeritus at Osgoode Hall Law School.

CFPN will also present an annual $1,500 award to the author of an article, (or articles) on the Arab-Israeli conflict that is consistent with the group's goals and values. It must be written for a Canadian newspaper, magazine, website or journal, though the author may be of any nationality.

The judges for the journalism award are Beverley Stern, chair of CFPN's Toronto advisory board; Suanne Kelman, a journalism professor at Ryerson University; and Miriam Rolland, a member of CFPN's Montreal advisory board.

For more information, call 905-707-5308.

בית הספר על שם השל

The Toronto Heschel School

The Toronto Heschel School

An arts-based, multi-sensory Jewish Day School'

" The task is to humanize the sacred, and sanctify the secular.... "
Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel

We invite prospective Pre-School parents to join us for an orientation meeting and tour of the school on one of the following dates:

Tuesday-November 2 or Thursday-November 18, 2004

at 9:15 am.

To reserve a space or for registration information, please contact our office at 416 635-1876 ext. 221

TORAH in MOTION
Confronting the Challenges of Modernity

3RD ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Renewing Our Spirit

Beth Jacob V'Anshei Dridz Congregation

Self, Family, Nation

Sponsored in memory of Nathan Noteh Krauss z"l

Sunday, November 7, 2004 • 9:30am-5:45pm

Beth Jacob V'Anshei Dridz Congregation, 147 Overbrook Place, Toronto

CONFERENCE SCHEDULE

9:00am Registration & Refreshments

9:30am

- Rabbi Michael Skobac
Personal Growth 24/7: Climbing the Ladder of Consciousness through Daily Spiritual Practices
OR
- Rabbi Pini Dunner
Freeing Women in Chains: How One Rabbi Fought for Change within Judaism

10:45am

- Dr. Nathan Lopes-Cardozo
Can we Learn from Heretics? Spinoza, Halacha and the Renewal of Judaism
OR
- Rabbi Yosef Reinman
Is There One Jewish People? Reflections on Torah and Pluralism

12:00pm - Keynote Address

- Rabbi Norman Lamm
Torah Umadda: Seeking Knowledge in all of God's World

12:50pm - 1:45pm Lunch & Minchah

1:45pm

Panel Discussion: The Future of Judaism
- Rabbi Norman Lamm
- Rabbi Yosef Reinman
- Rabbi Nathan Lopes-Cardozo
OR
Symposium: Women and Jewish Law
- Rabbi Michael Broyde
Modesty Inside and Out: Another Look at Tzniut.
- Ms. Bracha Rutner
What Women don't Know about the Laws of Family Purity: A Frank Discussion

3:15pm

- Rabbi Pini Dunner
Torah Observance and Religious Zionism: Compatibility or Conflict?
OR
- Rabbi Michael Broyde
Is Persuading Jews to become more Observant a Mandate of Halacha? Observations on Inreach and Outreach

4:30pm

- Ms. Bracha Rutner
Lending Dignity to Intimacy: The Role of the Female Halachic Adviser
OR
- Rabbi Michael Skobac
Strategies of the Heart: How Self-Examination can Change your life

BUY a TIM PASS for admission to all our programs in 5765

CO-CHAIRS: Ilana Kelman, Rabbi Jay Kelman and Dr. Elliott Malamet

$50, $40 if registered by November 3, Lunch included.
Students $25 in advance only. Free for TIM Pass Holders.

www.torahinmotion.org • 416·633·5770 • info@torahinmotion.org

Sponsorship levels begin at $180 and include CD's. Sponsors will be recognized in the program

On Campus

McMaster café caters to Jews, Muslims, Hindus

By ABIGAIL CUKIER
Special to The CJN

HAMILTON — McMaster University student Aaron Orkin was talking to a friend one afternoon about diversity on campus. Talk eventually turned to the idea of a cafeteria that would cater to the needs of observant Jewish, Muslim and Hindu students.

"For the last couple of years we've been facilitating dialogues between Jewish and Muslim students, usually on Middle East politics," said Orkin, now a first-year medical student. "Each meeting created the need for another meeting and another dialogue. So I thought if we could share that space, it could be something to work together on.

"It's not about ending those dialogues or creating peace on campus. That's ridiculous. It is [about having] something that is shared, something we can look to and say, we did this together."

Orkin went to work creating promotional materials, meeting with the McMaster Students Union, campus religious clubs and administrators.

A year and a half later, the cafeteria, which has yet to be named, is set to open by Nov. 1.

"The university was unbelievably receptive. It's taken awhile because of logistical complications, but everyone liked the idea from the beginning," Orkin said.

Phil Wood, dean of students, was a strong supporter right away.

"It starts off with a student not being able to get a hot kosher meal in discussion with Muslim students not being able to get halal meat. But it is more than just a place to eat; it was pitched as a diversity café," Wood said.

It is costing $300,000 to turn a campus pub into the diversity cafeteria, which is a partnership between the students' union and MacMaster's Hospitality Services. The student union will also run events and religious festivals on the site.

The cafeteria will serve strictly vegetarian food, due to the practical difficulties of preparing a kosher kitchen or serving halal meat. The menu will also attract vegetarians and vegans and students of all faiths.

Because it is mandatory for students in residence to buy meal plans, but the required foods are not available, Orkin said most religious students do not live on campus. Although he does not know how many students this affects, Orkin said one in 10 university students is vegetarian and the Muslim Students' Association is McMaster's largest religious club, attracting 200 to 300 students to Friday prayers.

"Religious students would like to live on campus and participate in campus life. If you can't eat on campus, you can't live the campus life," Orkin said.

The diversity café will be a first of its kind in Canada. A kosher and halal kitchen serves students at Mount Holyoke College in Massachusetts. In New Hampshire, at Dartmouth College, the Pavilion opened in 2002. It offers almost three separate restaurants, with a glatt kosher kitchen and halal meat. It features two kitchens, each with an oven, pans and utensils and a third set of cooking utensils to adhere to the Hindu vegetarian menu, sakahara. All items are colour coded to prevent them from being mixed together.

A similar kitchen is set up at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena. Other U.S. universities offering kosher foods include MIT and State University of New York at Buffalo.

Except for York University, no Ontario university offers kosher food as a regular cafeteria fare, beyond pre-packaged or specially ordered options. York University has a kosher deli and some restaurants offer halal meat.

Orkin said a key to the café's success will be that all students feel welcome.

"It's about everybody sitting down and eating the same meal," he said. "A whole bunch of people of... different faiths sitting down together and not noticing it's a big deal.

"It's the quiet symbols of peace [that] I think are worthwhile."

Limmud

Be part of history!

Attend Canada's first-ever Limmud The Festival of Jewish Learning

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE FROM 5 TO 95

Sunday, November 21, 2004
York University, Founder's College

•50 inspiring, enlightening, and engaging speakers
•Interactive learning sessions with some of Canada's top Jewish minds
•Special programming for children 5 to 12

For more information: 416-781-8711 info@limmud.ca www.limmud.ca

Beth Avraham Yoseph of Toronto Congregation Adult Education Committee presents, as part of the:
2nd Annual
Scholar in Residence Program
Thursday, Nov. 4 to Shabbos, Nov. 6, 2004
Rabbi Kenneth N. Hain,
of Congregation Beth Sholom of Toronto, ON Past-president of the Rabbinical Council of America (RCA)
"EVERYTHING NEW IS . . .
FORBIDDEN BY THE TORAH"
– Chasam Sofer
A public lecture by:
Rabbi Kenneth N. Hain
Thursday, November 4, 2004, 20th Cheshvan, 5765 at 8:00 pm.
Beth Avraham Yoseph of Toronto Congregation, 613 Clark Ave. W., Thornhill, in the Perlis Hall
Refreshments following
The Arlene & Julius Schreiber Scholar in Residence Program

Join Bonnie Stern & Rabbi Elyse Goldstein on an Exclusive Biblical Culinary Journey a Remarkable Taste of Israel
Save the dates: February 13 - 21, 2005
Book NOW!
Space is limited to the FIRST 25 APPLICANTS

ISRAEL
FOOD FOR THOUGHT
Free Information Session
Sunday, Nov. 7 at 7:00 pm at the Bonnie Stern School of Cooking
5 Erskine Ave. (3 blocks north of Yonge & Eglinton)
Please RSVP by November 5, 2004
tel. 416-485-7007 E-mail: bsm@kolel.org

HOLIDAYS
כולל KOLEL

For reservations, deposits & insurance contact:
Miki Friendly – Alexander
SkyLink Holidays
Tel: 416 923-2003 or
1 800 262-6818 (ext. 9204)
Fax: 416 944-2246
E-mail: miki@skyklinkholidays.com

For details contact:
Rabbi Elyse Goldstein,
Rabbinic Director Kolel
Tel: 416 485-7007 (ext. 231)
E-mail: goldstein@kolel.org

SHAAREI SHOMAYIM CONGREGATION
470 Glencairn Ave., Toronto, ON
Phone: 416-789-3213, Fax: 416-789-1728
info@shomayim.org www.shomayim.org

Scholar-In-Residence

RABBI, DR. DANIEL SPERBER
Professor of Talmud, Bar Ilan University
Author of "Minhagei Yisrael"

Shabbat, October 23, 2004

11:15 a.m.
" Halacha in a Modern World "

4:45 p.m.
" User Friendly Psak "

NEW YORK'S "JEWISH SOUL" MUSICAL COMES TO TORONTO!

Your Ancestors live again in...

Jay Kholos'

A Stoop on Orchard Street

DIRECT FROM NEW YORK!!

THREE SHOWS JUST ADDED!!
MONDAY (11/1) AT 8PM
TUESDAY (11/2) AT 2 AND 8PM

"THE WORTHY SUCCESSOR TO FIDDLER."

Take a nostalgic trip back to the year 1910. Share the trials and triumphs of the Lomansky family and their "stoop" friends as they strive to live the American dream in the teeming tenements of the Lower East Side of New York. Don't miss this big musical with 18 original and hummable songs and a cast of 24.

Breaking records everywhere it plays, A Stoop On Orchard Street is the must see musical with "Jewish Soul."

"An extremely enjoyable musical...a glimpse into Jewish immigrant life of New York's Lower East Side...I loved the ending!"
–Dr. Ruth, TV personality, Therapist, Author, Lecturer

"...one of the finest pieces of musical theatre anywhere..."–BEST OF publishers

"It's a hit!"–New York Times

"...a modern musical with a sentimental longing for the past. What makes this theater experience successful is its heart and Jewish soul."–Thane Rosenbaum, novelist and essayist on Jewish art and culture

ZAGAT® rates it EXCELLENT!–Wall Street Journal Survey says "smart story, well-crafted songs...not a dry eye in the house."

"The perfect show that conveys to 2nd, 3rd and 4th generation Jews, the price their grandparents paid to build a life in America!"
–June Walker, National President of Hadassah

"The best musical I've seen On or Off-Broadway in years..."
–Joe Franklin (WOR Radio)

Celebrate 350
Jewish Life in America
1654 ~ 2004

SHOWS WILL SELL OUT! ORDER TICKETS SOON! DIRECT FROM NEW YORK!

LEAH POSLUNS THEATRE of the BATHURST JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTRE,
4588 Bathurst Street, Toronto

Mon. 10/25	Tue. 10/26	Wed. 10/27	Thur. 10/28	Mon. 11/1	Tue. 11/2
8pm	2pm & 8pm	2pm & 8pm	2pm & 8pm	8pm	2pm & 8pm

Just Added! Monday, Nov. 1st at 8PM
Tuesday Nov. 2nd at 2 & 8PM.

Tickets from 39.95 to 49.95

For tickets, call 866-527-8667. For group rates only, call 877-358-7764.

For more information about this critically acclaimed production visit www.astooponorchardstreet.com

Coast to Coast

CBC embarrasses Ottawa on UNRWA funding

According to Reports

By PAUL MICHAELS

On Oct. 7, the Globe and Mail carried an Associated Press story about the Nobel Prize for chemistry that was awarded this year to two Israelis, Technion scientists Huran Hershko and Aaron Ciechanover, and an American, Irwin Rose, professor emeritus at the University of California–Irvine.

The three won for their research into cancer treatment that resulted in the development of promising new drugs. It was the first Nobel Prize in science for Israel. As this column recently pointed out, Israeli researchers have made many headline-grabbing discoveries. But with very few exceptions, their work is continually overshadowed by the more sensational "conflict story."

The deeply rooted respect among Jews for education and learning is widely admired. What was somewhat unexpected, however, is that the prizes were awarded when many countries, especially in Europe, have been calling for divestment from Israel, including academic boycotts. The separation of science from politics is necessary, if not always easy to maintain.

Across the page from the Nobel Prize article was a more familiar story from Israel about the ongoing conflict in northern Gaza. As heartening as the rare report on a medical technological development is, the harsh reality of the daily human toll in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict is inescapable (even if it has been largely eclipsed recently by the greater carnage in Iraq).

Yet even here, there have been some recent surprises. Adrienne Arsenault of CBC TV broke the story that UNRWA head Peter Hansen admitted that the UN agency charged with helping Palestinian refugees is employing Hamas members.

On CBC News: Sunday (Oct. 3), host Carole MacNeil introduced Arsenault's report: "The Canadian government seems to be in an awkward position tonight over where its aid money ends up in the Middle East. It's all because of some tough questions our Adrienne Arsenault was asking today."

Arsenault asked Hansen if UNRWA has Hamas members on its payroll. His answer: "I'm sure there are Hamas members on the payroll. I don't see that as a crime."

Arsenault explained the dilemma for the Canadian government. Canada contributes about $10 million annually to UNRWA. Having outlawed Hamas as a terrorist organization, Canada may be indirectly funding a group that its own laws prohibit.

On Oct. 4, CBC Radio news ran a follow-up story by Kurt Petrovich. He explained that if Hansen's admission is true, the Canadian government would be deeply concerned and would seek clarification from Hansen and UN authorities.

Another aspect of Arsenault's coverage was the accusation that UN ambulances are used to transport arms to Palestinian terrorists. However, the Israeli footage that accompanied her report could not sustain this accusation. On Oct. 12, in what some see as a blow to its credibility, the Israel Defence Forces admitted it could not back up its original charge and said the accusation was "made in haste."

* * *

In the second part of Terence McKenna's riveting documentary, "Passport to Terror" (on CBC's The National, Oct. 11 and 12), he interviewed the brothers responsible for the bombings in Bali, Indonesia, two years ago. Amrozi, the "smiling bomber," gives his perverted interpretation of Islam: "Any Muslim who understands Islam will do it [suicide bombing]. As long as Jews and Christians led by Bush continue to wage war on us, then we'll wage war on them. Remember that."

Amrozi's words recall a passage from Paul Berman's book, Terror and Liberalism: "Islamism's medieval image of jihadi warriors waving scimitars at the Zionist-Crusader conspiracy [is] no less fanciful, and no less demented [than other forms of totalitarianism]."

Are Muslim radicals like Amrozi "insane"? McKenna asked the chief of police investigating the Bali bombings. "I don't think so. They have their idea[s]. They are not crazy," the chief replied.

Berman would say that at least their ideology is irrational, even mad, and that a "willful delusion" prevents much of the world from seeing this latest form of totalitarian madness for what it is and confronting it.

* * *

Correction: In last week's column about the controversy over CanWest's use of the term "terrorist," the line, "As it turned out, this was much more of a concern for the CBC than for Reuters" should have read: " It appears that this was more of a concern for the CBC than for Reuters."

Paul Michaels is communications director for the Canada-Israel Committee.

Singles Events

is an advertising feature of The Canadian Jewish News

For rates or to place an ad, please call 416-391-1836. Deadline: Wednesday, 4 p.m., 8 days preceding issue date.

Co-Ed Volleyball
Intermediate & competitive divisions, OVA refs, starting end of Nov. Call 416-222-7111.

The Albert and Temmy Latner Jewish Public Library

in cooperation with the Bathurst Jewish Community Center

presents

THE SECOND IN ITS SERIES OF BOOK REVIEW LECTURES

"Treasures in Jewish Literature"

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

Dr. Harriet Morris

will review Chaim Potok's last book

"Old Men at Midnight"

Tuesday, November 2, 2004

Coffee at 12:45pm Lecture at 1:30pm

Lipa Green Building, fourth floor
4600 Bathurst Street

Fee: $15.00 per session at the door

Harriet Morris holds a doctorate of English Literature and has taught at the University of Toronto and York University

For further information call: 416-635-2996 or e-mail: elaynef@sympatico.ca

Two NDP MPs defend their trip to Israel

Pat Martin expresses disappointment about party leader's response

By MYRON LOVE
Prairies Correspondent

WINNIPEG — Two longtime New Democratic Party MPs are defending their recent trip to Israel and criticizing their leader Jack Layton after the Canada-Israel Committee-sponsored mission they took part in sparked a row in the party.

Winnipeg North Centre MP Judy Wasylycia-Leis and Winnipeg Centre MP Pat Martin were mentioned last month in an open letter to party leader Jack Layton from 26 mostly Muslim party members. It accused the party of a "sudden lurch toward Israel" under Layton and condemned him for allowing the visit by the two MPs because it "gave legitimacy to Israel's occupation." The letter was posted on the website of the Al Jazeera Information Center, a U.S. based site not affiliated with the Qatar-based Al Jazeera news station.

Wasylycia-Leis noted that MPs regularly go on fact-finding missions to other countries.

"I'm certainly not going to apologize for going to Israel," she said. "We are not using the trip as platform to promote any one side. We didn't bring any TV cameras with us. It was all rather low-key."

Wasylycia-Leis and Martin were part of a group of MPs including one from the Bloc Québécois and two from the Conservative Party – and young Jewish community leaders who went on the Aug. 1-8 trip, which included a visit to Yad Vashem and meetings with Israeli and Palestinian officials.

The open letter to Layton also said the party's "recent tilt… toward Israel" was a result of "lobbying and undue influence by [Canadian Jewish Congress] and its partners within the NDP," and that the letter-writers had discovered a CJC document detailing secret plans to bring the party closer to Israel.

Congress condemned Layton for not addressing the allegation in his response to the letter, and in a letter to the NDP leader said there was no such document.

"I strongly resent the inference that there is something offensive about visiting Israel," Martin told The CJN. "I particularly take offence at the suggestion in the letter that there is a Jewish conspiracy to infiltrate the NDP. That kind of line is a common tool of people who promote hate. There is no room in our party for those who promote hate and anti-Semitism which is the most virulent form of hate."

Martin expressed disappointment about Layton's response to the controversy, in which he said the party did not approve the MPs' trip and that he strongly opposed Israel's "illegal wall." Layton also said the NDP continues to support a two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and denied it has muted its criticism of Israeli policies.

Continued on page 33

Beth Tikvah Synagogue
3080 Bayview Ave.
416-221-3433
invites the community to

A Century of Jewish History 1850-1950

Monday, October 25, at 8:00 p.m.
The Emergence of Racial Anti-Semitism, including the Dreyfuss trial, the Beilis trial, mass immigration from the Pale of Settlement to North America and the first stirrings of Zionism. Presenter: Dr. Derek J. Penslar, Professor and Director of Jewish Studies at the University of Toronto.

Monday, November 1, at 8:00 p.m.
World War I and its Effect on East European Jewry, together with the Leon Frank trial. American anti-Semitism, aliyah to Israel, interwar Poland and the growth of North American Jewry. Presenter: T. Lichtenstein of the University of Toronto.

Monday, November 8, at 8:00 p.m.
The Shoah: The case of Holland and its Jews – Why were so many exterminated? Presenter: Dr. Robert Van Pelt, Internationally recognized authority on the history of Auschwitz and Professor of Architecture at the University of Waterloo.

Monday, November 15, at 8:00 p.m.
The Founding of the State of Israel ... Zionist versus post-Zionist interpretations. How many refugees were there? Why did they leave? Was it a miraculous victory? Presenter: Gerald Ziedenberg, Lay expert on the Holocaust and modern Zionism.

Free Admission

Our way is the United Way

UJA Federation and its affiliate agencies support the United Way in building a better community.

United Way
UJA Federation
Together We're Stronger
Bernard Betel Centre For Creative Living
Hillel of Greater Toronto
JCS
Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care
30th Anniversary 1974 • 2004 circle of care
Toronto Jewish Free Loan Cassa (Gmilath Chasodim) Association
Bathurst Jewish Community Centre
JIAS Toronto
The Jewish Camp Council of Toronto
Miles Nadal JCC
Reena
JVS Jobs | Vision | Success
JVS Toronto

Coast to Coast

Owen Sound's Jewish community is thriving

By ANNA MORGAN
Staff Reporter

If the sight of gingham curtains, the smell of hot apple pie and the sound of the evening steam whistle a-blowing don't strike you as backdrops to a thriving Jewish community, then you haven't been to Owen Sound recently.

Over the past two years, the Jewish community in the small Ontario town of 21,000 people has not only tripled – from 15 families to more than 45 – but has refurbished its synagogue and appointed a board of directors for the first time in 40 years.

They recently held their second "Rhythm & Jews" event, a cultural celebration of Jewish music, food, storytelling and faith. Last time the festival was held, it raised enough money to rebuild the synagogue, which was on the verge of collapsing when the supporting beam gave way in the basement.

According to members of the community, Roman Catholic priests, church ministers, city officials and Owen Sounders of every faith were in attendance for the October 2002 event. At that time, nearly $30,000 had been raised to save the synagogue, including $5,000 from the City of Owen Sound.

This time, they hoped to not only celebrate a century of Jewish life in the Sound while raising money for future projects, but the organizers also hoped that the event would strengthen their ties with the larger community around them.

Meyer Rabovsky, who was born in Owen Sound, remembers the days when anti-Semitism was part of small town Ontario. When he was young, Jews and dogs weren't allowed on local golf courses. Today, the synagogue hosts the city's Catholic high school as part of their religious studies curriculum and regularly conducts tours and talks at the request of various local organizations. The synagogue was honoured with the Owen Sound Marigold Award for best-kept religious institution in 2003.

The community represents a mix of Jewish traditions in the Canadian frontier. During the summer, Leslie Robbins-Conway, who teaches Hebrew in the Sunday school, regularly offers Jewish storytelling with her husband, Paul Conway, in their home in the northern Bruce Peninsula. Their Friday night dinner show, called Shabbat Shalom, is sold out during the summers.

Maintaining a Jewish identity is somewhat of a challenge in a town where there is no kosher food, mikvah or cemetery, Robbins-Conway said.

But it's also possible to feel more connected to Judaism here than in a big city, she suggests.

"It is easy to feel marginalized by the Orthodox, Conservative and Reform movements in big cities," says Jeff Elie, a member of the community who moved to the Sound from Toronto.

"Here, everyone is more involved and we work together to overcome challenges."

From left are Alisa van Wick, Lorne Rich, Ruth Gorbet, Emmy Green, Florence Zideneerg, Jeff Elie and Meyer Rabovsky in front of the Ark in the Beth Ezekiel Synagogue.

Since Beth Ezekiel Synagogue is the only place for Jews to pray within miles, the group includes Jews from all backgrounds, including mixed marriages.

"Every Jew is welcome. There is an understanding that when we turn anyone away, we're denying them the opportunity for communal worship," Elie says.

Emmy Green, who still calls herself a new member, recalls looking for the Jewish community when she moved to Owen Sound 25 years ago.

"I knocked on the synagogue and didn't find anyone home. Checked the phone book and couldn't find any Cohens or Levys. So I looked for a Jewish store and found Kornblum's menswear.

"That is how I made contact with the community," Green said.

Lorne Rich, whose family owns Kornblum's Department Store, is now a third-generation Sounder who moved back to his home town after a brief hiatus in Oshawa.

Technology has allowed some younger members to move their businesses to Owen Sound. For some of the older members, it is the slower paced life that brings them to the small town.

When Florence Langer Zideneerg left the Sound 27 years ago, she didn't think she would ever come back.

But two years ago, she found it was more affordable to retire in her hometown. Now she does all the things she never did in Toronto. She goes to the Owen Sound film festival, enjoys the symphony and attends a live theatre with her sister, Ruth Gorbet.

Gorbet, whose husband was a premier furrier in the area, came to the small northern town 52 years ago. She recalls when the town was called Corkscrew City. It was once a major seaport, railhead and a highway terminus and home to scores of inns and taverns, which is how it earned the nickname.

"Back then there were hotels on every corner. Now there are churches," Gorbet said.

Now, members of the synagogue talk about their work putting together a major exhibit focusing on Jewish history, life and culture in the area, which is planned to be featured as part of the Owen Sound Grey Roots museum facility, schedule to open in late 2005.

Ounce for Ounce the best deal in town
Now featuring
14 oz. prime rib – $17.95*
*Limited time offer
Come to Le Biftheque Steakhouse for the tender prime rib and steak. Come back for the market fresh seafood, savory chicken and ribs and tempting everyDay specials. Terrific for lunch or dinner. Great for business or pleasure. Perfect for banquets or special events. And it's only at Le Biftheque.
24 oz. prime rib shown above
LE BIFTHEQUE STEAKHOUSE
Who knew?
7501 Woodbine Ave. (N. of Steeles) 905-305-1808; 25 Carlson Court (W. of Dixon Rd. and Hwy. 27) 416-798-4333
96 Richmond St. W. (Downtown Sheraton Centre) 416-366-4333; www.lebiftheque.com

Coast to Coast

'Fence shows restraint,' says NDP MP Martin

Continued from page 31

Both Wasylycia-Leis and Martin believe the issue needs to be discussed in the NDP caucus soon.

"That letter cried out to be condemned," Martin said. "There is a perception that the NDP federally has a one-sided policy regarding the Israel-Palestinian situation. This flare-up is an opportunity to debate the issue within the party. We in the party are divided as much as is the rest of the world. In essence, though, we have always believed in a two-state solution within secure borders for both peoples."

Both MPs praised their hosts for not pushing any agendas, and Wasylycia-Leis spoke of discussions and debate on a wide range of subjects.

"We were presented with the evidence and left to draw our own conclusions," Martin said. "The organizers of the trip obviously felt that the merits of their arguments spoke for itself."

As part of their tour, the group saw the security barrier that Israel has erected to keep out suicide bombers from the West Bank.

MPs from opposition parties met with Israeli, Palestinian officials

"It was an incredible experience for me," Wasylycia-Leis said. "It was an opportunity to see first-hand the impact of terrorism on the lives of the people of Israel. We also got a good sense of what the fence is all about. Israel certainly has the right to defend itself from suicide bombers."

Martin expressed regret that the security fence is necessary, but said he sees it as the most peaceful response that Israel could have come up with to protect Israeli children from terrorists.

"That fence shows a lot of restraint on Israel's part," he said. "If I were living there, I don't think I would be able to exhibit such restraint."

Toronto Jewish Free Loan Cassa
(G'milath Chasodim) Association

cordially invites you to attend

The Annual Meeting of its members

Tuesday, November 2, 2004
6:30 pm

Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda Synagogue
Arback Hall
100 Elder Street, Toronto

Eighty years have passed since our original incorporation on 29 July 1924.
Please join us in honouring the Past Presidents of our amalgamated organization.

Dinner served / Kashruth observed
Couvert: $54
RSVP by October 27, 2004 to 416-635-1217

TORONTO JEWISH FREE LOAN CASSA
(G'milath Chasodim) Association

UJA FEDERATION

Family Moments

only from The Canadian Jewish news

Mazel Tov to...

Mazel tov to Miriam & Arthur Kertzman, who celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary on Aug. 31. Love, Stephen, Gayle and granddaughter Elana.

Best wishes from family and friends to Freda & Joseph Naiman, who celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary on Aug. 31. Love, Alisa, Alan, Dina, Gayle, Stephen and granddaugther Elana.

Happy first birthday to Abigayle Hannah Salsberg. Love, Mom and Dad. Wishing you health and joy in the coming years.

Mazel tov to Samson & Yvonne Charikar on their 45th wedding anniversary, from children, grandchildren, relatives and friends.

Raymond & Diane Katzeff and Richard & Marilyn Pilarski are thrilled to announce the engagement of their children Romy & Jeremy.

Happy 64th anniversary to Ralph & Rose Etigson. We love you very much! Barbie, Stephen & Esther; Shoshana, Sheldon, Ashley, Melissa and Melanie; Uri, Dina & Shimon.

SEND US YOUR PHOTOS!!

Label the back of all photos and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for return. Send all your photos to: The CJN, Family Moments, 1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, ON, M3B 3K4.

JNF
Say it with Trees
"Mazel Tov on your Special Anniversary"
JEWISH NATIONAL FUND
416-638-7200

What's New

By REBECCA NADLER

YAD VASHEM
GALA DINNER
NOV 14, 2004

Guest Speaker:
MOSHE SAFDIE
Architect of the New Museum
416-785-1333

What's New Deadlines: Monday, Oct. 25, is the deadline for the Nov. 4 issue and Monday, Nov. 1, is the deadline for the Nov. 11 issue. Phone 416-391-1836, fax 416-391-0829 or e-mail rnadler@cjnews.com.

Thursday, Oct. 21

GOOD EATING HABITS

Adath Israel Congregation hosts Rebecca Jeffries, registered nutritional consultant, on "Fostering Good Eating Habits." 7:30 p.m. 416-635-3540 or www.adathisrael.com.

HALACHA & CHANGE

Rabbi Dr. Daniel Sperber, of Bar-Ilan University and Israel Prize winner, discusses "Can Halacha Allow Change? Women's Spiritual Expression and Community Traditions." 8 p.m. Beth Jacob Congregation, 147 Overbrook Pl. www.torahinmotion.org or 416-633-5770.

DANGERS OF DENIAL

Reva Stern, chair of Anti-Semitism Must End Now, speaks on "The Dangers of Denial" at Beth Tikvah Synagogue at 8 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 22

NASHIRA SHABBAT

Join a Kabalat Shabbat service followed by dinner and singing for those in their 20s and 30s at First Narayever Congregation, 6 p.m. To reserve, call 416-487-7597.

Saturday, Oct. 23

OAKVILLE CONCERT

Shaarei-Beth El Congregation of Oakville present Jon Simon in concert singing traditional Jewish melodies and folk songs. 8 p.m. $36, senior and student $25. 186 Morrison Rd. For tickets, call Suzy, 905-849-3929, or the synagogue office, 905-849-6000.

JOSHUA NELSON CONCERT

Joshua Nelson and Bais Groove perform in concert at Hart House Theatre. 8 p.m. For tickets, call 416-978-8668 or visit www.harthousetheatre.ca

Sunday, Oct. 24

FREE GENETIC SCREENING

Make sure you are not a carrier of a genetic disease, 9 a.m.-3 p.m. at Council House, 4700 Bathurst St. Minimum age 16. Bring the name and address of your family physician. For information, call 416-633-5100 or visit www.whatsinyourgenes.com.

SPIRITUAL ACTIVISM

Mekorot presents a day of discussion and study for men and women with Rabbi Avi Weiss on "Faith and Leadership: A Guide to Spiritual Activism"; Channa Lockshin Bob on "Parents' Role in the Spiritual Growth of their Children"; Dr. Barry Levy on "Mind and Soul: Can the Orthodox Jew March to Two Drummers Simultaneously?"; and Dr. Rachael Turkiencz on "Spiritual Politics: Rebellious Sages." 10-4:30 p.m. To register, call 416-398-1510 or www.mekorot.ca.

SINGLES BRUNCH

Adath Israel Congregation invites singles 35+ to brunch at 11:30 a.m. $15 if reserved by Oct. 21, $20 at the door. 416-635-5340.

BLOOD DONOR CLINIC

Kehillat Shaarei Torah, Temple Emanu-El, Beth Tikvah, Temple Har Zion and Beit Rayim, in conjunction with Canadian Blood Services, are holding a blood donor clinic at Beth Tikvah, 3080 Bayview Ave. 12-4 p.m. All donors welcome. Call Anita, 416-391-5688, or Gerim, 905-889-7767, for an appointment.

YOUNG JUDAEA PROGRAM

Canadian Young Judaea offers a program for 6 to 10-year-olds from 1-3 p.m. For information, e-mail youngjudaea@bellnet.ca.

THE JEWS OF TORONTO

Congregation Darchei Noam present "The Jews of Toronto: The Development of a Shtetl" with Hesh Troper. Learn about the history of Toronto's Jewish community, exploring its continuity and changes over two centuries. 7-9 p.m. 15 Hove St. 416-638-4783.

Continued on page 35

STATESMAN family man
LAWYER leader
FEDERALIST philosopher
RHODES SCHOLAR bridge builder
GLOBAL CITIZEN local hero
MENSCH

SOLD OUT

CANADIAN FRIENDS OF THE HEBREW UNIVERSITY

is proud to announce our

2004 Scopus Award Recipient

THE HONOURABLE
Bob Rae PC, OC, QC

Join us as we pay tribute to Bob Rae at a gala dinner in support of
The Hebrew University of Jerusalem

SUNDAY OCTOBER 24, 2004,
FAIRMONT ROYAL YORK HOTEL, TORONTO

HONORARY DINNER CHAIRS • Tony Comper • Anne Golden • Ralph Halbert • Robert Prichard • Joseph Rotman • Sandra Rotman
DINNER CHAIR • Lorne Greenspoon

For information and tickets, please contact Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University 416.485.8000 inquiry@cfhu.org

What's New

Continued from page 34

JENIN: MASSACRING TRUTH
Jenin: Massacring Truth will be screened followed by a panel discussion with Peter Kent, John Thompson, Olivia Ward and Ron Waksman. 7 p.m. Beit Rayim, 9711 Bayview Ave. $20, students $10. 905-770-7639, ext. 31.

THERESA TOVA CONCERT
Friends of Yiddish present "Falling Leaves" with Theresa Tova singing new Yiddish songs by Bayla Shechter Gottesman. 7:30 p.m. 864 Sheppard Ave. W. Members $10, guests $15. For tickets, call 416-736-8073.

Monday, Oct. 25

THE PIECES FROM BERLIN
Beth Tzedec library's Contemporary Jewish Book and Film Club series begins with Heather Kassel reviewing The Pieces From Berlin by Michael Pye. 1:30 p.m. $50 in advance for 6 lectures or $12 per session. 416-781-3514, ext. 25.

MEDITATION MONDAYS
The Caring Committee of Temple Har Zion presents Meditation Mondays with Dr. John Fleming, Karen Kaufman and Rosalind Smith. The program is designed to support the practice of meditation in the Jewish community at large and is intended for the curious, the novice and even those with a well-developed meditation practice. 7:30-9 p.m. Call 905-889-2252 for further information.

THE WORLD OF PRAYER
Chana Weisberg begins a course on the how, what, when, where and whys of our daily prayers, "Touching the Infinite: The World of Prayer," at the JRCC Institute, 18 Rockford Rd. 7:45 p.m. Free. 416-222-7105, ext. 230, to register.

Tuesday, Oct. 26

CHORALAIR REHEARSAL
The Choralairs of North York rehearses every Tuesday evening 8:15-10 p.m. at the Earl Bales Park Community Centre. Repertoire includes pop, Broadway and folk songs. No auditions required. For information, call Brian Slepchik at 416-631-0029 or 416-540-7106. To book a concert, call Judy Gordon, 416-221-3161.

CHUG HATANACH
Dr. Eva Dessin leads a discussion of chapters 23 and 24 of Psalms. 8 p.m. at Beth David Congregation. All welcome.

Wednesday, Oct. 27

JEWISH JOKERS GROUP
The Jewish Jokers and Humour Group meets at 7 p.m. at the Antibes Community Centre. Call Irv Helpert, 416-661-2541.

FAMILY RELATIONSHIPS
Prof. Ben Schlesinger speaks on "Grandparents and Grandchildren: What's new?" at the Mature Adults Get Together Group at Kehillat Shaarei Torah, 2640 Bayview Ave. 8 p.m. 416-229-2600.

Other news

WOMEN SUPPORT GROUPS
The North York Women's Centre provides free, supportive programs for women, including "Breaking Free" on Wednesdays, Oct. 27-Dec. 1, 1-3 p.m. This 6-week group helps participants learn to use emotions positively. For information, call 416-781-0479.

OUT OF THE COLD
The Out of the Cold program provides homeless and needy individuals with food, clothing, nursing attention and a warm bed during the winter months. Learn how you can help this winter by attending a volunteer information night at Temple Har Zion on Thursday, Oct. 21, at 8 p.m. or at Beth Emeth Synagogue Monday, Nov. 1, at 7 p.m.

DRAWING CLASSES
Figure and portrait drawing classes are held on Thursday evenings, 6:30-9:30 p.m., at Antibes Community Centre, 140 Antibes Drive. $25 per lesson or three lessons for $60. For information, call Maya at 416 736-6709.

BREAST CANCER INFO
"Dialogue on Breast Cancer," an opportunity to hear and ask questions from four health professionals discussing surgical procedures and MRI's as they relate to breast cancer and the psycho-social factors of having cancer. Thursday, Oct. 28, 6:30-8:30 p.m., at Mount Sinai Hospital. To register, visit www.mtsinai.on.ca/healthyliving or call 416-586-8338.

FASHION SHOW
Beth David Sisterhood annual fashion show takes place Sunday, Oct. 31, at 2 p.m. Call Sonia Slobodsky, 416-226-1831.

HARBORD 1954 REUNION
Classmates and graduates of Harbord Collegiate 1954 are planning a reunion for Monday, Nov. 4. For reservations, call Charlotte Berger Haber, 416-787-9407 or e-mail crhaber@attglobal.net.

SINGLES EVENTS CAN BE FOUND ON PAGE 30

ATLANTIC CITY TRIP
Adath Shalom Sisterhood is sponsoring a trip to Atlantic City, Nov. 23-26. For information, call the synagogue at 416-635-0131 or Bunnie at 416-633-9696.

JIAS TORONTO
Jewish Immigrant Aid Services, 4600 Bathurst St. #325. 416-630-6481.
Information sessions for new immigrants are held every Tuesday mornings 9 a.m. Registration required.
Conversation Café. Newcomers to Toronto are invited to The Second Cup at the Bathurst Jewish Community Centre for an hour of English conversation. Every Thursday at 7 p.m. For information, call Suzie at ext. 30.

JF&CS GROUPS
Jewish Family & Child Service For information/registration, call 416-638-7800, ext. 215. Lipa Green Building, 4600 Bathurst St.
Bereavement Groups for Widows/Widowers: A 6-session group for men and women under 60 years old who have recently lost a partner or spouse. Wednesday, Oct. 27, 7:30-9 pm, Promenade Mall, suite # 313.

FOR SENIORS

Lunch & Learn In Retirement, Wednesday, Oct. 27, "Canada's Middle East Foreign Policy," with Ruth Klein. Noon at Holy Blossom Temple. $1. Bring a dairy lunch, drinks served.

Earl Bales Seniors' Club: Hebrew classes, Tuesday mornings 10 a.m.-noon, $25 a month; Sunday dance, Oct. 24; Saturday dance, Oct. 30; Blue Heron Casino, Tuesday, Oct. 26; Dixie Outlet Mall, Monday, Nov. 1. Call 416-395-7881 Mondays to Thursdays, 9 a.m-1 p.m.

LZA Seniors Cultural Club meets every Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the boardroom at the Borochov Centre, 272 Codsell Ave. Call 416-630-9444.

Seniors Mixed Bowling every other Saturday night. Call Sidney Fox, 416-633-7305, or Abe Levine, 416-742-3004.

WAGMAN CENTRE
55 Ameer Ave. 416-785-2500.
Lunch and Learn, Tuesday, Oct. 26, 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m. "Laughter is the Best Medicine" with Monty Mazin. Members $5, guests $7. Lunch served. To reserve, call ext. 2267.
The McMichael Gallery – a trip to Kleinberg Sunday, Oct. 31, 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Members $12, guests $17. To reserve, call ext. 2267.

BERNARD BETEL CENTRE
1003 Steeles Ave. W., 416-225-2112.
"Just in Case You Think You're Normal"– a lecture via video followed by a discussion with Joe Black, Tuesday, Oct. 26, 10-11:30 a.m.

BATHURST JCC

Bathurst Jewish Community Centre and Koffler Centre of the Arts, 4588 Bathurst St., 416-636-1880 or www.bjcc.ca.
Yad B'yad open house, the Family Resource Centre, Promenade Mall suite 313. Sunday, Oct, 24, 1 p.m., for preschool children with special needs and their families.
Department of Jewish Life and Learning offers adult learning, cooking classes and children's cooking classes. Call ext. 390
The Jewish Discovery Museum offers drop-in programs Tuesdays and Thursdays at 11 a.m. Music sing along class begins Monday, Nov. 1. Call ext. 390
"lay of the land" by Steven Cruise at The Koffler Gallery until December 12. Opening reception, Thursday, Oct. 21, 6-8 p.m. Artist talk 6 p.m. Artist-led nature walk in Earl Bales Park, Sunday, Oct. 24, 2-4 p.m.
Fitness and recreation programs offered for children include swimming, house-league basketball, soccer and funball. Adult programs include fitness classes, personal training and recreational sports.
The Koffler School of Music classes including babies and toddlers' music, preschool music, piano, guitar, violin, flute, saxophone, ensembles, Suzuki piano and violin, Nashir Children's choir, opera master classes, opera appreciation and Resa's Pieces Band. Call ext. 228.

MILES S. NADAL JCC

Miles Nadal Jewish Community Centre, 750 Spadina Ave., 416-924-6211 or wwwmilesnadaljcc.ca.
The Downtown Ken, a downtown Jewish Hashomer Hatzair youth group for grades 5 and up, Sunday afternoons 2-4 p.m. 416-736-1339.
Books & Bagels, Sunday, Oct. 17, 11 a.m. with Andrea Most on "Making Americans: Jews and the Broadway Musical." Members $5. Non-members $8. Includes bagels and coffee.
Between Stages Playwright's Reading Series, On Wings of Tongue. Puppetmongers Ann Powell and Suzanne Hersh create a unique adaptation of a short story by Adele Wiseman. Sunday Oct. 24, 2 p.m. $10.
The Image of the Jew in Film and Television. Mondays, beginning Oct. 25 with Shlomo Schwartzberg. The 4-week class will look at the way movies and television have depicted Jewish characters over the years. 7:30-9:30 p.m. Registration required.
Book Launch: Finding Home with Jill Culiner. Wednesday, Oct. 27, 7 p.m.

OBITUARIES
and Related Notices

Steeles Memorial Chapel

Amar, Alice	Sept. 30/04	1 Clark Ave. W
Charendoff, Lilian	Sept. 30/04	21 Southbourne Ave.
Wasserman, Roberta	Sept. 30/04	1201 Steeles Ave. W
Gasko, Isaak	Sept. 30/04	3560 Bathurst St
Sugar, Julia	Oct. 1/04
Jaskuika, Samuel	Oct. 3/04	1121 Steeles Ave. W
Meshullam, Elieser	Oct. 4/04
Stark, Helen	Oct. 4/04
Braoun, Eva	Oct. 4/04
Raiman, Peter	Oct. 4/04
Zuk, Michael	Oct. 6/04	1131 Steeles Ave. W.
Handelman, Morris	Oct. 6/04	237 Brighton Ave.
Mandell, Benjamin	Oct. 7/04	164 Waterloo Ave.
Nezri, Nina	Oct. 7/04
Rodin, Cynthia	Oct. 8/04	7 Townsgate Dr.
Grodzinski, Josef	Oct. 10/04
Singer, Gitel	Oct. 12/04	3560 Bathurst St.

BENJAMIN'S PARK MEMORIAL CHAPEL

Charles Appel	Oct 3/04	131 Torresdale Ave.
Dorothy Volt	Oct 3/04	6250 Bathurst St.
Harry Romberg	Oct 3/04	19 Lower Village Gate.
Mimi Szekely	Oct 4/04	3560 Bathurst St.
Shirley Pascoe	Oct 4/04	240 Heath St. W.
Hilda Bluestein	Oct 4/04	57 Dell Park Ave.
Dorothy Drevnig	Oct 5/04	619 Avenue Rd.
Joseph Tator	Oct 6/04	7460 Bathurst St.
Ruth Goldfarb	Oct 8/04	23 Renshaw St.
Sharon Kurtz	Oct 5/04	17 Loganberry Cres.
Teme Tillie Raymond	Oct 8/04	429 Walmer Rd.
Cecile Sokoloff	Oct 8/04	4 Alameda Circle.
Sydney Dennis	Oct 5/04	7460 Bathurst St.
Beatrice Cronis	Oct 8/04	3560 Baycrest St. (Apotex)
Yetta Freedman	Oct 9/04	55 Ameer Ave.
Lou Enchin	Oct 9/04	66 Collier St.
Elsie Spillman	Oct 9/04	100 Antibes Dr.
Tillie Pearl	Oct 10/04	C/O 14 Ebony Gate.
Harry Rettig	Oct 11/04	39 Hinda Lane.
Stacey Baer	Oct 11/04	103 Dewbourne Ave.
Gertrude Weinberg	Oct 11/04	25 Canyon Ave.

HEBREW BASIC

Harry Tiefenbach	Aug 20/04	18 Lower Village Gate

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late LEON ZELICKI ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 24th, 2:00 p.m.
Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park
Bathurst St., s. of Steeles
Chenstochover Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
JEAN (SHINEZINGER) SINGER ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 24th, 10:30 a.m.
Mount Sinai Memorial Park
986 Wilson Ave.
Sunnyside Lodge Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

SERVING THE JEWISH COMMUNITY FOR OVER THREE GENERATIONS

IZENBERG GOLDBERG
Monuments
3173 BATHURST ST.
416-787-0319

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
ERNE RAKOSI ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 24th, 11:00 a.m.
Bathurst Lawn Memorial Park
Clanton Park Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

"A Gift THAT REMEMBERS"
Cards sent in memory of a dear one.
Na'amat - Caring for Israel's Children
Na'amat Canada-Toronto
272 Codsell Ave., Toronto, ON M3H 3X2
Tel: 416-636-5425 Fax: 416-636-5248
www.naamat.com e-mail: naamatca@aol.com

Coast to Coast

Exhibit pulled from Concordia to protest Barak ban

By JANICE ARNOLD
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL – An exhibit slated to be shown at Concordia University next spring that honours diplomats who saved thousands of Jews and other refugees from the Nazis has become a casualty of the Ehud Barak controversy.

The Montreal premiere of Visas For Life, which has appeared at some 130 venues over the past 10 years, including the European Parliament and the U.S. Senate, was to have been sponsored by the Canadian Friends of Tel Aviv University (CFTAU).

Mark Litvack, the Canadian director of Visas For Life, unilaterally decided to pull the plug on the exhibition to protest the university administration's decision not to allow Barak, the former Israeli prime minister, to speak on campus because of the security risk.

He said CFTAU reached an understanding with the university late last spring to stage Visas For Life in Concordia's library building in March 2005.

"We at Visas for Life cannot abide the thugocracy that exists at your university," Litvack, a Montrealer, wrote to Concordia president Frederick Lowy on Oct. 12. "We cannot accept, nor do we understand, how any institution of higher learning can permit (for the second time in two years) a small minority of hoodlums to hijack a program, and force the withdrawal of an invitation to a former prime minister of a democratic nation.

"Given that the theme of our exhibit is a testimonial to doing what is right rather than what is expedient, and to honouring the values of decency and humanitarianism, it clearly would not be effectively served were it housed in Concordia University."

Visas For Life began as an exhibition on Chiune Sugihara, the Japanese consul general in Lithuania from 1939 to 1940 who issued visas against the orders of his government, which was allied with Germany. It grew into a research project to document the heroism of many other diplomats whom Saul claims rescued some 300,000 Jews in total. Most have received little other recognition.

CFTAU executive director Paula Weitzman said the cancellation was Litvack's decision and that, at the time of speaking, the organization's board had not yet met to discuss the matter, but was scheduled to do so late last week.

"The whole thing is completely regrettable, that the Concordia decision created an environment in which an exhibition honouring those who saved others is not an appropriate setting."

The university's director of public affairs and government relations Evelyne Abitbol, who negotiated with CFTAU on behalf of Concordia, said she is extremely disappointed. "It is wrong to link [the Barak affair] with this and punish the university… It is important that we have these kinds of events at the university." Abitbol said she still hopes the organization will change its mind.

In an Oct. 15 letter to Weitzman, Abitbol noted that, "in an unprecedented move," Concordia offered to show the exhibit for two weeks in the downtown J.W. McConnell library building, "despite our change in policy limiting use of the area to one week per event," and that the university also offered to show it on its Loyola campus for an another two weeks.

Abitbol added that history professor Frank Chalk, co-director of the Montreal Institute for Genocide Studies, was also interested in organizing events in connection with the project, such as bringing high school and possibly elementary school students to see it.

Litvack said he made the decision to pull the exhibit on his own in consultation with Visas For Life creator Eric Saul of San Francisco.

"I'm not doing this to accomplish anything. It's just like in [the 1976 film] Network – I'm mad as hell and can't take it any more," Litvack told The CJN.

A number of the children of the more than 100 diplomats honoured in the exhibit were also expected to come to Concordia for the opening, including Louise von Dardel, niece of Raoul Wallenberg; Agnes Hirschi, daughter of Carl Lutz, who was a Swiss consul to Budapest from 1944 to 1945; and Manil Ho, daughter of Feng Shan Ho, the Chinese consul general in Vienna from 1938 to 1940.

Other events, such as discussions, were to have been organized around the exhibit, which consists of more than 200 photographs, with narratives, of ambassadors and consuls from more than 25 countries who provided visas or other safe passages for Jews fleeing Nazism, putting themselves at risk and, in some cases, in defiance of their government.

Litvack approached CFTAU about mounting Visas For Life in Montreal, and Litvack and Weitzman both said Concordia, with its diverse student body, seemed to be an ideal venue since the exhibit's educational message is one of individuals from different cultures acting altruistically to help Jews.

Litvack is hopeful Visas For Life can still be mounted in Montreal next year, and is looking for a venue that will reach the broad public.

Rabbi Shmuley Boteach
Why North America and Israel are the Most Hated Nations on Earth
Wednesday November 17th
8:00 p.m.
Rabbi Shmuley Boteach has written nine books including Dating Secrets of the Ten Commandments, Kosher Sex, The Private Adam and Becoming a Hero in a Selfish Age. He is a highly respected writer, thinker, lecturer, and activist who has become a phenomenon both in the US and internationally due to his provocative and insightful writings, live debates and extensive media appearances.

"A self-promotional force of nature."
The New York Times
Call (416) 783-6103 to book your ticket
Tickets: $36 includes dessert reception or $15 lecture.
BETH SHOLOM SYNAGOGUE, 1445 Eglinton Ave. West
across from Eglinton West Subway

Coast to Coast

Cdn. UNRWA funding continues after Hamas revelation

Continued from page 1

Sinclair also issued a statement at the donor conference, held Oct 12-14, in which she called on UNRWA to "take into account the requirements of applicable law," and stressed that the onus is on Hansen "to provide UNRWA staff with leadership, direction and support they need to meet highest standards of impartiality, integrity and professionalism expected of international civil servants and UN employees."

Lilkoff said Hansen's Oct. 7 letter to Bell explained that his comments to the CBC referred to "political sympathies, not membership" in Hamas, and that he emphasized UNRWA "is not in the business of employing terrorists."

It's not known whether Sinclair accepted Hansen's explanation, which doesn't quite accord with his original remarks to the CBC, in which he also said that Hamas, "as a political organization, does not mean that every member is a militant, and we do not do political vetting [to] exclude people from one persuasion as against another."

UNRWA staff members, "whatever their political persuasion," are required to "behave in accordance with UN standards and norms for neutrality," Hansen said in the CBC segment.

According to the CBC, Hansen's comments topped Israeli newscasts, and made their way to UN Secretary General Kofi Annan.

The Israeli daily newspaper Ma'ariv reported that Israel accused UNRWA of "openly collaborating with Palestinian terrorists," and demanded Hansen's dismissal.

But at no time did Israel call on Canada or any other donor country to discontinue financial contributions to UNRWA, said Lilkoff.

"Canada has no plans to discontinue its contributions," said to be about $10 million a year.

On Oct. 10, the Canada-Israel Committee said it shared the government's concern, and called on Ottawa to undertake "a complete investigation of UNRWA's activities, including the possible use of UN vehicles to transport terrorists and arms, and the behaviour of Hansen. Pending the result of the investigation, the CIC calls for a temporary suspension of donations to UNRWA – with the clear exception of those funds earmarked for direct humanitarian relief."

B'nai Brith Canada called on Ottawa "to withhold immediately any payments to UNRWA until there can be absolute assurances that contributions from Canadian citizens will never be used to support terrorist operatives."

The UN responded to the controversy by bluntly stating it does not hire terrorists.

"What Mr. Hansen was saying was that Hamas also carries out social and humanitarian work and not every Hamas member is a militant or a terrorist," the CBC quoted Fred Eckhart, spokesperson for Annan, as saying.

"We do not, when we hire people anywhere in the world, ask about political affiliations. But we do require our staff, local and international everywhere in the world, to conduct themselves in accordance with established practices, principles of the United Nations.

"They must not engage in any activity that is incompatible with their status as independent impartial civil servants. So, should we see any indication that a UN staff member is engaged in any illicit activity, or illegal activity, we will respond quickly and strongly."

The dispute began when Israel's ambassador to the United States, Danny Gillerman, demanded an investigation into UNRWA following a video taken by an Israeli reconnaissance drone that purportedly showed a UN vehicle being used to transport what looked like a rocket.

The UN denied the charge, saying the item was a stretcher.

Lilkoff said Israel itself "re-evaluated" its accusation, and has "acknowledged that the nature of the item loaded cannot be determined."

That was confirmed by a spokesperson for Israel's embassy in Ottawa, but with a proviso.

"We don't know whether it was a rocket or missile or not, but it's clear the UN vehicle was in fact involved in terrorist activity," Ofir Gendelman told The CJN.

He said the figures in the video who loaded the item into the vehicle were "people planting a road bomb."

Asked whether Israel has called on Canada to cease or cut funding to UNRWA, Gendelman said, "I can't say more than what I told you."

On its website last week, the U.S. group PeaceWatch claimed that over the past four years, 13 Palestinians employed by UNRWA have been arrested for alleged involvement in terrorist activities.

An Oct. 14 press release from UNRWA quotes Hansen, referring to Israel's accusations, as saying: "The false accusations have to stop. It is in the interests of both the refugees and Israel, for UNRWA and Israeli authorities to have a mutually respectful relationship."

Also at last week's donor conference in Amman, it was revealed that UNRWA is in financial trouble. Donor countries were told the agency faces a deficit of $7.3 million (US) this year, and that its $209.4 million Emergency Appeal for Gaza and the West Bank had so far received pledges of $89.4 million.

Public Lecture at Beth Tzedec with

Rabbi Professor Nicholas de Lange

Monday, October 25, 2004 – 8:00 p.m.

Beth Tzedec Congregation, 1700 Bathurst St., Toronto

"Judaism and Hellenism"

What does the experience of Jews in the classic Greek Civilization say to us today about assimilation, integration and Diaspora living?

Prolific author, professor at Cambridge University

THE SHOSHANA SHIER MEMORIAL LECTURE

בית צדק

Beth Tzedec always welcomes new members

No charge

Toronto Council of Hazzanim & UJA Federation

To Assist the Jewish Hungry & Homeless Present

International Stars of the Cantorate

Ben Zion Miller
New York City, N.Y.

Alberto Mizrachi
Chicago, Ill.

Israel Rand
Ramat Gan, Israel

Benjamin Warschawski
Boca Raton, Fla.

Premier Cantorial Accompanist

Cantor Daniel Gildar, Pianist

Philadelphia, Penn.

and

"Instrumental Trio"

Sunday Evening October 31st, 2004

7:30 p.m. at Adath Israel Synagogue

Main Sanctuary

Concert Co-Chairmen: Alex Eisen and Samuel H. Cohen

TICKETS:

CENTER SECTION - RESERVED # SEATS, RECEPTION & LISTING IN PROGRAM

PATRONS:	$1000.00 & above	- 4 tickets (Full receipt)
BENEFACTORS:	$ 500.00	- 2 tickets (Full receipt)
SPONSORS:	$ 250.00	- 2 tickets ($200.00 receipt)
DONORS:	$ 120.00	- 2 tickets ($ 70.00 receipt)
GENERAL ADMISSION:	$25.00 per ticket	- Side section and balcony

Cheques/Visa Tel: 416.635.5340 fax: 416.635.1629 e-mail: cantor@adathisrael.com

Cheques made payable to TORONTO CANTORIAL TRUST FUND
37 Southbourne Ave., Toronto, Ontario, M3H 1A4

Proceeds: UJA Federation Jewish Poverty Relief Fund to assist the hungry & homeless who are among the 20,000 Jewish Torontonians living below the poverty line. A portion of the proceeds will be allocated for Cantorial Scholarships.

Village Park Retirement Residence

OUR SERVICES INCLUDE

FRIENDSHIP & COMPANIONSHIP

The opportunities for friendship happen every day.

You'll discover a fulfilling lifestyle where you can relax and spend time with old friends, while making new ones. Social outings, special events and favourite pastimes fill your day, and all the work is taken care of by our warm and friendly staff.

Call 416-925-2283

Village Park Retirement Residence
282 St. Clair Avenue West, Toronto, ON

CHARTWELL SENIORS HOUSING REIT

www.chartwellreit.ca

OCCASIONAL TEACHERS WANTED

Private boys' school requires teachers on an occasional basis.

Excellent Salary:
Mondays – Thursdays
1:45 p.m. to 4:45 p.m.
and/or
2:30 p.m. to 5:20 p.m.

EXPERIENCE & REFERENCES REQUIRED

PLEASE E-MAIL RESUME TO:
rweiss@bellnet.ca
OR FAX TO 416-636-9346

Want Your HAIR Done at Home?
Hairdresser/ Colour Technician will give you personal one-on-one service in the comfort of your home: colours, highlighting, cutting, wig styling and wedding parties. Contact: 647-284-7400

STANDARD Property Management Corporation
management & services
call David 416.928.4885

AVODA DOMESTIC & HOUSE CARE SERVICES
Fully Bonded & Insured
We are the solution for all your house-cleaning needs
416-650-1010
AVODA ...
Gift certificates are now available

PROVINCIAL TABLE PADS
Manufacturers of Custom-built Table Pads
•Free in-home service
•Made in Canada
•Choose from 3 qualities
•Best service -price -quality
PTP
LOWEST PRICES GUARANTEED
Toronto..... 416-283-2508
Hamilton..... 905-383-1343
Ottawa..... 613-247-3334
Canada Wide.. 1-800-668-7439
www.ptpads.com

JAGUAR
LAND ROVER
THORNHILL
SALES • LEASING
SERVICE • PARTS
434 STEELES AVE. W.
2 BLOCKS W. OF YONGE
905-889-0080

ST. URBAIN BAGEL

"No-Kvetch Early Bird Specials"

THURS. OCT. 21 ONLY BEFORE NOON
BUY A DOZEN BAGELS
GET YOUR 2ND DOZEN
FOR A TOONIE ($2)

FRI. OCT. 22 ONLY BEFORE NOON
BUY A DOZEN BAGELS
GET 6 FREE

SAT. OCT. 23 ONLY BEFORE NOON
BUY 12 CHEESE BAGELACH for $15.50
GET 12 REGULAR BAGELS FREE

7077 Bathurst
895 Eglinton W.

Offers valid with coupon before noon on the day indicated on that coupon at the above two locations. Limit one coupon per person. Cannot be combined with other offers.

Coast to Coast

Former Toronto rabbi lands at Winnipg shul

By MYRON LOVE
Prairies Correspondent

WINNIPEG — Rabbi Lawrence Pinsker, the former spiritual leader of Toronto's Reconstructionist Congregation Darchei Noam, feels right at home in his new shul.

"I love the strong sense of fellowship here," said the Shaarey Zedek Synagogue's associate rabbi. "People here wear their menschlichkeit in a proud and public way."

Rabbi Pinsker is one of two new staff members hired this fall at Shaarey Zedek, a Conservative synagogue that is Winnipeg's largest congregation, with more than 1,000 member families.

Coincidentally, both he and new programming director Shira Uretsky are from Toronto. They said they are both looking forward to making a difference in the shul and the wider community.

Rabbi Pinsker had been the spiritual leader at Darchei Noam for 12 years, but he and the congregation parted company due to a difference in views. (He was also an associate rabbi for a short period last year at Toronto's Beth David Synagogue.)

Darchei Noam was made up primarily of former Winnipeggers, former Montrealers and former Americans, he said. "We started with 128 families. By the time I left, our membership had grown to 300 families."

Rabbi Pinsker, an ordained Reconstructionist rabbi, was born in Chicago to eastern European immigrants. He was steered toward the rabbinate, he said, by a Presbyterian minister at Antioch College, a liberal arts school in Ohio that Rabbi Pinsker graduated from in 1969.

"My parents wanted me to be an engineer or a chemist," he said. "The university chaplain, the Rev. Alvin Denman, could see that my interests lay elsewhere.

"I found the Reconstructionist movement to be the most intellectually appealing and challenging of the different branches of Judaism. Its roots are in the Conservative movement, but it teaches that all forms of Judaism have their role in shaping the future of Jewish life. It also teaches a strong commitment to Jewish practice, thought and spontaneity."

Rabbi Pinsker assumed his first pulpit in Niagara Falls, N.Y., in 1976, followed by a stint in Chicago. (By then, his parents had moved to Florida.) He also served a congregation in San Antonio, Texas, and helped found a synagogue on Manhattan's Upper West Side. He came to Toronto in 1990.

Gerry Steinberg, a former Winnipegger and a trained Reform rabbi who is a psychotherapist in Toronto, persuaded him to apply for the Shaarey Zedek post.

"Gerry is a well-loved figure in Toronto and has a loyal following," Rabby Pinsker said. "He is also a great salesman."

Rabbi Pinsker's wife Marlee remains in Toronto as a kindergarten teacher at the Toronto Heschel School. His older two daughters – Sarah, a singer-songwriter, and Amira, who is studying Chinese medicine – are in Baltimore, while his youngest, Ellie, is studying medical anthropology at McGill University in Montreal.

He said is looking forward to teaching in Winnipeg and complementing the work of Uretsky and Shaarey Zedek's spiritual leader Rabbi Alan Green.

Uretsky is originally from Toronto but has been living in Edmonton for the past four years. She came to Winnipeg because her husband, Aubrey, is in a medical residency program here.

In Toronto, Uretsky worked for a variety of synagogues and UJA Federation of Greater Toronto as a youth director. She held a similar post with the Edmonton federation. She said she is looking forward to helping develop a range of programs for all ages in conjunction with Rabbi Pinsker and the synagogue's programming committee.

WELCOMING SHABBAT: Students Sigal Posner, left, Ethan Brown and Sydny Shoychet of Leo Baeck Day School's Atkinson campus recite the blessings over the candles, wine and challah prior to their class' weekly Kabalat Shabbat service. [Jan Lapedus photo]

Dershowitz set to headline JNF Negev Dinner

By DIANE KOVEN
Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Ottawa mayor Bob Chiarelli, a former JNF dinner honoree, has accepted the position of honorary chair of this year's event.

At the campaign launch, held recently at City Hall, the mayor spoke warmly of his relationship with both JNF and the city's Jewish community.

"The Jewish community in Ottawa gives to the community [as a whole] but still honours its roots. I was pleased to be honoured by the Negev Dinner and I am more than pleased to be this year's honourary chair."

Guest speaker for the Nov.15 event will be lawyer and author Alan Dershowitz.

Chiarelli said that "Ottawa has more lawyers per square metre [than any other city]. As a lawyer myself, I can say that lawyers like nothing better than to listen to each other. We will have a lot of lawyers at the Negev dinner to listen to Dershowitz."

Dinner chair, lawyer Stephen Victor, said, "This dinner showcases a unique win-win combination: JNF, Israel's oldest and largest NGO fundraising organization, coupled with Alan Dershowitz, one of the foremost and brilliant legal minds of the modern era."

Funds raised by this year's JNF campaign will be used to develop the Ottawa Recreation Centre in the Lahav Forest, ten kilometres north of Be'er Sheva.

The centre will provide the residents of Be'er Sheva and neighbouring towns and villages with "a cool green respite from the unrelenting desert sun and from the horrors of terrorism," Victor said.

"It will be accessible and user friendly for children and adults who are physically challenged. By supporting this project, families with mobility challenged members will be able to enjoy this picturesque outdoor setting without having to struggle with the normal obstacles of forests and park areas."

Israeli Ambassador Alan Baker, newly arrived in the city, shared his enthusiasm for the J NF project.

"I have come here to speak about two very things that I hold close to my heart: one is JNF and the other is Alan Dershowitz.

"Alan Dershowitz and I, only a few months ago, were a sort of travelling circus… regarding the legal aspects of Israel's security fence. We became very close… He is a very special person."

A souvenir book will be produced for the dinner and ads are being solicited to support the project in the desert.

For information about the souvenir book or the dinner, call JNF Ottawa at 613-798-2411.

DISTRESS CENTRES OF TORONTO
Do you want to learn new skills?
Meet new people?
Take on new challenges?
Be a Distress Centre volunteer and give hope to those who are isolated, lonely or distressed. We offer comprehensive training.
Downtown 416-598-0166, North York 416-486-3180 or Scarborough 416-439-0744

SEEING IS BELIEVING - NOW OPEN
The Furniture Dump
New Samples by Famous Designers at Giveaway Prices!
ONLY AT
The Furniture Dump
905-761-6077
7855 Keele St. Unit 1 (at Hwy. #7), Concord, ON L4K 1Y6
Store Hours: Mon.-Wed. 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Thurs. & Fri. 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Sat. 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Sun. 12 noon to 5 p.m.

Special Art Workshops for Women
Create a gorgeous centerpiece plate for CHANUKAH, SHABBAT.
Each plate is unique.
For details contact Batia at 905-764-7643
visit:
www.figuretale.com

Camp Director
Camp Arrowhead is seeking an experienced, dynamic, organized, creative individual with good interpersonal skills to run an 8 week summer day camp with an extensive waterfront program on Southern Lake Simcoe. The successful candidate would be required to work prior to the summer, hiring staff, programming, new family out-reach, and work with the Board of Directors.
E-mail resume to:
heather@camparrowhead.ca

Looking for a social and stimulating daytime program?
Check this out!
Beth Tikvah Synagogue
3080 Bayvew Ave.
is launching
LUNCH and LEARN Tuesdays
October 26 - December 7
Program: 1:00 - 2:15 p.m.
Complimentary lunch before lectures
Lunch 12:30 p.m. (Doors open at noon)

Tuesday, October 26 • An historical review of mandate Palestine using video, lecture and Amos Oz's semi-autobiographical book Panther in the Basement as sources. Presenter - Abe Birenbaum

Tuesday, November 2 & 16 • A study of America's greatest Yiddish playwright, Yaacov Grodin using his great-granddaughter's play and his pre-WWII film 'Mirele Efros' as background material. Presenter - Ralph Weintraub

Tuesday, November 9 • Holocaust Education Week special program 'Jewish Resistance during the Shoah'. Presenter - Gerald Ziedenberg

Tuesday, November 23 • We will explore the fascinating history of the pale of the settlement and Jewish immigration to America in the late 19th century. Video, discussion and Mary Antin's novel The Promised Land will be used as sources. Presenter - Gerald Ziedenberg

November 30 • The life and work of the famous Yiddish writer Isaac Babel. Presenter - Ralph Weintraub

December 7 • Understanding Jewish Poland from 1880-1919. Using videos, discussion and the book The Brother's Ashkenazi by I. J. Singer as sources. Gerry Ziedenberg will lead us through a historical review.

Books are available at the public library or at Batner Books 905-731-4440. While it is not necessary to read the books, doing so will enhance your enjoyment of the lecture.

To reserve: 416-221-3433, Ext. 0
$7 per session. Payment at the door.

Congregation Darchei Noam — A Vibrant, Egalitarian and Inclusive Community

Join Us for These Adult Education Events
At Darchei Noam, we value lifelong Jewish learning and provide a wide diversity of educational programs, open to members and non-members alike.

Our engaging Fall line-up includes the following programs, and many more! Attend any and all, and grow Jewishly with us.

SUNDAY
October 24 & 31
'The Jews of Toronto The Development of a Shtetl'
Sunday Lecture Series with renowned historians Frank Bialystok & Hesh Troper

FRI. & SAT.
October 29 & 30
Scholar in Residence Weekend:
Rabbi Richard Hirsh on 'Reviewing and Renewing the Roots of Reconstructionism'

WEDNESDAY
November 10
'Who, Me? How Israeli Technology Affects Your Everyday Life'
With technology entrepreneur Al Gordon

SUNDAY
November 14 & 21 & 28
'The Jews of Toronto The Development of a Shtetl'
Sunday Lecture Series with renowned historians Frank Bialystok & Hesh Troper

SUNDAY
November 21
'Learn Hebrew Reading in a Day'
($50 registration fee, lunch provided)

TUESDAY
November 30
'Fidelity, Idolatry and Sexuality – How Our Haftarot Speak to Women' with Rabbi Elyse Goldstein

Congregation Darchei Noam
Reconstructionist Synagogue of Toronto
For more information: www.darcheinoam.on.ca or 416.638.4783
Shabbat services: 10:00 a.m. Rabbi Tina Grimberg
15 Hove Street (Bathurst and Sheppard) • Office: 20 Martin Ross Avenue

dominion rug a carpet adventure since 1947

Compliments are nice.
But isn't envy really what it's all about?

VISIT OUR GUILD SHOWROOM FOR EXCLUSIVE BRANDS OF FINE, LUXURY CARPETING.

The International Design Guild™ is the largest alliance of fine, decorative floor covering showrooms in the world. Here, you'll find the world's most extensive selection of luxury carpeting. Including our stunning elanté and Louis Dabbieri signature collections. You'll also find that our customer service is unsurpassed. Stop by today to save 50% off select items.

INTERNATIONAL

3420 Yonge Street (1 mile South of 401) Tel: 416-485-9488

Toronto's Ultimate Source for Carpet, Tile, Stone & Hardwood Flooring.

Toronto's only authorized Stainmaster Flooring Centre

TORONTO LOCATION:
4965 Steeles Avenue West (at Weston Road), North York, ON M9L 1R4
Tel: (416) 745-8518 www.trustflooring.com

NEWMARKET LOCATION:
105 Harry Walker Parkway, Newmarket, ON L3Y 7B3 Tel: (905) 836-8029

Jewish Views on Sexuality

Mondays, Oct. 18, 25, Nov. 1, 8, 22, 29, 2004 – 7:15 p.m.

Beth Tzedec Congregation, 1700 Bathurst St., Toronto

Rav Roy & Loretta Tanenbaum

Texts, studies and discussion on our fundamental views toward human sexuality in all aspects

Register mlaba@beth-tzedec.org,or call Marlene, 416-781-3514, ext. 34

$20 member, $25 non-member

The Itta & Eliezer Zeisler Memorial Lectures

בית צדק

Beth Tzedec always welcomes new members

Coast to Coast

Recital society marks its 25th anniversary

By PETER CAULFIELD
Special to The CJN

VANCOUVER — To mark its 25th anniversary this year, the Vancouver Recital Society's 2004-2005 season will feature such classical music stars as Yo-Yo Ma, Emanuel Ax and Renee Fleming.

The season, which runs Oct. 12 to April 17, will also continue the society's practice of presenting such young, up-and-coming artists as Paul Lewis, Kirill Gerstein and Benjamin Hochman.

Vancouver Recital Society (VRS) founder and artistic director, Leila Getz, says this is a big reason for the society's success. "They have come to expect that a Vancouver Recital Society concert will provide the experience of discovery, of hearing the future of classical music and of uncovering the superstar candidates for the 21st century" she says.

Since it was founded in 1980, the society has brought many artists to Vancouver before they became well-known, including Cecilia Bartoli, Maxim Vengerov, Anne Sofie von Otter, András Schiff, Joshua Bell, Steven Isserlis and Bryn Terfel. The VRS has also championed such Canadian musicians as Angela Cheng, Scott St. John, James Ehnes, Richard Raymond and Jon Kimura Parker.

A native of South Africa, Getz taught music at the South African College School (SACS) in Capetown. In 1966, she and her husband Leon moved to Vancouver. During the time she took off to have two children and "to learn how to be a housewife," Getz daydreamed about becoming active in the Vancouver music scene.

She cites two influences behind her decision to start the VRS. "I was inspired by the example of an aunt who started a successful theatre company in South Africa," Getz says. "She was passionate, charming and obstinate and she was determined to succeed. I thought, 'If she can do it, so can I.'"

A second influence was a job Getz had as a page-turner with a small classical music company when she was in university. "It gave me courage and some knowledge about classical music," she says.

Although audiences and critics have loved the VRS since it began, success has been slow and uncertain.

"This is a very tough business," Getz says. "The highs and lows are extreme, and I've had to learn how to live with constant insecurity. It's like Snakes and Ladders. If I knew then what I know now about the business, I doubt I would have started VRS."

Getz says the society doesn't have a big deficit, but neither does it have any provincial funding and its endowment fund is only $300,000, which is small for an arts organization.

She expects the financial challenges to continue in the future, but "fortunately, I have a great board of directors," she says. "They're totally committed and very savvy."

Getz says the VRS's target market is only about 800 people.

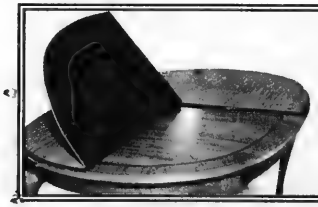
"They're a distinct audience," she says. "They tend to be older people, retired doctors, accountants, university people. They're definitely not high flyers."

The VRS has also been able to attract some young people. she adds, because some of the performers are young and because special ticket prices are offered. "We lose them when they go to university and get them again in their mid-40s," she says.

VRS performances take place at the Playhouse and at the Orpheum Theatre in downtown Vancouver and at the Chan Centre for the Performing Arts at the University of British Columbia.

In addition to the fall-winter recital series, the VRS also presents the annual two-week summer Vancouver Chamber Music Festival. Every summer since 1986, the festival has brought together up to 20 young, established chamber musicians from Canada and abroad.

DENTAL FRATERNITY HONOURS MEMBERS: At the annual Alpha Omega dental fraternity night at Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue last month, the guest of honour was the organization's international president, Dr. Howard Pranikoff, who spoke to the 350 members present about the concerns of dentists in Europe today. Pranikoff and Toronto alumni president, Dr. Michael Goldberg, presented the young achievement award to Dr. Eryn Sone. Dr. George Zarb received an honorary life membership in Alpha Omega International for his outstanding achievements in implant dentistry. Seen at fraternity night are Goldberg, right, and Pranikoff.



FREE Leaf Bag with order

Protect Your Table

Made-To-Measure Table Pads

Prevents scratches, burns & spills

Free in-home service • Factory Direct Pricing

MagnaLoc

DOVER PAD
QUALITY SINCE 1950

Montreal: (514) 420-6030
Canada: (800) 354-4445
www.doverpad.ca

20% Off!
CHANUKAH EXTRAVAGANZA
Sale ends October 29th

481

Food, Scrumptious food

When it comes to soup, experiment – and don't worry

By CAROLYN BLACKMAN
Staff Reporter

If Pam Reiss, author of Soup, a Kosher Collection, had to describe soup in one word, she would say "forgiving."

"A recipe should be a jumping point; if you do not like one ingredient, put in something else," says Reiss, who helps run her family's catering business and delicatessen, Desserts Plus, in Winnipeg's north end.

"I first try soup recipes the way they're written, then I usually change them. Soups can always be made thicker or thinner. People should learn to experiment and not be afraid. Keep throwing things into the pot and see what you come up with.

"A lot of people worry about fresh or dry ingredients, but for instance, they don't always have time to make stock from scratch. There are some great vegetable and chicken bases out there that can add flavour."

Coming from a family of great cooks, she says, she learned early that cooking is not solely a woman's domain. "My dad makes the best chicken soup and garlic brisket, and I also have uncles who cook."

Reiss grew up in her family business, which her mother started as a small catering business about 20 years ago. "I was washing dishes and peeling potatoes in elementary school."

She moved on to helping out at weddings and serving in the family restaurant, and then to testing and trying out new recipes.

"I have a degree in hotel administration, but cooking is in my blood."

She chose soup as the focus of her first book, she says, because it allowed her to be creative. "I wouldn't have room to really delve into soups in a regular cookbook. I plan on a series of kosher cookbooks, right up to desserts."

Her soup recipes are mostly basic, she says. "Out of 140 recipes, I would say that almost 130 are simple. Few take little more skill. For each recipe, I note whether it can be frozen, or if it can be used on Passover."

When we think of Jewish soups, she says, certain ones come to mind such as chicken soup, vegetable soup, and mushroom barley soup. "Those are great, but there are many, many others that will go over beautifully."

She includes in the book such favourites as spinach coconut curry soup, sweet potato chowder and apple and fennel soup. She even adds some fruit and dessert soups such as blueberry soup, melon gazpacho and chocolate soup.

EVERYTHING BUT THE KITCHEN SINK SOUP

1 small yellow onion, peeled and shredded
2 small carrots, peeled and shredded
1 stalk celery, finely chopped
1 medium zucchini, shredded
¼ lb. button mushrooms
1 small red potato, peeled and shredded
1 medium leek, white part, finely sliced
1 medium parsnip, peeled and shredded small piece of butternut squash (¼ lb.)
⅓ cup pearl barley
4-6 cloves garlic (1 tbsp. crushed)
9 cups stock
2½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. black pepper
1 small, red bell pepper, finely diced
⅓ cup white rice
¾ cup frozen corn kernels

Place everything but the red bell pepper, rice and corn into a pot. Cover and bring the mixture to a gentle simmer and cook for half an hour.

Add the pepper, rice and corn and simmer for another 15 minutes, or until the rice is tender. Can be frozen.

BUTTERNUT SQUASH AND GRANNY SMITH APPLE SOUP

1 large yellow onion, peeled and chopped
2 tbsp. olive oil
1 tsp. fresh ginger, grated
¼ tsp. ground cinnamon
1 bay leaf
1 tsp. granulated sugar
2 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. black pepper
1 medium butternut squash, peeled, seeded and cubed
5 cups stock
2-3 medium Granny Smith apples, peeled, cored and cubed heavy or whipping cream (35 per cent) to finish (optional)

Continued on page 42

DON'T MISS THIS POWERFUL TRIBUTE TO ISRAELI CHOREOGRAPHER OHAD NAHARIN
(Artistic Director, Batsheva Dance Company)
"A DANCE OF JOY!"
Times Colonist
"A REAL CELEBRATION... IT LIFTS THE HEART & SPIRIT!"
Le Devoir
"COMPLETELY CAPTIVATING! THE AUDIENCE WILL EXPERIENCE TOTAL HAPPINESS. YOU MUST SEE IT!" Radio-Canada

irreference
Tragedy, irreference, lyricism
MANULIFE FINANCIAL PRESENTS
LES GRANDS BALLETS CANADIENS DE MONTRÉAL
MINUS ONE NOVEMBER 3 & 4, 2004
CHOREOGRAPHED BY: OHAD NAHARIN
Manulife Financial HUMMINGBIRD CENTRE ticketmaster.ca
To reserve your tickets call 416•872•2262

Food, Scrumptious food

'There are many soups that will go over beautifully'

Continued from page 41

Over medium heat, sweat the onion in olive oil for approximately 5 minutes. Add the ginger, cinnamon, bay leaf, granulated sugar, salt and pepper and cook an additional minute, stirring constantly.

Add the squash and stock and bring to a simmer. Add the apples and simmer for approximately 15 minutes.

When the squash is tender, pull out the bay leaf. Purée the soup.

If you like, you can add some cream to smooth the soup out, but I like the sharp tartness of this one without the cream. If you add the cream, use full 35 per cent – lower fat cream will curdle. Can be frozen.

CHOCOLATE SOUP

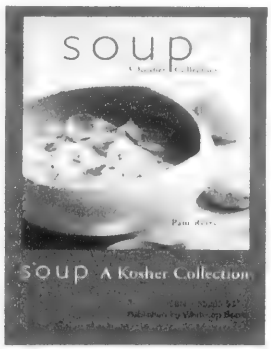
6 tbsp. granulated sugar
3 egg yolks
2 cups half-and-half
2 cups 2 per cent milk
pinch salt
2 cups semi-sweet chocolate chips
3 tbsp. unsweetened cocoa powder

In a mixing bowl, whisk together the granulated sugar and egg yolk until frothy and butter coloured.

Using a double boiler (or place about 2 inches of water in a saucepan, bring to a light simmer and place a metal bowl over it), heat the half-and-half, milk, salt, chocolate and cocoa powder until all of the chocolate is melted and the mixture has warmed through.

Slowly add some of the hot chocolate mixture, about ½ cup, into the egg/granulated sugar mixture, whisking as you pour it, so that the hot liquid is incorporated right away and the eggs don't scramble. Slowly pour this mixture back into the hot chocolate, whisking as you pour. Continue to heat the soup until it has thickened slightly, 3-5 minutes, whisking continually. Dip a wooden spoon into the soup, then drag a fingertip through the coating on the spoon; the line where you've dragged your finger should remain clean.

Transfer the soup to a bowl or container, cover with wax paper and refrigerate at least four hours, or until the soup is completely chilled. Do not freeze.



BEEF AND VEGETABLE STEW SOUP

1 tbsp. all purpose flour
2 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. black pepper
¾ lb. stewing beef, cut in ½ in. chunks
3 tbsp. olive oil
7 cups olive oil
1 can (28 oz.) diced tomatoes
1-2 cloves garlic (1 tsp. crushed)
¼ tsp. dried thyme
1 medium carrot, peeled and cut in ½ in. cubes
1 small yellow onion, peeled and coarsely chopped
1 stalk celery, cut into ½ in. cubes
¼ lb. button mushrooms, sliced ¼ in. thick
1 large red potato, peeled and cut in ½ in. cubes
3 tbsp. all-purpose flour
1 cup cold water

In a bowl, mix the flour, 1 tsp. salt and ½ tsp. black pepper together. Toss the beef in this mixture so that it is all lightly dusted with the flour and spices.

Over medium-high heat, sauté the meat in olive oil until it is lightly browned. Add 7 cups cold water and bring to a boil. Simmer for approximately 10 minutes, skimming off any foam and scum.

Add the canned tomatoes, garlic and thyme. Cover and allow to simmer over medium-low heat for 30 minutes.

Add all the vegetables and the remaining salt and black pepper. Simmer another 40 minutes.

In a separate bowl, whisk together 3 tbsp. of flour and 1 cup of cold water. Whisk this mixture into the soup and allow the soup to simmer and thicken, another 3-5 minutes. Can be frozen.

A PRIVATE CARE HOME & CENTRE OF EXCELLENCE FOR 18 PERSONS

147 ELDER STREET
Managed by: SageCare Inc.

SERVING THE FRAIL ELDERLY & INDIVIDUALS WITH ALZHEIMER'S OR DEMENTIA

OUR FAMILIES WRITE:
- "We got all we hoped for & much more"
- "147 Elder Street is on the cutting edge – this is specialized, personalized care at its finest"
- "147 Elder Street is a home not an institution"
- "Your staff attend to Dad's needs so lovingly, we couldn't have done it better if he had stayed at home"

WE OFFER:
- Innovative, personalized programs
- Jewish content & Kosher meals
- Registered Nurse on site 24/7
- High 1:3 staff to resident ratio
- Multi-disciplinary caregiver team
- Improvements in physical and mental status

Telephone: 416 250-8965;
e-mail: sagecare@on.aibn.com
Website: www.sagecareonline.ca

Roslyn Schultz, MSW; Director;
Diane Dehne RN; Director of Care

The Jewish Studies Program
Faculty of Arts and Science
University of Toronto

THE SHOSHANA SHIER
DISTINGUISHED VISITING PROFESSOR

Nicholas de Lange

Professor of Hebrew and Jewish Studies, University of Cambridge will deliver a series of three public lectures on

Found in Translation: Jewish Themes in Israeli Literature

November 1, 8 and 15, 2004

Nov. 1: Finding My Way: A Personal Encounter with Contemporary Hebrew Writers
Nov. 8: "The Most Religious Of Agnostics": Amos Oz
Nov. 15: The "Jewish Question" in Israel Today

All lectures are held at:

8:00 p.m.
Room 179, University College,
15 Kings' College Circle

Professor Nicholas de Lange is a distinguished scholar of Judaism and Jewish Literature who has published on topics ranging from Hellenistic Judaism to modern Hebrew literature. He is the author or editor of many popular works, including An Introduction to Judaism, The Atlas of the Jewish World and The Illustrated History of the Jewish People. De Lange is also a prolific translator of Hebrew fiction, particularly the novels of Amos Oz.

ARTS & SCIENCE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Free and open to the public. No tickets required.
For more information, visit www.utoronto.ca/jewish or call 416-978-8118

UJA Federation 24th Annual Holocaust Education Week
and
The Koffler School of Music

United Way of Greater Toronto

CHILDREN OF A VANISHED WORLD

Music arrangement and direction by SABATINO VACCA
Produced and directed by JUDY KOPELOW
In collaboration with MARA VISHNIAC KOHN

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 24, 2004 at 8PM
Leah Posluns Theatre at the Bathurst Jewish Community Centre

TICKETS:
(416) 636-1880 x228
General Admission $25.00
Students and Seniors $18.00

INFORMATION:
416-787-1060
j.kopelow@sympatico.ca

From 1935-1938, ROMAN VISHNIAC photographed the shtetlekh of Poland, Romania, Hungary and Russia. With his daughter Mara Vishniac Kohn, director JUDY KOPELOW uses his photographs for a special remembrance of the lives of children who vanished in the Holocaust. Yiddish folk songs accompanied by guitar, cello, violin, clarinet and piano and dramatic narration will be performed.

– With special permission from the International Center of Photography –

www.dcitelecom.com
(416) 626-7557
no activation fee — no monthly fee
Israel, U.K. 5.5¢ — Morocco 35.1¢
no maintenance fee — 15,000+ customers
France, Chile 5.5¢ — USA / CAN 4.9¢

International

Israel & the Jewish World

Ve'ahavta
"Not to assist Sudan... would...be unworthy of what I have learned from my teachers...that G-d alone is alone: His creatures must not be." – Elie Wiesel
Please–do not forsake the people of Sudan.
Visit...
www.veahavta.org

Sharon rules out referendum on Gaza plan

By NADAV SHRAGAI and ALUF BENN
Ha'artetz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

JERUSALEM — Facing calls for a nationwide referendum over his disengagement plan, Prime Minister Ariel Sharon said Monday he would go to elections if there were "no way out," but said that he did not believe it would be a constructive measure.

Sharon had said Sunday that he would not be willing to hold a referendum on the plan. But settlers said they wanted either a referendum or elections to decide the issue.

"I don't think it's a good thing to hold elections now. I'm not scared of elections, and if there is no way out, there will be elections," Sharon told reporters Monday ahead of talks on the disengagement with President Moshe Katsav in Jerusalem.

"But to take the nation now, which is currently engaged in a diplomatic plan, in a very fierce struggle against terror, that has in front [of it] a complex and difficult economic plan. I think we have to make every effort to prevent elections," he concluded.

Sharon also rejected a fresh call by Finance Minister Benjamin Netanyahu to hold a referendum, Israel Radio reported Monday.

The Likud faction will convene Monday afternoon to discuss a possible referendum in a meeting expected to be fraught with tension. Sharon has said a referendum could undermine and delay his planned pullout from Gaza, but a majority of Likud Knesset members (25 out of the 40 asked), including seven members of Sharon's coalition, are expected to back the referendum.

Ten Likud MKs have signed a letter supporting the referendum, including Uzi Landau, Yuval Steinitz, Naomi Blumenthal, Gilad Erdan and Gila Gamliel.

Education Minister Limor Livnat, who supports a referendum, has called for a Knesset vote next week, which would approve the disengagement plan on the condition a referendum is called. She was expected to move for a vote approving or rejecting the referendum during Monday's Likud faction meeting.

The head of the party's faction, MK Gideon Sa'ar, who also supports the referendum, was to decide during the meeting whether to vote on it Monday. Sa'ar said the meeting would last some three hours.

The faction votes have no legal ramifications, but are aimed at putting pressure on Sharon.

Sa'ar will also ask members of the National Religious Party whether they would stay in the coalition even if the referendum results in an approval of the disengagement plan.

Meeting Sunday with leaders of the Yesha Council of Settlements for the first time since announcing his pullout plan, Sharon stressed that Israel was under intense international pressure and had to implement the disengagement plan and evacuate the illegal outposts.

"I am making an effort to save as much as possible," the prime minister said at the start of the meeting, pointing out the U.S. position, as well as that of the rest of the world and the political parties in Israel.

"Don't profess to represent the nation more than I do," Sharon said to the settler leaders, adding: "I have no intention of capitulating to the threats of the rabbis."

Sharon explained his objection to a referendum by saying that it would lead to demands for more referendums on a variety of issues such as the status of Jerusalem, the Golan Heights, matters of kashrut, Shabbat, marriage laws and more.

The Yesha Council leaders called the meeting "charged and difficult," noting they were up against "a solid wall and a prime minister who could drag the nation into an internal war, a civil war." It was "a dialogue of the deaf," said settler leader Pinhas Wallerstein.

Eran Sternberg, a spokesperson for the Gush Katif Regional Council, said Sunday night that "in light of Sharon's imperviousness," it was doubtful that representatives of the Gaza settlements would attend a meeting planned with him for Tuesday, noting that a final decision on the matter would be taken Monday evening.

The settler leaders said the prime minister was continuing to behave like "a destructive dictator."

Yehoshua Mor Yosef, a spokesperson for the Yesha Council, said the movement would continue to apply pressure on politicians to bring the disengagement plan to the public, adding that "Sharon is disengaging from the nation."

Last week, Rabbi Avraham Shapira, a leading religious Zionist rabbi, urged soldiers to refuse to evacuate settlements, and last Friday, 60 other prominent religious Zionist rabbis joined his call.

Iran rejects deal to end uranium enrichment

CJN News Agencies

Iran said Saturday that it would reject any proposal to drop uranium enrichment, a step European Union (EU)diplomats are proposing to end arguments over whether Iran is seeking to develop atomic weapons.

EU diplomats have said they are seeking U.S. and Russian support for a deal that would ask Iran to give up uranium enrichment in return for technical and economic assistance.

"Any proposal which deprives Iran of its legitimate right to a fuel cycle is not acceptable," Hossein Mousavian, Iran's head of foreign policy on the Supreme National Security Council, told state television.

However, he said he was not responding to a specific offer. "We have not yet received the text of the proposal and have to see what it contains to assess it," he said.

Uranium, if enriched to a low level, can be used to fuel nuclear power stations such as the one Iran is building at the southern port of Bushehr.

If enriched further, it can be used in nuclear warheads, but Iran denies accusations by Washington that it has military nuclear ambitions and argues its atomic program is solely dedicated to meeting booming demand for electricity.

Three European allies notified the United States on Friday they intend to offer Iran a package of inducements next week in hope of persuading Iran to halt nuclear weapons development, but the U.S. administration withheld its approval of the overture.

The allies, Britain, France and Germany, agreed with the administration at a three-hour State Department meeting that this would be Iran's final chance to avert the threat of UN economic sanctions, a U.S. official said.

Continued on page 47

"Ashdod Spared Mega-Terror Attack" "Who's next after Madrid?"
DEBKA-Net Weekly
Intelligence – Terror – Mid East – Islam
International Conflicts – Security – Political Analysis
We Start Where The Media Stop
Subscribe Today at www.Debka.com

Agudath Israel presents a
CANTORIAL HANUKKAH CONCERT

SUNDAY NOVEMBER 7TH, 2004
7:00 PM
Guest Star M.C Marvin Rosenshein
Agudath Israel Congregation
1400 Coldrey Avenue
Ottawa
613-728-3501
Tickets $ 20.00
Reception with light refreshments following the concert
Tickets are available at the Synagogue office and at the Jewish Community Centre

Become part of the solution.

Either you're part of the problem or part of the solution, goes the saying. At Boston University, we've been educating social work practitioners to be part of the solution for more than 85 years. We prepare advanced practitioners for a diverse, multicultural urban environment.

Students at the Boston University School of Social Work receive some of the best training in the world. Our faculty's number-one mission is teaching, and they'll go out of their way to make themselves available.

Students receive plenty of individual attention both inside and outside of the classroom. Field internships are chosen from the largest number of participating agencies in New England and include opportunities in all facets of social work practice.

Students are able to concentrate in either Clinical Social Work Practice (with individuals, families, and groups) or Macro Social Work Practice (community organization, human services management, and social planning). And, there are a variety of programs to choose from: full-time and part-time in Boston; part-time, weekend in Southeastern Massachusetts (Fall River and Cape Cod) and Northeastern Massachusetts (Tyngsboro); advanced standing; dual degrees (public health, education, theology, and law); and certificate programs in clinical social work and behavioral medicine; human services management; gerontology; and family therapy.

If you want to make a difference in people's lives—if you want to be part of the solution, please contact us about our Master's Program in Social Work today.

School of Social Work
Boston University
264 Bay State Road
Boston, MA 02215
617-353-3765
(voice/TTY)
busswad@bu.edu
www.bu.edu/ssw

BOSTON UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF Social Work

Educating for Change

An equal opportunity, affirmative action institution

CJN 10/04

I decided to join JDate to get my mom off my case...I had nothing to lose but, little did I know, everything to gain...

Lisa & Scott, JDate members

JDate®.com

Helping Jewish Singles Click

Israel & the Jewish World

Boston day schools get record $45-million gift

By URIEL HEILMAN
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK — American Jewish educators hope that one of the largest gifts ever for Jewish education in the United States will prompt other philanthropists to follow suit.

The $45-million (US) donation from a group of anonymous families is intended to improve Jewish day school education in Boston, home to some 235,000 Jews. The money will be spent over five years, with $30 million divided equally among three schools and the remaining $15 million designated for a tuition scholarship fund and grants for innovative educational projects.

Jewish community professionals hailed the move, announced last week, as a historic investment. Jewish educators say they hope other philanthropists will now step up to transform day school education across the country.

"We've been dreaming about days like this," Barry Shrage, president of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies, Boston's Jewish federation, said at a news conference last Monday in Boston. "The grant truly represents a change in the way the American Jewish community understands education."

The pledge, called CJP's Peerless Excellence Project, was announced at the annual conference of the Partnership for Excellence in Jewish Education, held in Boston from Oct 10 to 12.

The gift's primary beneficiaries will be the Solomon Schechter Day School of Greater Boston, the Rashi School and Maimonides School. They are the Boston area's three largest Jewish day schools, representing the Conservative, Reform and Orthodox movements, respectively. There are 14 Jewish day schools in the Boston area with a total of 2,600 students, 1,400 of them at the three schools receiving the gifts. Day school enrolment in Boston has risen significantly in recent years, along with the opening of several new schools. The area's schools now have excess capacity.

Maimonides, the oldest and largest, with approximately 625 students, is in the process of coming up with a plan to spend its $10 million — an amount equal to the school's annual budget.

The executive director of the Partnership for Excellence in Jewish Education, Rabbi Joshua Elkin, said the $10 million grants constituted the largest-ever U.S. gifts for operational use in day-school education. The $45-million total dwarfed even capital gifts and day school endowments, he said.

The money comes with some strings attached: funds are not to be spent on capital improvements, and the goal is to use the money to institute permanent improvements at the schools, not merely give them a five-year boost, according to Gil Preuss, director of the Peerless Excellence Project.

"We've challenged the schools to think carefully about their vision and come up with a plan for implementing it," Preuss said.

"The idea is not just to have excellent schools for five years, but to shift the line" and improve the schools permanently, he said.

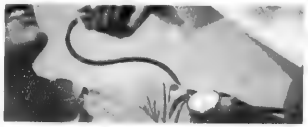
Yossi Prager, North American executive director of Avi Chai, one of the Jewish foundation world's biggest charities, said the schools' challenge will be to build a system that will use the money effectively, but that also can survive once the funding period is over.

Avi Chai has spent tens of millions of dollars on grants to Jewish day schools. It also operates an interest-free loan program for capital improvements at day schools that has doled out approximately $56 million over the past five years.

Prager said the $45-million gift should serve as a model not only for investment in day school operations but because of the role CJP played in brokering the deal.

One of the areas not addressed by the $45 million gift is teachers' salaries, which educators say still fall short of the level needed to recruit and retain good teachers. None of the $15 million portion of the gift will go toward teachers' salaries, though Peerless Excellence officials did not say whether or not the three primary beneficiaries would be able to include requests for salary raises in their $10 million spending plans.

About 91 per cent of Orthodox children in the United States go to day schools or yeshivas, but less than 20 per cent of Conservative children and 4 per cent of Reform children go to day schools, according to the National Jewish Population Survey 2000-01.



Better Health Care for Canadians: A 10-year plan
De meilleurs soins de santé pour les Canadiens : plan d'action sur 10 ans

Working together, the Prime Minister, Premiers and Territorial leaders have signed a 10-year plan, supported by $41 billion in new federal funding, that will lead to better health care for Canadians.

Better Health Care

☑ Reduce waiting times
- Improve access so that Canadians don't wait as long for key tests, treatments and surgeries

☑ More Doctors, Nurses and other Health Professionals
- Plans to train and hire more health professionals while also developing faster accreditation for foreign-trained health professionals

☑ Expand home care
- Provide better support for people being cared for or recovering at home

☑ Improve access to family and community care
- Increase 24/7 access to doctors, nurses and other health professionals

☑ Better Access to Needed Medicines
- A commitment to manage drug costs and ensure that no family is forced to choose between needed medicines and financial ruin

☑ Improved Aboriginal Health
- New investments and better planning to close the gap between Aboriginals and other Canadians in terms of health

Shorter Waiting Times

The federal, provincial and territorial governments have committed to report clearly on the progress we are making in health care and, for the first time will report on progress in reducing waiting times.

☑ Comparable indicators ... so we can measure
- Federal, provincial and territorial governments will use comparable information to report their progress in improving access to doctors, and to diagnostic and treatment procedures

☑ Benchmarks ... so we know what we are striving for
- Federal, provincial and territorial governments will set medically acceptable waiting times – based on advice from medical experts – starting with cancer, heart disease, diagnostic imaging, joint replacement, and sight restoration

☑ Targets ... to drive change
- Provincial and territorial governments will set their own targets and report annually to citizens on progress in reducing waiting times

Canadians will see for themselves where their health care money is going and how it is making a difference.

Le premier ministre du Canada et les premiers ministres provinciaux et territoriaux ont de concert adopté un plan d'action décennal qui, grâce notamment à un nouvel investissement fédéral de 41 millards de dollars, consolidera les soins de santé pour tous les Canadiens.

De meilleurs soins de santé :

☑ réduction des temps d'attente
- améliorer l'accès pour que les Canadiens obtiennent plus vite les tests cruciaux, les traitements et les chirurgies essentiels

☑ davantage de médecins, d'infirmières et d'autres professionnels de la santé
- élaborer des plans plus former et recruter davantage de professionnels de la santé, et accréditer plus rapidement ceux formés à l'étranger

☑ élargissement des soins à domicile
- améliorer le soutien aux personnes soignées ou en convalescence à domicile

☑ meilleur accès aux services de santé à la famille et communautaires
- augmenter l'accès en tout temps à des médecins, infirmières et autres professionnels de la santé

☑ meilleur accès aux médicaments essentiels
- gérer les coûts des médicaments afin qu'aucune famille n'ait à choisir entre les médicaments et la déchéance financière

☑ amélioration de la santé des Autochtones
- investir de nouveaux fonds et mieux planifier pour combler l'écart entre les soins de santé offerts aux Autochtones et aux autres Canadiens

Réduction des temps d'attente :

Les gouvernements fédéral, provinciaux et territoriaux ont convenu de rendre compte des progrès accomplis dans le domaine de la santé et, pour la première fois, dans la réduction des temps d'attente.

☑ des indicateurs comparables... pour mesurer les progrès
- les gouvernements fédéral, provinciaux et territoriaux utiliseront des indicateurs comparables pour rendre compte de l'amélioration de l'accès aux médecins, aux services de diagnostic et aux traitements

☑ des jalons... pour préciser le but visé
- les gouvernements fédéral, provinciaux et territoriaux établiront des temps d'attente médicalement acceptables – fondés sur l'avis d'experts – d'abord dans les domaines du cancer, des maladies du cœur, de l'imagerie diagnostique, des remplacements articulaires et de la restauration de la vue

☑ des objectifs... pour susciter le changement
- chaque gouvernement provincial et territorial établira ses propres objectifs pour les temps d'attente et rendra compte annuellement aux citoyens des progrès réalisés

Les Canadiens pourront constater à quoi sert leur argent affecté aux soins de santé et les résultats déterminants qu'il produit.

To obtain a copy of "The 2004 Health Care 10-Year Action Plan at a Glance", call 1 800 O-Canada (1 800 622-6232) or, to see it on the web, click www.canada.gc.ca/healthplan.

Pour obtenir un exemplaire du document « Aperçu du plan d'action décennal sur les soins de santé 2004 », composez le 1 800 O-Canada (1 800 622-6232). Vous pouvez aussi le consulter sur Internet à www.canada.gc.ca/plansante.

Government of Canada / Gouvernement du Canada

Canada

Inquiry into girl's death

An Israel Defence Forces company commander from the Givati Brigade was suspended pending an inquiry into his role in the recent death of 13-year old Palestinian schoolgirl Ayman al Mahmas. She was shot when she strayed into the Rafah military zone.

Ex-chief rabbi urges resistance

Former Israeli chief rabbi Avraham Shapira called on religious soldiers not to evacuate settlers. "It is a transgression; it is forbidden, and they must tell their commanders so," Rabbi Shapira said last week. Military officials did not immediately comment on Shapira's call, which stoked fears that implementation of Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's plan to withdraw from Gaza and parts of the West Bank next year could meet with rebellion within army ranks. But other rabbis have disagreed with Shapira, saying that preventing a civil war supersedes religious law and, therefore, soldiers should obey evacuation orders.

Gaza incursion winding down

Israeli troops began their withdrawal from the outskirts of Jabalya, Beit Lahiya and Beit Hanun in northern Gaza. The withdrawal suggested the winding down of Operation Days of Penitence, which over 17 days claimed the lives of 129 Palestinians, 42 of them civilians. But mere hours after Prime Minister Ariel Sharon announced the pullback, the army prevented a Qassam rocket attack. Soldiers fired on a group of Palestinians carrying the rockets who were accompanied by children. The children's presence prevented the army from using helicopters in the effort.

Congratulations to Howard

Prime Minister Ariel Sharon spoke with Australian Prime Minister John Howard last week to congratulate him on his recent election victory. Sharon thanked Howard for Australia's support for Israel and the understanding it has shown for Israel's need to fight terrorism. The two men also discussed the need to unify forces in the global war against terror. Howard expressed solidarity with the difficulties and threats facing Israel and said Israel must take steps to defend itself.

Queria condemns chaos

Palestinian Authority Prime Minister Ahmed Qureia says Palestinian security forces are unable to curb spreading anarchy in the PA. "The security services cannot stop the chaos," Queria was quoted as telling the daily Al-Ayyam. "There are internal problems and murders and assassination attempts and, unfortunately, until now we have not been able to control this situation and that places a very heavy responsibility on us. The situation requires unifying all security forces through a clear and determined decision and issuing specific and clear orders."

Files from JTA and Ha'aretz

Defence expert: Iran to launch first satellite in spring

By AMNON BARZILAI
Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

JERUSALEM — Iran will launch its first spy satellite in March or April 2005, Uzi Rubin, head of the Defence Ministry department responsible for ballistic missile defence, predicted last weekend.

The launcher it uses will be based on Russian ballistic missiles adapted by expatriate Russian experts, Rubin said.

These experts have significantly advanced Iran's ballistic capabilities, he said, by, among other things, significantly improving the accuracy of its Shihab-3 missile.

Iran is currently developing three satellites. Two are small, weighing 20 to 60 kilograms, and are expected to be launched mainly as a test. The third weighs 170 kilograms and will carry a telescopic camera for espionage purposes. That is the one Rubin expects will be launched next spring.

Unlike its nuclear program, which is shrouded in secrecy, Iran has been very open about its missile and satellite programs, and Rubin said Tehran views the satellite launch as a global show of strength. That, he added, ought to worry the West, and especially the United States.

Rubin, who has won two national security prizes for his role in developing the Ofek spy satellite and the Arrow anti-missile missile, bases his belief that Iran is being aided by expatriate Russian experts on photographs that Tehran disseminated of improvements in the Shihab-3. He said the new shape of the missile's cone, the part containing the warheads, is similar to that found in old Soviet missiles, but different from that of the missiles Russia has produced since the Soviet Union collapsed in 1990.

"That is why I feel that retired Russian scientists, whose pensions were insufficient, did the work," he said. "It also doesn't seem reasonable to me that Russia would help Iran build missiles that could reach Russia. That seems crazy."

Many Israeli experts believe that the Shihab's new shape is meant to foil the Arrow system.

"We go crazy about Iranian progress in the nuclear field, and forget that the missiles Iran is developing can do us great damage even with conventional capabilities," Rubin said.

Meet your match!

Visit www.cjndating.com today - the best choice for Canadian Jewish singles!

New: CHAT!
Participate in live one-on-one chat sessions, in real-time... See who is online right now, and chat away!

Visit CJNDating to:
Join Free!
Reply to messages Free!
Participate in Chat for Free!
And much more....

CJNDating helping the community:
Jewish Singles With Special Needs: JSWSN.org is a FREE service helping anyone with a disability find love & companionship! For more Info call: 514-487-2461.

Powered by JMATCH
JEWISH INTERACTIVE DATING

Canadian Jewish News Dating. Well read. Well Matched!

Israel captures its first Nobel prize in science

By RACHEL POMERANCE
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK — As Israel captured its first Nobel prize in science this week, Jews worldwide kvelled over the recognition of excellence in a discipline that has long been a hallmark of the Jewish state.

The Nobel prize in chemistry was awarded to two Israelis, Avram Hershko and Aaron Ciechanover of the Technion in Haifa, and an American, Irwin Rose of the University of California at Irvine, for a discovery that advances the fight against cancer.

At a recent news conference in Israel, Ciechanover, 57, accepted the prize in a uniquely Israeli tone: "The human brain is the only natural resource that Israel possesses," he said. "This is proof of the kinds of things Israeli scientists can achieve."

His mentor, Hungarian-born Hershko, 67, also framed the win as a national triumph: "We're very excited, and very happy to bring good news to the people of Israel."

In the late 1970s and early '80s, the scientists found and named the protein ubiquitin, which marks other proteins for destruction once they have carried out their task, a process that regulates the body. Unwanted proteins that linger in the body can cause disease such as cancer.

The trio's discovery led to the creation of the cancer drug Velcade, approved last year in the United States, that targets sick cells. Previously, cancer treatments had a tendency to kill cells indiscriminately, a debilitating and potentially lethal complication for the patient.

In a telephone interview, Rose, 78, said he never thought he would win the Nobel, but "was confident" that Hershko would.

"There's no question about it that he did the major work in this field. I was a contributor and I never felt that I was really the key person."

Several Jews were among the Nobel laureates announced this week, but there was special pride in the accomplishment of the Israelis.

On hearing the news, Melvyn Bloom, executive vice president of the American Technion Society, instantly recalled the image of Gal Fridman – the windsurfer who won Israel's first Olympic gold medal in Athens two months ago – "wrapping himself in the Israeli flag, and they were playing Hatikvah."

"This one I feel the same way about in a larger sense," said Bloom, whose society raises funds for the Technion.

Jewish institutions touched by the scientists felt a special glory.

"This is a mark of distinction for Israeli science in general and for the Technion in particular," said Yitzhak Apeloig, president of what is known officially as the Technion Israel Institute for Technology.

The Israel Cancer Research Fund, an American group that funds cancer research in Israel, stated its pride in a news release. "We invested in this research early" and "are now reaping the rewards of that investment," said its president, Yashar Hirshaut, a medical oncologist and associate professor at Weill-Cornell Medical College-New York Hospital. The group has funded Ciechanover for 22 years.

The award could be a boon to those fighting boycotts in academia against Israeli scholars – a phenomenon that has risen since the intifadah.

"It certainly should help convince people in the world who might not be paying attention that there's a lot of great research going on in Israel, but people who are intending to be biased, if you will, may not be convinced by anything," said Andrew Marks, founder and president of the International Academic Friends of Israel and chairman of the physiology department at Columbia University.

In 2000, Hershko and Ciechanover received the Albert and Mary Lasker Award for Basic Medical Research, which is considered a precursor to the Nobel Prize. They are also both past recipients of the Israel Prize, Israel's highest civilian honor.

Ciechanover, Hershko and Rose receive their Nobel in Stockholm in December.

JTA correspondent Dan Baron in Jerusalem contributed to this report.

Iran rejects any deal to end uranium enrichment

Continued from page 43

Despite the administration's tepid response, it did not try to stop the Europeans from going ahead, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

A European diplomat who attended the meeting said it was inconclusive, and no follow-up meeting was scheduled before the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), the nuclear watchdog of the United Nations, reviews Iran's program next month.

Tom Casey, a State Department spokesperson, said all eight nations that attended the meeting – the United States, Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Canada, Japan and Russia, meeting as the Group of Eight – agreed that Iran "should not be allowed to defy any longer" its obligations to the IAEA.

Casey also reiterated the administration's longtime position that Iran's lack of compliance must be reported to the UN Security Council.

The U.S. hopes to exact economic penalties that would squeeze Iran into abandoning any aspirations to become a nuclear power. The administration has lacked the necessary votes while Britain, France and Germany negotiated with Tehran in search of a compromise.

In the meantime, Russian officials said in Moscow that construction had been completed at the Bushehr nuclear reactor in Iran, and it hoped to sign agreements next month on shipping nuclear fuel to Tehran.

The Staff of
The Canadian Jewish News
extends heartfelt condolences to our colleague and friend
Anna Morgan and her family on the loss of their beloved father, father-in-law, grandfather and brother
Milton Turkienicz ז"ל

The Best Prices at Hotels in Israel!
Friendly, Professional Service
Deal direct with a wholesaler in Tel Aviv
Over 100 hotels currently on special offer
www.regent.co.il
REGENT TOURS
Call us in Tel Aviv toll free 1 866 886 0967

JIAS CANADA
JEWISH IMMIGRANT AID SERVICES OF CANADA
Annual Membership Meeting will be held in Montreal, Quebec,
Sinai Room
YM-YWHA, 2nd Floor
5400 Westbury, Montreal
On Sunday, December 5th, 2004
at 9:00 a.m.
For further information or membership details, please contact 416-630-9051, Ext. 33

THE KASHRUTH COUNCIL OF CANADA
COR
wishes to advise that GREAT VALUE
Cheezerrific Spread
wih Cheese - Light
made for Wal-Mart Canada
bears an unauthorized COR.
THIS PRODUCT IS NOT KOSHER

JDC JEWISH SERVICE CORPS
Serve
A YEAR IN AN OVERSEAS JEWISH COMMUNITY

what we do
- Engage local communities in revitalizing Jewish life through educational, cultural, social and religious programs.
- Enhance social welfare services, (e.g., a feeding and health education program in Ethiopia).

what is required
- A college degree, strong Jewish background, formal/informal teaching or social welfare experience.
- Enthusiasm, creativity and self-starting nature ready for the challenge of living and working in a foreign country.

what is available
- An immediate (Fall of 2004) opening in Bucharest, Romania, to develop and run formal and informal Jewish education programs.
- Positions for 2005–2006 are available in Romania, Turkey, India, Poland, Vienna, Ethiopia and the former Soviet Union.

interested?
email: volunteer@jdc.org
Application materials are available at http://www.jdc.org/how_volunteer.html

Pasta Scaramouche Bar & Grill

Toronto's top dining experience for over a decade. Simply superb food. An award winning wine cellar.

Reservations: (416) 961-8011
Complimentary Valet parking.
1 Benvenuto Place, Toronto, Ontario

Dining Pleasures

ST. LOUIS
"NEW" BBQ Baby Beef Ribs.
Bar & Grill

FAMOUS FOR
HOT WINGS & RIBS
DRIVE THRU FOR FAST TAKE OUT.

Book Your Holiday Party!
Catering Events, Parties, Bar Mitzvahs, etc.

4548A Dufferin St. (South of Finch)
Your Host, Cindy Stern • 416-663-2000

OMNI² OmniPotents

Dear Omni:
A medical condition restricts my physical movements and small pleasures such as dining out, are impossible for me; every kosher restaurant in Toronto has its washroom facilities in their basement. Is your location in my former TD bank any different? Alan W.

Dear Alan W.:
We have convenient, clean and bright main floor facilities for men and women, with easy wheelchair accessibility. As an incentive for you to visit us ...

Enjoy a 20% dinner discount for your entire party

Only at OMNI²
2793 Bathurst @ Glencairn CHOLOV YISRAEL
Reservations 416-783-2091
Kosher fine dining ... at its finest!

Anthony's Grill
formerly Anthony's on Wynford Drive is NOW OPEN at
1090 Don Mills Rd. (at Lawrence)
Don Mills Centre - main flr. Royal Bank building
416-441-0195

FABULOUS SPECIALS

DINNER SPECIALS
Fillet of Salmon, Chicken Asiago, Lamb Shanks, Seafood Linguine, Black Angus Prime Rib (includes Soup, Salad Bar & Dessert) . . . . . from $12.95
Sunday Brunch $11.50
Lunch Buffet $8.50
Lunch Menu also available
Breakfast Special $4.50
Open daily at 8:00 a.m.

$2.00 OFF BREAKFAST OR LUNCH
$3.00 OFF DINNER OR BRUNCH
$4.00 OFF DINNER Mon.-Thurs. only.
One coupon per table. Minimum 2 persons per table. Expires November 16, 2004 Cannot be used in conjunction with any other offer

Pâtisserie La Cigogne

FINE FRENCH PASTRIES
WEDDING CAKES
DESSERTS FOR ALL
YOUR SPECIAL OCCASIONS

European Culinary Salon
Gold Medal Winner

20% OFF
WHEN YOU PRESENT THIS AD
VALID UNTIL DECEMBER 31st, 2004

1626 Bayview Avenue
(just south of Eglinton)
416-487-1234

Mon.-Fri. 7:30am-7:00pm, Sat. 8:00am-7:00pm, Sun. 8:00am-5:30pm

Israel as low as 5¢ per minute*
Dial 10-10-620 And Save On Long Distance
*Based on first 20 minutes for $1, each additional minute 5¢
TALK MORE PAY LESS
10-10-620
Call the WORLD for $1
Visit www.1010620.com for more rates

Health & Lifestyles

GRAND OPENING
NUJI salonspa
521 Eglinton Avenue West
Tel 416. 488 7630

Cancer survivor helps raise funds to fight disease

By LEILA SPEISMAN
Staff Reporter

Cancer is not necessarily a death sentence, says 32 year old archivist Lisa Singer. She should know.

Just before the birth of her second child, a year ago, she discovered she had throat cancer.

So pleased and grateful is Singer for the care she received from the doctors, nurses and services of Princess Margaret Hospital, that she was the volunteer chairperson for the Walking Neck and Neck Team in the Oct. 17 Toronto Marathon.

Her goal was to raise funds for the Wharton Head and Neck Centre at Princess Margaret Hospital, which provides diagnosis, treatment and care to patients suffering from rare forms of head and neck cancer.

Her experience started with a sore throat, she said. She shone a flashlight into her throat to see if it was red. Instead, she found a mass. (The sore throat was part of a cold, and had no relation to the cancer.)

She was in her eighth month of pregnancy, and nothing could be done until the baby was born. Labour was induced, and she had a healthy baby boy, Theodore. (She and her husband Mark also have an older son, Ethan, now 3½.)

A biopsy was performed, and the mass was found to be mucoepidermoid carcinoma, a malignant cancer of the salivary glands. It was removed surgically, and Singer said that there is only a 10 per cent chance of it recurring.

"I am keeping a positive outlook," she said.

She wanted to do something to help the hospital, she said. "I had time, energy and interest, but no money."

However, she met some people involved with the Toronto Marathon and felt that participating would be a "tangible way of giving back. And of proving that cancer can be treated."

Singer and her family – husband, kids, mother, mother-in-law, uncles, aunts and great-uncles and aunts, formed part of the contingent walking to raise funds for the hospital. Her team was called the Dewbourne Gang, named after the street on which she and her husband are building a new house.

The Toronto Marathon was founded in 1995 by entrepreneur and art collector Jay Glassman. It is now a qualifying event for the Boston Marathon. The principal beneficiary of the race is the Princess Margaret Hospital, although funds also go to the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada, the Achilles Track Club of Canada, Pediatric Oncology Group of Ontario (POGO), Hemophilia Ontario and the Ontario Track & Field Association.

Runners from more than 30 countries participated, in the entire marathon (18 km), the half-marathon walk and half-marathon run, and a 5-km course. There was also a corporate challenge, consisting of eight-person relay teams. The full course, which wound through the city, began at Mel Lastman Square and ended at Queens Park.

JEWISH HISTORY LESSON: Grade 8 students from the United Synagogue Day School visited the photo exhibition "And I Still See Their Faces" at the Allen Lambert Galleria in BCE Place last month as part of their Jewish history studies. The pictures, which were saved and hidden by non-Jewish Poles during the Holocaust, show Polish Jews at work, play and prayer, and depict the vitality of Polish Jewry before the community was virtually destroyed in the Shoah. Peter Jassem, president of the Polish-Jewish Heritage Foundation of Canada, which helped bring the exhibit to Toronto, explained how it was culled from more than 9,000 photographs collected by a Polish journalist who wanted to prepare a documentary on prewar Polish Jews. Pictured, from left, are students Max Zidel, Ryan Peters, Laura York, Josh Weiman, Eitan Levitt, Leora Kirshenblatt, Mendi Weisbrod and Evan Gelman.

Dr. Ira Schecter
is pleased to announce that Dr. Tal Lewinger has joined his practice at
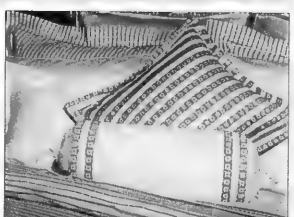
The Dufferin Steeles Dental Office
1881 Steeles Avenue West, Suite 201
(South East Corner)
416-665-1145
For your complete family dental care we offer comprehensive cosmetic and implant procedures.
Evening, Saturday & Emergency appointments available.

DEBLINS LINENS
Quality Bedding from
Israel
by Revelle and Israeli manufacturers
• World-class designs
• High thread count
• Beautifully finished
Consumers' Choice Award 2004 For Business Excellence


Get the whole story in living colour at ... www.deblins.com
39 Orfus Road off Dufferin, S. of Yorkdale
7979 Weston Road Just north of Highway 7
Mississauga Home & Design Centre 2575 Dundas West

FREE Diabetes Information Night
What's NEW for Type 2?
Lifestyle
The "Carb" Dilemma
What's the GI Index?
Medications
What's HOT?
What's Coming?

Tuesday October 26, 2004 7:00 – 8:00 pm
The Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living
1003 Steeles Ave West
(Corner of Bathurst and Steeles)
Presenters:
Dr. Robert Schlosser, Diabetes Specialist
Karri Koach, Dietitian and Diabetes Educator
To reserve a seat or for more information about what's NEW for treatments for Type 2....
Please call 905 763-8660

Free Genetic Screening Clinic

In collaboration with The Hospital for Sick Children
for
Tay-Sachs Disease
Canavan Disease
Familial Dysautonomia

Ashkenazi Jewish Genetic Diseases
You may be a Carrier!

This Sunday
October 24, 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

Council House
4700 Bathurst Street

Minimum age 16 years

Please have available the name & address of your family physician

For more information call: 416-633-5100
www.whatsinyourgenes.com

This screening has been made possible through a generous donation from the Estate of Louis Uger

SPONSORS

National Council of Jewish Women of Canada, Toronto Section

Jacob's Ladder, The Canadian Foundation for Control of Neurodegenerative Disease

UJA Federation Board of Jewish Education; Gerald Richler Family UJA Federation Philanthropic Fund at the Jewish Foundation of Greater Toronto

Canadian Association for Tay-Sachs & Allied Diseases

Dysautonomia Foundation Inc.

The Canadian Society for the Weizmann Institute of Science

Coordinated by the
National Council of Jewish Women of Canada, Toronto Section

Annuities - Tax and Estate Planning Advantages

An annuity is the only investment product that guarantees income for the rest of your life or the life of you and your spouse. It provides peace of mind knowing that you will never out-live your savings.

Annuities Enhance Income

Because the income is made up of part of the principle you invested and the interest that it earns, it is significantly higher than investments that pay nterest only, such as a GIC. Let's compare the payout of a $100,000 annuity for a male, age 70, in a 40% marginal tax bracket.

	GIC	Annuity
Investment	$100,000	$100,000
Annual Income	4,500	9,425
Taxable Portion	4,500	2,157
Tax Payable	1,890	863
Net Income	2,610	8,562

The annuity provides an after-tax return of more than twice the income generated by the GIC. In order to generate the same after tax return from a GIC you would have to invest at a rate of 14.27%. The annuity income is guaranteed for life.

The disadvantage is that you forfeit your principal when you die. If this is of concern to you, there are several ways to preserve estate value. Various Guaranteed Periods, Cash or Installment Refund options can be included to assure the payout of the capital invested.

An Insured Annuity preserves 100% of your capital for your estate. Consider the following example, which compares the investment of $200,000 in a GIC at 4.5% with an insured annuity, for a man aged 75.

	GIC	Insured Annuity
Capital	200,000	200,000
Annual Income	9,000	21,979
Taxable Income	9,000	3,243
Tax (46%)	4,140	1,492
After Tax Income	4,860	20,487
Insurance Cost	NIL	11,005
Spendable Income	4,860	9,482
Gross Equivalent Yield	4.5%	8.8%
Estate Value	200,000	200,000
Subject to Probate	YES	NO
Guaranteed Period	5 YEARS	LIFE

Effective improved yield on investment = 95%
(This is an illustration only; rates will vary)

The Corporate Insured Annuity Strategy

An Insured Annuity can be acquired by a private corporation. It also becomes a valuable strategy for removing retained earnings from the corporation on a tax-free basis and for reducing or eliminating the capital gains payable on the shares.

Annuity Choices

The flexibility and utility of annuities allows you to choose the type that addresses your specific income and estate planning needs. These needs will typically include one or more of the following.

- Guaranteed retirement income for life;
- Enhanced income for nursing and long-term care without depleting the estate of a loved-one;
- Income for a specific time period;
- Gradual inheritance transfers;
- Charitable gifting;
- Alimony Payments;
- Tax and estate planning.

Who Can Benefit?

If you are a retiree who is having trouble making ends meet, you can more than double your after tax income. Since the income is guaranteed for the rest of your life it removes the fear of outliving your income.

If you are a high income retiree who wishes to take advantage of the favourable tax treatment while preserving your estate, you can achieve the best of both worlds with an Insured Annuity.

Leon Lewis
B.A., LL.B., CLU

Individual proposals are available on request.

Gordon Ross
CLU, CFSB

Annuity Accords

IFBC

E-mail: info@annuityaccords.com
Tel: 416-494-6930 Fax: 416-494-7395 Toll-free: 1-800-707-6471

Circle of Care Celebrates 3 Decades of Service to our Community

We're not just counting our years ... we've really made our years count!

It was a great birthday party! Over 300 guests enjoyed festivities to celebrate the remarkable 30 year journey of Circle of Care – from a demonstration project as Coordinated Services to Jewish Elderly – to a lead organization in providing community home care and supporting individual independence and quality of life in our community.

Michael Scheinert, (President & CEO) & Allan Rudolph (Chairman) light 30th birthday cake

Joining the volunteers and staff in the celebrations, were representatives from municipal and provincial governments, past presidents of the organization, agency funders, representatives of the agency's community partners as well as families of volunteers.

There was a swelling of pride as the evening's program began – 30 individuals were honoured with lighting candles on a huge birthday cake. Congratulatory messages from the Premier and MP's of government were read. Highlights of the evening included the Annual General Meeting, with election of a new Board of Directors, a keynote address by notable entertainer Harvey Atkin, recognition of long-standing staff and outstanding volunteer awards:

Marie & Jack Freedman Memorial Award ..... Lisa Levin
Sam Rotman Humanitarian Award ..... Ron Daiter
Clerical Volunteer ..... Bernice Halfin
Volunteer Escort Transportation Award ..... Ida Picov
Phone Pals ..... Sophie Richmond
Volunteer Visiting Program ..... Betty Fluss
Volunteer Visiting/Jewish Hospice ..... Rebecca Mammon
Kosher Meals on Wheels ..... Dianne & Simon Feinstein

Circle of Care boasts longevity of volunteer service. It was with pride that pins were awarded to volunteers for 10, 15 and 20 years of service. Donors were also recognized for their important contributions to the agency's programs.

Securing the Future

A 30th Anniversary Fundraising Campaign was launched to support program development, research and innovation and ensure long-term financial security for the agency's key programs – Kosher Meals on Wheels, Palliative and Alzheimer Care, Elder Abuse Prevention and Assisted Transportation.

A service profile highlighting the agency's work during the past year elicited commendations from those in attendance:

- 43,550 hours of homemaking services provided to 3829 clients
- 52,578 kosher meals on wheels delivered to 562 clients
- 830 clients and/or caregivers received social work services
- 3,028 requests for information were received
- 638 volunteers provided 52,873 hours of service
- 4,335 drives were provided to 440 clients
- 10,745 volunteer visiting hours provided to 176 clients
- 350 home support workers provided service in 20 different languages
- 499 individuals received specialized Holocaust related services

The evening culminated with a sense of renewed inspiration and commitment to the agency's proactive, indomitable spirit.

To inquire about our services...how you can volunteer...donation opportunities...
Tel.: (416) 635-2860 Fax: (416) 635-1692
Email: intake@circleofcare.com
Offices: 530 Wilson Avenue, 4th Floor, Toronto, Ontario M3H 1T6
www.circleofcare.com

Celebrating 30 years as a non-profit charitable organization, providing home care services to the community.

Revenue Canada Charitable Registration 0445130-09-13

MATERIAL SUPPLIED AND SPACE PURCHASED BY CIRCLE OF CARE.

Kensington Place
RENTAL RETIREMENT RESIDENCE
Model Suites Open
Gracious Lobby
Model Suite
Elegant Dining Room
Selma Sage Lecture, October 27th at 2pm
"Abraham: Everybodys Father."
Call to reserve your place
416-636-9555
FINCH AVE
SHEPPARD AVE
ALLEN ROAD / DUFFERIN
BATHURST AVE
SUBWAY
401
866 SHEPPARD AVE. W.
CO-DEVELOPED BY:
FORUM
AMANDUS DEVELOPMENTS INC.
concierge@thekensingtonplace.com
*Information correct at press time. Map not to scale. E. & O.E.

FLORIDA, ARIZONA, CALIFORNIA, CANADA
WE SEND YOUR CAR & CONTENTS (and return)
CALL 416-225-7754
www.torontodriveaway.com
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY SERVICE
5803 Yonge St., #101
North York M2M 3V5
Since 1959

MANOR TRAVEL
1450 CLARK AVE. W., #17
(Dufferin & Clark, Thornhill)
JOIN STANLEY
MIAMI
Seniors Group Tour
DEPART. JAN. 17
2, 4 & 6 WEEKS
Incl. air, hotel, taxes, entert.
SPRING IN EILAT
ISRAEL March 2005
• 3 WEEKS • 5★ RESORT
Incl air, hotel, spas, tours, 2 meals daily, taxes. BOOK QUICKLY
Tel. 905-669-1347
email: manortravel@on.aibn.com
1-800-763-4769
REGISTRATION #04054680

Eye on Arts

By Bill Gladstone

TWO ISRAELI FILMS SCREENED AT LEAH POSLUNS THEATRE

The Toronto Jewish Film Festival presents two Israeli films this week in its "On the Road (the Sequel)" series, in conjunction with the Bathurst JCC and the Koffler Centre. Screenings take place at the Leah Posluns Theatre, 4588 Bathurst St.

James' Journey to Jerusalem, by director Ra'anan Alexandrowicz, focuses on an African Christian's quest to find the Holy Land he envisions from the Bible, and the treatment he receives in Israel. In English, Hebrew and Zulu with English subtitles. $10. Wednesday, Oct. 20. Reception 7 p.m., film 8 p.m.

Time of Favor focuses on a fictitious plot by religious Jews to destroy the Al-Aqsa Mosque, which would unleash war on the region. In Hebrew with English subtitles. $10. Thursday, Oct. 21, 7:30 p.m.

* * *

Jewish Gospel at Hart House: Renowned gospel singer-songwriter Joshua Nelson headlines a fundraising weekend for Kolel, the Adult Centre for Liberal Jewish Learning. The 27-year-old Jewish African-American sings during a Shabbat service with Rabbi Elyse Goldstein and performs Saturday, Oct. 23, with local Gen-X band Bais Groove at Hart House Theatre; $18-$28. Proceeds go towards educational programs. Tickets, 416-485-7007, ext. 0. www.kolel.org.

* * *

Names in the News: Thirty-year-old Bret Stephens, until recently the editor of the Jerusalem Post, made a strong, positive impression when he visited Toronto last year. Stephens is returning to the Wall Street Journal in New York to become the youngest member of its editorial board… Israeli entertainer Dudu Fisher performs at the Toronto Centre for the Arts on Nov. 7. Tickets are $28 to $64. 416-872-1111… Toronto Yiddish poet-essayist Simcha Simchovitch is co-winner of the 2004 J. I. Segal Award for Yiddish and Hebrew literature. He's slated to receive a $500 cheque next month at the awards ceremony in Montreal.

* * *

Schwartzberg on Jewish Film: Shlomo Schwartzberg, director of programming for the Toronto Jewish Film Festival for the last eight years, recently left that post to pursue other options. He's giving a course on "The Image of the Jew in Film and Television." "It's provocative and entertaining – I provide readings and show many clips," he says. The cost is $125 ($85 for members). Nadal JCC. Starts Oct. 25 and runs for four Mondays, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Registration, 416-924-6211.

* * *

Wiseman Adaptation: Ann Powell and Suzanne Hersh offer an adaptation of On Wings of Tongue, a story by the late Canadian Jewish writer Adele Wiseman, set in Winnipeg during the Depression. Presented as part of the Between Stages playwright's reading series. $10 at the door. Nadal JCC, Sunday Oct. 24, 2 p.m.

Also at the Nadal JCC, Jill Culiner launches her book Finding Home (Sumach Press) about the "Fusgeyers" – Yiddish for wayfarers – the Jews who fled persecution in Romania in the early 1900s, ultimately coming to North America. Wednesday, Oct. 27, 7 p.m.

* * *

Hebrew Manuscripts at Auction: Britain's Judith Lady Montefiore College is selling a collection of 450 Hebrew manuscripts and rare books that have been described as "the most important collection of Hebrew manuscripts to have come to the market in decades." With an estimated value of between $6 million and $8 million (US), they are due to be auctioned at Sotheby's of New York in late October.

* * *

Koffler School of Music: The Koffler School presents Children of a Vanished World, a dramatization of photographer Roman Vishniac's images, with narratives about pre-World War II communities in eastern Europe, Yiddish folk songs and music under the direction of Sabatino Vacca. Leah Posluns Theatre. Sunday, Oct. 24, 8 p.m. Tickets 416-636-1880, ext. 228.

* * *

Science Corner: In light of the recent seismic activity at Mount St. Helens in Washington state, Eye on Arts takes note of the new IMAX film, Volcanoes of the Deep Sea, that opened recently at the Ontario Science Centre. A Lunar Eclipse Star Party at the OSC on Oct. 27 (approx. 10 p.m.) allows visitors to view a real eclipse and other celestial objects through high-power telescopes. The exhibition, "Discover Life: Making Sense of it All," opens Oct. 31. 770 Don Mills Rd. at Eglinton Avenue East. 416-696-3127 or 416-696-1000.

* * *

Musical Notes

• Mother-and-son cellists Kristine Bogyo and Rafael Kuerti perform Handel's Sonata for Two Cellos and Strings with the Mooredale Concerto Players. $25-$20. Willowdale United Church, 349 Kenneth Ave. on Saturday, Oct. 23, 8 p.m. and again at Walter Hall, University of Toronto, 80 Queen's Park Cres., on Sunday, Oct. 24, 3 p.m. 416-922-3714, ext. 103.

• Theresa Tova and musical friends salute their theatrical roots in "The 'Broad' Way." Top o' the Senator, 249 Victoria St. Mondays, Oct. 25 and Nov. 1. Doors open 7:30 p.m., show starts 8:30. 416-364-8155.

Courtesy of Friends of Yiddish, Tova also presents "Falling Leaves," a collection of new songs by Yiddish songwriter Bayla Shechter Gottesman, with musical accompaniment by Brian Katz and Martin Van de Ven. Adath Sholom Synagogue, 864 Sheppard Ave. W. Members $10, guests $15. Sunday, Oct. 24, 7:30 p.m. 416-736-8073.

* * *

At the Galleries

• An exhibition on "Contemporary Jewish Life in Berlin," consisting of 11 panels of pictures and text, is being shown at two Toronto venues, courtesy of the Goethe-Institut. It's at the Koffler Gallery, 4588 Bathurst St., until Nov. 4, and at the Nadal JCC, 750 Spadina Ave., from Nov. 7 thru Dec. 6.

• "Enchanting" ceramic art and photographs by Patricia Lazar are featured in a home-studio show, Oct. 22, 23 and 24. 51 Green Bush Rd., south of Steeles off Hilda. Please call for times. 416-224-2294. www.patricialazarceramicart.com

• An exhibit of beaded mezuzah bayit covers by artist Temma Gentles is on display at Beth Tzedec Synagogue through Nov. 30.

• A first solo exhibition in Canada of paintings, drawings and sculptures of Italian artist Amedeo Modigliani (1884-1920) opens Oct. 23 at the Art Gallery of Ontario. "Modigliani: Beyond the Myth" also explores the myths surrounding his life, including his reputation as the quintessential bohemian. Organized by The Jewish Museum of New York. Until Jan. 23, 2005.

Message to CJN Snowbirds

If you will be spending all or part of this winter outside of Canada, there are three options available to you regarding delivery of your Canadian Jewish News.

1/ Continue regular delivery to your home, and arrange for Canada Post to forward The CJN on with your other mail each week.

2/ Advise our Circulation Department to suspend delivery until your return to Canada with no weeks lost in your subscription period.

3/ Arrange with our Circulation Department to redirect The CJN to your winter address at a cost of $10.00 per month for U.S. addresses and $11.00 per month for foreign addresses.

This charge – payable by cheque, Visa, Mastercard or American Express before departure – covers the cost of additional postage incurred for out of country mailings.

To make any change in your delivery please fax 416-391-0949 or call the Circulation Department at 416-391-1836 (ext. 224), allowing a minimum of three weeks notice.

sunwing
VACATIONS
www.sunwing.ca
Fly Everyday to Florida
from $49
roundtrip
Orlando / St. Petersburg / Fort Lauderdale
Roundtrip air prices are per person were available at time of printing. Valid on new bookings only.
Departure taxes, travel related fees, GST & foreign taxes are extra. Ont. Reg.# 2476582 10212004
TICO
(416) 789-3271
1.888.666.8747
THE TRAVEL NETWORK
VIRTUOSO MEMBER
1920 Avenue Rd. Toronto, ON
(N. of Lawrence Ave.)

Musical duo aims for international rock stardom

By SIDURA LUDWIG
Special to the CJN

For some musicians, putting together a musical act is all about rigorous auditions, endless tryouts and sifting through hundreds of hopefuls to find the right match.

For the acoustic duo, The Soulution, it was all about fate.

"We got reconnected for a reason," says lead singer Jon Jacobson. "It all happened to be simultaneous – he's auditioning for a singer, I'm looking for a place to go. We get connected somehow, someway. It's fate."

One year ago, the other half of The Soulution, guitarist/vocalist Jamie Gutfreund, decided to stop playing other people's music and start writing his own for acoustic guitar. He says he wanted to perform as an acoustic rock duo rather than in a band, but needed to find the right singer "to bring my music alive."

From left are Jamie Gutfreund and Jon Jacobson of The Soulution.

Jacobson and Gutfreund, both 24, used to play together in a high school band. But when Jacobson came to audition for Gutfreund, it had been seven years since they'd seen each other.

"He walked in, and after seven years of not doing anything musically, I was like: 'Dude, you've still got it. You've got it even more than you had it back then,'" says Gutfreund.

"I've got a good eye and ear for talent. And he just blew me right away."

The duo rehearsed for four months before performing at cafés and clubs around Toronto. They have recently released an album, K2 Sessions, which features five original songs by Gutfreund. Their music blends rock, blues, pop and funk, featuring strong vocals and impressive guitar.

Jacobson says he felt a connection to Gutfreund's music from the start.

"I came in and we started playing these songs and they really got to me," he says. "Even since we've released the CD, I catch people all the time singing our music. Someone will be humming a tune and I'll be like, 'I know that song. Hey, that's my song!'"

But, as most musicians experience, Gutfreund says the road to success isn't smooth. The duo are hoping their unique sound will attract the attention of a major record producer, but say that is becoming more and more difficult to do in Canada. Gutfreund is critical of the Canadian music scene and says, like many musical acts, Soulution will be looking in the United States for their big break.

"There is so much talent in this country," he says. "Yet our country won't even support its own artists… Our mission is to conquer the States. And that will open the doors to the rest of the world, if we can make it there."

Gutfreund is no stranger to the trials and tribulations of the entertainment world. He is a graduate of the Harris Institute for the Arts, which focuses on the business and production of music. He went on to work at Sextant Records, a small Toronto-based record label, and EMI Music Canada and BMG, both major recording labels with offices in Toronto. He says he's known he wanted to work in music since he was 14 years old and saw AC/DC at the Skydome.

"It was my first rock show and it changed my life. I remember standing in the audience and saying to myself 'That's what I want to do.'"

Jacobson admits he doesn't have as extensive a musical background as his partner, but says he doesn't lack enthusiasm or determination. After singing in a high school rock band, Jacobson left music for University of Western Ontario. But he says he missed performing. Since meeting up with Gutfreund again, Jacobson says he's decided to give music his all.

"My heart is to take this as far as it can possibly will go. International rock stardom – that's the phrase I like to use."

Their songs include upbeat rock 'n' roll tracks, along with soulful ballads. One song, Ten Days, was inspired by Gutfreund's trip to Israel, which he took with Birthright, a free 10-day trip for young adults. The song calls for peace in the Middle East, using strong lyrics such as "Why are we so hated?/We all bleed the same/In the killing game."

Gutfreund says lyrically the song was the hardest he has ever written. "I really wanted to make sure I chose my words carefully. At the same time, I wanted to make sure that this song struck a nerve. It had to hit people."

He describes the reaction they get to the song when they play it live: "Afterwards everybody is like, 'Where did you go? Tell me about it! Should I go there?'"

"The song itself is inspired by the trip, but it's a universal message… Conflict in unnecessary. Peace is a more appropriate way of being."

Both Gutfreund and Jacobson emphasize that they want to continue playing music that influences their audience. Gutfreund says they plan to go back to the studio and re-record their album with a full band. Jacobson says he wants to build on the momentum they've started this year.

"Ultimately it's about making music, being happy with it and making other people happy with it too. And that's such a great feeling for me and for Jamie as well. When people say that they love our music, that's the best feeling in the world."

For more information on The Soulution, visit www.thesoulutionmusic.com

Toronto Film College

Join Our Exciting
Workshops for Adults & Youth!
Filming, Acting, Editing, Writing
Check Website for Details!

* Now Offering a December Break Program *

34 Eglinton Ave West, 7th
Toronto, Ontario,
Canada M4R 1A1
Tel: (416) 484-1577
ttc@torontofilmcollege.ca
www.torontofilmcollege.ca

KOSHERICA CRUISES

Celebrity Cruises
5-Star Ship
The Millennium

Glatt Kosher, Cholov Yisroel, Pas Yisroel
Freshly Cooked Gourmet Meals
Under the supervision of Rabbi Pinchas Weberman
Anniversary Program to include...

Dudu Fisher
Shlomo Simcha
Benzion Miller
Yehuda Shifman
Daniel Gildar
Mordechai Shifman

January 16-23, 2005
January 23-30, 2005
From $999* From $999*
Departing from Ft. Lauderdale, FL
Daily Services, Concerts and Lectures
*10% Discount for Early Booking
Space is limited
Toll Free 877-724-5567 • 305-695-2700
www.kosherica.com

FAMILY & BAR/BAT MITZVAH TOURS
DEC. 19-JAN. 3
MARCH BREAK & PASSOVER '05
MARCH 10-22
MARCH 17-29
APRIL 21-MAY 4
(PASSOVER)
SUMMER '05
JULY 3-17
JULY 10-24
JULY 31-AUG. 14
AUG. 18-SEPT. 1
SUMMER YOUNG COUPLES TOUR
JULY 5-17 '05
TRAVEL TO ISRAEL ON AN AMAZING TRIP WHILE YOUR KIDS ARE IN CAMP

ISRAEL 2005
We know Israel best. We send more people to Israel than any other travel agency.
2005 Family Tours
SELLING OUT FAST!
CALL TODAY! BOOK NOW!
• The best deluxe tours in North America
• All-inclusive deluxe hotels • More days of sightseeing
• More meals • A true family itinerary • Greatest value
Our website: www.israelfamilytours.com
PEERLESS TRAVEL
YOUR FULL SERVICE TRAVEL AGENCY
We will match or beat any internet price worldwide 9 times out of 10 on any flight or package while providing personal service. Check us out!!!!
For daily worldwide specials - www.peerlesstravel.com
905-886-5610
Toll Free 800-294-1663
info@peerlesstravel.com
7117 Bathurst St. #200, Thornhill, Ont. L4J 2J2

ISRAEL
March 20-30/05
Led by Rabbi Scheim
Very innovative itinerary
Canadian Hadassah-WIZO Solidarity Mission
Israel & Budapest
March 16-28/05
Machalniks & Israeli War Veterans
May 8-19/05
Join Yom Hazikaron/Yom Ha'atzmaut Ceremonies
Incl. 7 days touring, many meals & more!! Call us now!
Interfaith Yom Ha'atzmaut Tour
Led by Rabbi Joseph Kelman & Mr. Dean Bye
May 10-18/05
Also Pre-Tour to Poland May 4-9

TRAVEL TALK

BY BILL GLADSTONE

COOKING PRO AND RABBI OFFER 'FOOD FOR THOUGHT' TOUR OF ISRAEL

Well-known cooking maven Bonnie Stern is teaming up with Toronto Rabbi Elyse Goldstein to present a unique culinary travel experience – an "Israel Food For Thought" tour to the fabled land of milk and honey.

Israel is actually a food lover's paradise, Stern and Rabbi Goldstein say. The tour is designed to show participants "how food, culture, tradition, religion and history all come together" in Israel. Travellers will also learn about the seven species of the Bible and taste biblical food in its original setting.

Stern has her own cooking school and cookware shop, writes a weekly column in the National Post and has authored 11 cookbooks. Rabbi Goldstein, a nationally recognized Jewish adult educator and author, is the director of Kolel, the Adult Centre for Liberal Jewish Learning.

Organized with aid from Israeli chef and food columnist Phyllis Glazer, Skylink Holidays, Dan Hotels and Eshet (Israel), the tour includes an introduction to Israeli wines, cooking classes with Sephardi and Ashkenazi chefs, and superb sightseeing, dining and accommodation, all with educational insights into ethnic Israeli culture and history.

Travel dates are Feb. 13 to 21, 2005. For details, contact Rabbi Goldstein, 416 485-7007, ext. 231, or Stern, 416 484-4810, or attend the free informational meeting, Bonnie Stern School of Cooking, 6 Erskine Ave., Sunday, Nov. 7, 7:30 p.m.

* * *

Israel's Security Up Close: The Israeli organization Shurat Hadin (Israel Law Center) is offering the Ultimate Mission, an action-packed series of briefings and field tours with senior security, military and intelligence commanders, as well as other strategic decision-makers who shape and lead Israel's multifaceted war on terrorism.

Geared for active professionals, the Ultimate Mission is a dynamic nine-day exploration of Israel's struggle for survival and security in the Middle East. It features an intensive range of activities that includes briefings by intelligence officers from the Israel Defence Forces (IDF), Shin Bet and Mossad, and a presentation by IDF undercover soldiers who perform deep penetration raids in Arab territory and targeted killings of Palestinian terrorists.

Participants are invited to observe the trial of Hamas terrorists in an IDF military court and to meet with senior ministers, other key policy-makers and Arab agents who infiltrate and spy on terrorist groups. Tours are offered of Lebanese front-line military positions, Gaza border checkpoints, the controversial security fence and secret intelligence bases.

The mission also includes a small airplane tour of the Galilee, water activities on Lake Kinneret, a cookout barbecue and a Shabbat in Jerusalem's Old City. Luxurious bus transportation, knowledgeable tour guides, personal cellphones for each participant and accommodation at the five-star Sheraton Plaza Jerusalem are also provided.

Travel dates are Nov. 7 to 16. For details, visit the website, www.israellawcenter.org

* * *

Travel Notes – North America

- The 2nd annual Atlantic Jewish Film Festival runs Oct. 23 to 30 at the Oxford Theatre in Halifax. AJFF Hotline, 902-450-AJFF. Website, www.ajff ca.
- "Travels with Charley: Self Portraits from the Land of Israel" is a series of photographs by Charles Frankenburg. On view at the Vancouver JCC's Sidney and Gertrude Zack Gallery through Nov. 25.
- "The Jewish Journey: Frederic Brenner's Photographic Odyssey" is an exhibition of more than 140 black and white photographs taken in more than 40 countries on five continents. San Francisco's Contemporary Jewish Museum presents the exhibition in two instalments, Oct. 14 through Dec. 5, and Dec. 14 through Feb. 27, 2005.

* * *

Travel Notes – Israel

- About 1,000 athletes from around the world are due to compete in the 19th Eilat International Triathlon in the Red Sea port city of Eilat, Israel, on Friday Dec. 3. The tripartite event involves a swim in the Royal beach, a bike circuit through town and a run around the city of Eilat. The Isrotel "Sport Club" Hotel is host of the event.
- Travel to and from Ben-Gurion Airport just became much simpler with the opening of a new inter-urban train line, which is expected to carry thousands of passengers daily to and from the airport to their homes and hotels. The line's 64 trains make daily round trips between the airport and Nahariya, Haifa and Tel Aviv.

SPOUSE DETECT
NANNY DETECT
STORE WATCH
PHONE: 416 791 8380
EMAIL: SPOUSEDETECT@ROGERS.COM
PROFESSIONAL SURVEILLANCE!
WHERE YOU CAN'T BE.
WE ARE!!!
LET US FIND OUT WHAT GOING ON FOR YOU!!
WE ARE HIGHLY TRAINED TO DISCRETELY SURVEY YOUR CASE. WE WILL TAKE PICTURES AND/OR VIDEO OF YOUR CASE SECRETLY AND PRESENT THE RESULTS BACK TO YOU.
WE MEET WITH YOU PRIVATELY AND USUALLY HAVE RESULTS IN 2 -3 DAYS
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL
416 791 8380

Carrocel Restorations
Antique and Fine Furniture Gallery
Sales and Restorations
• Tables • Chairs • Occasional Tables
• Bedroom Suites • Dining Suites
❖ WE CUSTOM BUILD ❖
3255 - 14TH AVENUE • 905-475-6942

Cleaning Protection Restoration
For All Your Stone Surfaces
MARBLE RESCUE
Insured and Bonded
Technicians with over 15 years experience.
We'll beat any written residential quote by 20%
416-782-BUFF(2833)
Don't replace your dull, damaged stone & marble. Turn to us!

Caring is not what I do, it's who I am.
Dear Friend:
There are many retirement homes to choose from, but I can guarantee you that none will be as warm and caring as L'Chaim Retirement Home.
How can I make such a promise?
At L'Chaim we're big on service, small enough to be here for you when you need us. We are the "boutique retirement home": small and unique.
Come and see for yourself.
— Judy Cohen, Founder
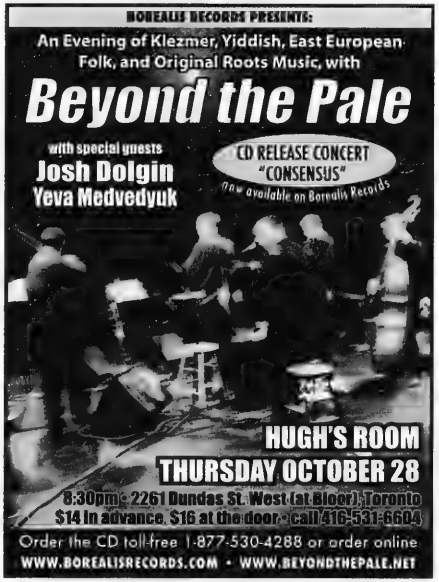
L'chaim Retirement Homes Inc.
416.398.7898
718 SHEPPARD AVE. WEST
OPEN HOUSE EVERY THURS. 10 – 4
www.lchaimretirement.com



BOREALIS RECORDS PRESENTS:
An Evening of Klezmer, Yiddish, East European Folk, and Original Roots Music, with Beyond the Pale with special guests
Josh Dolgin
Yeva Medvedyuk
CD RELEASE CONCERT
"CONSENSUS"
now available on Borealis Records
HUGH'S ROOM
THURSDAY OCTOBER 28
8:30pm • 2261 Dundas St. West (at Bloor), Toronto
$14 in advance, $16 at the door • call 416-531-6604
Order the CD toll-free 1-877-530-4288 or order online
WWW.BOREALISRECORDS.COM • WWW.BEYONDTHEPALE.NET

Good Jewish boys making angry punk music

By STEVEN HIMMELFARB
Special to The CJN

When I was 15, I spent my summer vacation working as a cashier at a grocery store, saving up to buy an electric guitar. While the majority of Jewish kids in my neighbourhood were off at camp, I had other interests – namely punk music.

Yeah, that's right. I'm Jewish and I like punk music. And guess what? I'm not alone, but we'll get to that in a minute.

Growing up in a Jewish area in Toronto, I never encountered other kids with the same musical interests, so I continued walking the lonely path of punk music until I went to university. What I realized when I got there was that most of the artists I had been listening to were Jewish.

Not only that, but the most influential and seminal punk rockers were Jewish. Why were the most progressive punk musicians Jewish? Were they Hebrew school dropouts?

Jewish punk music has deep roots. There are a few influential artists you should know about. Consider this Jewish Punk Rock 101.

Lou Reed, the founder of the band the Velvet Underground, grew up in Freeport, Long Island, in an upper-middle-class

Continued on page 56

Arts & Travel

Play reflects immigrant experience

By CAROLYN BLACKMAN
Staff Reporter

Jay Kholos, writer and producer of A Stoop on Orchard Street, on stage at Leah Posluns Theatre Oct. 25 to 28 and Nov. 1 and 2, says the play is and is not autobiographical.

The musical, which debuted off-Broadway in July 2003, tells the story of Jewish immigrant life in the tenements of New York's Lower East Side around 1910.

A scene from Orchard Street

The story follows the successes and struggles of the Lomansky family as they adjust to a new life in America. The show is set on the stoop outside the tiny rooms and dark hallways of the tenements, where residents escaped to share their lives with one another.

In a telephone interview from New York, where he lives with his wife Paula, Kholos says his grandfather, who emigrated from Russia with his family in 1907, kept an extensive diary of his immigrant experiences, and used to tell him all his stories.

"I listened politely as a child, but as I grew up, I realized the importance of the family and its roots."

These stories are reflected in the play – one of the characters is named Samuel after his grandfather – "but they are common to any immigrant experience whether they are Irish, Italian or Jewish," Kholos says.

"A subplot in the play is about a boy saving money to bring his sweetheart over from Russia. That was my grandfather's story, but again, it's the story of any number of people.

"After the show opened in New York, people kept coming up to me to say that 'this is my story.' There is a common thread of experience."

His actual inspiration for the play came after visiting the Lower East Side Tenement Museum in New York.

"When I finished the tour, I walked out on the stoop, and said 'this would make a good musical.'"

The story, he says, is "the day after Fiddler on the Roof. What would have happened to them had the story continued? I often wondered about that."

Kholos is the producer of a number of independent entertainment projects, including the TV Vanguard award-winning History in the Company of Women, the Ford Foundation winner History in the Company of Children starring John Ritter, and Rod Serling's Zero Hour, a syndicated radio series.

He wrote the script and the music for A Stoop on Orchard Street, and produced the play himself, so "I had the unique opportunity of working both sides of my brain – the creative and the logical."

Response to the play has been incredible, he says. After a first reading in Nashville, Tenn., and a showcase – the next step in a play's progression – it moved quickly to New York.

"Some plays languish for years in the showcase stage, but this moved on. One year after opening in New York, it has gone on tour."

Since its debut at the Lower East Side Mazer Theatre in New York, it has become the longest running play in the theatre's 115-year history., and a second resident company opened last April in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

For ticket information on the Leah Posluns performances, call 866-527-8667. Groups of 20 or more can call 877-358-7764 for discounted rates.

GERDA ROSNER

SPA SPECIAL
The Saxony Resort & Spa
3201
Three meals daily. • Luxury accommodations
• Daily Massages, Facials
• Brand New Equipped Fitness Center
• Chair Aerobics, Water Aerobics
• Yoga, Linedancing, Craft Studio
• Exciting Daily & Nightly Shows
• Oceanfront Boardwalk & Beach
• 5 minutes from South Beach
• Flea Markets & Chauffeur Service
$79 daily U.S.
p.p. dbl. occ. plus air fare gratuities & tax
Rates apply to Jan 2005 and March 3 - April 2005
Call Gerda Toll Free 1-866-489-4148

encore entertainment presents
A Thousand Clowns

October 28th-November 7th, 2004
Toronto Centre for the Arts
(formerly Ford Centre)
5040 Yonge Street, Toronto

Adults:	Students/Seniors:
$26.00 evenings	$24.00 evenings
$24.00 matinees	$22.00 matinees

GROUP DISCOUNTS... Call (416) 733-0558
Tickets: (416) 733-0558
Or in person at the Toronto Centre Box Office
www.encoreshows.com

VISION 2000
TRAVEL GROUP • GROUPE VOYAGES

Join Sharon Cooper & Ellen Gryfe on a
SOUTH AFRICA SAFARI
Haymishe Style
Discover the diverse history, culture and nature of South Africa!
OCTOBER 16 - 30, 2005
Cape Town • Garden Route • Sabi Sabi Game Reserve
Panorama Route • Pretoria
JOIN US FOR A PRESENTATION EVENING!
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 1 AT 7:30PM
Vision 2000 Toronto Office
1200 Sheppard Ave. E., Suite 201
Learn more about this tour and sample South African Wines! Free parking available.
Ont. Reg. #3000472
For more information & to RSVP for presentation, please contact: SHARON COOPER or ELLEN GRYFE at:
Tel: 416-487-5385 Toll Free: 1-800-387-2440
Sharon ext. 2806, Ellen ext. 2797
Email: sharonc@vision2000.ca or elleng@vision2000.ca

Chaim Potok's
THE CHOSEN
now an award winning play!
by Aaron Posner and Chaim Potok
Nov 27 to Dec 12, 2004
Leah Posluns Studio Theatre
BJCC - 4588 Bathurst St., Toronto
For tickets, call
(416) 781-5527
or visit us at www.teatrontheatre.com
TEATRON Theatre production

The public is cordially invited to attend the book launching of Legacy and Redemption
A LIFE RENEWED
BY JOSEPH E. TENENBAUM
7:30 PM on Monday, November 8, 2004
Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue
470 Glencairn Ave. Toronto, Ont.
As part of the Holocaust Survivors' Memoir Project, the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum has published the memoir of Joseph E. Tenenbaum – one of the first three authors chosen in this series of which over nine-hundred manuscripts were submitted.
... His story is that of an epoch that left its mark on the consciousness of the Jewish people and also, on another level, that of humanity in general. You have to read it to understand the importance not only of the memoir but of the use to which it will be put."
Elie Wiesel
Mr. Tenenbaum will also speak about his book at the 28th Annual Jewish Book Fair on Sunday November 14th at 3:00 p.m. at the Leah Posluns Theatre, 4588 Bathurst Street, Toronto.

Books & Authors

A mystical boat ride into a family's past

By BILL GLADSTONE
Special to The CJN

Nessa Rapoport, a New York writer and editor originally from Toronto, has written House on the River, a meditative account of a summer journey by houseboat through Ontario's Trent-Severn Waterway that contains reminiscences of happy visits to her grandmother's cottage in Bobcaygeon when she was a girl.

Nessa Rapoport

Motivated by a desire to show her children a place that still holds great mythic significance for her family, Rapoport set out on a six-day pilgrimage, between one Shabbat and the next, with her mother, two children and an elderly uncle and aunt. As they ventured over lake, river, canal and liftlock, she recorded her increasingly spiritual impressions, observations and memories in a journal.

The river seemed to impose a slow, almost hypnotic rhythm on the trip and, consequently, on Rapoport's smooth-flowing, poetic prose. Just as she was compelled to leave the strident pace of urban life far behind when she began her floating adventure, so too is the reader required, in places, to navigate her sentences slowly in order derive their fullest meaning.

For Rapoport, her grandmother's former cottage had become a sort of Paradise Lost that, like her beloved ancestor, had migrated into the sacred realm of blessed memory.

"For my uncle, my mother, and me, the boat trip is a communion with her memory," she writes, recalling her grandmother's permanent influence over them. "We look up at the Ontario sky with the same awe we felt when we walked with her as she taught us the constellations."

If she writes with Proustian longing for the past, it's not because she wants to reclaim it, but rather because she wants to preserve it for all time.

"This ability to regain the past as if it were present is not nostalgia," she writes. "I do not want to live then; I ask that then be now, that I can at will plunge into time, those moments when – through devotion, or even pain – we are granted a taste of immortality. Such a re-creation has been the promise of this journey."

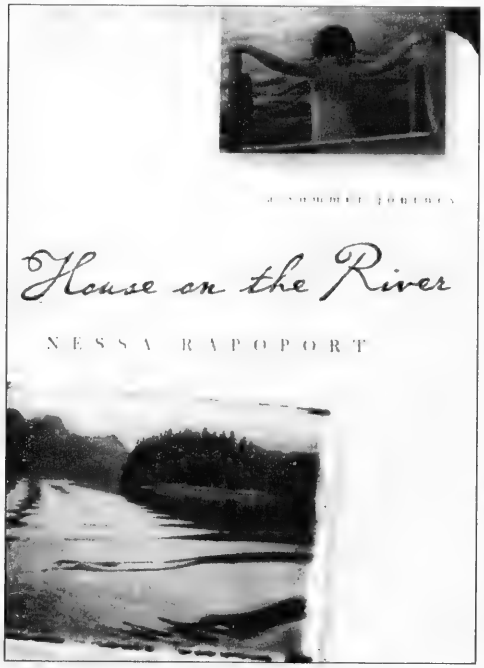
Her record of the trip is so keenly reflective that she categorizes it as "a meditation, not a narrative." She aptly uses the metaphor of a "palimpsest," one of those twice-used ancient scrolls in which a text was imperfectly scraped off so a second could be recorded. Since both texts remain legible, the reader is left with a lovely, indelible impression of the earlier experiences that underlie and give enormous significance to the present excursion.

A deeply Jewish sensibility also permeates these pages and thoughts. We are not surprised at the narrator's admission that she believes strongly in the soul's afterlife. She also is filled with thanks towards the Creator. Having first become familiar with this variegated emotional landscape as a girl, she expresses gratitude at returning as a grown woman, a wife and mother of two children who is expecting a third child.

While the knowledge that a beloved uncle is deathly ill overshadows the voyage, so does the implicit promise of future life. In an idyllic afterword written at a friend's farm, Rapoport obliquely reveals that her newest child has been delivered safely into the world. While human mortality and the necessity of farewells are an obvious theme in the book, so too is the miracle of new life.

Rapoport grew up in an observant home in the Forest Hill area of Toronto, and her parents and many relatives still live in the city. She left in her early 20s after studying English literature at the University of Toronto, but returns for visits frequently.

The author of two previous books – the novel Preparing for Sabbath and the poetry collection A Woman's Book of Grieving – she is married to New York artist Tobi Kahn and lives with her family on the Upper West Side of Manhattan.



Besides writing books of her own, she has made a formidable career editing the memoirs of celebrities such as businessman Lee Iacocca, former U.S. president Jimmy Carter, former vice-presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro and former Israeli president Ezer Weizman. "For better or for worse, Iacocca: An Autobiography was one of the best-selling books of the 1980s," she recalled.

Rapoport's writing tends to reflect the thoroughly Jewish sensibility that she seems to carry with her always. As she explains near the end of House on the River, she sees the act of creative writing as a deeply spiritual enterprise.

"All my work, I believe, is praise of my Creator," she said. "Whatever I've done, and in whatever form it's taken, I see it as a form of service, an attempt to give back some of what was given to me."

Rapoport was in Toronto recently to give readings from House on the River. She is due here again on Sunday, Nov. 14, for an appearance with her husband at the Jewish Book Fair.

Arts & Travel

One of the founders of punk music

Continued from page 54

Jewish family. He had Jewish friends, like John Zorn, a radical musician-to-be.

Now somewhere between Freeport, Long Island Passover seders and drunken binges in the streets of New York, Reed, with his band, wrote the underground hits Heroin and Sweet Jane, and his most widely known song, Walk on the Wild Side.

While the Beatles were playing stadiums and signing autographs in the mid to late 1960s, Reed was playing basements and schmoozing with New York art scene hipsters. Reed is considered one of the founders of punk music.

Less then a decade later, meet Richard Hell. Hell's apocalyptic lyrics were filled with alienated poetry, and his anguished howl of a voice set the pattern for many followers. His best-known song and album of the same title, Blank Generation, will probably remain obscure until his death or until the rights to his songs are sold for use in commercials.

But Hell will be remembered for two things. He was one of the biggest influences on the Sex Pistols, who created a new punk sound in England in the mid-1970s. He was also the first guy to cut the sleeves off his T-shirt. He was a stylish, Jewish punk.

Less obscure but more influential was Jeffrey Hyman, aka Joey Ramone, the lead singer of the Ramones, a band that was formed in 1974. He grew up in in Forest Hills, New York City. He had a traditional Jewish upbringing, including a bar mitzvah.

The Ramones' trademarks were tight ripped jeans and dirty T-shirts. Their songs were brilliantly simple – the same three chords. Their lyrics were even simpler. Other musicians have called Joey Ramone "the coolest Jew of all time."

A few years later, three young men from Brooklyn called the Beastie Boys, challenged that title. All three members of the Beastie Boys – Mike D (Mike Diamond) MCA (Adam Yauch) and Ad-Rock (Adam Horovitz) – came from wealthy middle-class Jewish families in New York and had become involved in the city's punk underground when they were teenagers in the early 1980s.

Technically, the Beastie Boys play hip-hop, but anyone who is aware of their music history knows they started as a hardcore punk band in 1981. OK, fine, the Beastie Boys also turned Buddhist, but in an age when Madonna is Jewish and Leonard Cohen is a monk, everything becomes relative.

Wait! I'm not really answering the question about why good Jewish boys make angry punk music. The truth is, there is no answer. Jews have always played a prominent role in music – all forms.

Some of the most popular Christmas songs were written by Jews, Tin Pan Alley was founded by Jews, and even Michael Bolton is a Jew, but let's keep that to ourselves.

Still, it's baffling to think that Jews started, revolutionized and advanced the punk movement. After all, you don't often see any mohawks at shul.

While such mainstream Jewish entertainers as Barry Manilow, Barbara Streisand and Neil Diamond were singing songs about the ocean and love, Lou Reed was writing about heroin. Richard Hell wrote about alienation and the Beastie Boys wrote songs about chaos in the streets.

Honestly, who was teaching these good Jewish boys all these awful thoughts?

Steven Himmelfarb is a freelance journalist and music promoter.

CLASSIFIED DIRECTORY

5 HOUSES FOR SALE
10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE
15 HOUSES FOR RENT
20 HOUSES FOR SALE/RENT
24 HOUSES WANTED TO BUY
25 HOUSES WANTED TO RENT
30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE
35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT
40 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE/RENT
45 CONDOMINIUM WANTED
50 ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
55 ACCOMMODATION WANTED
60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
62 SHARED ACCOMMODATION WANTED
65 ACCOMMODATION/SWAP/EXCHANGE
67 HOUSE SITTERS WANTED
68 HOUSE SITTERS AVAILABLE
70 UNIVERSITY ACCOMMODATION
75 APARTMENT FOR RENT
78 SHORT TERM RENTAL AVAILABLE
80 SHORT TERM RENTAL WANTED
81 APARTMENT TO SUBLET
82 ROOM AVAILABLE FOR RENT
84 ROOM WANTED FOR RENT
85 APARTMENT WANTED
87 PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
105 COTTAGE FOR SALE
110 COTTAGE FOR RENT
115 COTTAGE FOR RENT/SALE
120 COTTAGE WANTED
122 TIME SHARE FOR SALE
123 TIME SHARE FOR RENT
125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE
130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT
135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED
143 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. AVAIL.
145 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. WANTED
147 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION
150 FLORIDA TRANSPORTATION
155 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE
160 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT
165 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
170 ISRAEL PROPERTIES WANTED
175 ISRAEL ACCOMMODATION WANTED
178 ISRAEL TRANSPORTATION
180 OUT-OF-TOWN PROPERTIES
185 OUT-OF-COUNTRY PROPERTIES
190 VACATION PROPERTY AVAILABLE
195 VACATION PROPERTIES WANTED
196 VACATION PROPERTIES-EXCH./SHARE
198 SPACE FOR LEASE
199 COMMERCIAL PROPERTY AVAILABLE
200 OFFICE SPACE AVAILABLE
201 OFFICE SPACE WANTED
202 STORAGE SPACE WANTED
203 STORAGE SPACE AVAILABLE
205 LAND/LOTS FOR SALE
210 LAND/LOTS FOR LEASE
220 INVESTMENT PROPERTIES
225 INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES
230 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES
232 BUSINESS FOR SALE
235 BUSINESS WANTED
240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES
245 EMPLOYMENT WANTED
246 VOLUNTEERS
247 DAY CARE AVAILABLE
248 DAY CARE WANTED
250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE
255 DOMESTIC HELP WANTED
257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE
258 HEALTHCARE WANTED
259 SENIORS
260 BUSINESS PERSONALS
265 PEOPLE SEARCH
270 PERSONALS
273 INTRODUCTION SERVICES
275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED
279 PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY
280 ANNOUNCEMENTS
290 LOST & FOUND
295 PETS
300 ARTICLES FOR SALE
305 ARTICLES WANTED
313 BOATS
315 CARS
320 CONTENTS SALE
325 GARAGE SALE

SERVICE DIRECTORY

345 ACCOUNTING
350 APPLIANCES
355 AUDIO-VISUAL SALES/REPAIRS
357 AUTOMOTIVE
358 BRIDAL
365 CARPENTRY
368 CARPETS
370 CATERING
371 CERAMICS
372 CHUPPAHS
375 CLEANING/CLEANING SUPPLIES
379 CLOCKS/WATCHES
380 CLOTHING
382 COUNSELLING
385 COMPUTER
386 DANCING
387 DECORATING
390 DRIVING
392 DRY CLEANING/LAUNDRY
394 EDUCATION
395 ELECTRICAL
396 ELECTRONICS
400 ENTERTAINMENT
404 FITNESS & WEIGHT LOSS
405 FURNITURE
406 GARAGE DOORS
407 GIFT SERVICES
410 HEALTH & BEAUTY
412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING
415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS
416 HOME INSPECTION
419 INTERNET SERVICE
420 INVITATIONS/PRINTING/CALLIG.
425 JEWELLERY
427 JUDAICA
430 LEASING
431 LANDSCAPING/LAWNCARE
432 LAWYERS
433 LESSONS
434 LIMOUSINE/TAXI SERVICES
435 LIQUIDATION
438 LOCKSMITH
439 MAKE-UP
440 MISCELLANEOUS
442 MUSICAL SERVICES
445 MOVING
449 PEST CONTROL
450 PAINTING/WALLPAPERING
452 PARTY SERVICES
455 PHOTOGRAPHY/VIDEO
460 PLUMBING
465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES
470 RENOVATIONS
472 RETIREMENT HOMES
475 ROOFING
477 SECOND HAND STORES
478 SCHOOLS
480 SECURITY SYSTEMS
481 SEWING
482 SIGNS
485 SNOW REMOVAL
490 TABLE COVERING
495 TAILORING/ALTERATIONS
495 TILING
496 TRAINING
498 TRAVEL & TOURISM
500 TUTORING
510 UPHOLSTERY
515 WATERPROOFING
520 WINDOW COVERINGS
525 WINDOW REPLACEMENT
530 WINDOW CLEANING
550 WORKSHOPS

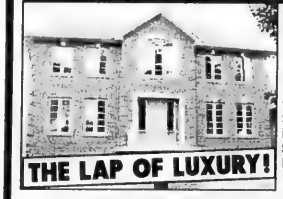
REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

DAVID EICHORN REALTY LIMITED

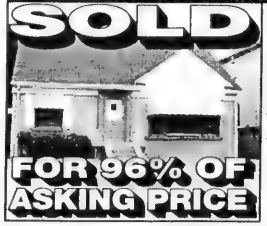
416 787•1712 — Visit our website: eichornrealty.com

BATHURST / DELL PARK — MAGNIFICENT CUSTOM HOME!



Approx. 3,500 sq. ft. + fin. bsmt., 5 + 1 bdrms., sep. entry to in-law suite, dream kit., main floor fam. room + library. All the bells & whistles — oak hrdwd. flrs., limestone, granite, skylights ++.Asking $1,029,000. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / LAWRENCE



Detached 3 bdrm., 1 1/2 storey home near luxury homes & facing picturesque Prince Charles Park. Ideal location to build your dream home! ACT FAST, WON'T LAST! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712. SOLD

BATHURST / LAWRENCE TRIPLEX — NEW LISTING!
Well maintained building in fabulous location close to TTC. Three 2 bedroom units, gross income $36,000 +. Total 4 parking spaces. PRICED FOR IMMEDIATE SALE AT ONLY $399,000. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

* * *

AVENUE ROAD / BATHURST / LAWRENCE — NEW LISTING!
Spacious 3 + 1 bedroom bungalow on magnificent 40 ft. lot surrounded by million $ homes. Renovated & decorated, sep. entry to in-law suite. FABULOUS DEAL AT ONLY $499,000, Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

* * *

BATHURST / LAWRENCE — NEW LISTING!
A REAL CHARMER! Renovated & decorated 3 + 1 bedroom on beautifully landscaped lot! Modern open concept, hardwood floors, w/o from kitchen to gorgeous yard, attached garage. ONLY $429,000 — ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

* * *

ALLEN ROAD / SHEPPARD NEW LISTING — WALK TO SUBWAY!
ATTENTION BUILDERS! Two 35 x 120 ft. lots, each approved for 2,600 sq. ft. home, INCREDIBLY PRICED AT ONLY $199,000 EACH. ACT FAST! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

* * *

BATHURST / LAWRENCE— APARTMENT FOR RENT!
TWO BRIGHT, SPACIOUS UNITS [illegible] baths, w/o to balcony, quiet buildin[illegible]subway, shops, schools, shuls. $1,250 — $1,400 / m[illegible] David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.
ONE RENTED, ONE LEFT!

*BROKER

BATHURST / GLENGROVE — EXQUISITE NEW CUSTOM HOME!
5 + 2 bdrms., 5 baths, fin. bsmt., sep. entry to in-law suite, fam. room, dream kit. Luxurious upgrades throughout! Lowest priced new home in area. REDUCED TO $979,000! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712. Visit our website for a virtual tour.

* * *

ATTENTION BUILDERS:
Dream home opportunities on these ideally-situated building lots!

AVENUE / BATHURST / OLDSTREAM 50 x 150 ft. SOLD
BATHURST / LAWRENCE 50 ft. frontage, $399,000 REDUCED
AVENUE ROAD / LAWRENCE 44 ft. frontage, $449,000

* * *

BATHURST / LAWRENCE — REDUCED!
MAGNIFICENT CUSTOM LUXURY HOME on 58 x 132 ft. lot that widens to 83 ft. at rear. Unique opportunity, condo alternative, huge palatial bungalow. ideal for entertaining, indoor pool. Only $849,000. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

* * *

BATHURST / WILSON — AFFORDABLE LUXURY
EXQUISITE NEW TOWNHOMES in prime central location! Choice of 3 & 4 bdrm. units, each individually customized, attached garages and features galore, priced from $399,000. Model home available for viewing! Call David Eichorn* NOW at (416) 787-1712.

P. BIRNBAUM
COLDWELL BANKER TERREQUITY

Bathurst Manor spectacular
4 bdrm. custom built home on ravine.
Quality finishes throughout. Fabulous atrium with 9 ft. glass dome. Must be seen.
416-495-2266

Exceptional Custom Built New Home

$2,995,000. Could be ready for late fall occupancy. 6,900 sq ft (including lower level). Finest of finishes - Hand crafted Kitchen & Bathrooms, large Dining Room, main floor Library & Family Room. 5 Bedrooms on second floor plus finished Lower Level.

To view, please call Ethel Sapera, Sales Representative at 416-489-2121
Royal LePage R. E. S. Ltd./JOHNSTON & DANIEL DIVISION

Eleonora Segal
Sales Representative
Diamond Award of Merit
Royal LePage Real Estate Services Ltd.
JOHNSTON & DANIEL DIVISION
416-489-2121

ROYAL LEPAGE — SOLD

2 SPECTACULAR RAVINE LOTS
BATHURST / SHEPPARD

$429,000 - Build your dream home! C.O.A. Approved to build up to 4,200 sq ft. Backing onto conservation land. Plans available.

BATHURST / FINCH

$179,900 - Lovely 2 bdrm + 2 bath condo in demand building. Magnificent views from wrap around balcony. Steps to TTC & shops.

REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

Forest Hill

Real Estate Inc. Realtor

416-488-2875 Forest Hill Village | 416-785-1500 Central | 416-226-1987 Bayview

List with us and appear on our Website: www.foresthill.com

CENTRAL PROPERTIES

1ST AD - 27 RIDGE HILL $1,800,000
Attention builders! 2 lots prime Upper Forest Hill Village, 45' x 120' and 50' x 120'. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

DUNBLAINE BEAUTY
3 yrs new, 4+1 bdrms, 5 baths, Gourmet kit w/S.S.+granite, 10' clngs, steam shower, Jacuzzi+marble. L. Reitapple* 416-488-2875

UPPER FOREST HILL VILLAGE $899K
Custom built home – top quality finishes, 1.5 years new, 3 bedrooms, 4 baths. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

WONDERFUL CEDARVALE HOME! $875K
Centre hall plan, 4 bedrooms, 4 baths, huge main floor family room, 55x120 ft., garage. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

PRIME UPPER FOREST HILL - JUST $799K
Extensively Renovated 2002 + 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, main floor Family Room. 46 x 121 ft., 10+. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

ARMOUR HEIGHTS CUL-DE-SAC $799K
Renovated 5 bedroom home, open concept. Family room/kitchen, 43 x 116 ft lot. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

ELEGANT CUSTOM BUILT, PRIME LOCATION!
Great layout, hardwood, antique kitchen, granite countertops, 3 bedrooms. Elena Kholodov* 416-226-1987

PRIME NORTH YORK - RAVINE $777,000
Beautifully renovated, raised bungalow ideal for 2 families, country setting, Heart of the City. Patti Pollock* 416-226-1987

BATHURST/LAWRENCE FABULOUS BUNGALOW
$619,000. 3+1 bedrooms, side split, 55' lot, large LR, DR, Main floor family room, 4 parking. Saul Merrick* 416-488-2875

ARMOUR HEIGHTS - 4 BEDROOMS $585,000
Main Floor Powder Room - Updated, eat-in kitchen, Breathtaking 75' lot on demand street. Patti Pollock* 416-226-1987

BAYVIEW/NORTH PROPERTIES

101 SWEET WATER CRESCENT $459,990
Luxury Acorn Built, loaded, shows like a model home! Steve Wagman* 416-785-1500

4 BEDROOM FAMILY HOME DUFFERIN/10 OAKS
$425,000. 2 year new, open LR, DR, eat-in kitchen with walkout to deck, large family room, b/l garage. M. Merrick* 416-488-2875

NEW PRICE! DON MILLS/FINCH $329,000
Raised Bungalow, 3+1 bedroom, 2 baths, large LR, DR, separate entrance to fin basement, B/I garage. Saul Merrick* 416-488-2875

CONDOMINIUM PROPERTIES

STUNNING 3 BEDROOM FOREST HILL PENTHOUSE
Recent renovated, open LR, DR, eat-in kitchen, 3 baths, 2 parking. concierge, pool, near subway. M. Merrick* 416-488-2875

"BREATHTAKING" FOREST HILL PENTHOUSE
Newly Renovated 1 bedroom+den, 2 baths, corner, spectacular views + finishes, near Village shops. M. Merrick* 416-488-2875

FOREST HILL VILLAGE CONDO
Beautiful 2 bedrooms, 2 baths, East exposure, hardwood floors throughout. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

COLLEGE/LITTLE ITALY – NEW PRICE!
Just renovated, new kitchen, new baths, new hardwood floors throughout, 3 bedrooms. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

5055 HEATHERLEIGH AVE, #144 - $244,000
Stunning, 3 bedroom + 2 bath condo townhouse. A must see! Lilia Butko* 416-785-1500

RENTAL PROPERTIES

FOR LEASE - BATHURST/EGLINTON
$1,350/month. Immaculate, 2 bedrooms, 1 bath, 1 parking space. Available September. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

Associate Broker  Sales Representative

Looking for a nanny?
Check out The Canadian Jewish news CLASSIFIEDS

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

HARVEY KALLES REAL ESTATE LIMITED

IMPRESSIVE IN A CLASS BY ITSELF!!!
$5,300K. Matchless construction & appearance! Ideal setting for ent ... lux pool & hot tub, media rm, wine cellar, grt rm w/soaring clngs & 2 frplcs, 2 mstr bdrms (1 on mn flr), elevator…see 4 yourself! Elise Kalles & Corinne Kalles* ext. 555

PALACE IN THE COUNTRY!
$3,680,000. Considered The Bridle Path of Richmond Hill, featuring 2 acres, 6+2 bdrms, 10 baths, indoor & outdoor pools + courts, elevator, wrought iron gates, 4 car garage and more. Michelle Schipper & David Zaikin ext. 289/545

BAYVIEW GLEN PALACE!
$1,899K. Exquisite fam home. 5+3 bdrms, 8 baths, mn flr study, top of line appl. Wrought iron staircase, hrdwd, pool, cabana, waterfall, 3 car gar+more. Michelle Schipper ext. 289

A DREAM HOUSE
$1,599K. Stunning departure from the ordinary!!! California style cstm fam home designed for entertaining. Lndscpd grdn w/ingrnd pool. Spac principal rms. Corinne Kalles* ext. 555

PRESTIGIOUS OLD THORNHILL
$1,449K. Beautiful cstm home featuring 5,000 sf. of lux living. 5+1 bdrms, 5 baths, fin'd bsmnt, main floor study, pool size lot, professionally landscaped. Michelle Schipper ext. 289

CUSTOM FAMILY HOME
New price $1,090K! Loc on quiet court, prestigious Old Thornhill. Bldr's own home. Top qlty fin's. 5+1 bdrms, 5 baths, fin'd bsmnt. Fab. lot w/mature trees. Michelle Schipper ext. 289

FIRST PRESENTATION
Prime Armour Heights fam hm. Lrge 4 bdrms, 5 baths on premium lot. Ready to move in! Must see! Adeana Axler* ext. 230

MOVE RIGHT IN...
To this stunning fam home. Tastefully reno top to bottom. Mature landscaping offers complete privacy. High demand loc with best schools. Don't delay!! $799,000. Corinne Kalles* ext. 555
SOLD

LESLIE / YORK MILLS PERFECTION
$689,000. Superb renovation on desirable cul-de-sac. 4 bdrms, 3 baths, family rm w/o to garden, designer kitchen, elegant décor, beautiful landscaping. A gem. Elaine Chelin* ext. 269

DRAMATIC REDUCTION – LOVELY BACKSPLIT
$479,900. Reno'd top–bottom – new appl; wndws; roof & more. 4+1 bdrms+fin'd bsmnt, hrdwd/laminate flrs; fam rm-oversized w/frplc; walk to all–exc street lot. Paula Bernstein* ext. 228

DAVENPORT TOWNHOUSE - $399,900
Two storey, bright 2 bedroom condo. Private enclosed garden & underground parking. Walk to George Brown, Casa Loma & subway. Cheryl Joseph* ext. 235

1st AD! BATHURST / LAWRENCE
$254,000. Great value! 2 bedroom, 2 bath condo. Fabulous tree top unobstructed view! 1 Parking, locker, full time concierge, pool, etc. Cheryl Graff* 416-441-3778

*Sales Representative Associate Broker

Residential & Commercial & Industrial * Investment & Land

A portion of the proceeds from all our sales will be donated to the Hospital for Sick Children.

416-441-2888 www.harveykalles.com Find us on eBay.ca

BATHURST/WELDRICK
Fabulous 3 bed., 3 bath. family home on tree lined street, backing onto quiet park. Huge family room and gas fireplace, custom kitchen, walk-out to deck from d/room. Only 1 block to new Vaughan JCC campus.

Call Malcolm Austin (Sales Rep.) Royal LePage Partners Realty 416-229-4454 to arrange a private appointment.

INCREDIBLE WATERFRONT PROPERTY KEMPENFELT BAY
Rare find, 1.8 acres private forest, 117' prime sandy btm, 12 steps to prof. landscaped waterfront with incredible curved stone wall, unistone patio, dock, solid boathse, rail, several areas for entertaining & capturing magnificent view & sunsets. Quaint 4 season cottage, gar/shop. Big Bay Point - s. of Barrie. $1,249,000. Call for directions.

PATTIE HARPER
C21 B.J. Roth Realty
416-350-3973 OR DIRECT 705-791-0440

HARVEY KALLES REAL ESTATE LIMITED

MICHELLE KAHN, M.B.A.
416-441-2888 ext. 612

THORNHILL & TORONTO LISTINGS

bathurst/wilson $1,050,000. 4+1 bdrms, 5 baths, hrdwd flrs, gorgeous LR/DR comb, designer kitchen, w/out to deck, fam rm, office, finished basement, w/out to pool & garden.

bathurst/steeles $499,900. 3+2 bdrms, 3 baths, open concept combined LR/DR, family room, walkout to garden, finished basement, double garage, 66' wide lot.

bathurst/clark $1,598,000. 5+1 bdrms, 7 baths, hrdwd flrs, elegant lr and dr., main floor office, huge fam rm w/ 3 sided gas f/place, walkout to magnificent pool. mature treed private exquisitely landscaped garden. 4 car garage.

bathurst/clark $1,688,000. 4+1 bedrooms, 6 baths, state-of-the-art kitchen, walk-out from superbly finished basement, maple floors, gorgeous mature treed pool size garden. 3 car garage, 100' x 150'.

yonge/clark $1,179,000.4 bedroom penthouse, huge master suite, gas fireplace, fabulous white eat-in kitchen, granite floors, huge dining rm, living rm & family rm. Breathtaking views of sunrise and sunsets from terraces. bathurst/steeles $369,000. 1550 sq ft. superb totally reno'd luxury condo. 2 bdrms, 2 full baths, s.w. view, eat-in kitchen, hardwood floors, balcony. EXQUISITE RENO.

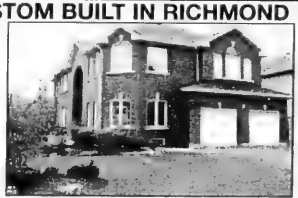
bathurst/clark $399,000. 4 bdrms, main floor family rm w/fplc, lr/dr comb., hardwood floors, eat-in kitchen, main flr laundry, entry from double garage, w/out to huge garden.

bathurst/clark $349,900. 3 bdrms, 4 baths, new windows, new roof, laminate floors, eat-in kitchen, entry from garage, huge deck, large park-like garden, fnshd bsmt, quiet cres.

A PROVEN HISTORY OF COMMITMENT AND RESULTS

CUSTOM BUILT IN RICHMOND HILL



Uniquely beautiful 4 bedroom home in one of Richmond Hills finest neighbourhoods. First time offering. Over 3,300 sq. ft. of elegantly custom designed living space with a fabulously finished basement. Elevator access to all levels! Maticulously landscaped. Near new CHAT. Visit www.alberthomevalue.com. Call MARK ALBERT, Associate Broker / LOIS MAXIM, Sales Rep. at Re/Max Realtron Realty - 416-782-8882.

SEIDMAN
REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR
416-633-7373

BATHURST/BJCC
Greatly reduced, lrg 3 bdrm, 5 baths, liv & din comb, main flr laundry & powder room, family room with walkout to yard, fin basement with private entrance, 2 car garage, quiet crescent.

FINCH/WILMINGTON
3 bdrm bungalow, 2 baths, 2 kitchens, fin bsmnt with private entrance, garage, steps to all.

BATHURST/STEELES
Large 2 bedroom condo, 2 baths, corner unit, balcony, parking, locker, A-1 buy.

416-633-7373

CUSTOM-BUILT BEAUTY @ BATHURST/STEELES
$629,000. 4+1 bdrms w/soaring ceilings, o/size windows, hrdwd in LR/DR, gourmet kit, 2 ensuites, fin bsmnt w/sauna, wet bar, F/P, 3 pce. Steve/ Ellen Fisher, Century 21 Heritage Grp. 905-764-7111

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

ESSIE SHER

JUST LISTED

BATHURST/HIGHWAY 7
$359,900. Gorgeous 3 bdrm + family rm, approx. 1,825 sq. ft., 2nd floor laundry, 9 ft ceilings, strip hardwood. Best street. Perfect layout. L/R, D/R combo.

BATHURST/LAWRENCE
$859,000. Total reno - like new. 5 bdrms, 5 baths, hrdwd, gorgeous kit/fam rm, granite. Huge L/R, D/R combo, 2nd floor laundry. Amazing price!! Stucco + more.

RENTAL $2,200/MO. BATHURST/CENTRE
3 bdrm, finished basement, totally upgraded. Acorn built, end unit. Available December.

Sutton Group Realty Specialists Inc.
416-256-7000

10 PRIVATE HOUSES FOR SALE

3000 Bathurst St., 1200 sq. ft., 2 bdrm, 2 baths, solarium, prof. renovated. Ceramic kitchen, ensuite laundry, 1 parking. East view. $325,000. 416-580-7327.

Thornhill home for sale, York Hill Blvd. 905-886-3663. Details at www.geocities.com/eidanruth

15 HOUSES FOR RENT

Bathurst/Steeles, 4 bdrm, 3 bath, eat-in kit., central vac & A/C. Part fin. bsmt., walk to TTC/shops/schools. $1700/mo. + util. Call 647-223-1223.

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

BATHURST-SHEPPARD
ELEGANT TWIN BLDS.
Very lrg. 1, 2, 3 Bedrooms, 2 & 3 Bdrms. w/2 balconies and 2 baths.
Ample closets plus cedar, Roof laundry, ravine setting, pool, pkg. incl.
5 Apts. per flr.
416-980-3238 - Bus.
416-631-9377 or 416-631-0388 - Super

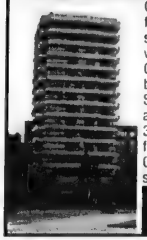
Townsgate, 2 bdrm., 2 baths, avail. Nov. 1, $1750/mo. Call Patty at 905-881-9803.

30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE

SANTEE REALTY INC. 416-441-2003

SKYMARK
DON MILLS & FINCH - UPDATED LISTINGS
Skymark 89 Excellence: renovated, 2 bedrooms + den + family + balcony
Skymark 65 Elegance: reno, 2 bdrms + family + balcony. Approx. 2,200 s.f.
Skymark 55 Zenith: 3 bedrooms + solarium. Approx. 1,600 s.f.
For my updated inventory, colour brochures & 360° virtual tour, call
SANTEE LEUNG, F.R.I., SKYMARK SPECIALIST

Rare Offering in Exclusive 12 Suite Bldg.



One-of-a-kind opportunity! Spacious, updated, fabulous & luxurious. 1 suite per flr. Approx. 2400 sq. ft., full balc. w/o's from every rm. Spectacular views of city. 2 elevators direct to suite. Glamorous marble flrs. & baths, 3 spacious bdrms. w/built-ins. Lg. open plan liv. & din. rms. Spacious modern island kit. w/built-in appls.; separate Subzero fridge & freezer, cupboards galore! 3 car pkg. Central location nestled in warm, friendly neighbourhood of million $$ homes. Comfort & value. Compare with anything you've seen! $869K.

Alan Ungerman, Broker 416-785-7111
e-mail:* aungerman@trebnet.com
Ungerman Associates R.E. Ltd., Rltr.

"THE COURTLANDS" BATHURST/STEELES
Bright 2 bdrm, 2 bath corner suite, 8th floor with balcony. Sep liv and din room. Recently updated with very large eat-in kitchen. 6 appliances, ceiling light/fan fixtures, custom window blinds. Beautifully landscaped grnds, 24 hr security, outdoor pool + tennis courts, close to all amenities.
Call...SOPHIE KAY
Royal LePage Partners
416-221-5515

35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT

Bathurst/Centre (Promenade), 1550 sq. ft., 2 bdrm., 2 bath, 2 prkng., corner unit. Avail. Nov. 1, 416-460-9390.

80 Antibes, 2 br., 1 1/2 baths, 2 prkg., ravine view, shabbos elevator, syn. onsite. 416-661-1665.

RARELY AVAILABLE
Dec. 1, 3000 Bathurst, main fl., lrg 900' 1 bdrm, 28' LR, lrg. sol. (or 2nd bdrm), ensuite, indry, priv. patio, $1395 incl. util., cable, A/C, 24 hr. secur., fitness rm., sauna, priv. park. Leave name & phone # at 905-888-5293, your call WILL be returned.

50 ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE

Room & board, 24 hr. health svc., seniors & pensioners welcome. Call 416-653-2834 or 416-245-0033.

60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE

Finch/Bathurst, avail., ideal for male, use of kitchen, own bath. Call 416-780-1889.

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

Bathurst/Sheppard, lux., spacious, bright apts., in quiet ravine setting off main streets, newly reno'd, walk to TTC, utilities incl. 1 bdrm. avail. immediately/November 1. Call 905-474-3600, 416-633-1484.

Bathurst/Lawrence, lrg. 1 bed. bsmt. apt., 8' ceilings, 4 pc. bath, laundry. No pets or smoking. Call 416-789-0828.

Gates of Bayview, facing west, newly reno., lrg. 1 bdrm. apt., w/walk-in closet, new appliances, great view, a must see. $1250. 416-948-3085. Avail. Nov. 1.

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

Bath./Law., new 1 bdrm. bsmt. apt., new appl., $700 util/cbl/-lndry. No smkg. 416-224-0430.

78 SHORT TERM RENTAL AVAILABLE

Clark/Hilda, furnished, 2 bdrm., 2 bath, prkng., rec. cntre. Dec. 1-March 31 (flex.). 905-889-4382.

105 COTTAGE FOR SALE

Lake Simcoe, Big Cedar Pt., 50' lakefront, yr-rnd., reno'd., 3+bdrms., 3 bath, open concept LR/DR & kitch., cath. ceilings, skylight, fireplace, lrg. cedar deck with 2 w/o, nr. day camp, synagogues, furn'd., turn key. $549,000. Call 416-781-2007.

130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT

Sunrise Lake, Ft. Lauderdale, 2 bdrm., 2 bath, kosher, on golf course. Call 416-560-2496.

Hollywood beachfront, studio apt. on beach. Great location, avail. Dec. & Apr. 416-992-8995.

Aquarius-Hollywood, lux. 2 bdrm., 2 bath, excellent condition, furn. condo on ocean, excellent views. Avail. Jan. 12, 3 mo. min. $2500/mo. US. 416-661-1389, (Mon.-Fri., 9 a.m.-5 p.m.).

South Miami Beach, 1 bdrm., reno'd., new furniture, parking, satellite, near shops, restaurant. Avail. Oct. 25, $1100/mo. US., 2 months min. 416-667-8045.

Hallandale, Hemispheres, studio. amens., 3 mo., $3600/US + sec. dep. 416-667-5795 (8 a.m.-4 p.m.) 905-881-3863 (anytime).

2 bdrm., seasonal rental, Century Village, Palm-Aire or Margate. 416-665-6303.

Lux. condo on Millionaire's Row, 5555 Collins Ave., Miami Beach. Oceanfront, 2+2, fully furnished. Min. 3 mos., $3000/mo. US. Please call 305-525-5142.

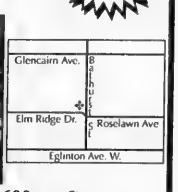
Surfside oceanfront penthouse, magnificent view, 2 bdrm., 2 bath, laundry, kosher kitchen, indoor parking. Rental for season $9600. 416-441-1957.

75 APARTMENTS FOR SALE

Luxury Apartments for Rent

The Eldorado
2500 Bathurst St.

Few Remaining Call Today!



- Central Air Conditioning
- New Kitchens and Bathrooms
- Hardwood Floors
- Laundry Facilities on each Floor
- 2 Bedroom: 1,600 sq. ft.
- 2 Bedroom + Den: 1,700 sq. ft.
- 3 Bedroom: 2,300 sq. ft.
- 3 Bedroom + Den: 2,500 sq. ft.

For more information or to schedule a viewing, please call:
416-787-9451 • 416-878-4441 • 416-878-6618

130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT

Hallandale, Parker Plaza on ocean. 1 bed. convertible. 2 bath. From Jan.-March, min. 3 mos. $6500/US. 416-324-8611.

Hollywood Beach, timeshare 2 rm., 2 baths, 2 TVs, Jan. 15-Feb. 12. Please call 416-739-6401.

ARLEN HOUSE EAST, 1 bdrm., 2 1/2 baths, spotless. Please call 905-886-0347.

Coconut Creek, Wynmoor, beautiful 2 bedrooms, 2 bathrooms in active adult community. Washer/dryer on premises. Near pool. Available November 1, 4-5 months. 514-486-6864.

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT/SALE

Studio for rent, waterfront bldg Aventura, 10th flr, exc rates. 305-510-1691, 305-271-7820.

ALTER REALTY INC.
The Leading Specialist In Adult Communities
Gerry Alter, Broker
Toll Free: 866.421.5669 Office: 954.421.4886
Cell: 954.448.2942 Fax: 954.421.2725
www.alterrealestate.com

BUY WITH US - No Transaction Fees
LIST WITH US 5% Commission Rate

FULL BROKERAGE SERVICES
A Top Team of Realtors
Multiple Listing Service
U.S. & International Advertising
Internet Exposure with Photos

ANBER MOVERS
SPECIALIST IN:
TORONTO - VANCOUVER
NEW YORK - FLORIDA
(514) 735-8148
1-800-561-MOVE
"BONDED"

140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED

Looking for 1-2 bdrms. in any Century Village, Florida. Jan.-March. 416-225-1544.

Wanted to rent Century Village, Deerfield, winter season, 1 or 2 bdrm., 2 1/2 baths, 2 mo. or more. Price & time negotiable. 905-762-8876 / 416-782-4684.

147 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION

Fl. Hollywood, furnished 2 bdrm., 2 bath. Across from beach, near golf, lux. bldg., 3 mo. min. Valet, security, indoor parking. Outdoor pool, gym. Avail. Jan. 1, '05. Call 905-731-0609, dhcooper@yahoo.com

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT/SALE

147 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION

Tony Rogers Inc. has great deals on oceanfront hotels in Miami. From Oct. 20-Dec. 19 $65/US. From Dec. 20-Dec. 31 $99/US. for standard rooms & efficiencies. Call 305-866-8965.

To place a classified ad please call 416-391-1836

165 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT

PROPERTIES IN ISRAEL
PRESTIGIOUS PROJECT IN REHAVIA - Radak Street. Prime location, deluxe interior, very large units - duplex or full floor, large garden or terrace. Exquisite architecture. Genuine Grandeur. Exclusive to PROSPERITY REAL ESTATE.
Tel. +972-2-567-0303
www.prosperity-realestate.com

190 VACATION PROPERTY AVAILABLE

Enjoy your winter vacation in sunny Palm Springs, Ca. 2 bdrm./2.5 bath + extra rooms, priv. pool/spa, bbq, pool table, $1800/wk., $4000/mo., longer stay negotiable. (323) 650-1705. sandygilad@hotmail.com

PALM SPRINGS, CA
VACATION RENTALS
We have 1-2-3 bedroom condos. Nicely furnished in super locations. From $1250 - $4500 per mo. U.S.
CHOPSY SAMUELSON REALTY
760-327-8429

LAKE SIMCOE WATERFRONT
6.74 acres, 104 ft. of sandy shoreline. 4 cottages. Renovated w/hrdwd flrs., new kit. & baths, boathouse, boatlift. Very private park-like setting. Ideal for multi family. Call Eleanor Beatty toll free* 1-877-436-5111, Homelife K/K.

200 OFFICE SPACE AVAILABLE

Modern 6 private offices on Sheppard, reception, boardroom, kitchen, parking, signage included. Call 416-250-8535.

205 LAND/LOTS FOR SALE

Balfour Beach, Lake Simcoe, 22 acres for future development. $629,000. Call 905-737-5879.

232 BUSINESS FOR SALE

PRINTING COMPANY FOR SALE

Excellent location

Large list of outstanding and loyal customers

Willing to help with transition

416-823-4582

Printing4sale@hotmail.com

240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Why not try courier work? Kid Gloves Delivery needs drivers immediately. Own vehicle, knowledge of Toronto. Part-time possible. Please call 416-977-9683.

Part-time secretary wanted, male/female, any age, several hours a week, $10 per hour, for simple typewriting, and computer work. Please respond to John in writing - Cummer Lodge, 205 Cummer Ave., Room S415, Toronto, Ont. M2M 2E8.

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

McCaskill Household Services Ltd.
Homemakers, H.C.A., P.S.W.'s
Live in - Day/Night Shifts
•The Elderly •The Chronically Ill
•Hospital Recovery
We cover all your needs to help you stay at home
Personal care, Light housekeeping, Meal preparation
Providing service for over 57 years
416-431-2443

Golden Care Ltd.
People you trust, taking care of people you love
Caregivers Live-in/out
Health Care Aides, Sitters, Cooks, Housekeepers & Companions
THE BEST FOR LESS
www.goldencare.ca
Hourly, daily or 24-hour live-in
Home, hospital & palliative care
416-665-4229

WEE CARE!
PLACEMENT AGENCY
Dedicated to Caring Since 1996
Nannies • Housekeepers • Baby Nurses
Sponsoring from abroad
Live In & Live Out • Full Time & Part Time
Candidates pre-screened • References checked
Service guaranteed
416-789-3070

AMACARE
All candidates pre-screened
✓ Nannies
✓ Caregivers
✓ Housekeepers
Call now to book your Caregiver or Nanny from Hong Kong
www.amacare.ca
416-850-0851

P.J.'s Caregiving Services
...helping you care for your loved ones
Experienced live-in/out caregivers, f/t or p/t.
NO FEE to sponsor our applicants overseas.
www.pjcares.com
(416) 266-0130

Experience, reliable cleaning lady avail. With excellent refs. Mon.-Fri. 416-244-7065.

Del's Cleaning Service, we clean condos, offices, houses and renovation clean up, after party clean. 416-651-9688.

Cleaning lady looking for house to clean, very good refs. 416-537-4505.

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

DIAMOND PERSONNEL INC.
NANNIES • HOUSEKEEPERS • HOME CARE
•LIVE-IN/LIVE-OUT
•PERMANENT
•LOCAL & OVERSEAS
•SCREENED CANDIDATES
•FRIENDLY, PERSONAL SERVICE
BEST NANNY AGENCY 2003 & 2004 CITY PARENT
4841 YONGE ST. at Sheppard Subway
416-730-8866
OTTAWA 1-888-886-8209
www.diamondpersonnel.com

Z's DOMESTICS
NANNIES • HOUSEKEEPERS • ELDERCARE
EURO-FILIPINAS • CLEANERS • EXPERIENCED
• Live-in/out in Toronto • Screened, Guaranteed
• F/T, P/T, Certified • Kashruth & Hebrew
• Local Placement • Free sponsorship of Filipinas
From ISRAEL & EUROPE
905-731-1845

family matters
Caregivers • Nannies • Housekeepers
Live-in, Live-out • All candidates pre-screened
Many of our candidates are personally interviewed by us in Hong Kong
Service guaranteed
Contact Tova Rich @ 416.633.0017
familymatters@rogers.com

ShineX Caregivers Inc
Quality Caregivers, Nannies and Immigration Services
Licensed Immigration Consultant, C.S.I.C. Member
www.shinexcaregivers.com
Tel: 416-218-9537
7 Steeles Ave. East, Suite 4, Toronto, ON M2M 3Y2
Fax: 416-221-7866
Email: nannies@shinexcaregivers.com

Gillian's CAREGIVING AGENCY QUALITY CARE of the Elderly, Mentally Challenged and Physically Handicapped, in Hospital, Private Residence Retirement Home or Nanny
COMPANIONS • HOMEMAKERS
• We guarantee quality care at affordable rates.
• On-going contact with you after placement
TEL: 905-707-6291
gillianscaregiving.com

White Lily (Cleaning Service) houses, apts., offices, any day, any time. 24 hrs. 416-917-3450.

Reliable English/French spkng. Portuguese lady avail. to clean houses, apts., condos. Refs., own car. 416-782-8461.

Do you need assistance with shopping, light cooking, driving to appts.? Reasonable rates, avail. Mon.-Fri. 905-731-4242.

257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE

Top Notch
Caregivers and Health Care Aides
Quality elderly & disability care
PSW's, HCA's, RN's, Baby Nurses and Homemakers
Live-in/out, Temp Placements and Overnight Care 416-785-3939
topnotchcare@rogers.com

Qualicare
www.qualicare.ca
♥ Private nursing
♥ Homecare support
♥ Retirement living services
♥ Short or long-term care
For a free consultation, call:
416 628-7449

To place a classified ad please call 416-391-1836

257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE

Careable Inc.
GERIATRIC CARE MANAGEMENT
HEALTH CARE EQUIPMENT
FACILITY PLACEMENT
HOMECARE SUPPORT
Telephone: 416 362-9176 Fax: 416 362-3035
Mobile: 416 219-5290 E-mail: careable@sympatico.ca

273 INTRODUCTION SERVICES

B"H SOULMATES WORLDWIDE JEWISH MATCHMAKERS
Matches are made in heaven...
We just assist!
Call now! 905-709-3868.
www.soulmates.net.

Bringing People Together Inc. An engagement each month. Call Ruth, 905-731-5204.

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS

Replying to an ad with a CJN Box Number?
Address your mail to:
The Canadian Jewish News
1500 Don Mills Rd.
Suite 205
North York, Ont.
M3B 3K4
Don't forget to put the Box Number on your envelope.
CJN Box #'s are valid for 30 days.

A good looking prof. man, 5'9", seeks a woman in 40s, for relationship. E-mail: kc2425@hotmail.com

A very handsome, sincere, family-oriented, single, self-employed, professional, conservative, Jewish gentleman, 44 yrs. young, is looking for his soulmate. She is 30-45, 5'2" to 5'9", very attractive, good personality, sincere and thoughtful, so that we can live, laugh and love each other forever. Please send a letter telling me about yourself, accompanied by a recent photo to CJN Box. #5003.

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS

Attractive Jewish gentleman, late 50s, non-smoker, a real mench, looking for love, 5'9", slim build searching for a kind, sweet compassionate & loving woman 48-59, recent photo is a must. Contact CJN Box #5001.

Middle age man, happy person, looking for a middle age lady for a long term relationship. Contact CJN Box #5002.

280 ANNOUNCEMENTS

Congratulations! Winners of Na'amat Canada's Daily Calendar Lottery Draw for Sept. 2004: Karen Lundy, Leslie Train, Linda Kates, Sheila Blackstien, Deirdre Beckerman, Art Chamberlain, Denise Davis, Malka Weisblum, Anne Mitgang, Rosalie Steinberg, Foli Chester, Eliza Goldberg, Freema Trager, Olga Gurrieri, Ronald Balinsky, Ruth Gould, F. Leitner, Iris Grant, Audrey Shecter, Ruth & Isaac Glowinsky, Florence Sherman, Judy Glass, Mrs. L. Cooper, Pearl Karal, E. Leitner, Sylvie Wiseman, Robert & Cynthia Schwartz, Sharon Magen, Rina Cohen, Andy Ryan.

300 ARTICLES FOR SALE

Mintz & Partners is using less paper
And we have furniture available, including
Filing systems (rolling or static)
Desks/tables *Filing cabinets (2 to 5 drawers) *Meeting tables *Sofa Interested? Call Office Services at 416-644-4445

305 ARTICLES WANTED

Books & diaries bought by Ben. Instant cash for 1-1000 books. Call Ben, 416-890-9644.

305 ARTICLES WANTED

Wanted: quality antiques, fine art, watches, jewellery, estates. Please call 905-764-1112.

SERVICE DIRECTORY Section

345 ACCOUNTING

We provide accounting, bookkeeping, personal & corporate tax returns. Leon Shegal, CFA. MBA. Please call 416-398-9521.

For Faster Results Advertise in the CJN
Canada's Largest Jewish Newspaper

350 APPLIANCES

Sobie's 416 224-2526
162 Willowdale Ave. (Yonge / Sheppard area)
www.sobies.com • 30+ years in-home service
We repair all major appliances including:
SUB-ZERO • JENNAIR • THERMADOR

370 CATERING

BAR/BAT MITZVAHS
SHORT NOTICE & SAME DAY SERVICE
• DELIVERY AVAILABLE
416-789-7651
3457 BATHURST ST.
milk 'n honey
THE DAIRY RESTAURANT

370 CATERING

Dairy Treats Restaurant & Catering
Brit Milah • Bar/Bat Mitzvahs (COR)
Home or Office • Shiva Meals • Corporate Accounts
3522 Bathurst St. (S. of Wilson) 416-787-0309
www.dairytreats.com

CHICKEN NEST (COR)
Kosher Restaurant
• DINE IN
• TAKE OUT
• CATERING
Home & Office Parties • Babynamings
Bar / Bat Mitzvahs • Sheva Brachot
"SHIVA CATERING A SPECIALTY"
416-787-6378

395 ELECTRICAL

Electrician seeks small jobs only, no appliances. Please call 416-636-5732.

All kinds of electrical jobs. For great service call Serge. Licensed. 416-834-4312.

405 FURNITURE

Earl Bales Sr. Woodworkers. We do minor furn. repairs on chairs & replace caning. Our prices are reas. We also do custom work. Phil or Jack 416-630-6487, 10-3, Mon.-Thurs.

Marcantonio Furniture Repair Specializing in touchups Restoration & general repairs done on premises. 416-654-0518.

RENDE WOOD DESIGN Custom Entertainment & Wall Units, Furniture Refinishing. Jeff Rittenberg - 416-247-3565

412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING

24 hr. repairs, services & installs a/c, heat & refrigeration, commercial & residential, licens-ed tech. Call Alex 416-671-0267.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENT

AlphaSolutions
Flooring & Painting Contractor
Hardwood–Marble–Carpeting
Antique Effects & Murals
FREE ESTIMATES
416-488-2162
Steve Jonas

A-1 Handyman, specializing in indoor repairs, drywall, electrical, plumbing, painting & finished bsmnts. 647-887-5075.

TILE INSTALLATION, ceramic, slate, limestone, flagstone & porcelain. Quality work since 1965. Low rates, free estimates, excellent references, licensed and insured. Please call Peter, 416-733-2237.

Exper. handyman. All home repairs & improvements, electrical, plumbing, kitchen, baths, roof, fence & deck. Sun.-Fri. 905-709-4906.

Small residential renovations. Quality workmanship. Reliability & reasonable prices. Refs. avail. Lic. Call Traore at 416-928-2915.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENT

Handyman, home repairs, paint, tile, bathroom re-grout, re-silicone. Ben, 416-372-2255.

City East Hardwood Flooring Sand, stain, finish. 905-839-0733.

Renovations & repairs. Drywall, flooring, painting, minor plumbing & electrical. Call Joe, 416-636-7935.

EPHRAM, carpentry, ceramic, electrical, plumbing, drywall & more. 416-636-3425.

Before signing any contract, make sure your contractor is appropriately licensed with the Metropolitan Licensing Commission 416-392-3000

438 LOCKSMITH

LOCKS - DEADBOLTS Schlage, Special 1 for $85; 2 for $160 installed Fast, reliable service, guaranteed! Call Moshe 416-445-6438

442 MUSICAL SERVICES

Private lessons by professional teachers. Piano, guitar, violin, clarinet. At studio or home. 905-738-4822, 416-635-1928.

MOM's 40 & Over
Group Music Classes
For Children 1-3 years
Starting Immediately
416-630-7747 x23

445 MOVING

srmmovers.com - A-1 Short Notice. Insured. Homes, apts., offices, businesses. 1-man $40/hr., 2-men $55/hr. 3-men $70/hr. & up. 416-747-7082.

TRANSNET CO. MOVING & STORAGE
Homes * Apartments * Offices * Storage
Packing Materials & Service
416-704-6881
http://members.Rogers.com/moving

420 INVITATIONS/PRINTING/CALIG.

INVITATIONS by Design INC.
www.invitebydesign.com
831 GLENCAIRN AVE.
Invitations for Bar/Bat Mitzvah,Weddings, Personal Stationary and more!
416-789-7367 (call for appt.) email info@invitebydesign.com
New spectacular catalogue now in for Bar/Bat Mitzvahs & Weddings

445 MOVING

TURNADOS MOVING & STORAGE
HOMES • APARTMENTS • OFFICES
Local, Long Distance, Storage
SENIOR'S DISCOUNT
Two Professional Movers — Free Estimate
Call: 416-414-0920

WWW.GTAMOVERS.COM
Fully equipped; interval: Local and long distance. Mid months discount. 416-918-2957

BestWayToMove.com
26' trucks, experienced professional movers. Low rates, good reliable service. Moving & Free Storage.
Call 416-999-MOVE or 416-875-MOVE (6683)

G&M Moving and Storage. Apts., homes, offices. Short notice. Large or small. We carry supplies. 905-738-4030.

B-K Movers. 2-28' trucks. Boxes, homes, offices, apts. Family business. Reas. Packing & packing materials avail. Call 905-274-8144 or 905-278-0939.

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPER

Painting, wallpapering, plastering, stucco repair. Samy, 905-738-1532, no SAT. calls.

All home, paint, tile & repairs. Bathroom re-grout, re-silicone & more! Ben, 416-372-2255.

Experienced painter, plasterer, vinyl, tile flooring. Best prices. Free estimates. Guaranteed. Bill, 416-638-9249.

Prof. painting, ext./int., wallpapering, drywall, all renov. of houses, apts., offices. Licensed. Stan, 416-201-9079.

Masters Choice Painting Paint/plaster/stucco/small renos. Free est. Reas. 416-402-5768.

Bargain painter/handyman, apt., houses, offices. Call Alex, 416-633-5973.

PAINT HOUSE ENT. Painting residential, commercial, interior & exterior. FREE ESTIMATES. Very reasonable. 416-459-1383.

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPER

Best Prices!!! Best Quality!!! Best Service!!! Painting. Licensed & Bonded. Call Shlomo 416-804-1706.

Prof. painting/paper-hanging Jacob 416-667-9869 No Shabbos calls please

452 PARTY SERVICES

The CandyMan
MACHINE RENTALS
SNO CONE, POPCORN, CANDY FLOSS & MINI DONUT
CENTREPIECES
SOFT PRETZELS
BALLOONS
416-789-7173

465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Full Service Glass and Windows Inc.
Tel: 905-731-8446
• Windows • Doors • Screens
• Mirror Walls & Doors
• Frameless shower & tub doors
• Pivots • Locks • Closers
• Beveled Glass and Mirrors
• Thermopanes - Storefronts
• Security Bars • Skylights
Fast & Reliable Service
Quality & Customer Satisfaction

472 RETIREMENT HOMES

Ahavath Achim Retirement Home. The home with a Neshama. Planned activities, 24 hr. supervision. For information contact Joseph or Louise Sahar, office 416-398-5486 or 905-660-4831.

495 TILING

TILE REPAIRS. Bath & shower cleaning, silicone re-grouting & more! Ben, 416-372-2255.

500 TUTORING

Piano/flute lessons by pro musician, home/studio, all levels. Sue @ 416-406-0609.

Tutoring in MATH & SCIENCE grades 9 to OAC by experienced high school teacher. Please call 905-886-6689.

www.cjnews.com
The CJN Online Photo Gallery

Coast to Coast

Students study death and dying

By MYRON LOVE
Prairies Correspondent

WINNIPEG — When Rochel U. Berman learned that the Gray Academy's Joseph Wolinsky Grade 11 class was going to be visiting the Chesed Shel Emes funeral home and the Shaarey Zedek cemetery as part of their Jewish life-cycle program, the former Winnipegger and author of the new book, Dignity Beyond Death: The Jewish Preparation for Burial, came to Winnipeg from her home in Florida to spend the day with the students.

"This is the only Jewish high school program in North America that has a unit on Jewish death and dying rituals," Berman says.

The students started their day with a tour of the Chesed Shel Emes, Winnipeg's non-profit, community-run funeral home. They had a question-and- answer session with Chesed executive director Rena Boroditsky and Berman.

The duo fielded questions about suicide (people who have committed suicide are no longer buried separately as they once were), tattoos (anybody coming into the Chesed Shel Emes with tattoos is now accepted for Jewish burial), conversion (Boroditsky noted there was one situation where the deceased was still in the process of converting but was too ill for the brit milah, but he was allowed to have a Jewish burial) and how overweight individuals are accommodated (there are special caskets for heavier people).

In the afternoon, the students, their teachers, Lawrence Goldstine and Karen Richter, and Berman first visited the Shaarey Zedek cemetery then the Rosh Pina Cemetery and the grave of Berman's father, the late Benjamin Yudovitch.

The Jewish life-cycle program was started 20 years ago by Rabbi Charles Grysman when he was vice-principal in charge of Judaic studies at Joseph Wolinsky. (Grysman now lives in Toronto where he is the rabbi at Zichron Yisroel Congregation.)

"There are two halves to the course," says Goldstine. "Rabbi Grysman reasoned that there are two things in life – death and relationships – that everyone has to deal with."

At the cemetery, he says, students learn how cemeteries are laid out.

They visit the mausoleums that contain the remains of rabbis Twersky and Gruber (former prominent rabbis of Winnipeg), the children's section, the grave of Joseph Wolinsky and the graves of family and acquaintances.

Through the course, they learn about taharah (the cleansing of the body), shivah (the seven-day mourning period following the burial) and shloshim (the 30-day mourning period following the burial).

Rochel Berman's interest in taharah and chevrah kadishah work was sparked by her own father's death 20 years ago. As with most people in the Jewish community, she says, she knew little or nothing about the Jewish rituals where death is concerned.

At the time of her father's death, she says, she had only negative stereotypes about what a chevrah kadishah was. But upon returning to New York, she decided to join one.

"I was amazed at the respect and dignity the members of the chevrah kadishah had for the deceased," she says.

She became a founding member of the Westchester Chevra Kadisha. Over the years, she has written major stories about taharah for the Jewish Telegraphic Agency and Hadassah magazine. The response to the articles was so great that she was persuaded to write a book about it.

Dignity Beyond Death, she says, examines the rituals of preparing the dead for burial from the point of view of those volunteers who undertake it. Berman combines interviews with anecdotal material. She deals with the history of taharah, family dimensions, the personal impact, dignity in the face of the Holocaust and survivors' experiences in the ghettos, modern terrorism and education.

CJN DATING
MEET YOUR MATCH
www.cjndating.com
powered by JMATCH
JEWISH MATCH INTERACTIVE DATING

Sports & Leisure

PEERLESS TRAVEL Cruise in and see us!
NEWEST LOCATION!
9200 BATHURST ST.
(at Rutherford Road)
Thornhill
905-482-0105

Ex-NHLers to coach Israeli hockey teams

Continued from page 1

In another development, Maislin said an announcement on the construction of a new multi-purpose hockey rink in the greater Tel Aviv area might be made by early 2005.

The moves are all part of a major effort to improve the quality of hockey in Israel and lay the foundation of a competitive program that could eventually be good enough to ice an Olympic-calibre team. What's more, developing hockey in Israel would help boost the profile of the Jewish state and normalize its public image, Maislin said.

Already, media in Canada and the United States are fascinated by the coaching story and he's received calls about it from as far away as Russia, said Maislin, who headed a failed bid to purchase the Buffalo Sabres two years ago.

Prior to the juniors lacing up for an IIHF Division 3 qualifier in Sofia, Bulgaria, in March, the team will fly to Los Angeles and Toronto for exhibition games and practice sessions. In Los Angeles, the under-18s will play the Mexican national junior team at the Staple Center. That match will bring together the Hispanic and Jewish communities in a spirit of friendship and cement relations between the two groups, Maislin said.

Perron, who works for Maislin's trucking firm, said he visited Israel this past summer at his employer's behest and was impressed by what he saw. Not only is the country beautiful, he said, but visiting biblical sites and dipping in the Sea of Galilee, "where Jesus walked on the waters," was particularly moving to him and his wife.

During his visit, Perron joined instructors from the Roger Neilson Hockey School to coach Israeli youngsters at the Canada Centre rink in Metulla. Under Neilson, the onetime NHL coach who died last year from cancer, the school has held summer programs at the Canada Centre for several years.

Perron said the Israeli kids were eager to learn the game, but only three or four of them could be said to be as talented as Canadian kids in their age group. Surprisingly, he said, "the Israeli kids play a little like Canadians. They're pretty tough. They want to take the body."

Perron said coaching in the Canada Centre had an extra, down-home dimension to it. When he entered the rink, he noticed the sweater of former Hab great Jean Beliveau hanging from the rafters. Beliveau visited the rink during the 1997 Maccabiah Games when he served as the Canadian team's chef de mission.

"He's my idol," Perron said. "For me, it was a great feeling, since I was in the same place he [visited] as a guest."

Maislin, who took over control of the IHFI at the request of the organizations' Israeli president, Sergei Matin, said the strategic goal is to lay the foundation for the long-term development of hockey in Israel.

Canadians Alan Maislin (left) and Jean Perron (right) are helping Russian-born Sergei Matin develop hockey in Israel.

At the heart of the effort are the plans to construct a rink in the Tel Aviv area. That will make the sport more accessible to thousands of young Israeli athletes. The Canada Centre's rink, he noted, is situated virtually on the Lebanese border, far from the country's major population centres.

Negotiations in Israel to erect the arena are under way, with Los Angeles businessman Leonard Silverberg chairing the effort. Maislin said he had recruited Philadelphia Flyers owner Jay Snider to head up the fundraising effort for the rink, along with Dan Marian, president of America Israel Investments.

The group's vision is for a 5,000-seat Olympic-sized rink, which would convert to a roller rink and be available for rock concerts and basketball.

A rink in central Israel could eventually lead to at least 5,000 youngsters enjoying the sport, up from the 100 or so currently participating in programs in Metulla, he said.

Other projects on tap include a "hockey mission" to Israel that would combine hockey in Metulla with a tour of the Jewish state. In addition, Perron, McGuire and Philadelphia Flyers coach Ken Hitchcock are expected to join the Roger Neilson instructors in Metulla next summer for on-ice training sessions, he said.

Moshe Eizenman, who four years ago began the process of improving the Israeli junior program, said Israel's senior team will also benefit by the effort to develop junior players. One 16-year-old Israeli, Oren Zamir, so impressed Perron last summer with his hockey and leadership skills that Eizenman helped enrol the forward with the Notre Dame Hounds hockey program in Saskatchewan.

Supporters of Israeli hockey in Toronto helped underwrite Zamir's expenses in Saskatchewan, and if his experience proves successful, Zamir may be able to play junior next year in Toronto, Eizenman said.

If one athlete a year is helped in that way, within five years the Israeli junior and senior teams will have a strong nucleus of players to make them competitive internationally, Eizenman said.

As for this year's team, plans are for the under-18s to fly to Toronto from Los Angeles in February and train under Perron. In addition, an exhibition game versus a (mostly) Jewish team in a community fun event is being planned, as are visits by the young Israelis to local Jewish schools, Eizenman said.

In the meantime, Israeli hockey organizers recognize the need to beef up the junior and senior teams with local ringers who are eligible to play for Israel. Plans are being formulated for a tryout camp in Toronto sometime in November under the watchful eyes of Perron and McGuire.

Eizenman's three sons, Alon, who is playing professional hockey in France with the Tours Black Devils, Erez, who plays at the University of Toronto, and Oren, who was named to the NCAA's Eastern College Athletic Conference all-rookie team last season with the RPI Engineers, will likely play for the senior team, he said.

For more information about tryouts, call Eizenman at 416-633-4507. The IHFI is also soliciting volunteers eager to see Israeli hockey improve.

Chiropractor of the Year remembered for his zest for life

By ELI SHUPAK
Special to the CJN

Michael Brickman always had time to celebrate life. Whether it was coaching his son's house league basketball team at the Bathurst Jewish Community Centre or teaching students the art of his profession, the highly respected owner of Downsview Chiropractic and two-time former Maccabiah Games participant made the most of everything he took part in.

Brickman died suddenly on Aug. 21 of unknown causes. He was 39.

With a patient list of over 2,000, Brickman was named the 2000 Chiropractor of the Year as voted on by readers of Canadian Chiropractor magazine. He was a member of the Ontario Chiropractic Association's (OCA) board of directors, chairing the student and conference committees.

Brickman, a 1989 graduate of Life University in Marietta, Ga., was the first Canadian director of the International Chiropractic Association (ICA) from 1995-2000 and represented the country at the World Health Organization assembly in Geneva, Switzerland.

In 1996, Brickman was inducted as a Distinguished Fellow of the ICA and earned his Fellowship with the International Chiropractic Pediatric Association.

"He touched so many people," said his wife Marlene, to whom he was married for 16 years after being high school sweethearts. "I will remember my husband as someone who gave it all to everyone.

"He had a big heart and always made you feel good with a smile on his face and a hug to embrace you. He lived life to the fullest. It's a lesson for us all. He will always leave with me and my kids [Zane, 12, and Arielle, 10] a very positive outlook on life. We all need to learn that zest for life that he had because it really is very special."

Brickman swam in two Maccabiah Games, winning a bronze medal on the 1985 relay team. He was previously treasurer of Maccabi Canada's Ontario region and co-chaired two golf tournaments that helped raise money to send athletes to Israel.

"He was probably one of the gentlest people that I've come to know in my lifetime," said Maccabi Canada's honourary vice-president Harold Cipin, who was a friend and patient of Brickman's for the past 10 years.

"Part of Maccabi's mandate was to reach out to former athletes who competed for Canada to come back and give to the program. When I asked Michael to do that, he didn't hesitate and became an active member."

Brickman was also very involved with the OCA and Marlene spoke recently at its convention on her husband's behalf to instill some words of inspiration to the students as they move forward in their chosen field. She will continue to run the Sheppard Avenue clinic in Michael's honour, something they did as a team for the past 11 years.

Two memorial funds were set up in Brickman's memory. Donations to the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College (CMCC) will go towards a students' rec room, a learning centre and scholarships to the school. To donate, call the CMCC at 416-482-2340, extension 194.

Another fund was set up for the Association for Soldiers of Israel. Donations can be made by calling 416-783-3053.

Sports heroes make it cool to be Jewish something

By MIRIAM PORTER

It was almost 9 a.m. I rubbed my still tired eyes and eagerly drank my morning coffee in my oversized pink ceramic mug. The Toronto Star was in front of me on my cluttered desk (kitchen table). As I flipped through it to find the movies section, something unusual caught my attention. On the front page of the sports section, I saw Hebrew writing. I rubbed my eyes again. Yes, it was still there. I was intrigued.

In English, the headline read, "Athletes keeping the faith" and in Hebrew, "Yom Kippur." I have been reading the newspaper for a long time without ever opening the sports section. I was happy with this choice. Sports and I don't get along. But as I cautiously read my very first sports article, it was definitely not what I expected. It was about famous athletes who chose their Jewish faith over sporting events. I felt a strong sense of Jewish pride.

Noah Cantor, Toronto Argonauts defensive tackle, spoke out on his observance of Yom Kippur. Cantor is the only Jewish player in the Canadian Football League. He refused to play on Yom Kippur and the rest of his team supported him. The game time was changed because of this. The Toronto Star reported, "It's believed to be the first time the CFL has shifted a game for Yom Kippur."

I was impressed. I thought back to the time I was a Girl Guide and the only Jew in my troupe of 10-year-old girls. I tried to explain to them why I kept kosher and why I couldn't go to meetings on Friday nights. Trust me, it was not easy. It never is when you are the minority.

Cantor is not alone is his endeavours. Shawn Green, a former Blue Jay and now a first baseman for the Los Angeles Dodgers, said he would not play baseball on Yom Kippur day in observance of the religious holiday. Although he compromised and played on the eve of Yom Kippur, it's still a huge milestone where sports and Judaism are concerned. Green, who is not Orthodox, said, "Playing one of the two [games] is the most consistent with my beliefs as a Jewish person."

The following week I was upset to learn that several rabbis criticized Green's bold decision. They were displeased he chose to observe only the day of Yom Kippur and not the holiday in its entirety. One rabbi expressed that what Green did "makes no sense" and said, "It's a very bad example to Jewish boys and girls." What? I was shocked. Green made his brave and passionate decision within the context of his religious identity.

It's unfortunate some people looked down on Green and failed to see his strength and courage and what a big step he took. I believe instead of considering what Green didn't do, we should applaud what he did do.

As Jews in the Diaspora, we live in a secular world and it's difficult to hold onto our Jewish customs and traditions. I have Jewish friends who have never observed Yom Kippur.

Perhaps their kids will see a popular athlete speaking out and taking a stand and start to ask questions about their own Judaism. Perhaps future high schools, colleges and universities will stop scheduling sporting events on religious holidays. Perhaps more athletes will take a stand similar to Dodger's pitcher Sandy Koufax. In 1965, he refused to pitch in a World Series game on Yom Kippur. Then there was Hank Greenberg of the Detroit Tigers who observed Yom Kippur in 1934 instead of playing an important game. He received a standing ovation when he walked into synagogue that year. These inspiring stories from the past are desperately needed in our future.

Kol hakavod to Green and Cantor for taking a stand and putting Judaism before sports. They are raising awareness and speaking out positively about their religious beliefs. They are making it cool to be Jewish. It's about time.

Miriam can be reached at Miriam@jtvproductions.net.

ROASTED CHICKPEA SNACK

1 can chickpeas
olive oil garlic powder pepper salt cooking spray

You can also use any combination and amount of spices you prefer.

Drain chickpeas in colander. Rinse. Toss with olive oil and rest of ingredients.

Cover cookie sheet with foil and spray with cooking spray. Bake at 400°F for 45 minutes. Turn chickpeas once half way through roasting.

1111 Weston Rd. (S. of Eglinton) 416-767-1655 www.caplanappliances.com

HERB CAPLAN
THE APPLIANCE PROS RECOMMEND
dacor Now Kosher! RANGES

Epi on Education

Seymour Epstein

Both Montreal and Toronto are fortunate to each have a university-based training program for teachers in Jewish schools: the Jewish teacher training program at McGill University and the Jewish teacher education program at York University, respectively. While this model of Jewish teacher education is slowly spreading across North America and sprouting up in other Diaspora communities, Montreal and Toronto are pioneers and have been running their programs for decades. I have an intimate connection with both the McGill and York programs, since I helped found the former and have been teaching in the latter for the past five years.

One fear that was expressed in these programs' formative years was that Jewish families would not be supportive of their own children entering the teaching profession, given the relatively low salaries of teachers. I even remember one meeting where my chairman asked for a benchmark of success, and I answered that success would be achieved when he wanted his child to be a Jewish studies teacher!

Surprisingly, those of us who have been observing the growth of these programs have noticed a significant number of students from affluent families. It seems that their families' wealth permits them to consider a profession in which their salary might not be their only source of income. While I am militant about teachers earning decent wages, I must praise these students for following their passion.

Another aspect of these programs is the high level of Hebrew language and Judaic knowledge found among many of the students. My own course at York is conducted in Hebrew and consists of readings in classical Jewish texts. While some students are stronger than others, the general level of the class is such that together we can read ancient Hebrew texts, as well as commentary from the Middle Ages and modern Israeli writing, with relative ease – all the while conversing mostly in Hebrew.

That wonderful phenomenon should not be taken for granted. It is proof of the efficacy of our Jewish schools and evidence of a generation of young Jews who will not merely continue Jewish life, but will proactively create new platforms of Jewish learning.

Epi (Seymour Epstein) is the vice-president of Jewish Education at UJA Federation of Greater Toronto.

Rabbi Hecht, renaissance Torah scholar

By AVRUM ROSENSWEIG

URBAN WRITER

Fundamentalism crept into Judaism in a most vociferous manner while we weren't really looking. Its manifestation has been the proliferation of teaching that encourages the learning and understanding of Judaism in a simplistic and protectionist manner, with an emphasis on religious experience versus a diverse and challenging intellectual and existential pursuit of truth.

The mainstream, however, is forever challenged and forced to adjust by alternative forms of thought and practice, and those individuals who recognize the limitations of singular thinking.

Within the Orthodox community, one such alternative is offered by Nishma, a local institute of Jewish learning founded and directed by Rabbi Benjamin Hecht.

Rabbi Hecht was born in Ottawa, attended Ner Israel Yeshiva in Toronto and later received smichah – rabbinical ordination – in Jerusalem. The basis for his approach to Jewish thought stems from his study of two great luminaries of the last generation, Rabbi Moshe Feinstein and Rav Joseph Soloveitchik.

Nishma was started about two decades ago and its main offices are in Toronto. Its students and followers, however, are spread throughout the world in such places as New York City, Sweden and Israel.

Rabbi Hecht's philosophy and teachings are seductive because at their core is the concept of "aylu v'aylu divrai elokim chaim" – literally translated as "this and that are the living words of God." In real terms, aylu v'aylu – as taught by Rabbi Hecht in his classes such as "Women in Judaism" – means that truth within Torah has 70 faces, not one singular approach as many would have you believe.

Rabbi Hecht, an exceptional intellectual, teaches Torah within this framework by providing his talmidim (students) with a plethora of options on Jewish issues within Orthodox thought. He then instructs students to grapple with the vast spectrum of views, research them – as one would do in any scholarly pursuit – and come to a conclusion that is in sync with his or her innate way.

In short, Rabbi Hecht asks powerful questions and then empowers the learner by demanding that he or she discover an answer that is compatible with his or her own philosophical bent.

Nishma produces brilliantly written weekly and monthly newsletters (see www.nishma.org) on controversial issues and questions such as: What is our obligation to the non-Jewish world? How is homosexuality seen within halachah? Is it right to return land for peace?

Rabbi Hecht is gutsy and intrepid in his Torah teaching, and his no-holds-barred writings challenge the Jewish mind to possibilities.

I am honoured to have Rabbi Hecht as my brother-in-law, as he is an exceptional human being. Despite my non-Orthodox lifestyle, he has shown me the colourful possibilities within Judaism. He is my mentor and the first person to teach me about self-help and the imperative of pursuing one's own passion. The insightful guidance he imparted to me was all gleaned from his Torah knowledge.

Recently, Rabbi Hecht's daughter, Dodi-Lee, wrote an article for the Yeshiva University newspaper in which she detailed her father's dream of launching a dynamic yeshiva that would teach views from across the spectrum of Orthodox Jewish thought and proudly embraces the diversity of ideas and debate.

In a time that is sometimes referred to as a dark age of thought, the realization of this dream would be a splendid tasting fruit on the plate of Jewish learning. For now, Nishma and its various educational tools, run by a creative and bold director, serve as a vibrant and loyal home to intellectual prowess, true Torah scholarship and the pursuit of truth.

(E-mail avrum@veahavta.org. Help the people of Sudan.)

Selection. Price. Expertise... GUARANTEED!

NO PAYMENT INTEREST FOR 12 MONTHS!

This offer ends October 31st, 2004. See In-Store for details

PROELITE TREADMILL $2388

PROSELECT TREADMILL $2188

PROPLUS II TREADMILL $1988

BEST BUY! Consumer Digest 2004

The bottom line is that Pacemaster treadmills have received more favourable reviews and "Best Buy" ratings than any other home treadmill, and at Fitness Depot you can get them at the guaranteed lowest prices in North America. But now you can take advantage of an even better deal. Buy any Pacemaster treadmill and get 12 months financing, with no payment and no interest. It's the best time to own a Pacemaster.

PACEMASTER

GUARANTEED LOWEST PRICES IN NORTH AMERICA

BOWFLEX® Xtreme

The Bowflex® XTLU is our top-of-the-line Xtreme, designed for serious strength training.

FEATURES:

- Over 65 exercises!
- 210 pounds of Power Rod® Resistance standard - upgradeable to up to 410 pounds!
- Lat tower with angled lat bar - ideal for back and shoulder muscles
- Upper & lower pulley/squat station - for squats, glutes, hamstrings and quads
- Leg extension/leg curl attachment - to develop strong, muscular legs

$55.15* Per Month

DIAMONDBACK 1150 RECUMBENT CYCLE $1488

$50.72* Per Month

TRIMLINE 350 TREADMILL $1988

$57.54* Per Month

LIFECYCLE C71 $2088

$71.17* Per Month

PRECOR 5.171 ELLIPTICAL TRAINER $2788

$95.03* Per Month

POWER RACK $758

$25.84* Per Month

Olympic set not included.

LEG PRESS/ HACK SQUAT $1248

$42.54* Per Month

SCHWINN 820 TREADMILL $1488

$50.72* Per Month

AVALANCHE HOME GYM $2198

$74.92* Per Month

Yoga Mat

$19.88

Gymnastic Ball

From $19.88

Polar Heart Rate Monitors

From $38.88

Mini Trampoline

$39.88

Body Fat Scale

From $68

SelectTech™ Dumbbell Set

$448

CANADIAN OWNED AND OPERATED

* All applicants are subject to credit approval through Blueline Financial Inc. Financing through Blueline Financial Inc. is available only on financed amounts in excess of $500. All prices and payments are subject to applicable taxes. All Delivery charges together with all Applicable taxes and any Administration fees, must be paid for in advance. Equal Monthly Instalments for the remaining balance will be charged to your account each month throughout the promotional period, payment in full for this instalment must be made prior to each monthly due date. The first payment will be withdrawn from your account 20 days after product delivery and every 30 days thereafter. Annual Interest of 14% A.P.R. (Annual Percentage Rate) is charged on the outstanding balance. Cost of Borrowing Example: On an equal payment purchase with a financed amount of $1588 for 36 months, the payments are $54.13 per month. The total interest paid is $360.68 at an annual interest rate of 14% A.P.R. (Annual Percentage Rate), compounded monthly. The total cost of borrowing is calculated as follows: $54.13 monthly payment X 36 months = $1948.68 Principal & Interest $1948.68 (Principal&Interest) - $1588 (financed amount) = $360.68 The total Cost of Borrowing.

PRICES AND AVAILABILITY SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

fitness DEPOT your EXERCISE EQUIPMENT SUPERSTORES®

www.fitnessdepot.ca

35 locations and growing

BARRIE	90 Saunders Rd.	705-730-7888
BRAMPTON	249 Queen St. E.	905-454-8009
KITCHENER	935 Frederick St.	519-744-1133
LONDON	555 Wellington Rd. S.	519-686-9738
MARKHAM	8561 McCowan Rd.	905-201-9899
MISSISSAUGA	Dixie Square 5120 Dixie Rd.	905-238-1999
OAKVILLE	1026 S. Service Rd. E.	905-849-8884
PICKERING	613 Kingston Rd. E.	905-839-1922
SCARBOROUGH	1285 Kennedy Rd.	416-288-8777
ST. CATHARINES	475 Welland Ave.	905-688-7111
THORNHILL	55 Glen Cameron Rd.	905-731-3339
TORONTO	40 Ronson Dr.	416-243-8888
WINDSOR	6000 Tecumseh Rd. E.	519-944-1744

STORE HOURS: MONDAY TO FRIDAY 10 - 9, SATURDAY 10 - 6, SUNDAY 12 - 5

FOR A GREAT SELECTION OF USED FITNESS EQUIPMENT, VISIT BOOMERANG HOME FITNESS

6991 Millcreek Drive, Mississauga 905-819-9877

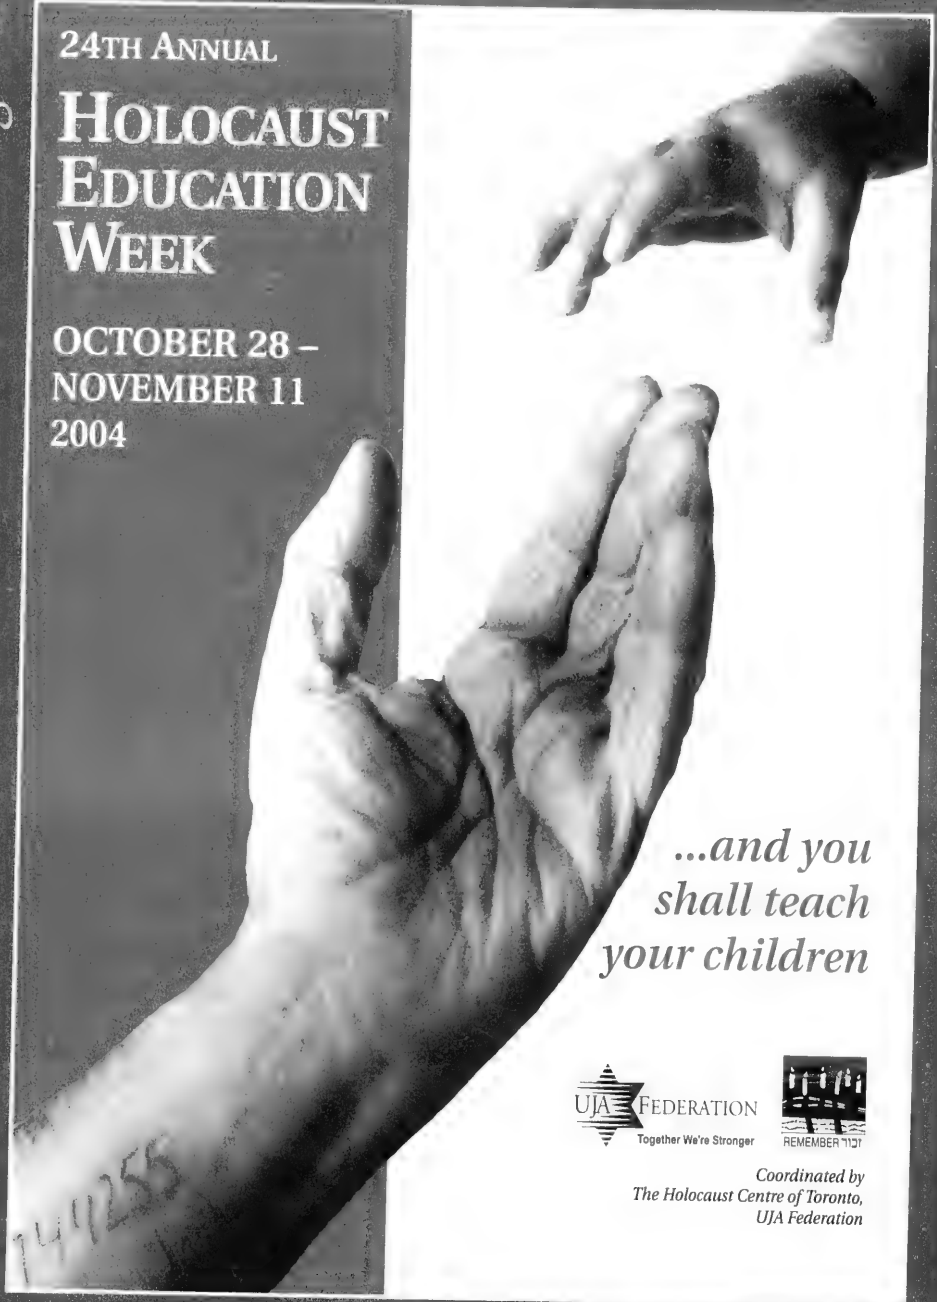
143 Bermondsey Road, Scarborough 416-288-1673

Over 125 events in venues across Greater Toronto and surrounding areas

24TH ANNUAL

HOLOCAUST EDUCATION WEEK

OCTOBER 28 – NOVEMBER 11 2004



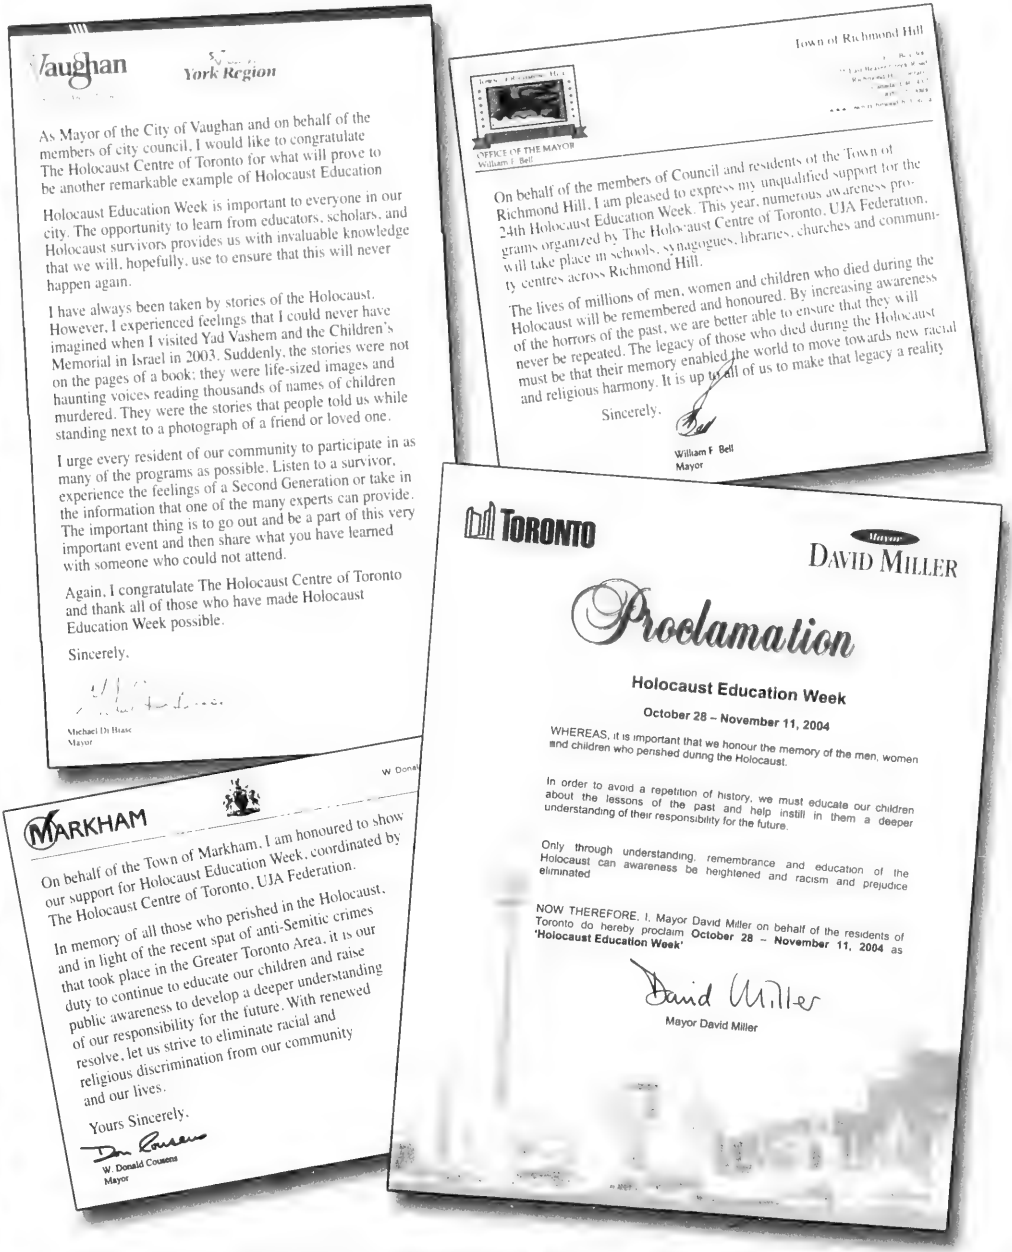
...and you shall teach your children

UJA FEDERATION
Together We're Stronger

REMEMBER זכור

Coordinated by
The Holocaust Centre of Toronto,
UJA Federation

In Support of Holocaust Education Week



Vaughan
York Region

As Mayor of the City of Vaughan and on behalf of the members of city council, I would like to congratulate The Holocaust Centre of Toronto for what will prove to be another remarkable example of Holocaust Education

Holocaust Education Week is important to everyone in our city. The opportunity to learn from educators, scholars, and Holocaust survivors provides us with invaluable knowledge that we will, hopefully, use to ensure that this will never happen again.

I have always been taken by stories of the Holocaust. However, I experienced feelings that I could never have imagined when I visited Yad Vashem and the Children's Memorial in Israel in 2003. Suddenly, the stories were not on the pages of a book; they were life-sized images and haunting voices reading thousands of names of children murdered. They were the stories that people told us while standing next to a photograph of a friend or loved one.

I urge every resident of our community to participate in as many of the programs as possible. Listen to a survivor, experience the feelings of a Second Generation or take in the information that one of the many experts can provide. The important thing is to go out and be a part of this very important event and then share what you have learned with someone who could not attend.

Again, I congratulate The Holocaust Centre of Toronto and thank all of those who have made Holocaust Education Week possible.

Sincerely,

Michael Di Biase
Mayor

Town of Richmond Hill

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
William F. Bell

On behalf of the members of Council and residents of the Town of Richmond Hill, I am pleased to express my unqualified support for the 24th Holocaust Education Week. This year, numerous awareness programs organized by The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, UJA Federation, will take place in schools, synagogues, libraries, churches and community centres across Richmond Hill.

The lives of millions of men, women and children who died during the Holocaust will be remembered and honoured. By increasing awareness of the horrors of the past, we are better able to ensure that they will never be repeated. The legacy of those who died during the Holocaust must be that their memory enabled the world to move towards new racial and religious harmony. It is up to all of us to make that legacy a reality

Sincerely,

William F. Bell
Mayor

MARKHAM

On behalf of the Town of Markham, I am honoured to show our support for Holocaust Education Week, coordinated by The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, UJA Federation.

In memory of all those who perished in the Holocaust, and in light of the recent spat of anti-Semitic crimes that took place in the Greater Toronto Area, it is our duty to continue to educate our children and raise public awareness to develop a deeper understanding of our responsibility for the future. With renewed resolve, let us strive to eliminate racial and religious discrimination from our community and our lives.

Yours Sincerely,

W. Donald Cousens
Mayor

TORONTO

Mayor
DAVID MILLER

Proclamation

Holocaust Education Week

October 28 – November 11, 2004

WHEREAS, it is important that we honour the memory of the men, women and children who perished during the Holocaust.

In order to avoid a repetition of history, we must educate our children about the lessons of the past and help instill in them a deeper understanding of their responsibility for the future.

Only through understanding, remembrance and education of the Holocaust can awareness be heightened and racism and prejudice eliminated

NOW THEREFORE, I, Mayor David Miller on behalf of the residents of Toronto do hereby proclaim October 28 – November 11, 2004 as 'Holocaust Education Week'

David Miller

Mayor David Miller

It is once again my great pleasure to invite you to participate in the 24th Holocaust Education Week, the largest and highest profile initiative of The Holocaust Centre of Toronto. A wide array of outstanding programs is, as usual, being offered to afford you the opportunity to explore and examine many different aspects of the Holocaust.

While our extensive program takes place annually in the fall, it is important to bear in mind that Holocaust education and remembrance should be ongoing throughout the year. Sadly, this fact is brought home to us almost daily as we witness the increasing prevalence of religious and racial intolerance, accompanied by a rise in anti-Semitic incidents and anti-Israel rhetoric and ongoing violence – not only around the world, but even here at home in Canada.

We, at The Holocaust Centre, consider it our obligation to remember those murdered during the Holocaust, and to educate the public, particularly students, in an effort to ensure that tragedies such as the Shoah do not recur. This is achieved through events such as Holocaust Education Week and the selfless efforts of our most cherished resource at the Centre, our survivor speakers, who teach the lessons of the Holocaust to students during the academic year. You will be able to hear many of these remarkable people speak during this year's event.

I would like to congratulate and thank Honey Carr and Joan Shapero and their committee for their passion and commitment in providing an excellent roster of programs for Holocaust Education Week. I do hope that you will avail yourselves of the opportunity to participate in as many as possible.

Howard Driman
Chair,
The Holocaust Centre of Toronto,
UJA Federation

UJA FEDERATION
Together We're Stronger

Once again, UJA Federation of Greater Toronto and our community are expressing their commitment to remember the Shoah and teach its lessons through the 24th annual Holocaust Education Week.

This year's event – the largest in the world – could not be more timely. Many think the challenges of anti-Semitism have largely been met and have even begun to recede. However, recent horrific acts of anti-Semitism around the world and here in our community show us otherwise.

Today's harsh reality underscores the need to learn from the past and confront current dangers. With this reality, the relevance and importance of Holocaust Education cannot be overstated. The resurgence of anti-Semitic sentiment must be met with renewed dedication to remember, to teach, and to act, in order to safeguard our community.

Holocaust Education Week, with more than 125 impactful programs, provides thousands of people from diverse religions and nationalities with the opportunity to truly understand the horror of the Holocaust and to rededicate themselves to acceptance and tolerance. Even one act of racial or ethnic violence diminishes us all.

On behalf of UJA Federation, I want to thank the many organizations, religious and educational institutions, and bookstores for participating in this crucial program. I invite you to support this vital event.

Best wishes,

Leslie Gales
Chair of the Board, UJA Federation

24th Annual Holocaust Education Week

Overturned tombstones, anti-Semitic graffiti, library book burnings: Europe 1933 or Canada 2004? Attacks on Jewish homes, cemeteries, institutions and synagogues are all too familiar. We may have thought that these were behind us. But are they? According to Simon Wiesenthal, "The Holocaust didn't begin with ovens. By then it is too late. It begins with words." But it doesn't end with words. Unfortunately, today, we have again witnessed the words and actions from the past.

Holocaust Education Week provides the public with education about the events and social history of the Holocaust in a variety of ways. This year's numerous programs once again address challenging topics and feature important speakers from around the world. First-hand testimony by our survivor speakers bears witness to the horrific murder of European Jewry and to others caught in the Nazi web. It is imperative that we honour and memorialize the six million. In today's political, ethnic and social climate, it is also imperative that we learn from the past and not be condemned to repeat it. We believe that knowledge and education can, hopefully, stop the recurrence of genocide.

We would like to thank Howard Driman for his guidance and support. It has been our privilege to work with a dedicated volunteer committee, aided by Mary Siklos, event coordinator, whose efforts make this world-class event possible.

Please mark your calendars. There is an overwhelming choice of stimulating events and informative exhibits. Up-to-date information can be accessed on our website: www.holocausteducationweek.com

The rejection and prevention of discrimination and hatred must start at an early age. Each of us has a personal responsibility toward achieving this goal.

Joan Shapero

Honey Carr

Joan Shapero and Honey Carr
Co-Chairs, Holocaust Education Week 2004

THE CHRISTIAN-JEWISH DIALOGUE OF TORONTO

2 Carlton Street
Suite 800
Toronto, Ont.
M5B 1J3
(416) 598-4242

The Holocaust Remembrance Committee of Christian-Jewish Dialogue of Toronto owes a great deal of thanks to the Holocaust Education Week Committee, as it gives us a chance to reach out to the non-Jewish community with our varied programs in many churches in the Greater Toronto Area and beyond. It takes a lot of coordination, but the results are overwhelmingly positive, as ministers and priests assist in bringing education, understanding and good will into their churches. I cannot thank them enough for their friendship and trust. I want to especially welcome those churches that joined us for the first time this year.

It is my great pleasure to introduce my new Co-Chair, Pastor Lenise Francis of St. Ansgar Lutheran Church. She will be a great asset to our Committee, and especially to me, as I look forward to a wonderful working relationship.

Ada Wynston
Co-Chair, Holocaust Remembrance Committee

REGIONAL JEWISH COMMUNITIES OF ONTARIO

RJCO is honoured to participate in Holocaust Education Week once again by offering a variety of programs in 12 communities throughout Ontario. In many ways, this reflects the growing diversity and vibrancy of our communities. The positive working partnership between our organization and the Holocaust Education Week Committee has enabled us to offer these keynote presentations.

As we move further in time from the immediacy of the Shoah, the impact and the importance of the lessons to be learned remain ever more crucial. The responsibility falls to each one of us, whether in smaller communities or larger ones, to ensure that the significance of the Shoah for all humanity endures. Holocaust Education serves as an important and timely vehicle that can foster better understanding, and ultimately better relations, between all humanity.

On behalf of the entire Executive of RJCO, I offer sincere thanks to the many volunteers who work to make each event in our communities a success. May Holocaust Education Week serve as a catalyst to strengthen the bonds between us.

Richard Kizell
Chair, Regional Jewish Communities of Ontario

24th Annual Holocaust Education Week

Opening Night Program

Thursday, October 28 – 7:30 pm
Adath Israel Congregation
37 Southbourne Avenue, Toronto
416-635-5340

TO BETTER SERVE AND PROTECT:

Preserving the Peace and Protecting Human Rights Through the Lessons of the Holocaust

In 1998 CHARLES H. RAMSEY, Chief of Police of the Metropolitan Police Department, Washington, D.C., was invited to visit the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum. "It was without question the most powerful experience I'd ever had in my life," he said. Later, he returned for a more lengthy visit and noted, "I began to recognize that it wasn't just Nazi soldiers who were the oppressors, but local police officers as well. I had never known of the involvement of the local police in rounding up Jews."

Chief Ramsey subsequently initiated a program with the Museum, which has been attended by every officer in the Washington, D.C. police force, and is mandatory for all new recruits. It includes a guided tour by a Museum docent, with discussion following, and a series of lectures, covering subjects such as police practices in Nazi Germany and the similarities and differences between the mandates of the local police in the Third Reich and those of the Washington, D.C. police force. The program is also attended by members of the police forces of Baltimore and an increasing number of other U.S. cities, in addition to all agents of the FBI.

Chief Ramsey will discuss the unique program for which he is responsible and its effect on participants.

Charles H. Ramsey

This program is generously co-sponsored by Larry and Bonnie Moncik, George and Eleanor Getzler and their families, in loving memory of their parents Abraham and Ida Moncik.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 29

8:00 pm

Beach Hebrew Institute
416-694-7942
109 Kenilworth Avenue, Toronto

"LESSONS OF THE HOLOCAUST – WERE THEY EVER LEARNED?"

LEO ADLER, born in Germany, is the son of Holocaust survivors. As Director of National Affairs of the Friends of Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies, he is involved in numerous educational programs and public campaigns. Mr. Adler is a member of the National Association of Criminal Defence Lawyers, the International Association of Defence Attorneys and the Canadian Forensic Society. He is also an Adjunct Professor at Osgoode Hall Law School of York University.

8:00 pm

Temple Emanu-El
416-449-3880
120 Old Colony Road, Toronto

"AFTER THE DESTRUCTION: HOW HOLOCAUST SURVIVORS BECAME JEWISH REVOLUTIONARIES"

In the days and months after their liberation, Holocaust survivors faced a world that had failed them. Not only could they no longer return home, but they were also forced to live in Displaced Persons camps in Germany and Austria. How did these survivors view the world? What message did they seek to give to the world and the Jewish people? Is it a message that remains important today?

DR. ABRAHAM J. PECK is the Director of the Academic Council for Post-Holocaust Christian, Jewish and Islamic Studies at the University of Southern Maine. His most recent book, The Holocaust and History, was co-edited with Dr. Michael Berenbaum. Dr. Peck is a former advisor to Elie Wiesel, was first Chair of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum and Vice-Chair of its Committee on Archives and Library. He is the son of survivors and was born in a Displaced Persons camp in Landsberg, Germany. His talk will take place during the synagogue's regular Friday night service.

Generously co-sponsored by SF Partnership, LLP, Chartered Accountants, in memory of all those who perished.

For program changes visit our website
www.holocausteducationweek.com
or call our hotline 416-631-5689

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 30

8:00 pm

Temple Emanu-El
416-449-3880
120 Old Colony Road, Toronto

"GERMAN HISTORY, FAMILY HISTORY: THE WAGNER CASE IN BAYREUTH"

DR. GOTTFRIED H. WAGNER is the great-grandson of German composer Richard Wagner and the great-great grandson of composer Franz Liszt. Born in 1947 in Bayreuth, Germany, he has been living in Italy since 1983.

An international multi-media director, musicologist and writer, Dr. Wagner is the recipient of many awards for his artistic and academic activities, as well as for his humanitarian involvements. He is the co-founder of The Post-Holocaust Dialogue Group with Dr. Abraham J. Peck of the University of Southern Maine. Dr. Wagner will discuss the history of his family's active, personal involvement in German history, taking Richard Wagner's anti-Semitic pamphlet Jewishness in Music in 1850 as a starting point. He will then focus on the creation of the family's nationalistic-racist shrine in Bayreuth, its leading role in the Nazi regime and post-War attempts to conceal it.

This program is generously co-sponsored by the Rash family, in loving memory of Harry Rash and in honour of his great-grandsons, Hayden Gray Steinberg and Mason Harris Blake Drutz.

8:00 pm

Morris Winchevsky Centre
416-789-5502
585 Cranbrooke Avenue, Toronto

"THE LEGEND OF THE LODZ GHETTO CHILDREN"

IRENA KOHN, Ph.D. candidate at OISE, will discuss the fairy tale The Legend of the Lodz Ghetto. Written in Polish and accompanied by illustrations, it was created in Leon Glazer's tailor workshop and was found in the Ghetto's ruins after the War by survivor Abraham Wolf Yasni. A chronicle of the lives of the children who laboured in the workshop, it was designed in the form of an album for presentation to the Ghetto's Elder, Chaim Mordechai Rumkowski. Of the surviving documents of the Lodz Ghetto, the album constitutes a significant yet little known historical description of ghetto life. Ms. Kohn will consider the ethical responsibilities of inheriting such a complex historical document and what it might mean to "remember well."

Co-sponsored by the Morris Winchevsky School and United Jewish People's Order.

8:30 pm

Jewish Russian Community Centre
416-222-7105 ext. 230
18 Rockford Road, Toronto

"G-D IN THE HOLOCAUST"

RABBI YOSEPH ZALTZMAN is the Senior Rabbi and Executive Director of the Jewish Russian Community Centre. In his lecture, he will explore some central issues of Judaism, such as faith in G-d, facing adversities and our response to tragedies. A question period will follow. Program in Russian.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31

9:00 am – 3:30 pm

Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care
416-785-2500 ext. 2271
Wagman Centre
55 Ameer Avenue, Toronto

"SURVIVOR FAMILIES: GENERATION TO GENERATION"

This conference for adult children of Holocaust survivors and their partners will explore the impact of the Holocaust on their families, their past and future, and their community.

Prize-winning author LEV RAPHAEL is one of America's earliest 2G writers. His latest of 15 books is The German Money. He has published hundreds of essays, articles, stories and reviews, and has keynoted international Holocaust conferences in London, Houston and Toronto. He will speak on Exploring Survivor Issues Through Fiction.

JEANETTE FRIEDMAN is the editor of survivor memoirs for the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum, an author and community activist. She will discuss Children of Survivors: Where We've Been and Where We're Going.

Other speakers include SUSAN JACKSON, Director, Community Planning, Community Engagement, Culture and Israel/Overseas Affairs, UJA Federation; BERNIE FARBER, Executive Director, Canadian Jewish Congress Ontario Region; PAULA DAVID, MSW., Coordinator, Holocaust Resource Project, Baycrest Centre; and ILLYSE LUSTIG, Resource Consultant, York Region District School Board.

$36 per person, includes lunch and materials. Kashruth observed. Limited space available. Pre-registration necessary by October 22, 2004.

For more information and to print a registration form, visit www.baycrest.org and click on events, or contact Brenda Quek at 416-785-2500 ext 2853.

Generously co-sponsored by Joseph Gottdenker, in loving memory of Gottdenker and Zuckerbrot families, along with UJA Federation of Greater Toronto and Canadian Jewish Congress Ontario Region.

9:15 am & 11:00 am

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

St. Peter's Anglican Church, Erindale
905-828-2095
1745 Dundas Street W., Mississauga

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

SALLY WASSERMAN, born in Katowice, Poland, will recount the story of her survival as a hidden child rescued by Righteous Gentiles in Poland and will reflect on the bravery of her rescuers, as well as honour the personal story of her mother.

9:30 am

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

Augsburg Lutheran Church
905-459-3262
224 Mill Street S., Brampton

"HANA'S SUITCASE"

In March 2000, a suitcase arrived at the Tokyo Holocaust Education Resource Centre. Painted on the outside were the words Hana Brady, May 16, 1931 and Waisenkind – the German word for "orphan." Japanese children were full of questions: Who was Hana? What sort of girl was she? What happened to her? This program will explore the remarkable story of a journey of discovery that led the Centre's curator, Fumiko Ishioka, to Toronto.

10:00 am

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

St. Ansgar Lutheran Church
416-783-3570
1498 Avenue Road, Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

MARTIN MAXWELL, who escaped Nazi Germany on the Kindertransport to England, will focus his remarks on the Righteous Gentiles in the Holocaust. A glider pilot during the invasion of Normandy, he will also take part in a Remembrance Day service and speak about the importance of the 60th anniversary of D-Day.

10:00 am

Temple Emanu-El
416-449-3880
120 Old Colony Road, Toronto

"POST-HOLOCAUST GERMANS AND JEWS: CREATING A DIALOGUE OF UNDERSTANDING AND A PATH TO TIKKUN OLAM"

DR. ABRAHAM J. PECK co-founded The Post-Holocaust Dialogue Group in 1992 with DR. GOTTFRIED H. WAGNER, the great-grandson of German composer Richard Wagner. The Group seeks to turn the inherited legacies of children of Holocaust survivors and children of German perpetrators into a forum for intergenerational dialogue and social action. A dialogue between Peck and Wagner has recently been published in the book, Second Generation Voices: Reflections by Children of Holocaust Survivors and Perpetrators. They will discuss how these dialogues can lead to understanding and tikkun olam – repairing the world.

11:00 am

Jewish Storytelling Arts
Congregation Habonim 416-782-7125
5 Glen Park Road, Toronto

"TALES OF THE SHOAH"

The past comes to life through stories of the Holocaust as told by ELI RUBENSTEIN, MERYL ARBING, DAVID BENDER and others. This program is in memory of the late Alec Gelcer (z"l). Presented with Congregation Habonim, Friends of Yiddish and UJA Federation Committee for Yiddish.

1:30 pm

Oraynu Congregation for Humanistic Judaism
416-385-3910
Banbury Community Centre
120 Banbury Road, Toronto

"THE LIFE AND STORIES OF YEHUDA ELBERG: RESISTANCE FIGHTER, SURVIVOR AND WRITER"

LESLIE ROBBINS-CONWAY will tell stories by this acclaimed Yiddish writer. Elberg wrote about life in his Polish shtetl (village) reflecting its homespun values, no matter how far his characters are forced by circumstance to stray from humanistic ideals. Elberg was awarded Israel's Prime Minister's Award for Excellence in Literature, given only once before to a non-Israeli, and the Itzhak Manger Prize, often called the Nobel Prize of Yiddish Literature. Ms. Robbins-Conway is one of Canada's premier storytellers. She was the founder and, for many years, Artistic Director of Jewish Storytelling Arts in Toronto, and has performed across Canada in live performance, and on radio and on television.

2:00 pm

Lodzer Centre Holocaust Congregation
416-636-6665 ext. 0
12 Heaton Street, Toronto

"A SYMBOL OF HEROISM AND SACRIFICE: IRENE SENDLER"

RENATA SKOTNICKA ZAJDMAN will discuss the legacy of Irene Sendler, a Righteous Gentile who saved numerous children from the Warsaw Ghettto by smuggling them out and placing them in Christian homes. Zajdman, a friend of Sendler, escaped the Warsaw Ghetto at the age of 14, survived under false identity as a Catholic and was later deported to Germany as a Polish Christian slave worker. Following the War, she immigrated to Canada and founded the Montreal Chapter of the World Federation of Jewish Child Survivors of the Holocaust. She is also Associate Director of Living Testimonies, the video documentation archive at Montreal's McGill University.

Generously co-sponsored by Henry and Elaine Melnick, in memory of his parents who perished in the Holocaust, and the Polish-Jewish Heritage Foundation of Canada.

3:30 pm

Jewish Genealogical Society
416-967-6241 ext. 27
Shaarei Shomayim Congregation
416-789-3213
470 Glencairn Avenue, Toronto

"UKRAINIANS, JEWS & POLES IN EASTERN GALICIA: JUNE–JULY 1941"

In the weeks after the German invasion of the Soviet Union in June 1941, a swath of regions extending from the Black Sea to the Baltic witnessed a horrendous set of double murders. As the Wehrmacht advanced, the Russian secret police (NKVD) emptied its overcrowded prisons by slaughtering the inmates. Blaming the Jews for the Soviet crimes, enraged civilians beat, robbed and killed Jews. Although these atrocities are not secret - they figure in hundreds of survivor testimonies and in Soviet and German military and security-service reports – almost no one has tried to give an account of them. MARCO CARYNNYK, writer, translator and historical researcher, will address this gap by looking at the town of Zolochiv in western Ukraine, where the NKVD killed some 1600 prisoners between June and early July 1941. Mr. Carynnyk has lectured at the Venice Biennale, Harvard University and the Dovzhenko Studio in Kyiv.

5:00 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EDUCATORS

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Second Story Press
Miles Nadal JCC 416-924-6211
Al Green Theatre
750 Spadina Avenue, Toronto

"THE UNDERGROUND REPORTERS"

This program will feature a slide presentation and reading by award-winning author KATHY KACER from her latest book. The Underground Reporters is a true story of Jewish youth in a small Czech village who performed an act of quiet rebellion during the Second World War. Forbidden to return to school, shop or play, they secretly created a newspaper as an outlet and a defiant gesture. Over a two-year period beginning August 1940, they circulated 22 issues. Each issue consisted of one copy and was covertly shared by the Jewish villagers and their friends. JOHN FREUND, noted in the book, will be available for questions. A wine and cheese reception and book-signing will follow the presentation.

This program is recommended for students in grades 3-7 and for educators. Co-sponsored by the Miles Nadal JCC.

For program changes visit our website
www.holocausteducationweek.com
or call our hotline 416-631-5689

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31

7:30 pm

Canadian Society of Yad Vashem 416-785-1333
Beth Tikvah Synagogue, 3080 Bayview Avenue, Toronto

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EDUCATORS

"THE LANGUAGE OF ANTI-SEMITISM – CHALLENGES TO HOLOCAUST EDUCATION AND REMEMBRANCE TODAY"

Shulamit Imber

SHULAMIT IMBER, Pedagogical Director of the International School for Holocaust Studies at Yad Vashem, Jerusalem, is a member of the International Task Force for International Cooperation on Holocaust Education, Remembrance & Research and the Committee on Remembrance Days, under the auspices of the Council of Europe. She has lectured at many international conferences and forums in Amsterdam, Stockholm, United Kingdom, U.S. & Israel.

DR. KAREN MOCK, Executive Director of the Canadian Race Relations Foundation, is a registered psychologist and educator. She is widely acknowledged as one of Canada's foremost experts on anti-racist education. Dr. Mock previously served as National Director of the League for Human Rights of B'nai Brith Canada. A question period will follow the presentation. Of special interest to educators.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31

8:00 pm

Beth Radom Synagogue
416-636-3451
18 Reiner Road, Toronto

"REBIRTH AFTER THE HOLOCAUST: THE BERGEN-BELSEN DISPLACED PERSONS CAMP, 1945-1950"

After the British Army liberated Bergen-Belsen concentration camp on April 15, 1945, the uprooted and homeless Jewish survivors emerged with a boundless determination to rebuild their lives. During the next five years, the Bergen-Belsen Displaced Persons Camp became the largest DP camp in Germany and a vibrant centre of rehabilitation, reconstruction and rebirth. Its leaders played a significant role in the struggle for the establishment of the State of Israel.

SAM E. BLOCH is President of the World Federation of Bergen-Belsen Survivors and Vice President of the American Gathering of Jewish Holocaust Survivors. A partisan in the Jewish underground during the Shoah, he served as a member of the Council of Liberated Jews in the British Zone in Germany after liberation and in the administration of the Bergen-Belsen Displaced Persons Camp.

JEAN BLOCH ROSENSAFT is Senior National Director for Public Affairs and Institutional Planning at Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, and Director of the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion Museum in New York. This lecture is presented in conjunction with the photo-documentary exhibit, Rebirth After the Holocaust, currently on view at Beth Radom Synagogue, co-curated by Mrs. Rosensaft and her father. For details on its Opening see page 23.

Generously co-sponsored by an anonymous donor.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 1

6:30 pm

Holy Blossom Temple
416-789-3291
1950 Bathurst Street, Toronto

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

"THROUGH THE EYES OF STUDENTS: A REFLECTION ON THE MARCH OF THE LIVING EXPERIENCE"

In May 2004, over thirty students from Community Hebrew Academy of Toronto (CHAT) Richmond Hill Campus boarded a plane that travelled back into Jewish history. As they disembarked, few knew what reality would lie ahead in their first week travelling through Poland. TOBA COOPER, GILLA SHAPIRO and MATTHEW FRIEDMAN, three seniors from CHAT Richmond Hill, will recount their experiences on the March of the Living through their stories and pictures. Of special interest to students grade 7+. Parents and grandparents are welcome.

7:30 pm

Congregation B'nai Torah
416-226-3700
465 Patricia Avenue, Toronto

"JEWISH RESCUE IN SHANGHAI"

DR. PAMELA SHATZKES is an eminent historian and lecturer from London, England, who will introduce a documentary about the rescue of Jews who found refuge in Japan and Shanghai during the Holocaust. Her lecture and film tell the story of Dr. Zorach Warhaftig, the man behind this extraordinary rescue of over 7,000 Jews, including the entire Mir Yeshiva. Dr. Shatzkes is the author of Holocaust and Rescue: Impotent or Indifferent? Anglo-Jewry, 1938-1945. A question period will follow.

– OPENING EVENT –

7:30 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED EVENT

Christian Jewish Dialogue of Toronto
Holocaust Remembrance Committee
416-757-5523
St. Barnabas Anglican Church
361 Danforth Avenue (at Chester), Toronto

"ROOMS FOR THOUGHT – AN EVENING WITH HOLOCAUST SURVIVORS"

Ten Holocaust survivors, representatives of the diverse experiences of the many Holocaust survivors now living in Toronto, will relate their personal stories and answer questions in small, informal groups. These survivors, some of whom were children, others young adults, come from different countries. Some were hidden by Righteous Gentiles, others survived the ghettos or lived through the horrors of death and labour camps. To hear these living witnesses is a privilege still available in our community.

This thought-provoking and highly emotional program opens the series of church sponsored events throughout the GTA and in smaller communities outside Toronto.

8:00 pm

Medina Theatre Ensemble 416-785-1074
B'nai Brith Canada
15 Hove Street, Toronto

"BIRTHRIGHT"

MEDINA THEATRE will present a stage reading of Richard Maibaum's three-act play about family life. Set in Germany in the 1930s, its heroes are trapped in a dying land, branded as unwanted aliens, and plunged into a whirlpool of hate. Mr. Maibaum's screen credits include writing for several early James Bond films. "...a powerful and sweeping panorama of German Jewry – glowing eloquence, wise pervading fairness..." – Billboard, N.Y. 1933.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2

10:00 am

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Markham Branch Library
905-513-7977 ext. 4281
6031 Hwy #7, Markham

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

Born in Amsterdam, MIKE ENGLISHMAN's entire immediate family and first wife perished in the camps. He survived five concentration camps and two prisons and immigrated to Canada in 1952 with his new family. In the 1960s, he became involved in combating Neo-Nazis in Toronto. Of special interest to students grade 7+.

10:45 am

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Netivot Hatorah Day School
905-771-1234 ext. 226
18 Atkinson Avenue, Thornhill

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

PETER SILVERMAN was born in 1924 in Jody, Poland. He was 14 years old when the War broke out and spent six months in a ghetto and a slave labour camp. In December 1941, after witnessing the massacre of his home-town's Jewish population, he escaped and spent eight months in hiding. He later joined an elite mixed Jewish-Russian Partisan Brigade and actively participated in armed resistance, fighting the Nazis until liberation in July 1944. He is the recipient of medals for bravery by seven different countries, and is the co-author of From Victims to Victors. Of special interest to students in grade 5+.

1:30 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Forest Hill Library
416-393-7706
700 Eglinton Avenue W., Toronto

"HANA'S SUITCASE"

For complete program details, see page 3. Of special interest to students in grade 7+.

2:00 pm

Barbara Frum Library
416-395-5440
20 Covington Road, Toronto

"THE LONG WAY HOME"

For the majority of Holocaust survivors, World War II did not end with their liberation from Nazi concentration and death camps. As the personal accounts contained in this film demonstrate, the battle to rebuild lives and human dignity continued long after the Allies' victory. The tumultuous years between 1945-1948, from liberation to the creation of the State of Israel, epitomized the challenges Holocaust survivors faced in recreating their identity from the remnants of their destroyed world. The film was produced by Moriah Films of the Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies and is narrated by Morgan Freeman.

2:00 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Danforth/Coxwell Library
416-393-7783
1675 Danforth Avenue, Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

ARNOLD FRIEDMAN, born in Chudlovo, Slovakia in 1929, was deported to Auschwitz in the spring of 1944. In January 1945, he survived a death march to Gross Rosen and Dachau camps. He was liberated on May 4, 1945 by the U.S. Army near Garmish-Partenkirchen. With his mother, father and younger brother murdered in Birkenau, Arnold was brought to Canada as a war orphan in 1947. Of special interest to students in grade 7+.

2:00 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Wychwood Library 416-393-7639
1431 Bathurst Street, Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

Born in 1925 in Lodz, Poland, ANN SZEDLECKI first lived in the Bialystock Ghetto from where she and her brother escaped to the Soviet Union and then Leninogorsk, Kazachstan. Her brother was arrested, sentenced to hard labour and died in 1943. She was also sentenced to hard labour for six months. The sole survivor of her large family, she married and came to Canada in 1953. Of special interest to students in grade 7+.

4:30 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EDUCATORS

Friends of Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies
B'nai Brith Canada 416-633-6224 ext. 112
15 Hove Street, Toronto

"TEACHING THE HOLOCAUST TO YOUTH: A SEMINAR FOR TEACHERS"

JONATHAN ZINMAN, a teacher in York Region Vaughan Secondary School, created 20th Century Genocide, a course emphasizing the Holocaust, combining drama, geography, history, law and music. The seminar will provide concrete examples of lesson plans and instructional ideas, as well as student feedback. Geared towards current and future teachers who are interested in incorporating Holocaust Studies into their own course and curriculum.

7:00 pm

Bathurst Clark Resource Library
905-653-7323
900 Clark Avenue W., Thornhill

"NIKKI'S CHILDREN"

This documentary describes the story of 669 children who were saved by Nicholas Winton, a young British stockbroker. Fifty years after his extraordinary exploit, the story was uncovered by his wife, and these children finally learned how they came to be saved. Following the screening, Holocaust survivor MARTIN MAXWELL will facilitate discussion. He will focus on his childhood in Austria and his experiences as a teen on a Kindertransport from Vienna to England in 1938.

7:00 pm

Bathurst JCC Discovery Museum
416-636-1880 ext. 390
4588 Bathurst Street, Toronto

"THREE GENERATIONS, THREE VOICES"

A panel discussion on how the Holocaust affected three generations of one family. Participating will be Holocaust survivor IBI GROSSMAN, her son ANDY RETI and grandchildren KATHARINE and DAVID RETI.

Co-sponsored by the Diamant family in memory of Magda Delman, survivor of Auschwitz and by Edith Sereny.

7:00 pm

Tyndale University College & Seminary
416-226-6620 ext. 2783
25 Ballyconnor Court, Toronto

"TWISTED CROSS: WERE THE NAZIS CHRISTIANS?"

In this lecture, PROFESSOR DORIS BERGEN will discuss the relationship between Nazism and Christianity during the Third Reich.

Professor Bergen teaches in the History Department at the University of Notre Dame, Indiana. She is the author of Twisted Cross: The German Christian Movement in the Third Reich and War and Genocide: A Concise History of the Holocaust and editor of The Sword of the Lord: Military Chaplains from the First to the Twenty-First Century. She has also published numerous articles and essays on religion, gender and ethnicity in the Holocaust and World War II. Professor Bergen is a member of the Academic Advisory Committee of the Center for Advanced Holocaust Studies at the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum.

7:30 pm

Beth Jacob V'Anshei Drildz
416-638-5955
147 Overbrook Place, Toronto

"THE LOGIC OF THE HOLOCAUST: WHY THE NAZIS KILLED"

We study and remember the Holocaust because we believe that by increasing awareness of the events and horrors of the past, this chapter of history "will never be repeated." However, what precisely do we hope to learn? What "lessons" might we expect to take away from this horrendous event? DR. RICHARD KOENIGSBERG has focused his research on the ideology and minds of the perpetrators. His presentation will explore the logic of the Holocaust – the meaning of those ideas and ideologies that were the source of genocide. It will help us understand the minds and motives of those who perpetrated the Holocaust and become aware of the forces that lead societies toward destruction and self-destruction.

Dr. Koenigsberg is a psychologist who seeks to uncover the "hidden narratives" that lie beneath the surface of culture and the historical process. He has pioneered a method for studying the ideas of political leaders through analysis of the images and metaphors in their writings and speeches. His book, Hitler's Ideology, changed the direction of research on Nazism and the Holocaust.

Generously co-sponsored by Helen Stollar, in memory of her beloved husband, Jack Stollar.

7:30 pm

Beth Sholom Synagogue 416-783-6103
1445 Eglinton Avenue W., Toronto

"RAVENSBRÜCK: FORGOTTEN WOMEN OF THE HOLOCAUST"

DR. ROCHELLE SAIDEL will provide general background on the Ravensbrück camp and on the Jewish women who were at the camp. She will also provide an analysis of women's experiences and address how politics has influenced the memorialization of Jewish and other victims of the camp.

Dr. Saidel is the founder and Executive Director of Remember the Women Institute, based in New York, which conducts and encourages research and cultural projects that integrate women into history. Her recent book is entitled The Jewish Women of Ravensbrück Concentration Camp.

Co-sponsored by UJA Federation Women's Campaign & Advocacy.

7:30 pm

Indigo Books, Music & Café
416-925-3536 ext. 5102
55 Bloor Street W., Toronto

"FORTUNA'S CHILDREN"

This true story of Imre Schonberger, is compellingly told by his son PAUL FAHIDI. He will recall some of the striking acts of kindness towards the Jews by the people of the Austrian town where his family was sent in 1944.

7:30 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

Lawrence Park Community Church
416-489-1551
2180 Bayview Avenue, Toronto

"AN EYE FOR AN EYE"

ALVIN ABRAM'S newest book, An Eye for an Eye, is about a crime that takes place in Lodz, Poland in 1921 and throughout the War as a husband seeks the person responsible for his wife's death. Discussion follows.

8:00 pm

Israel's, the Judaica Centre
416-256-2858 ext. 22
870 Eglinton Avenue W., Toronto

"BETWEEN TWO WARS: CANADIAN JEWS IN TRANSITION"

VIVIAN FELSEN will discuss how this book by journalist Israel Medres adds another dimension to the unique account of the Jewish community in Canada. It serves as a valuable eyewitness account of a turbulent and tragic time in the history of Canadian Jewry, evoking all the major themes of the '20s, '30s and '40s, including the campaign against allowing German Jews into Canada, Canada's role in the Second World War, and the first Jewish immigrant to Canada during WWII.

8:00 pm

Adath Israel Congregation
416-635-5340
37 Southbourne Avenue, Toronto

"TO DACHAU AND BEYOND"

RABBI ERWIN SCHILD, O.C. was a student at the Jewish Teachers' Seminary in Würzburg when he experienced Kristallnacht and his subsequent incarceration in Dachau. In November 2003 he returned to Dachau, exactly 65 years later to lecture to an audience of German Christians in the Church of Atonement, located within the former concentration camp. His address will contrast the experiences and lessons of his recent visit with the events of the past. Rabbi Schild is Rabbi Emeritus of Adath Israel Congregation, and a recipient of the Human Relations Award of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews. Discussion follows.

Generously co-sponsored by Dr. Irwin and Miriam Goldstein, Ben and Sari, Jeffrey and David Goldstein, in loving memory of Berta Shloime Bank and Pearl and Ben Goldstein.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3

10:30 am

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Mount Pleasant Library
416-393-7737
599 Mt. Pleasant Road, Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

ALEX LEVIN, born in 1932 in Rokitno (Volin), Poland, survived the massacre of the Rokitno Ghetto, in which his parents and younger brother were murdered. He escaped into the forest with another brother and lived in a cave for more than a year. He was liberated by the Soviet Red Army in 1944 and made his way to Canada in 1975. Of special interest to students in grade 7+.

12:00 noon

Goodman & Carr LLP
416-597-4075
200 King Street. W., Toronto

"WHAT WAS HITLER TRYING TO ACHIEVE?: THE SYMBOLIC MEANING OF GENOCIDE"

The purpose of the "Final Solution" was to annihilate all the Jewish people. Yet Jews were a small minority posing no threat to Germany. What was the basis of Hitler's hysterical anxiety, anger and will to destroy? For 35 years, author DR. RICHARD KOENIGSBERG has written and lectured on the mind of Adolf Hitler, Nazi ideology and the thinking that led to the Holocaust. His books, Hitler's Ideology and The Psychoanalysis of Racism, Revolution and Nationalism examine political language in order to uncover the structures of thought that lead to totalitarianism and mass murder. A Lunch & Learn program. Please RSVP to Jeffrey Larry at 416-597-4075.

12:00 noon

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EDUCATORS

University of Toronto
416-913-2429
Wolfond Centre for Jewish Campus Life
36 Harbord Street, Toronto

"LUNCH WITH A HOLOCAUST SURVIVOR"

NATE LEIPCIGER, born in 1928 in Chorzow, Poland, survived a series of ghettos and camps, including the Sosnowiec Ghetto, Auschwitz-Birkenau, Fünfteichen, Gross Rosen and Flossenberg. He and his father were liberated on May 2, 1945 and immigrated to Canada in October 1948. He will relate his personal story and answer questions. Light luncheon will be served. For reservations call 416-913-2424. Of special interest to students and educators

1:30 pm

Bernard Betel Centre for Creative Living
416-225-2112 ext. 116
1003 Steeles Avenue W., Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

YAEL SPIER COHEN was born in Hesse, Germany where, as a schoolgirl, she witnessed Kristallnacht. In 1942 her entire family was deported to Theresienstadt and to Auschwitz-Birkenau in 1944. After her parents were murdered at Birkenau, she was sent to Mauthausen as a slave labourer and was subsequently liberated in May 1945. At the age of 16, she was alone in the world.

1:30 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Bathurst Clark Resource Library
905-653-7323
900 Clark Avenue W., Thornhill

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

BILL GLIED, born in 1930 in Subotica, Serbia, was deported to Auschwitz-Birkenau with his entire family in April 1944. In June 1944, they were transferred to Dachau where he worked as a slave labourer. He was liberated by the U.S. Army on April 29, 1945 and immigrated to Canada as an orphan in 1947. Of special interest to students in grade 7+.

2:00 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Northern District Public Library
416-393-7619
40 Orchard View Blvd., Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

MANDEL GOOD was born in 1925 in Nowy-Sancz, Poland. He is a survivor of the Nowy-Sancz and Tarnow Ghettos and seven camps – Roznow, Muszyna, Plaszow, Auschwitz- Birkenau, Mauthausen, Melk and Ebensee. He was liberated on May 8, 1945 by the U.S. Army, immigrated to Canada in 1948 and married in 1951. Of special interest to students in grade 7+.

2:15 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Louis-Honoré Fréchette School
905-738-1724
40 New Westminster Drive, Thornhill

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

Born in Moldava, Czechoslovakia, MAX EISEN and his family were deported to Auschwitz-Birkenau in 1944, where they worked as slave labourers. He later survived a death march to Mauthausen, Melk and Ebensee. He was liberated by the U.S. 761 Black Tank Battallion on May 6, 1945. Later he returned to Czechoslovakia and lived in an orphanage for three years before coming to Canada. He is the recent recipient of the 2004 Humanitarian Award from the Friends of Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies. Of special interest to students

7:00 pm

Chabad Lubavitch Markham
905-886-0420
83 Green Lane, Thornhill

"FROM EUGENICS TO MENGELE TO GENETIC ENGINEERING"

Genetic study and sterilization programs existed in many countries in the first third of the 20th century, including the T4 program in Germany and the asylum program in Canada. The genetic study carried through to the horrific experiments conducted by Josef Mengele at Auschwitz. Do the geneticists of today have the right to use the data collected by such "researchers" as Mengele? Do the genetic engineering and the stem cell research being contemplated today bear any relationship to these programs? What is the future of this ethically ambiguous field? A panel of experts will explore these timely questions.

7:00 pm

Dutch Canadian Association of Greater Toronto
416-229-1753
St. Ansgar Church Fellowship Hall
1498 Avenue Road, Toronto

"DAILY LIFE WITH FUGITIVES DURING THE NAZI OCCUPATION OF HOLLAND"

MARIA JACOBS, a Dutch poet, lived in Amersfoort, Holland with her brother and mother during WWII. During that time, her mother hid more than a dozen Jews from the Nazis at great personal risk to her young family, including two children ages 15 and 9. By her example, she gave the children the understanding they needed to take part in this deception and, as a result, all those hiding in their home were saved. Ms. Jacobs will read from her book Precautions Against Death, that tells their story.

7:00 pm

Ve'ahavta: the Canadian Jewish Humanitarian & Relief Committee
416-964-7698 ext. 16
Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue
416-789-3213
470 Glencairn Avenue, Toronto

"NEVER AGAIN!"

This panel discussion will address the question What can I do to make a difference?, aimed at exploring the relationship between personal initiatives and humanitarian efforts. Featured will be individuals from the Jewish community who consistently play a role in tikkun olam – repairing the world – and who remain dedicated to the promise "Never Again!" They include AVRUM ROSENSWEIG, Director of Ve'ahavta, DR. NORMAN EPSTEIN, founder and Co-Chair of Canadians Against Slavery and Torture in Sudan (C.A.S.T.) and DR. ANDY SIMOR, infectious disease specialist from Sunnybrook and Women's College Health Sciences Centre who is a Ve'ahavta volunteer in Zimbabwe. Generously co-sponsored by Anita Ekstein and the Ekstein family, in loving memory of Frank Ekstein.

7:30 pm

Chapters Inc.
416-222-6323
2901 Bayview Avenue, Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

CHAVA KWINTA was born in Sosnowiec, Poland. As a child, she was transported to the Srodula Ghetto where she became a smuggler in order to feed her family. She spent over two years in concentration and death camps in Waldenburg Groben, Gross Rosen and Bergen-Belsen before being liberated on April 15, 1945. She is the author of I Am Still Living.

7:30 pm

Kolel, The Adult Centre for Liberal Jewish Learning
416-485-7007 ext. 222
151 Eglinton Avenue W., Toronto

"TRIAL AND PROSECUTION OF SS AGENT HELMUT OBERLANDER: A TRUE STORY"

ROB GOLDSTEIN is currently Senior Counsel with the Federal Prosecution Service, Department of Justice. He has conducted trials and appeals at all levels of the Courts of Ontario and is a regular lecturer at the Toronto Police College. He was instrumental in prosecuting Helmut Oberlander, an SS agent with a mobile killing unit in the Soviet Union. Oberlander was brought to trial in 1998-1999 and stripped of his naturalization. His deportation has been held up ever since. Presented in partnership with the Bathurst JCC and Reviving Eden, Kolel's initiative for Jews in their 20s.

7:30 pm

Pride of Israel Synagogue
416-226-0111
59 Lissom Crescent, Toronto

"IT STARTED AND ENDED THERE: MARCH OF THE LIVING TRIP ON FILM"

Holocaust survivor MIKE ENGLISHMAN participated in last year's March of the Living, a life-altering journey to Poland and Israel for Jewish high school students. He will discuss the impact this trip has on both the students and the survivors who accompany them. Born in Amsterdam, the Netherlands, Mr. Englishman lost his entire immediate family and first wife and survived five concentration camps and two prisons. He came to Canada in 1952 with his new family and became involved in combating Neo-Nazis in Toronto.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4

10:00 am

B'nai Brith Canada
416-633-6224 ext. 112
15 Hove Street, Toronto

"CHILDREN OF THE KINDERTRANSPORT"

SUZY GOLDSTEIN and WENDY SHARE, daughters of a Kindertransport participant, will talk about their father's life as a child growing up in Germany, and his escape from the Nazis as one of the children of the Kindertransport. Like the majority of the 10,000 children who fled Germany by train in this unprecedented rescue effort, he never saw his parents again.

12:00 noon

Miles Nadal JCC
416-924-6211
750 Spadina Avenue, Toronto

"SURVIVING THEIR SURVIVAL: LIFE AFTER THE HOLOCAUST"

A Lunch & Learn program with DR. PAULA DRAPER, historian and educator who has published widely on the topics of memory and history and Canada and the Holocaust. She is the Historical Consultant for The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, UJA Federation and was Lead Interviewer-Trainer for the Shoah Foundation. Dr. Draper is presently researching the post-War experiences of Canadian Holocaust survivors.

1:30 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Thornhill Community Public Library
905-513-7977 ext. 2182
7755 Bayview Avenue, Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

ETTY ZIGLER was born in Radautz, Romania. Her family was deported in October 1941 to Djurin, a camp in Transnistria (Ukraine), where her father, grandmother and younger sister died of various untreated ailments. She was liberated by the Soviet Red Army in 1944. Of special interest to students in grade 7+.

7:30 pm

Beth Torah Congregation
416-782-4495
47 Glenbrook Avenue, Toronto

"THE HOLOCAUST IN HUNGARY: THE 60TH ANNIVERSARY"

PROFESSOR ANNIE SZAMOSI, Professor of Directing and Screenwriting at Humber College, is a child of Holocaust survivors. Like many other Second Generation, she learned very little from her parents about their experiences during the Shoah. Only decades later as an adult, and after innumerable questions, did she learn, among other things, that her father, Geza, was one of the young leaders of the Zionist Resistance and involved in rescue operations in Budapest. Professor Szamosi is currently working on a documentary film about Rudolph Kasztner. Generously co-sponsored by the Meles family, in memory of George and Eleanor Meles, survivors of Mauthausen and Auschwitz.

7:30 pm

First Narayever Congregation
416-927-0546
187 Brunswick Avenue, Toronto

"HIDDEN IN FRANCE, HIDDEN IN BELGIUM"

SIMON JERUCHIM and his wife CECILE ROJER JERUCHIM were both hidden children during the Holocaust. They will discuss their similar experiences of being saved by compassionate Gentiles. He is the auther of Hidden in France – A Boy's Journey Under the Nazi Occupation, that details his anguish at being separated from his family and living in fear and isolation. Cecile is the author of Hello, Do You Know My Name? and has published many short stories related to her Holocaust experiences.

Co-sponsored by the Friends of Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies.

7:30 pm

Indigo Books, Music & Café
905-731-8771
8705 Yonge Street, Richmond Hill

"SHATTERED! 50 YEARS OF SILENCE"

DR. FELICIA CARMELLY is a survivor of Transnistria, geographically the largest killing fields of the Holocaust. She will describe the fate of nearly half a million victims who perished in hundreds of camps under the control of Romanian Fascist armies and their Ukrainian collaborators. Her lecture is based on research in five languages for her award-winning book Shattered! 50 Years of Silence, History and Voices of the Tragedy in Romania and Transnistria. A question period will follow.

7:30 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EDUCATORS

Centennial College – Room 203
HP Science and Technology Centre
416-289-5000 ext. 8849
755 Morningside Avenue, Toronto
(1 km South of the 401, North of Ellesmere)
Parking at Centennial lot on Military Trail, (North of Ellesmere, East of Morningside) www.centennialcollege.ca/about/map/stc.htm

"JUSTICE MATTERS: LEGACIES OF THE HOLOCAUST AND WWII"

Stemming from an unprecedented study of the children of Holocaust survivors and the children of Third Reich members, PROFESSOR MONA SUE WEISSMARK's book, Justice Matters, illustrates how the psychology of hatred and resentment is passed from generation to generation. She shows how the cycle of ethnic and religious strife is kept alive generation after generation through story-telling, with each side recounting the injustice it suffered and the valour it showed in avenging its own group.

Professor and psychologist Weissmark, Ph.D., a child of Holocaust survivors, is also the founder of the Mansfield Institute for Social Justice. She is Associate Professor of Psychology, Roosevelt University and Visiting Scholar at Northwestern University. She will be available for book-signing after her presentation.

An exhibit of selected works of the John and Molly Pollock collection will be on display during the program. For more information, please view the collection at www.centennialcollege.ca/holocaust-pollock.

Recommended for members of the Second and Third Generations as well as for current and future educators.

7:30 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

St. Gabriel's Passionist Parish
(Roman Catholic) 416-221-8866
650 Sheppard Avenue E., Toronto

"I AM JOSEPH, YOUR BROTHER"

This documentary chronicles the visit of Pope John Paul II to Israel in March 2000 and describes the revolutionary changes in Roman Catholic-Jewish relations in the past forty years. It demonstrates the Church's efforts toward recognition of and reconciliation with Israel, and the movement from persecution to partnership and from confrontation to co-operation. JUDY WEISSENBERG COHEN, a survivor speaker at The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, will facilitate discussion following the screening.

See page 23 for CULTURAL PROGRAMS

7:30 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

St. Bonaventure Roman Catholic Church
416-447-5571
1300 Leslie Street, Toronto

"DENMARK 1943"

This film tells the story of the heroic rescue of the Danish Jews in 1943. Through the co-ordinated efforts of the Danish population, almost all Danish Jews survived the Holocaust. A discussion will follow the screening.

8:00 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

Manor Road United Church 416-483-0695
240 Manor Road E., Toronto

"LOST COMPOSERS OF THE HOLOCAUST"

JERRY FINK will present a musical odyssey through the years 1920-1945 and beyond. Highlighted will be the lives and works of known and unknown Jewish composers within this time period when Jewish art and music flourished in Germany and Central Europe. Mr. Fink is the Past President of Naxos Canada, the world's leading classical record label.

8:00 pm

Temple Har Zion 905-889-2252
7360 Bayview Avenue, Thornhill

"BORROWED LIGHT"

MERLE NUDELMAN is the recipient of the 2004 Canadian Jewish Book Award for Poetry. Her book of poems, Borrowed Light, follows the lives of her parents, survivors of the Kielce pogrom. The book begins in pre-war Poland and moves to present day Canada. The poems link the poet's personal history with the rich and tumultuous history of the Jewish people. Ms. Nudelman is a lawyer and lives in Toronto. Her poems have appeared in a number of Canadian literary publications.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5

8:00 pm

Solel Congregation
905-820-5915
2399 Folkway Drive, Mississauga

"THROUGH A HIDDEN CHILD'S EYES: A HOLOCAUST STORY"

SALLY WASSERMAN, born in Katowice, Poland, will recount the story of her survival as a hidden child rescued by Righteous Gentiles in Poland, and will reflect on the bravery of her rescuers, as well as honour her mother's story.

For program changes visit our website
www.holocausteducationweek.com
or call our hotline 416-631-5689

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 6

8:00 pm

Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue
416-789-3213 ext. 209
470 Glencairn Avenue, Toronto

"TEN GREEN BOTTLES"

VIVIAN JEANETTE KAPLAN was born in Shanghai in 1946 to Jewish parents who fled Nazi-occupied Austria in 1939 and found safe haven in Shanghai. She will discuss her family's journey from war-torn Vienna to the Hongkew Ghetto of Shanghai and their life there under Japanese occupation. To recount her family's saga, she wrote Ten Green Bottles: Vienna to Shanghai – Journey of Fear and Hope. The book, written through the eyes of her mother, Nini Karpel, was the winner of the 2003 Canadian Jewish Book award. A question period will follow.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 7

9:00 am

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

Advent Lutheran Church
416-493-1435
2800 Don Mills Road, Toronto

"GROWING UP JEWISH IN OLD TORONTO – A JEWISH RCAF VETERAN SHARES HIS MEMORIES"

SIDNEY GLADSTONE lived in Toronto during the 1930s. At the adult education program from 9:00 -9:45 am, he will talk about his Royal Canadian Air Force experiences. During the service he will describe what it was like growing up as a Jew in Toronto in the 1930s.

10:00 am

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

Church of St. Giles (Anglican)
416-755-5316
35 Kecala Road, Toronto

"MOTHER & SON ON THE HOLOCAUST"

During the regular service, IBI GROSSMAN will share her experiences as a Holocaust survivor, and her son ANDY RETI will talk about his own experiences growing up in Canada as a child of a survivor. Mrs. Grossman wrote An Ordinary Woman in Extraordinary Times, while her son published The Son of an Extraordinary Woman, a sequel to his mother's book.

10:00 am

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

St. John's Norway Church
416-691-4560
470 Woodbine Avenue, Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

MARTIN MAXWELL, who experienced Kristallnacht in Vienna and escaped on the Kindertransport to England, will focus his address on Righteous Gentiles during the Holocaust. A glider pilot during the invasion of Normandy, he will also take part in a Remembrance Day service and will speak about the importance of the 60th anniversary of D-Day.

10:30 am

Temple Sinai
416-487-4161 ext. 234
210 Wilson Avenue, Toronto

"MULTI-GENERATIONAL LEGACIES OF TRAUMA"

DR. YAEL DANIELI, Ph.D., a New York-based international expert on trauma, will discuss her groundbreaking work on the effects of the Holocaust on generations of survivors and their families, and how, even after such trauma, it is possible to live lives, forever changed, with hope for a better future.

For more than three decades, Dr. Danieli has dedicated her time and resources to the field of Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder from a human and compassionate perspective, including the victims, survivors and their protectors, all of whom have been afflicted by persecution, atrocities and other traumatizing events.

Co-sponsored by the Cantor Severin Weingort Holocaust Memorial Fund.

10:30 am

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

St. James Bond United Church
416-485-0723
1066 Avenue Road, Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

Born in Amsterdam, Holland in 1936, ADA WYNSTON and 231 other Jewish children were rescued from a Jewish day care centre by the Dutch underground. At the age of six, she went into hiding with Dutch-Reform Christian families from 1942-1945. Altogether, 73 members of her family were murdered in the Sobibor and Auschwitz-Birkenau death camps. She immigrated to Canada in 1957.

12:30 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

Eglinton St. George's United Church
416-481-1141
25 Old York Mills Road, Toronto

"HANA'S SUITCASE"

For complete program details, see page 3.

12:30 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EDUCATORS & STUDENTS

Agricola Lutheran Church
416-489-7600
35 Kecala Road, Toronto

"TEACHING THE HOLOCAUST THROUGH CHILDREN'S LITERATURE"

DR. SANDRA GIDDENS is a Special Education Consultant for the Toronto District School Board. In 2000, she received the Elementary Teachers' Federation of Ontario Writer's Award for her book Teens Who Escaped From The Holocaust To Freedom, which is widely used in schools in Canada and the U.S. Dr. Giddens will be conducting an interactive workshop on how to use children's literature to teach the Holocaust. RUTH ROTH, a docent with The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, UJA Federation will facilitate discussion following the presentation. Of special interest to educators and teenagers.

12:30 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

Emmanuel Lutheran Church
416-757-1593
1684 Victoria Park Avenue, Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

ELLY GOTZ was born in 1928 in Kovno, Lithuania. He spent his teenage years in concentration camps, including Dachau, from where he was liberated in 1945 by U.S. troops. Later, he was reunited with his parents and lived in Germany, Norway, Rhodesia and South Africa before coming to Canada in 1964.

2:00 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

Little Trinity Anglican Church
416-367-0272
425 King Street E., Toronto

"ORATORIO TEREZIN – FROM TORONTO TO ISRAEL"

RUTH FAZAL, internationally-acclaimed violinist and composer of Oratorio Terezin, and JAKE YOUNG, child soloist, well known for his concert performances in Canada and Europe, will perform selections from the musical. Ms. Fazal will present a multi-media talk about the spiritual and artistic journey that led to the creation of the piece and will show excerpts from some of her performances, as well as clips from her Eastern European tour this past March. The musical piece is a tribute to the 15,000 children who passed through Terezin between 1941 and 1944.

3:30 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Beit Rayim Synagogue
905-770-7639
9711 Bayview Avenue, Richmond Hill

"TRANSNISTRIA – THE FORGOTTEN CEMETERY"

DR. FELICIA CARMELLY is a survivor of Transnistria, geographically the largest killing fields of the Holocaust. She will describe the fate of nearly half a million victims who perished in hundreds of camps under the control of Romanian Fascist armies and their Ukrainian collaborators. Her lecture is based on research in five languages for her award-winning book Shattered! 50 Years of Silence, History and Voices of the Tragedy in Romania and Transnistria. A question period will follow. Of special interest to children.

4:00 pm

Toronto Jewish Film Society
416-924-6211
Miles Nadal JCC
750 Spadina Avenue, Toronto

"SOBIBOR, OCTOBER 14, 1943, 4 PM"

The Toronto Jewish Film Society will present this film, an extraordinary testament of bravery and survival by Claude Lanzmann, the award-winning director of Shoah. The title pinpoints the precise moment of the uprising at Sobibor death camp. Tickets: $10 for JCC members; $12 for non-members.

5:00 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EDUCATORS

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Bathurst JCC
Discovery Museum
416-636-1880 ext. 390
4588 Bathurst Street, Toronto

"EXPLORING 'HANA'S SUITCASE'"

In March 2000, a suitcase arrived at the Tokyo Holocaust Education Resource Centre. Painted on the outside were the words Hana Brady, May 16, 1931 and Waisenkind – the German word for "orphan." Japanese children were full of questions: Who was Hana? What sort of girl was she? What happened to her? As KEVIN KNOPMAN discusses this remarkable story of a journey of discovery that led the Centre's curator, Fumiko Ishioka, to Toronto, children in grades 3-8 will explore the Holocaust using art & discussion. Of special interest to educators and students.

7:00 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

Runnymede United Church
416-767-6729
432 Runnymede Road, Toronto

"COME OUT FIGHTING – THE 761ST"

This documentary describes the segregated tank battalion of African-American soldiers that fought in WWII under the command of General George Patton. They were responsible for helping the Allies defeat the Germans in the Battle of the Bulge and were credited for liberating several concentration camps in Austria. Because of their courage and determination, President Harry Truman desegregated the American military in 1948. Holocaust survivors MARK LANE and MAX EISEN will be available for questions.

7:00 pm

Temple Kol Ami
905-709-2620
Leo Baeck Day School
36 Atkinson Avenue, Thornhill

"UNDYING LOVE"

This documentary, focusing on the struggle of Holocaust survivors in post-War Europe to reconstruct personal identities and forge intimate relationships, is a textured retelling of eight extraordinary love stories. DAVID RYBOWSKI, a survivor from Lodz who is featured in the film, will be available for questions.

7:00 pm

Toronto Jewish Film Society
416-924-6211
Miles Nadal JCC
750 Spadina Avenue, Toronto

"SOBIBOR, OCTOBER 14, 1943, 4 PM"

For complete program details, see page 13.

7:30 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

Grace Church on the Hill
416-488-7884
300 Lonsdale Road, Toronto

"JONAH"

This musical by composer Murray Schaeffer features commentary by RABBI BARUCH FRYDMAN-KOHL, Senior Rabbi of Beth Tzedec Congregation, on the Book of Jonah as it relates to the Holocaust. CANTOR MEIR FINKELSTEIN will conclude the program with sacred music.

7:30 pm

Congregation Darchei Noam
416-638-4783
B'nai Brith Canada
15 Hove Street, Toronto

"RWANDA – 10 YEARS AFTER"

DR. CAROLE ANN REED will discuss the political, social and psychological realities of post-genocide Rwanda. Special attention will be paid to survivor accounts and their continuing and unfolding reactions to this trauma. Excerpts from recently collected testimonies will be shared and parallels to Holocaust survivors' accounts will be pointed out. Dr. Reed is a Holocaust and genocide educator and the author of Issues in Holocaust Education. LEO KABALISA, a survivor of the Rwandan genocide, will offer reflections of his personal journey. Mr. Kabalisa is a Toronto teacher and a leader in the Rwandan community. He lost most of his family in the genocide and has become a spokesperson for Rwandan survivors currently living in Toronto.

7:30 pm

Kehillat Shaarei Torah
416-229-2600
2640 Bayview Avenue, Toronto

"MY SHADOW LIFE"

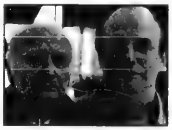
DR. HAVA BUGAJER, raised in Israel and educated in Switzerland and Austria, is a renowned paediatrician and educator. Her husband was a survivor of Auschwitz and Ebensee. After the War he became a successful doctor, businessman and respected member of Austria's Jewish community. When he died in 1998, he left behind a manuscript of his memoirs. Dr. Bugajer has made it her mission in life to ensure that her late husband's story be told to future generations. His writings, entitled My Shadow Life, were first published in German in 2000 and recount his feeling of victory over the Shoah, his refusal to submit to the status of victim and his tenacity for life. Dr. Bugajer will speak about her late husband's writings, memories and his frustration with a world unwilling and unable to bring the Nazis to justice.

Generously co-sponsored by Gayle, Alf and Shane Kwinter, Lara and Shane Katz, Ava Kwinter and Dean Irvine, in loving memory of Mila and Zalman Kwinter.

7:30 pm

Shaar Shalom Synagogue 905-889-4975
2 Simonston Blvd., Thornhill

"'THE PIANIST' – HOW IT HAPPENED"



Wladyslaw (left) and Andrzej Szpilman

For many years, Wladyslaw Szpilman, immortalized in the Oscar-winning movie The Pianist, did not speak to his son about his life in and out of the Warsaw Ghetto. But in 1996, when his son found an out-of-print copy of his father's memoirs, written and published shortly after the War, he prevailed upon his father to describe to him his extraordinary experiences during the Holocaust. He then arranged for the translation and world-wide publication of The Pianist (widely acknowledged as one of the best non-fiction books of 1999) and its adaptation into an internationally successful movie.

ANDRZEJ SZPILMAN will look back at his father's remarkable life, with particular emphasis on the Holocaust years and those shortly before his father's death in 2000, with the publication of his book and the granting of film rights to Roman Polanski.

Generously co-sponsored by The Sharon Diamond and Walt Family Fund at Shaar Shalom Synagogue, in loving memory of Sharon B. Diamond and Isidore J. Walt.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 8

12:00 noon

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EDUCATORS

Ryerson University
416-979-5000 ext. 6293
Student Success Centre, Room POD 144
380 Victoria Street (at Gerrard), Toronto

"THE BIRTH, DEATH AND REBIRTH OF JEWISH COMPOSERS"

JERRY FINK will present both a visual and musical odyssey through 1920-1945 and beyond. Known and unknown composers will be highlighted to illustrate the tragedy brought upon Jewish and European musical development before, during and after the Holocaust. Mr. Fink is Past President of Naxos Canada, the world's leading classical music label. Of special interest to educators and students.

1:30 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Unionville Library
905-513-7977 ext. 5519
15 Library Lane, Unionville

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

JUDY LYSY was born in Kosice, Czechoslovakia in 1928. In March 1944, when the Nazis occupied Hungary, Judy and her family were deported to Auschwitz-Birkenau and from there to various slave labour camps. Near death, she was liberated on May 6, 1945 by the Americans and immigrated to Canada several years later. Of special interest to students in grade 7+.

7:00 pm

Kulanu 416-913-2424
Wolfond Centre for Jewish Campus Life
36 Harbord Street, Toronto

"PARAGRAPH 175"

The Nazi persecution of homosexuals may be one of the last untold stories of the Third Reich. This film reveals the lasting consequences of this hidden chapter of 20th century history. Between 1933 and 1945, 100,000 men were arrested for homosexuality. Only about 4,000 survived. Today, fewer than ten of these men are known to be living; five of them have come forward to tell their stories for the first time. STEPHEN CHESTER-BERTELSEN, a Special Education Resource Teacher with the Simcoe County District School Board, will lead a discussion following the screening. Co-sponsored by Hillel of Greater Toronto.

7:30 pm

Chapters Inc.
905-881-2846
7040 Yonge Street, Thornhill

"A PARTISAN'S MEMOIR"

FAYE SCHULMAN was born in Lenin, Poland. When the Nazis murdered her family in 1942, she escaped and joined the Soviet partisans in the forest. Liberated in 1944, she was decorated by several governments for her bravery and immigrated to Canada in 1948. She is the author of A Partisan's Memoir and appears in three documentaries, Voices of Survival, Daring to Resist and Out of the Fire.

7:30 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Beth Avraham Yoseph of Toronto Congregation
905-886-3810
613 Clark Avenue W., Thornhill

"LOVE, LEARNING, LAND: THREE SPARKS FROM THE FIRE"

Discussion group with RABBI GLENN BLACK, Regional Director of the National Conference of Synagogue Youth (NCSY), and students ILANA ARJE, LORI TOBIANAH, NOAH TURK and other 2004 March of the Living participants.They will reflect on their personal experiences. Pictures and musical selections from the March will also be featured. A question period will follow. Of special interest to students.

7:30 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

L'Arche Daybreak - Dayspring Chapel
905-884-3454 ext. 246/226
11339 Yonge Street, Richmond Hill
(SE corner at Devonsleigh)

"HIDDEN HEROES"

This much-acclaimed film, created for Vision TV, tells the story of Dutch Christians who rescued Jewish children during the Holocaust. ADA WYNSTON, a Dutch survivor who appears in the film, will be available for questions. Co-sponsored by Richmond Hill United Church and St. Mary Immaculate R.C. Church.

7:30 pm

Miles Nadal JCC 416-924-6211
750 Spadina Avenue, Toronto

"SILENT WITNESS"

Fifty years after the liberation of Dachau and Auschwitz, director HARRIET WICHIN returned to capture the haunting spirit of these sites. Initially the filmmaker sought to explore without judgment the questions raised in the international controversy over the convent built by Carmelite nuns at Auschwitz. The film tells the story of the people who live and work on the sites today: a Hungarian Jewish survivor at Dachau, a Polish survivor who never left Auschwitz, a German tour guide and a Carmelite nun. Ms. Wichin will answer questions following the screening.

7:30 pm

National Council of Jewish Women 416-633-5100
4700 Bathurst Street, Toronto

"LOVE, LOSS AND MEMORY: RIPPLES OF THE HOLOCAUST"

MERLE NUDELMAN is the recipient of the 2004 Canadian Jewish Book Award for Poetry. Her book of poems, Borrowed Light, follows the lives of her parents, survivors of the Kielce pogrom.The book begins in pre-war Poland and moves to present day Canada, linking the poet's personal history with the rich and tumultuous history of the Jewish people.

PROFESSOR LOREN LERNER is Chair of the Department of Art History at Montreal's Concordia University. Her recent research has focused on ethical consciousness in North American art, particularly pertaining to the Holocaust. Professor Lerner will discuss the theme of Visual Narratives of the Holocaust in Contemporary Canadian Art. She will explore recent representations of the Holocaust by Canadian artists and show how works of art about the Holocaust are like unresolved stories that share the characteristics of traumatic memories. Co-sponsored by Eva Ryterband, in memory of the Ryterband family.

7:30 pm

The Dan Family Village Shul
Friedmann & Berg Families Aish HaTorah Learning Centre 416-785-1107 ext. 307
1072 Eglinton Avenue W., Toronto

"WHY THE JEWS"

What really motivated Hitler's intense hatred of Jews? Why was Nazi anti-Semitism unique? In this multi-media presentation, YAKOV GADE, guest lecturer from New York, will present a comprehensive and surprising approach to the disturbing question - what is the source of the intense, unprecedented and seemingly irrational hatred against the Jews?

8:00 pm

Beth Tikvah Synagogue 416-221-3433
3080 Bayview Avenue, Toronto

"THE TRAGEDY OF THE DUTCH JEWRY"

The tragedy that befell Dutch Jewry is a particularly vexing one. On one hand, the Dutch people seemed to be friendly towards their fellow Jewish citizens; on the other hand, the percentage of Dutch Jews murdered ranks close to that of Poland and other Eastern European countries. DR. ROBERT JAN VAN PELT, one of the world's foremost authorities on Auschwitz, will speak about the experiences of Dutch Jewry during the Shoah.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 9

12:30 pm

Beth Tikvah Synagogue 416-221-3433
3080 Bayview Avenue, Toronto

"JEWISH RESISTANCE DURING THE SHOAH"

In the two generations since the War ended, the entire perspective on evaluating Jewish resistance has changed. Lunch & Learn program with educator GERALD ZIEDENBERG. Tickets: $7. For reservations call 416-481-3624.

1:30 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Deer Park Library 416-393-7673
40 St. Clair Avenue, E., Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

HELEN SCHWARTZ was born in Bialystock, Poland where she survived the Ghetto. She was deported to Majdanek, then to the Blishjen slave labour camp, to Auschwitz-Birkenau and finally to Bergen-Belsen. Liberated on April 15, 1945 by the British Army, she came to Canada in 1948 with her husband. Of special interest to students in grade 7+.

2:00 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

George Locke Library 416-393-7730
3083 Yonge Street, Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

Born in 1924 in Stanislawow, Poland, HERB GOLDSTEIN and his family moved to Germany in 1926, where he survived the Kristallnacht pogrom in 1938. He found refuge in the UK and eventually joined the British Royal Navy. He immigrated to Canada in 1947. Of special interest to students in grade 7+.

2:00 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

North York Central Library 416-395-5784
5120 Yonge Street, Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

INGE SPITZ was born in Potsdam, Germany in 1927 where she witnessed Kristallnacht in 1938. During the War years, she and her sister went into hiding in France and later escaped to Switzerland in 1944. After the War, she and her family were reunited in England. Of special interest to students in grade 7+.

Community Commemoration of Kristallnacht

Tuesday, November 9 – 7:30 pm
Holy Blossom Temple 416-789-3291
1950 Bathurst Street, Toronto

PRESERVING JEWISH MEMORY IN POLAND

TOMASZ KUNCEWICZ, Director of the Auschwitz Jewish Centre in Oswiecim, Poland, oversees the creation and implementation of all programs sponsored by the Centre. A lecturer of international repute, he is the 2000 recipient of the Excellence in Teaching Prize in the Department of Near Eastern and Judaic Studies at Brandeis University. He will address the memorialization of Jewish life in Poland. In particular, he will discuss the importance of the exciting discoveries recently made by a team of Israeli archeologists excavating the site of the Great Synagogue in Oswiecim (Auschwitz), which was burned to the ground the day the Nazis invaded Auschwitz. The story of these buried treasures has become local legend over the years, as the Nazis intended to completely destroy all evidence of the synagogue.

Tomasz Kuncewicz

Also featured will be the LACHAN JEWISH CHAMBER CHOIR, founded in 1993 by Cantor Benjamin Z. Meissner of Holy Blossom Temple. Now in its 10th season, the choir is recognized for its musical virtuosity and its comprehensive repertoire that spans many centuries and styles.

This program will commemorate the 66th anniversary of Kristallnacht, the Night of Broken Glass, when, on Nov. 9-10, 1938, a massive, coordinated attack was carried out against Jews throughout Germany and Austria. Hundreds were killed or injured, synagogues burned, businesses destroyed, cemeteries and schools vandalized, and thousands of Jews arrested and sent to concentration camps. A solemn candle lighting ceremony will be held.

Generously co-sponsored by Judy and Eric Breuer.

"In Berlin...fire engines stood by to protect the nearby main post office while the Oranienburgstrasse synagogue burned." Photo – Kristallnacht: the Nazi night of terror by Anthony Read and David Fisher. Published by Random House.

7:30 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

Rouge Valley Mennonite Church
905-294-6242
7452 Reesor Road, Markham

"HIDDEN HEROES"

Created for Vision TV, this film tells the story of Dutch Christians who rescued Jewish children during the Holocaust. ADA WYNSTON, a Dutch survivor who appears in the film, will be available for questions.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10

10:00 am

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Milliken Mills Community Library
905-513-7977 ext. 5344
7600 Kennedy Road #1, Unionville

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

JOE LEINBURD was born in 1922 in Suceava (Bucovina), Romania. When the entire Jewish community of Northern Bucovina, including his family were deported to Transnistria, he and his family survived the torturous forced march. In 1949 he immigrated to Canada with his wife. Of special interest to students in grade 7+.

1:30 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EDUCATORS

Te-Amim Music Theatre
416-489-4709
Rosedale Heights School of the Arts
711 Bloor St. E., Toronto (at Castlefrank subway)

"TEACHING CHILDREN TO CONFRONT AND CHANGE PREJUDICE THROUGH DRAMA, DANCE AND MUSIC"

This workshop will help teachers and others educate children about prejudice, the consequences of hatred and the importance of taking a stand. Through Holocaust stories, and using the Ontario Curriculum, teachers can start children on a life-path of seeing and responding to injustice. The workshop will include performances by students from ROSEDALE HEIGHTS SCHOOL OF THE ARTS and CLAUDE WATSON SCHOOL FOR THE ARTS. Also participating are educators NANCY CLARK, HELENA FINE, RACHEL FINE and VICTORIA SLAGER. Recommended for elementary school teachers and parents. Made possible through the generous support of The Ontario Trillium Foundation.

7:30 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

Good Shepherd Lutheran Church
416-249-8851
1630 Lawrence Avenue W., Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

FAIGIE LIBMAN lived as a child in the Kovno Ghetto with her mother. They were later transferred to the Stutthof concentration camp, and were liberated by the Soviet Red Army. A question period will follow.

7:30 pm

Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda Synagogue
416-633-3838
100 Elder Street, Toronto

"SONGS OF THE GHETTO: AN EVENING DEVOTED TO MARTYRS AND HEROES"

Featuring LOUIS DANTO, Cantor Emeritus of Beth Emeth, PROFESSOR ADAM FUERSTENBERG, Yiddishist and Director of The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, UJA Federation, ETHEL COOPER, former Chair of UJA Federation Committee for Yiddish and the ZEMER CHORALE. This evening is dedicated to the martyrs and heroes and is designed to present the songs of this dark period to a contemporary audience. Attendees will receive a souvenir booklet. Co-sponsored by Beth Emeth Bais Yehuda Synagogue's Continuing Education and Music Committees and UJA Federation Committee for Yiddish.

7:30 pm

Congregation Habonim
416-782-7125
5 Glen Park Road, Toronto

"THE MARCH OF THE LIVING: THROUGH THE EYES OF SURVIVORS AND STUDENTS"

Congregation Habonim was founded by European refugees from the Holocaust, many of whom witnessed Kristallnacht. The Congregation will hold a brief memorial ceremony marking its 66th anniversary, featuring the MARCH OF THE LIVING CHOIR. Reflections from March students and survivor participants will be highlighted by scenes from the 2004 March video. Keynote lecture by RUTH NERAY, author of To Auschwitz and Back: My Personal Journey.

7:30 pm

Indigo Books, Music & Café (Yorkdale)
416-781-6660
3401 Dufferin Street, Toronto

"MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

Born in Prague, Czechoslovakia in 1926, VERA SCHIFF was deported to Theresienstadt (Terezin) in 1942. She will discuss the fate of survivors during the Holocaust, and how people confronted their challenges before, during and after the War. She is the award-winning author of two books that recount life in this unique concentration camp, Hitler's Inferno: Eight Intimate and Personal Histories from the Holocaust and Theresienstadt: The Town the Nazis Gave to the Jews. A question period will follow.

7:30 pm

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

Holy Rosary Roman Catholic Church
416-923-8471
356 St. Clair Avenue W., Toronto

"ORATORIO TEREZIN – FROM TORONTO TO ISRAEL"

RUTH FAZAL, internationally acclaimed violinist and composer of Oratorio Terezin, and JAKE YOUNG, child soloist, well known for his concert performances in Canada and Europe, will perform selections from the musical. Ms. Fazal will present a multi-media talk about the spiritual and artistic journey that led to the creation of the piece and will show excerpts from some of her performances, and clips from her Eastern European tour this past March. The musical is a tribute to the 15,000 children who passed through Terezin between 1941 and 1944.

7:30 pm

University of Toronto
416-946-5317
New College –
William Doo Auditorium
45 Willcocks Street, Toronto
(2 streets South of Harbord, South-East corner of Willcocks and Spadina)

"SUSPINO: A CRY FOR THE ROMA"

The Holocaust ended in 1945 for the Roma (Gypsies), but they are still subject to persecution, pogroms and systematic marginalization. RON LEE, Director of the Roma Community and Advocacy Centre, will give a poignant view of the current plight of the Roma people.

8:00 pm

Shaarei Tefillah Congregation
416-787-1631
3600 Bathurst Street, Toronto

"ATLANTIC DRIFT"

When 2,000 Jewish refugees fleeing Nazi persecution boarded the ship Atlantic, they hoped to make it to Palestine – and safety. When the British stopped them from entering the country, they were deported to Mauritius to what were, in effect, concentration camps where, amid illness and deprivation, they sat out the War. HENRY WELLISCH, one of the survivors of this journey, will recount his experiences and answer questions following the screening. English, German and Hebrew with English subtitles.

See page 23 for CULTURAL PROGRAMS

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 11

12:00 noon

Hillel of Greater Toronto at University of Toronto and AE Pi
416-913-2424
Wolfond Centre for Jewish Campus Life
36 Harbord Street, Toronto

"UNTO EVERY PERSON THERE IS A NAME"

6th Annual 24-Hour Reading of the Names between 12:00 noon Thursday, November 11 and 12:00 noon Friday, November 12.

For 24 consecutive hours, students on the U of T campus will honour the memory of those murdered during the Holocaust by reading their names. Members of the community are welcome to participate in the reading, as well as submit names of their family members to be read.

The reading will take place outside the Wolfond Centre. For more information, visit www.hilleltoronto.org

2:00 pm

Miles Nadal JCC
416-924-6211
750 Spadina Avenue, Toronto

"HOW TO TELL CHILDREN ABOUT THE HOLOCAUST"

What does it mean to experience racism? What does it mean to be wounded by discrimination? In her book, How to Tell Children About the Holocaust, RUTH MANDEL uses poetry, prose, images and documents in a compelling and unconventional way to answer these questions. A daughter and granddaughter of Holocaust survivors, she is the winner of the Isaac Frischwasser Memorial Award for Holocaust Literature. Co-sponsored by the Miles Nadal JCC's Good Age Club.

For program changes visit our website
www.holocausteducationweek.com
or call our hotline 416-631-5689

Closing Program

Thursday, November 11 – 7:30 pm
Beth Tzedec Congregation
416-781-3514 ext. 34
1700 Bathurst Street, Toronto

THE RESURGENCE OF ANTI-SEMITISM:
Alarming Echo of the Past

Modern society, particularly in Europe, has witnessed the revival of two anti-Semitic myths that nourished the Holocaust: the notorious forgery, the Protocols of the Elders of Zion, and the medieval "blood libel." Wielding a virulent and distorted vision of Zionism, the promoters of these myths have generated the desecration of Jewish institutions and assaults upon Jews in Europe to a degree not seen since the Holocaust. The democratic world is now trying to cope with the alarming and dangerous situation that faces the Jewish people and society as a whole today.

Dr. William Korey

DR. WILLIAM KOREY taught at various leading universities in the United States, before turning his efforts to human rights. He has served as the Director of the Anti-Defamation League in Washington, D.C. and as Administrator of B'nai Brith's Department of International Policy and Research. In this capacity, he played a significant role in bringing about the exodus of over a million and a half Jews from the Soviet Union to Israel and the West. Dr. Korey is well known and highly regarded for his scholarly and popular writing.

In commemoration of Remembrance Day, MARTIN MAXWELL, who escaped Nazi Germany on the Kindertransport to England, and later served as a glider pilot during the invasion of Normandy, will share his memories on the 60th anniversary of that decisive battle.

This program, with special participation by CANTOR MEIR FINKELSTEIN, the BETH TZEDEC CHOIR and the JEWISH WAR VETERANS, will also include a candle lighting ceremony for the victims of the Shoah.

This program has been generously co-sponsored by Martin and Eleanor Maxwell and family, and the Sam and Sarah Kerzner Holocaust Studies Institute.

All Out of Town Programs are co-sponsored by the Regional Jewish Communities of Ontario.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 1

Beth Jacob Congregation
705-256-8061
147 Bruce Street, Sault Ste. Marie

"THE HOLOCAUST & RESCUE"

As a Holocaust survivor, VERA SCHIFF believes it her duty to describe the tragedy that unfolded around her during the three years she spent in Theresienstadt. She will read passages from her books, Theresienstadt: The Town the Nazis Gave to the Jews and Hitler's Inferno. A question period will follow.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2

Beth Zion Synagogue
905-723-2353
144 King Street E., Oshawa

"THE HOLOCAUST & RESCUE"

Eminent British historian DR. PAMELA SHALEV will introduce a documentary about the rescue of Jews who found refuge in Japan and Shanghai during the Holocaust. The film documents the story of Dr. Zorach Warhaftig, the man behind this extraordinary rescue of over 7,000 Jews, including the entire Mir Yeshiva. Dr. Shatzkes will also be discussing her book, Holocaust and Rescue: Impotent or Indifferent? Anglo-Jewry 1938-1945. A question period will follow.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3

Shaar Hashamayim Congregation
705-524-6789
158 John Street, Sudbury

"THERESIENSTADT: MY PERSONAL TESTIMONY"

Born in Prague, Czechoslovakia in 1926, VERA SCHIFF was deported to Theresienstadt (Terezin) in 1942. She will discuss the fate of survivors during the Holocaust and how people confronted their challenges before, during and after the War. She is the award-winning author of two books that recount life in this unique concentration camp, Hitler's Inferno: Eight Intimate and Personal Histories from the Holocaust and Theresienstadt: The Town the Nazis Gave to the Jews. A question period will follow.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4

Am Shalom Synagogue
705-792-3949
767 Huronia Road, Barrie

"CANADIAN ANTI-SEMITISM & CONTEMPORARY CHALLENGES TO JUSTICE"

LEN RUDNER, Director of Community Relations, Canadian Jewish Congress Ontario Region, will discuss the challenges that anti-Semitism and racism present in our Canadian society. His interactive presentation will highlight the Canadian justice system, update cases currently before the courts and offer practical strategies on what can be done to combat these threats to our Canadian values. A question period will follow. Co-sponsored by the St. Margaret of Scotland Anglican Church.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 7

Sons of Jacob Congregation
613-962-1433
211 Victoria Avenue, Belleville

HOLOCAUST SURVIVORS & PIONEERS OF ISRAEL: REFLECTIONS OF A THIRD GENERATION"

OMER ESHET, an Israeli Shaliach with the Habonim Dror Youth Movement and the Regional Jewish Communities of Ontario, will recount his experiences as Third Generation – the grandson of Holocaust survivors. He will describe not only the important role that Holocaust survivors played in the development of Israel, but also the role that the Holocaust has had on the shaping of contemporary Israeli identity.

St. Margaret of Scotland Anglican Church
705-722-1153
161 Hanmer Street W., Barrie

CHURCH SPONSORED PROGRAM

"EYES OF THE HOLOCAUST"

JUDY WEISSENBERG COHEN, born in Debrecen, Hungary, was a teenager when she survived the Holocaust. She was liberated by American soldiers in May 1945 and immigrated to Canada in 1948. An active Holocaust and anti-racism educator, she will comment on this documentary made by the Shoah Foundation following the screening. Hungarian with English subtitles. Co-sponsored by Am Shalom Synagogue.

7:30 pm

Beth Jacob Congregation
519-743-8422
161 Stirling Avenue S., Kitchener

"REMEMBERING OSWIECIM: A LEGACY FOR TODAY"

PROFESSOR TOMASZ KUNCEWICZ, Director of the Auschwitz Jewish Centre in Oswiecim, Poland, will discuss the Centre, located within walking distance of the death camps of Auschwitz-Birkenau. He will be joined by CARSON PHILLIPS, Director of Holocaust Education with the Regional Jewish Communities of Ontario and recipient of the 2003 Auschwitz Jewish Centre Foundation Scholarship, who will describe his experiences working with the Centre. Co-sponsored by the Waterloo County Holocaust Education Committee and Temple Shalom.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 8

7:30 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Beth Israel Congregation
519-822-8487
47 Surrey Street W., Guelph

"MY SHADOW LIFE"

DR. HAVA BUGAJER is a renowned paediatrician and educator whose husband was a survivor of Auschwitz and Ebensee. After the War he became a successful doctor, businessman and a respected member of Austria's Jewish community. When he died in 1998, he left his unpublished memoirs entitled My Shadow Life. Dr. Bugajer will speak about her late husband's writings, memories and his frustration with a world unwilling and unable to bring the Nazis to justice.

Co-sponsored by the Jewish Students Organization at the University of Guelph.

7:30 pm

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EDUCATORS

Or Hadash Synagogue
905-898-2220
17665 Leslie Street, Newmarket

"ANTI-SEMITISM AND RACISM: A CHALLENGE TO US ALL"

LEN RUDNER, Director of Community Relations, Canadian Jewish Congress Ontario Region, will present a thought-provoking and informative session on the challenges that anti-Semitism and racism currently present in our Canadian society. A question period will follow.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 9

7:30 pm

Beth Israel Congregation
613-533-2290
116 Centre Street, Kingston

"MY SHADOW LIFE"

DR. HAVA BUGAJER will be guest speaker. For complete program details, see listing on this page.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10

7:30 pm

Beth Israel Congregation
705-743-8671
775 Weller Street, Peterborough

"REMEMBERING OSWIECIM: A LEGACY FOR TODAY"

PROFESSOR TOMASZ KUNCEWICZ and CARSON PHILLIPS are guest speakers. For complete program details, see listing on this page.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 11

7:30 pm

Congregation B'nai Israel
905-227-5551 ext. 2207
190 Church Street, St. Catharines

""REMEMBERING OSWIECIM: A LEGACY FOR TODAY"

PROFESSOR TOMASZ KUNCEWICZ and CARSON PHILLIPS are guest speakers. For complete program details, see listing on this page.

All Out of Town programs are co-sponsored by the Regional Jewish Communities of Ontario.

For program changes visit our website
www.holocausteducationweek.com
or call our hotline 416-631-5689

Cultural Exhibits

September 20 – November 4

Koffler Centre of the Arts, Atrium
416-636-1880 ext. 271
4588 Bathurst Street, Toronto

"CONTEMPORARY JEWISH LIFE IN GERMANY"

Eleven panels of pictures and text document contemporary Jewish life in Berlin, from the newly-restored synagogues to Jewish schools, magazines, memorials, and the Jewish Museum by famed architect Daniel Libeskind. The Official Opening will take place on Tuesday, October 12 at 7:30 pm with guest lecturers DR. HERMANN SIMON, Director, Centrum Judaicum, New Synagogue Berlin and DEBORAH SIMON.

A second lecture will take place on Wednesday, October 13 at 7:30pm with Dr. Hermann and Deborah Simon at the Goethe-Institut, 163 King Street West. This travelling exhibition is jointly presented by The Goethe Institut Toronto, Bathurst JCC, the Koffler Centre of the Arts and the Miles Nadal JCC. For more details, visit www.kofflercentre.com.

October 17 – November 5

Beth Radom Synagogue
416-636-3451
18 Reiner Road, Toronto

"REBIRTH AFTER THE HOLOCAUST"

Holocaust survivor Sam E. Bloch and his daughter Professor Jean Bloch Rosensaft, co-curated this photo-documentary exhibit, Rebirth After the Holocaust: The Bergen-Belsen Displaced Persons Camp, 1945-1950, describing the revival of Jewish communal and personal life among the survivors. ED SONSHINE, Q.C., Toronto lawyer and businessman, will speak at the Official Opening on October 17 at 2:00 pm. He is the child of Holocaust survivors and was born in the Bergen-Belsen D.P. camp.

November 3 – November 11

Holy Blossom Temple
416-789-3291
1950 Bathurst Street, Toronto

"JANUSZ KORCZAK AND THE CHILDREN OF THE WARSAW GHETTO"

This exhibit focuses on the life of Dr. Janusz Korczak and the tragic fate of the children who were forced to live in the Warsaw Ghetto. It also examines how the violation of children's rights during the Holocaust is reflected in the fight for children's rights today. In 1942, Dr. Korczak was forced to gather the 200 orphans in his care for deportation. Refusing all efforts to save himself, he led them defiantly to the deportation centre that would ultimately take them to the Treblinka death camp. Dr. Lesley Shore will speak at the Official Opening on November 3 at 7:30pm.

This exhibit was created by the Vancouver Holocaust Education Centre. For hours of operation or to arrange a school or group visit, call 416-789-3291 or visit www.holyblossomtemple.org (click on Temple Community – Fine Arts.)

November 6 – December 3

York University – Stong College 416-736-5823
The Samuel J. Sacks Gallery (Room 109)
4700 Keele Street, Toronto

"REBIRTH AFTER THE HOLOCAUST"

THE HON. BERNT BUSEMANN, Minister of Culture, Government of Lower Saxony (Germany), will speak at the Official Opening on Saturday, November 6 at 8:00 pm. For complete program details, see listing on this page.

November 7 – December 6

Miles Nadal JCC 416-924-6211
750 Spadina Avenue, Toronto

"CONTEMPORARY JEWISH LIFE IN GERMANY"

Eleven panels of pictures and text document contemporary Jewish life in Berlin, from the newly-restored synagogues to Jewish schools, magazines, memorials, and the Jewish Museum by famed architect Daniel Libeskind. Curated by Dr. Hermann Simon, Director, Centrum Judaicum at the New Synagogue, Berlin. Visit www.milesnadaljcc.ca or www.goethe.de/uk/tor for more information.

Cultural Programs

Thursday, October 14 – 7:30 pm

Shaar Shalom Synagogue 905-889-4975
2 Simonston Blvd., Thornhill

"CHURCHILL AND THE UNKNOWN JEWISH CONTRIBUTION TO WORLD WAR II"

Guest speaker will be SIR MARTIN GILBERT, author of numerous definitive works on the course of 20th century history, and official biographer of Sir Winston Churchill. Tickets: $15.

Sunday, October 17 – 2:30 pm

Our Lady of Lourdes Roman Catholic Church
416-924-6257
41 Earl Street, Toronto

"I AM JOSEPH, YOUR BROTHER"

JUDY WEISSENBERG COHEN, a survivor speaker at The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, will facilitate discussion following the screening of this documentary chronicling the visit of Pope John Paul II to Israel in 2000 and describing the revolutionary changes in Roman Catholic-Jewish relations in the past forty years.

Sunday, October 17 – 7:30 pm

Workman's Circle 416-787-2081
471-473 Lawrence Ave. W., Toronto

"NOT RAISINS AND NOT ALMONDS"

A Yiddishland Cafe evening in Yiddish and English to celebrate the spirit and creativity of the Jews in the Lodz Ghetto on the 60th anniversary of its liquidation. With the participation of DENISE WILLIAMS, MICHAEL MANDEL, ALON NASHMAN, BRAHM GOLDHAMMER and NOAM MILLER. Admission: $12. For reservations call 416-787-2081.

Wednesday, October 20 – 7:30 pm

Lawrence Park Community Church
416-489-1551
2180 Bayview Avenue, Toronto

"HIDDEN HEROES"

This much-acclaimed film, created for Vision TV, tells the story of Dutch Christians who rescued Jewish children during the Holocaust. ADAWYNSTON, a Dutch survivor who appears in the film, will be available for questions. Co-sponsored by Richmond Hill United Church and St. Mary Immaculate R.C. Church.

Sunday, October 24 – 8:00 pm

Koffler School of Music
Leah Posluns Theatre
4588 Bathurst Street, Toronto

"CHILDREN OF A VANISHED WORLD"

From 1935-1938, Roman Vishniac photographed the shtetlekh (small villages) of Poland, Romania, Hungary and Russia. With the assistance of his daughter Mara Vishniac Kohn, producer and director JUDY KOPELOW uses his photographs as staging for a special remembrance of the lives of children who vanished in the Holocaust. Yiddish folk songs and dramatic readings will be performed. Musical direction and arrangements by SABATINO VACCA. For more information call 416-787-1060. Tickets: $25. Students and seniors: $18. Call 416-636-1880 ext. 228.

Wednesday, October 27 – 4:30-8:30 pm

Bathurst JCC, Room 120
416-636-1880
4588 Bathurst Street, Toronto

"ANNUAL TEACHERS SEMINAR ON THE HOLOCAUST"

RABBI DANIEL BRENNER, Director of Multifaith Education, Auburn Theological Seminary, New York, will deliver the keynote address, The Holocaust and Pop Culture. Other participants are PROFESSOR BELARIE ZATZMAN of York University and HAROLD LASS, retired Head of English at Northern Secondary School, Toronto. For more details, call 416-635-2883 ext. 153.

Tuesday, November 2

York University
Centre for Jewish Studies
416-736-5823

"TEACHING THE HOLOCAUST"

SHULAMIT IMBER, Pedagogical Director of the International School for Holocaust Studies at Yad Vashem, Jerusalem, will focus on the educational philosophy, rationale and methodological approach used by Yad Vashem. A renowned lecturer, she is a member of the International Task Force for International Cooperation on Holocaust Education, Remembrance and Research. Phone 416-736-5823 for time and location.

November 6 – November 14

Bathurst JCC
Leah Posluns Theatre
416-636-1880 ext. 368
4588 Bathurst Street, Toronto

"28th ANNUAL JEWISH BOOK FAIR"

A nine-day event featuring authors prominent in their field.

Wednesday, November 10 – 8:00 pm

Beth Sholom Synagogue
416-783-6103 ext. 228
1445 Eglinton Avenue, Toronto

"MASTER OF THE CANTORIAL ART"

CHAZZAN NAFTALI HERSTIK, Chief Cantor of the Jerusalem Great Synagogue and Director of the Tel Aviv Cantorial Institute, will perform songs of the Holocaust. Accompanied by STEPHEN GLASS, Music Director of Congregation Shaar Hashamayim, Montreal. Tickets: $18. Dessert reception to follow. Co-sponsored by Arthur and Margaret Shiff.

November 27 – December 12

Leah Posluns Theatre
4588 Bathurst Street, Toronto

"THE CHOSEN"

TEATRON will present The Chosen, a play by Aaron Posner and Chaim Potok. This adaptation of the award-winning, best-selling novel by Potok tells the story of two boys, two fathers and two very different Jewish communities.

Tickets: $26-$30; Group rates available as well as seasonal subscription. Call 416-781-5527, e-mail teatron@sympatico.ca or visit www.teatrontheatre.com

Sunday, November 28 – 8:00 pm

MacMillan Theatre (Faculty of Music)
University of Toronto
80 Queen's Park Crescent (West of Museum Subway, behind the South end of the ROM)

"WHITE ROSE"

Between 1942-1943, a group of courageous and defiant University of Munich students formed an anti-facist resistance movement they named White Rose. Under great personal danger, the students wrote and circulated seven leaflets across Germany in protest against Hitler's regime They were found out, jailed and executed by the Nazis. Udo Zimmerman's White Rose will be conducted by SABATINO VACCA and stage directed by JUDY KOPELOW. The setting for this musical production is the Munich-Stadelheim Prison hours before the execution of brother and sister Hans and Sophie Scholl, who were sentenced to death for their White Rose activities. A discussion will follow with DR. GEORGES WITTENSTEIN, the only survivor of the White Rose resistance group.

For information call 416-787-1060. Tickets: $25. Students and seniors: $18. Box Office at 416-978-8668 or www.harthousetheatre.ca

Upcoming Holocaust-Related Programs

February 20 – March 20, 2005

First Canadian Place
416-862-8138
100 King Street W., Toronto

"ANNE FRANK: A PRIVATE PHOTO ALBUM"

An exhibition of 69 intimate photographs of Anne Frank and her family and friends taken by her father, Otto Frank, during the years between 1926-1941, prior to the Frank family's moving into their hiding place. For more information, call 416-635-2883 ext. 144.

Bravo! newstylearts channel

For information call 416-591-7400 ext. 2802

Sunday, October 31 – 8:00 pm

"SAMUEL BAK, PAINTER OF QUESTIONS"

Born in 1933 in Vilna, Poland, young Samuel Bak was declared a child prodigy painter, but the day his family was marched into the Jewish Ghetto, his artistic vision changed forever. Saved from the death camps by his father, the miracle of his survival became, and is still, the recurring theme in his art. In addition to Bak, distinguished Holocaust scholar Lawrence Langer and gallery owner Bernard Pucker, one of Bak's most important supporters, speak about the meaning and importance of his work.

Thursday, November 4 – 1:00 am

"THE LAST METRO"

In occupied Paris, an actress married to a Jewish theatre owner must keep him hidden from the Nazis while doing both of their jobs. A film about art and life.

Thursday, November 4 – 8:30 pm

"THE HOLCROFT COVENANT"

The son of a German General becomes part of a mysterious conspiracy to gain hidden Nazi funds. His father, a confidant of Adolf Hitler, dies and leaves a fortune to make amends for his Nazi past – leaving his son to search the world to find it.

Sunday, November 7 – 8:00 pm

"THE FEAR OF FELIX NUSSBAUM"

A film about the quest for the forgotten and hidden art of Felix Nussbaum, a German Jewish artist who perished in the Holocaust. It tells the ironic story of the campaign to resurrect Nussbaum's works and build a museum to house them, spearheaded by the mayor of Osnabruck, the home town that ostracized him over fifty years ago and watched the Nazis transport Jews to their graves.

Thursday, November 11 – 1:00 am

"TRAIN OF LIFE"

A Jewish community, warned of the impending arrival of the Nazis, builds a fake deportation train to escape Russia and head towards safety in Palestine.

May 2 – May 14, 2005

"MARCH OF THE LIVING 2005"

On the 60th anniversary of the Allied victory in Europe, a special adult and student March of the Living program will take place as a tribute to Holocaust victims and survivors and those who fought for freedom. See www.marchoftheliving.org for details.

VISION TV

For information call 416-368-3194 ext. 233

Tuesday, November 2 – 10:00 pm

"SAMUEL BAK: PAINTER OF QUESTIONS"

Born in 1933 in Vilna, Poland, young Samuel Bak was declared a child prodigy painter, but the day his family was marched into the Jewish Ghetto, his artistic vision changed forever. Saved from the death camps by his father, the miracle of his survival became, and is still, the recurring theme in his art. In addition to Bak, distinguished Holocaust scholar Lawrence Langer and gallery owner Bernard Pucker, one of Bak's most important supporters, speak about the meaning and importance of his work. This film will be repeated on Friday, November 5 at 10:00 pm.

Wednesday, November 3 – 10:00 pm

"CHILDREN OF THE STORM"

This film describes one of the great humanitarian acts of the 20th century, as told by those who were there: the orphans, social workers, and foster parents. Recollections artfully blended with archival material profile the lives of war orphans who have settled in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax.

Wednesday, November 10 – 10:00 pm

"UNDYING LOVE"

This documentary tells the true stories of Jewish men and women who found love during the Holocaust, and who, through their devotion to one another, managed to endure the horror and its shattering aftermath.

Thursday, November 11 – 10:00 pm

"THE WAR BRIDES: FROM ROMANCE TO REALITY"

This film explores the amazing stories of the women who married Canadian servicemen during the Second World War and came to live in Canada. It is a remarkable tale of hope, courage, preservation and determination. This film is repeated on Friday, November 12 at 10:00 pm.

GOETHE INSTITUT TORONTO

For information call 416-593-5257 ext. 16

All films will be screened at Goethe Institut–Kinowelt Hall (St. Andrew Subway at University Ave. & King St. W.) Tickets may be reserved by phone or purchased at the door. $5 single; $8 double feature.

ARTUR BRAUNER FILMS

From the beginning of his career in early post-war Europe, film producer Artur Brauner, who lost many of his own relatives in the Holocaust, has been producing films about the victims of the Nazi regime in the hope of creating a dialogue about tolerance and humanity. Now 85, his over 50 films have brought him many international awards and Oscar nominations.

Monday, November 1 – 6:00 pm

"MORITURI" by Eugen York. A group of prisoners manages to escape from a concentration camp. This film, one of the earliest to take this material as its theme, premiered in Venice in 1948 and had a controversial reception in post-war Germany. German with English subtitles. 18 yrs. +

Monday, November 1 – 8:00 pm

"THE PLOT TO ASSASSINATE HITLER" by Falk Harnack. This film describes the preparations taken to assassinate Hitler by the German resistance movement. German Film Award 1956.

Tuesday, November 2 – 6:00 pm

"WITNESS OUT OF HELL" by Zika Mitrovic. Lea Weiss, a survivor of a Nazi extermination camp, is supposed to testify in court against her former tormentor.

Tuesday, November 2 – 8:00 pm

"CHARLOTTE S" by Frans Weisz, 1980. This film is based on the life of painter Charlotte Salomon, who fled from Berlin to Southern France in 1938, but was deported to Auschwitz, where she was killed. A disquieting psychodrama of a young, unconventional and effusive artist.

This film series continues with screenings on Thursdays, November 11th, 18th and 25th.
For details see www.goethe.de/uk/tor

GTA Bookstore Displays

During Holocaust Education Week, displays of Holocaust-related books will be mounted at the following bookstores:

BRAMALEA
- Coles, 25 Peel Centre Dr.

BRAMPTON
- Chapters, 52 Quarry Edge Dr.
- Indigo, 30 Great Lakes Dr.

BURLINGTON
- Chapters, 3315 Fairview
- Indigo, 1250 Brant St.

MARKHAM
- Chapters, 3175 Hwy #7

MISSISSAUGA
- Chapters, 3050 Vega St.
- Chapters, 100 City Centre
- Coles, 2225 Erin Mills Pkway.
- Coles, 5100 Erin Mills Pkway

NEWMARKET
- Chapters, 17440 Yonge St.

OAKVILLE
- Chapters, 310 N. Service Rd. W.

PICKERING
- Coles, 1355 Kingston Rd.
- Mitchell's Family Bookstore, 2200 Brock Rd.

RICHMOND HILL
- Coles, 9350 Yonge St.
- Indigo, 8705 Yonge St.

SCARBOROUGH
- Chapters, 20 W. Kitchen Rd.
- Coles, Eglinton & Victoria Park
- Coles, 300 Borough Dr.

THORNHILL
- Batner Bookstore, 180 Steeles Ave. W.
- Chapters, 7040 Yonge St.
- Israel's, the Judaica Centre, 441 Clark Ave. W.

TORONTO
- Aleph Bet Judaica, 3453 Bathurst St.
- Anglican Bookstore Centre, 600 Jarvis St.
- Another Story, 164 Danforth Ave.
- Bob Miller Book Room, 180 Bloor St. W.
- Canadian Children's Book Centre, 35 Spadina Rd.
- Chapters, 2901 Bayview Ave.
- Chapters, 110 Bloor W.
- Chapters, 142 John St.
- Chapters, 1950 The Queensway
- Chapters, 2225 Bloor St.W.
- Coles, 181 Bay St.
- Coles, 250 The East Mall
- Coles, 939 Lawrence Ave. W.
- Coles, 200 Bay St.
- Coles, 25 The West Mall
- Crux Bookstore, 5 Hoskin Ave.
- David Mirvish Books, 596 Markham St.
- Indigo, 2300 Yonge St.
- Indigo, 55 Bloor St. W.
- Indigo, 3401 Dufferin St.
- Israel's the Judaica Centre, 897 Eglinton Ave. W.
- Mabel's Fables, 662 Mt. Pleasant Ave.
- Mitchell's Family Bookstore, 1020 Islington Ave.
- Mitchell's Family Bookstore, 565 Gordon Baker Rd.
- Negev Book & Gift, 3509 Bathurst St.
- Pages Books, 256 Queen St. W.
- Parentbooks, 201 Harbord St.
- Ryerson Univ. Bookstore, 17 Gould St.
- Speelman's Christian Bookstore, 5010 Steeles Ave. W.
- Tyndale University Bookstore, 25 Ballyconnor Ct.
- United Church Book Room, 3250 Bloor St. W.
- U of T Bookstore, 214 College St.
- Women's Bookstore, 73 Harbord St.
- World's Biggest Bookstore, 20 Edward St.
- York Univ. Bookstore, 4700 Keele St.

WOODBRIDGE
- Chapters, 3900 Hwy #7 W.

The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, UJA Federation gratefully recognizes the generosity of those listed below:

Anonymous
Tobie and Ted Bekhor
Esther Bem
Frank and Suzanne Bleyer
Brascan Foundation
Eric and Judy Breuer
Jack and Honey Carr
Sid and Judy Cohen
Conquest Vacations
Sally and Elliott Dale & Family
The Diamant Family
The Sharon Diamond & Walt Family Fund
Anita Ekstein
Four Seasons Hotels and Resorts
Sam and Gitta Ganz & Family
George and Eleanor Getzler
Gerald Schwartz and Heather Reisman Foundation
Dr. Irwin and Miriam Goldstein
Goodman & Carr LLP
Joseph Gottdenker
Senator Gerry Graftstein
Paul and Marilyn Herbert
Seymour Hershenfeld and Susan Weltman & Family
Magda Hilf
Alfred and Gayle Kwinter
Robert Lantos
Fela Lichtblau
Martin and Eleanor Maxwell
Meles Family
Henry and Elaine Melnick
Alan and Patti Menkes
Larry and Bonnie Moncik
Leon and Paula Nussbaum
Fanny Pillersdorf
The Rash Family
Eva Ryterband
Edith Sereny
SF Partnership, LLP, Chartered Accountants
Theodore and Joan Shapero
Barry and Honey Sherman, Apotex Foundation
Soberman LLP
Sonshine Family Foundation
Jay and Carole Sterling
Helen Stollar
Martha Sud
The Teddy Tourney
UJA Federation Women's Campaign & Advocacy
Dr. Yvonne Verbeeten
Alan and Glenda Wainer
Ariel Walsh
Sol and Etty Zigler

Consider becoming a member of The Holocaust Centre of Toronto.
Your donation will be tax-receipted in full and you will receive notices during the year of Holocaust-related events, as well as our newsletters.

If you wish to be a supporter of the annual Holocaust Education Week, you are invited to make a tax-receiptable donation.
For $1,000 or more, you will be able to sponsor a specific program in honour or in memory of loved ones. By becoming a valued donor, you will not only assist us in maintaining the calibre of our event, but you will also help perpetuate the memory of the victims of the Holocaust and ensure that future generations be taught the lessons of the Holocaust.

For more information, please call Mary Siklos at 416-635-2883 ext. 301 or email her at msiklos@ujafed.org

Thank you for your support.

THE HOLOCAUST CENTRE OF TORONTO, UJA FEDERATION

For almost two decades, the Centre has been committed to preserving the memory of the victims of Nazi persecution while also serving as a Centre for education.

Visitors of all ages can view audio-visual presentations portraying European Jewry before, during and after World War II; witness first-hand the horror of the Holocaust through memorabilia and displays; and experience the reflective Hall of Memories, where families pay tribute to their loved ones.

School groups have the opportunity to hear the personal testimony of Holocaust survivor speakers whose shining example of courage and dignity serves as a role model for a new generation. A new interactive exhibit, "We Who Survived..." features contemporary portraits of these survivors and autobiographical sketches.

As well, The Anita Ekstein Holocaust Resource Library, with its extensive Holocaust-related collection, serves all segments of the community.

The Centre is located in the Lipa Green Building at 4600 Bathurst Street in Toronto. For more information or to book a school visit, call 416-635-2883 ext. 153 or visit www.jewishtoronto.com

24th ANNUAL HOLOCAUST EDUCATION WEEK

Co-Chairs:
Honey Carr Joan Shapero

Committee:

Steven Albin	Ruth Lane
Sylvia Bornstein	Martin Maxwell
Judy Breuer	Annette Metz-Pivnick
Robert Buckler	Myriam Nafte
Felicia Carmelly	Linda Neufeld
Rebecca Carter	Carson Phillips
Stephen Chester-Bertelsen	Judy Pisano
Yael Spier Cohen	Hilary Rabie
Loftus Cuddy	Jill Remski
Sally Dale	Andy Reti
Howard Driman	Sherri Rotstein
Jessica Ennis	Julia Rowan
Ellen Gardner	Barbara Rusch
Eleanor Getzler	Lesley Schwartz
Sandra Gitlin	Shawna Spiegelman
Elaine Goldberg	Donna Tepperman
Marilyn Goldberg	Dorothy Tessis
Norine Goodman	Alan Wainer
Lara Katz	Rely Walsh
Hyla Korn	Fern Waterman
Eliane Labendz	Rivka Wise
Ada Wynston

The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, UJA Federation
Howard Driman, Chairman
Professor Adam Fuerstenberg, Director
Mary Siklos, HEW Event Coordinator
Hanna Schwartz, Administrative Assistant

UJA Federation of Greater Toronto
Leslie Gales, Chair of the Board
David Engel, Vice Chair of the Board
Ted Sokolsky, President

Brochure Coordinator/Editor
Ina Glick, Senior Communications Coordinator

We regret any errors or omissions due to publication deadlines.

ADMISSION TO ALL PROGRAMS IS FREE UNLESS OTHERWISE NOTED.
However, to ensure that the highest caliber of Holocaust programs may be perpetuated in future years, a voluntary donation of at least $3 per person per event would be appreciated.
Donation boxes will be available at all events.
We thank you for your generosity.

Call the Holocaust Education Week Hotline at 416-631-5689 or visit our web site at:
www.holocausteducationweek.com
for the latest information and any program changes.

UJA FEDERATION
Together We're Stronger

The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, UJA Federation
4600 Bathurst Street, Toronto, Ontario M2R 3V2
416-635-2883 ext. 301
www.jewishtoronto.com

REMEMBER זכור

Downtown Toronto's Newest Boutique Hotel
The GRAND HOTEL TORONTO
Reservations 1-877-32-GRAND
Book On-line at
www.grandhoteltoronto.com
Earn Double or Triple Aeroplan Miles when using CIBC Aerogold® VISA

The Canadian Jewish news

56 Pages | Thursday, October 28, 2004 | 18 Cheshvan, 5765 | $1.00

SAVE NOW ON AIR + HOTEL!
Nov. 1 – Dec. 15
Jan. 1 – Feb. 28
Starting at $1370
Combining 7 nights air & hotel. PP based DBL.
Certain conditions apply
Contact your travel agent
EL AL
416-967-4222

This Week

National

Terrorism deportation case delayed. Page 6

Muslim leaders criticized for anti-Jewish remarks. Page 7

American Jews in Toronto to favour Kerry. Page 28

Arts & Travel

Poetry slammers get their day at Wordlympics. Page 46

Art Spiegleman takes on 9/11. Books and Authors. Page 48

Yiddishland Café pays tribute to Lodz Ghetto.

Index

GTA 3
Editorials & Letters 8
Perspectives 9
Opinions 10
The Kirshner File 11
Jewish Life 16
On Campus 24
Coast to Coast 26
According to Reports 30
What's New 32
Obituaries & Notices 34
Just Between Us 35
Israel & the Jewish World 37
Health & Lifestyles 43
Arts & Travel 44
Books & Authors 48
Classified 49
Sports & Leisure 54

www.cjnews.com

Canada Post Publication Agreement #40010694
Publication Mail Registration #09694

Liberal MPs work to change Canada's UN votes on Israel

By RON CSILLAG
Staff Reporter

Influential Liberal members of Parliament, including potentially seven cabinet ministers, promise to redouble their efforts to change Canada's voting pattern on Israel at the United Nations, says one MP who co-chairs a pro-Israel caucus.

Liberal Parliamentarians for Israel, composed of up to 18 MPs, including several members of cabinet, launched its work Oct. 18 in Canada's new minority government.

High on the agenda is "the need to alter Canadian votes at the United Nations General Assembly," says statement from the pro-Israel caucus.

"We've looked at a large number of [UN] votes and Israel has been the only country to be singled out.

Continued on page 36

MP Anita Neville

Nobel Prize winner owes his life to chance

Avram Hershko

By SHELDON KIRSHNER
Staff Reporter

Avram Hershko, one of the three winners of this year's Nobel Prize in chemistry, owes his life to a random event that occurred in Hungary during the Holocaust in 1944.

"The train that should have gone to Auschwitz went to Austria instead," he said in an interview in Toronto last week.

Hershko, an Israeli who shares the award with two other scientists, Aaron Ciechanover of Israel and Irwin Rose of the United States, was to have been transported to that infamous death camp in Poland with his mother, Shoshana, and older brother, Chaim. But thanks to a stroke of fortune, the Hershkos were sent to a labour camp near Vienna, where they managed to survive.

"I don't consider myself a Holocaust survivor," said Hershko, 67, a biochemist and professor at the Technion in Haifa who, in concert with Ciechanover, developed Velcade, a new cancer drug used to treat multiple myeloma, a cancer of the bone marrow.

Nevertheless, Hershko realizes that he was extremely lucky not to have been murdered, the fate that befell some 700,000 Hungarian Jews and more than one million Jewish children in World War II.

Continued on page 42

'I am Modigliani, Jew'

— Artist's work to be showcased at AGO —

By SHELDON KIRSHNER
Staff Reporter

Who could have known?

Amedeo Modigliani died in Paris in 1920 after a brief and chaotic bohemian life marked by grinding poverty, systematic alcohol and drug abuse, perpetual ill-health, a surfeit of love affairs and a dearth of recognition.

This dissolute but immensely talented Jewish Italian artist, known as Modi to friends and acquaintances alike, was only 35 when he succumbed to tubercular meningitis.

Nearly forgotten after his untimely death, Modigliani is suddenly all the rage – the subject of critical studies, an upcoming Hollywood movie starring Andy Garcia and, now, a sumptuous exhibition at the Art Gallery of Ontario.

"Modigliani: Beyond the Myth," fresh from an extended run at the Jewish Museum in New York, opened on Oct. 23 and closes on Jan. 23.

Continued on page 21

Amedeo Modigliani, July 22, 1917
[From the Menier family album, AGO]

Vayera
Candlelighting: 5:53
Havdallah: 6:58

Greater Toronto Area

CJN0000108004 L7 0S0E0S0H
PATTI BENHAM XXDIR(N)
MCLAREN MICROPUBLISHING LTD
PO BOX 972 STATION P
TORONTO ON
M4Y 2N1

Economic plan hopes to help Jerusalem— please see page 38

News in Brief

CANADA

Bay Faces Complaint

TORONTO — A woman who was turned down for a makeup artist job at the Hudson's Bay Company because she won't work on Shabbat has filed a complaint with the Ontario Human Rights Commission. Evie Walton was interviewed last April at two downtown Bay stores, but was rejected despite being qualified, she told the Toronto Star. A Bay spokesperson wouldn't comment on the case, but told the National Post that although the Bay tries to accommodate religious observance, Saturday is the busiest day in retail and, "[w]e need all hands on deck." Canadian Jewish Congress and B'nai Brith are monitoring the case. CJC said the commission must weigh an employee's religious rights against the need to avoid undue hardship on employers.

Assassination Recalled

OTTAWA — Liberal Senator Anne Cools last week "call[ed] the attention of the Senate" to the 60th anniversary of the assassination of Walter Edward Guinness, Lord Moyne, a high British official in the Mideast whose life ended by what Cools called "Jewish terrorist action." Lord Moyne, who was British minister resident in the Middle East, had issued a report that was critical of the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine. He was shot and killed Nov. 6, 1944, in Cairo by two members of the Stern Gang militia. Cools also cited Yitzchak Shamir, who served twice as Israel's prime minister, as "the operations chief for the Stern Gang" who "ordered and planned" the killing. Cools said that as a child in Barbados, she held Lord Moyne in high esteem for helping to establish universal suffrage and representative government in the British West Indies.

Teens Leaders Talk

TORONTO — Three Canadians were among 60 youth who took part in the first-ever Jewish Teen Leadership Summit this month in Washington, D.C. Mira Lyon and Leora Jackson of Toronto and Jeremy Moses of Montreal joined U.S. teens from BBYO and official Reform, Conservative, Orthodox and Reconstructionist youth groups at the Oct. 10-12 conference, which was organized by Panim: The Institute for Jewish Leadership and Values. They explored ways to increase Jewish identity and Israel advocacy.

Rallying for Darfur

TORONTO — Canadians for Action in Darfur, a coalition of some 40 groups, is holding a Rally for Darfur on Sunday, Nov. 7, 2 to 3 p.m., at Queen's Park. The coalition, headed by Canadian Jewish Congress' Ontario Region, UJA Federation of Greater Toronto and the Canadian Council of Churches/ KAIROS, wants the international community to increase its efforts to protect the people of Darfur in Sudan from ethnic cleansing and massacres.

Zundel Appeal Denied

OTTAWA — The Supreme Court rejected Holocaust denier Ernst Zundel's deportation appeal again last week. Zundel, who has been in jail for 18 months facing deportation to his native Germany, was appealing provincial court rulings against hearing his constitutional arguments. It was the second such ruling against him in as many months.

WORLD

Hate a Threat: Report

PARIS — Increased anti-Semitism and racism are threats to French democracy, a government report said last week. In a document presented to Interior Minister Dominique de Villepin, Jean-Christophe Rupin called for more judicial measures to fight anti-Semitism in schools, and a national centre to collect statistics on anti-Semitism and racism. More controversially, he also urged combating "radical anti-Zionists who were anti-Semitic by proxy" with laws against comparing Israel to apartheid or Nazism.

Editorial Criticized

DURHAM, N.C. — Duke University president Richard Brodhead last week joined Jewish groups in criticizing a student-written editorial that accused Jews of exploiting the "Holocaust industry" for political gain. Philip Kurian's column "revived stereotypical images that have played a long-running role in the history of anti-Semitism," Brodhead wrote in a letter to the Chronicle, the school's newspaper. "The habits of mind that allow people to stereotype Jews are the same ones that allow them to denigrate blacks, gays and other objects of prejudice." Kurian's column ran after Jewish groups organized counter-education efforts in response to a largely peaceful conference earlier this month of the Palestine Solidarity Movement.

THE VEHICLE EVERYONE HAS BEEN WAITING FOR!

2005 DODGE MAGNUM

Book your test drive NOW!

Luxurious! Powerful! Rear wheel drive with ESP. Made in Canada.

$389 LEASE PER MONTH

NOW IN STOCK

*Lease 48 months with 20,400 KM allowed per year with $.15 for excess KMs. Freight, PDE, admin and taxes extra. OAC. Downpayment or trade equivalent $1660. See Downsview Chrysler for details. Vehicle may feature optional equipment.

DOWNSVIEW CHRYSLER DODGE • JEEP 416-635-1660

On the Allen Road, N. of Sheppard Ave./401

Nathan Disenhouse • Zale Newman • Gordon Berger • Jack Pollak

Finally, a fear-free investment plan in which:

• ultimately the deposits are deductible • all money grows tax sheltered • you can access all funds tax free • you can transfer any balance to your heirs tax free • and it is creditor proof!

To qualify for this investment you must be a professional or entrepreneur taxed at the highest marginal tax rate and willing to commit on an annual basis. Minimum $35,000 investment.

PANFINANCIAL Tel: 416.499.4222 x456

Tanenbaum Gives $1 Million to Birthright

Larry Tanenbaum

TORONTO — Larry Tanenbaum, chairman of Maple Leaf Sports and Entertainment, has pledged $1 million (Cdn) to Birthright Israel, of which $600,000 will be paid by the end of 2004, Birthright has announced.

Tanenbaum's gift, which was made through UJA Federation of Greater Toronto, will trigger the Charles and Lynn Schusterman Family Foundation's "1 for 2" matching program to give UJA Federation up to $200,000 (US) for local needs in Toronto. The Schusterman foundation gives $1 to a federation for every $2 a federation contributes to fund Year 5 (2004-05) of Birthright.

Birthright Israel was launched five years ago with funding from philanthropists, the government of Israel and North American Jewish federations to offer free 10-day trips to Israel for Jews ages 18 to 26. To date, more than 70,000 young Jews from around the world, including Cuba, have taken part, and the program has been renewed for another five years.

The Canadian Jewish news

Vol. XXXIV, No. 43 (1,670)*

Gary Laforet General Manager

Mordechai Ben-Dat Editor

Vera Gillman Advertising & Assistant General Manager

Carol Jamieson Controller

Jeff Rosen News & Internet Editor

Joseph Serge, Arts, Travel and Supplements Editor

Janice Arnold, Carolyn Blackman, Ron Csillag, Sheldon Kirshner, Frances Kraft, David Lazarus, Elias Levy, Paul Lungen, Anna Morgan, Leila Speisman Staff Reporters

Jesssica Apter, Rabbi Bernard Baskin, Ross Culiner, Gerald Gall, Jean M. Gerber, Bill Gladstone, Joanna Grossman, Lawrence Hart, Sara Horowitz, Norma Joseph, Dr. Gidi Koren, Rabbi Dow Marmur, Rebecca Nadler, Miriam Porter, Avrum Rosensweig, Alek Silver, Heather Solomon, Gerald Steinberg, Rabbi Chaim Steinmetz, Gil Troy Columnists

Diane Koven, Myron Love Canadian Correspondents

Edgar Asher, Jenny Hazan Israel Bureau

Carolan Halpern, Ruth Schweitzer, Daniel Wolgelerenter Copy Editors

Cynthia Gasner, Special Assignments

Ella Burakowski Assistant Advertising Manager

Bev Bergman, Gloria Clamen, Lisa Freid, Faina Garber, Sarah Laiken, Eric Layman, Honey Mahl, Jonathan Turner, Sholom Wargon, Grace Zweig Sales Representatives, Toronto

Doris Perez, Office Manager

Alma Delory, Lucy Semtchenko, Karen Syptak Office Staff, Toronto

Janice Atkinson Circulation & Promotions Manager

Brian Stoneman Composing Room Manager

José De Freitas, Edward Dunbar, Ronald G. Hagel, Britta Montgomery, Anahit Nahapetyan, Nick Radelja, Michael Stavsky Production Staff

Donald Carr, George A. Cohon, Steven Cummings, Murray Koffler, Julia Koschitzky, Albert J. Latner, Lionel H. Schipper, Robert Vineberg, Rose Wolfe, Rubin Zimmerman Directors

Ray D. Wolfe Founding President (1971-1990)

CIRCULATION

Total circulation: 40,197 copies.
Total paid circulation: 39,504 copies.

CCNA verified circulation Feb. 18, 2004

SUBSCRIPTIONS

Canada: $34.95, 1 yr. incl. GST. $62.95, 2 yr. incl. GST.
U.S.A.: $100 U.S funds, 1 yr.
All other countries: $110 U.S. funds, 1 yr.

Postmaster: Please return 29Bs and changes of address to Toronto office.

Postage Paid at Toronto
Canada Post Publication Agreement #40010684
Publication Mail Registration #09894

*Under current ownership

We acknowledge the financial support of the Government of Canada, through the Publications Assistance Program, towards our mailing costs.

Canada

The Canadian Jewish news

How To Reach Us

Head Office: 1500 Don Mills Rd., Ste. 205, North York, Ont.. M3B 3K4
Tel: 416-391-1836
Advertising Fax: 416-391-0949
Advertising E-mail: ads@cjnews.com
Editorial Fax: 416-391-0829 Editorial E-mail: info@cjnews.com
Website: www.cjnews.com
Subscriptions E-Mail: jatkinson@cjnews.com

IMP - Israel Advertising Representatives, POB 7195, Jerusalem, Israel
Tel. 02-625-2933 Fax, 02-624-9240 Email:info@impmedia.co.il

ISRAEL'S
The store for people who love their Jewish home
870 Eglinton Avenue West
416-256-1010
441 Clark Avenue West
905-881-1010
www.israelsjudaica.com

National

Greater Toronto Area

Sonny Goldstein, CFP
President
Planning For Retirement?
Confused about your financial future? Let us help you understand how to reach your financial goals.
Call Sonny Goldstein
Chartered Life Underwriter
Chartered Financial Consultant
416-221-0060
HIGHEST QUOTES ON RRIF's, ANNUITIES, etc.
Creative Ideas in Financial Planning

Enrolment down at Toronto Jewish day schools

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

Enrolment in Toronto-area Jewish day schools fell by 307 students for the 2004-05 school year, continuing a four-year trend of declining numbers that educators blame on demographics but many parents say is a result of rising tuition.

Twenty-one elementary schools affiliated with the UJA Federation Board of Jewish Education (BJE) reported 238 fewer students this year, while the system's 13 high schools recorded a drop of 69. However, the Community Hebrew Academy of Toronto (CHAT), whose enrolment eclipses those of the next 12 high schools combined, reported a 1 per cent growth in its student population, to a total of 1,403.

Altogether, 8,580 students are attending elementary day schools this year, a drop of two per cent over the 8,818 enrolled last year. Attendance at BJE-affiliated Jewish preschools dropped by five per cent in the same period.

High schools reported 2,570 students are enrolled, down from 2,639 last year, a fall-off of three per cent. The drop in numbers reverses a 10-year trend of gradually increasing enrolment at the high school level.

Joyce Levine, the BJE's director of educational technology, said the drop in day school enrolment may be attributable to demographic factors.

"This decline in elementary school figures seems to reflect the decrease in the number of [Jewish] children being born in Toronto," she said. The proportion of Jewish youngsters entering Grade 1 has remained fairly constant over the past few years at around 41 to 46 per cent, she added.

However, anecdotal evidence suggests some parents are pulling their children out of Jewish schools or declining to enrol them at all because of high tuition.

Two years ago, Associated Hebrew Schools of Toronto, the city's largest Jewish elementary day school, boosted its fees by $1,000, and this year it tacked another $300 onto that. At $9,300 per child per year, it's a 17 per cent jump in only two years.

Nevertheless, Associated's executive director Arthur Landa maintains the increase is still the second- or third-lowest among the city's 10 largest schools.

Engineering consultant Wayne Levin, who has three children at Associated and pays $27,000 in tuition fees, said such costs are a back-breaker for many parents.

Demographics, tuition cited for 307-student drop

"Families are extremely stretched" and are deciding to remove their children from days schools, he said. He suggested the decline in numbers is attributable to the fees as well as to "chronic quality issues. A lack of professionalism in a number of schools is driving parents away."

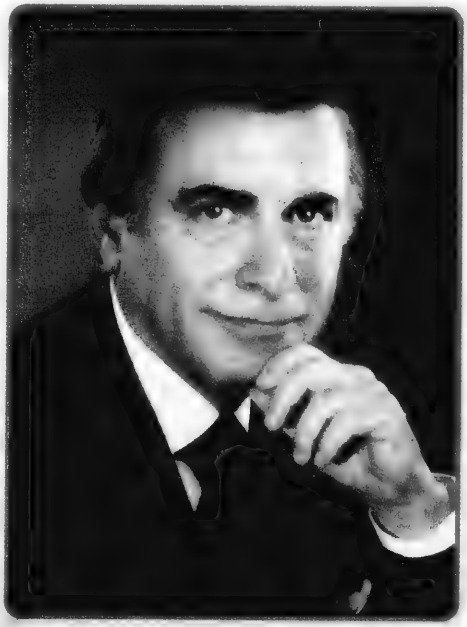
What's more, he said, parents don't know what next year's tuition will be, nor do they have the power to influence the schools' funding priorities.

"I see many families who do not want to send their kids to schools. If the schools won't make a commitment to them, how can they make a commitment to the schools?" he asked.

"The numbers [at Associated] are down," Landa acknowledged. "If you look at the last seven to eight years, you'll see a systemic decline."

With 1,474 students enrolled in grades 1 through 8 and a further 283 in its pre-school system (nursery, junior kindergarten and kindergarten), Associated has experienced a steep decline in both areas. In 2003-04, the student population reached 1,549, a far cry from the heady days in 1992-93, when enrolment reached 1,972. Its preschool system has also seen a sharp drop from the 669 it registered in 1992-93.

Continued on page 14



JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF TORONTO
is proud to invite the Toronto Community to the 2004 NEGEV DINNER TRIBUTE
in honour of
RONALD APPLEBY Q.C.
in recognition of excellence in communal leadership and dedication to Israel

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 2004
Sheraton Centre Hotel
Reception: 5:00 p.m. • Dinner: 6:00 p.m.

JNF Toronto President: Ron Hoffman
Negev Dinner Chairs: Harley Mintz and Howard Sokolowski
Honourary Patrons: Jennie and Moishe Appleby, Elaine Spring
Honourary Chairs: Joey M. Tanenbaum (Chairman), H. Thomas Beck, Samuel H. Cohen, Fred DeGasperis, Dr. Gerald Halbert, Dr. Ralph Halbert, Ydessa Hendeles, Joseph Lebovic, Robert Masters, Irwin (Al) Mintz, Philip Reichmann, The Hon. Sydney L. Robins, Kurt Rothschild, Gerald Sheff, Edward Sonshine, Jack Weinbaum, Mel Wolfond

Proceeds from the 2004 JNF Toronto Negev Dinner will benefit a Department of Forestry Project of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and a unique Children's Endowment at JNF summer camps in Israel, specifically benefitting children impacted by terror.

Executive Director: Ben Prossin • Co-Ordinator of Administrative Services: Lil Jacobson
Special Jerusalem Emissary: David Hamik • Special Projects Emissary: Yona Gazit

For ticket information and reservations
Jewish National Fund of Toronto
1000 Finch Avenue West, Suite 700, Toronto, Ontario M3J 2V5
Tel: 416-638-7200 • Fax: 416-638-7345 • Email: tor@jnf-canada.org

Steeles Memorial Chapel

www.steelesmemorial.com

- Current Listing of Funerals
- Listing of Cemeteries and Maps of Sections
- Yahrzeit Calculator for Civil & Hebrew dates
- Kaddish Texts
- Educational Information about Shiva - Unveiling - After-Care - Prayers - Jewish Burial Rites
- Jewish Holiday Dates

905-881-6003

Serving the Jewish Community since 1927.

The Canadian Jewish news GIVEAWAY!!

20 LUCKY CJN READERS
will win a pair of tickets
(valued at $28 per ticket)
to see
Chaim Potok's
THE CHOSEN
now an award-winning play!
by Aaron Posner and Chaim Potok
for a Thurs., Dec. 2, 8:00 p.m. performance at the Leah Posluns Studio Theatre
BJCC - 4588 Bathurst St., Toronto

Rules: To be eligible to win please print your name, address and daytime phone number on a piece of paper along with the answer to this question:

What is the name of the production company that is bringing "THE CHOSEN" to Toronto?

(Hint: the answer can be found in their advertisement printed elsewhere in this newspaper!)

All correct answers received by 3 p.m. on Friday, November 19, 2004 are eligible. The winning entries will be randomly selected from all correct answers received at The CJN offices on Monday, November 22, at 10 a.m. The winners will be notified the same day. Odds of winning depend on the number of entries received.

The CJN will not enter into any correspondence with contestants.

Send your response to: "THE CHOSEN" Contest, The Canadian Jewish News, 1500 Don Mills Road, Suite 205, North York, Ont. M3B 3K4 or fax to: 416-391-0949.

Employees and family members of The CJN, Leah Posluns Studio Theatre and Teatron Theatre productions are not eligible to enter.

Greater Toronto Area

A story about hope

From the editor's desk

Some stories fire the imagination more than others. The story of Esther Brandeau, the teenage girl from Bayonne, France, who most historians believe was the very first Jew to arrive on the shores of Canada in 1738 – then La Nouvelle France – is one such story.

In his seminal work, Taking Root, The Origins of the Canadian Jewish Community, historian Gerald Tulchinsky suggests the story of the young stowaway Esther Brandeau was "probably apocryphal."

But Irving Abella actually begins his book A Coat of Many Colours: Two Centuries of Jewish Life in Canada with an account of Esther's story. "Under questioning by the Maritime commissioner, [Jacques] La Farge admitted that not only was his name assumed – so was his gender. In reality, 'he' was a she, a 19-year-old Jewess from France named Esther Brandeau."

Two years ago, Quebec film documentarian Pierre Lasry wrote Esther: A Jewish Odyssey, a stunning book that "retraces" Esther's voyage to and travail in the new world.

The latest literary excursion into the imagined life of young Esther Brandeau, titled, simply, Esther, is by the celebrated, award-winning author Sharon E. Mckay, of Kilbride, Ont., near Burlington. Published by Penguin Canada, Mckay's Esther is aimed at teenage and young adult readers.

"It is a rollicking, good story," Mckay told The CJN last week at a nearby coffee shop. This reader must agree with the author's characterization of her own work. For the story clips along at a quick, eventful pace.

After being cast out from her home, the downcast, rejected teenager finds herself enmeshed in one high-drama, tense situation after another.

And through it all, she survives.

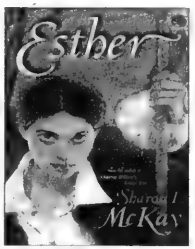
It is the story of Esther's survival that Mckay imagines with gritty realism, yet compelling optimism as well.

"It is a story of hope," Mckay explained effusively.

The importance of clinging to hope, despite the obstacles, miseries and setbacks of life, is the recurring message of Esther.

Esther was forced to bear up under burdens not normally borne by the teenagers of her or any time. Yet, as depicted by Mckay, our wandering heroine never lost her hope for a better future. The overwhelming importance of clinging to one's sense of hope shines through the story like a spotlight on a darkened stage floor.

Mckay tells a tale that is rich with the unvarnished details of life in early 18th-century France. For the vast majority of people, of course, oppressed by their own woeful poverty, life was a hard, daily endurance.



Jews, however, suffered doubly.

Confined mostly to their closed-in streets and narrow living quarters, they were victims of discrimination and hatred, as well as bone-wearying poverty.

Using this dark, unlit world of early, mostly illiterate, 18th-century Europe as a historical canvas, Mckay paints for the reader a portrait of a daring, vivacious, deeply caring and determined young Esther whose triumph is more pluck than luck.

Mckay has a felicitous storyteller's skill to spin a tale, which she puts to good use in creating the resourceful, but believable, Jewish teenage protagonist.

"One of my biggest challenges was how to explain what a Jew is," the Montreal-born author said. "I did not write this story for Jewish children. I wrote it for all children, Christian and Muslims too."

But she succeeds quite eloquently in conveying what a Jew is, as is evident by the exchange between Esther and her interrogator:

"'Tell me, why do you Jews cling so tightly to a faith that can only bring you scorn and sorrow?'

"The question fell on Esther like a dead weight. She looked back into the intendant's eyes. And then it came to her quite suddenly. He was not an evil man – on the contrary. He believed that he was offering her salvation! Was that it? Was that why he had made such an effort to convert her?

"'Good sir, I hardly know myself of what I speak. But this I do know: I am from a great and noble people whose history extends in all directions, throughout all ages. To be a Jew is to travel on a thread that stretches from the beginning of time to the end of time. How could I be the one to break this thread?'"

Mckay dedicated Esther to her friend Robert (Robby) Engel, a survivor of the Shoah who died in 1999, around the time that she started to research the work that would become Esther.

The book is infused with one of Robby Engel's chief messages: never abandon hope. By doing this, McKay also shines quite a bit of light back onto herself even as she imagines the remarkable story that was the young Jewish teenager, Esther Brandeau.

Earlier this week, Esther was nominated for the Governor General's Award for children's fiction. We congratulate the author and recommend her book to young adults and to their parents.

— MBD

See JN

WELCOME TO ISRAEL

Despite a downturn from earlier years in the number of olim from the former Soviet Union, new immigrants continue to arrive on the shores of Israel. Last week a group of 140 people arrived by ship from Odessa to begin their new life in the Jewish state. This mother and daughter were among the group.

[Israel photo]

MDA's Israeli Cord Blood Bank 'on cutting edge'

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

With the establishment of Magen David Adom's Israeli Cord Blood Bank (ICBB), Israel is moving to the forefront of hematology and transfusion medicine worldwide, says Dr. Eilat Shinar, the director of MDA's National Blood Services.

The state-of-the-art project – established in co-operation with Hadassah University Hospital, the E. Wolfson Medical Center and the Tel Aviv Sourasky Medical Center – collects blood from the umbilical cords of placentas remaining after normal deliveries. The placentas are processed, classified and frozen for future life-saving use.

"The MDA is on the cutting edge," Shinar said in Toronto last week. "Women throughout Israel are eagerly donating this afterbirth, which previously was discarded. The women want to save other lives."

In the only Canadian stop on her North American tour, Shinar spoke at reception held at a private home and hosted by 1111 Women, a Toronto-based group that raises funds for specific Magen David Adom projects and to reduce MDA administrative costs.

Shinar explained that cord blood has many characteristics that make it extremely valuable in the fight against malignancies, especially cancers of the blood such as leukemia.

"The cord blood is rich in stem cells that have the ability to be transplanted. These stem cells multiply and develop into healthy blood cells that restore the patient's immune system.

Dr. Eilat Shinar

"This pioneering work of the stem cells process has the full support of both the rabbinate and the medical community," she said.

"Cord blood is unique in that it provides the genetic material required for transplantation without the need for a perfect genetic match. It is readily available for immediate use, which is an enormous advantage over traditional bone marrow transplants."

Israeli doctors and scientists have determined that a blood bank containing 30,000 units of Jewish cord blood would be statistically adequate to provide every Jew in the world with an immediately available genetic match, an MDA fact sheet distributed by Shinar says.

In Canada, Shinar said, the initial harvesting of the cord blood costs more than $500 and an annual fee is levied to store the blood, whereas Israel's National Cord Blood Bank Services provides this service at no cost to the mother.

She said MDA has expanded in other areas as well. "Last year, we received 400,000 calls, [and] we don't get government support."

She brought thanks for the help given to MDA by the many blood donors in Canada and around the world. Referring to these volunteers, she emphasized that "we don't have a good alternative to human blood – we all need each other."

Using as an example the terrorist attack at the Hilton Hotel in Taba earlier this month and other terrorist attacks, she said, "Magen David Adom is called first. Then they notify Blood Services, and within five minutes, they can ship blood to the hospitals."

After completing her military service, Israeli-born Shinar graduated from the Hadassah Medical School at Hebrew University. She joined MDA Blood Services in 1988 as a physician responsible for aphaeresis service, which involves the removal of whole blood from a patient or donor and separating it into components that can then be retransfused into the patient or donor. In 1997, she became Blood Services director. She also teaches transfusion medicine and hematology at both Tel Aviv and Ben Gurion universities.

The Israeli National Blood Services is a division of the non-profit MDA, which is responsible for the collection, processing, testing and distribution of blood units and blood products throughout Israel.

1111 Women group founder Sandy Galet reported that last year, the organization raised funds to purchase a mobile intensive care unit and a HeartSim 4000 Simulator for MDA.

David Kaminker, vice-president of Toronto MDA, noted that $40,000 was raised for Israel Blood Services at a recent event, and that a concert by Leah Moss, held last week at the Leah Posluns Theatre, raised $50,000.

Toronto artist Dorothy Ross, who recently donated an ambulance in memory of her parents, presented a mezuzah to Shinar for the Blood Services facility in Tel Hashomer.

During her one-day stay in Toronto, Shinar visited the Canadian Blood Services Centre on College Street, where she met with Dr. Graham Sher, the CEO of Canadian Blood Services.

Canada's LARGEST selection for new & used Fitness Equipment!!!
AMAZING DEALS ON PRE-OWNED EQUIPMENT
Top Pre-owned equipment from:
SCHWINN • NORTHERN LIGHTS • LIFE FITNESS • PRECOR • STAIRMASTER • PACEMASTER
TAKE OUR 30-DAY PRICE CHALLENGE AND GET STARTED TODAY!
STEPPERS from $188
ELLIPTICALS from $288
HOME GYMS from $388
We BUY, SELL, TRADE & RENT Fitness Equipment
UPRIGHT CYCLES from $128
RECUMBENT BIKES from $128
ROWING MACHINES from $128
THE BEST BRANDS AT MIND-DROPPING LOW PRICES!
WEIGHT PLATES From 58¢/lb.
HEX DUMBBELLS From 66¢/lb
HEART RATE MONITORS From $38
HEAVY BAGS From $48.88
WEIGHT EQUIPMENT From $49.95
FAT SCALES From $68
TREADMILLS from $298
FINANCING AVAILABLE
BOOMERANG HOME FITNESS
MISSISSAUGA
6991 Millcreek Dr.
905.819.9877
SCARBOROUGH
143 Bermondsey Rd.
416.288.1673
Store Hours:
Monday to Friday 10 - 9 • Saturday 10 - 6 • Sunday 12 - 5
PRICES AND AVAILABILITY SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE

SHAAR SHALOM SYNAGOGUE

located in Thornhill requires an Administrator to assume responsibilities for the day to day activities of the synagogue for its 550 families. The successful candidate must have excellent people skills, be able to self manage as well as manage a staff. Must have good working knowledge of computer and accounting systems.

Please reply in writing to
Shaar Shalom Executive Search Committee
at fax # 905-763-1459 or
2 Simonston BLVD, Thornhill Ont, L3T 4L1

GOODFIELD'S Meats
OPEN SUNDAY
800 Steeles Ave. West 905-738-1856
Northwest corner of Bathurst & Steeles
"CONTINUING A FAMILY TRADITION OF QUALITY MEAT AND LOW PRICES FOR OVER 70 YEARS"

BONELESS CHICKEN BREAST $3.99 LB.

DOUBLE SIZE CLOVER LEAF 360 GM. FLAKED WHITE TUNA IN WATER $2.99 EA.

2nd CUT VEAL CHOPS $3.99 LB.

VEAL SPARE RIBS $1.99 LB.

Prices valid until Sun. Nov. 7 or while supplies last
We accept Visa, Mastercard & Interac

Only at BENJAMIN'S

Knowledge & Experience

Our Funeral Directors strive to help families like yours each and every day. Fortunately, planning a funeral is not something you do very often. We are certain you will find value in turning to our experienced staff to assist you during this difficult time. Please allow us to help you create a meaningful and personalized service.

BENJAMIN'S PARK MEMORIAL CHAPEL

(416) 663-9060 -www.benjamins.ca
2401 Steeles Avenue West, Toronto, M3J 2P1

Greater Toronto Area

Terrorism deportation case delayed

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

The most recent delay in the deportation of Palestinian terrorist Mahmoud Mohammad Issa Mohammad not only highlights "the glaring defects" in Canadian immigration system, but it also suggests that "Canada is a haven for terrorists," said immigration lawyer David Matas.

Federal authorities have compounded a bad situation by failing to pursue an alternative legal route against Mohammad, said Matas, legal counsel for B'nai Brith's League for Human Rights. Instead of stressing immigration and deportation procedures, federal officials should have prosecuted the Palestinian hijacker in the criminal courts.

Canada has laws that permit the domestic prosecution of certain international crimes, including hijacking and terrorism. Such a prosecution would serve as a more effective deterrent against other terrorists considering living in Canada than even a successful deportation would, Matas added.

Last week, a spokesperson for Citizenship and Immigration Canada announced that lawyers for Mohammad and the department had agreed to delay Mohammad's appeal from a finding that he could be safely deported to Lebanon.

Maria Iadinardi said procedural errors in a pre-removal risk assessment (PRRA) by a Citizenship officer necessitated the court delay. Instead, another officer will conduct a new PRRA to determine whether Mohammad should be sent to Lebanon.

The latest delay strings out an immigration case that is already 17 years old. Canadian authorities have been attempting to deport Mohammad since shortly after he arrived in Canada in 1987. They argue Mohammad would never have been allowed into Canada had he revealed his involvement in a terrorist incident.

In December 1968, Mohammad and a colleague hijacked an El Al flight about to take off in Athens. The two members of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP) sprayed the aircraft with gunfire and lobbed grenades, killing an Israeli man.

Mohammad was arrested and convicted of negligent manslaughter. He was sentenced to 17 years in jail but was released about one year later after another group of terrorists hijacked a plane and threatened to blow it up unless seven terrorists were released, among them Mohammad.

The Greek government complied.

In Canada, the apparently inexhaustible series of legal maneuvers advanced by Mohammad's lawyers included a refugee claim, but in 1995 that claim was rejected. In recent court documents, his current lawyer, Barbara Jackman, argued her client is in poor health and would not receive adequate care in Lebanon. She also argued he could not be safe there from Israeli retaliation.

Iadinardi said the Supreme Court of Canada has ruled that in determining whether a suspect should be removed, the risk to the suspect must be weighed against the risk to Canadian national security if he is allowed to remain.

A Citizenship officer conducting a PRRA would examine changed conditions in the country of deportation, she said.

"Due process has to take place… Yes, due process can take time," she acknowledged.

Noting the length of the case, Eric Vernon, director of government relations for Canadian Jewish Congress, said, "I once referred to this case as the never-ending story. It's just dragging on and on. Even though it's a cliché that justice delayed is justice denied, it's really applicable in this case.

"We hope that given the security-conscious nature of our society these days, all Canadians will realize it's unacceptable that anyone convicted of [a terrorist offence] many years ago, a man who was convicted and freed only because others hijacked another plane, should not have haven in Canada. Canada should not be regarded as a country that allows this kind of terrorist to live out his days," he said.

BETH TZEDEC MUSEUM WINS AWARD: Dorion Liebgott, left, curator of Beth Tzedec Congregation's Reuben and Helene Dennis Museum, received a Heritage Toronto Award last week for the museum's recent exhibit, "A Common Thread: A History of Toronto's Garment Industry." With her is CBC radio personality Andy Barrie, who hosted the award night at the Carlu.

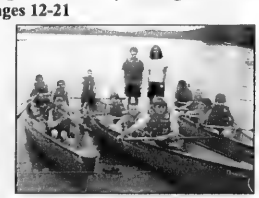
[Bernie Liebgott photo]

CAMP RAMAH IN CANADA
THE MAX & BEATRICE WOLFE CAMPUS
LEARN MORE ABOUT CAMP RAMAH FOR 2005!!!!

• 2 one-month sessions (Grades 3-8): June 23- July 17, 2005; July 18-August 16, 2005
or Full season (grades 3-10): June 23-August 16, 2005;
• Taste of Ramah (current 2nd graders): 1 or 2 week session – July 31-August 7th or July 31-August 16, 2005
• Tikvah program for special needs campers ages 12-21
• Staff positions available

Information meeting!!
Monday, November 1, 2004
Adath Israel
37 Southbourne Ave.,
Toronto - 7:30 PM

(We will be happy to make a home visit if you are interested. Please call!)



For more information on all camp programs contact:
Camp Ramah in Canada, 491 Lawrence Avenue W. Suite 400, Toronto, ON, M5M 1C7
Tel. 416-789-2193 Fax: 416-789-3970 Email: info@campramah.com

Ramah - The Camping Arm of the Conservative Judaism

Muslim leaders' comments spark outrage

CJN News Services

Muslim leaders in Vancouver and Toronto are coming under fire for statements that attack Jews, though as public outrage mounts, both leaders have backed away from their more virulent remarks.

Mohammed Elmasry, president of the Canadian Islamic Congress (CIC), and Sheikh Younus Kathrada of the Dar Al-Madinah Islamic Society are now saying that they were misunderstood.

In Toronto, the CIC issued a statement saying remarks by Elmasry on The Michael Coren Show, a talk show on the Crossroads Television System, were "regrettable and misunderstood."

Speaking on the topic of terrorism during a broadcast last week, Elmasry said Israelis over the age of 18, including civilians, are a legitimate target for Palestinian attack.

In Vancouver, meanwhile, during a lecture at a small East Vancouver mosque, Kathrada called Jews "the brothers of monkeys and swine."

Responding to questions by host Michael Coren, Elmasry said, "[Israelis] are not innocent if they are part of a population which is total population of Israel is part of the army [sic]... From 18 on, they are part of the soldiers, even if they have civilian clothes on."

Elmasry, who was born in Egypt, compared the Palestinians to French resistance fighters and Israelis to Nazi occupiers.

In a statement released after Elmasry's comments sparked widespread outrage, the CIC suggested he was not expressing his own views, but those of a segment of Palestinian society (There is nothing in the show's transcript to corroborate that.)

The CIC stated Elmasry "does not and will not condone the widely held Palestinian view that any form of armed resistance against civilians that includes suicide bombing constitutes a legitimate military operation against the Israeli occupation, and not a terrorist activity.

"Within the context of discussion on the show, Dr. Elmasry was presenting not his own views – but those of a significant segment of Palestinians under occupation," the release stated.

Ed Morgan, president of Canadian Jewish Congress, told the National Post he was surprised Elmasry was suggesting Palestinians were supporters of terrorism. He also said students at the University of Waterloo, where Elmasry teaches in the engineering department, were concerned that the CIC leader was suggesting they could be killed because of their nationality.

"Our multicultural society requires that this type of endorsement of violence against a national group be censured by Canadians of all stripes. We have confidence that fair-minded Canadians, both in and out of the Muslim community, will speak out against these views and in support of the kind of tolerance for which Canadians are known," Morgan said.

Leo Adler, spokesperson for the Simon Wiesenthal Center in Canada, said Elmasry should resign from his positions as head of the CIC, as a professor at the University of Waterloo and as an occasional columnist for the Globe and Mail.

"It isn't only that he made these statements that is particularly outrageous. Rather, like Sheik Kathrada, it is the fact that these are leaders in the Muslim community who despite residing and working and being free to practise their religion in Canada, continue to propagate non-Canadian values."

Adler goes on to question whether they "are only the tip of the iceberg. What is it that is being taught in Islamic schools and in the mosques of Canada?"

He called for an investigation into the curricula and sermons of Canada's Islamic institutions.

Several Muslim groups joined the chorus condemning Elmasry's statements. Tarek Fatah, co-founder of the Muslim Canadian Congress, said that while Palestinians have the right to resist occupation, "you can't kill civilians and we don't support suicide bombings. To say something so hateful will only reinforce negative stereotypes about Muslims."

Riad Saloojee, a spokesperson for the Council of American-Islamic Relations Canada, said civilians should not be targeted in any resistance to occupation.

Irfan Syed, who was also a guest on The Michael Coren Show, said "his comments taken at their plain meaning are unacceptable."

In Vancouver, meanwhile, police and counterterrorism officials are investigating Kathrada's mosque lectures.

Kathrada, who posted his remarks on a website, is considered a moderate in Muslim circles. In addition to his comments comparing Jews to monkeys, he urged his followers to seek martyrdom on the frontlines of jihad.

Last week, Russian officials announced they had killed a Vancouver man in an ambush in Chechnya. The man had attended the Dar al-Medinah mosque and heard Kathrada's lectures.

Even before news of the Chechnya connection was announced, 20 Vancouver Muslims had signed a letter denouncing anti-Jewish remarks at Kathrada's mosque, the National Post reported.

However, in a response to the allegations about him, Kathrada stated that he has been quoted out of context. He said any reference to Jews was always in the context of the Palestinian conflict and "any name-calling has been aimed at those perpetrating crimes and acts of terrorism and showing open aggression towards Muslims. We do not perceive the entire Jewish population as having these traits or qualities. It is not our belief that Jews are subhuman."

Later in his statement, Kathrada said that when he was referring to trees and stones and urging Muslims to kill the Jews who hide behind them, he was referring only to religious scripture and prophecy.

Gerry Cutler, legal counsel for Congress's Pacific region, said "we are truly dismayed to have learned that such language and hatred is being espoused in a mosque here in Canada. Our concern is that Kathrada's statements could incite violence against Jews."

AT ASSOCIATED,
WE'RE BUILDING JEWISH GENERATIONS.

"Associated has met the individual needs of each of our children and has provided them with a strong Jewish identity and a challenging curriculum. For us, it's been a very positive experience."

Elaine & Benny Osher with Noah, Jonah and Sarah

Knowledge. Torah. Tradition. These are the essentials that we give our children so they fulfil our promise – to ensure the future vitality of the Jewish community. And these are the cornerstones upon which Associated is providing children with the opportunity to flourish as Jews and accomplished students.

Because Pre-School is the foundation for your child's growth, we are making an unparalleled investment in our Bet Hayeled programme. In consultation with leading experts in Jewish early childhood education, we are creating an innovative and individualized programme that will combine a loving and nurturing environment with a richness of resources.

Attend one of our many information sessions and find out how your family can become a part of ours.

Associated Hebrew Schools of Toronto

INFORMATION SESSIONS
for families interested in Nursery, JK, SK and Grade One

NORTH
At the home of
Geoffrey and Stephanie Fages
Wednesday, November 3,
8-9:30 p.m.

At Kamin Education Centre
300 Atkinson Ave, Thornhill
Wednesday, November 10
9:30-11 a.m. and 8-9:30 p.m.
Sunday, November 7,
10-11:30 a.m.
(babysitting available)

SOUTH
At the home of
Benny and Elaine Osher
Tuesday, November 2, 8-9:30 p.m.

At Posluns Education Centre
18 Neptune Dr, Toronto
Thursday, November 11
9:30-11 a.m. and 8-9:30 p.m.
Sunday, November 14,
10-11:30 a.m.
(babysitting available)

TO REGISTER FOR ANY OF THESE SESSIONS, CONTACT GAIL LOVI AT 905-889-3998, EXT. 2

The Canadian Jewish news

An independent community newspaper serving as a forum for diverse viewpoints

Publisher and Proprietor:
The Canadian Jewish News, a corporation without share capital.
Head Office:
1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, Ont. M3B 3K4

Muslims, alone, must expel the intolerance

In his media-watch column, According to Reports, in this week's issue of The CJN, Paul Michaels records an excerpt of a discussion that occurred on the Oct. 19 edition of the television talk show Michael Coren Live. The exchange was between host Michael Coren and one of his guests, Mohamed Elmasry, president of the Canadian Islamic Congress.

Elmasry made the bloodcurdling assertion that everyone in Israel over the age of 18 is a valid target for terrorism. As is his manner, Coren courteously provided his guest ample opportunity to revise his statement or to recant it altogether. But Elmasry refused, which prompted the rather dry observation from Coren that "I've got to tell you, I think you've just dug a very large hole for yourself."

Another guest on the show, Irfan Syed, chair of the Muslim Lawyers Association, also attempted to extricate Elmasry from that self-excavated hole by observing that Elmasry's statement went too far. "According to our faith belief, you have to distinguish between combatants and non-combatants." But Elmasry held firm and even reiterated the view: "Everybody above 18 [in Israel] is a combatant."

Elmasry's shocking statement was widely reported in the media last weekend, as was a similarly unsettling opinion conveyed in a lecture at the Dar Al-Madinah Islamic Society in Vancouver by Sheikh Younus Kathrada.

Kathrada called Jews "the brothers of monkeys and swines" and reminded his listeners that the Prophet had urged his followers to kill the Jews. Law enforcement officials are investigating whether the sheikh's remarks should elicit legal sanction.

Spokespeople for the Jewish community sounded alarms over both sets of remarks. Ed Morgan, national president of the Canadian Jewish Congress (CJC) pointed out that Elmasry's statement was "precisely the kind of view that all right-thinking Canadians find abhorrent." Gerry Cutler, general counsel for CJC's Pacific region, worried that Kathrada's vile views "could incite violence against Jews."

But it is only other Muslims who can change attitudes within the Muslim community. Only other Muslims can discredit the Elmasrys and the Kathradas and their odious opinions and expel from within the hearts of their co-religionists the intolerance and hatred that are passed off as ideology or theology.

To be fair, some counter-voices within the Muslim community, such as that of Irfan Syed, have made themselves heard on last week's ugly musings. Tarek Fatah, a founding member of the Canadian Muslim Congress, was reported to have told the Toronto Star that "the majority of Muslims do not by any means subscribe to [Kathrada's view] and they need to speak out against it so we can get rid of the extremists among us."

Mr. Fatah spoke correctly and courageously. We hope many more Muslims share his courage.

LET OUR PEOPLE GO...

MIAs: Ron Arad, Zachary Baumel, Tzvi Feldman and Yehuda Katz.

Editorial Advisory Board: Irving Abella, Michael Brown, Sandra Brown, Donald Carr, Paul Cooper, Rabbi Elyse Goldstein, Zac Kaye, Igor Korenzvit, Lou Ronson, Jacques Sayegh, Mike Shriqui, Ron Somogyi, Pamela Medjuck Stein, Rabbi Reuven Tradburks

What about a Nobel for the JNF?

The winner of this year's Nobel Peace Prize, Dr. Wangari Maathai, the Kenyan assistant minister for the environment, has been honoured for founding the Green Belt Movement, the largest tree-planting project in Africa, which has planted some 30 million trees on that continent. She seems like a deserving recipient. But if tree-planting has now become a criterion for the award, then it should also eventually go to the Jewish National Fund (JNF, or Keren Kayemet L'Yisrael), established in 1901, which has reforested much of Israel.

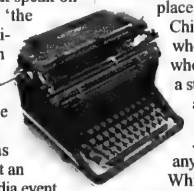
JNF activities today focus on environmental issues such as water, ecology and afforestation, community development, and research and education. As well, especially during the 1960s, Israeli experts, many of them from the JNF, helped newly independent African states develop their agricultural policies.

Henry Srebrnik
Calgary

* * *

Concordia's compromise reasonable

It seems I am at odds with most of the Jewish organizations in the country regarding Concordia University's refusal to let former Israeli prime minister Ehud Barak speak on campus ("Concordia decision called win for 'the violent ones,'" CJN, Oct. 14). No doubt the university's timid and unfair methods in dealing with violence and extreme anti-Israel propaganda on campus are costing it. So they should. The administration is, however, trying to improve the situation and to avoid violence on campus.



With this in mind, it seems to me that if, as reported, they were willing to host the speech at an off-campus but centrally located site as a Concordia event and to pay for extra costs incurred, that was a reasonable compromise. Barak could have been heard and freedom of speech would have been preserved. Hillel should have accepted such an offer. Not doing so left them open to charges of being confrontational, and just wanting to pick a fight for propaganda purposes.

This is an image that Israel and its supporters do not need.

Ken Frankel
Montreal

* * *

Arabs must be clearer about peace

If Israelis want to make peace with the Palestinians (if in fact enough Palestinians want to make peace), they must give attention not just to what they want but also to what the other side wants. However generous the Israeli proposals were to Palestinian Authority President Yasser Arafat at Camp David and Taba ("Dennis Ross and the myths of Oslo," CJN, Oct. 14), they weren't enough to please the two constituencies he has to appease.

Arafat (or his substitute) must please Muslims (like the Saudis) regarding holy places, and he must please Palestinian refugees in camps about their future. Without this, he can't sign a deal (if, in fact, he or another leader actually wants to).

Considering that most of the risk for peace is on the Israeli side, if Arabs want peace, they are going to have to be clearer about it.

Sam Einhorn
Montreal

* * *

Don't forget synagogues

In the article "High Tuition makes public schools more attractive" (CJN, Oct. 14), Sari Zion spoke of what Jewish day schools offer and what her family does at home in terms of celebrating and practising Judaism. Nowhere does she mention being a part of a synagogue community. Day schools provide children with a Jewish education and a community of peers. However, active participation in a synagogue not only provides a lifetime community, it allows families to worship, celebrate and learn together.

School is the world of children and the Jewish learning in a day school is geared to the age of the students. Synagogues can and should be a world of families. A synagogue community can provide a place to worship together as well as a place to learn about Judaism for parents as well as children. A day school is a place to learn. A synagogue is where Judaism is practised. Day school education is not the only place where children can receive a Jewish education. Children who attend good congregational programs, who live in homes where Judaism is practised and who are involved in their congregations also have a strong Jewish identity and a commitment to Israel and to the Jewish people. Children who spend summers at a Jewish camp have a wealth of Jewish experiences that cannot be duplicated anywhere else.

While I recognize that people choose day schools for a wide variety of reasons and that day school tuition can be a huge financial sacrifice for many families, there needs to be a recognition that there are many places in the Jewish community that can foster the values and learning parents want for their children.

A parent once said to me that day school is a financial sacrifice, while congregational religious school requires a sacrifice of time, since classes are held weekends and late afternoons and early evening.

Jewish education cannot and should not take place in a vacuum. It is only one part of Jewish learning and living.

Karen L. Goodis
Toronto

* * *

Rightists and Leftists

In your article "Outgoing Betar-Tagar president 'can't sit back'" (CJN, Oct. 14), the reporter wrote the following: "A second-generation member of the right-wing Zionist group Betar, the youth wing of Herut-Likud, Wolle stepped down this summer after a total of 16 years."

Do you refer to socialist Israelis as "left-wing Zionists"? I don't think so!

Oswald Czolgosz
Vancouver

The Canadian Jewish News reserves the right to refuse advertising that in its opinion is misleading, in poor taste or incompatible with the advertising policies of the newspaper. Acceptance of advertising does not imply endorsement by The Canadian Jewish News. The CJN makes no representation as to the kashruth of food products in advertisements.

Letters are welcome if they are brief, in English or French, typewritten with lines double spaced, and of interest to our reading public. Readers are cautioned not to make sweeping claims against persons or institutions which they cannot verify, as libel laws are very stringent. We reserve the right to edit and condense letters, which must bear the sender's address, phone number and both handwritten and typed signatures. Letters sent by e-mail must also include the sender's municipal address.

How Jacques Derrida influenced Jewish studies

By RABBI DAVID SEIDENBERG

Jacques Derrida, the founder of the school of philosophy known as deconstructionism, died Oct. 8 in Paris, at the age of 74. He will be remembered as one of the most important philosophers and Jewish thinkers of the past century.

Derrida's impact not only reached the fields of philosophy and literary theory, it also opened the door for new blood and fresh ideas in Jewish studies.

Derrida's academic followers in the United States were responsible for popularizing the study of midrash and the use of midrashic ideas to comment on all varieties of literature. His work opened the door for rabbinic texts and methods to become popular in secular academia, beyond Jewish studies departments.

Though Derrida never had an impact on popular Jewish culture in the United States, he had a profound influence on an important group of Jewish studies scholars, including Edith Wyschograd, Elliot Wolfson and Daniel Boyarin, along with others who applied his questions to Jewish texts and Jewish problems.

Derrida's personal history was interwoven with the complex history of the French Jewish community. Raised in a Sephardi Jewish family in Algeria during the French colonial period, he was expelled from school when the Vichy government barred Jews from the classroom.

> He was ambivalent about how significant his Jewishness was to his work

His family relocated to France in 1949, and he taught at the Sorbonne and the École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales in Paris, but he was displaced from what he felt to be his home.

As a leading French intellectual who was both inside and outside the Jewish community, inside and outside Europe, inside and outside the philosophical academy, Derrida's life embodied some of the contradictions and paradoxes of being Jewish in modern Europe.

He was ambivalent about how significant his Jewishness was to his work. Hélène Cixous, the French feminist philosopher who also grew up in an Algerian Jewish family, has explored this ambivalence in a book titled Portrait of Jacques Derrida as a Young Jewish Saint.

Derrida was closely associated with leading Jewish thinkers and writers in France, working in dialogue with Emmanuel Levinas, the revolutionary moral philosopher who wrote volumes of essays on the Talmud, and passionately advocating Edmond Jabes, whose novels about the Holocaust were filled with the maxims of fictitious rebbes.

Derrida even signed one of his essays "Reb Derrisa" – meaning, perhaps, "the rabbi who laughs" – reminding his readers both of his Jewish background and of his connection to Jabes' characters.

Derrida's philosophy was part of the postwar zeitgeist that rejected modernism and structuralism, or, more simply, that rejected the idea of real progress and the existence of real identities.

Derrida famously said, "There is nothing outside the text," and his writings were full of the kind of language play and neologisms that allow one to reinterpret words without end.

Though Derrida's work was extraordinarily difficult to read, the practice of deconstruction, which uses tools of interpretation to read "against the grain" of a text, can be explained as a method for showing that any text is "undecidable" and that every act of writing will create meanings diametrically opposed to the author's intention.

One of the important philosophical terms that Derrida coined was "logocentrism," referring to Plato's belief that the spoken word is worth more than the written word. This idea, which influenced all of western philosophy, claimed that the "presence" of the speaker in the "logos" or "word" was filled with special meaning, while the written word was devalued by the author's "absence."

In Christian thought, the same idea was used to devalue Judaism: the presence of the "logos" was opposed to the rabbis' passion for the letter of the written word. In essay after essay, Derrida showed that this hierarchy of speaking over writing was self-contradictory and even unjust.

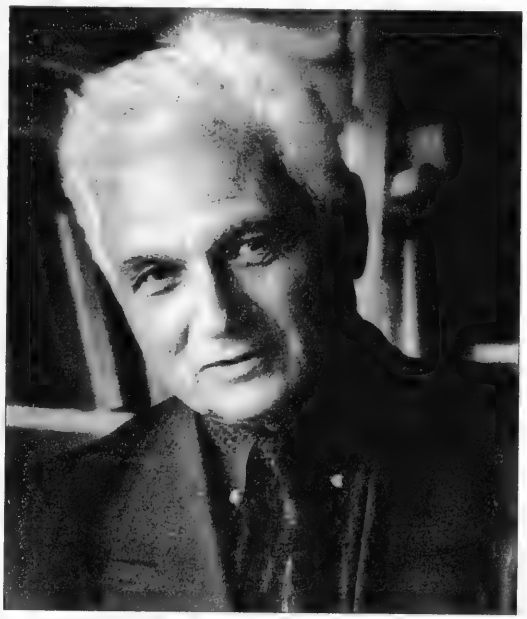
Derrida's writings often took the form of commentaries, and he spoke about writing "in the margins of philosophy," as one of his book titles proclaimed. By validating the reader over the writer and the unintended over the intended meaning, Derrida unleashed a powerful movement to read texts subversively, independent of their explicit message.

Responding to his work, some promoters of Derrida in America, including Geoffrey Hartman of Yale University and Susan Handelman, formerly of the University of Maryland and now at Bar-Ilan University in Israel, claimed that deconstruction represented the emergence of a new kind of "secular midrash," a kind of Jewish or rabbinic method within western and Greek-influenced thought.

The idea that everything was textual and that all possible contradictory meanings could be contained within any text is remarkably parallel to the way the rabbis approached Torah, and this parallel was intoxicating for many Jewish scholars.

However, for Derrida, God, like the author of any text, was an absence, not a presence that could back up a text's meaning.

Jewish literary scholars such as Harold Bloom, who linked criticism with Kabbalah, embraced deconstruction, while Jewish Studies scholars often resented the encroachment of Derrida's surrogates into their domain.



Jacques Derrida

Derrida never fully explored Jewish texts in the way someone like Levinas did in his "talmudic readings," but he did write about biblical and Jewish motifs on numerous occasions.

In some academic seminars, Derrida focused exclusively on Jewish texts and themes. In one, he explored a letter from Gershom Scholem to Franz Rosenzweig about the "apocalyptic abyss" that was created by the resurrection of spoken Hebrew in Israel. In another, he discussed Spinoza's cryptic statement that the practice of circumcision would allow the Jewish people to resurrect their kingdom.

> He wrote about biblical and Jewish motifs on numerous occasions

Both texts were rife with the kinds of complexities Derrida loved to pick apart and analyze, but they also gave him reason to explore the contradictions of nationalism and the poignant struggles that confront the Jewish people today.

In the latter part of his career, Derrida deepened his exploration of biblical themes, writing books on the binding of Isaac – The Gift of Death, and on Abraham's hospitality and the nature of justice – Of Hospitality.

Derrida's colleagues brought him to Yale in the 1970s, and he continued to teach in the United States, most recently at the University of California at Irvine. Last year, Derrida participated in a number of forums on deconstruction and religion at different campuses, about faith, prayer, justice and God.

Elliot Wolfson of New York University wrote that, for Derrida, "the Jew embodies the impossible, which he came to understand as prayer, or better, the prayer for the possibility of praying, in his own words 'the prayer before the prayer, the prayer for the prayer.'"

Derrida's work embraced what some saw as moral nihilism and others saw as intellectual liberation. He himself became the object of intense controversy after the wartime fascist sympathies of one of his close collaborators, Paul DeMan, were revealed in the same year that Derrida published a book about his philosophical father Martin Heidegger that discussed the meaning of Heidegger's Nazism.

DeMan, who taught at Yale for many decades, had written for a pro-fascist paper in occupied Belgium. When Derrida defended DeMan's integrity while only thinly critiquing his wartime writing, critics from both conservative political circles and Jewish studies departments saw this as proof that deconstructionism was incapable of taking a moral stand.

Yet Derrida always maintained that deconstruction was inherently political and was focused on taking responsibility. Even while denying the possibility of knowing truth, Derrida was a sharp advocate for human rights and freedoms.

As early as 1969, in his first public talk in the United States, he spoke about the Vietnam War, and he continued to take public stands throughout his career on issues like apartheid, immigrant rights and the death penalty.

Later in his life, Derrida questioned Israel's occupation of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, while at the same time upbraiding Palestinian supporters for "anti-Jewish tendencies."

Derrida's work will continue to affect Jewish studies and Jewish philosophy, even when the name of "deconstruction" is transformed from the hot academic item it once was to an object of historical study. May his remembrance be a source of blessing.

Rabbi David Seidenberg, who studied with Jacques Derrida in the summer of 1986, has a doctorate in ecology and Kabbalah. He teaches in California and elsewhere in North America.

Remembering and keeping

A friend once told me that he became an observant Jew when he moved from Exodus to Deuteronomy. The Exodus version of the Ten Commandments bids us to "remember" the Sabbath day. Deuteronomy tells us to "keep" it. "For many years," he said, "I only remembered Shabbat. Now, I keep it."

Rabbi Dow Marmur in Toronto

Though tradition bids us to do both, many more Jews remember than keep. Though those who only remember may not be accepted by the observant, they are not assimilationists as long as they remain committed to the preservation of our Jewish heritage.

Think of the renewed interest in Yiddish. Few Ashkenazi Jews speak Yiddish nowadays, but many want to remember it. Because much of Jewish education is done in synagogues, where the stress is on keeping more than remembering, the cultural aspects of Judaism, such as Yiddish, are often neglected.

In the few cases where that is not so, the response is impressive. Thus the weekly Yiddish class that Rabbi Edward Goldfarb conducts at Holy Blossom Temple in Toronto has a large following. Though participants will not end up speaking Yiddish, and their children are not likely to learn it, their contact with Yiddish culture enriches their lives and strengthens their Jewish consciousness.

But it is the community at large, not individual synagogues, that has the resources to preserve secular Jewish culture – Yiddish and everything else. The huge public interest in the Ashkenaz Festival in Toronto this past September testifies to the need. The support of UJA Federation of Greater Toronto and individual donors should be applauded. It was money well spent.

I would like to think that I know many "involved" Jews in Toronto. Yet I recognized very few faces at the festival. I surmise that most of those who attended remember more than they keep, and so they are out of the shul loop.

This was even more evident at the marvellous exhibition of photographs from pre-World War II Poland, sponsored by the Polish-Jewish Heritage Foundation of Canada and also held in Toronto this past September. Jews and non-Jews came in considerable numbers to pay homage and to remember. With better publicity (through more funding), even more visitors would have come.

The Toronto Jewish Film Festival also appeals to Jews who normally don't identify with synagogues, thus fulfilling an important function.

The organized Jewish community must provide for these and other events in an effort to preserve memory. It would be cultural suicide to divorce ourselves from the rich heritage of the Diaspora – Ashkenazi and Sephardi – that is no more.

When people remember, they are more likely to keep. The journey that my friend made from Exodus to Deuteronomy has been made by many others.

Getting the right tools for a tough job

Simon Fraser University has become known to many in the Jewish community as a hot spot of anti-Israel sentiment and activity.

During my first two years here, I often felt overwhelmed and isolated because of the consistent and multi-faceted campaign against the legitimacy and rights of the Jewish state.

Jessica Apter in Vancouver

In 2003, the Simon Fraser Student Society passed a resolution calling for "the immediate end to the illegal U.S.-backed Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip, the right of return for all Palestinians to their homes, and an end to Israeli apartheid." The student newspaper, The Peak, was full of letters to the editor, opinions columns and special features attacking Israel and its policies. History classrooms were used as a forum for pro-Palestinian teaching assistants. Student clubs held events such as film festivals, lectures equating Zionism with apartheid, and the annual Week Against War and Occupation.

I was constantly frustrated – with the anti-Israel activists for spreading hateful propaganda, with other pro-Israel Jewish students and staff who would not speak up, and with myself for not knowing how to make people see the other side of the story.

During Israel Week, I was personally confronted by students and faculty members who were angry at me for celebrating Israel's accomplishments. Their accusations showed clear misunderstandings of the issues and misrepresentations of the truth, and their refusals to consider any of my arguments left me helpless. I knew that Israel was the only democracy in the Middle East and that my fellow students were wrong in denying it the right to exist and defend itself, but simply making these assertions didn't get me anywhere.

My trip to Israel this past summer changed that.

I participated in Hasbara Fellowships, a two-week Israel activism and leadership training program based in Jerusalem and run by Aish HaTorah in partnership with National Jewish Campus Life and Canada Israel Experience.

My experiences in Israel, both in the program and out on my own, demonstrated to me the truth of the assertions I had been making.

As I danced with 10,000 people to the music of Infected Mushroom, a world-famous Israeli trance duo, at the beer festival on the beach in Tel Aviv – with all fears of terrorism put aside for a night – I lived the Israeli commitment to freedom.

I also witnessed the impact of terrorism when our bus drove past the disco where I celebrated my bat mitzvah nine years ago that was since hit by a fatal suicide bombing.

More immediately, I felt the fear of daily life in Israel when I travelled from Tel Aviv to Eilat by bus for some post-Hasbara relaxation.

The maps I've distributed on campus comparing Israel's size to that of Vancouver Island could never be as eye-opening as the view of Tel Aviv from a lookout on the edge of the West Bank, or the image in my binoculars as I looked across the border in the north at an outpost marked by a yellow Hezbollah flag and saw a man looking back at me. No map can give a true understanding of Israel's proximity to its enemies.

Meetings organized by the Hasbara Fellowships with famous figures from across the political spectrum – including former prime minister Shimon Peres, Ra'anan Gissin (advisor to Prime Minister Ariel Sharon,) Ya'al Dayan (Moshe Dayan's daughter) – and journalists such as Khaled Abu Toameh, an Arab Israeli, and Caroline Glick, both of the Jerusalem Post, gave us firsthand interactions with Israel's diverse and open media and political systems.

Similarly, anecdotes from my long conversation with the Arab owner of an Internet café in Jerusalem about rock music and his experiences as a student at the University of Western Ontario are a perfect way to show my Canadian friends that Arab Israelis live and work among Jews, and that Arabs and Jews even tend to get along in most cases, causing them to think twice about their assumptions about apartheid in Israel.

Make no mistake – I did not see a utopian Israel or one whose problems have a simple solution – and that's not the Israel I want to portray to other students. But I was given the opportunity to feel the intense spirit of our country, see its diversity and experience its challenges, and those are the most valuable memories I can keep and share.

For more information or to apply for a Hasbara Fellowship, visit www.israelactivism.com.

Great city, shame about the bagels

Montreal bagels are inferior – more like a pretzel than a bagel. While an institution to Montrealers, they have yet to win over many of us who come from farther west along the 401.

The city of Montreal, on the other hand, has definitely left me enchanted.

Joanna Grossman in Halifax

I spent a recent weekend in Montreal checking out McGill University, and the whirlwind visit allowed me to get a glimpse of what the city has to offer.

There is something cool about being surrounded by French, even if it is of the Québécois variety. As well, it's amazing to see the strength of the Jewish community in Montreal, particularly after four years in Halifax. You're just as likely to see people with kippot in the trendy bars along St. Laurent as you are at Chez Benny, which has the best falafel and shwarma on this side of the Atlantic. Compared to Toronto, where Jews are not quite as visible, it's nice to see the diversity and visible presence of Montreal's young Jewish community.

At shul in Dollard-des-Ormeaux, Shabbat services were infused with a powerful sense of the strength and continuity of Montreal's Jewish community, as four people celebrated the anniversary of their bar mitzvahs. Whether it was four years later or 40, the men stood on the bimah to mark this significant milestone of their Jewish lives.

Ultimately, for me, the real reason Montreal comes out on top in a comparison with Toronto has nothing to do with kippot or shul and everything to do with shopping.

I lived in Toronto for 18 years, but it only took one weekend in Montreal to realize that it's far superior when it comes to consumer indulgences. I have fallen in love with Simons, and while my weekend visit did not enable me to explore all of Montreal's shopping potential, what I saw was more than enough to tip the scales in the city's favour.

The stated purpose for my weekend jaunt to Montreal was to check out McGill's law school, one of a number that I am applying to. Like my general Montreal experience, my time on McGill's campus was wonderful. The law school library is beautiful, and after sitting in on a class, I am even more nervous about my application, as McGill seems like the ideal place to pursue my legal education.

Boston, New York, Washington, Toronto and Montreal – I may end up in any one of these great North American cities. So why does Montreal in particular hold more sway than, say, Toronto?

It is often said that Montreal's "international flavour" distinguishes it from other cities on this continent, and while this is undoubtedly true, there is so much more about Montreal that makes it such an enticing city.

My time in Halifax has definitely shown me that I am a big city girl at heart. Just walking around Montreal, where everyone is dressed to the nines, you can feel a different aura. While a small city like Halifax offers a friendly environment, I am still the type of person who craves access to ethnic foods at all hours of the day and night.

Perhaps it is simply that Montreal has the requisite mystery and mystique to attract any new visitor. But native Montrealers – both those who live in the city and those who have moved away – say that Montreal is unparalleled as far as cities go, and most wouldn't trade it for all the Torontos and Vancouvers in the world.

For me, a thriving Jewish community and a law school with a challenging program and an international reputation offer a promising combination. I don't think I will ever get used to the bagels, but perhaps the endless supply of kosher shwarma will more than make up for it.

The Kirshner File

Bush and Kerry vie for Jewish vote

George W. Bush or John Kerry? Next week, millions of Americans will decide whether they want Bush, the Republican incumbent, or Kerry, the Democratic challenger, as their president. Some voters, of course, will vote for neither of the above and cast their ballots for Ralph Nader, the independent candidate of Arab origin who siphoned away votes from Al Gore in the tightly contested 2000 election.

Sheldon Kirshner in Toronto

American Jews have traditionally voted for Democrats, but they have also cast their lot with Republicans. Bush won 19 per cent of the Jewish vote four years ago, and in 1980 and 1984, Ronald Reagan's share was 39 per cent and 31 per cent, respectively.

A study released by the National Jewish Democratic Council in August concluded that Kerry will win 75 per cent of the Jewish vote come Nov. 2, while Bush will pick up 22 per cent and Nader the rest. Republican strategists claim that these findings are false and that, as a result of the United States' war against terrorism, the ongoing war in Iraq, the breakdown of the Oslo peace process and the eruption of the Palestinian uprising, a much greater proportion of Jews will vote for Bush.

Although Jewish Americans are a small minority, constituting only about two per cent of the population, they are an important group. In the main, they live in the so-called battleground states – New York, California, Florida, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Massachusetts, New Jersey – that could easily tip the election. And by virtue of the fact that they turn out in big numbers on election day, they wield an undeniable influence.

The typical Jewish voter is concerned about many issues, from Israel and Iraq to the economy and abortion rights. But it is probably fair to say that Israel is among their key concerns, something that Bush and Kerry understand and have catered to in their campaigns. Both candidates are unequivocally pro-Israel, so much so that their positions are virtually identical. "There is no difference between George Bush and John Kerry when it comes to a strong U.S.-Israel alliance," commented Ann Lewis, a communications director in former president Bill Clinton's administration and now an advisor to Kerry.

An examination of their records and pronouncements confirms her appraisal.

Bush – a born-again Christian who made his first and only visit to Israel in the late 1990s when he was governor of Texas – has been remarkably supportive of Israel, though, like his predecessors, he has been critical of Israel's settlement policy and of its incursions into the Palestinian autonomous areas in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

In a major address to the American Israel Public Affairs Committee in Washington, D.C. this past May, Bush said Israel has a right to self-defence. "The Israeli people have always had enemies at their borders and terrorists close at hand. Again and again, Israel has defended itself with skill and heroism."

Bush, who has described Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon as "a man of peace," has drawn parallels between Israel's battle against terrorism and the wars the United States is currently waging in Afghanistan and Iraq. Bush is strongly committed to the security of Israel as a Jewish and democratic state and Israel's qualitative military edge over the Arabs. Last month, amid the backdrop of implicit Israeli threats to bomb Iran's nuclear facilities, the United States agreed to sell Israel 5,000 bunker-busting smart bombs.

On June 24, 2002, in a landmark speech, Bush unveiled a plan to settle Israel's conflict with the Palestinians. He called for a Palestinian state and a new Palestinian leadership untainted by terrorism and corruption. In this spirit, he has boycotted the president of the Palestinian Authority, Yasser Arafat, and has never invited him to Washington. Bush has said that an Israeli withdrawal from the territories should be preceded by a Palestinian crackdown on terrorism. He has also urged Israel to halt all new settlement activity in the West Bank and Gaza.

Bush supports the road map to peace, which was officially unveiled on April 30, 2003. Co-sponsored by the United Nations, the European Union and Russia, it envisages a two-state solution by 2005.

Bush regards Sharon's proposal to pull out of Gaza unilaterally as the best hope of reviving the moribund road map.

Last April, Bush tacitly recognized Israel's claim to several settlement blocs in the West Bank, populated by the vast majority of Jewish settlers. As he put it: "In light of new realities on the ground, including already existing major Israeli population centres, it is unrealistic to expect that the outcome of final status negotiations will be a full and complete return to the armistice lines of 1949."

In contradictory statements since then, Bush has dropped his insistence on a total Israeli settlement freeze while reiterating his preference for a freeze and the dismantlement of "unauthorized outposts."

Bush initially opposed Israel's separation fence snaking through the West Bank on the grounds that its intrusive route would disrupt the lives of Palestinians. But in a letter to Sharon, Bush wrote: "The barrier… should be a security rather than a political barrier, should be temporary rather than permanent, and therefore not prejudice any final status issues including final borders, and its route should take into account, consistent with security needs, its impact on Palestinians…"

George W. Bush

During the 2000 campaign, Bush promised to move the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv to Jerusalem, but he has failed to do so.

Having won accolades by denouncing anti-Semitism, Bush has pleased Israel by pressuring Iran to stop its nuclear program and by imposing economic sanctions on Syria.

Several months ago, in a direct appeal to the Jewish community, the Republicans issued a glossy 26-page booklet in which Bush highlighted his good relations with Jews and Israel. Titled President George W. Bush – A Friend of the American Jewish Community, the booklet stated, "Today, Jews in America know they have a steadfast friend and defender in the Oval Office."

John Kerry

Some Jews, however, maintain that Bush may not be good for Israel in the long run. In a reference to Bush's support of settlement blocs in the West Bank, Americans for Peace Now observed: "Bush has given a green light for settlement growth to an Israeli leader with a reputation for never stopping on red. [By] providing official American sanction of Sharon's expansionist dreams, the president is destroying the prospects for realizing his own vision of a two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict…" And Dennis Ross, the former U.S. envoy to the Mideast, has accused the Bush administration of having effectively abandoned efforts to defuse the Arab-Israeli dispute.

Kerry – whose paternal grandparents from the Austrian empire were Jewish converts to Christianity – has made a point of supporting Israel. In a paper, John Kerry: Strengthening Israel's Security and Bolstering the U.S. Israel Special Relationship, he backed Sharon's Gaza disengagement scheme, recognized Israel's hold on certain West Bank settlement blocs and, like Bush, called for the resettlement of Palestinian refugees in a Palestinian state. He does not believe that Israel should return to the pre-1967 borders and thinks Israel has a right to attack terrorist organizations such as Hamas and Islamic Jihad.

Kerry, who supported Israel's 2002 reoccupation of Palestinian autonomous areas in Operation Defensive Shield, wants to preserve Israel's military superiority. He has also called on the United Nations to adopt a more balanced approach, and has dismissed Arafat as "a failed leader and unfit partner for peace."

Last autumn, he criticized the route of the separation fence as counter-productive, but lately, he has thrown his support behind it. Speaking to the Anti-Defamation League, he promised he would never force Israel to make concessions that "cost or compromise" its security. This July, he phoned Sharon to assure him of his unalterable commitment to Israel's security.

Kerry regards the road map as an acceptable mechanism to reinvigorate the peace process. But in a jab at Bush, he believes that the United States should remain actively engaged in promoting it.

As a U.S. senator, he has long advocated moving the American Embassy to Jerusalem. He co-sponsored a bill imposing sanctions on Syria and declared that "a nuclear-armed Iran is unacceptable."

Last December, he came under fire for suggesting that he might appoint former U.S. president Jimmy Carter, viewed by right-wing Jews as anti-Israel, as a special envoy to the Mideast. Kerry subsequently recanted.

Sharon has made no secret of his preference for Bush, and during one of his last visits to Washington, he snubbed Kerry, declining to meet him.

The snub did not go unnoticed, but it is unlikely to affect Kerry's relations with Israel should he defeat Bush.

10 DAYS
ONLY
MARTIN DANIEL INTERIORS
WAREHOUSE CLEARANCE SALE
Our BIGGEST Clearance Sale Event!
SALE STARTS THURSDAY NOVEMBER 4
Incredible prices in our warehouse and our showroom
It's not just a SALE... it has become an event
MARTIN DANIEL INTERIORS
FURNISHINGS FROM ITALY
www.martindanielinteriors.com
2663 Steeles Ave West (east of Keele) 416.667.0080

HÔTEL DU FORT MONTRÉAL

Truly a rare find

- 4 star property with 5 star service
- Downtown Montreal
- Newly renovated boutique hotel

RESERVE 1 800 565-6333 - 514-938-8333
1390 rue du Fort, Montréal (Qué.) H3H 2K7 www.hoteldufort.com • reserve@hoteldufort.com

BISTRO GRANDE
COR
Fine Kosher Dining

Join us for an elegant dining experience in a warm and relaxed atmosphere

Experience the Taste Of Bistro and enjoy a bountiful selection of the freshest fish, pizzas from our wood burning oven, delectable vegetarian dishes and pastas with a mediterranean flair, served by a knowledgeable wait staff and an artistic and talented culinary team.

PARTY AT BISTRO!!
SATURDAY NIGHT BOOKINGS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
STARTING NOVEMBER 1ST

• Private Dining Facility for your Special Occasion or Lunch Meeting •
• Sunday Brunch • Customized Catering •

For Reservations Please Call: 416-782-3302
Located in the Heart of Forest Hill at 1000 Eglinton Ave. W., Toronto

Intermediate Level Course | Fall 2004

GUIDE TO THE PERPLEXED with Professor Jim Diamond,
University of Waterloo

Can we reconcile the biblical and rabbinic traditions with reason? Maimonides thought so. Explore how in his Guide to the Perplexed. Come and learn innovative strategies for reading Judaism's foundational texts in a new light.

Tuesdays, 7:30 - 9:30 p.m.
November 2 - November 23
adults $70; students $50
To register: 416-485-7007x0

Sponsored by the Joseph Lebovic Fund

KOLEL
The Adult Centre for Liberal Jewish Learning
151 Eglinton Ave. W., Toronto, ON M4R 1A6
www.kolel.org learn@kolel.org

Greater Toronto Area

Exhibition highlights Jewish life in Berlin

By SHELDON KIRSHNER
Staff Reporter

Berlin, the hub of German Jewry before the Adolf Hitler interregnum, has regained its status in post-Nazi Germany.

As well as having the largest concentration of Jews in reunited Germany, Berlin has historic synagogues and houses important Jewish organizations and the country's newest Jewish museum.

The capital of Germany, Berlin is the subject of an interesting photographic-and-text exhibition currently being held at the Koffler Centre and scheduled to be moved to the Miles Nadal JCC shortly.

Presented by the Goethe-Institut, "Contemporary Jewish Life in Berlin" ends its run at the Koffler Centre on Nov. 4. On Nov. 7, the venue will shift to the JCC, and there it will run until Dec. 6.

The story of modern Jewish Berlin is told through pictures and words on 11 separate panels.

It begins with the New Synagogue, an imposing Moorish-style structure that was vandalized and used as a storage shed by the Nazis, bombed by Allied aircraft in 1943 and refurbished in the late 1980s and '90s by the German government.

Reopened in 1995 as the Centrum Judaicum, the New Synagogue, in eastern Berlin, is now a cultural, educational and administrative centre.

The Rykerstrasse shul, finished in 1904, was confiscated by the Nazis in 1940 and renovated in the '50s to serve the needs of East Berlin's small Jewish community. Today it is said to be Germany's largest synagogue.

The Jewish Community Centre on Fasanenstrasse, built on the site of a synagogue razed by the Nazis on Kristallnacht in November 1938, is a hive of activity yet again. It is known for its adult education programs and its kosher restaurant, one of the few in the city.

The community has 12,000 affiliated members, 65 per cent of whom were born in the former Soviet Union and 23 per cent of whom are of German origin. Some of them read Jewish Berlin, a magazine that was founded in 1998 and supposedly reflects the community's diversity.

Established in 1950 as an umbrella body, the Central Council of Jews in Germany is based in Berlin. There are photographs of such past presidents as Heinz Galinski and Ignatz Bubis, as well as a photograph of the current president, Paul Spiegel.

Conspicuously missing is a photo of Werner Nachman, who resigned under the weight of a financial scandal.

The Jewish Cultural Association, which was founded in the eastern half of Berlin after the fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989, is described as a forum for the discussion of the "new" German-Jewish identity, whatever that means.

There are references to two fairly new schools – the Jewish Secondary School, which was originally founded by the philosopher Moses Mendelssohn, and the Heinz Galinski elementary school, which was dedicated ion 1995.

There is also a passing reference to the former Jewish orphanage in Berlin-Pankow, which was closed in 1940, subsequently requisitioned by the Red Army and then converted into an embassy. The building has since been restored.

Part of one panel is devoted to the famous 1943 Rosenstrasse incident, during which a group of loyal and courageous German women saved their Jewish husbands from the certainty of deportation to death camps in Poland.

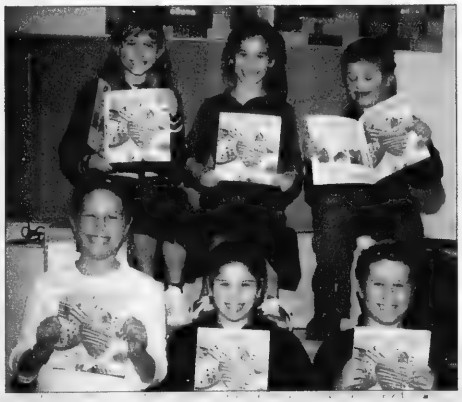
The rest of the panels deal with the Weisensee cemetery, perhaps the biggest Jewish cemetery in Germany; the memorial plaque in honour of Rabbi Regina Jonas, who was ordained in 1935 and killed in Auschwitz in 1944; the much-talked about Memorial to Murdered Jews, which is due to open soon; and the Jewish Museum, which was designed by Daniel Libeskind and inaugurated in September 2001.

"Contemporary Jewish Life in Berlin," though rather selective and cursory, is a relatively good introduction to a topic that Hitler and his cohorts tried but failed to erase from the face of the earth.

KOSHER COOKBOOK:

Five thousand copies of Gatherings recently arrived at Netivot HaTorah Day School. The widely acclaimed creative kosher cookbook, now in its second printing, has already raised over $120,000 for the school. Pictured, from left, front, Arielle Brenman, Yona Magence, Shimmy Jesin; (Back) Serena Kay, Debra Vatenmakher, Yaakov Green.

[Rebecca Ansel photo]



Seen at a planning meeting of the 50th anniversary reunion of the 1954 Harbord Collegiate Institute graduating class are, back row from left, Gloria (Pagurek) Pollock, Shirley (Eisen) Glazier, Anita (Greenwood) Tyber, Pearlie (Friedberg) Hermant and Alan Green. Front row from left, Joseph Flicht, Bernard Crystal, Norman Grill and Fred Gold.

Harbord class to hold 50th anniversary reunion

By CYNTHIA GASNER
Special to The CJN

The 1954 graduating class of Harbord Collegiate Institute – once the the jumping-off point for many Jewish students in Toronto – will hold a 50th anniversary reunion dinner on Nov. 4 at the Richmond Hill Country Club.

Charlotte (Chucky Berger) Haber, who heads the event's organizing committee, told The CJN that "the best part" has been the planning.

"We spent so much time laughing and recalling old times that it was like pulling teeth to get them to concentrate on what had to be done. Luckily, three of the people on our committee [Al Green, Bernie Crystal and Joe Flicht] are dentists, so pulling teeth was right up their alley."

Haber said more than 80 people have confirmed they will be attending, "and we expect some others will join us in the next short while."

Using the Internet and other tools, the organizing committee has located most of the class of '54.

"Most still reside in the Toronto area, but many are in other parts of Ontario, some in the United States and some in Israel," Haber said.

"We located Norman Austin, who is a retired professor of classics who lives in Fort Lauderdale [Fla.]. Walter Yewchuk [of nearby Margate, Fla.] and Norman were unaware that they were living around the corner from each other, and they have arranged a meeting over coffee to discuss old times."

The camaraderie of the class of '54 has also extended as far as Israel.

"We provided Suri [Edell] Greenberg in Eilat with the addresses of three other Israelis from our class – Ruth [Eisenberg] Penciner of Ramat Hasharon, Charles Bergson of Jerusalem and Stanley Goldstein, who lives on Kibbutz Kissufim. They and Betty [Jacober] Kruger, who is wintering in Jerusalem, have planned their own mini-reunion in Jerusalem."

Camaraderie extends as far as Israel

Along with exchanging memories, the Nov. 4 evening will feature a slide presentation and humorous short addresses about the graduates' years at Harbord.

Pearlie (Friedberg) Hermant, a member of the organizing committee, told The CJN about some memorable moments when she was at Harbord, such as a student strike that erupted after the principal decided the speeches for student council elections one year were offensive, and he cancelled the campaign.

After the newspapers were called, he reversed his decision.

Also memorable, she said, was a bookie operation that bet on races at Woodbine Racetrack. When the newspapers picked up the story, the gambling was brought to a halt.

Other members of the 50th reunion organizing committee are Norman Grill, Gloria (Pagurek) Pollock, Anita (Greenwood) Tyber, Shirley (Eisen) Glazier, Fred Gold, and Judy (Jacubovich) Schacter.

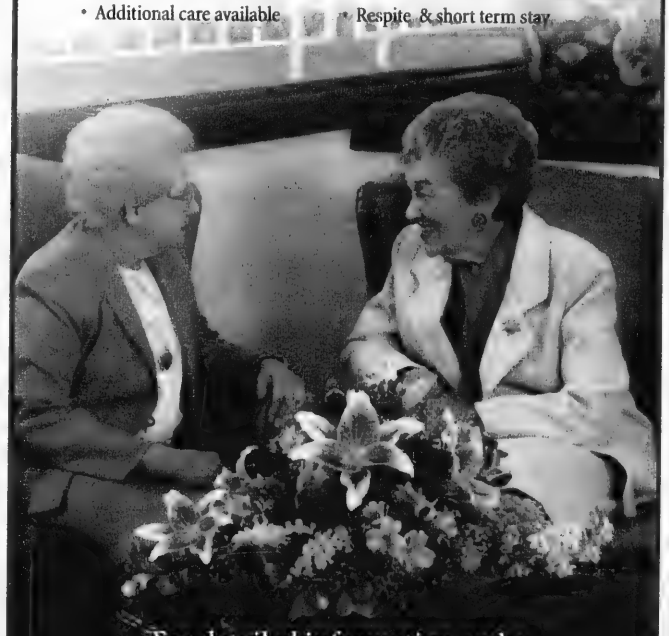
ORCA

PINE VILLA

Retirement Living
that is right for you

In the heart of Toronto's Jewish community, Pine Villa is surrounded by wonderful shops & boutiques, banks and convenient transit. At Pine Villa you will discover quality services and amenities for the independent senior in a gracious and caring environment. Our trained staff cater to meet your needs.

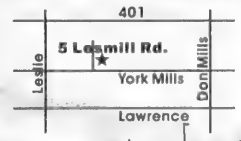
- Fine Jewish cuisine
- 24 Hour supervised care
- Daily activities, live entertainment and outings
- Nurse call bell in each suite
- Additional care available
- Spacious newly renovated suites
- Housekeeping, linen and laundry services
- Physiotherapy services
- Married couple accommodation
- Respite & short term stay



For detailed information and a personal tour call us or visit our website today!

(416) 787-5626
1035 Eglinton Avenue West Toronto
www.retirementresidences.com

Bayview
Custom Care Cleaners
416-444-9571 416-844-8111



Why Try Bayview Cleaners?
- Friendly Family Operations
- All Work Done on the Premises
- Environment Friendly Processes
- Free Pickup & Delivery
- Satisfaction Guarantee(It's ready, It's right or It's FREE.)
- Free Cleaning of your Tallis, All Year Round
- Free Trial Cleaning up to $10 by bringing this Ad. in

• Toronto's Most Popular Rabbi-Cantor • Multi Talented
• Magnificent Operatic-Lyric Tenor Voice • Dynamic Speaker

RABBI-CANTOR MARSHALL E. REISS

Tel: 905-762-9838
or 416-573-2549

All Who Are In Attendance, Will Greatly Appreciate And Enjoy The Outstanding Talent, Vocal Versatility, And Art Of Rabbi-Cantor Marshall Reiss

(1) YES! You Can Have Your Wedding, Bar Or Bat Mitzvah, Baby Naming, Redemption Of The First Born, Engagement And Wedding Anniversary Ceremony And Dinner Part At Any Banquet Hall - Restaurant - Hotel - Party Room - Or Private House Or Apt.

(2) YES! With 30 Years Of Personalized, Superb, Efficient Service To Jewish Families, I Will Help You Plan Your Simcha - Party

(3) YES! Phone The Most Popular Dynamic - Eloquent Speaking "Rabbi" And Magnificent - Beautiful Opera Tenor Voice "Cantor" - Fluent In Many Languages

(4) YES! A Mobile Multi-Talented Conservation Rabbi-Cantor "Have Wedding Canopy - Chupa - Torah - Van - Will Travel" At Your Service

(5) YES! I Perform At Fundraising Concerts And Dinner Parties And Funerals And Unveilings

Rabbi Marshall E. Reiss, B.A.
Rabbi and Cantor
• Dynamic, Eloquent Speaker
• Magnificent, Operatic-Lyric Tenor Voice
Tel: 905-762-9838
or 416-573-2549
For All Ritual Ceremonies, Celebrations Services

Marshall's Mazel Tov Orchestra And DJ Service Fabulous Entertainment

Future bright at both CHAT campuses: Shaviv

Continued from page 3

Although the BJE did not release a school-by-school breakdown of enrolment for 2004-05, in the previous year, the largest day schools showed a decrease in their numbers. The second largest elementary day school, United Synagogue Day School (USDS), saw its numbers drop in 2003-04 to 957 from 1,043 the year before. Among the next largest schools, Bialik Hebrew Day School and Leo Baeck Day School, the fall-off in enrolment was seven and four students, respectively, while Eitz Chaim Day School lost 39 students, bringing its elementary enrolment to 676.

Smaller schools such as the Toronto Heschel School – which saw its numbers increase to 252 from 234 – as well as Yeshiva Yesodei Hatorah, Zareinu Educational Centre, the Montessori Jewish Day School, Bais Brucha and Beth Jacob High School, all experienced growth.

Landa noted that in the last several years, Toronto has seen a proliferation of day school options for parents, from nine 16 years ago to 17 or 18 today.

"If Associated is the General Motors of the Jewish day schools, there's been a loss of market share," he said.

Computer consultant Dov Goldberg also has three kids at Associated and, like Levin, pays $27,000 per year in tuition. Goldberg acknowledges that he has considered removing his kids, "especially with high school coming and fees continuing to increase.

"I know people changing schools and I know some people removing kids from the system," he said.

When he first enrolled his children, who are now in grades 2, 5 and 6, his expectation was that they would graduate and go on to CHAT.

"Now we're questioning whether it's feasible or not."

Goldberg said that's something he and his friends often discuss, and some who believe the level of Jewish observance in the middle grades "is not strong enough" are even considering removing their children for two or three years and then enrolling them in CHAT.

Lawyer Joseph Adler, who has three children at Eitz Chaim, pays $28,500 per year and sees his bill "creeping upward."

"It's going up disproportionately to people's incomes, I would say by $600 to $900 per year per child," he said.

"For families with a number of children, it's becoming prohibitive."

Some of his friends have switched their kids to other Jewish schools and a few are making the decision to go to the public system, among them "Orthodox people," he said.

"I see Orthodox [parents] who are seriously thinking of taking their children out. They just can't afford it. They're at the breaking point."

Among educators, the Orthodox are considered the least likely to move their children from day schools despite the rise in fees.

Landa said the phenomenon of increasing fees is likely to continue, "to a certain point."

Associated has implemented various cost-cutting measures, going from four buildings to three (reducing overhead) and developing "synergies" with other educational institutions.

The school has also hired a director of education to work on new teaching methodologies and it has received two grants totalling $500,000 for pre-school enhancement.

Paul Shaviv

But to reduce tuition fees by even $2,000, Landa estimates the school would have to boost enrolment by 1,000 children. And if the school loses students, costs would have to be apportioned among the remaining students, meaning higher fees, he said.

As for money from UJA Federation, prior to 2003-04, there hadn't been an increased allocation to Jewish education in close to 16 years. With a $900,000 increase last year, the total support is now $7 million, he said.

One person close to the community believes the federation boosted its allocation only out of embarrassment over its plans to spend $250 million on capital projects as part of its Jewish Toronto Tomorrow initiative after having capped education expenditures.

Meanwhile at CHAT's two campuses, the school is full and the future looks bright, said Paul Shaviv, the school's director of education. This year's Grade 9 intake of new students set a record with 401, he said.

A key indicator pointing to a bright future is the number of children moving to CHAT from its four largest feeder schools, Associated, Leo Baeck, Bialik and USDS. About 74 per cent of their Grade 8 students continued on to CHAT this year, he said.

"Our overall retention rate [returning students] is extremely high – over 90 per cent," he said. For children in Grades 9 and 10, it's well over 90 per cent. "That is extremely good, much better than it used to be."

Shaviv said parents and students are happy with the quality of the school and feel it offers an inclusive and welcoming educational experience.

ADMIRE THE INSPIRATION

COMING SOON

THE ST. CLAIR ON THE AVENUE

PRIORITY REGISTRATION

416.944.3883

TOLL FREE 1.866.533.0353

EMAIL: INFO@THESTCLAIR.COM

STCLAIRONTHEAVENUE.COM

SPECTACULAR 2 & 3 BEDROOM LUXURY CONDOMINIUM HOMES

St. Clair On The Avenue is an exclusive enclave in one of Toronto's most refined neighbourhoods. A spectacular new condominium, St. Clair On The Avenue is sophisticated and intimate. The architecture, amenities and design combine to create a unique lifestyle of elegance and substance in an unsurpassed location.

PRICED FROM $650,000

SALES PRESENTATION CENTER

112 ST. CLAIR AVENUE WEST, TORONTO, ONTARIO M4V 2Y3

RENT A CAR

TAMIR תמיר

Enjoy your stay in Israel

with the best car rental prices, no hidden extras...

rate includes:

- All Airport charges
- Free extra driver
- Free baby seat
- Free mobile telephone
- Free delivery & pick-up anywhere in Israel (except Eilat)

For Reservation call Yehuda Ehrlich

1-800-to-TAMIR, 1-800-868-2647

or (732) 246-4163 Fax: (732) 246-3935

www.tamir-rental.co.il

71 year old Toronto woman loses a full 20 pounds!

"After years of yo-yo dieting I have conquered my bad habits and now fit nicely into a size 8.

I had always been distrustful of hypnosis. However, I felt this was my last resort. I've tried everything else: shots, diet pills, liquids, and so on. I suffered with all of them, and in six months the weight returned and then some.

Hypnosis encourages you to eat properly and you never feel hungry. All cravings are gone. I exercise almost every day, not because I have to but because I am motivated and enjoy it.

Thank you, Positive Changes !!!"

— Audrey Berman, Toronto

Call today for your FREE consultation!

Positive Changes Yes, It Works.

POSITIVE CHANGES TORONTO

416.488.4724

801 York Mills Road at Leslie

www.positivechangestoronto.com

usefulideas®

We serve our clients, providing strategic value and financial security.

Long Term Care

Keep your Dignity and Privacy

Joel H. Rose, B,Sc.,CLU,CFP

Financial Security Advisor

t: 416-443-1396 ext. 23

e: joel@usefulideas.com

www.usefulideas.com

19 Madison Ave, Suite 200

Toronto, ON M5R 2S2

Jewish Life

A charming novel of immigrant life

By ZE'EV GLICENSTEIN

It has been nearly half a century since American literary critics Irving Howe and Leslie Fiedler each cited a remarkable forgotten novel, Henry Roth's Call It Sleep, during a symposium on "The Most Neglected Books of the Past 25 Years."

Initially published in 1934, Call It Sleep initially sold a few thousand copies before sinking into obscurity. But thanks to the belated attentions of enthusiasts like Howe and Fiedler, it was reissued in paperback in 1962 and sold more than one million copies. In The Modern Jewish Canon, Ruth Wisse called it a "classic of disinheritance" and a "shattering epic of immigrant adjustment to the land of opportunity."

Like a score of other Jewish authors, Roth casts a pessimistic eye on the Jewish immigrant experience in America. Not so for Yuri Suhl, whose winningly optimistic 1947 novel, One Foot In America, was hailed by the National Jewish Post as "one of the best books ever written about Jewish life in America."

Suhl's now-forgotten book enjoyed a brief afterlife in the late 1960s after a new paperback edition proclaimed it "a joyous novel for everyone who read and loved The Chosen." Then it fell off literary radar screens once again, and remains there to this day.

That's really too bad. I happened upon a copy in a used bookstore recently and found it full of old-fashioned Yiddish warmth and redolent of the sights, sounds and smells of life in the thriving Jewish ghettos of Brooklyn and the Lower East Side of the early 1920s.

Written in the lighthearted, humorous voice of 14-year-old Shloimele Kenner, One Foot in America tells the story of the boy's arrival in the strange new land with his stern, observant father from the impoverished town of Pedayetz, only a few years after the loss of their mother and wife.

It begins with the third-class crossing from Antwerp to Ellis Island, which Shloimele experiences alone after his father is temporarily detained at the dock for medical reasons. Met by his Uncle Feivish at Ellis Island, Shloimele is soon amazed at the bounty of his relatives' dinner table: he presumes they are rich. "With each new course, America grew more wonderful in my eyes," he says.

Reunited with his father, he describes their greenhorn confusion with comical precision: their dealings with their fellows, their strolls down streets thick with pedestrians and pushcarts, their meals at a local boarding house, their respective searches for gainful employment. He initially works as a butcher-boy, his father as a peddler, but both go on to higher things.

From his Aunt Molly's somewhat rude husband Philip, Shloimele learns an essential creed of modern American life: "Minejerumbizness." Although an efficiency craze and money-mania has gripped America, the boy avoids being corrupted by the material values his talmudist father so reviles. But predictably, he ultimately loses his mantle of religious observance in this glittering new land of 1,000 distractions.

With at least one of his feet planted firmly in America – Jews always have one foot ready for flight, Shloimele knows – he puts away his boyish intrigues to pursue romance, but with a young lady who seems more devoted to moving pictures than to him. He also becomes enmeshed in a humorous plot to arrange a meeting between his father and a suitable middle-aged widow. The match proves a success and the boy gains a loving stepmother.

If you should happen upon One Foot in America in a library or bookstore, grab it with both hands. This sweet tale about the making of an American is definitely worth reading.

Roth's 'what if' novel is compulsive reading

The Plot Against America* by Philip Roth, Houghton Mifflin, $36.95.

Suppose history had taken a different turn. What if Charles Lindbergh, the lean, handsome, universal hero who made the first solo transatlantic flight in 1927, was chosen by the Republican Party in 1940 as their presidential nominee?

Here's how it happened. He arrived at the deadlocked convention "in his flying attire, having landed his own plane at the Philadelphia airport only minutes earlier, and at the sight of him, a surge of redemptive excitement brought the wilted conventioneers up onto their feet to cry, 'Lindy! Lindy! Lindy!' for 30 glorious minutes, and without interruption from the chair."

Campaigning against America's entry into World War II, he singles out the Jews as an easy target. "No person of honesty and vision," Lindbergh said, "can look on their pro-war policy here today without seeing the dangers involved in such a policy both for us and for them... we cannot allow the natural passion and prejudices of other peoples to lead our country to destruction."

Winning a landslide victory over U.S. president Franklin D. Roosevelt, Lindbergh signs non-aggression treaties with Germany and Japan, entertains German foreign minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop at the White House, suspends civil liberties, appoints automotive pioneer Henry Ford as secretary of the interior, and initiates programs to disperse Jews around the country, diluting their political clout and exposing them to widespread hostility and violence.

Anti-Lindbergh forces rally around the unlikely figure of Walter Winchell, the outspoken popular gossip columnist and broadcaster. When he is assassinated two years into Lindbergh's presidency, riots break out in American cities. In Detroit, "several hundred of the city's 30,000 Jews had fled and taken refuge across the Detroit River in Windsor, Ont., and American history had recorded its first large-scale pogrom, one clearly modelled on the 'spontaneous demonstrations' against Germany's Jew known as Kristallnacht, 'the Night of Broken Glass,' whose atrocities had been planned and perpetrated by the Nazis four years earlier."

In an astonishing development, Lindbergh, on a solo flight across the United States, disappears and cannot be found. Among the wild conspiracy theories advanced is one that the British have kidnapped the American president. War between the United States and Canada appears imminent. The madness ends with the re-election of Roosevelt and the bombing of Pearl Harbor. The 22-month nightmare is over.

The narrator of these unsettling events is Philip Roth, aged seven, with recollections out of the rich soil of his own childhood. He is imaginative, impressionable and fearful – forced into playing many roles. He and his Newark, N.J., middle-class family – father Herman, mother Bess and brother Sandy – are at the book's centre.

They are a close knit family, proud of their country and secure in their friendly, largely Jewish neighbourhood. Overcoming a series of domestic and political challenges, the Roth family survives and young Philip learns the meaning of compassion and loyalty as he is forced to care for others whose lives have been damaged by the climate of fear.

Speaking of the Roth family as Jews, the author writes, "Neither was their being Jews a mishap or a misfortune or an achievement to be 'proud' of. What they were was what they couldn't get rid of – what they couldn't even begin to want to get rid of. Their being Jews issued from their being themselves, as did their being American. It was as it was, in the nature of things, as fundamental as having arteries and veins, and they never manifested the slightest desire to change it or deny it, regardless of the consequences."

Like Roth's other recent novels, The Plot Against America is splendidly written, with attention to detail and the creation of credible characters. Some critics have interpreted the novel as a critique of the Bush administration. Roth, however, in a recent essay in the New York Times wrote that he had no such intention. "Some readers are going to want to take this book as a roman à clef to the present moment in America. That would be a mistake. I set out to do exactly what I've done: reconstruct the years 1940-42 as they might have been if Lindbergh, instead of Roosevelt, had been elected president in the 1940 election."

This "what if?" novel is compulsively readable, but also a warning: there are dark forces that always threaten democracy and all it takes for a fascist victory is one misguided charismatic leader in a time of peril and a thoughtless and emotional populace.

Jewish Life

By MARK MIETKIEWICZ

Carlebach yahrzeit – Part 2

Last week, we began our look at the life of Rabbi Shlomo Carlebach in light of his 10th yahrzeit, which is being commemorated Sunday night. This week, Reb Shlomo in song and story.

The best way to get a high-quality Shlomo Carlebach song is to buy it. However, you can sample some marvelous tunes online, and in some cases, listen to entire songs. Start your search at Rabbeinu Shlomo's Music for short excerpts from wedding tunes, including Od Yishama and Asher Boro, and his final musical composition, Unvenei. [www.rebshlomo.org/audio/]

If you want to liven up your Friday night Kabalat Shabbat service, take a listen to Reb Shlomo's lively Lo Sayvoshee from the the Lecha Dodi prayer. [http://tinyurl.com/4dsnu] And if you're tired of those same old candle-lighting tunes at Chanukah, now's the time to brush up on some different ones. [http://jnul.huji.ac.il/dl/music/hanukkah/]

Rabbi Carlebach's most famous tune is probably Am Yisroel Chai (The Nation of Israel Lives), which became synonymous with the anti-Soviet movement in the 1960s. Jacob Birnbaum retells the events leading up to the creation of the song and the exhilarating day it gained the world's attention. [http://tinyurl.com/6ouas]

JewishMusic.com sells 14 Carlebach albums that sample two or three songs on each one. [http://tinyurl.com/6fbsw] You can hear excerpts from classics such as Eso Einai (I Lift up My Eyes) and V'shovu Vonim (They Will Return). And be sure to click on The Very Best of Carlebach, Volume 2, where you can listen to all 22 of the album's tunes in their entirety. [http://tinyurl.com/ 6xug8] Music can be purchased at many online retailers, including Zionbooks [www.zionbooks.com/carlbach.htm] and through the Rabbi Shlomo Carlebach Foundation. [www.rebshlomo.org/music.html]

Carrying on in her father's footsteps is the rabbi's daughter, Neshama. Neshama Carlebach. She has a thriving career performing both original tunes and ones penned by her father. [www.neshamacarlebach.com/]

Once you are done listening to the rabbi, you can watch him sing online, too. In 1989, Rabbi Carlebach performed a concert in Russia. That concert is online and can be viewed at any time. As well, there's another video of him leading the davening on Hoshanah Rabah, the final day of Sukkot. [www.613.org/music/niggun.html]

And then there are the stories. Close your eyes, sit back and allow yourself to be swept up in the rabbi's tales. When Reb Shlomo recites Moishele the Ganev, Oceans of Tears or the Soldier and the Zayde, you are enveloped in his unique mix of word, song and inspiration. The JewishMusic website is particularly generous and offers 17 stories in their entirety. To hear them, click on the Shlomo's Greatest Stories album covers. [http://tinyurl.com/6fbsw]

Or perhaps you would like to retell one of his tales. You can read many of Rabbi Carlebach's wondrous stories [http://ww.rebshlomo.org/story/] as well as stories that focus on the lives of our rabbis and sages. [www.rebshlomo.org/story/rebbes/]

If you want to learn to play some of Rabbi Carlebach's music yourself, go to YUTOPIA: Jewish Guitar Chords. You can find the guitar chords to some of his biggest hits, including Achas Sha'alti, Eliyahu HaNavi and Dovid Melech. [http://yutopia.yucs.org/archives/000384.html]

Just how good a composer was Rabbi Carlebach? Velvel Pasternak takes a critical look at the creative output of Rabbi Carlebach and comes up with a fascinating analysis. [www.flatbush.org/music/new/hist_2.htm]

"As a composer, Shlomo was certainly not in the company of great folk composers such as Stephen Foster. As a singer, he never entered the ranks of the vocally cultured Jan Peerce or Richard Tucker. And as a guitarist, Shlomo was the first to admit that he had not perfected the instrument. And yet!... and yet!... and yet! his singing, his melodies, along with his performances and personal involvement with amcha (the people), exerted a major musical as well as Judaic influence on several generations of Jews worldwide. The entire Jewish community owes Shlomo a great and sincere debt of gratitude."

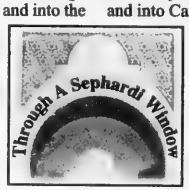
Mark Mietkiewicz is a Toronto-based Internet producer who writes, lectures and teaches about the Jewish Internet. He can be reached at highway@rogers.com.

By RABBI YEHIEL BEN AYON

Remembering Pier 21 on Halloween

My family and I, along with almost one million other immigrants, came to Canada through the famous Pier 21.

It was early in the morning of Oct. 30, 1966, when our ship sliced through a misty blanket of grey fog and into the port of Halifax. From the relative luxury of an ocean liner, my mother, father, my little sister and I found ourselves inside a cavernous hall. People were everywhere and everyone seemed lost. Some huddled in groups, others walked around, heading nowhere in particular. A child at the time, I recall the mountainous heaps of trunks and suitcases. Mostly, I recall the wire cages at the far end of the building – ominous cages whose wires stretched from the floor to the very high ceilings. These wires separated us, the immigrants, from Canada.



Long lines formed in front of those cages. One could hear all sorts of languages being spoken, with hands gesturing wildly. Agitated people spoke their particular language loudly and slowly, thinking that would somehow help the good Canadian immigration officers to better understand them.

When it was our turn, my father was able to speak to them in proper English. The officials seemed to pass us on with more courtesy than the others.

Finally, we had crossed the threshold and into Canada.

Awaiting us on the other side was a representative of JIAS, the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society. It was her job to welcome us and lead us across the ramp that connected Pier 21 to the Canadian National Railways station. From there, we were to board a train to Montreal (where we eventually headed on to Toronto).

The JIAS lady was a rather stern woman who quickly warmed to our family when my father began conversing with her in German, a language she accepted as close enough to Yiddish. Because of this, she seemed to consider us as kin.

In those days, the trains for newcomers were primitive and very uncomfortable, with wooden benches along the walls and luggage stored at your feet – one more hardship to be endured on this long voyage.

For some reason, the JIAS lady didn't put us on the "newcomer express" with all the other southern Europeans, but on a regular train with picture windows and upholstered recliners.

While waiting for that train, she took us to a cafeteria. The smell of that cafeteria and its freshly brewed coffee was the first aroma we had of Canada.

As she sat with my parents, my sister and I investigated a display on a round table in the centre of the room.

A gigantic pumpkin sat on the table. I had never seen a pumpkin in my life, nor for that matter did I know that any vegetable could grow to be so huge. Certainly, I had never seen a carved jack-o'-lantern. But this wasn't a regular jack-o'-lantern, for inside it was a whole scene with figurines, all lit up.

While my parents sipped their coffee and confronted their emotions – the memory of their happy former lives and families left behind, and the fears of adjusting to a new and unknown life – my sister and I rested our chins on the table in amazement.

In the innocence of our childhood, we couldn't contain our excitement about this fantastic and fanciful pumpkin. It was a year later that we realized that this was an annual holiday called Halloween. On this date, we would celebrate our arrival.

We Create Millionaires
You are: Entrepreneurial, Influential, Resourceful and...have a strong desire to pursue a lifestyle instead of a job.
We are looking for you. We will help you capitalize on the emerging Wellness Boom.
Opening new countries:
Russia, Singapore, Poland, Romania & South Africa.
Special program for professionals.
To learn more call 416-760-2002 - 24 hours Ahuva Simone

George Klein Designs
Designer of Fine Jewellery

Large Selection of Bar/Bat Mitzvah Gifts
Creative Custom Work & Remodelling
1575 Steeles Ave. E. Ste. 103
416-730-1755

SHAAR SHALOM SYNAGOGUE
A Proud Participant In Holocaust Education Week
presents
ANDRZEJ SZPILMAN
'THE PIANIST' –
HOW IT HAPPENED

Wladyslaw Szpilman was immortalized in the Oscar-Award winning movie, 'The Pianist.' The book and movie described his extraordinary experiences in and out of the Warsaw Ghetto during the Holocaust. Andrzej Szpilman will tell of his father's remarkable life, the publication of the book and the granting of the film rights to Roman Polanski.

Sunday, November 7 – 7:30 pm
Shaar Shalom Synagogue
2 Simonston Boulevard, Thornhill
905-889-4975

This program is generously co-sponsored by Shaar Shalom Synagogue and the Sharon Diamond and Walt Family Fund in loving memory of Sharon B. Diamond and Isidore J. Walt.

Jewish Toronto

Bergen-Belsen exhibit celebrates post-war Jewish revival

By REBECCA GLUCK SOBERMAN
UJA Federation

Rebirth After the Holocaust: The Bergen-Belsen Displaced Persons Camp, 1945-1950— a special exhibit brought to Toronto by UJA Federation's Holocaust Centre and Toronto's Beth Radom Congregation – offers a fresh portrayal of the Holocaust, focusing on the rebuilding of shattered lives as opposed to the pervading devastation.

The exhibit, on display at Beth Radom until November 4, "testifies to [the Jewish] people's unbreakable will to live and to survive," said Edward Sonshine, keynote speaker at the recent exhibit opening. Sonshine, president of RioCan Real Estate and Investment Trust, is the son of Holocaust survivors and was born in the Bergen-Belsen DP camp. Sonshine's mother, Helen, was also present at the opening.

"This exhibit is different because it is about the courage to live. I am living testimony to that desire to live," said Sonshine. The display, which was officially opened by Sam and Rosa Weisberg, who were married at the Bergen-Belsen DP camp, consists of over 40 door-sized panels with photographs of the revived life of Holocaust survivors. It includes photographs and testimonials depicting aspects of camp life, including education, publications, Zionism, and health care.

Although Displaced Persons camps were initially established to provide a short-term solution for survivors following the devastation of European Jewry in the Holocaust, many of the camps became long-term settlements for those refusing to return to their native lands because of rampant antisemitism. Many DP camp residents were also unable to emigrate to Palestine or North America because of stringent immigration restrictions.

Bergen-Belsen was originally the site of a German concentration camp where 70,000 people perished during the Holocaust. Among them were Anne Frank and her sister Margot.

The Bergen-Belsen exhibit moves from Beth Radom to the Samuel J. Zacks Gallery in Stong College at York University on November 9. Admission and tours are free of charge.

Ed Sonshine, guest speaker at "Rebirth After the Holocaust: The Bergen-Belsen Displaced Persons Camp 1945-1950," with his mother, Helen.

Time is running out to nurture Jewish identity

There is a sense of urgency today when it comes to committing Jewish youngsters around the world to a strong sense of Jewish identity, says a well-known community leader.

Julia Koschitzky

"We have a limited time to get those youngsters," says Toronto's Julia Koschitzky, co-chair of the Jewish Agency for Israel's (JAFI) Jewish Education Committee, of the Board of Governors, along with Israel's Amos Hermon. "If we don't do something dramatic we've lost; we must realize what's at stake, what's adrift," explains Koschitzky.

Koschitzky - who has been very active in Keren Hayesod – the central fundraising organization for Israel operating in 45 countries throughout the world - and boasts a long history of Jewish communal leadership, stresses the urgency of targeting over 4.5 million Jewish youth who are under the age of 24. "It's up to the Israeli government and JAFI to invest in securing the young Jewish generation who will be a strategic asset to the State of Israel," she adds.

Short-term programs include birthright israel and other Israel experience programs, kibbutz or ulpan experiences, and one-year university studies in Israel, while long-term programming includes a balance of learning at an academic institution and time spent volunteering or studying in Israel.

"It's a known fact that those who study in Israel are more likely to marry a Jewish spouse and are more likely to send their children to [Jewish] day school," adds Koschitzky. "It is more likely that they will become leaders in the community."

"Evidence shows us that forty per cent of participants in long-term programs make aliyah within five years of participating, and family and close friends tend to follow. For those who do not make Israel their permanent home, short- and long-term programming has also proven to have a very strong influence on the prominence of Jewish values in their lives," says Hermon, who is full of praise for Koschitzky.

"Working with her is a fantastic experience. She brings to the executive of JAFI's education department a different way of thinking and a lot of experience. Her dedication to the future of the Jewish people is unbelievable – we all benefit from her contribution," he adds.

Cleveland GA tackles global issues

By DAN HOROWITZ
UJA Federation

More than 100 members of Toronto's Jewish community will be tackling tough new global realities such as the resurgence of global antisemitism and national security at the upcoming General Assembly (GA) in Cleveland, November 14 -17.

The Toronto delegation is chaired by Les Aaron, Josh Cooper, David Peltz and Dodi Weill. Not only will the Torontonians be taking part in the GA, but they will also be acting as ambassadors for Toronto which is hosting next year's GA, chaired by Peter Ekstein and Debbie Kimel.

The GA is the largest international gathering of Jewish leaders, with over 4,000 participants representing North American Jewish federations.

This year, participants will hear from an impressive list of expert international speakers, including Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon, political consultant and former aide to President Bill Clinton, James Carville, Gal Fridman, Israel's gold medal winner at the Athens Olympics, and Sallai Meridor, Chairman of the Jewish Agency for Israel (JAFI), UJA Federation's overseas partner.

"It's rare that you are given such an incredible opportunity to be in one place with so many high-level speakers," says Aaron, who will accompany the other chairs on the bus ride from Toronto to Cleveland. "This also comes at an important time when Jews from around the world can come together as one to show our solidarity."

For Dodi Weill, whose first foray into volunteering took place 20 years ago when the GA was held in Toronto, the exhilaration of joining the GA is addictive.

"Ever since I first volunteered, I've tried to be part of every GA possible," says Weill. "The speakers are always first-rate and the feeling of camaraderie you get by meeting fellow Jews who all care passionately about their own communities is wonderful."

Fifty Hillel of Greater Toronto students will also be attending the GA when they arrive in time for a pre-GA Shabbaton with other North American Hillel students.

For more information about participating in the Cleveland GA Mission, please call the GA Hotline at 416. 849.1000 or mmaierovitz@ujafed.org

At last year's GA in Israel, Toronto was well represented with a large contingent of participants. Pictured (L-R) are: Stephen Goldhar, Michael Buckstein, Jeff Springer, Yossi Tanuri, Barry Zagdanski and Peter Ekstein.

JEWISH TORONTO IS PUBLISHED AS A COMMUNITY SERVICE BY UJA FEDERATION OF GREATER TORONTO.

Worldwide cooperation needed to thwart terrorism

By DANIEL HOROWITZ
UJA Federation

An international alliance dedicated to combating terrorism is absolutely vital today according to an Israeli counter-terrorism expert.

"We must fight the worldwide web of radical Islamic terrorism with international courts that will properly judge these terrorists, as well as international police and army units," said Boaz Ganor, executive director of Israel's International Policy Institute for Counter-Terrorism, and a former member of the IDF Air Force.

Ganor made his comments to a group of UJA Federation donors as part of an ongoing international speaker series, which will run throughout Campaign 2005, an action plan for a safe Jewish future. To date, the campaign has raised $36 million.

"We are talking about fighting a worldwide web of terrorism, made up of full-time, professional terrorists who train and manufacture explosives seven days a week, 24 hours a day," said Ganor. "The level of terrorism posed to the world today is higher than anything we've experienced in the past. We must acknowledge that threat and not turn a blind eye to it."

What makes today's Islamic terrorists even harder to combat, according to Ganor, is their religious ideology.

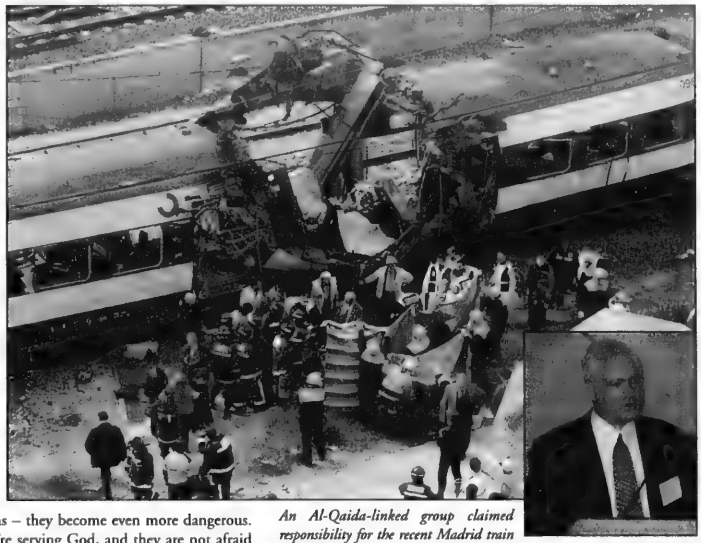
"When you are motivated, as many of these terrorists are, by a sense of religion, of divine commitment - they believe that God is sending them to their missions – they become even more dangerous. When they feel that they're serving God, and they are not afraid to die, how can they not go all the way?"

Another problem with combating terrorism is that in many ways, he says, it's a Catch-22 situation.

"In counter-terrorism, we try to limit their capabilities; unfortunately, when that happens, it increases their motivation," said Ganor.

Ganor says that the recent attack on the Hilton Hotel in Taba, Egypt, minutes away from Eilat, served many purposes.

"They knew what they were doing," he said. "They killed many birds with one stone; they killed Jews, Israelis, and Westerners while shaking the stability of Egypt. Still, it is not the task of Israel, the United States, or the Western world to educate radical Islamists; it is the responsibility of moderate Moslems to educate their own, and they must do everything they can to do so now."



An Al-Qaida-linked group claimed responsibility for the recent Madrid train bombings which killed more than 170 rush-hour commuters and wounded more than 500 in Spain's worst terrorist attack ever. Counter-terrorism expert, Boaz Ganor (inset), recently addressed the topic of Islamic terrorism with UJA donors. (AP Photo/Paul White)

Campaign 2005 hits $36 million

UJA Federation Campaign 2005, an action plan for a safe Jewish future, launched on August 30, recently hit the "double-chai" mark, and currently stands at $36 million thanks to the generosity of close to 14,000 donors.

Part of that success is due to ongoing UJA Federation telethons. The next set of telethons takes place on Sunday, November 14 to Wednesday, November 17. To volunteer for a shift on the telephones at the Lipa Green Building, please contact Brenda at 416. 635.2883 extension 135.

New dollars from Campaign 2005, chaired by Robert Harlang and Chuck Winograd, will be invested in four essential areas:

- Community Security: UJA Federation has initiated a special community task force to review local security needs, especially at schools and community centres. New dollars will fund the implementation of security measures recommended by the task force.
- A Strong Jewish Voice: UJA Federation is supporting the Canadian Council for Israel and Jewish Advocacy (CIJA) and other partner organizations that stand up for Israel and against antisemitism.
- Building a Stronger Israel: Campaign 2005 will invest in several programs in Israel with special focus on young people, to help the country recover from years of terror attacks and a weak, but recovering economy.
- Empowering a New Jewish Generation: Campaign 2005 will invest in training programs for young adults to help them counter antisemitism, and initiatives such as birthright israel and March of the Living, to help them connect more closely with Jewish life.

David Markowitz volunteers at a recent telethon.

To make a donation to the campaign, please call the UJA Federation Campaign Hotline at 416.631.5705, or visit www.jewishtoronto.com

UJA-Temple Sinai mission returns home

Fifty participants on the recent joint UJA Federation-Temple Sinai Solidarity Mission to Israel returned home last week from what was one of the largest Reform movement missions from Toronto.

The trip brings the total number of Torontonians who have participated in UJA Federation missions to 2,600 in the last four years.

Temple Sinai's Rabbi Michael Dolgin shares a smile with UJA Federation mission chair, Sandra Montague, at the Inbal Hotel in Jerusalem.

The joint UJA-Temple Sinai Mission, held from October 11 to 18, and chaired by Sandra Montague, included meetings with Israeli military officials, media personalities, political figures in addition to visits to an Ethiopian Absorption Centre and a visit to Jerusalem's Hazon Yeshaya Soup Kitchens.

The mission was intended, in part, to celebrate Temple Sinai's fiftieth anniversary.

"There was no better way to celebrate Temple Sinai's birthday than by being in Israel," said Montague. "By teaming up with UJA Federation, we thought we'd have access to tremendous speakers and programs in Israel, and we were not disappointed at all. This mission was the perfect way to bring together people from Temple Sinai and UJA Federation, two important community institutions, that wanted to show their love and support for Israel and its citizens."

"This mission was special for a number of reasons," explained Rabbi Michael Dolgin, Temple Sinai's Senior Rabbi for the past seven years, and a mission participant. "It heightens our sense of connection with our congregation and its sense of history. It also strengthens our connection to the larger Jewish community through our connection with UJA. And, of course, it provides that essential link between us and the people and the land of Israel."

For Carole Sterling, a long-time UJA volunteer and mission veteran, the Temple Sinai trip held special significance. Sterling, like Temple Sinai, celebrated her 50th birthday during the mission, and her choice of birthday destinations was never in doubt.

"We could have gone anywhere to celebrate my birthday," said Sterling, who is also a board member of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and of UJA Federation. "We could have gone to Hawaii, Florida, pretty much any place, but when you have the chance to celebrate in the land of Israel, there's really no other choice. Being in Israel with my rabbi on a UJA mission is especially significant because it combines my passions: the love of Israel and the work of UJA Federation."

CORRECTION

Page 18 of the September 29th issue of Jewish Toronto featured a photo of Betty Cooper (Trachter) and Al Cooper in front of Trachter's Creamery at 71 Kensington Ave. The names should have read Becky Cooper (Trachter) and Art Cooper. The Ontario Jewish Archives apologizes for the error.

Any questions concerning information or photos that appear on these pages should be directed to jewishtorontonews@ujafed.org

JEWISH TORONTO IS PUBLISHED AS A COMMUNITY SERVICE BY UJA FEDERATION OF GREATER TORONTO.

HIGHLAND FARMS

Lower Prices

A lot Less to Pay Everyday

VISIT US TODAY AT FRESHATHIGHLANDFARMS.COM FOR MORE GREAT SAVINGS.

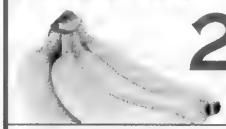
PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, GROWN AT THE HIGHLAND FARMS ORCHARD
fresh, fancy grade
McINTOSH APPLES
2.99 8LB POLY BAG

CHAI KOSHER, COR 218
Canada grade A, frozen
ROCK CORNISH HENS
3.99 LB 8.80/KG

BREYER'S, ALL NATURAL
ICE CREAM
assorted varieties
3.97 2LT TUB

LANTIC, NATURAL GRANULATED
WHITE SUGAR
1.47 2KG BAG

FROM THE TROPICS
fresh
BANANAS
25¢ LB 55/KG



PERL'S, ALL BEEF
SALAMI
9.99 750G

BNEI-DAROM
CUCUMBERS
• in vinegar • in brine
1.49 540G TIN

OSEM
TEA BISCUITS
• classic • chocolate
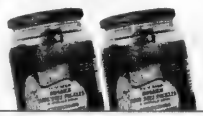
2/1.00 155G PKG

PRODUCT OF CANADA, P.E.I., CANADA NO.1
fresh
TABLE POTATOES
1.49 10LB BAG

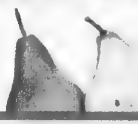
STRUB'S, HALF SOUR, KOSHER
NEW DILL PICKLES
1.99 1LT JAR



GEFEN, INSTANT, CUP
NOODLE SOUP
no msg
assorted varieties
99¢ 66G PKG

BEN & JERRY'S
ICE CREAM
assorted varieties
3.97 500-550ML TUB

PRODUCT OF ONTARIO, CANADA FANCY
fresh
BOSC PEARS
99¢ LB 2.18/KG



DIRECT PAYMENT VISA MasterCard

STORE HOURS:
MONDAY - SATURDAY 7:00A.M. TILL 10:00P.M.
SUNDAY HOURS 8:00A.M. TILL 8:00P.M.

4750 DUFFERIN ST. AT SUPERTEST RD. 416.736.6606	850 ELLESMERE RD. AT KENNEDY RD. 416.298.1999	148 BENNETT RD. AT LAWRENCE AVE. 416.282.5759	50 MATHESON BLVD. AT HURONTARIO 905.501.9910

KOSHER PRODUCTS AVAILABLE AT THE DUFFERIN LOCATION ONLY.

MANISCHEWITZ, CELLO
SOUP
assorted varieties
99¢ 170G PKG

SPECIALS EFFECTIVE THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28TH TO WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3RD, 2004

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES • UNAUTHORIZED REPRODUCTION OR USE OF THIS ADVERTISEMENT WITHOUT THE WRITTEN CONSENT OF HIGHLAND FARMS AND ITS MARKETING AGENCY IS STRICTLY PROHIBITED.

Modigliani is showcased at the AGO

Continued from page 1

Showcasing 87 of his paintings, drawings and sculptures, the majority from his now-legendary 14-year sojourn in Paris, the exhibition is the first of its kind in Canada, a beaming Matthew Teitelbaum, the director and chief executive officer of the AGO, said at a crowded press preview recently.

"Modigliani: Beyond the Myth" makes the important point that his volatility obscured his singular style and eclipsed his body of work, suggested Mason Klein, the associate curator of The Jewish Museum.

A Sephardi Jew born in the cosmopolitan Tuscan port of Livorno, Modigliani was steeped in the liberal humanistic ideals of the European Enlightenment.

Conscious of his dual identity as an Italian and a Jew, he experienced open anti-Semitism for the first time in Paris. In response, he flaunted his Jewishness. Often, when introducing himself, he would theatrically declare, "I am Modigliani, Jew."

"He reclaimed his Jewishness by announcing it," observed Klein in an interview. "He identified with Baruch Spinoza – the heretical Dutch philosopher – who believed that Judaism was a secular and cultural tradition from which one could not escape."

Now considered one of the greatest artists of the 20th century, he was a stubborn loner who refused to align himself with any movement, though he moved in avant-garde Parisian circles frequented by such up-and-coming artists as Pablo Picasso, Chaim Soutine, Moise Kisling, Maurice Utrillo, Diego Rivera, Jacob Epstein and Jacques Lipchitz.

Eschewing still-lifes and virtually staying clear of landscapes, he all but limited himself to the practice of portraiture.

The French master Paul Cezanne exerted a profound influence on him. But Modigliani – a classically trained artist who had studied in Italy and France and who had immersed himself in Greek and Roman sculpture – was also influenced by African and Cambodian art and by Italian primitive, Renaissance and Mannerist paintings.

Today, long after critics have recognized his originality as a path-breaking modernist, Modigliani is inextricably associated with strong, elegantly elongated portraits and brazen, erotically charged nudes in repose.

His oil-on-canvas portraits, which are at once expressive and lustrous, are a veritable who's who of early 20th century Paris.

Portrait of Anna (Hanka) Zborowska (1916) portrays a regal Polish aristocrat who was the wife of his supportive and loyal dealer, Leopold Zborowski. The subject of a 1919 painting, Zborowski was a poet by temperament, and died penniless at 43.

Modigliani's ethereal Lunia Czechowska (Woman with a Fan), which he dashed off a year before his death, was doubtless a labour of love. She is described as his model and soulmate.

Max Jacob (1916 or 1917) is an arresting portrait of a fellow painter who shared Modigliani's appreciation of literature and his dependency on drugs. He was murdered by the Nazis in 1944.

The person closest to his heart, his doomed girlfriend and the mother of his child, is depicted in Jeanne Hebuterne, a pensive work he also produced in 1919.

Modigliani, who worked at a furious pace, whipped up Leon Indebaum in 1916. It's a bright, animated likeness of a Russian Jewish friend who co-founded Macmadim, a Yiddish magazine published in Paris.

Jean Cocteau (1916-17) portrays a dapper boulevardier. Young Woman of the People (1918) is positively hip and modern, while Portrait of a Girl (Victoria), the prototype of a self-confident, youthful flapper with a pouting mouth and bobbed hair, was painted around 1917.

Pierrot (1915), a pastiche of blue, gray and red shades, bristles with sharp angles. Joseph Levi (1909) brims with bluster. Portrait of Jacques Lipchitz, a pencil drawing, conveys a spirit of remoteness. Head of an Astonished Clown (1906-07), however, is vibrant and kinetic. It seems as if he has just swallowed a flapping butterfly

Woman, Heads and Jewish Symbols, a simple pencil drawing with two Stars of David in the background, is Modigliani's only overtly Jewish-themed work at the exhibition.

Modigliani's portrait of Jean Cocteau

His nudes, Nude with a Coral Necklace and Reclining Nude, both finished in 1917, attest to his abiding interest in female sexuality and his unrivalled ability to achieve a balance between demure innocence and frank eroticism.

His five Head sculptures, hewn from 1911 to 1914, are rock-like in their laser intensity.

The sole landscape on display, an oil-on-cardboard piece titled Small Tuscan Road (1898), was painted before his arrival in Paris. It is static and really unimpressive.

A huge black and white photograph of Modigliani adorns a wall leading into the exhibition. He resembles an insouciant Italian peasant in casual garb.

Blown-up photographs inside place Modigliani with Picasso, whom he admired but envied, and at a bar wearing a broad-brimmed hat and with a glass in his hand.

These are evocative and nostalgic images of a great painter who lived briefly but who burned brightly, and whose works – once misunderstood, underestimated and underappreciated – are the shining epitome of beauty and grace.

Do you have trouble staying asleep?

A research study is currently being conducted by

SLEEP DISORDERS CENTRE OF METROPOLITAN TORONTO

for individuals who are experiencing sleep problems throughout the night. Interested participants considered must be:

- Men and women age 50 years or older;
- Awake for at least 1 hour, four or more nights per week;
- Able to spend three daytime visits and five overnight visits at clinic.

Study related care is provided at no charge to study participants. This would include physical exam, sleep exams, laboratory services, and study medication.

For more information, please contact:

Jeffrey Lipsitz, M.D. or Harjinder Gill, Ph.D.

416-785-1128 ext. 355

JNF Blue Box! · AMNESTY!

Do You Have a JNF Blue Box?

Thousands of JNF Blue Boxes are out there. Please...we want them back! We forgive you for not returning them yet!

Now, more than ever, you can help in the important work of the JNF - building a strong and beautiful Israel for all of its people...and receive a charitable tax receipt!

Call Debbie at the JNF office 416-638-7200 ext. 22 and we will pick up your Blue Box and replace it! Or, bring it in to our office. It's your move.

And, if you haven't yet got a Blue Box, call us, and we'll be happy to send you one.

October -"Blue Box Amnesty Month"

We are waiting for your call!

The tradition continues...

Tel: Debbie 416-638-7200 ext 22 • Fax: 416-638-7345

Jewish National Fund of Toronto

1000 Finch Avenue West, # 700, Toronto, Ontario M3J 2V5

KEHILLAT SHAAREI TORAH

invites you to enjoy an evening honoring

Margaret Klompas

for her years of community service

Keynote Speaker

Rabbi Nathan Lopes Cardozo

Saturday, November 6, 2004

8 p.m.

2640 Bayview Avenue, North York, M2L 1B7
(South of the 401, corner Fifeshire)

$36.00 per person
Dessert Reception to follow

R.S.V.P. (416) 229-2600
by October 31, 2004

Rabbi Reuven Tradburks, Spiritual Leader, Kehillat Shaarei Torah, Margaret Klompas, Honoree and Joe Feldman, President

Kehillat Shaarei Torah is honoring Margaret Klompas for her numerous acts of kindness within our community and for her exemplary commitment to Jewish education and to Torah learning.

For years Margaret has visited the elderly, planned holiday events for them, and has opened her home to those visiting the patients at the North York General Hospital.

Margaret was a dedicated teacher in her native South Africa and is now both a teacher and a guidance counsellor at CHAT. She has initiated numerous learning opportunities for our members, including our monthly women's Rosh Chodesh service, and has been an active member of the Board of Directors of our synagogue.

For our tribute evening, Margaret has agreed to be honored by having others join her in sharing the wisdom of Rabbi Nathan Lopes Cardozo.

Rabbi Cardozo, dean of the David Cardozo Academy for Jewish Studies in Jerusalem is originally from Holland. He received his rabbinical degree from Gateshead Talmudical College, England, and holds a Doctorate of Philosophy. He has lectured at many institutions of Jewish and secular learning, including Cambridge, Oxford and Harvard universities and is the author of 11 books. He is known for his unique insight into Judaism, emphasizing the relevance of Judaism in our complicated times. British Chief Rabbi Jonathan Sacks said, "Rabbi Lopes Cardozo has emerged as one of the most thoughtful voices in contemporary Orthodoxy."

ROLEX•PATEK•CARTIER
DIAMONDS
BUY•SELL•TRADE
VAN RIJK JEWELLERS
440-1233 INSTANT CASH

EVA
GOLDFINGER
Licensed Secular Humanistic
Jewish Clergy
Meaningful Jewish & Inter-Cultural
WEDDINGS
Baby Namings, Bar/Bat Mitzvahs,
Funerals & Counselling
(905) 889-7450

STANDARD Property Management Corporation
management & services
call David 416.928.4885

PROVINCIAL
TABLE PADS
Manufacturers of Custom-built Table Pads
•Free in-home service
•Made in Canada
•Choose from 3 qualities
•Best service -price -quality
PTP
LOWEST PRICES GUARANTEED
Toronto..... 416-283-2508
Hamilton..... 905-383-1343
Ottawa..... 613-247-3334
Canada Wide.. 1-800-668-7439
www.ptpads.com

JAGUAR
LAND ROVER
THORNHILL
SALES • LEASING
SERVICE • PARTS
434 STEELES AVE. W.
2 BLOCKS W. OF YONGE
905-889-0080

Turkienicz remembered as larger than life

By LEILA SPEISMAN
Staff Reporter

Obituary

Businessman Milton Turkienicz died last week from complications following heart surgery. He was 76.

At his funeral and during shivah, he was described as a man who lived life in extremes, who dominated a room when he came into it, who had a soul bursting with energy, who was in many ways larger than life.

Rabbi Yossi Sapirman, spiritual leader of Beth Torah Congregation, described him as caring and supportive and generous. "He was my friend as he was yours," the rabbi said at his funeral.

Turkienicz was born in the village of Sarnik, in Ukraine. His father, a respected tanner, was very pious and gave him a good cheder education. Turkienicz was very proud that all his life he remembered what he had learned there.

Everything changed when the Nazis invaded. Most of the 900 Jews in Sarnik were murdered by the Nazis on a single day in 1942. Turkienicz and his two sisters escaped into the forest and fought with the partisans.

While he spoke proudly of his experiences with the partisans, it was not until he testified at an Australian war crimes trial in 1942 that he told his children about what he saw the day he left.

Turkienicz and his two sisters, Mina and Itka, came to Canada in 1948. For many years, he ran furniture and upholstery businesses, later becoming a real estate developer.

He was very active in the Beth Torah Congregation, serving as shul president and brotherhood president. In fact, he was scheduled to have his heart surgery before Yom Kippur, but postponed it because he was scheduled to read the Haftorah that day.

In 1967, after the Six Day War, Yorkdale Lodge of B'nai Brith Canada sent Turkienicz and Mel Lastman on a fact-finding tour to see what help the state needed. He went on several missions after that, and was active in fundraising.

The family he created in Toronto was a very close one. His oldest son, Mark, called him a "tough businessman, but someone who wouldn't take advantage of another person."

He saw his father as a protector, he said. But not just his protector – a protector of all those who needed protection. When his youngest sister Itka was abandoned by the partisans because she could not keep up with them, he went back, found her and carried her to safety.

Daughter Rachael added that to him, protecting was part of what surviving is. "He believed that you don't survive just for the purpose of surviving."

She said he had a strong commitment to the continuing of Yiddishkeit. "He used to say that it isn't found in tuition, the school or in books; it has to be in the heart. If we don't instil it there, we have failed, [he believed]."

While he was a serious, intense person, the playful child in him came out when he played with his grandchildren, the family said.

Turkienicz is survived by children Mark, Anna Morgan, Rachael Turkienicz and Eli, their mother Galila, his sister Mina and 12 grandchildren.

Lest We Forget...

Join the community in remembering these historical events during Holocaust Education Week

COMMUNITY COMMEMORATION OF KRISTALLNACHT

"Preserving Jewish Memory in Poland"

Tuesday, November 9 – 7:30 pm

Holy Blossom Temple, 1950 Bathurst Street, Toronto

Tomasz Kuncewicz

TOMASZ KUNCEWICZ, Director of the Auschwitz Jewish Centre in Oswiecim, Poland, will join the community in commemorating the 66th anniversary of Kristallnacht, when on November 9-10, 1938 a massive, coordinated attack was carried out against Jews throughout Germany and Austria. Mr. Kuncewicz, an internationally recognized speaker, oversees the creation and implementation of all programs sponsored by the Jewish Centre, located within walking distance of the death camp of Auschwitz-Birkenau. The LACHAN JEWISH CHAMBER CHOIR, recognized for its musical virtuosity, and a solemn candle lighting ceremony complete the program.

Admission Free

For more information call 416–789–3291

This program is generously co-sponsored by Judy and Eric Breuer.

"The Resurgence of Anti-Semitism: Alarming Echo of the Past"

Thursday, November 11 – 7:30 pm

Beth Tzedec Congregation
1700 Bathurst Street, Toronto

Dr. William Korey

A Remembrance Day event featuring DR. WILLIAM KOREY, human rights advocate and writer who served as the Director of the Anti-Defamation League in Washington, D.C.

In commemoration of Remembrance Day, MARTIN MAXWELL, who escaped Nazi Germany on the Kindertransport to England, and later served as a glider pilot during the invasion of Normandy, will share his memories on the 60th anniversary of that decisive battle.

This program, with special participation by CANTOR MEIR FINKELSTEIN, the BETH TZEDEC CHOIR and the JEWISH WAR VETERANS, will also include a candle lighting ceremony for the victims of the Shoah.

Admission Free ■ For more information call 416-781-3514 ext. 34

This program is generously co-sponsored by Martin and Eleanor Maxwell and family, and the Sam and Sarah Kerzner Holocaust Studies Institute.

HOLOCAUST EDUCATION WEEK, OCTOBER 28-NOVEMBER 11 is coordinated by
The Holocaust Centre of Toronto, UJA Federation.

For a brochure of all Holocaust Education Week events, call 416-631-5689 or visit www.holocausteducationweek.com

UJA Federation — Together We're Stronger

REMEMBER TOO

On Campus

Arrest made in Ryerson hate graffiti case

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

Amy Greenfeld remembers Kevin Haas from an encounter that took place a couple of months ago, during frosh week at the Wolfond Centre for Jewish Campus Life in downtown Toronto.

Haas, she recalled, was wearing a Star of David necklace and kind of withdrawn, sitting by himself and not interacting with the students present.

Greenfeld, program co-ordinator for Hillel at Ryerson University, walked over to Haas, introduced herself and engaged him in conversation. She found him "very passionate. He spoke enthusiastically. He was concerned about Jews on campus and in Jewish causes." Later, she was told by a student that Haas attended a Jewish camp when he was 11 years old.

At the frosh week event, he was also quite interested in hearing about the incidents of anti-Muslim and anti-Jewish vandalism that had struck Ryerson University over the summer, Greenfeld said. Knowing it was a sensitive area, she steered the conversation toward the improved relations between Jewish and Muslim students.

At the time, she said, "I didn't think anything of it."

Last week Haas, 21, was charged with seven counts of mischief under $5,000 and two counts of threatening death.

The charges relate to an anti-Muslim and anti-Jewish leaflet and graffiti campaign that hit Ryerson over the summer. On June 23, the school's multifaith room was spray painted with the words, "Die Muslims Die," as well as Stars of David. Later, a poster signed by a group calling itself the FBC Ridaz took responsibility for the incident and said it was in retaliation for anti-Jewish vandalism and graffiti.

Later in the summer, a flyer purporting to be from Jewish groups called on Toronto Jews to fight back against Muslim and Arabs and to "kill these Islamic infidels." That poster was signed by a group calling itself the Full Blooded Israeli Brigades. About two weeks ago, an anti-Islamic flyer was slid under the door of the Muslim and Arab student associations. It said, "those who follow Islam need to be killed in the worst possible way imaginable" and was signed "Notorious Motionz."

In all, police recorded 15 separate occurrences over the summer, said Det. Matt Moyer of Toronto Police Service's 51 Division.

Police said Haas was spotted by plainclothes Ryerson security personnel on Monday, Oct. 18, at around 7:40 in the evening posting flyers on the third floor of Ryerson's Podium building, near the offices of the Arab Student Association (ASA).

He was apprehended at the time with a large cache of flyers that resembled materials distributed earlier in the summer, and "was fairly forthcoming" in interrogations, said Supt. Randal Munroe of 51 Division.

Moyer said that prior to his arrest, Haas was "a person of interest" to police because of his relationship to people on campus. "We wanted to speak to him, and lo and behold, this guy, who originally was a person of interest, was caught… where he was actually posting posters."

Representatives of Ryerson University universally condemned the graffiti and applauded police and the school's security force for arresting Haas.

School president Claude Lajeunesse stressed that Haas was not a student at the downtown university and that the racist incidents, "rather than divide our campus, [have] united our campus."

Bernie Farber, executive director of Canadian Jewish Congress' Ontario region, said Congress and the Canadian Arab Federation came together on "this one large area of concern." The organizations issued a joint communique condemning the incidents, he said.

"Hate propaganda is reprehensible. It doesn't matter who carries it on," Farber said. He urged law enforcement officials to charge Haas with promoting hate and to ask for enhanced sentencing, if he's convicted, because of the racist nature of the other charges.

Munroe said police can't lay hate promotion charges independently, but require the consent of the provincial attorney general to do so.

Greenfeld, meanwhile, said the racist incidents, which included anti-Jewish graffiti, prompted Jewish students to open a dialogue with Arab and Muslim student groups. "We are definitely in better contact. Last year, there was virtually no contact," she said.

usefulideas®

We serve our clients, providing strategic value and financial security.

Health Benefits

Cost Containment & Satisfied Employees

Joel H. Rose, B.Sc.,CLU,CFP
Financial Security Advisor

t: 416-443-1396 ext. 23
e: joel@usefulideas.com
www.usefulideas.com
19 Madison Ave, Suite 200
Toronto, ON M5R 2S2

SHAAREI SHOMAYIM CONGREGATION
470 Glencairn Ave., Toronto, ON
Phone: 416-789-3213, Fax: 416-789-1728
info@shomayim.org www.shomayim.org

Shaarei Shomayim invites the Jewish Community to a Public Lecture on

The Mechitzah:
Halacha, History, Height
Shaarei Shomayim's Evolution

by
Rabbi Moshe Shulman

Saturday night
October 30, 2004
8:30 pm

followed by Melava Malka

Seek and discover.

The Discovery Seminar

Discovery is a one-stop extraordinary presentation that combines philosophy, psychology, history, and computer codes of the Bible, taking audiences on a journey into the "why" of being Jewish. Close to 200,000 have experienced Discovery! Sponsored by the Dan Family of Canada.

Speaker: Rabbi Eliyahu Bergstein, Senior Discovery Lecturer, New York

Tuesday, November 2, 7pm – 10pm
At York Woods Theatre, 1785 Finch Avenue West
Cost: $10. To register call 905-764-1818

www.aishtoronto.com

aish Thornhill

Beth Avraham Yoseph of Toronto Congregation Adult Education Committee presents, as part of the:

2nd Annual Scholar in Residence Program

Thursday, Nov. 4 to Shabbos, Nov. 6, 2004

Rabbi Kenneth N. Hain, of Congregation Beth Sholom of Lawrence, N.Y.

Past president of the Rabbinical Council of America (RCA)

"EVERYTHING NEW IS . . .

FORBIDDEN BY THE TORAH"

– Chasam Sofer

A public lecture by:
Rabbi Kenneth N. Hain
Thursday, November 4, 2004,
20th Cheshvan, 5765
at 8:00 pm.

Beth Avraham Yoseph of Toronto Congregation, 613 Clark Ave. W., Thornhill, in the Perlis Hall

Refreshments following
The Arlene & Julius Schreiber Scholar in Residence Program

Does your bathroom reflect your style?

From the simple to the sublime, you can see it all at Taps.

Kohler Santa Rosa
One piece compact elongated. Priced in white.

$399

Blanco Axia 8 Kitchen Sink
Clean geometric design maximizes bowl capacities. 31.5" x 20" Silgranit® finish in your choice of 4 finishes. Faucet extra.

$499

Sherwood Vanity Collection
Wood + chrome + glass = sensational and smart! Includes vanity, glass bowl and shelving, mirror and more. Faucet extra.

$1695

Robilux Terra Sink
Counter intelligence! New above-counter basin will bring any bathroom into the new age. 24" x 16".

$599

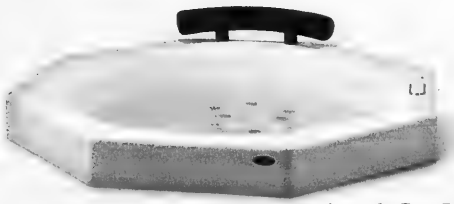
Thermobalance 1 System by hansgrohe
Enjoy the sensation of this new thermostatic shower system with integral volume control. Includes 3 spray modes, 24" wallbar and soap dish at an incredible price! Priced in chrome.

$399

Brushed Nickel $599

KWC Bliss Kitchen Faucet
Style and function! New pullout by KWC is a sure winner, especially at this price. Chrome.

$289



Neptune Negano Whirlpool
Submerge your body Japanese style! New whirlpool includes 4 turbo jets and 8 rotating back jets. 40" x 40" x 36". Neck rest optional.

$1499

Soaker Tub $699

Visit our website with on-line shopping at www.tapsbath.com

OR

CALL 1-800-263-2976

TAPS®

CELEBRATING 20 YEARS

1020 LAWRENCE WEST DESIGN CENTRE
WEST OF DUFFERIN
(416) 785-0224 or 1-800-263-2976
Mon-Wed 9-5, Thurs-Fri 9-8, Sat 9:30-5

1020

Health care should be a right, Cotler says

By JANICE ARNOLD
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL — Justice Minister Irwin Cotler said health care should be a constitutional right in an address at a recent international conference on how to meet the challenges of an aging population.

Cotler said he finds it inconsistent that the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms contains almost no mention of health, yet health is recognized as a human right in the International Covenant on Economic and Social Rights, to which Canada is a party.

"All other rights, as compelling as they are, pale if health is not the underpinning of all other rights," he said.

The three-day conference titled "Toward a New Perspective: From Aging to Aging Well" was organized by CLSC Rene-Cassin's Institute of Social Gerontology of Quebec and the Foundation for Vital Aging, with the International Foundation on Aging. More than 600 participants from 25 countries attended.

Cotler promised to relieve the burden on unpaid caregivers, whom he called the "unsung heroes" of the health-care system.

Cotler said one in five Canadians is currently caring for a family member or friend, often an elderly person, saving the system $5 billion a year.

He said caregivers must get their share of the extra $18 billion in federal money going into health care over the next six years, through improved home and community care.

Cotler said prevention of illness and the promotion of wellness should be fundamental goals of Canada's health care system. In the long run, he said that is more cost-effective than "more puffers and respirators."

Seniors should also get the level of health care they need, he indicated. "There's a misconception that you can't improve health later in life, but all the evidence challenges that," said Cotler, who noted his 65th birthday is on the horizon.

Irwin Cotler

But improving health care is not a matter of dollars and cents alone, Cotler said. It also requires a societal change in attitude.

"Seniors should not be seen as a burden, but as our fastest-growing national resource. We have to alter our perceptions. A profound change in values is required."

He also stressed the necessity of treating patients with dignity and addressing the emotional and psychological impact of illness. "People are not statistics," he said.

He related how his mother, in her 90s, was referred to as "number 21" in the emergency room of a Montreal hospital.

"I said to the doctors, 'She has a name. Not only might the wrong medicine be administered when people become numbers, but you are not treating them as a person.'"

Cotler believes that "the litmus test" of a society's worth is how its elderly are treated and how compassionate its health care system is.

Quebec Health Minister Philippe Couillard said the province needs more home care and admitted the government had failed to properly prepare for an aging population, even though the demographic forecasts were there.

"An aging population is good news basically... But society has no future if its young are exhausted when they are starting out in life or the 'sandwich generation' is crushed by responsibilities."

MARSHALL ARTS
presents

The Diary of Anne Frank

by Frances Goodrich and
Albert Hackett, newly adapted
by Wendy Kesselman

"Unforgettable Anne... this Diary features a strong cast led by Jennifer Waiser in the title role"
TORONTO SUN

"Anne is poignantly portrayed by Jennifer Waiser"
THE CJN

October 1 - November 7, 2004
Bathurst Street Theatre
736 Bathurst Street

Wed - Sat @ 8pm and Sun @ 2pm
Tickets: $25/$35

TICKETKING
(416) 872-1212
Group Discount Available

www.diaryofannefrank.ca

Friends of Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies

presents

Rabbi Abraham Cooper
Associate Dean, Simon Wiesenthal, Los Angeles

Wednesday, November 3, 7:30 p.m.
Beth Sholom Synagogue at Eglinton Ave. and Allen Rd.

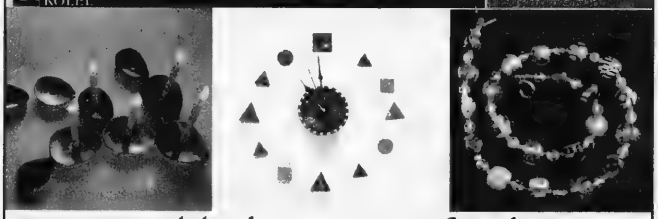
- The global campaign to declare suicide bombing a crime against humanity.
- Efforts to have European countries like Germany and Austria ban neo-Nazi and Muslim conferences from taking place.
- Efforts in France to have the legal system provide stiffer sentences for hate crimes and the introduction of educational programs for offenders.
- Global issues related to Sudan and human rights abuses in North Korea.

FREE TO THE PUBLIC

כולל KOLEL Hanukkah Art and Gift Show Fall 2004



Hanukkah Art & Gift Show
at A Show of Hands Petroff Gallery
1016 Eglinton Ave. W.
Wednesday, November 17, 7:30-9:30 p.m.
Great gift items will be available for sale. Wine bar.

Meet the artists and view their exquisite one-of-a-kind, art, jewelry, Judaica, textiles and ceramics. A percentage of each sale will support Kolel's future courses and programs.

כולל KOLEL
www.kolel.org

This program is supported by
PETROFF GALLERY

BEDDING SALE

Comforter Set	$169.49
Sheet Set	$21.00 (Q)
Pillows	$9.99 (K)
	$8.49 (Q)
Sheets (Flat/Fitted)	$12.00 (Q)

European Bedding
3111 Dufferin St.
Unit B-7 (@ Lawrence)
416.242-4001

28th ANNUAL
Jewish BOOK FAIR
NOVEMBER 4-14th, 2004

Dennis Prager

Naomi Ragen

Special Speakers to Open Jewish Book Fair

Thursday, November 4 at 8:00 pm
Naomi Ragen, author of The Covenant, speaks on
A View From Israel. Sponsored by Albert J. and Temmy Latner Jewish Public Library $18

Saturday, November 6 8:30 pm
Dennis Prager, author of Why the Jews? speaks on
The Reasons for Antisemitism. Sponsored by Canadian Friends of Tel Aviv University $18

Koffler Centre of the Arts presents
28th Annual Jewish Book Fair
November 4 - November 14
Leah Posluns Theatre
Bathurst Jewish Community Centre

Norman Jewison

Peter C. Newman

Nessa Rapoport

Tobi Kahn

Saturday, November 7

7:00 pm DAVID BEZMOZGIS, author of Natasha and Other Stories speaks on The Russian Jewish Immigrant Experience in Canada and AVNER MANDELMAN, author of Cuckoo, speaks on Living in Israel - Not as Easy as You Think.

Sponsored by The Canadian Jewish News $10

Sunday, November 7

11:00 am ELANA WOLFF, author of Mask, speaks on The Art and Life of Artist Charlotte Salamon. FREE

12 NOON Shmooze with authors HY BURSHTEIN, author of Ride 'Em, Jewish Cowboy and JUDY GORDON, author of Four Hundred Brothers and Sisters, Part Two.

1:30 pm NATHAN GARNICK presents A Wedding in Shtetl - The World of Isaac Bashevis Singer, commemorating the centenary of the Nobel Laureate's Birth. A Literary - Musical Revue in Yiddish and English. With Jeannette Stein, Faye Zeidman, Cantor Ronald Graner, Avra Fainer, Nathan Garnick, Nathan Rosen and other artists.

Sponsored by the Lipa Green Endowment Fund $5

2:00 pm ANNE DUBLIN, author of Bobbie Rosenfeld, The Olympian Who Could Do Everything speaks on One of Canada's all-round Great Athletes. Slide show. FREE

3:30 pm Facing Life's Crises: Three Perspectives
LAINIE COHEN, author of Crooked Smile: One Family's Journey Toward Healing; TILDA SHALOF, author of A Nurse's Story: Life, Death and In-Between in an Intensive Care Unit; MARA KOVEN and LIZ PEARL, co-authors of Mourning Has Broken: A Collection of Creative Writing About Grief and Healing.

Sponsored by Reena, supporting people with developmental difficulties. FREE

4:00 pm SIMCHA SIMCHOVITCH reads from his new book Nokh Dem Blut-Mabul; Reviews and Essays about Writers and Historical Events (After the Blood Inundation). GERRY KANE will review the book. Lenka Lichtenberg sings from SIMCHA SIMCHOVITCH'S books of poems. Introduced by Sholem Hershkop.

Program funded by The Toronto Arts Council through The League of Canadian Poets. Sponsored by LZA Seniors Yiddish Club. $5

7:30 pm DR. DAVID GREENBERG, author of Sanity and Sanctity: Mental Health Work Among the Ultra-Orthodox in Jerusalem speaks on Mysticism and Madness: The Impact of Mysticism on Mental Stability.

Sponsored by The Jewish Health Alliance: A Social and Professional Network for Health-Care Providers and Canadian Friends of Herzog Hospital - Ezrath Nashim. $10

8:00 pm LAURIE GRAFF, author of You Have to Kiss a Lot of Frogs: Tales from the Dating Pond speaks on A Remarkable Dating Career: Fix-Ups, Chance Encounters and Missed Opportunities.

Sponsored by Kolel: The Adult Centre for Liberal Jewish Learning Reviving Eden $10

Monday, November 8

1:30 pm MIRIAM BASSIN CHINSKY, reads from her book The Tailor's Daughter - Growing Up in North Toronto and EVELYN WOLFE, reads from Stray Cats and Other Loves: Growing Up Jewish in Toronto.

Sponsored by Canadian Seaway Branch, Women's League for Conservative Judaism Free

8:00 pm STEPHANIE WELLEN LEVINE speaks on her book Mystics, Mavericks and Merrymakers: An Intimate Journey Among Hasidic Girls. $10

Tuesday, November 9

10:30 am Play performed by the Dr. Abraham Shore Shearim Hebrew Day School, Sara and Sam Hennick Education Centre. Play based on book, Onions and Garlic by ERIC KIMMEL.
Ages 7+ Students $1 Adults $3

1:30 pm EVA WISEMAN, speaks on her latest book, No One Must Know. Ages 10-14. Adults welcome. Students $1/Adults $3

8:00 pm MICHAEL POSNER, arts and feature writer for the National Post, and author of The Last Honest Man: Mordecai Richler An Oral Biography speaks on Mordecai Richler's Cultural and Political Views.

Sponsored by Canadian Friends of Peace Now $10

Wednesday, November 10

10:30 am Shearim School play based on book, Onions and Garlic by ERIC KIMMEL [See Tuesday, Nov. 9, 10:30 am]

1:30 pm KATHY KACER speaks on her latest book, The Underground Reporters: A True Story. This is the fourth book in the series The Holocaust Remembrance Series for Young Readers.

For ages 8-11. Adults welcome. Students $1 Adults $3

8:00 pm Movie producer/director NORMAN JEWISON speaks on his autobiography, This Terrible Business Has Been Good to Me.

Sponsored by Canadian Friends of Hebrew University. $10

Thursday, November 11

10:30 am & 1:30 pm KATHY KACER speaks on her latest book, The Underground Reporters: A True Story [see Wednesday, November 10 at 1:30].

8:00 pm PETER C. NEWMAN, author of Here be Dragons speaks on Tales of People, Passion and Power.

Sponsored by Na'amat Canada $10

Saturday, November 13

8:00 pm STEWART BELL, author of Cold Terror: How Canada Nurtures and Exports Terrorism Around the World speaks on Our National Security and the Terrorists Who Live Among Us.

Sponsored by B'nai Brith Canada $10

Sunday, November 14

10:30 am KATHY KACER speaks on her latest book, The Underground Reporters: A True Story.

For ages 8-11. Adults welcome. Children $1 Adults $3

11:00 am ANDREW SANDERS speaks on his latest historical novel, My Husband Bar Kokhba.

Sponsored by Kehillat Shaare Torah FREE

11:00 am LAUNCH OF PARCHMENT AT THE MILES S. NADAL JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTRE.

With Coffee and Bagels FREE

1:30 pm The Yetta and Shloime Steinhart Yiddish Lecture featuring new book Sing and Learn Yiddish by CAROL AND MUNI BASMAN. Guest Performer JERRY GRAY.

Sponsored by Committee for Yiddish, UJA Federation, Friends of Yiddish, Kultur Geselshaft, United Jewish People's Order, Morris Winchevsky School, Workmen's Circle of Toronto and Label Basman Scholarship Memorial Fund $5

3:00 pm JOSEPH E. TENENBAUM, author of Legacy and Redemption speaks on A Life Renewed.

Sponsored by The Holocaust Centre of Toronto. FREE

3:30 pm JILL CULINER, author of Finding Home: In the Footsteps of the Jewish Fusgeyers speaks on Fleeing Persecution: The Romanian Jews Who Walked Across Europe to Find Freedom.

Sponsored by Sumach Press. FREE

4:30 pm BENNETT MURASKIN speak on his new book, Let Justice Well Up Like Water: Progressive Jews from Hillel to Helen Suzman

Sponsored by Oraynu Congregation for Humanistic Judaism FREE

7:00 pm Writing the Jewish Mystery with SYLVIA MAULTASH WARSH, author of Find Me Again; ALVIN ABRAM, author of An Eye for an Eye and ROBERT MAJZELS, author of Apikoros Sleuth.

Sponsored by The Miriam Alkin Memorial Fund in support of Jewish Education $10

8:00 pm NESSA RAPOPORT speaks on her newest book, A House on the River, with TOBI KAHN, artist/author of Objects of the Spirit: Ritual Art of Tobi Kahn [accompanying meditations by Nessa Rapoport]. An exciting literary and artistic presentation by a creative couple. $10

UJA FEDERATION — KOFFLER CENTRE OF THE ARTS — BJCC BATHURST JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTRE — United Way of Greater Toronto

Jewish Book Fair
Is a program of the Koffler Centre of the Arts at the Bathurst Jewish Community Centre with the cooperation of UJA Federation.

Ticket orders by phone at 416-636-1880, ext. 368 or in person at the Leah Posluns Theatre Box Office, 4588 Bathurst Street
Box Office Hours: Monday through Friday 10:00 am to 4:00 pm. Programs subject to change. No Refunds on tickets and books.
Parking and Entrance to Jewish Book Fair is FREE. More at our website: www.bjcc.ca, Become a Patron of Jewish Book Fair!

usefulideas®

We serve our clients, providing strategic value and financial security.

Maturing RRSP's?

Retirement Income Funds

Enhance Your Standard of Living

Joel H. Rose, B.Sc.,CLU,CFP
Financial Security Advisor

t: 416-443-1396 ext. 23
e: joel@usefulideas.com
www.usefulideas.com
19 Madison Ave, Suite 200
Toronto, ON M5R 2S2

Adath Israel Congregation

Adult Study Committee
Proudly Presents

Chief Charles Ramsey
Chief of Police, Washington, DC
To Better Serve and Protect Through the Lessons of the Holocaust
Thursday 28 October 2004 at 7:30 pm

Rabbi Erwin Schild
Rabbi Emeritus, Adath Israel Congregation
Dachau and Beyond
Tuesday 2 November at 8:00 pm

Solly Kaminsky
Director, Yad VaShem, Jerusalem
Expanding Yad VaShem
Sunday Morning, 14 November 2004, at 10:30 am

Rabbi Saltzman
Senior Rabbi, Adath Israel Congregation
The Soul of the Psalm

Psalm 23: The Lord is my shepherd
Monday 8 November at 8:00 pm

Psalm 19: The heavens declare the glory of God
Monday 15 November at 8:00 pm

Psalm 30: My mourning have You turned into dancing
Monday 6 December at 8:00 pm

37 Southbourne Avenue, Toronto, Ontario L4J 8R4 416.635.5340

Coast to Coast

U.S. Jews in Toronto appear to favour Kerry

By SHELDON KIRSHNER
Staff Reporter

With the U.S. presidential election less than a week away, it appears that most Jewish Americans in Toronto are voting for Democrat John Kerry, not his Republican opponent, President George W. Bush.

An unscientific sampling of Americans Jews living here found that three out of five voted for Kerry by absentee ballot. A sixth – who would not reveal his vote – said that American Jews, who have historically cast their ballots for Democrats by a margin of about four to one, are "conflicted."

Richard Rotman, a 52-year-old permanent resident who moved to Toronto from Chicago 18 years ago, voted for Kerry.

"Bush is an accidental president," said Rotman, a partner in What If What Next, a public relations and business development company. "I don't respect him. I don't think he's up to the job."

A Democrat who has voted for liberal Republicans in the past, Rotman supported Bush's decision to invade Iraq and appreciates his pro-Israel sympathies. But he is wary of the president's close ideological affinity with Christian fundamentalists and believes Bush has mishandled domestic issues such as the economy.

"His tax cuts to the wealthy are horrendous and appalling. Kerry is closer to the needs of ordinary Americans. He is also smarter and more insightful and articulate."

And in a reference to Kerry's days as a soldier in the Vietnam War, Rotman observed, "Kerry served his country and didn't get out of it like Bush."

He added, "A fresh start is needed."

Rabbi Wayne Allen of Beth Tikvah, a Conservative synagogue, also voted for Kerry.

Born and raised in Manhattan and a resident of Toronto since 1987, the rabbi said that Kerry "is more in touch with the complexity of world issues and offers a more hopeful and inclusive message. I'm profoundly grateful to Bush for his pro-Israel stance, but it's not sufficient to earn my vote."

Rabbi Allen, 53, a landed immigrant who voted for Democrat Al Gore in 2000, criticized the Bush administration for committing major mistakes of judgment in Iraq."The pre-war intelligence was faulty and the decision-making process was poor."

Rabbi Allen said Bush is a divisive figure. "He was elected on a platform that was supposed to unite Americans, but the country is more divided, and the economy is weaker."

Although many of his friends and relatives in the United States gravitate toward Kerry, the rabbi said they plan to vote for Bush because of his positions on Israel and the war against terrorism.

Richard Rotman

Adam Sol, a 34-year-old writer and former literature professor from Danbury, Conn., voted for Kerry, too.

"I've been a Democratic my whole life," noted Sol, who moved to Toronto six years ago so that his wife, Rabbi Yael Splansky, could accept a job at Holy Blossom Temple.

A landed immigrant, Sol is definitely anti-Bush. "I don't like where the current administration is taking the U.S., or its notions of empire."

In his view, the key campaign issues are competence and integrity. On this score, he believes Kerry outpaces Bush by a wide margin.

Michael Stavsky, a 29-year-old modern Orthodox Jew and a dual citizen of Canada and the United States, is a Bush supporter.

Four years ago, he voted for Gore, and in 1996, he leaned toward Republican Bob Dole. "I haven't voted for a winner yet," he quipped.

He explained his thinking.

"In 2000, Bush was somewhat unknown and I thought Gore would be better for the country. But now, given his record on terrorism, his leadership after 9/11 and his pro-Israel stance, I'm voting for Bush."

Iraq is also of concern to Stavsky, a graphic artist from Los Angeles.

"Bush did a very good job leading the country to war in Iraq, which was warranted. Saddam Hussein posed a great threat to Israel."

Asked about her preference, a 71-year-old local real estate agent who voted for Bush in 2000 and Bill Clinton in 1996 agreed to an interview only if promised anonymity. "My husband told me, 'You keep a low profile and keep your mouth shut.'"

Having been assured that her name will not be revealed, she said she intended to vote for Bush again. "He's pro-Israel and that's important."

But she said Iraq is also crucial to her decision.

"Bush is trying to finish up in Iraq and Kerry has no plans to do so. Kerry is a dreamer when he talks about a national health care plan. And he vacillates on the issues. Bush is doing the best he can to protect America."

A landed immigrant from New York who has lived here since 1958, she seemed annoyed when she noted that all her American friends are pro-Kerry. "It's extraordinary," she fumed.

Rabbi Baruch Frydman-Kohl of Beth Tzedec, a Conservative congregation and Canada's largest synagogue, confessed that he has "a deep, deep problem" with both Bush and Kerry.

"Voting was agonizing," said the rabbi, who was born in Wisconsin, raised in Illinois, arrived here 12 years ago and is now a Canadian citizen. "American Jews are really conflicted about this election."

Rabbi Frydman-Kohl, whose cousin Herb Kohl represents the state of Wisconsin in the U.S. Senate, declined to say which candidate he chose.

But he was perfectly willing to discuss the issues.

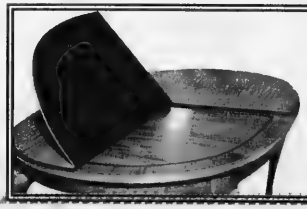
"I find Bush is a strong supporter of Israel, and his concern for strong family values is very compelling. But at the same time, I'm deeply opposed to his positions on abortion, the selection of Supreme Court judges, the environment and taxation policies.

"I supported the decision to go into Iraq, but in retrospect, the rationale for the war was based on incorrect information, and I was disturbed that there was not any post-war planning."

As for Kerry, the rabbi expressed doubt whether he can fulfill his pledges to bring home the troops, foster Iraqi democracy and balance the U.S. budget without tax increases.

The rabbi values Kerry – a U.S. senator – as an astute and nuanced thinker. "But ultimately, nuance has to give way to clear and decisive decisions. I was having problems whether he could make such decisions."

In addition, he is worried that Kerry has never occupied an administrative post in which he was personally held accountable for his actions.



FREE Leaf Bag with order

Protect Your Table
Made-To-Measure Table Pads
Prevents scratches, burns & spills
Free in-home service • Factory Direct Pricing

MagnaLoc

DOVER PAD
QUALITY SINCE 1950

Montreal: (514) 420-6030
Canada: (800) 354-4445
www.doverpad.ca

20% Off!
CHANUKAH EXTRAVAGANZA
Sale ends October 29th

481

NEW YORK'S "JEWISH SOUL" MUSICAL COMES TO TORONTO!

Your Ancestors live again in...

Jay Kholos'

A Stoop on Orchard Street

DIRECT FROM NEW YORK!!

THREE SHOWS JUST ADDED!!
MONDAY (11/1) AT 8PM
TUESDAY (11/2) AT 2 AND 8PM

"THE WORTHY SUCCESSOR TO FIDDLER."

Take a nostalgic trip back to the year 1910. Share the trials and triumphs of the Lomansky family and their "stoop" friends as they strive to live the American dream in the teeming tenements of the Lower East Side of New York. Don't miss this big musical with 18 original and hummable songs and a cast of 24.

Breaking records everywhere it plays, A Stoop On Orchard Street is the must see musical with "Jewish Soul."

"An extremely enjoyable musical...a glimpse into Jewish immigrant life of New York's Lower East Side...I loved the ending!"
–Dr. Ruth, TV personality, Therapist, Author, Lecturer

"It's a hit!"–New York Times

"...a modern musical with a sentimental longing for the past. What makes this theater experience successful is its heart and Jewish soul."–Thane Rosenbaum, novelist and essayist on Jewish art and culture

"The perfect show that conveys to 2nd, 3rd and 4th generation Jews, the price their grandparents paid to build a life in America!"
–June Walker, National President of Hadassah

"...one of the finest pieces of musical theatre anywhere..."–BEST OF publishers

ZAGAT® rates it EXCELLENT!–Wall Street Journal Survey says "smart story, well-crafted songs...not a dry eye in the house."

"The best musical I've seen On or Off-Broadway in years..."
–Joe Franklin (WOR Radio)

Celebrate 350
Jewish Life in America
1654 - 2004

SHOWS WILL SELL OUT! ORDER TICKETS SOON! DIRECT FROM NEW YORK!

LEAH POSLUNS THEATRE of the BATHURST JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTRE,
4588 Bathurst Street, Toronto

Just Added! Monday, Nov. 1st at 8PM
Tuesday Nov. 2nd at 2 & 8PM.

Mon. 10/25	Tue. 10/26	Wed. 10/27	Thur. 10/28	Mon. 11/1	Tue. 11/2
8pm	2pm & 8pm	2pm & 8pm	2pm & 8pm	8pm	2pm & 8pm

For tickets, call 866-527-8667. For group rates only, call 877-358-7764.

Tickets from 39.95 to 49.95

For more information about this critically acclaimed production visit www.astooponorchardstreet.com

Deceptive talk from a prominent Palestinian

According to Reports

By PAUL MICHAELS

Recently, Michael Tarazi, legal advisor to the PLO, wrote in the New York Times ("Two peoples, one state," Oct. 4) that Israel should disappear as a Jewish state.

At least, that's what his argument amounted to. On the surface he insisted that Israel's policies in the territories are pushing Palestinians away from a two-state solution in favour of one bi-national state, "in which citizens of all faiths and ethnicities live together as equals." Sounds idyllic. Except that "[a]s Christians and Muslims, the millions of Palestinians under occupation are not welcome in the Jewish state," he said.

Tarazi enlisted familiar anti-Israel propaganda – Israelis are greedy, they want Palestinian land but not the Palestinian people; Israel, like the formerly white-ruled South Africa, is creating an apartheid state in the territories; and so on – in order to delegitimize Israel.

Not surprisingly, Tarazi ignored Israel's attempts, just a few years ago at Camp David and Taba, to extricate itself from the territories and to give the Palestinians a full state, only to have this rejected by Palestinian Authority President Yasser Arafat. Nor is there any mention of the widespread Palestinian violence that forced Israeli troops back into the territories and compelled Israel to build a security fence.

Tarazi does discuss the fence (a "barrier wall"), but only in the context of a further Israeli "land grab." Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's plan for a unilateral withdrawal from Gaza is described as a deception to further entrench Israel's hold on the West Bank.

The seductiveness of Tarazi's argument is as clever as it is sinister. Appealing to the naiveté of his Western liberal audience by playing on their belief in the principle of "equality," Tarazi wrote that the one-state solution would not lead to the elimination of Israel as a Jewish state, it would only "destroy the superior status of Jews in that state."

Tarazi refrained from mentioning that Jews, who would quickly become a minority in yet another Arab state, would hardly be equal, let alone safe. His vision is a lie. In fact, it's a throwback to the PLO's former, and long-held, position against a two-state solution for Israelis and Palestinians.

Today, many Israeli analysts fear that the PLO never gave up its original vision calling for the destruction of Israel. Indeed, it has not met its commitment to rewrite its rejectionist charter.

Tarazi wrote that the bi-national or one-state solution is "not officially" advocated by "any senior Palestinian leader." Yet here is a senior legal advisor to the PLO urging just that. This alone is proof of Tarazi's mendacity and almost certainly signals an approval in official channels.

He repeated much the same argument in the Israeli liberal daily Ha'aretz ("Kicking the beehive," Oct. 20). That it is easy for Tarazi to find a platform for his deception is a sad testament to the appeal that someone like him – an official Palestinian spokesperson – can now achieve in the mainstream media. Let the reader beware.

* * *

Appearing on the Michael Coren Show in a discussion about terrorism, (Oct. 19 on CTS) Mohammed Elmasry, president of the Canadian Islamic Congress, said it's OK to kill any Israeli over the age of 18.

Here he is in his own words.

Elmasry: "From 18 on, [all Israelis] are part of the soldiers, even if they have civilian clothes…"

Coren: "So everyone in Israel and anyone and everyone in Israel, irrespective of gender, over the age of 18 is a valid target?"

Elmasry: "Yes, I would say."

Paul Michaels is communications director for the Canada-Israel Committee.

We Manage the Quality of Your Lifestyle. Not Just a Building.

For condominium management that goes well beyond your expectations, please call Jim Samuel or Howard Rubinoff at 416-398-5757.

Discover a level of personal attention, care and commitment superior to anything you have yet experienced.

Samuel
PROPERTY MANAGEMENT LTD.

3625 Dufferin Street, Suite 310, Toronto ON M3K 1Z2
Tel: 416-398-5757 • Fax: 416-398-4988 • Web: www.samuel.org

Leo Baeck
A Reform Jewish Day School
North Campus
36 Atkinson Avenue
South Campus
1950 Bathurst Street

The Leo Baeck Day School Is Seeking Teachers For Primary, Junior And Intermediate Levels

Language Arts, Math, Science, Social Studies, Core French, Hebrew Language

Full and Part Time Occasional

Resume should be faxed to:
Principal
Leo Baeck Day School
905-709-1999

Regretfully only short-listed applicants will be contacted.

HOLLYWOOD CLOTHING
— CLOSING SALE —
RETIRING AFTER 62 YEARS
Saville Row, Cambridge, Vespucci, Royal, Jockey.
Dealers and Public invited.
Thousands of men's suits, tuxedos, pants & shirts.
Suit sizes: 34 short - 66 extra tall.
176 John St. (north of Queen St. W.) Appts. 416-593-0859
Alterations done on premises STORE HOURS: Daily 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

Congregation Darchei Noam — A Vibrant, Egalitarian and Inclusive Community

Join Us for These Adult Education Events

At Darchei Noam, we value lifelong Jewish learning and provide a wide diversity of educational programs, open to members and non-members alike.

Our engaging Fall line-up includes the following programs, and many more! Attend any and all, and grow Jewishly with us.

SUNDAY October 24 & 31
'The Jews of Toronto The Development of a Shteti'
Sunday Lecture Series with renowned historians Frank Bialystok & Hesh Troper

FRI. & SAT. October 29 & 30
Scholar in Residence Weekend:
Rabbi Richard Hirsh on 'Reviewing and Renewing the Roots of Reconstructionism'

WEDNESDAY November 10
'Who, Me? How Israeli Technology Affects Your Everyday Life'
With technology entrepreneur Al Gordon

SUNDAY November 14 & 21 & 28
'The Jews of Toronto The Development of a Shteti'
Sunday Lecture Series with renowned historians Frank Bialystok & Hesh Troper

SUNDAY November 21
'Learn Hebrew Reading in a Day'
($50 registration fee, lunch provided)

TUESDAY November 30
'Fidelity, Idolatry and Sexuality – How Our Haftarot Speak to Women'
with Rabbi Elyse Goldstein

Congregation Darchei Noam
Reconstructionist Synagogue of Toronto
For more information: www.darcheinoam.on.ca or 416.638.4783
Shabbat services: 10:00 a.m. Rabbi Tina Grimberg
15 Hove Street (Bathurst and Sheppard) • Office: 20 Martin Ross Avenue

Netivot HaTorah
נתיבות התורה

Netivot HaTorah Day School
express our deepest condolences to the wife, children, grandchildren, and families of Eugene Sandorfy ז"ל

His commitment to Jewish education
And his warmth and strength
Will be sorely missed by all of us.

Coast to Coast

Charges withdrawn against one suspect in UTT firebombing case

By JANICE ARNOLD
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL – Jewish officials expressed their continuing confidence in the justice system last week after charges were withdrawn against one of the suspects in the United Talmud Torahs (UTT) firebombing case because of insufficient evidence.

Canadian Jewish Congress' Quebec region chair Jeffrey Boro expressed sympathy for Simon Zogheib for having been accused of a crime that the Crown now says it can't prove he committed.

"I would feel bad for anyone forced to go through this ordeal, only to be told, 'Sorry we arrested you, but we can't make a case against you,'" said Boro, who is a criminal lawyer.

"[Zogheib] has no criminal record, he spent five days in jail and has had this hanging over his head for six months… The Crown is saying that it is not fair to make him suffer any more by continually bringing him before the courts."

B'nai Brith Canada legal counsel Steven Slimovitch, also a criminal lawyer, said it's important that the Jewish community not give the impression that it's on a "witchhunt," or that it fears the Crown is slackening its efforts.

> CJC, B'nai Brith pleased Crown taking case very seriously

"This is not a witchhunt or a lynching. We never sought to tar and feather anyone. It would not benefit the Jewish community in any way to prosecute someone who is not responsible."

Both expressed satisfaction that the Crown is taking the case very seriously and understands the Jewish community's concern. Boro said the prosecution has been in close contact with members of the community, and if anyone is found guilty, a victims' impact statement may be entered before sentencing.

Prosecutor Anne Aube last week dropped charges of arson and conspiracy against Zogheib, 19, who was arrested in May. He had been free on bail under strict conditions. The only evidence that has been presented in court was at their bail hearings, and it remains under a publication ban.

Sleiman Elmerhabi, 18 at the time of the April 5 incident, remains in custody and is scheduled to next appear in court Dec. 1, at which time a date may be set for a preliminary hearing. His mother, Rouba Fahd-Elmerhabi, charged with being an accessory after the fact, is out on bail. Both have pleaded not guilty and elected for trial by judge and jury.

Zogheib is the third suspect in the April 5 incident at UTT's St. Laurent campus to be let go. The other two, also young men, were released shortly after they were arrested at the same time as the other three in May. Police said then that other arrests might be made.

A note left at the scene of the arson, which virtually destroyed the school's library, was signed by a group that police said was unknown to them. The note claimed the firebombing was revenge for Israel's assassination of Hamas spiritual leader Sheik Ahmed Yassin.

Zogheib's lawyer, Serge Segal, said his client looks forward to the time when he will be able to tell his story. In the meantime, Segal has advised him not to speak to the media. "One day the whole story will be told," Segal said.

He said he was convinced from the outset that his client was not involved. "I'm Jewish, and if I had any personal suspicion, it would have been very hard for me to take on this case."

Segal described his client as a Maronite Christian of Lebanese origin who lived in St. Laurent and had been attending CEGEP. "He has nothing against the Jewish people," Segal said.

"This was a tremendously hard experience for him and his family… he went through hell," he said, and suggested the teen will continue to suffer until everything is in the open.

Segal said he placed no obstacles in the way of police in their investigation, and had no criticism of their work. "They just needed time to do their job," he said.

He said he appreciated the position taken by the Jewish community officials. "We note with pride the remarks of representatives of the Jewish community that their wish has always been that justice be done, and that an innocent individual not be convicted."

Slimovitch said that if it turns out the firebombing was not organized by some kind of ring, it would alleviate a lot of worry in the community.

He said he is satisfied that the Crown views this as a "hate-motivated" crime, which will enable it to seek a stiffer sentence.

Dropping the charges against Zogheib will enable the prosecution to put all its resources into building a case against the other two, against which the evidence is strong, he said.

UTT spokesperson Shelley Paris said the school would not comment on developments in the case.

Family Moments

only from The Canadian Jewish news

Mazel Tov to...

Happy 95th birthday to Adeline Borins from the Borins, Fine, Borinsky, Sutton, Angel, Berris, Middleton families and friends. Greetings from Min Fingerhut, Dorothy Kohen and M. Lee.

Mazel tov to Fara & Michael Forman and sisters Jordyn and Samantha on the birth of Joshua Ethan. Grandparents Elaine & Alan Rubinoff, Wendy & Don Forman.

Mazel tov to Lana Goldrich, Eny Kadosh and Shira Green on graduating Grade 12 from Ulpanat Orot. Best wishes in Jerusalem. Love, parents Michael & Francine, Marc & Judy, Moshe & Faigy.

Mazel tov to Connie & Ben Kachuck on your 50th wedding anniversary. All our love, your children and grandchildren.

Fern & Joel Pinsk and sister Hannah welcome Sarah Talia. Grandparents Trudi & Bill Mondrow, Denny & Zol Pinsk and extended family share in their joy.

Mazel tov to Sheri & Larry Spear of Chicago on the birth of Mikayla Cameron. Grandparents are Shirley & Marvin Harris of Toronto, Susan & Robert Spear of New York and great-grandmother Anne Harris.

SEND US YOUR PHOTOS!!

Label the back of all photos and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for return. Send all your photos to: The CJN, Family Moments, 1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, ON. M3B 3K4.

JNF
Say it with Trees
"In Loving Memory"
JEWISH NATIONAL FUND
416-638-7200

What's New

By REBECCA NADLER

YAD VASHEM
GALA DINNER
NOV 14, 2004
Guest Speaker: MOSHE SAFDIE Architect of the New Museum
416-785-1333

What's New Deadlines: Monday, Nov. 1, is the deadline for the Nov. 11 issue and Monday, Nov. 8, is the deadline for the Nov. 18 issue. Phone 416-391-1836, fax 416-391-0829 or e-mail rnadler@cjnews.com.

HOLOCAUST EDUCATION WEEK. For information, contact 416-631-5689 or visit www.holocausteducationweek.com.

THURSDAY, OCT. 28

Opening night of Holocaust Education Week features Charles Ramsey, chief of police in Washington, D.C., on "To Better Serve and Protect: Preserving the Peace and Protecting Human Rights Through the Lessons of the Holocaust." 8 p.m. Adath Israel Congregation.

SATURDAY, OCT. 30

Irena Kohn on "The Legend of the Lodz Ghetto Children." 8 p.m. at the Winchevsky Centre.

SUNDAY, OCT. 31

The Jewish Genealogical Society of Canada presents "Ukrainians, Jews and Poles in Eastern Galicia: June-July 1941" with Marco Carynnyk, 3:30 p.m. at Shaarei Shomayim Congregation.

TUESDAY, NOV. 2

Rabbi Erwin Schild on "Dachau and Beyond." 8 p.m. Adath Israel Congregation. 416-635-5340.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 3

"My Personal Testimony" with Yael Spier Cohen. 1:30 p.m. at the Bernard Betel Centre.

THURSDAY, NOV. 4

"Love, Loss and Memory: Ripples of the Holocaust." Merle Nudelman reading from her book Borrowed Light and examining her role as the child of a survivor. Temple Har Zion. 8 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 29

SOLEL GUEST SPEAKER

Avrum Rosensweig, executive director of Ve'ahavta, speaks at Solel Synagogue. 8 p.m. For information, call 905-820-5915.

Sunday, Oct. 31

JEWS OF INDIA

Anne Samson speaks about "Jews of India" at Adath Sholom Sisterhood's opening breakfast meeting. 9:30 a.m. $3. Bring a food-bank contribution. 864 Sheppard Ave. W. 416-635-0131.

PRE-LOVED FUR SALE

National Council of Jewish Women will hold its second annual pre-loved fur sale. 10 a.m.-2 p.m. 4700 Bathurst St. 416-633-5100.

FASHION SHOW

Beth David Sisterhood hosts its annual fashion show at 2 p.m. Come at noon and shop at unique boutiques. $20. Call Sonia Slobodsky, 416-226-1831.

HADAG NACHASH CONCERT

Israel's popular hip-hop band, Hadag Nachash, plays at the Capitol Event Theatre, 2492 Yonge St. Doors open at 7:30 p.m. Show starts 8 p.m. Advance tickets $25, students $20. At the door $30, students $25. For tickets, call 416-913-2424.

ZAIDE & BUBBE MAYSES

"The Lies Your Grandparents Told You." Leave your little ghosts and goblins behind and join Kolel for an evening of fun, laughter and learning about Judaism and its superstitions with Rabbi Elyse Goldstein. 7:30-9:30 p.m. 416-7007.

Monday, Nov. 1

OUT OF THE COLD

The Out of the Cold program provides homeless and needy individuals with food, clothing, nursing attention and a warm bed during the winter months. Learn how you can help this winter by attending a volunteer information night at Beth Emeth Synagogue. 7 p.m.

VIEWS ON SEXUALITY

Rabbi Roy and Loretta Tanenbaum lead text studies and discussion on fundamental Jewish views toward human sexuality. Mondays, starting tonight through Nov. 29 at 7:15 p.m. at Beth Tzedec. 416-781-3514 ext. 34.

Continued on page 33

NORTH YORK GENERAL HOSPITAL
Including the IODE Children's Centre

Strategy for the Future

North York General Hospital is currently involved in a comprehensive strategic planning process to identify our future role in the healthcare system for the next three years.

We invite you to participate in this dynamic process and to share your thoughts about North York General Hospital's role in the community.

GENERAL DIVISION

Thursday, November 4, 2004, 7:00-9:00 p.m.
Auditorium, Academic Centre, Ground Level
North York General Hospital, 4001 Leslie St. (Leslie & Sheppard)

BRANSON DIVISION

Thursday, November 4, 2004, 2:30-4:30 p.m.
Auditorium, Basement Level
North York General Hospital, 555 Finch Ave. W. (Finch & Bathurst)

Free parking and refreshments

THE TORONTO JEWISH HEALING PROJECT

The Toronto Jewish Healing Project is offering a 4 week session.

UJA FEDERATION
No one gift changes more lives.

A Spiritual Support Group for those coping with physical illness and/or emotional despair.

This group will provide sustenance for those seeking spiritual and emotional healing in a respectful community. The sessions will include study of sacred texts, rabbinic commentary, prayer, music and meditation. The group will be led by

Michelle Katz, Educator

Cantor Beny Maissner, Holy Blossom Temple

Location: Holy Blossom Temple, 1950 Bathurst Street

Day: Wednesdays

Time: 11:15 a.m. – 12:30 p.m.

Dates: November 3rd to November 24th, 2004 incl.

Fee required: $30.
Assistance available on request

To Register please call:
Ms. Etta Ginsberg McEwan, Co-ordinator
at 416-944-3359

"Sponsored by The Philanthropic Fund of Toronto Hebrew Memorial Park"

What's New

Continued from page 32

READING OF BIRTHRIGHT

Medina Theatre Ensemble presents a staged reading of Birthright by Richard Maibaum, the story of a family, set in 1930s Germany. 8 p.m. 15 Hove St. Free. 416-485-1967.

CANDLES AND MIKVAH

"Commandments for Women" with Ilana Sober. Candles and mikvah will be explored, beginning tonight through Dec. 13, at Garnet Williams Community Centre, 501 Clarke Ave. W. from 8-10 p.m. To register, call 416-398-1510 or www.mekorot.ca.

Tuesday, Nov. 2

DAY SCHOOL OPEN HOUSE

Paul Penna Downtown Jewish Day School is having an open house at the Miles Nadal JCC, 250 Spadina Ave., 7:30-9 p.m. RSVP to 416-928-3537 or doris@djds.ca.

ADULT EDUCATION SERIES

Rabbi Moshe Stern presents a series of lectures Tuesday nights on various subjects. Tonight, "Was There Ever a Jewish Pope." 8 p.m. Shaarei Tefillah Congregation.

Wednesday, Nov. 3

A HEALING SERVICE

The Toronto Healing Project begins a 4-week spiritual support group for coping with physical illness and emotional distress today at Holy Blossom Temple with Michelle Katz and Cantor Ben Maissner. 11:15 a.m.-12:20 p.m. $30. To register, call Etta 416-944-3359.

THE DAVID STORY

Join Beth Tikvah Synagogue Sisterhood in its study of King David with Rabbi Wayne Allen using Robert Alter's 1999 translation and commentary, The David Story. 9:30-11 a.m. 416-221-3433, ext 0.

USDS INFO EVENING

Join United Synagogue Day School for an information and registration evening at Beth Tikvah Synagogue, 3080 Bayview Ave. This evening is for families interested in any of the three USDS campuses. 7:30-9 p.m., 416-224-8737, ext. 137.

Other news

READ AND LEARN HEBREW

Pride of Israel Synagogue offers a crash course in Hebrew Reading that will teach you how to follow synagogue services or help your child with their Jewish studies. Five Sundays beginning Oct. 31, 11 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Call 416-226-0111, ext. 10.

Mekorot offers "Hebrew by Way of Dialogue: Book of Genesis" with Hilda Weil. Mondays evenings through Dec. 6, 8-9:30 p.m. at Shaarei Shomayim. 416-398-1510.

Beth Emeth Synagogue will be running a crash course in Hebrew reading, beginner's level, starting Wednesday, Nov. 3, at 8 p.m., and continuing for 6 weeks. To register for this free course, call 416-633-3838.

AISH PROGRAMS

"Wednesday Night Learning Café." Choose from 4 classes, 8 p.m., through to Dec. 1. Fee. "Coffee with Adrienne Gold" every Tuesday at 8 p.m. until Dec. 14. For women only – learn tools for living life to the fullest. $5. "The Ten Questions Everyone Asks About Judaism," every Tuesday at 8 p.m. until Nov. 30. 949 Clark Ave. W. For information and registration, call 905-764-1818 or visit www.aishtoronto.com.

YOUNG JUDAEA PROGRAM

Canadian Young Judaea offers Mifgash Fall Reunion, Oct. 29-31. For information, e-mail young judaea@bellnet.ca.

RELIGIOUS LEADERS' FORUM

The Interfaith Social Assistance Reform Coalition invite the public to their Fall Religious Leaders' Forum, "Taxes: What We Owe Each Other," 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 4, at Queen's Park Legislative Building, rooms 228-230. This informative event offers an opportunity to meet members of provincial parliament. For information, visit www.isarc.ca.

CRAFT AND GIFT SALE

Community Hebrew Academy of Toronto's upcoming Chanukah craft and gift sale, "CHATchkes," takes place on Sunday, Nov. 21, at the Tanenbaum Campus, 200 Wilmington Ave., 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Free.

RENEWING OUR SPIRIT

Join Torah in Motion for its third annual conference, "Renewing Our Spirit," with Rabbi Michael Broyde, Rabbi Pini Dunner, Rabbi Dr. Norman Lamm, Rabbi Dr. Nathan Lopes-Cardozo, Rabbi Yaakov Yosef Reinman, Ms. Bracha Rutner and Rabbi Michael Skobac. Sunday, Nov. 7. For information, call 416-633-5770 or visit www.torahinmotion.org.

SANITY AND SANCTITY

Dr. David Greenberg, author of Sanity and Santity: Mental Health Work Among the Ultra-Orthodox in Jerusalem, will present a clinical workshop entitled "Building Bridges: Clinical Outreach and Therapeutic Intervention with the Orthodox Jewish Community," from 9 a.m. to noon, Monday, Nov. 8, at Jewish Family and Child Services. $45. He delivers a lecture at 8 p.m. at Mount Sinai Hospital on "Bridging the Gap Between Psychology and Religion." $10. For information, call 416-208-0610 or visit www.jewishhealthalliance.com.

LONDON FILM FESTIVAL

The London Jewish Film Festival screens films November 13-14, including No. 17, Prisoner of Paradise and Bonjour Monsieur Shlomi. For information, call 519-858-4400.

JIAS TORONTO

Jewish Immigrant Aid Services, 4600 Bathurst St. #325. 416-630-6481.

Information sessions for new immigrants are held every Tuesday mornings 9 a.m. Registration required.

Conversation Café. Newcomers to Toronto are invited to Second Cup at the Bathurst Jewish Community Centre for an hour of English conversation. Every Thursday at 7 p.m. For information, call Suzie at ext. 30.

JF&CS GROUPS

Jewish Family & Child Service information/registration. Call 416-638-7800, ext. 215. Lipa Green Building, 4600 Bathurst St.

Creating Fulfilling Relationships: A 6-session group for single adults interested in learning more about relationships. Begins Wednesday, Nov. 3 at the Promenade Mall, #313, from 7-8:30 p.m.

When You Are About to Separate – What to Tell the Kids: A workshop for parents about to separate or in the early stages of separation. Tuesday, Nov. 9 at the Promenade Mall, #313. 6:30-8:30 p.m.

Adult Children Losing a Parent: A 6-session group for adult children who have recently lost a parent. Begins Wednesday, Nov. 10, at the Promenade Mall, #313. 7-8:30 p.m.

Helping Families Cope With a Mood Disorder: What loved ones can do, the impact on family relationships, setting limits and the importance of taking care of yourself. Thursday, Nov. 11. 7-9 p.m. Registration required.

The Challenge of Anger for Women: A 6-session group for women to learn how to express their anger in an assertive, non-aggressive way. Begins Thursday, Nov. 11. 7:30-9 p.m. at 4600 Bathurst St.

Successful Parenting of Children with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD). A 6-session group for parents of children who have been diagnosed with ADHD. Parents will gain an in-depth understanding of their child and learn effective strategies. Thursday, Nov. 4, at Lipa Green Bldg. 7-9:30 p.m. Call ext. 246 to register.

FOR SENIORS

Beth Tzedec Congregation Senior Haverim Program, Monday, Nov. 1, 1:30 p.m. The Golden Age of Spadina Avenue, a film and commentary with Bill Stern. $2. 416-781-3511.

Earl Bales Seniors' Club: Bridge players needed Monday afternoon 12-3 p.m.; Saturday dance, Oct. 30, Nov. 13; Monday, Nov. 1, Dixie Outlet Mall. Call 416-395-7881 Mondays to Thursdays, 9 a.m-1 p.m.

LZA Seniors Cultural Club meets every Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the boardroom at the Borochov Centre, 272 Codsell Ave. Call 416-630-9444.

Young at Heart Seniors winter trips to Miami. Stay at the Saxony Hotel, efficiency or with food. Call Helen Sunday-Friday, 416-635-6343.

WAGMAN CENTRE

55 Ameer Ave. 416-785-2500.

Trip to the McMichael Gallery, Kleinberg, Sunday, Oct. 31, 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Members $12, guests $17. To reserve, call ext. 2267.

BERNARD BETEL CENTRE

1003 Steeles Ave. W., 416-225-2112.

Bible Study with Kolya Shimrat, Mondays, 9:30-11:30 a.m., until Dec. 20.

Fun With Yiddish with Evelyn Rabkin Yuditsky, Thursdays, Oct. 28, Nov. 18 and Dec. 16. 1 p.m.

Current Issues and Events with Doug Haddow. Tuesdays, Nov. 2-30. 10-11:30 a.m.

Israeli Club Etrog for Hebrew-speaking seniors meets Tuesdays at 7 p.m. Nov. 2, memorial for Yitzhak Rabin. Call ext. 110.

BATHURST JCC

Bathurst Jewish Community Centre and Koffler Centre of the Arts, 4588 Bathurst St., 416-636-1880 or www.bjcc.ca.

The Jewish Discovery Museum offers drop-in programs Tuesdays and Thursdays at 11 a.m. Music singalong class begins Monday, Nov. 1. Call ext. 390.

Department of Jewish Life and Learning offers adult learning classes, adult cooking classes and children's cooking classes. Call ext. 390.

"lay of the land" by Steven Cruise at The Koffler Gallery until Dec.12.

MILES S. NADAL JCC

Miles Nadal Jewish Community Centre, 750 Spadina Ave., 416-924-6211 or wwwmilesnadaljcc.ca.

Book Launch, The Underground Reporters by Kathy Kacer. Sunday, Oct. 31, 5 p.m.

Yiddish for Beginners begins Thursday, Oct. 28, 7:30-9:30 p.m.

Jewish Storytelling, Tuesday, Nov. 2, 7:30-9 p.m. $5.

SINGLES EVENTS CAN BE FOUND ON PAGE 36

Cuisinart Supreme Grind Brushed Stainless Steel Automatic Burr Coffee Mill

Get more flavour out of your favourite Coffee Bean. 18 Position Grind Selector, Timer, Automatic Shut Off. Compare at 89.99

LOWEST PRICE IN ONTARIO

59.99

Full Money-Back Refund Policy!

Shop 24/7 Securely online

www.caynehousewares.com

Cayne's

The SUPER HOUSEWARE Store

"Cayne's Gift Certificates" The Ideal Gift Anytime.

Easy To Get To:

112 DONCASTER, Thornhill, Ont.
One Traffic Light North of Steeles Ave. East of Yonge St.
905-764-1188

SAT & SUN 10-6
MON to FRI 9-9

WORK PERMIT BRIDAL REGISTRY

OBITUARIES
and Related Notices

Steeles Memorial Chapel

Weisman, Paul	Oct 11/04	Private
Werb, Henia	Oct 13/04	150 Neptune Dr
Rotstein, Mania	Oct 14/04	7440 Bathurst St
Ben-Shmuel, Matilda	Oct 10/04	Private
Naymark, Nathan	Oct 15/04	1 North Western
Landgarten, Beatrice	Oct 16/04	101 Governor's Rd
Getmansky, Avraham	Oct 15/04	Private
Wiesblattt, Nolan	Oct 16/04	Private
Ackerman, Louis	Oct 17/04	370 Ridelle Av

HEDREW BASIC CHAPEL

Pearl (Cutler) Melman	Oct 13/04	429 Walmer Rd

BENJAMIN'S PARK MEMORIAL CHAPEL

Harry Rettig	Oct 11/04	39 Hinda Lane
Stacey Baer	Oct 11/04	103 Dewbourne Av
Gertrude Weinberg	Oct 11/04	25 Canyon Av
Mordukh Katsman	Oct 13/04	306 Finch Av E
Henry Davis	Oct 14/04	133 Torresdale Av
Paula Behan	Oct 14/04	3560 Bathurst St
Lisa Brown	Oct 14/04	341 Bloor St W
Nathan Siegel	Oct 15/04	44 Charles St W
Milton Turkienicz	Oct 16/04	333 Clark Av W
Julius Caplan	Oct 15/04	11 Heathdale Rd
Jean Rubenstein	Oct 14/04	141 Roehampton Av
Mark Pekerman	Oct 15/04	283 Fern Av
Saunders Valensky	Oct 16/04	1555 Finch Av E
Molly Teperman	Oct 17/04	333 Clark Av W
Josef Frydman	Oct 17/04	645 Castlefield Av

SERVING THE JEWISH COMMUNITY FOR OVER THREE GENERATIONS

IZENBERG GOLDBERG
Monuments
3173 BATHURST ST.
416-787-0319

Subscribe to
The Canadian Jewish news

The Board and Members of Kupat Holim
Borochov Cultural Centre
Labour Zionist Alliance
Seniors Cultural Club

deeply mourn the passing of

GERTRUDE WEINBERG ז"ל

Her dedication to the State of Israel and deep devotion to the Jewish Community will be sadly missed.

We extend our deepest sympathy to her children, grandchildren and to the entire family

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late SYLVIA SIMONOFF ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Nov. 7th, 12:00 noon
Mount Sinai Memorial Park
986 Wilson Avenue
Farband Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late MORTON MYERS ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Nov. 7th, 11:00 a.m.
Mount Sinai Memorial Park
Kiever Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
MOLLYE NISKER ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, Oct. 31st, 12:00 noon
Beth Tzedec Memorial Park
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late
SALLY JUSTEIN ז"ל
Wife of Morris Justein
will take place
Sunday, Nov. 7th, 11:00 a.m.
Beth Tzedec Memorial Park
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

SHIVA CATERING
SAME DAY SERVICE
*Tasteful Presentation *Hot/Cold Platters and Full Course Meals
• DELIVERY AVAILABLE
416-789-7651
3457 BATHURST ST.

milk 'n honey
THE DAIRY RESTAURANT

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of the late SALLY SHERMAN ז"ל
will take place
Sunday, November 7th at 10:00 a.m.
Pardes Shalom Cemetery
Dufferin St. N. of Major Mackenzie
Beth Emeth Section
Relatives and friends are invited to attend

To place an unveiling notice, please call at least 15 DAYS prior to the date of the unveiling

Watch this space each week for monument dealers & shiva caterers

Coast to Coast

Exhibit honours Wallenberg

By DIANE KOVEN
Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — A travelling exhibit dedicated to Raoul Wallenberg, the Swedish diplomat who saved 100,000 Jews in Budapest during the Nazi occupation of Hungary, was unveiled here earlier this month.

The travelling exhibit, "Raoul Wallenberg: Symbol of Justice and Humanity," is being jointly sponsored by the Raoul Wallenberg International Movement for Humanity (RWIMH) – which is dedicated to keeping his memory alive and promoting his humanitarian vision – and the Norshield Financial Group. A ceremony and reception for the exhibit took place Oct. 17 at Ben Franklin Place.

Former deputy prime minister Herb Gray, former senator Sheila Finestone, Ottawa-area Liberal MP Marlene Catterall and members of the diplomatic corps attended the event, as did Rev. James Christie of Southminster United Church, where the exhibit will be shown until Oct. 29. The audience also included a number of Holocaust survivors and their families.

Delivering the keynote address, Justice Minister Irwin Cotler spoke about the magnitude of Wallenberg's deeds and noted that he is still considered to be missing some 60 years after being captured by the Soviets, since there is no conclusive evidence to prove whether he is dead or alive.

"The 100,000 [people he saved] are not just abstract statistics," Cotler said. "We are speaking of 100,000 individuals, each with a name, a family."

Wallenberg issued Swedish travel passes to Jews, established safe houses, provided food to starving people and repeatedly risked his life to save foreigners he didn't know and whose religion he did not share, Cotler said.

"To the Jews, Wallenberg was rightly the guardian angel."

Cotler compared the actions of this one man to the lack of action by the United Nations today in such places as the Balkans and Darfur.

He implored Canadians to learn from Wallenberg's example.

"It is our responsibility to send out an unequivocal message that there will be no sanctuary for hate."

Citing the Balkans, Rwanda and Sudan, Cotler warned of "crimes of indifference," adding, "We cannot say that we do not know. We have to act to avert the humanitarian catastrophe."

He reminded the audience that "each person has to realize that he or she can make a difference, [and] is an indispensable part of the struggle for human rights and human dignity… Each time we do something, somewhere on behalf of someone who is disadvantaged, then we better the world."

Other speakers included RWIMH executive director Peter Rona; RWIMH founder and president Vera Parnes; the Hungarian and Swedish ambassadors to Canada; Ronen Gil-Or, deputy head of mission at the Israeli Embassy; and Erwin Koranyi, whose life was saved by Wallenberg.

One of the exhibit organizers was Vera Gara, a Holocaust survivor and the RWIMH representative in Ottawa, who was recently named a member of the Royal Order of the Polar Star by Sweden's King Carl XVI Gustaf for working to keep Wallenberg's memory alive. She was also instrumental in having a park in suburban Ottawa named for Wallenberg and a statue of him placed there.

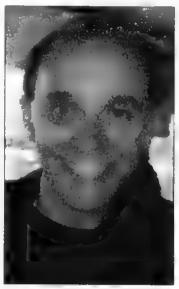
Edmonton elects first Jewish mayor

By NEIL LOOMER
Special to The CJN

EDMONTON — With a victory described as a "stunning upset" by Edmonton's media, Stephen Mandel has been elected Edmonton's first Jewish mayor.

The 59-year-old Mandel was serving a single three-year term on city council when he entered the race for mayor, and he becomes the second Jewish mayor elected in Western Canada this year, following Sam Katz in Winnipeg.

Throughout the campaign, opinion polls showed Mandel trailing three-term mayor Bill Smith and former city councilor Robert Noce. But by the time the last poll was released just days before the Oct. 18 vote, Mandel had caught up to the frontrunners, and on election day he surprised even his supporters by taking 40 per cent of the votes, 17,000 more than Smith.



Stephen Mandel

Mandel promised voters that he would work to "make Edmonton a capital city again," referring to the feeling of many Edmontonians that Calgary has been receiving the major share of the benefits from Alberta's booming economy. He has also said he would try to build consensus on city council, unlike the former mayor, who was often accused of forging ahead with his own agenda.

Mandel moved to Edmonton in 1972 from his native Windsor, Ont. He earned undergraduate degrees in arts and business from universities in the United States and a master's in political science from the University of Windsor.

He moved to Edmonton to work with his father and has been involved in land development, trailer parks, small shopping centres and other commercial properties. His father David died of cancer in 1982.

Mandel has been an active volunteer in both the Jewish and general communities. In 1997 and 1998, he was president of the Jewish Federation of Edmonton, and, until his election to council, he was a board member of the Beit Horim Society, a group dedicated to establishing a Jewish seniors residence in Edmonton.

Up to a few years ago, he could also be seen on the ice or the ball diamond as part of the Jewish hockey and baseball leagues, but a heart by-pass operation two years ago put a halt to those activities. His love of sports was put to the test in 1998, when he invested in the Tucson Gila Monsters of the West Coast Hockey League. This turned out to be one of his few bad business decisions, but he maintains the experience was a lot of fun.

He is a member of Temple Beth Ora, Edmonton's Reform congregation.

Rabbi Lindsey bat Joseph describes Mandel as a long-time supporter who is "quietly generous without a lot of fanfare." Her congregation is thrilled with his victory and believes that his straightforward approach and sense of humour will be appreciated by all Edmontonians.

The day after his election, Mandel celebrated his 31st wedding anniversary with his wife Lynn. Their children, Rachel, 27, and Adam, 24, are attending university in Florida.

Also prominent in the post-election coverage was his 91-year-old mother Bessie, who lives in an Edmonton retirement home. Newspaper reports commented on how Mandel would often have to leave council meetings early to drive his mother to an appointment.

Mandel's religion was referred to a few times during the campaign, mostly with references to the Yiddish words and sayings he often uses in conversation.

The other Jewish member of Edmonton's city council, Karen Leibovici, easily won re-election in her west end ward, 10,000 votes ahead of the second place finisher.

Correction

The recipe for Beef and Vegetable Stew Soup in the article "There are many soups that will go over beautifully" (CJN, Oct. 21) contained an error. It should have called for 7 cups of stock or water, not of olive oil as printed. We regret the error.

שישאר ב'נינו

גידי קורן וחברים

כוכב נולד וקיבל נובל

בישראל כמו בכל העולם-עיני כולם נשואות למסך הקטן לראות את תוחרות הכשרונות שמוכר את הזוכה בתוחה לתקליט'ולפרס כספי גדול. פה קוראים לזה Canadian/American Idol ובישראל קוראים לזה "כוכב נולד". זה שמילותי אנשים מצביעים ישידות-חופך את תוחכנית ללחיט גדול בישראל וחתקליט של חמופע "כוכב נולד 2" חפך ללחיט ענק, ואפשר לקרוא על חכוכבים החדשים בכל מדור רכילות, אבל גם בכותרות חראשיות.

אז על רקע זה-חיח מרענן, אך מאוד מקבדי לקרוא בעיתונות את חתגובה לידיעה הבאמת מרעישה ששני פרופסורים ישראלים מחטכנין-חדשקו וצ'חנובר, זכו בפרס נובל בכימיה. ווחי חפעם חראשונה שישראלים זוכים בפרס נובל "מן חמנין". כמובן, רבין ופרס זכו בפרס נובל לשלום, אך זו חיתה החלטה פוליטית לגמרי (ולראיה-אין אפילו שלום). ש"י ענגון זכה בפרס נובל לספרות, אך גם פרס זה חוא פוליטי ונדד כל שנה למדינה אחרת, לתת כבוד לסופרים של מדינות קטנות לעומת זאת, בכימיה, רפואה, פיזיקה-אין קונצים-חפרס ניתן למי שקידם בצורה הכי בסיסית ורצינית את חמדע, גם אם חוא ישב במעבדה חשוכה וישנה בטכניון בחיפה.

חיה מלבב, כמעט מצחיק, לקרוא על שני האנשים חצנועים חאלה, חרשקו וצ'חנובר, ששומרים בגן ילדים על חצכדים, לעומת חבומבסטיות של "כוכב נולד", או חראיונות האוילים וחבלתי נגמרים עם פניחה רחובלום, זוחבה בן, רביבו ושאר חכמי ציון חנחצים. יש משוחו כל כך לא נחצי בחתנהלות של שני האנשים חצנועים חאלה-ממש תענוג! וחי ישראל חישנה כפי שחיתה צריכה לחיות-עובדת, חשבת, מתעבת אמונת טפלות, מתאפקת, מצטנעת. אבל ישראל חזאת, שכולנו מתגעגעים אליה, נחבאת כיום וצריך לחפש אותה בנרות.

חדבר קיבל משנה תוקף בדברים שאמרו חתני חפרס. במצבים דומים נוחגים מדענים להודות למוסדות שתומכו בחם-חדשקו וצ'חנובר מיחדו לחדגיש כי זכו בפרס למרות חמערכת ולא בעזרתה, ושחאוניברסיטאות בישראל נמצאות על פי פחת. למי שלא עוקב כל כך אחרי אירועים אלה כדאי לחוכיר ששרת חחינוך לימור לבנת חפרח לאחרונה מסורת רבת שנים רבות, שלפיח חשליטה במועצה להשכלה גבוחה חיתנה בידי האוניברסיטאות, על ידי כך שחגדילה את כוח חחצבעה של חמכללות, שרמתן נמוכה בחרבה, ושאינן מעוניינת במחקר ופיתוח. גישה זו מייצגת את חלך חרוח חפופוליסטי חמוביל חיים בישראל לפי חפילוסופיח של מרכז חליכוד-לעזור לביטחות ולחזניח את חמצויינות. זו עלולה לחיות טעות פאטאלית למדינה כשלנו במצב מלחמה, כי חיתרון של ישראל כיום חוא רק בתחום חמצויינות.

נו, וכמו שאתם יכולים לנחש-שרת החינוך לימור לבנת שמיהרה לטוס לאתונה לחצטלם עם גל פרידמן מקבל מדלית זחב-עדיין לא מצאה שעתיים בלוח שלה לעלות לכרמל לברך את זוכי חפרס. שרון, שמצלצל ישידות בשידור חי בטלביזיה לברך את כדורסלני מכבי תל אביב-עוד לא חיינ לחיפה. פשוט חוא חושב שזה לא מעניין את מצביעי חליכוד, ומושך את העם למכנה חמשותף חכי נמוך בתחום חבאבא סאלי ומרכז חליכוד.

אבל שישאר בינינו.

צ"ח גברה ומסע האופנע

בשנת 1954 יצא סטודנט לרפואה ארגנטינאי, בן למשפחה טובה, למסע אופנע עם חברו חטוב במטרה לחכיר את אמריקה חדרומית. במסע מדחים שנמשך יותר משנה גילה חסטודנט, צ"ח גברה, את חסבל וחמצוקה שבחם חיים רוב תושבי חקיישת. את תיעוד המסע חוא סיכם בספר שחפך עכשיו לסרט מדחים.

מעבר לחרפתקאות ולנופים עוצרי חנשימה של דרום אמריקה-וחו מסמך חיסטורי נדיר, על טרנספורמציה שעוברת על נער עירוני ממשפחה בורגנית שחופך למחפכן ושותף לחפיכה בקובה ואחר כך חופך לאייכ ח- סי אייי שגם דאג לרצוח אותו בשנת 1967.

למי שגדל כמותו במדינה שעבורה תגידסה תאמריקאית לחיסטוריה חיא כמו תורה מסיני- מצפה בסרט חזה חפתעה גדולה. צ"ח מתואר כאיש מקסים, רגיש, חכם וחם, שנותן את כל מה שיש ואין לו לעניי, לנצרך למדוכא, וחותר לשינוי פני החברת. סרט חובה. עשר בסולם קורן. אבל שישאר בינינו

The Freeman Family Education Foundation

Scholar in Residence Weekend

November 12th - 14th

Professor Noah Efron

Dr. Efron is the Chairman of the Graduate Program for History & Philosophy of Science at Bar-Ilan U. He is the recipient of the 1999 $100,000 Philadelphia Center for Religion and Science/John Templeton Foundation Grant for Research and Writing on the Constructive Interaction of the Sciences and Religion, for his book-in-progress, "Golem, God and Man: Divine and Human in an Age of Biotechnology". He is a former fellow at M.I.T and Harvard University. He lives in Tel Aviv with his wife, daughter, son, and two rabbits.

Friday November 12th
Oneg Shabbat
Services: 4:30 p.m.
Dinner to follow
Israel's Other War
$30 (members) $34 (non-members)

Saturday November 13th
Services: 8:45 a.m.
Sermon
Old Jews & New Jews, Shylocks & Dayans
Lunch and Learn
Who Isn't a Jew? The Battle over Jewish Identity in Israel and Beyond
$18 (members) $20 (non-members)

Sunday November 14th
Services 8:30 a.m.
Revisiting, revising, rethinking Israel: A Zionist's Dilemma
Breakfast following
No Charge

Registration is required for all meals. To reserve call 416-783-6103

BETH SHOLOM SYNAGOGUE, 1445 Eglinton Ave. West
across from Eglinton West Subway

Liberal MPs work to change our UN voting pattern on Israel

Continued from page 1

We want a more balanced approach at the UN," said Winnipeg Liberal MP Anita Neville, who returns as caucus co-chair, along with new co-chair Senator David Smith.

Neville was original co-chair of the group with former MP and cabinet member Art Eggleton. The caucus is not to be confused with the Canada-Israel Parliamentary Friendship Group, an all-party entity designed to bring together MPs from across the political spectrum to demonstrate non-partisan support for Israel.

Liberal Parliamentarians for Israel has not fully gelled yet, but Neville told The CJN it will comprise from 15 to 18 members, including at least five cabinet ministers.

They are Justice Minister Irwin Cotler; Joe Volpe, minister of human resources and skills development; Stephen Owen, minister of western economic diversification; Public Health Minister Carolyn Bennett; and Jim Peterson, minister of international trade. All have significant Jewish constituencies.

Presumably, the list will include two other Jewish members of cabinet, as well as Senator Jack Austin, leader of the government in the Senate, and Jacques Saada, minister responsible for the Francophonie, an association of French-speaking countries.

Lucienne Robillard, minister of intergovernmental affairs, was a member in the last Parliament. It's not known whether she will return.

While the presence of a half-dozen or so cabinet ministers with strong support for Israel might seem like a victory, it's been pointed out that cabinet ministers are, by tradition, forbidden from speaking out against government policy or even advocating change outside of the secrecy of cabinet meetings, and are bound by cabinet solidarity.

An official caucus committee, Liberal Parliamentarians for Israel was founded in early 2003 to sway what some lawmakers and many Jewish Canadians felt was Canada's increasingly cold relations with Israel, especially when it came to this country's voting record at the UN.

Neville said she and other member MPs are gathering data on Canada's votes at the UN. "We're preparing information, doing analyses and sending them to individuals who make decisions."

The issue has long been a sore point in the Jewish community. Many still angrily recall Canada's support in 2000 for UN Resolution 1322, which condemned Israel for using excessive force in putting down Palestinian violence.

Also bedevilling many in the community is the number of Canadian abstentions at the UN on Arab-sponsored anti-Israel measures. This summer, Canada opted for neutrality on a vote that called on Israel to comply with demands to dismantle its security fence.

Canada has traditionally defended its abstentions as a reflection of its role as a neutral broker in the Middle East dispute.

In a CJN interview before last summer's federal election, Prime Minister Paul Martin said he believed that Canada "should judge each [UN] resolution on its merit."

Neville, who is Jewish, said her group is not out to make Canada's Middle East policy one-sided, but to ensure fairness.

"We want Israel to be treated fairly, equitably and with justice. There's certainly no justice at the moment."

Neville was one of 15 MPs and senators to submit a report to the Department of Foreign Affairs last year, imploring Canada to "improve and refresh" its Mideast policy, in effect shifting to a more pro-Israel stance.

Among the key recommendations of the 25-page report was that Canada should sign a comprehensive "friendship agreement" with Israel that would strengthen Canadian-Israeli links "in virtually all aspects of society and government."

The report is still being studied by the foreign affairs department, she said.

Neville rejected recent allegations by Globe and Mail columnist John Ibbitson that a "storm" is brewing in the government's upper echelons over the concern of MPs with large and growing Arab and Muslim constituencies that Ottawa is shifting its Mideast policy toward Israel.

She also brushed aside the view that any correction of Canada's Mideast policy resulting from the caucus's work will be perceived as favouring Israel.

"I don't accept that. Nobody wants to create deficits in other communities. Everybody wants balance [and] we remain hopeful for a more balanced approach."

As to the possibility of a shift on the Middle East, Foreign Affairs Minister Pierre Pettigrew said last week in the House of Commons, "Canada has been a staunch friend and ally of Israel since 1948. We take Israel's security concerns very seriously. Our policy in the Middle East reflects our support and concerns, and remains unchanged. Canada's policy remains anchored in our support for international law and our desire to play a constructive role toward peace in the region."

In the past, Liberal Parliamentarians for Israel has tackled such issues as Israeli soldiers missing in action, the international recognition of Magen David Adom, the licensing in Canada of Al-Jazeera, and whether Canadian tax dollars fund Palestinian school materials that incite hatred and violence.

Neville said the caucus will look into the recent revelation by the head of a UN committee that works on behalf of Palestinian refugees that some of his employees may be members of Hamas, a group Canada has outlawed as a terrorist organization.

Another priority for the caucus is to enhance bilateral relations between Israel and Canada.

Neville pointed out that Israel is the only country outside North America to have a free trade deal with Canada, one that generates just under $1 billion in two-way trade a year.

She said she's "almost reluctant" to identify other bilateral issues, other than the ongoing exchange of judges between the two countries in order to study each other's legal systems.

A third priority for the caucus is to explore ways in which government efforts at combatting racism could be strengthened.

Neville said the group hopes to build on the wide-ranging anti-racism education initiative unveiled by Cotler earlier this year.

As well, the caucus will examine high costs of security in the Jewish community, especially at public rallies and communal buildings.

TORAH in MOTION
Confronting the Challenges of Modernity

3RD ANNUAL CONFERENCE
Renewing Our Spirit
Self, Family, Nation

Beth Jacob V'Anshei Drildz Congregation

Sponsored in memory of Nathan Noteh Krauss z"l

Sunday, November 7, 2004 • 9:30am-5:45pm

Beth Jacob V'Anshei Drildz Congregation, 147 Overbrook Place, Toronto

CONFERENCE SCHEDULE

9:00am Registration & Refreshments

9:30am

- Rabbi Michael Skobac
Personal Growth 24/7: Climbing the Ladder of Consciousness through Daily Spiritual Practices
OR
- Rabbi Pini Dunner
Freeing Women in Chains: How One Rabbi Fought for Change within Judaism

10:45am

- Dr. Nathan Lopes-Cardozo
Can we Learn from Heretics? Spinoza, Halacha and the Renewal of Judaism
OR
- Rabbi Yosef Reinman
Is There One Jewish People? Reflections on Torah and Pluralism

12:00pm - Keynote Address

- Rabbi Norman Lamm
Torah Umadda: Seeking Knowledge in all of God's World

12:50pm - 1:45pm Lunch & Minchah

1:45pm

Panel Discussion: The Future of Judaism
- Rabbi Norman Lamm
- Rabbi Yosef Reinman
- Rabbi Nathan Lopes-Cardozo
OR
Symposium: Women and Jewish Law
- Rabbi Michael Broyde
Modesty Inside and Out: Another Look at Tzniut.
- Ms. Bracha Rutner
What Women don't Know about the Laws of Family Purity: A Frank Discussion

3:15pm

- Rabbi Pini Dunner
Torah Observance and Religious Zionism: Compatibility or Conflict?
OR
- Rabbi Michael Broyde
Is Persuading Jews to become more Observant a Mandate of Halacha? Observations on Inreach and Outreach

4:30pm

- Ms. Bracha Rutner
Lending Dignity to Intimacy: The Role of the Female Halachic Adviser
OR
- Rabbi Michael Skobac
Strategies of the Heart: How Self-Examination can Change your life

BUY a TIM PASS for admission to all our programs in 5765

CO-CHAIRS: Ilana Kelman, Rabbi Jay Kelman and Dr. Elliott Mnlamet

$50, $40 if registered by November 3, Lunch included.
Students $25 in advance only. Free for TIM Pass Holders.

www.torahinmotion.org • 416·633·5770 • info@torahinmotion.org

Sponsorship levels begin at $180 and include CD's. Sponsors will be recognized in the program

Singles Events is an advertising feature of The Canadian Jewish News

For rates or to place an ad, please call 416-391-1836

Deadline: Wednesday, 4 p.m., 8 days preceding issue date.

Co-Ed Volleyball
Intermediate & competitive divisions, OVA refs, starting end of Nov. Call 416-222-7111.

JEWISH CONNECTIONS INC.
Professional, Personalized, Upscale
Introduction Service
for Selective Singles (since 1994)
To arrange a confidential consultation call
Carole: 905-889-3900
carole.linden@sympatico.ca
Please ask us about our parties "By Invitation Only"

www.dcltelecom.com
(416) 626-7557
no activation fee
Israel, U.K. 5.5¢
no maintenance fee
France, Chile 5.5¢
no monthly fee
Morocco 35.1¢
15,000+ customers
USA / CAN 4.9¢

International

Israel & the Jewish World

Ve'ahavta
The Jewish people are a creative people
...let's stop the war in Sudan!
Ve'ahavta: The Canadian Jewish Humanitarian & Relief Committee
416-964-7698
www.veahavta.org

Sharon plan to withdraw from Gaza faces opposition

By DAN BARON
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

JERUSALEM — The battles over Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's plan to withdraw Israel from the Gaza Strip and parts of the West Bank next year appear to be far from over.

Some 67 out of 120 legislators were expected to support the plan in a Knesset vote Tuesday, with opposition lawmakers as likely to back Sharon as his fellow right-wingers.

Sharon has already faced substantial opposition to the plan and indications are it may intensify.

On Saturday, the Shas Party made clear that its 11 lawmakers would oppose the slated evacuation of more than 8,000 settlers from Gaza.

"This plan is absolutely illegitimate. It is forbidden to vote for it," Shas spiritual mentor Rabbi Ovadia Yosef said in a sermon. "If, God forbid, they uproot Jewish communities, who will come to take their place? The terrorists."

Several leading Israeli rabbis have said recently that the plan contravenes Jewish law, raising fears of a mutiny in military ranks.

Sharon faces dissent even within his own ruling Likud Party by those who have called on the former army general not to turn his back on the "Greater Israel" ideal he long championed.

Earlier this year, Sharon lost a plebiscite on the plan from his own Likud Party, and while the cabinet on Sunday approved a bill on compensating settlers who agree to relocation and punishing those who resist evacuation, five of the six "no" votes belonged the Likud ministers.

One of the naysayers, cabinet minister Tzachi Hanegbi, said this was a matter of conscience, and asked Sharon not to punish Likud members who vote against withdrawal in the Knesset.

But the prime minister may eventually consider a cabinet reshuffle.

Ariel Sharon in Knesset [Israel Sun photo]

The center-left Labor Party and liberal bloc Yahad have agreed to extend Sharon a "safety net" by voting for his plan. Even the two-member United Arab List has joined in, calling the Gaza withdrawal a step in the direction of Palestinian statehood.

But the idea that the withdrawal constitutes such a step is uncertain.

According to a Foreign Ministry legal advisory that surfaced Sunday, by planning to continue controlling Gaza's border crossings, coastline and airspace after the withdrawal, Israel will remain responsible for the territory.

"The more active control is given to other parties, the more difficult it will be to claim Israel is still responsible," the 47-page report said.

According to the Associated Press, the Foreign Ministry's legal advisers proposed that Israel allow international peacekeepers into Gaza. But Jerusalem has consistently stated that a foreign presence in Gaza would limit its options for any military action.

Ounce for Ounce the best deal in town
Now featuring Chicken & Ribs – $15.95*
*Limited time offer
Come to Le Biftheque Steakhouse for the tender prime rib and steak. Come back for the market fresh seafood, savory chicken and ribs and tempting everyDay specials. Terrific for lunch or dinner. Great for business or pleasure. Perfect for banquets or special events. And it's only at Le Biftheque. Who Knew?
LE BIFTHEQUE STEAKHOUSE
Who knew?
7501 Woodbine Ave. (N. of Steeles) 905-305-1808; 25 Carlson Court (W. of Dixon Rd. and Hwy. 27) 416-798-4334
56 Richmond St. W. (Downtown Sheraton Centre) 416-366-4334; www.lebiftheque.com

Economic initiative hopes to help Jerusalem

By DINA KRAFT
Jewish Telegraphic Agency

JERUSALEM — Although Jerusalem boasts some of the world's greatest religious and historical treasures, it remains the poorest major city in Israel.

But now, a group of investors, academics and high-tech entrepreneurs is working on a plan to jump-start the capital's economy.

For StartUp Jerusalem, the name of the game is creating "clusters" of industry – local concentrations of interconnected businesses and institutions that can stimulate job creation and growth.

Modelled after economically thriving cities that have focused on particular sectors to boost their economies – such as biotech in Boston and aerospace in Houston – StartUp Jerusalem hopes to attract investment and prosperity by honing in on the city's strategic assets and concentrating them into clusters.

"This can be successful," said a professor at Harvard Business School, Michael Porter, whose ideas serve as the basis for the organization's work.

"When people come together with a clear strategic framework," added Porter, an internationally renowned expert on strategic competition, "I've seen transformations."

The group's organizers are planning to focus on creating three major clusters: a health and life-science cluster, including biotech and pharmaceutical companies; a collection of outsourcing businesses focusing on call centres; and a tourism and culture cluster that would capitalize on Jerusalem's unique assets as a religious centre for Judaism, Christianity and Islam.

It could take years to lift the struggling city out of poverty. About half its residents do not work, average salaries are low and more than a third of Jerusalemites live below the poverty line.

On top of that, there is a mass flight of educated young people from Jerusalem. Some 7,000 Jerusalem residents leave the city every year, more than half of them with university degrees.

Jerusalem has also been the city hardest hit in the intifadah, a target of repeated bombings of city buses and cafés. The violence has kept tourism, once one of Jerusalem's main sources of income, down.

As long as the security situation remains unstable, some question the city's ability to attract investment, no matter how many economic initiatives are launched.

Furthermore, some experts ask whether Jerusalem – a city where many of the employed work in government or university jobs – can supply an adequate private sector workforce.

"There are attempts to push industry and high-tech, but it is just not clicking," said Rafi Melnick, a professor of economics at the Interdisciplinary Center in Herzliyah. "It is possible to help Jerusalem," he said, citing new high-tech parks in the city. "But this is all on a small scale; it is not something that can change the personality of the city."

The bulk of Jerusalem's unemployed are fervently Orthodox Jews and Arab women – two sectors that traditionally have not joined the workforce.

Maya Choshen, a researcher at the Jerusalem Institute for Israel Studies, a think-tank that deals with issues concerning Israel's capital, said efforts by those at StartUp Jerusalem are welcome, but much of its success will depend on how much co-operation it can secure from city hall, the government and others.

Referring to reports of tension between Jerusalem Mayor Uri Lupolianski and Nir Barkat, StartUp Jerusalem's founder and opposition leader of Jerusalem's city council, she said all parties in Jerusalem "need to find a way to co-operate and work together."

A Jerusalem city spokesman, Gidi Smerling, said the mayor's office has yet to be approached about the StartUp Jerusalem initiative but would be interested in hearing more about it.

Barkat, a former high-tech powerhouse who once chaired the hugely successful security software company Checkpoint, ran for mayor against Lupolianski and lost.

"There is only one Jerusalem in the world," Barkat told a packed audience at a conference Oct. 18 launching the non-profit organization. "But the question is, are we really using the full potential we have?"

He said he and other concerned Jerusalem residents in the business world started the group because "we wanted to think out of the box – what could we do as entrepreneurs to make Jerusalem successful?"

Finance Minister Benjamin Netanyahu supports the group's approach.

"This is real and can produce real results," Netanyahu said. "If you do not compete, your poverty grows."

Supporters of the initative pinpointed several assets working in Jerusalem's favour, including the large amount of research money that comes into Hebrew University; the city's top-notch hospitals, leaders in fields such as cardiology and genetics; the diverse language skills of the city's residents, many of whom are immigrants; and the city's unique religious sites.

"Right now, Jerusalem has no image when it comes to economy. We need to build a business case for Jerusalem," said Porter.

CIVIL CASE 7192/03
District Court Jerusalem
State of Israel

NOTICE
The Plaintiffs: Shmuel Cohen I.I.D 73991135 & Zion Levi I.I.D 74633967 AGAINST
The defendant:
Refael (and/or Rafi) Inbinder I.I.D 051902914
To the defendant, if you wish to defend yourself, you are invited to do so in writing within 30 days from the date on which this notice is published.
If you do not defend yourself, as aforesaid, the plaintiff will be entitled to obtain judgement against you.

Reisman-Keidar Attorneys At Law
On behalf of the plaintiffs

SENIOR CANTOR
SOUGHT BY CANADIAN CONSERVATIVE CONGREGATION

Beth Tzedec Congregation of Toronto Canada seeks a Senior Cantor (Hazzan) to plan, promote and participate in the Jewish ritual and non-ritual programs and services of a 2900 member Conservative congregation.

The Hazzan, as "Chief Musical Officer", is responsible for creating through prayer and music, the spiritual milieu in which the congregation addresses its devotional needs. As a senior member of the Klei Kodesh, the Senior Cantor works within a professional team to address the ritual, educational, musical, pastoral care and other needs of a large and diverse congregation set in Toronto's vibrant 200,000 person Jewish community.

The successful candidate will:
- be a professionally trained, experienced hazzan with an excellent knowledge of Jewish liturgical music
- have skills in promoting congregational participation within and beyond the services
- be an engaging individual open to participating in Jewish community activities
- be shomer shabbat

Resumes and demonstration tapes or CD's may be forwarded to:
Dr. Roger Goldstein, Cantorial Search Committee Chairman
c/o Beth Tzedec Congregation
1700 Bathurst Street, Toronto, Ontario Canada M5P 3K3

E-mail: (Beth Tzedec Office): smaerov@beth-tzedec.org
Telephone: 416-781-3514, Ext. 11
Fax: 416-781-0150
Internet: http://www.beth-tzedec.org

Deadline for applications: December 15, 2004

12 Palestinians killed, two IDF soldiers hurt in Khan Yunis raid

Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

JERUSALEM — At least 12 Palestinians were killed in clashes with Israel Defence Forces soldiers in the southern Gaza town of Khan Yunis, witnesses said Monday.

The dead include an 11-year-old boy and 10 armed men, two of whom were said to be Palestinian police officers.

Two IDF soldiers, one an officer, were seriously wounded Monday morning when an anti-tank missile was fired at their tank in the town.

IDF troops, accompanied by tanks and backed by helicopters, entered Khan Yunis and its refugee camp on Sunday night, in an operation launched in response to repeated mortar shelling of the nearby Gush Katif settlement bloc over the weekend.

Also Monday, two Qassam rockets were fired at the Negev town of Sderot, close to the border with Gaza. The two rockets fell in an open area, causing no injuries.

CAMP HATIKVAH
LOOKING FOR AN EXCITING NEW CAMPING EXPERIENCE FOR YOUR CHILD?
CAMP HATIKVAH OFFERS COMPREHENSIVE INSTRUCTION IN WATERSKIING, SAILING, CANOEING, KAYAKING, SWIMMING, SPORTS, DRAMA, CRAFTS, OUT-TRIPPING AND JEWISH PROGRAMMING IN ONE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA'S MOST BEAUTIFUL SETTIINGS.

NOT ONLY DO WE OFFER ONE OF THE BEST JEWISH CAMPING PROGRAMS IN CANADA, WE DO SO AT A FRACTION OF THE COST OF MOST COMPARABLE CAMPS

JULY 3 - 29: $ 2342.44
AUG 3 - 24: $ 1868.39
PAY BY CHEQUE AND RECEIVE A 4% DISCOUNT

STAFF POSITIONS ALSO AVAILABLE

CALL 604-263-1200 OR VISIT www.camphatikvah.com TODAY

YOUR CAR IN ISRAEL
SPECIAL OFFER
*FREE SHABBAT
FROM 15.90* US$
PER DAY
Exclusions subject to offer's regulations eldan rent a car
U.S.A
Toll 1-800-938-5000
718-998-5500
www.eldan.co.il

Better Health Care for Canadians: A 10-year plan
De meilleurs soins de santé pour les Canadiens : plan d'action sur 10 ans

Working together, the Prime Minister, Premiers and Territorial leaders have signed a 10-year plan, supported by $41 billion in new federal funding, that will lead to better health care for Canadians.

Better Health Care

☑ Reduce waiting times
- Improve access so that Canadians don't wait as long for key tests, treatments and surgeries

☑ More Doctors, Nurses and other Health Professionals
- Plans to train and hire more health professionals while also developing faster accreditation for foreign-trained health professionals

☑ Expand home care
- Provide better support for people being cared for or recovering at home

☑ Improve access to family and community care
- Increase 24/7 access to doctors, nurses and other health professionals

☑ Better Access to Needed Medicines
- A commitment to manage drug costs and ensure that no family is forced to choose between needed medicines and financial ruin

☑ Improved Aboriginal Health
- New investments and better planning to close the gap between Aboriginals and other Canadians in terms of health

Shorter Waiting Times

The federal, provincial and territorial governments have committed to report clearly on the progress we are making in health care and, for the first time will report on progress in reducing waiting times.

☑ Comparable indicators ... so we can measure
- Federal, provincial and territorial governments will use comparable information to report their progress in improving access to doctors, and to diagnostic and treatment procedures

☑ Benchmarks ... so we know what we are striving for
- Federal, provincial and territorial governments will set medically acceptable waiting times – based on advice from medical experts – starting with cancer, heart disease, diagnostic imaging, joint replacement, and sight restoration

☑ Targets ... to drive change
- Provincial and territorial governments will set their own targets and report annually to citizens on progress in reducing waiting times

Canadians will see for themselves where their health care money is going and how it is making a difference.

Le premier ministre du Canada et les premiers ministres provinciaux et territoriaux ont de concert adopté un plan d'action décennal qui, grâce notamment à un nouvel investissement fédéral de 41 millards de dollars, consolidera les soins de santé pour tous les Canadiens.

De meilleurs soins de santé :

☑ réduction des temps d'attente
- améliorer l'accès pour que les Canadiens obtiennent plus vite les tests cruciaux, les traitements et les chirurgies essentiels

☑ davantage de médecins, d'infirmières et d'autres professionnels de la santé
- élaborer des plans plus former et recruter davantage de professionnels de la santé, et accréditer plus rapidement ceux formés à l'étranger

☑ élargissement des soins à domicile
- améliorer le soutien aux personnes soignées ou en convalescence à domicile

☑ meilleur accès aux services de santé à la famille et communautaires
- augmenter l'accès en tout temps à des médecins, infirmières et autres professionnels de la santé

☑ meilleur accès aux médicaments essentiels
- gérer les coûts des médicaments afin qu'aucune famille n'ait à choisir entre les médicaments et la déchéance financière

☑ amélioration de la santé des Autochtones
- investir de nouveaux fonds et mieux planifier pour combler l'écart entre les soins de santé offerts aux Autochtones et aux autres Canadiens

Réduction des temps d'attente :

Les gouvernements fédéral, provinciaux et territoriaux ont convenu de rendre compte des progrès accomplis dans le domaine de la santé et, pour la première fois, dans la réduction des temps d'attente.

☑ des indicateurs comparables... pour mesurer les progrès
- les gouvernements fédéral, provinciaux et territoriaux utiliseront des indicateurs comparables pour rendre compte de l'amélioration de l'accès aux médecins, aux services de diagnostic et aux traitements

☑ des jalons... pour préciser le but visé
- les gouvernements fédéral, provinciaux et territoriaux établiront des temps d'attente médicalement acceptables – fondés sur l'avis d'experts – d'abord dans les domaines du cancer, des maladies du cœur, de l'imagerie diagnostique, des remplacements articulaires et de la restauration de la vue

☑ des objectifs... pour susciter le changement
- chaque gouvernement provincial et territorial établira ses propres objectifs pour les temps d'attente et rendra compte annuellement aux citoyens des progrès réalisés

Les Canadiens pourront constater à quoi sert leur argent affecté aux soins de santé et les résultats déterminants qu'il produit.

To obtain a copy of "The 2004 Health Care 10-Year Action Plan at a Glance", call 1 800 O-Canada (1 800 622-6232) or, to see it on the web, click www.canada.gc.ca/healthplan.

Pour obtenir un exemplaire du document « Aperçu du plan d'action décennal sur les soins de santé 2004 », composez le 1 800 O-Canada (1 800 622-6232). Vous pouvez aussi le consulter sur Internet à www.canada.gc.ca/plansante.

Government of Canada / Gouvernement du Canada

Canada

REGENT TOURS- Don't book a hotel in Israel without checking our rates first!
Call us in Tel Aviv toll free 1 866 886 0967
Deal with a wholesaler in Tel Aviv - offers at over 100 hotels
Professional & friendly service in English- great prices guaranteed
• Many Glatt Kosher Hotels • Student programs

Sunday, November 7, 2004

Notice of Annual General Meeting
Canadian Magen David Adom for Israel

Take notice that the Annual General Meeting of CMDAI will be held on Sunday, November 7, 2004, 10:00 a.m. at the Gelber Conference Centre, 2 Carré Cummings Square, Montreal, Que.

Associated Hebrew Day Schools of Toronto seeking
TEACHERS

1. Middle School Hebrew and Judaic Studies.
2. Middle School General Studies (English, Social Studies, Girls Phys-Ed.)
3. Elementary Teacher, Primary General Studies.

Ontario certified teachers are invited to apply in writing, by fax 416-494-3477 to Mr. Misener, Acting Principal.
Superannuated teachers may also apply.

Close call for Katsav?

Israel's president, on a visit to Vienna, got an air force escort due to a security threat. Two military jets were scrambled to accompany Moshe Katsav's helicopter last Thursday after Austrian radar operators spotted an unidentified plane on a collision course with it. But the plane's pilot turned out to be innocent of wrongdoing. No one was hurt.

Top Hamas leader killed

Adnan Al-Ghoul, the No. 2 leader of Hamas' military wing, and his deputy, Imad Abbas, were killed in an Israeli Air Force missile strike in Gaza City on Thursday night. The Israel Defence Forces issued a statement describing Al-Ghoul as a "leading Hamas figure" responsible for killing dozens of Israelis. It said he produced Qassam rockets – which have killed three people in recent months – planned at least two suicide bombings, and developed anti-tank and anti-aircraft weapons.

Two soldiers slain

Moshe Almaliach, 34, from Dimona, was killed by a remote-detonated mine Thursday in Gaza. Hamas claimed responsibility for the attack. Yair Nissim Turgemann, 22, from Kiryat Arba, was killed by Palestinian gunmen at Mevo Dotan in the West Bank. The Al Aqsa Brigade claimed responsibility.

Justice minister warns rabbis

Israel's justice minister said rabbis who call on religious soldiers to refuse to evacuate settlers could face legal action. "We are not indifferent to the pain and anguish of those who oppose disengagement," Yosef Lapid told Army Radio, referring to Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's plan to remove all settlements from the Gaza Strip and four from the West Bank next year. "But… there are limits to the justice system's patience with those who spread sedition among the religiously observant."

Threats to Sharon

There are constant death threats against Ariel Sharon, an Israeli official said. "There are threats all the time, mainly against the prime minister," Israel's deputy internal security minister, Ya'acov Edri, told Israel Radio. Extra bodyguards have been posted around Sharon in recent weeks amid fears of an assassination attempt by extremists.

Canadian mission record

Canadian Jewish groups are sending 12 missions to Israel in October, believed to be the most from Canada in a single month. The visits, with 330 people in total, are being organized by UIA Federations Canada. Jewish communities from across Canada are taking part. The visiting groups include provincial politicians, opinion-makers and prominent businesspeople.

Gaza call-up planned

The Israeli army plans to call up 10,000 reservists to help implement a planned withdrawal from the Gaza Strip, Ha'aretz reported. The decision was made during recent deliberations of Israel's top military brass in light of logistical difficulties anticipated in evacuating settlers next year, especially if Palestinian terror attacks escalate in parallel. Call-ups would run counter to a recent trend of reducing the service of Israeli reservists. The army will also deploy regiments in the West Bank for continued counter-terror operations as the withdrawal gets underway.

Palestinian population at 9.6 M

There are 9.6 million Palestinians around the world, the Palestinian Authority says. A report from the PA's Central Bureau of Statistics, released last week, found 4.8 million Palestinians live outside the West Bank and Gaza, 3.7 million live inside the West Bank and Gaza, and 1.1 million live in Israel.

Files from JTA and Ha'aretz

The Canadian Technion Society

proudly congratulates

DR. AARON CIECHANOVER & DR. AVRAM HERSHKO

of the

Technion-Israel Institute of Technology

on being awarded

The 2004 Nobel Prize for Chemistry

An outstanding achievement for Israel!

Presbyterians' meeting with Hezbollah angers Jewish groups

By SHLOMO SHAMIR
Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

NEW YORK — An Oct. 17 meeting in Beirut between American Presbyterian church officials and Hezbollah leaders has aroused furious reactions from U.S. Jewish leaders.

Ronald Stone, who led the church-funded delegation, was quoted by Hezbollah's television station as praising Hezbollah for its "goodwill toward the American people" and saying that "relations and conversations with Islamic leaders are a lot easier than dealings and dialogue with Jewish leaders." The group represented the church's advisory committee on social witness policy.

The group was on a two-week Middle East fact finding trip to Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, Egypt and Israel, paid for by the church and the Palestinian Authority, shortly after the the national assembly of the Presbyterian Church (USA) voted in July to divest from U.S. firms active in Israel and to proselytize Jews.

Leaders of the Reform Movement, which has been holding a dialogue with Presbyterian leaders for the past several weeks, were particularly upset. Rabbi

Eric Yoffie, who heads the Reform Movement, called Stone's statements "unforgivable." Nevertheless, he did not intend to halt the dialogue, which is now "even more important," he said.

Yoffie added that he was disappointed by the response of Rev. Clifton Kirkpatrick, one of the church's two highest officials, to the visit. Kirkpatrick said the visit and Stone's comments "do not reflect the official position of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) on peace in the Middle East" and should not be interpreted as lessening the church's "commitment to continued Jewish-Christian dialogue."

The Anti-Defamation League, the American Jewish Committee and the Conference of Presidents of Major Jewish Organizations also denounced the visit. The AJC charged the Presbyterians had "lent legitimacy to what American government officials call the 'A-Team' of global terrorists."

ADL director Abraham Foxman noted that Hezbollah is "directly responsible for attacks against both Americans and Israelis and... has repeatedly denounced America and Israel as enemies of Islam."

Gadi Golan, head of the Israeli Foreign Ministry's religious affairs bureau, said his ministry cancelled a meeting scheduled for this past Sunday with a delegation from the church because it met with Hezbollah.

With files from JTA

Egypt makes 'Sinai' arrests

Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

CAIRO — Five Egyptians have been arrested on suspicion of plotting three near-simultaneous car bombings of a hotel and resort in the Sinai that killed at least 34 people, including 12 Israelis, earlier this month.

In a statement Monday, the Egyptian Interior Ministry also said the mastermind of the attacks, identified as Palestinian Ayad Said Salah, died in the Oct. 7 explosion at the Taba Hilton hotel along with a fellow plotter, Egyptian Suleiman Ahmed Saleh Flayfil.

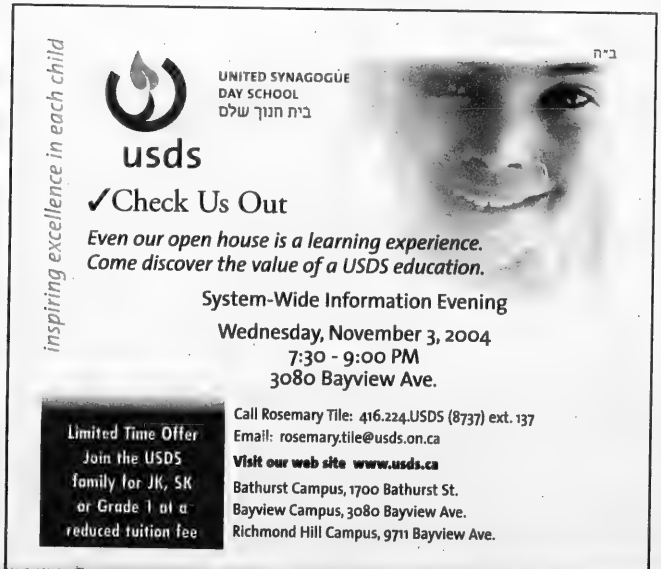
The statement said the two, identified through DNA testing, had been trying to leave the scene, but their timed explosives went off prematurely.

According to the statement, two other suspects are said to be at large: Mohamed Ahmed Saleh Flayfil, brother of Suleiman Flayfil, and Hammad Gaman Gomah. Mohamed Flayfil was accused of carrying out the attack on one of the campgrounds and Gomah was accused of carrying out the third bombing.

The statement said the Egyptian suspects were residents of the Sinai, and that Salah lived in the Sinai town of al-Arish.

The Interior Ministry said Salah acted "in reaction to the deteriorating situation in the occupied territories to carry out an act targeting Israelis."

The ministry accused Salah of turning "to religious fanaticism" after a criminal past that included a rape conviction.



inspiring excellence in each child
UNITED SYNAGOGUE DAY SCHOOL
בית חנוך שלם usds
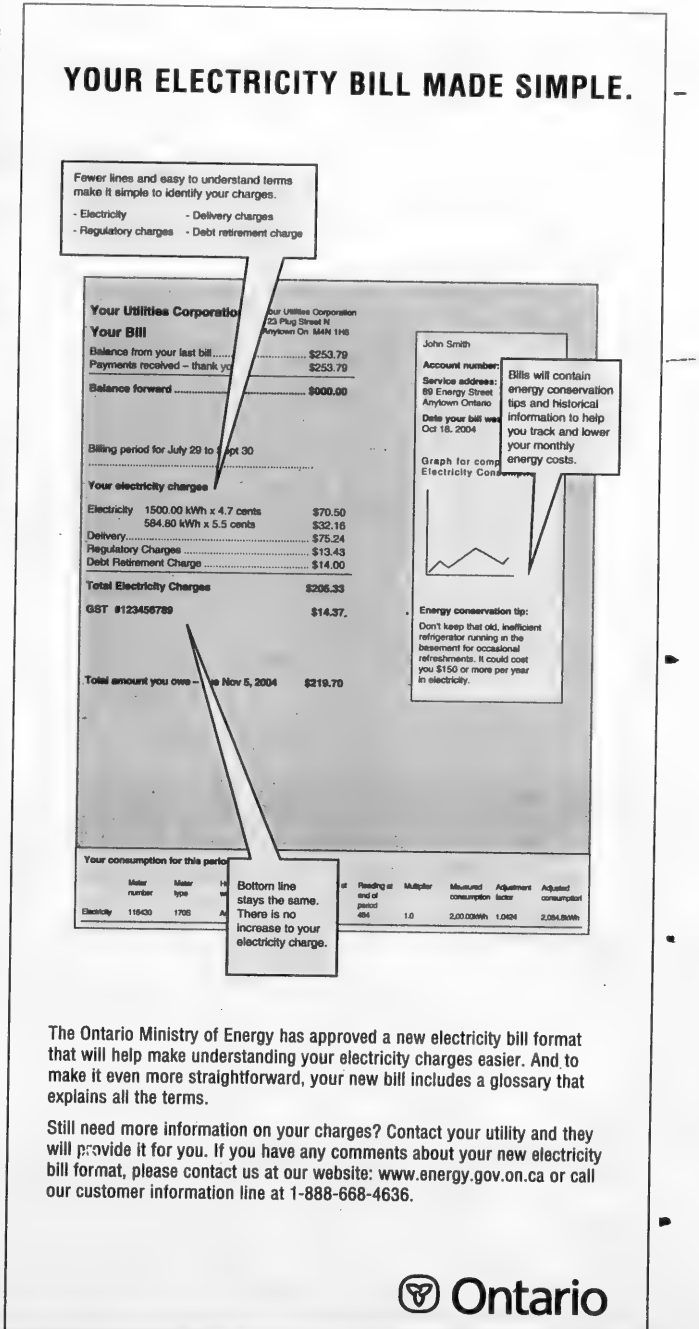
ב"ח
✓Check Us Out
Even our open house is a learning experience.
Come discover the value of a USDS education.
System-Wide Information Evening
Wednesday, November 3, 2004
7:30 - 9:00 PM
3080 Bayview Ave.
Limited Time Offer
Join the USDS family for JK, SK or Grade 1 at a reduced tuition fee
Call Rosemary Tile: 416.224.USDS (8737) ext. 137
Email: rosemary.tile@usds.on.ca
Visit our web site www.usds.ca
Bathurst Campus, 1700 Bathurst St.
Bayview Campus, 3080 Bayview Ave.
Richmond Hill Campus, 9711 Bayview Ave.



YOUR ELECTRICITY BILL MADE SIMPLE.
Fewer lines and easy to understand terms make it simple to identify your charges.
- Electricity
- Regulatory charges
- Delivery charges
- Debt retirement charge
Your Utilities Corporation
Your Bill
Balance from your last bill $253.79
Payments received – thank you $253.79
Balance forward $000.00
Billing period for July 29 to Sept 30
Your electricity charges
Electricity 1500.00 kWh x 4.7 cents $70.50
584.80 kWh x 5.5 cents $32.16
Delivery $75.24
Regulatory Charges $13.43
Debt Retirement Charge $14.00
Total Electricity Charges $206.33
GST #123456789 $14.37
Total amount you owe – due Nov 5, 2004 $219.70
John Smith
Account number:
Service address:
89 Energy Street
Anytown Ontario
Date your bill was issued
Oct 18, 2004
Graph for comparing Electricity Consumption
Bills will contain energy conservation tips and historical information to help you track and lower your monthly energy costs.
Energy conservation tip:
Don't keep that old, inefficient refrigerator running in the basement for occasional refreshments. It could cost you $150 or more per year in electricity.
Your consumption for this period
Meter number
Meter type
Reading at end of period
Multiplier
Measured consumption
Adjustment factor
Adjusted consumption
Electricity
Bottom line stays the same. There is no increase to your electricity charge.

The Ontario Ministry of Energy has approved a new electricity bill format that will help make understanding your electricity charges easier. And to make it even more straightforward, your new bill includes a glossary that explains all the terms.

Still need more information on your charges? Contact your utility and they will provide it for you. If you have any comments about your new electricity bill format, please contact us at our website: www.energy.gov.on.ca or call our customer information line at 1-888-668-4636.

Ontario

Dining Pleasures

Open Sundays
RISTORANTE
Amarone
A Taste of Italy
With this coupon
Complimentary
Dinner Entrée
With purchase of another entrée of equal or greater value. Max. Value $10.
Not valid with any other discount. Max. 2 coupons per table. Dine-in.
4850 YONGE ST.
(1 Blk. N. of Sheppard)
416-222-7500

Meron
BANQUETS
Tel: 905-669-0777
Fax: 905.669.2201
• Weddings • Bar/Bat Mitzvahs • Corporate Events
Elegance for every Occasion
1600 Steeles Ave. West (at Dufferin)

BELLA! Did Ya Eat?
Free Times Cafe
Authentic Jewish Buffet Brunch
SUNDAYS 10-3
ALL-U-CAN-EAT $17.95
Children 1/2 price • Infants FREE
SUN. OCT. 31:
YIDDISH
Mitch Smolkin & Nina Shapilsky
FOR RESERVATIONS CALL
416 967-1078
FREE TIMES CAFE
320 College 2 Blks. W. of Spadina www.thefreetimescafe.com

ST. LOUIS
"NEW" BBQ Baby Beef Ribs.
Bar & Grill
FAMOUS FOR
HOT WINGS & RIBS
DRIVE THRU FOR FAST TAKE OUT.
Book Your Holiday Party!
Catering Events, Parties, Bar Mitzvahs, etc.
4548A Dufferin St. (South of Finch)
Your Host, Cindy Stern • 416-663-2000

OMNI² OmniPotents
Dear Omni: I've heard about your incredible gourmet Kosher food. Is it OK to come to Omni² just for the food, if I have no intention of buying jewellery? Esther K.
Dear Esther K.:
Omni² has jewels for jewllery lovers, and java (and other great-tasting stuff) for food lovers. Our store is designed to make one aware of the presence of the other. Please ... feel free to come in just for the food of it! As an incentive to visit us ...
Enjoy a 20% dinner discount for your entire party
Only at OMNI²
COR 2793 Bathurst @ Glencairn CHOLOV YISRAEL
Reservations 416-783-2091
Kosher fine dining ... at its finest!

THE HAPPY GREEK
a Taverna
Welcome and Enjoy Our Dinner Specials
Served with Greek Salad, Fresh Steamed Vegetables, Roast Potatoes, Coffee or Soft Drink
The $12.95 Feast
Choice of Vegetarian Mousaka
Shrimp Kebob
Fillet of Sole
Sword Fish Kebob
Veal Cutlet
Pork Souvlaki
Mousaka
Gyro
Seniors Special
15% off
Sun-Thur before taxes
Please present this ad
expires Dec 23/04
1311 Alness St.
(2nd light W. of Dufferin)
905-669-9593

Israeli Nobel Prize winner owes his life to chance

Continued from page 1

Hershko, the first Israeli, along with Ciechanover, to win a Nobel Prize in science, was not at his home on Mount Carmel on Sukkot when the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences called to inform him that he was one of the winners.

"I was in a swimming pool on a kibbutz near Haifa with my granddaughters," said Hershko, a personable man with an easy smile who was here to deliver a scientific lecture at the invitation of The Gairdner Foundation at the University of Toronto.

"A cousin called me. She had heard the news on the radio. It was a very joyous occasion. The television broadcaster [in Israel] said, 'At last we have some good news.'"

Hershko, who likens his triumph to Gal Fridman's gold medal victory in last summer's Olympic Games in Greece, knew that he was a contender for the Nobel Prize. In 1999, he won the Gairdner International Award, considered a precursor to the Nobel Prize. "But I thought it would be in medicine," said Hershko, a medical doctor who graduated from the Hebrew University in Jerusalem and who served as a field doctor in the 1967 Six Day War and the 1973 Yom Kippur War.

Hershko, who has lived in Israel for more than 50 years, hopes that the Nobel Prize does not change his life drastically. "It can be disruptive," he observed.

In the past week, he has received a huge stack of mail and 1,500 e-mails, of which he has managed to answer 200. As well, he has submitted to numerous media interviews. "I realize I have more obligations now. But if I'm not careful and firm, I could stop doing science. A distinguished scientist can become an undistinguished scientist."

A winner of the Israel Prize and the Albert and Mary Lasker Award for Basic Medical Research, Hershko and his former student, Ciechanover, discovered a process that lets cells destroy unwanted proteins.

"Proteins are the machines that carry out and regulate all the processes in the cells. But once a protein has done its job, it has to be disposed of. We needed to understand this process of protein degradation.

"We found that a small protein, ubiquitin, marks the proteins to be degraded at the right time and the right place in the cell. If proteins are not degraded at the right time, the cell continues to divide unchecked. This is what happens in many cancer cells. Something has gone wrong in the ubiquitin system."

Velcade, which the U.S. Food and Drug Administration approved in 2003, is the first drug specifically targeted at the ubiquitin system. It was developed based on the research in Hershko's lab.

"The breakthrough in our research happened when we [he and Ciechanover] were working together in 1979 and 1980. We knew we had made a big discovery, but we didn't know how big."

It took so long for the Nobel committee to recognize their singular achievement because scientific discoveries must stand the test of time, he pointed out.

Velcade is not a "perfect drug," he said. But it inhibits cell growth and leads to remission in cancer patients.

"Better drugs are in the pipeline and yet to come," he added. "I am sure that many other new drugs will be discovered that are targeted against specific processes that go wrong in the ubiquitin system in different types of cancer of the colon, breast, prostate and melanomas."

Hershko, who will accept his prize in Stockholm on Dec. 10, three weeks before his 68th birthday, paid homage to the Israel Cancer Research Fund, which has funded his work. Established in 1975, the Israel Cancer Research Fund is the largest single source of funds for research of this kind in the Jewish state. In the past 29 years, it has awarded 1,466 grants, valued at $30 million (US), to Israeli scientists. On Nov. 24, the Toronto chapter will hold a fundraiser at the York Event Theatre in Toronto.

Saying that the calibre of basic science research in Israel is at a high level, Hershko noted, "A small country like Israel has to specialize and stick to projects not in the mainstream. That's Israel's only chance of contributing something important. Applied research requires much more funding and the support of big pharmaceutical companies. So Israel should continue to build up its basic research base."

Born in Karcag, Herskho immigrated to Israel in 1950. His father, Moshe, a forced labourer on the Russian front, was reunited with his family in the late 1940s. "He was liberated by the Russian army before the Nazis or Hungarian fascists could kill him."

Life in Israel was hard and the Hershkos were rather poor, like the majority of Israelis during that period of austerity. But Hershko's father, a teacher who wrote a standard math book for Israeli schools, was determined to give him and his brother, now also a doctor, a good education, and sent them to a private school in Jerusalem. "I owe him and my mother a lot."

Hershko, whose outside interests run the gamut from music and literature to his six grandchildren, has three sons, a general surgeon, a computer engineer and a medical student.

His wife, Judy, immigrated to Israel from Switzerland. Although he works 10-hour days, he is always home for dinner. "We have an agreement about that," he said, his face lighting up.

In Stockholm, he disclosed, he plans to pay tribute to the Israel Cancer Research Fund, his devoted team at the Technion and his late parents.

Asked if Israel can ever reach a peace agreement with the Palestinians, he laughed.

"That's the hardest question you asked. It'll take a miracle, a new Sadat," he said, referring to Anwar Sadat, the former president of Egypt. "But Israel is a land of miracles."

Israel as low as 5¢ per minute
Dial 10-10-620 And Save On Long Distance
*Based on first 20 minutes for $1, each additional minute 5¢
TALK MORE. PAY LESS! 10-10-620
Call the WORLD for $1
Visit www.1010620.com for more rates

Health & Lifestyles

GRAND OPENING
NUJI salonspa
521 Eglinton Avenue West
Tel 416. 488 7630

Tempting collection will make you want to cook

By NORENE GILLETZ

When I first saw Crescent Dragonwagon's cookbook The Passionate Vegetarian, (Workman Publishing, $39.95 Cdn) I knew I had to own a copy!

Ten years in the making and more than 1,000 pages long, this bountiful book is beautifully written, packed with over 1,000 fabulous, meatless recipes that will intrigue you and tempt you, whether or not you are vegetarian. This is a cookbook that will make you want to stay home and cook! If you don't cook, then take it to bed with you.

For more than 18 years, Dragonwagon and her late husband Ned owned a country inn in the Ozarks of Arkansas. She fed fabulous food to famous celebrities, vegetarians, diabetics, people who were lactose intolerant and those with food allergies.

This tempting collection of recipes includes scrumptious soups and stews, luscious lasagnas, plump pierogies, bountiful burgers, beans and breads, glorious grain dishes and delectable desserts. There are recipes for every vegetable imaginable. Dragonwagon offers cooking techniques and flavours from all over the world, from old favourites to new, innovative dishes with a twist.

With each turn of the page, you'll be tempted by her tales, tips and tantalizing recipes such as Roasty-Toasty Potatoes, Carrots and Onions, Kasha Kreplach, The One, the Only, the Greatest Garlic Spaghetti, and Chocolate Bread Pudding Maurice. I know you will enjoy the small sampling I've selected and will be compelled to buy your very own copy of The Passionate Vegetarian so you can savour the outstanding recipes in this excellent cookbook! Enjoy…

COMFORTING CABBAGE APPLE KUGEL

There are both main-dish and dessert kugels, but given the notorious Jewish sweet tooth, even those intended as accompaniments to entrees, like this appealing cabbage kugel, are on the sweet side. The cabbage, slowly cooked, almost carmelizes. You can add ¼ tsp. cinnamon and/or ½ cup toasted chopped walnuts or almonds.

cooking spray
1 to 2 tbsp. butter (oil or margarine can be substituted)
5 cups finely shredded cabbage or half of a 1-pound bag shredded cabbage
1 apple, peeled and finely diced
3 tbsp. honey or brown sugar
1 tsp. salt
1½ cups cubed, toasted whole wheat bread (about 3 slices)
1½ cups water, preferably spring or filtered
¼ cup potato starch
3 large eggs, separated
¼ cup raisins

Preheat oven to 350. Spray a 2-quart casserole with cooking spray. Spray a large skillet (not nonstick) with cooking spray and heat the butter in it over medium heat. When the butter has melted, lower the heat slightly and add the cabbage. Cook, stirring often, over low-medium heat for about 20 minutes. Add the apple and cook for 5 minutes more. Sprinkle with 1 tbsp. of the sweetener and the salt, raise the heat very slightly, and cook for 10 minutes more, or until soft and slightly browned. Remove from the heat and let cool slightly.

As the cabbage cooks, place the bread cubes in a heatproof bowl. Bring the water to a boil and pour it over the bread. Let stand until cool enough to handle, then squeeze the bread dry, discarding the water.

Mash the soaked bread together with the potato starch, then mash in the egg yolks. Stir in the cooled cabbage, the remaining sweetener, and the raisins.

Beat the egg whites until stiff and fold them into the cabbage-bread mixture. Spoon into the prepared casserole and bake for 40 minutes, or until set. Serve immediately. Serves 4 to 6.

DAIRY HOLLOW HOUSE SKILLET-SIZZLED BUTTERMILK CORNBREAD

This recipe has appeared in many magazines and newspapers. You can cut the butter back to a tablespoon and it will still be very good.

1 cup stone-ground yellow cornmeal
1 cup unbleached white all-purpose flour
1 tbsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. baking soda
1 to 3 tbsp. sugar
1¼ cups buttermilk (or 1 cup plain yogurt mixed with 1/4 cup water)
1 large egg
¼ cup vegetable oil (corn, canola or peanut)
2 to 4 tbsp. butter

Preheat oven to 375. Make sure your oven is accurate. It really needs to be up to temperature for perfect results.

In a large bowl, combine the cornmeal, flour, baking powder, salt, baking soda and sugar. Stir to combine.

In a small bowl, whisk together the buttermilk, egg and oil.

Place a 9- to 10¼-inch skillet over medium heat, add the butter and heat until the butter melts and is sizzling seriously. Tilt the skillet to coat the sides. As the butter's melting, quickly pour the wet ingredients into the dry and, using a wooden spoon, stir the wet and dry together with as few strokes as possible – only as many as are needed to combine the two. Don't beat it, don't smooth it out. Scrape the batter into the hot, buttery skillet – if it's hot enough, it will sizzle as it goes in – and pop it in the oven immediately.

Bake until golden brown on top, 25 to 30 minutes. Cut into wedges and serve hot.

Norene Gilletz is a cookbook author, cooking teacher and food consultant. For information, call 416-226-2466 or visit her website at http://www.gourmania.com

INVESTORS WANTED!
8% – 12.5% RETURN
On Secured Real Estate Mortgage Investments
Call 416-820-6602
Joel Kelman
CityCan Financial Corp.

SPOUSE DETECT
NANNY DETECT
STORE WATCH
PHONE: 416 791 8380
EMAIL: SPOUSEDETECT@ROGERS.COM
PROFESSIONAL SURVEILLANCE! WHERE YOU CAN'T BE.
WE ARE!!!
LET US FIND OUT WHAT'S GOING ON FOR YOU!!
WE ARE HIGHLY TRAINED TO DISCREETLY SURVEY YOUR CASE. WE WILL TAKE PICTURES AND/OR VIDEO OF YOUR CASE SECRETLY AND PRESENT THE RESULTS BACK TO YOU.
WE MEET WITH YOU PRIVATELY AND USUALLY HAVE RESULTS IN 2 -3 DAYS
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL 416 791 8380

L'Chaim CANCER SUPPORT FOR JEWISH WOMEN
CANCER?
We've "been there."
We are Jewish women cancer survivors who can "be there" for you during your cancer journey.
We provide confidential support via phone or visit to Jewish women undergoing cancer treatment.
Please call: 416-633-0409

Do you have trouble staying asleep?
A research study is currently being conducted by
SLEEP DISORDERS CENTRE OF METROPOLITAN TORONTO
for individuals who are experiencing sleep problems throughout the night. Interested participants considered must be:
• Men and women age 50 years or older;
• Awake for at least 1 hour, four or more nights per week;
• Able to spend three daytime visits and five overnight visits at clinic.
Study related care is provided at no charge to study participants. This would include physical exam, sleep exams, laboratory services, and study medication.
For more information, please contact:
Jeffrey Lipsitz, M.D. or Harjinder Gill, Ph.D.
416-785-1128 ext. 355

Whatever the style, band's sound is in mint condition

BY JESSICA HELLEN
Special to The CJN

Jason Goldlist describes his band, mint., as "modern alternative rock with a classic rock influence," while Josh Katz calls it "fun loving rock – whatever gets you going and makes you want to move."

Although they might not be able to agree on how to characterize their band's style, it is clear that their passion for music is unanimous.

"[mint.] started as a way to give back to music and to show our appreciation to music," said Goldlist, who plays drums for the band.

"We like to consider ourselves entertainers. We like to make a good show, make the people dance and I'd like them to sing along," he said.

mint. comprises four Toronto 19-year-olds – Goldlist, Katz, Adam Jesin and guitarist Jason Szames. The band got its name after two of its members were on a hockey team with Italian players.

"When the [Italians] wanted to say something was cool, they would say it was mint," Katz explained.

The band added its own style to the name by writing it in lowercase with a period at the end.

In its current form, mint. has been playing together for two years.

Katz, the last member to join the band, was a guitarist who learned how to play bass for mint. three days before their first show together.

He describes the performance as "nerve-wracking," and said "there were mostly friends in the audience and I didn't want to make a fool of myself.

"I'd known two of the guys from school," Katz said. "Over the years we've gotten a lot closer. They're three of my best friends now, which is a lot of fun."

Goldlist said Judaism "absolutely" affects the band.

"It's definitely evident in our song writing," Goldlist said. "And if we play a Friday night show, [Jesin, the lead singer,] will donate the money. He won't keep his Shabbas show money."

Goldlist said being Jewish has also helped the band get gigs.

He described an event last year where Ed the Sock, a sock puppet and MuchMusic VJ introduced mint. as a band who "likes to rock in between their advanced Talmud classes."

mint. is comprised of four Toronto-area young men.

mint. plays at many charity events, school functions and community gatherings. They have also performed for Israel Day at Mel Lastman Square, where they "try to play mostly Jewish music," Katz said.

"We play to the crowd," he added.

Although the band recently recorded their first single, Elvis' Headphones (Making the Cut), in the studio, Katz and Goldlist both said they prefer performing live.

"The energy is just overwhelming when you're on stage. It's a good feeling to know other people are enjoying it," Katz said.

Goldlist agreed.

"We had a lot of fun doing it. We all enjoyed our first time in the studio, but we're a live band. We like the crowd interaction in the performance. We want to play as many shows as we possibly can," he said.

This, however, has become more difficult as the members currently attend universities across Canada.

"We're all studying our own things. But it's nice to stay connected through this and keep playing while we pursue other interests," he said.

Goldlist said he hopes the band keeps "getting live concert experience" and eventually gets an opportunity to record a demo CD.

"We really want to keep playing live and keep getting our music out there."

For more information about the band, visit mint.'s website at http://mint.rocks.it

2 NIGHTS ONLY
NOVEMBER 3 & 4!

DON'T MISS THIS TRIBUTE TO ISRAELI CHOREOGRAPHER OHAD NAHARIN
(Artistic Director Batsheva Dance Company)

"A DANCE OF JOY!"
Times Colonist

"A REAL CELEBRATION... IT LIFTS THE HEART & SPIRIT!"
Le Devoir

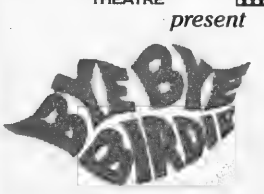
irreverence
Tragedy, irreverence, lyricism

MINUS ONE NOVEMBER 3 & 4, 2004
CHOREOGRAPHED BY: OHAD NAHARIN
To reserve your tickets call 416•872•2262

GERDA ROSNER

SPA SPECIAL
The Saxony Resort & Spa
3201
Three meals daily. • Luxury accommodations
• Daily Massages, Facials
• Brand New Equipped Fitness Center
• Chair Aerobics, Water Aerobics
• Yoga, Linedancing, Craft Studio
• Exciting Daily & Nightly Shows
• Oceanfront Boardwalk & Beach
• 5 minutes from South Beach
• Flea Markets & Chauffeur Service
79$ daily U.S.
p.p. dbl. occ. plus air fare gratuities & tax
Rates apply to Jan 20/05 and March 3 - April 20/05
Call Gerda Toll Free 1-866-489-4148

City PLAYHOUSE THEATRE and MARQUEE Productions present



BYE BYE BIRDIE

Nov. 3 – 7
Wed. to Sat. 7:30 pm
Saturday & Sunday Matinees at 2 pm
Adults $22 • Children & Seniors $19
Partial proceeds to JACS & Hadassah WIZO – call the box office for details!
BOOK YOUR TICKETS TODAY!
905-882-SHOW (7469)
BOX OFFICE HOURS MWF 2 PM-7 PM • SAT. NOON-5 PM
1000 New Westminster Drive, Vaughan • www.cityplayhouse.ca

Message to CJN Snowbirds

If you will be spending all or part of this winter outside of Canada, there are three options available to you regarding delivery of your Canadian Jewish News.

1/ Continue regular delivery to your home, and arrange for Canada Post to forward The CJN on with your other mail each week.

2/ Advise our Circulation Department to suspend delivery until your return to Canada with no weeks lost in your subscription period.

3/ Arrange with our Circulation Department to redirect The CJN to your winter address at a cost of $10.00 per month for U.S. addresses and $11.00 per month for foreign addresses.

This charge – payable by cheque, Visa, Mastercard or American Express before departure – covers the cost of additional postage incurred for out of country mailings.

To make any change in your delivery please fax 416-391-0949 or call the Circulation Department at 416-391-1836 (ext. 224), allowing a minimum of three weeks notice.

Eye on Arts

By Bill Gladstone

UJA FEDERATION HANDS OUT $25,000 IN GRANTS TO ARTISTS

Toronto visual artists Barbara Astman, Daniel Ehrenworth, Mayer Kirshenblatt, Natalie Schonfeld and Melanie Siegel each received $5,000 grants recently courtesy of the cultural services planning and allocation committee of the UJA Federation of Greater Toronto.

The inaugural grants "are meant to support the work of artists who work in Jewish themes in the community," said committee chair Cyrel Troster, retired head of visual arts at Unionville High School in York Region.

Some 26 artists made submissions to the juried competition, which focused on the visual arts this time, but will focus on other artistic disciplines in future, Troster said.

Co-ordinated by Federation official Sheryl Landy, the awards were presented at a ceremony at the Nadal JCC hosted by federation chair Leslie Gales. Music of the Fridge Magnets was featured.

* * *

Orders of Canada: This week in Ottawa, two Canadians are being invested as companions, the highest rank of the Order of Canada.

The first is Martin Friedland, law professor emeritus at the University of Toronto, whose legal writings have been cited by the highest courts in Canada and abroad, and who penned the U of T's massive official history on the occasion of its 175th anniversary. The second? None other than pop singer-composer Joni Mitchell.

Among those being invested as officers of the Order of Canada are Royden Rabinowitch of Belgium and Toronto, and William Weintraub of Montreal, while Arthur Drache of Ottawa is among those becoming members of the Order.

* * *

Names in the News: Local newspapers that ran obituaries on Pierre Salinger, who died three weeks ago at age 79, missed a significant detail of local relevance. The former press secretary for then-president John F. Kennedy, who later worked as a television news correspondent, lived in Toronto for several years during the early '30s. His father, thrown out of work after the 1929 crash, found a job here and moved his family into a house on Lonsdale Avenue. Pierre, a child musical prodigy, studied at the Royal Conservatory of Music… Julie Lennick, daughter of Sylvia and the late Ben Lennick of Wayne and Shuster fame, takes on the bravura role of Rose in the Civic Light Opera Company production of Gypsy at Fairview Library Theatre until Oct. 30 (416-755-1717). The show-stopping number You Gotta Get a Gimmick is performed by Sandi Horwitz, Louise Cascone and Susan Sanders… Richard Dreyfuss is in rehearsals with the London production of Mel Brooks' musical comedy The Producers, which opens there Nov. 9. The Oscar-winning actor plays the role of high-flying theatrical producer Max Bialystock… For years, advertising creative director Labe Kagan and associate real estate broker Mark Albert have complemented their daytime careers with various after-hours theatrical involvements. Both appear in A Thousand Clowns, a comedy by Herb Gardner. The Encore Entertainment production is at the Toronto Centre for the Arts, 5040 Yonge St., Oct. 28 to Nov. 7. Adults $26. (416-733-0558)… Veteran crime writer Howard Engel recently won the inaugural Grant Allen Award for pioneering work in Canadian Crime Writing. The Toronto-based author of about a dozen Benny Cooperman detective mysteries and many other books received the prize at the Scene Of The Crime Festival on Wolfe Island, near Kingston, in mid-August.

* * *

Literary Happenings

• David Bezmozgis, author of Natasha and Other Stories, is interviewed by Seamus O'Regan on Wednesday, Oct. 27, 7 p.m., and reads on Thursday, Oct. 28, 8 p.m., at the International Festival of Authors, Harbourfront. 416-973-4000 or www.readings.org

• The Fusgeyers (wayfarers) were Jews who fled Romania a century ago in order to find refuge. Jill Culiner launches her book, Finding Home: In the Footsteps of the Jewish Fusgeyers (Sumach Press), which retraces this lost epic journey. Nadal JCC, 750 Spadina Ave. No charge, everyone welcome. Wednesday, Oct. 27, 7 p.m. 416-924-6211.

• Second Story Press launches Kathy Kacer's latest book T*he Underground Reporters*, a Holocaust-era tale about a group of Czech-Jewish youth who perform an act of quiet rebellion. Presented as part of Holocaust Education Week. No charge, everyone welcome. Nadal JCC. Sunday, Oct. 31, 5 p.m.

• Vivian Felson, translator of Between the Wars: Canadian Jews in Transition by Israel Medres, reads from and discusses the work as part of Holocaust Education Week. The book, which was written by the translator's grandfather, evokes major themes of Canadian Jewish life in the '20s, '30s and '40s. Israel's Judaica, 897 Eglinton Ave. W. Refreshments, no admission charge. Tuesday, Nov. 2, 8 p.m.

• Simcha Simchovitch reads from his new book, After the Blood Inundation: Discourses on Writers, Artists and Historical Events, with songs from Lenka Lichtenberg and a review by Gerry Kane. Presented as part of the Jewish Book Fair. $5 admission. Leah Posluns Theatre, Sunday, Nov. 7, 4 p.m.

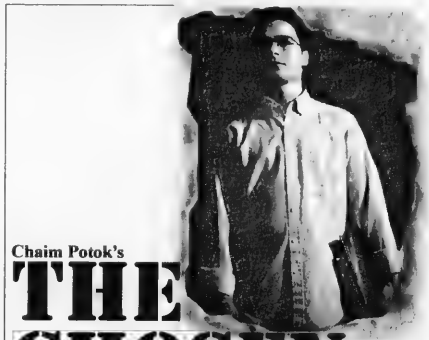
* * *

Arts in Brief

• Beyond the Pale launches its new CD Consensus with a CD release concert at Hugh's Room, 2261 Dundas St. W. Thursday, Oct. 28, 8:30 p.m. 416-531-6604 or www.hughsroom.com. To order the CD, call 1-877-530-4288.

• Jewish Storytelling is offered at the Nadal JCC the first Tuesday of each month. The next gathering is Tuesday, Nov. 2, 7:30 to 9 p.m. $5 at the door. 750 Spadina Ave. at Bloor. 416-924-6211.

• Medina Theatre Ensemble presents a staged reading of Birthright by Richard Maibaum, directed by Morris Jacobs. Set in 1930s Germany, the play focuses on a Jewish family, the Eisners, who are plunged into a whirlpool of hate by the ascension of Hitler. B'nai Brith Lodge, 15 Hove St. Free admission. Monday, Nov. 1, 8 p.m. Morris 416-785-0344.



Chaim Potok's
THE CHOSEN
now an award winning play!
by Aaron Posner and Chaim Potok
Nov 27 to Dec 12, 2004
Leah Posluns Studio Theatre
BJCC - 4588 Bathurst St., Toronto
For tickets, call
(416) 781-5527
or visit us at
www.teatrontheatre.com
a TEATRON Theatre production

Back by popular demand, the stars of Judy & David's Boom Box are having another Chanukah party and you're invited! Join in the fun with Canada's sing-along superstars and special guests, the Characters Kids' Choir, Bagel the Dog, Boomy the Boom Box, The Magic Menorah, and more! A portion of every ticket sold will support Na'amat's Tree of Love, providing essential day-care for children of all denominations in Israel.

Burton Auditorium, York University - December 4 - 4:30pm December 5 - 10:30am & 1:30pm
Al Green Theatre, Miles Nadal JCC (Bloor & Spadina) - December 11 - 6:30pm
December 12 - 10:30am, 1:30pm, 4:30pm

ticketmaster 416-872-1111 www.ticketmaster.ca
Tree of Love
more info at JudyandDavid.com

sunwing VACATIONS
www.sunwing.ca
Hyatt Regency Acapulco ★★★★½
Weekly Monday departures
Jan 3 to Feb 28
1 week from $1999
MEXICO
BEYOND YOUR EXPECTATIONS
plus
Kosher Services
• Kosher buffet & à la carte breakfast
• Kosher lunch, Kosher dinner, Shabbat dinner (Fridays)
• Shabbat brunch (Saturdays) buffet style, coffee & tea
• Beverages such as sodas & Kosher wine included for Shabbat dinner & brunch
• Stay in a Ocean View Deluxe Room with private balcony
Prices are per person based on double occupancy & were available at time of printing. Taxes & travel related fees are extra. For full terms & conditions refer to the Sunwing 2004/05 Sunbook. Ont. Reg. # 3479582 - 1028280A
TICO
(416) 789-3271
1.888.666.8747
THE TRAVEL NETWORK
VIRTUOSO MEMBER
1920 Avenue Rd. Toronto, ON
(N. of Lawrence Ave.)
The Travel Network Corp. Regd 2455619

Arts & Travel

Poetry slammers get their day at Wordlympics

By DAVID SILVERBERG
Special to The CJN

OTTAWA — I'm reading a poem about being Jewish and the entire audience – with barely a kippah in sight – is listening with rapt attention.

My lines echo from the loudspeakers and bounce from wall to wall in the auditorium of Library and Archives Canada.

"What we always have is our lineage. And some poets will tell you that lineage also spells line age, and that works. Because if you look at the age of creased lines on a Jew's face, you'll see he's old beyond his years. You'll see lines of camp survivors, lines from jokes that should have never hit air."

I've read this poem before in small cafés in Toronto, but never to a crowd so passionate about spoken word – the art form that takes poetry from page to stage. It was here that the first Canadian Spoken Wordlympics bridged the divide between ardent fans and the inquisitive masses who want creativity that is both entertaining and intellectually nourishing.

What made the Wordlympics worthy of the latter half of its name was its competitive format. Throughout the four-day festival in early October, I listened and took part in slams – poetry competitions that let five judges, chosen from the audience, score a piece from one to 10.

The best poets move on to the "playoffs," then the finals, much like in a sports match. In all, 64 poets competed for cash prizes, trophies and poetic pride.

I was captain of a Toronto team, one of two, that competed in the Canadian team slams. My teammates exemplified the range of this art form: Mike Smith is a journalist for NOW Magazine who writes cynically about our culture sliding from grace. Amanda Hiebert is an actor by day and a skilled wordsmith by night, letting her perspective on love and relationships infuse her work. Leviathan is a black slam poet trained in hip-hop, but who now delivers lightning-quick poems that double as public-service announcements on subjects such as aspartame, which he calls "poison in packets."

FLORIDA, ARIZONA, CALIFORNIA, CANADA
WE SEND YOUR CAR & CONTENTS (and return)
CALL 416-225-7754
www.torontodriveaway.com
TORONTO DRIVEAWAY SERVICE
5803 Yonge St., #101
North York M2M 3V5
Since 1959

And me? I'm a freelance journalist who runs a reading series in north Toronto called Suburban Spoken Word. I'm a slam novice, but I've been writing poetry for 10 years, and this chance was too tempting to miss.

On the first night, the talented poets reshaped my view of spoken word.

I marvelled at beatboxing mixed with lyricism from Vancouver, flowing alliteration from Winnipeg, flawless rapping from Halifax and gut-tickling humour from Ottawa.

Sometimes, my jaw hung open and other times I clapped so hard my palms turned red. Every poem was above and beyond what most people think of when they hear the word "poetry."

"This isn't what I've been taught in high school," I thought to myself. "And this is bigger than hip-hop."

What truly made the Wordlympics special were its daytime workshops and open mic sessions. I learned how to apply for a grant from the Canada Council for the Arts, and I heard students from Ottawa's Ridgemont High School read poetry in the youth showcase.

Vancouver slam poet C.R. Avery mixes beatboxing and poetry on stage.
[Kevin Jones photo]

One afternoon found 20 poets signed up for the open mic, where anyone could read whatever they wanted to for five minutes.

Another afternoon featured guerilla readings on Parliament Hill and around downtown Ottawa. That's where things got interesting.

Around 30 of us strolled to the Rideau Centre to share some words with shoppers, but before any metaphors could drop from our mouths, security guards told us to leave.

My teammate and friend Leviathan was adamant and continued his poem about the danger of plastics. The security guards got aggressive – they tackled Leviathan, handcuffed him and pressed his face into the floor while we cried out "Freedom of speech!" and asked repeatedly why they were being so violent.

(I know, we were on private property, but we were spreading knowledge and poetry, not hate.)

When the furor died down, Leviathan was released with a $70 ticket for trespassing and refusing to leave. The warmest moment of the festival occurred when one poet suggested we help pay for the ticket, and loonies and toonies and five dollar bills immediately piled up in front of Leviathan's teary eyes.

The last two nights featured the final slams, where the team competitions followed individual bouts.

I barely kept up with the inspiring and slick lines, but a few float long enough in my head to be scribbled in my notebook.

John Akpata from Ottawa wondered, "If vengeance belongs to God, and God is good, does that also make vengeance good?"

And in the best duet of the night – yes, poets can team up and read pieces together – Barbara Adler and Shane Koyczan from Vancouver said: "Together, we're two bottles of really good booze in a land where people choose not to drink, two bright ideas in a world that doesn't wanna think."

When the after-parties dwindled and the e-mails were exchanged, the poets at the Wordlympics kept saying the same thing, and I think it's become the festival's mantra.

"Hearing these poets has changed my writing. I'm not the same poet," we all said.

That's why I went – to re-energize my words and strengthen my faith in the spoken word art form.

City of Vaughan
The City Above Toronto

PROXY VOTING/VOTE PAR PROCURATION

N.B. Ce document est également disponible en français au Bureau du Secrétaire, à l'Hôtel de Ville de Vaughan au 905-832-8504.

WHAT IS A PROXY VOTE?
A Proxy Vote allows any person entitled to vote to appoint another qualified elector to vote for them.

HOW DO I ARRANGE FOR PROXY VOTING?
Call us and we will mail you the prescribed Appointment of Voting Proxy form. The person you appoint to act as your voting proxy must complete his/her portion of the Appointment of Voting Proxy form and present it in person to the Clerk's Department, 2141 Major Mackenzie Drive, Vaughan (Maple) Ontario.

The apppointment may only be made after Thursday, October 14, 2004 and must be made on the Appointment of Voting Proxy form available in the Clerk's Department. The form must be certified by the City Clerk and is to be taken to the voting place by the elector appointed. The Clerk's Department will be open Monday to Friday to receive and certify the Appointment of Voting Proxy forms during the following times:

Thursday, October 14, 2004 to Monday, November 25, 2004 (Voting Day) - 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

and on Advance Voting Days:
Saturday, November 13, 2004 - 12 noon to 5:00 p.m.
Sunday, November 14, 2004 - 12 noon to 5:00 p.m.
Wednesday, November 17, 2004 - 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

QUESTIONS?
To find out more about who can vote by proxy and who may be appointed a voting proxy, please call the Clerk's Department at 905-832-8504

First Published: October 28, 2004

John D. Leach
City Clerk & Returning Officer
City of Vaughan

City of Vaughan
The City Above Toronto

NOTICE OF ADVANCE VOTING/AVIS DE VOTE ANTICIPÉ

N.B. Ce document est également disponible en français au Bureau du Secrétaire, à l'Hôtel de Ville de Vaughan au 905-832-8504

WHO CAN VOTE AT THE ADVANCE VOTING?
If you are eligible to vote in the 2004 Municipal Election and expect to be unable to vote on Thursday, November 25, 2004 (Voting Day) at your designated location, you are encouraged to vote on the Advance Voting days.

SIGHT IMPAIRED VOTERS
All Advance Voting locations are accessible to persons who have a physical disability or a mobility impairment. In addition, sight impaired voters will be able to vote on the advance voting days at the Garnet A. Williams Community Centre location using the Ivotronic Voting system. Transportation will be provided for sight impaired voters who wish to vote on the advance voting days using this system. Please contact Larry Glass at 905-832-8504 Ext. 8691.

WHEN WILL THE ADVANCE VOTING BE HELD?
The Advance Voting will be held on the following dates:

Saturday, November 13, 2004 from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.
Sunday, November 14, 2004 from 10:00 a.m to 6:00 p.m.
Wednesday, November 17, 2004 from 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.

at the following location:

GARNET A. WILLIAMS COMMUNITY CENTRE
501 Clark Avenue West, Thornhill

QUESTIONS?
For further information, please contact the Clerk's Department at 905-832-8504

First Published: October 28, 2004

John D. Leach
City Clerk & Returning Officer
City of Vaughan

YOUR VOTE COUNTS!

Many TJFF-screened movies available on DVD

By LARRY ANKLEWICZ
Special to The CJN

Every year the Toronto Jewish Film Festival presents an extravaganza of some of the best Jewish films available in the world. And as a member of the festival's programming committee, I keep getting asked when some of these films will be available on video or DVD.

I'm pleased to report that this has been a banner year for video and DVD releases of Jewish content films and many films screened by the Toronto Jewish Film Festival over the past few years are now available in stores.

Yossi and Jagger, a film about two gay Israeli soldiers and their relationship while serving in a unit guarding the Lebanese border, shown by the festival this past year, is now available for home viewing.

The same is true for God Is Great & I'm Not. This French comedy was a resounding success at the 2003 festival

The 2003 festival presented several other films that have been recently released on video. These include Samy Y Yo (Samy & I), a charming comedy from Argentina about a Jewish writer trying to find some success in both his professional and personal lives, and the uplifting documentary Secret Lives: Hidden Children and Their Rescuers During World War II.

Secret Lives is about the non-Jews who saved Jewish children during the Holocaust by hiding them in their homes. The film also focuses on the children themselves and what they went on to do after the end of the war.

One of the hits of the 2004 festival, Crown Heights, has been released on DVD. This film tells the story of a chassidic rabbi, played by Canadian actor Howie Mandel, and a black youth leader, played by Mario Van Peebles, trying to broker peace between their communities in Crown Heights, N.Y., after a chassidic man accidentally runs down and kills a young black boy.

Also available is the documentary The Komediant, about the Yiddish theatre's Burstein family – Pesach Burstein, his wife Lillian Lux and their son Mike Burstyn, who has appeared in numerous Hebrew- and English-language films and stage shows and has recorded several Yiddish CDs.

Finally, the popular drama Gebirtig, about a diverse group of people who were affected by the Holocaust in one way or another, was released to the home market just a few weeks ago.

A Tickle in the Heart, a documentary about the great klezmer musicians, the Epstein Brothers, has been available on videocassette for several years now, but the film was recently released on DVD.

You will probably not find these titles in many video stores in Canada. But all of them can be purchased through the www.amazon.ca Canadian Internet site, or through the American www.amazon.com.

The Canadian site is a little easier to use than the American one because it charges you in Canadian dollars and you don't have to worry about customs and tariffs. But not all titles are always available on amazon.ca and you may have to go to the American site to obtain everything you want.

Several excellent titles will be coming out on video before the end of the year, including the Italian film Facing Windows and the film that played to sell-out audiences at the Toronto Jewish Film Festival two years in a row, The Hebrew Hammer. More details on those titles will follow in future columns.

Howie Mandel and Mario Van Peebles star in Crown Heights.

TARRAGON
The Unexpected Man
"What an exquisite brief encounter this is." – Newsday
By Yasmina Reza
Translated by Christopher Hampton
STARRING Les Carlson and Deborah Kipp DIRECTED BY Chris Abraham
SET & COSTUME DESIGN Aidan Leroux LIGHTING DESIGN Kevin Lamotte
SOUND DESIGN Rick Hyslop STAGE MANAGER Kate Macdonnell
Oct. 5 to Nov. 7 previews Sept. 28 – Oct. 3
Tarragon Theatre T 416.531.1827 30 Bridgman Ave. www.tarragontheatre.com
SUPPORTED BY

Modigliani
Beyond the Myth
Shut down in Paris in 1917. Censored in New York in 1957. Now open in Toronto!
For tickets call today: 416-979-6608 or 416-872-1212 or visit www.ago.net
TRANS-FORMATION AGO
Art Gallery of Ontario

FAMILY & BAR/BAT MITZVAH TOURS
DEC. 19-JAN. 3
MARCH BREAK & PASSOVER '05
MARCH 10-22
MARCH 17-29
APRIL 21-MAY 4
(PASSOVER)
SUMMER '05
JULY 3-17
JULY 10-24
JULY 31-AUG. 14
AUG. 18-SEPT. 1
SUMMER YOUNG COUPLES TOUR
JULY 5-17 '05
TRAVEL TO ISRAEL ON AN AMAZING TRIP WHILE YOUR KIDS ARE IN CAMP
ISRAEL 2005
We know Israel best. We send more people to Israel than any other travel agency.
2005 Family Tours SELLING OUT FAST!
CALL TODAY! BOOK NOW!
• The best deluxe tours in North America
• All-inclusive deluxe hotels • More days of sightseeing
• More meals • A true family itinerary • Greatest value
Our website: www.israelfamilytours.com
PEERLESS TRAVEL
YOUR FULL SERVICE TRAVEL AGENCY
NOVEMBER EL AL SEAT SALE TO ISRAEL
$799 TICKETING ENDS NOV. 4/04
905-886-5610
Toll Free 800-294-1663
info@peerlesstravel.com
7117 Bathurst St. #200, Thornhill, Ont. L4J 2J2
ISRAEL
March 20-30/05
Led by Rabbi Scheim
Very innovative itinerary
Canadian Hadassah-WIZO Solidarity Mission
Israel & Budapest
March 16-28/05
Machalniks & Israeli War Veterans
May 8-19/05
Join Yom Hazikaron/Yom Ha'atzmaut Ceremonies
Incl. 7 days touring, many meals & more!! Call us now!
Interfaith Yom Ha'atzmaut Tour
Rabbi Joseph Kelman/Mr. Dean Bye
May 10-18/05
Pre-Tour to Poland, May 4-9
INFO. MTG.
Sun., Nov. 7, 10 a.m.
Beth Emeth Synagogue
100 Elder St., Toronto

The creator of Maus takes on 9/11

By NORMAN RAVVIN

There are few books whose imminent release cause readers to think: "I must get a look at that." Art Spiegelman's In the Shadow of No Towers (Pantheon) is one.

Spiegelman has not produced a major publication since the appearance of his two-volume set Maus, a true story of the Holocaust in comic form – the Jews are mice, the Germans cats, the Poles pigs, the French frogs and the Americans dogs – but he has remained active through his contribution of drawn narratives for The Forward in New York and Die Zeit in Germany.

Norman Ravvin

Notoriety followed him, too, for the cover drawings he did for The New Yorker following the melee that resulted after a Jewish driver struck two black children in Brooklyn's Crown Heights and the Sept. 11 destruction of the World Trade Center in lower Manhattan.

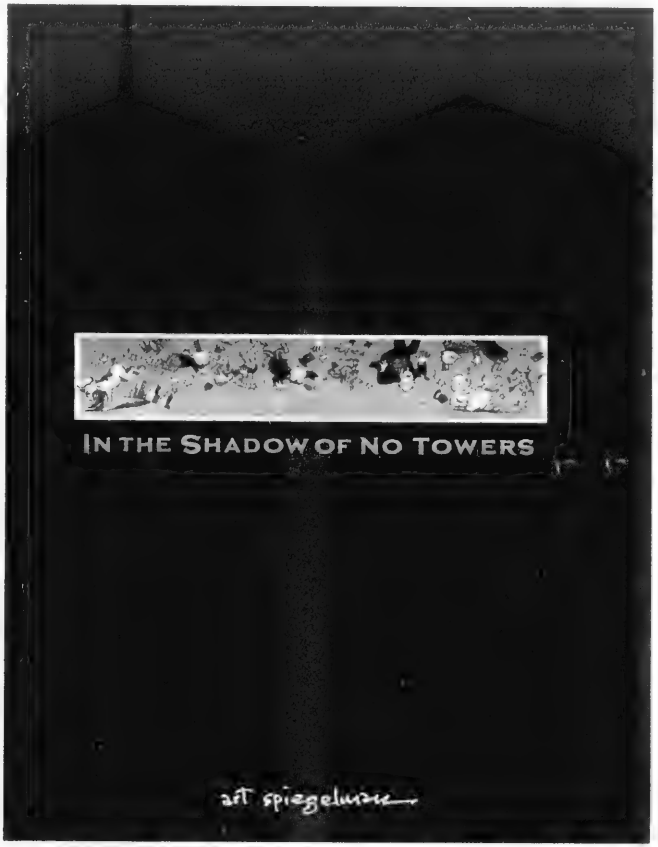
The cover of In the Shadow of No Towers reprises the latter work, showing a pair of dark, angular columns over top a slightly lighter background. Like much of Spiegelman's visual art, the image is simple, unsentimental and striking.

Expectations for great things from I*n the Shadow of No Towers* are heightened by the amount of blarney that has been written and said regarding Sept. 11. Only in the immediate aftermath did commentators and writers speak unguardedly about the morning's events, while political motivations and the general crassness of the media quickly destroyed the possibility of candid reflection in favour of partisan sniping and point scoring.

Spiegelman began publishing the large-scale comic pages that make up In the Shadow of No Towers in early 2002. In them, he describes his own response to the events in stark, simple terms: "I still see the glowing tower, awesome as it collapses – I was sure we were going to die!" He is "haunted now by the images he didn't witness… images of people tumbling to the streets below… especially one man (according to a neighbour) who executed a graceful dive as his last living act."

In the Shadow of No Towers is a beautiful book, and one of rather unusual design. Fully 10 inches wide by 14½ high, it opens like a broadsheet newspaper to reveal 10 large-scale storyboards whose styles vary, from imagery reminiscent of Maus to takeoffs on classic early comic strips. Spiegelman, his wife, the illustrator Francoise Mouly, and their daughter appear alongside a malevolent Uncle Sam and President George W. Bush, and repeated images of the twin towers as glistening multicolour skeletons about to disintegrate in midair.

Spiegelman's political inclinations are staunchly anti-Bush, and one of the installments of In the Shadow of No Towers investigates an America divided over the values and political aims asserted by the Republican White House. Why, Spiegelman draws himself asking, "did those provincial American flags have to sprout out of the embers of Ground Zero? Why not… a globe??!"



Spiegelman's response to Sept. 11 is compelling for a number of reasons: he inhabits the neighbourhood that was devastated that day, so is a walker on the streets on which the world trained its interest; his use of the characters and imagery of the early era of newspaper comics places his response in the broad, accessible and vital context of American popular culture; and the idiosyncrasy of his tableaux prevents him from rehashing the clichés, the journalistic commonplaces, or the standard partisan claims that have swept over most discussions of Sept. 11. Though In the Shadow of No Towers is not as startling in its originality as were the Maus books, the form and tone of the book is like nothing else in the burgeoning canon of response to the events.

In an effort to account for his use of classic comic book imagery and characters, Spiegleman adds three intriguing addenda to his volume. One is an essay on the development, in the early decades of the last century, of funny pages. It was to this material that Spiegleman turned for solace "after 9/11/01, while waiting for some other terrorist shoe to drop."

Alongside this essay are reproductions of Krazy Kat, Little Nemo and other strips evocative of New York City and early political and social satire. The book's title page includes a reproduction of the front page of the New York World, circa Sept. 11, 1901. On it, the reader sees that 100 years before the collapse of the Twin Towers, it was the twin events of anarchist Emma Goldman's arrest, and the shooting of former U.S. president William McKinley by an anarchist that put the nation on edge.

American history, Spiegelman would seem to suggest, is made up of a well-spaced parade of such heightened, crucial moments. The tendency, then, to declaim that "everything's changed" in the days after Sept. 11 reflects a lack of historical memory.

In the Shadow of No Towers evokes a good deal of fear and loathing in the aftermath of Sept. 11, but it challenges the demagogy that followed the event. As in Maus, In the Shadow of No Towers manages to be clearheaded and often funny about the darkest human acts.

Norman Ravvin's most recent book is the novel Lola by Night (paperplates books). He chairs the Institute for Canadian Jewish Studies at Concordia University in Montreal.

He will be a regular contributor to the Books & Authors page.

Centre Honda: YOUR DOWNTOWN HONDA DEALER!
DRIVE IT/LOVE IT
IT'S A GREAT DAY FOR DRIVING. THE 2005 CIVICS ARE HERE.
2005 CIVIC SEDAN DX
Genuine Honda performances and quality from bumper to bumper.
Here's classic Honda value featuring advanced engineering, top-ranked fuel efficency and strong resale value.
2005 Civic Sedan DX is well-equipped with: •1.7L SOCH 16-VALVE ENGINE • 5-SPEED MANUAL…AND MUCH MORE.
Civic DX, model ES1515PK shown
2005 CIVIC SEDAN SE
Last year's runaway success, now further value enriched.
Honda's value smash hit returns with even more to entice you. The stylish SE is an unmistakable step up in sophistication.
Civic SE, model ES1535PK shown
Civic Sedan SE enhances the value of the DX by adding: • NEW FOR 2005 KEYLESS REMOTE ENTRY • AUDIO ANTI-THEFT SYSTEM • A/C…AND MORE.
OR PURCHASE
2005 Civic DX from $16,200 — 2005 Civic SE from $17,300
WITH 3.9% PURCHASE FINANCING O.A.C. FOR UP TO 96 MONTHS
Lease a 2005 Civic DX for 60 Months
$218 PER MONTH WITH O.A.C. + $0 DOWN PAYMENT and SECURITY DEPOSIT
Lease a 2005 Civic SE for 60 Months
$228 PER MONTH WITH O.A.C. + $0 SECURITY DEPOSIT and $273.59 DOWN PAYMENT
Web-Site: www.centrehonda.com
E-Mail: sales@centrehonda.com
CENTRE Honda
HONDA
SERVING DOWNTOWN FOR OVER 35 YEARS
354 RICHMOND ST. (East of Shuterbourne) 416-364-1116
• SALES • LEASING • SERVICE • PARTS • BODYSHOP
QUEEN RICHMOND KING LAKESHORE BLVD. DUFFERIN GATE CENTRE HONDA PARLIAMENT DON VALLEY
HCFI

CLASSIFIED DIRECTORY

5 HOUSES FOR SALE
10 HOUSES FOR SALE PRIVATE
15 HOUSES FOR RENT
20 HOUSES FOR SALE/RENT
24 HOUSES WANTED TO BUY
25 HOUSES WANTED TO RENT
30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE
35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT
40 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE/RENT
45 CONDOMINIUM WANTED
50 ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
55 ACCOMMODATION WANTED
60 SHARED ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
62 SHARED ACCOMMODATION WANTED
65 ACCOMMODATION/SWAP/EXCHANGE
67 HOUSE SITTERS WANTED
68 HOUSE SITTERS AVAILABLE
70 UNIVERSITY ACCOMMODATION
75 APARTMENT FOR RENT
78 SHORT TERM RENTAL AVAILABLE
80 SHORT TERM RENTAL WANTED
81 APARTMENT TO SUBLET
82 ROOM AVAILABLE FOR RENT
84 ROOM WANTED FOR RENT
85 APARTMENT WANTED
87 PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
105 COTTAGE FOR SALE
110 COTTAGE FOR RENT
115 COTTAGE FOR RENT/SALE
120 COTTAGE WANTED
122 TIME SHARE FOR SALE
123 TIME SHARE FOR RENT
125 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE
130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT
135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
140 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION WANTED
143 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. AVAIL.
145 FLORIDA SHARED ACCOMM. WANTED
147 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION
150 FLORIDA TRANSPORTATION
155 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE
160 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT
165 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT
170 ISRAEL PROPERTIES WANTED
175 ISRAEL ACCOMMODATION WANTED
178 ISRAEL TRANSPORTATION
180 OUT-OF-TOWN PROPERTIES
185 OUT-OF-COUNTRY PROPERTIES
190 VACATION PROPERTY AVAILABLE
195 VACATION PROPERTIES WANTED
196 VACATION PROPERTIES-EXCH./SHARE
198 SPACE FOR LEASE
199 COMMERCIAL PROPERTY AVAILABLE
200 OFFICE SPACE AVAILABLE
201 OFFICE SPACE WANTED
202 STORAGE SPACE WANTED
203 STORAGE SPACE AVAILABLE
205 LAND/LOTS FOR SALE
210 LAND/LOTS FOR LEASE
220 INVESTMENT PROPERTIES
225 INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES
230 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES
232 BUSINESS FOR SALE
235 BUSINESS WANTED
240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES
245 EMPLOYMENT WANTED
246 VOLUNTEERS
247 DAY CARE AVAILABLE
248 DAY CARE WANTED
250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE
255 DOMESTIC HELP WANTED
257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE
258 HEALTHCARE WANTED
259 SENIORS
260 BUSINESS PERSONALS
265 PEOPLE SEARCH
270 PERSONALS
273 INTRODUCTION SERVICES
275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS WANTED
279 PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY
280 ANNOUNCEMENTS
290 LOST & FOUND
295 PETS
300 ARTICLES FOR SALE
305 ARTICLES WANTED
313 BOATS
315 CARS
320 CONTENTS SALE
325 GARAGE SALE

SERVICE DIRECTORY

345 ACCOUNTING
350 APPLIANCES
355 AUDIO-VISUAL SALES/REPAIRS
357 AUTOMOTIVE
358 BRIDAL
365 CARPENTRY
368 CARPETS
370 CATERING
371 CERAMICS
372 CHUPPAHS
375 CLEANING/CLEANING SUPPLIES
379 CLOCKS/WATCHES
380 CLOTHING
382 COUNSELLING
385 COMPUTER
386 DANCING
387 DECORATING
390 DRIVING
392 DRY CLEANING/LAUNDRY
394 EDUCATION
395 ELECTRICAL
396 ELECTRONICS
400 ENTERTAINMENT
404 FITNESS & WEIGHT LOSS
405 FURNITURE
406 GARAGE DOORS
407 GIFT SERVICES
410 HEALTH & BEAUTY
412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING
415 HOME IMPROVEMENTS
416 HOME INSPECTION
419 INTERNET SERVICE
420 INVITATIONS/PRINTING/CALLIG.
425 JEWELLERY
427 JUDAICA
430 LEASING
431 LANDSCAPING/LAWNCARE
432 LAWYERS
433 LESSONS
434 LIMOUSINE/TAXI SERVICES
435 LIQUIDATION
438 LOCKSMITH
439 MAKE-UP
440 MISCELLANEOUS
442 MUSICAL SERVICES
445 MOVING
449 PEST CONTROL
450 PAINTING/WALLPAPERING
452 PARTY SERVICES
455 PHOTOGRAPHY/VIDEO
460 PLUMBING
465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES
470 RENOVATIONS
472 RETIREMENT HOMES
475 ROOFING
477 SECOND HAND STORES
478 SCHOOLS
480 SECURITY SYSTEMS
481 SEWING
482 SIGNS
485 SNOW REMOVAL
490 TABLE COVERING
493 TAILORING/ALTERATIONS
495 TILING
496 TRAINING
498 TRAVEL & TOURISM
500 TUTORING
510 UPHOLSTERY
515 WATERPROOFING
520 WINDOW COVERINGS
525 WINDOW REPLACEMENT
530 WINDOW CLEANING
550 WORKSHOPS

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

ROB GASNER
GETS RESULTS

Bathurst Manor – Charming 3 B/R on 52' wide lot, ideal for first time buyers. Original Owners. $359,000. Wont last long at this price!! Call today.

1 Glen Park – Spectacular luxury P/H Condo, 2000 square feet with an additional 730 foot breathtaking west-looking terrace. 4 B/R eat-in kitchen 3 washrooms, ensuite laundry, 24hr security …many extras.

1201 Steeles W – Large 2B/R condo on 14th floor South view, complete with working masonry wood-burning fireplace. Solarium, ensuite laundry, pool, tennis, close to park, TTC, shuls, shopping…$229,000.

242 Westmount Blvd – south of 407 west of Bathurst, 4 BR large home, beautifully landscaped, on the quiet part of the street. Fruit-bearing trees backing on to tree-line. Approx. 2780 sq. ft. plus bsmt. Main floor family room. Good schools, kid friendly neighborhood.

RE/MAX REALTRON REALTY INC. Anything else is second best !!

416-782-8882
www.gasner.ca
Your link to over 15,000 commercial HAVES and WANTS

REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

Tour my listings at www.RuthHalperin.com
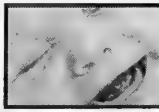
416-487-5131
Re/Max Ultimate Realty Inc.

Easy Condo Living - demand Avenue/Wilson!
Only $269,900 - Fab. 2 bedroom, 2 bathroom, ensuite laundry, parking, eat-in kit. with window, one bus to subway, move in right now!

Sherwood Park - reduced over $200,000!
Now $939,000 - Amazing chic and dramatic renovated 3 bedroom (plus loft), 5 bathroom home, dream kitchen, vaulted ceiling, fin. bsmt, parking 4-5 cars, incredible 266' deep lot, steps to TTC. Won't last now!

Avenue/Lawrence - over 3250' of luxury +fin bsmt!
$1,149,000 - Gorgeous 4 bedroom, 5 bathroom, brand new kit, 5 brand new baths, the list goes on & on, one year warranty, tasteful and elegant.



Looking for a nanny?
Check out The Canadian Jewish News CLASSIFIEDS

DAVID EICHORN
REALTY LIMITED REALTOR

416 787•1712

Visit our website: eichornrealty.com

BATHURST / VIEWMOUNT

Spectacular brand new custom home loaded with upgrades, on 50 x 140 ft. lot and surrounded by million $ homes! 5 + 1 bedrooms, sep. entry to in-law suite, main floor family room + library, asking $1.349 million. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

AVENUE ROAD / BATHURST / LAWRENCE
Spacious 3 + 1 bedroom bungalow on magnificent 40 ft. lot surrounded by million $ homes. Renovated & decorated, sep. entry to in-law suite. FABULOUS DEAL AT ONLY $499,000, Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

* * *

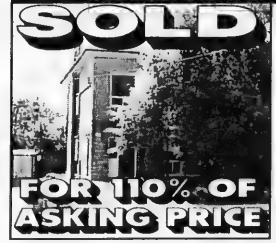
BATHURST / LAWRENCE
A REAL CHARMER! Renovated & decorated 3 + 1 bedroom on beautifully landscaped lot! Modern open concept, hardwood floors, w/o from kitchen to gorgeous yard, attached garage. ONLY $429,000 — ACT NOW! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

* * *

BATHURST / GLENGROVE — EXQUISITE NEW CUSTOM HOME!
5 + 2 bdrms., 5 baths, fin. bsmt., sep. entry to in-law suite, fam. room, dream kit. Luxurious upgrades throughout! Lowest priced new home in area. REDUCED TO $979,000! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712. Visit our website for a virtual tour.

BATHURST / WILSON — AFFORDABLE LUXURY
EXQUISITE NEW TOWNHOMES in prime central location! Choice of 3 & 4 bdrm. units, each individually customized, attached garages and features galore, priced from $399,000. Model home available for viewing! Call David Eichorn* NOW at (416) 787-1712.

BATHURST / LAWRENCE TRIPLEX



Well maintained building in fabulous location close to TTC. Three 2 bedroom units, gross income $36,000 +. Total 4 parking spaces. Separate hydro meters, hot water & gas meters. ACT FAST — WON'T LAST! Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

SOLD

BATHURST / DELL PARK — MAGNIFICENT CUSTOM HOME!
Approx. 3,500 sq. ft. + fin. bsmt., 5 + 1 bdrms., sep. entry to in-law suite, dream kit., main floor fam. room + library. All the bells & whistles — oak hrdwd. flrs.., limestone, granite, skylights ++.Asking $1,029,000. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

* * *

ATTENTION BUILDERS:
Dream home opportunities on these ideally-situated building lots!

AVENUE / BATHURST SOLD OLDSTREAM 50 x 150 ft.
BATHURST / LAWRENCE REDUCED 50 ft. frontage, $399,000
AVENUE ROAD / LAWRENCE 44 ft. frontage, $449,000

* * *

BATHURST / LAWRENCE — REDUCED!
MAGNIFICENT CUSTOM LUXURY HOME on 58 x 132 ft. lot that widens to 83 ft. at rear. Unique opportunity, condo alternative, huge palatial bungalow. Ideal for entertaining, indoor pool. Only $849,000. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

* * *

BATHURST / LAWRENCE— APARTMENTS FOR RENT!
TWO BRIGHT, SPACIOUS UNITS! 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, w/o to balcony, quiet building close to TTC, subway, shops, schools, shuls. $1,250 — $1,400 / mo. Call David Eichorn* (416) 787-1712.

ONE RENTED, ONE LEFT!

*BROKER

REAL ESTATE Section

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

WYCHWOOD PARK AREA
$479,000. Renovated 2 storey, 3 bedroom, 2 bath, fabulous kitchen, hardwood floors, finished basement, private drive. Great value.

AVENUE ROAD/LAWRENCE
$499,000. 3 bedroom, 2 bath, move-in condition on private street, lovely garden, eat-in ktichen w/Bay Window. SOLD

RONCESVALLES VILLAGE
$559,900. Just reduced! Great investment property. Main floor salon w/2 bedroom apartments on 2nd and 3rd floors. Detached garage. Excellent location.

LES AARON
Sales Representative
Forest Hill REAL ESTATE INC. • REALTOR
416-785-1500

PRESTIGIOUS BALMORAL
WILSON HEIGHTS & SHEPPARD!
Premium pool size lot, cul de sac location. Fabulously upgraded 5 bedrooms, 4 bathroom residence, Downsview Kitchen with Pantry & Breakfast Rm., Eat-In, Main Flr. Family Rm. & Laundry Rm., all Marble Baths, Walnut floors, 2 Fireplaces...Original Bramalea Built! 3841 Sq. Ft. Neutral Decor. Don't miss this one! $ 989K.
CALL MARINA PAUL, Associate Broker,
Chestnut Park Real Estate 416-925-9191

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

COUNTRY RETREAT
IN THE HEART OF THE CITY

$2,349,000 Custom designed new 5200 sq. ft. home, located on 1 1/4 acre city lot, backing onto The Don River and surrounded by parkland. Five bedrooms, 6 bathrooms, plus 2400 sq. ft. finished basement, a unique home for the discerning buyer. For additional details or to view this property, call
JOHN QUINN or NIGEL WAIN
Re/Max Unique Inc.
416-928-6833

BROCKINGTON CRESCENT — JUST LISTED!
Architectural masterpiece on only lot in prime prestigious ravine location! Over 4,200 sf. Magnificent gourmet kitchen. Luxury bathrooms. Exquisite premium finishes throughout: marble, granite, Brazilian cherry hardwood, limestone, imported ceramics, 2 fireplaces. Balcony overlooking ravine. Executive living at its best. Ready spring 2005. ASKING $1,190,000.

• • •

DUFFERIN / RUTHERFORD — JUST LISTED!
Bright, spacious 3 bedroom, 3 bath Greenpark freehold TH; large eat-in kitchen; walk-out to deck; lots of upgrades! 5 pc ensuite! Gas fireplace; 5 whirlpool appliances! Sunny south lot, shows beautifully -- don't miss!! ASKING $318,000.

IAN MAGED or SARAH MAGED
Sutton Group Admiral Realty (416) 739-7200

ALAN NEWTON
REAL ESTATE LTD. REALTOR

BATHURST-CENTRE - 1ST AD! JUST LISTED!
On Franklin. Very elegant home about 4,000 sq. ft. plus professionaly finished basement, strip hardwood & granite floors, custom built-ins in bedrooms, 3 bathrooms with jacuzzis on 2nd floor, sauna. On private mature lot! Absolutely stunning! Must see! Call *Cila Fleischmann or *Sarah Tamin

• • •

YONGE-ELGIN MILLS - A MUST SEE!!
Exquisite finishings for this 4 bedroom home, about 4,200 sq. ft., main floor den & family room, granite, hardwood, interlock+++. To view call Mark Waxman

• • •

BATHURST-CENTRE - CHILD SAFE COURT
Fabulous 4 bedroom on pool size lot, hardwood, glass block,landscaped++. A must to see! $539,000. *Ted Waxman

• • •

BATHURST VILLAGE $449,900
Large 4 bedroom backsplit on quiet street, main floor laundry room, combined living & dining rooms, double garage, hardwood floors. *Ted Waxman

• • •

BATHURST-CLARK "SPRING FARM"
Fabulous finishings on this 3 bedroom home, fully renovated throughout. Gourmet kitchen, finished basement, built-in tub, hardwood, granite & extras galore! *Ted Waxman

• • •

BATHURST MANOR GEM ON NICE LOT!!
Cozy updated 3 bedroom bungalow in the "Manor". Newer roof, furnace & air, hardwood floors, close to transit, shuls & shops. *Carey Rosenzweig

• • •

COTTAGE FOR SALE

BELLE EWART - 44' X 337' LOT
Fabulous 2 bedroom winterized bungalow, fully renovated, 3 car parking, appliances, 3 minute walk to the lake! Great value at $285,000! *Ted Waxman

• • •

CONDOMINIUMS FOR SALE

BATHURST-STEELES "PRIMROSE"
Large 2 bdrm condo, walk-in laundry room, oversized parking space, appliances, southern exposure. *Ted Waxman

• • •

* Sales Representative Associate Broker

905-764-7200

Forest Hill
Real Estate Inc. Realtor

416-488-2875 Forest Hill Village | 416-785-1500 Central | 416-226-1987 Bayview

List with us and appear on our Website: www.foresthill.com

CENTRAL PROPERTIES

LONSDALE RD TOWNHOUSES ARE BUILT
Choose your finishes, 2 car garage, 3 & 4 bedroom design, Wengle-Gluckstein. Russell Pearsall* & Cathy Kwinter* 416-488-2875

27 RIDGE HILL DR $1,800,000
2 side by side building lots in Upper Forest Hill Village, 95 x 120 ft. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

79 MARMION AVENUE RD/LAWRENCE
New 4+1 bedroom, loaded, main floor family room + den, 9' ceilings. Steve Wagman* 416-785-1500

226 COLDSTREAM AVE! FAB 47 X 201'
$959K! Bathurst/Glencairn Beauty! Total Reno 4+1 bdrm, 4 baths! Gorgeous i/g pool! Immed! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

$929,000 - DESIGNER'S DELIGHT! PRIME CEDARVALE
Customize this large 4 bedroom on magnificent 65' x 150' lot. Maurice Gherson* 416-488-2875

UPPER FOREST HILL VILLAGE $899K
Custom built home – top quality finishes, 1.5 years new, 3 bedrooms, 4 baths. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

WONDERFUL CEDARVALE HOME $875K
Huge Main Floor Family Room, 55 x 120 ft., garage. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

PRIME UPPER FOREST HILL JUST $799K
Extensively renovated 2002, 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, main floor family room, 46 x 121 ft, 10+. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

$729,900 - ARMOUR HEIGHTS, CUL-DE-SAC, REDUCED!
Renovated 5 bedroom home, open concept family room/kitchen. 43 x 116 ft. lot. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

NEW PRICE! CASA LOMA - $699,000!
Toronto's best deal! Fully renovated 5+1 bedrooms, family room, 2 fireplaces, fin basement, loaded. Maurice Gherson* 416-488-2875

78 ALEXIS BLVD! EXECUTIVE 4+1 BDRMS, 4 BATHS!
$698K! Bathurst S/Sheppard! Dare to compare! Fab 40 x 161'! Walk to subway! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

1ST AD! N. TORONTO PRIVATE LOT $649,000
Super 3 bdrm home on mag 35'x186', private treed, l'scpd lot, in most sought after North Toronto enclave. M. Gherson* 416-488-2875

BAYVIEW/NORTH PROPERTIES

165 STEELES AVE E! JUST W/BAYVIEW!
$969K! Live/work at home! Oversized 7+bdrm, 6 baths! 2 in-law stes! 81x123', loads of prkng! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

573 CONACHER DRIVE! 5+1 BDRMS, 4 BATHS!
$849K! Bayview N/Finch! Main Family+Library+Lau+2pce Rare 66 x 135'! Motivated! Immed! Sandon Schwartzben 416-226-1987

101 SWEET WATER CRES. RICHMOND HILL GEM!
Acorn Built Home loaded with upgrades! A Must See! Steve Wagman* 416-785-1500

CONDOMINIUM PROPERTIES

THE PRINCE ARTHUR $798,000
Beautiful North-West Views, Stunning Interiors, 2 bedrooms / 3 washrooms. Caroline Bokar 416-785-1500

$749,000 RARELY AVAILABLE LUXURY CORNER CONDO
3 bdrms, 3 baths, stunning, recent reno, custom eat-in kitchen, ¾ oak flrs, 2 prkng, 1,620 sq. ft. Saul & Marilyn Merrick* 416-488-2875

$699,000 "BREATHTAKING" 1 BEDROOM + DEN
Recent reno w/spec views from open liv/din rms, stunning kit + baths, concierge, pool, steps to shops + subway. M. Merrick* 416-488-2875

LOWER VILLAGE ... IN FOREST HILL SOLD
$349,000. 1 bedroom + den, eat-in kitchen, 2 baths, fac bal, parking, outdoor pool, near subway. Saul Merrick* 416-488-2875

FOREST HILL VILLAGE CONDO
Beautiful 2 bedroom, 2 baths, east exposure, hardwood floors throughout. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

JUST REDUCED! 2 BR...OM IN FOREST HILL SOLD
$225,000. Approx 825 sq. ft. LR, DR, hardwood, 2 baths, parking, locker, near subway. Marilyn Merrick* 416-488-2875

RENTAL PROPERTIES

YONGE/SHEPPARD EXECUTIVE RENTAL
2,350 sq. ft. $5,000/month, 2 bedrooms + den, new building. Saul Merrick* 416-488-2875

FOREST HILL 3 BEDROOM PENTHOUSE RENTAL
$5,000/month, newly renovated, near subway, shops. Saul Merrick* 416-488-2875

FULLY FURNISHED STUNNING OPEN STYLE
2 bedroom semi, $2,300/ month, hardwood, 6 appliances, 3 car parking, near subway. Saul Merrick* 416-488-2875

FOR LEASE/BATHURST/EGLINTON
$1,350/month, Immaculate, 2 bedrooms, 1 bath, 1 parking space. Faithe Sversky 416-488-2875

Associate Broker * Sales Representative

RANDY COHEN
Listens
Associate Broker
Call Randy 1st...
Chances are he'll sell your home anyways!

RARE OPPORTUNITY
Reduced $230,000.00 blow out price
- Now only $1,070,000.00 - Forest Hill charm and luxury in Thornhill. Steps to Shuls. This 5700 sq. ft. home sits on a huge pie shape lot. 6+2 bdrms. 8 bthrms, incred. library & kosher kitchen. Fine custom quality & design. Bargain price, see it www.rpt.ca/faye

MELROSE HOMES
2 to choose from $599,000 & 679,000 - 3700 & 4750 sq. ft. High ceilings, fin bsmt. apt. great lofts. kosher kitchens. 5 bdrms. loft potential 6th with ensuite. 5 bthrms. great neighboorhood. much desired & priced to sell fast. www.rpt.ca/theodore & www.rpt.ca/yorkhill

FOR ALL YOUR REAL ESTATE NEEDS CALL RANDY, THERE IS A DIFFERENCE!
905-771-9300
ROYAL LEPAGE PARTNERS REALTY INC

Find It In The CJN Classifieds!
CALL 416-391-1836

5 HOUSES FOR SALE

HARVEY KALLES REAL ESTATE LIMITED

MICHELLE KAHN, H.B.A.

416-441-2888 ext. 612

JUST LISTED. spring gate blvd. 4+2 bedrooms, 5 baths, 2 kosher kitchens, 10 appliances, finished basement. $719,000.

WANTED. 5 bedroom home on franklin, franmore, hefhill, markwood, helena gardens, maimonides, qualified buyer, flexible closing, please call me.

A PROVEN HISTORY OF COMMITMENT AND RESULTS

MARILYN MERRICK, AOCA, MIRM

SAUL MERRICK, LL.B., Q.C.

SALES REPRESENTATIVES

Prime Bathurst/Lawrence

$619,000, 3+1 bdr., 3 level sidesplit bungalow on 55 ft. lot on quiet location. Huge comb. living, dining rms., main floor master & family rm. Sep. entrance to finished bsmt. B/I double garage.

Forest Hill R.E. 416-488-2875 www.marilynmerrick.com

SEIDMAN

REAL ESTATE LIMITED REALTOR

416-633-7373

OVERBROOK/WILMINGTON

6-plex, 4-3 bedroom, 2-1 bedroom, balconies, well maintained building, steps to all.

BATHURST/FINCH

Quality built 3 bdrm, 5 baths, huge liv & din, family room, walkout to yard, fin basement, double garage, quiet crescent, Don't Miss.

STEELES/BATHURST

Lrg condo corner unit, 2 bedroom, 2 baths, balcony, locker, parking, A-1 buy.

416-633-7373

10 PRIVATE HOUSES FOR SALE

FINCH & BATHURST

Stunning 4,200 sq. ft. home, custom built, 61' x 173' lot, 12' ceilings, 3 fireplaces, finished basement, 6 washrooms. See it – love it. Sally Rosen, C/21 Heritage Grp. 905-764-7111

10 PRIVATE HOUSES FOR SALE

Thornhill home for sale, York Hill Blvd. renov. 905-886-3663. www.geocities.com/eidanruth

15 HOUSES FOR RENT

Bathurst/Steeles, 4 bdrm, 3 bath, eat-in kit., central vac & A/C. Part fin. bsmt., walk to TTC/shops/schools. $1700/mo. + util. Call 647-223-1223.

30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE

3000 Bathurst St., 1200 sq. ft., 2 bdrm, 2 baths, solarium, prof. renovated. Ceramic kitchen, ensuite laundry, 1 parking. East view. $325,000. 416-580-7327.

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

BATHURST BRIAR HILL

Bachelor & oversized, sunfilled 2 bedroom suite available immediately in well maintained building. Newly Painted. Close to all amenities. From $785

416-787-5317

Thornhill, furn. bsmt., private entrance, steps to Promenade, TTC, $750 incl., no smoking/-parking, pets, 416-369-4314.

660 Briar Hill highrise, 1 bdrm. studio, $850 incl. util., a/c. Bus at door. Immediate. Also avail. 1 bdrm. + den, 2 bdrm. + den. Call James at 416-769-6779.

BATHURST-SHEPPARD

ELEGANT TWIN BLDS.

Very lrg. 1, 2, 3 Bedrooms, 2 & 3 Bdrms. w/2 balconies and 2 baths. Ample closets plus cedar, Roof laundry, ravine setting, pool, pkg. incl. 6 Apts. per flr.

416-960-3238 - Bus. 416-631-9377 or 416-631-0388 - Super

30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE

YORK MILLS PLACE - 1ST AD!

$610,000. Spacious 3 bdrms. 2 1/2 bath. Balcony and 2 car parking.

Call* Sue/Debra Feldman,

SALES REPRESENTATIVES

416-487-4343

Prudential Sadie Moranis Realty

Penthouse-Style Prestige
343 Clark Ave. W., Thornhill, 2 bdrms, 3 baths, approx. 1800 s.f., magnificent marble finishes. priced to sell @ $599,000 Leora Blum, 416-492-5674 or loriblum@Hotmail.com

35 CONDOMINIUM FOR RENT

RARELY AVAILABLE

Dec. 1, 3000 Bathurst, main fl., lrg 900' 1 bdrm, 28' LR, lrg. sol. (or 2nd bdrm), ensuite, lndry, priv. patio, $1395 incl. util., cable, A/C, 24 hr. secur., fitness rm., sauna, priv. park. Leave name & phone # at 905-888-5293, your call WILL be returned.

Bathurst/Centre (Promenade), 1550 sq. ft., 2 bdrm., 2 bath, 2 prkng., corner unit. Avail. Nov. 1, 416-460-9390.

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

Townsgate, 2 bdrm., 2 baths, avail. Nov. 1, $1750/mo. Call Patty at 905-881-9803.

30 CONDOMINIUM FOR SALE

SANTEE REALTY INC. 416-441-2003 or 822-4003

SKYMARK

DON MILLS & FINCH - UPDATED LISTINGS

Skymark 89 Excellence: Renovated. Exquisite 2 Bedroom+Den+Family+ Balcony. Approx. 1,835 s.f.
Skymark 55 Zenith: PH. Unique corner, 2 separate Bedroom w/ensuites+ Family. Ensuite sauna, skylights, fireplace, 2 parking, enclosed large basement locker+more. Approx. 2,200 s.f.
Skymark 55 Zenith: Well appointed 3 Bdrm+sol. Approx. 1,600 s.f. Vacant.
Skymark 1: South side of Finch. Well landscaped & park-like setting. PENTHOUSE - 2 bedroom+den+solarium, walkout garden atrium, skylight, 3/4 parking. Approx. 2,200 s.f.
For my updated inventory, colour brochures & 360° virtual tour, call:

SANTEE LEUNG, E.R.I., SKYMARK SPECIALIST

75 APARTMENTS FOR RENT

Bathurst/Sheppard, lux., spacious, bright apts., in quiet ravine setting off main streets, newly reno'd, walk to TTC, utilities incl. 1 bdrm. avail. Nov. 1, 2 bdrm. avail. Dec. 1. Call 905-474-3600, 416-633-1484.

78 SHORT TERM RENTAL AVAILABLE

Clark/Hilda, furnished, 2 bdrm., 2 bath, prkng., rec. cntre. Dec. 1-March 31 (flex.). 905-889-4382.

81 APARTMENT TO SUBLET

Gates of Bayview, sublet luxurious, newly decorated, lrge. 2 bdrm. Avail. Jan. 31-Sept. 1 w/major rent reduction. Lease can be renewd. Nicole 416-218-8965.

105 COTTAGE FOR SALE

Lake Simcoe, Big Cedar Pt., 50' lakefront, yr-rnd., reno'd., 3+bdrms., 3 bath, open concept LR/DR & kitch., cath. ceilings, skylight, fireplace, lrg. cedar deck with 2 w/o, nr. day camp, synagogues, furn'd., turn key. $549,000. Call 416-781-2007.

130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT

Hollywood beachfront, studio apt. on beach. Great location, avail. Nov., Dec. & Apr. 416-992-8995.

130 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT

Boynton Beach, Indian Spring, completely furnished,, 2 bdrm, 2 baths, 2nd flr., 3 mo min. flex avail. 973-239-0893.

Sunrise Lake, Ft. Lauderdale, 2 bdrm., 2 bath, kosher, on golf course. Call 416-560-2496.

Hallandale, Hemispheres, studio, amens., 3 mo., $3600/US + sec. dep. 416-667-5795 (8 a.m.-4 p.m.) 905-881-3863 (anytime).

Surfside oceanfront penthouse, magnificent view, 2 bdrm., 2 bath, laundry, kosher kitchen, indoor parking. Rental for season $9600. 416-441-1957.

Coconut Creek, Wynmoor, beautiful 2 bedrooms, 2 bathrooms in active adult community. Washer/dryer on premises. Near pool. Available November 1, 4-5 months. 514-486-6864.

Aquarius-Hollywood, lux. 2 bdrm., 2 bath, excellent condition, furn. condo on ocean, excellent views. Avail. Jan. 12, 3 mo. min. $2500/mo. US. 416-661-1389, (Mon.-Fri., 9 a.m.-5 p.m.).

Fully furnished, 2nd fl. lux. 2 bdrm, great location, 20 min. from beach, golf course view from balcony. Avail. from Nov. on. 416-418-0967 (between 9-9).

Beautiful 2 bed., 2 bath condo. Palm Aire Country Club, Pompano. March. $1600/US. 905-764-8345.

MIAMI BEACH OCEANFRONT, beautiful brand new, furn. studios, fully equipped, lux. bldg., pool, spa, tennis. Shabbos elev. $500/wk. US. Call 305-895-3000.

Hollywood, Fla., lux. 2 lrg. bdrm., 2 bath, lrg. balcony, ocean view, min: 3 mos, $2000/mo. US. Call Ana at 416-783-1095.

Lux. condo on Millionaire's Row, 5555 Collins Ave., Miami Beach. Oceanfront, 2+2, fully furnished. Min. 3 mos., $3000/mo. US. Please call 305-525-5142.

Hallandale, across from beach, 2 bed., 2 bath, min. 3 mos. 416-398-3859 / 416-633-1610.

Fl. Hollywood, furnished 2 bdrm., 2 bath. Across from beach, near golf, lux. bldg., 3 mo. min. Valet, security, indoor parking. Outdoor pool, gym. Avail. Jan. 1, '05. Call 905-731-0609, dhcooper@yahoo.com

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT/SALE

ANBER MOVERS

SPECIALIST IN:
TORONTO - VANCOUVER
NEW YORK - FLORIDA
(514) 735-8148
1-800-561-MOVE
"BONDED"

135 FLORIDA PROPERTY FOR RENT/SALE

ALTER REALTY INC.

The Leading Specialist In Adult Communities

Gerry Alter, Broker

Toll Free: 866.421.5669 Office: 954.421.4886
Cell: 954.448.2942 Fax: 954.421.2725
www.alterrealestate.com

BUY WITH US - No Transaction Fees
LIST WITH US 5% Commission Rate

FULL BROKERAGE SERVICES
A Top Team of Realtors
Multiple Listing Service
U.S. & International Advertising
Internet Exposure with Photos

140 ACCOMMODATION WANTED

Century Village, 1 or 2 bdrm., 1 1/2 bath, Jan.-March. inclusive. Very responsible people. Please call 416-787-8523.

147 FLORIDA ACCOMMODATION

Tony Rogers Inc. has great deals on oceanfront hotels in Miami. From Oct. 20-Dec. 19 $65/US. From Dec. 20-Dec. 31 $99/US. for standard rooms & efficiencies. Call 305-866-8965.

160 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT

Jerusalem, central, new 4 bedroom lux. apt., CAC. Short-term rentals. Kosher & Shomer Shabbos only. 416-782-6791.

160 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR RENT

Ramat-Gan, 2 1/2 rooms, furn'd., central, quiet, convenient. 905-886-8267 / 905-764-1353.

To place a classified ad please call 416-391-1835

165 ISRAEL PROPERTY FOR SALE/RENT

PROPERTIES IN ISRAEL

PRESTIGIOUS PROJECT IN REHAVIA - Radak Street. Prime location, deluxe interior, very large units - duplex or full floor, large garden or terrace. Exquisite architecture. Genuine Grandeur. Exclusive to PROSPERITY REAL ESTATE. Tel. +972-2-567-0303 www.prosperity-realestate.com

190 VACATION PROPERTY AVAILABLE

PALM SPRINGS, CA

VACATION RENTALS

We have 1-2-3 bedroom condos. Nicely furnished in super locations. From $1250 - $4500 per mo. U.S.

CHOPSY SAMUELSON REALTY

760-327-8429

200 OFFICE SPACE AVAILABLE

Single tenant office bldg., fronting on Sheppard Ave., W., 6 private offices. Boardroom, parking, signage included. Please call 416-250-8535.

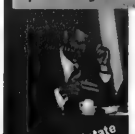
205 LAND/LOTS FOR SALE

Balfour Beach, Lake Simcoe, 22 acres for future development. $629,000. Call 905-737-5879.

225 INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Serious about Investing?

Join us to learn how to create sustainable wealth from a proven system used by millionaires over the years



With 50 years of combined experience and over $150 million in real estate development, Mentor Properties Inc. has a convenient and proven method that will assist you on the road to financial freedom. We will provide you with the resources and opportunities that will produce monthly cash flow, and the potential for returns in excess of 12%

Free Real Estate Seminar!

1 Bd from $118,900 (743 sq. ft.) Toronto/Forest Hill

Attend our Free Seminar. To find out more and to Register please visit our website or call 416-225-0836

Space is limited. Reserve today.

www.mentorproperties.com

Another Exciting Opportunity!

mentor PROPERTY STRATEGIC INVESTING

230 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

MOMS WORK AT HOME. Fun, flexible, on-line business. No selling, no home parties, no financial risk. Contact: 905-826-9949 or 1-877-879-6352, www.susan.brightwomen.com

Fast-growing, established taxi cab co. looking to LEASE Toronto taxi plates. Top $. Renewal paid. Money guaranteed. Tickets, inspections, insurance, etc., all administered by top management team. Please call Paul at 416-783-0679.

240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Religious Jewish elementary school needs a qualified & experienced teacher for folk dancing & physical education. Pls. fax resume: 416-633-8317.

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

WEE CARE! PLACEMENT AGENCY

Dedicated to Caring Since 1996

Nannies • Housekeepers • Baby Nurses
Sponsoring from abroad
Live In & Live Out • Full Time & Part Time
Candidates pre-screened • References checked
Service guaranteed
416-789-3870

Experience, reliable cleaning lady avail. With excellent refs. Mon.-Fri. 416-244-7065.

Del's Cleaning Service, we clean condos, offices, houses and renovation clean up, after party clean. 416-651-9688.

240 EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Synagogue in North York requires
Full Time Office Administrator
Duties include: Reception, Program Coordination, Membership, Accts. Receivable/Payable, General office
Please submit resume to: FAX 416-229-2167

245 EMPLOYMENT WANTED

Nurse seeks position as live-in caregiver for elderly travelling to Florida for the winter. Please call 416-266-7206.

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

McCaskill Household Services Ltd.
Homemakers, H.C.A., P.S.W.'s
Live in - Day/Night Shifts
•The Elderly •The Chronically Ill
•Hospital Recovery
We cover all your needs to help you stay at home
Personal care, Light housekeeping, Meal preparation
Providing service for over 57 years
416-431-2443

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

Golden Care Ltd.
People you trust, taking care of people you love
Caregivers Live-In/out
Health Care Aides, Sitters, Cooks, Housekeepers & Companions
THE BEST FOR LESS
www.goldencare.ca
Hourly, daily or 24-hour live-in
Home, hospital & palliative care
416-665-4229

P.J.'s Caregiving Services
...helping you care for your loved ones
Experienced live-in/out caregivers, f/t or p/t.
NO FEE to sponsor our applicants overseas.
www.pjcares.com
(416) 266-0130

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

We provide excellent caregivers for
Elderly, Nannies, Housekeepers
Live-in/Live-out, Part time/Fulltime
Toronto's most reliable/reputable agency since 1981
REMED PERSONNEL SERVICES INC.
Tel No: (416) 789-5382
Toll free: 1-877-820-9089
NO FEE to sponsor our applicants overseas
Website: www.remedpersonnel.com

Professional Care PERSONNEL INC.

"The Household Help Specialist"
• Quality Staff • Screened & Assessed
Housekeepers • Cooks • Infant Care • Elder Care
Nannies • Companions • Overseas Sponsorship
Erin Rogul 416-504-8589 Kelly Jacques

family matters
Caregivers • Nannies • Housekeepers
Live-in, Live-out • All candidates pre-screened
Many of our candidates are personally interviewed by us in Hong Kong
Service guaranteed
Contact Tova Rich @ 416.633.0017
familymatters@rogers.com

PrimeCARE International
• Nannies • Caregivers • Housekeepers • Companions •
*Live-in/Live-out *Local & Overseas applicants
PEOPLE YOU CAN TRUST TAKING CARE OF PEOPLE YOU LOVE!!!
SALARY OF $800.00/MONTH ONLY for Filipina Caregivers from Hong Kong
*Excellent experiences & references
*Long term employment & service guaranteed
*First Aid & CPR trained.
Contact Cathy @ 416-654-1927

Z's DOMESTICS בס"ד
NANNIES • HOUSEKEEPERS • ELDERCARE
EURO-FILIPINAS • CLEANERS • EXPERIENCED
• Live-in/out in Toronto • Screened, Guaranteed
• F/T, P/T, Certified • Kashruth & Hebrew
• Local Placement • Free sponsorship of Filipinas From ISRAEL & EUROPE
905-731-1845

In a PINCH
Your Temporary Care Solution
416.785.3939
• Emergency care
• Day/Evening
• Occasional
• Short/long term
• Professional and Experienced Caregivers

AMA CARE
All candidates pre-screened
✓ Nannies
✓ Caregivers
✓ Housekeepers
Call now to book your Caregiver or Nanny from Hong Kong
www.amacare.ca
416-850-0851

Do you need assistance with shopping, light cooking, driving to appts.? Reasonable rates, avail. Mon.-Fri. 905-731-4242.

Exper Israeli lady looking for job to take care of elderly or companion. Refs. 416-509-1333.

White Lily (Cleaning Service) houses, apts., offices, any day, any time. 24 hrs. 416-917-3450.

Caregiver specialize in loving care for newborns. Avail. days, night, short/long term, also part-time. Please call 416-831-3580.

Cleaning Ladies Agency, call Dina at 416-780-0963 or visit www.HomeServicesToronto.com

Prof. Polish cleaning lady avail. Apts., houses, offices + nanny or senior care on weekends. Refs. avail. upon request. 905-764-9768 / 416-731-3376.

250 DOMESTIC HELP AVAILABLE

ShineX Caregivers Inc
Quality Caregivers, Nannies and Immigration Services

Licensed Immigration Consultant, C.S.I.C. Member
www.shinexcaregivers.com
Tel: 416-218-9537
7 Steeles Ave. East, Suite 4, Toronto, ON M2M 3Y2
Fax: 416-221-7866
Email: nannies@shinexcaregivers.com

ESP PLACEMENT.
Employers welcome to sponsor nannies overseas. No fees. 416-417-9035 www.espplacement.net

Cleaning lady looking for house to clean, very good refs. 416-537-4505.

Polish lady will clean your apt./house, Wed. or Thurs. Leave a msg. & ph #. 416-431-1357.

257 HEALTHCARE AVAILABLE

Qualicare
www.qualicare.ca
♥ Private nursing
♥ Homecare support
♥ Retirement living services
♥ Short or long-term care
For a free consultation, call: 416 628-7449

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS

Replying to an ad with a CJN Box Number?
Address your mail to:
The Canadian Jewish News
1500 Don Mills Rd.
Suite 205
North York, Ont.
M3B 3K4
Don't forget to put the Box Number on your envelope.
CJN Box #'s are valid for 30 days.

Middle age man, happy person, looking for a middle age lady for a long term relationship. Contact CJN Box #5002.

A very handsome, sincere, family-oriented, single, self-employed, professional, conservative, Jewish gentleman, 44 yrs. young, is looking for his soulmate. She is 30-45, 5'2" to 5'9", very attractive, good personality, sincere and thoughtful, so that we can live, laugh and love each other forever. Please send a letter telling me about yourself, accompanied by a recent photo to CJN Box. #5003.

I am hoping for my miracle. I am a 50 year old divorced woman with a lot to offer. I possess a zest for life. I am useful, feminine and kind. I seek a divorced or widowed man with children. He would like to find a partner for life. Contact CJN Box #5004.

For recent widow, dinners/-overnight, kosher home. Private rm., shared facil., rm./board in exchange for your presence & light housekpng. Nominal rent. Female, n/smoker, good English, good listener, patient. Ideal for mature woman or caregiver w/day job. Bathurst/Finch. CJN Box #5006.

257 HEALTH CARE AVAILABLE

Firstaff Health Care Services Inc.
24 hrs. a day/7 days/wk
Where caring comes first!
In your home, hospital or long-term care facility, Firstaff Health Care Services can help you with all of your health care needs.
• Care after surgery or illness • Palliative Care
• Adult/Elder Care • Family Respite/Relief
• Rehab Care • Attendant Care
All care monitored by our RN Case Managers
905-305-9551

273 INTRODUCTION SERVICES

Bringing People Together 2000 personally interviewed members. Ruth 905-731-5204.

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS

Vivacious lady, good sense of humour, loves travel, walking, spreaks many languages. Seeks gentleman 60-80 yrs. old. Reply to CJN Box #4578.

275 PERSONAL COMPANIONS

Female, pretty, intelligent, honest, caring, seeks single, established, similar male, non-smoker, 62-72. Richmond Hill-Thornhill areas. CJN Box #5005.

To place a classified ad please call 416-391-1836

300 ARTICLES FOR SALE

Moving sale, dining/bedroom furniture & other accessories. Excellent cond. 416-509-1333.

Rarely used mink coat, dark brown, size 10, full length, slim cut. Best offer. 416-398-8756.

305 ARTICLES WANTED

Books & diaries bought by Ben. Instant cash for 1-1000 books. Call Ben, 416-890-9644.

Wanted: quality antiques, fine art, watches, jewellery, estates. Please call 905-764-1112.

SERVICE DIRECTORY Section

345 ACCOUNTING

We provide accounting, bookkeeping, personal & corporate tax returns. Leon Shegal, CFA, MBA. Please call 416-398-9521.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENT

City East Hardwood Flooring
Sand, stain, finish.
905-839-0733.

350 APPLIANCES

Sobie's 416 224-2526
162 Willowdale Ave. (Yonge / Sheppard area)
www.sobies.com • 30+ years in-home service
We repair all major appliances including:
SUB-ZERO • JENNAIR • THERMADOR

370 CATERING

Dairy Treats Restaurant & Catering (COR)
Brit Milah • Bar/Bat Mitzvahs
Home or Office • Shiva Meals • Corporate Accounts
3522 Bathurst St. (S. of Wilson) 416-787-0309
www.dairytreats.com

CHICKEN NEST (COR)
Kosher Restaurant
• DINE IN
• TAKE OUT
• CATERING
Home & Office Parties • Babynamings
Bar / Bat Mitzvahs • Sheva Brachot
"SHIVA CATERING A SPECIALTY"
416-787-6378

395 ELECTRICAL

All kinds of electrical jobs. For great service call Serge. Licensed. 416-834-4312.

Electrician seeks small jobs only, no appliances. Please call 416-636-5732.

405 FURNITURE

Carrocci Restorations — NEW LOCATION
Antique and Fine Furniture Gallery
• TABLES • CHAIRS • OCCASIONAL TABLES
• BEDROOM SUITES • DINING SUITES
• REFINISHING • REUPHOLSTERY
WE CUSTOM BUILD
3255 - 14TH AVENUE, UNIT 4
905-475-6942

RENDE WOOD DESIGN
Custom Entertainment & Wall Units, Furniture Refinishing.
Jeff Rittenberg - 416-247-3565

Marcantonio Furniture Repair
Specializing in touchups
Restoration & general repairs done on premises. 416-654-0518.

412 HEATING/AIR CONDITIONING

24 hr. repairs, services & installs a/c, heat & refrigeration, commercial & residential, licens-ed tech. Call Alex 416-671-0267.

415 HOME IMPROVEMENT

AlphaSolutions
Flooring & Painting Contractor
Hardwood–Marble–Carpeting
Antique Effects & Murals
FREE ESTIMATES
416-488-2162
Steve Jonas

Beaver Valley Stone LIMITED
Quality Landscaping Products for the Contractor & Do-It-Yourselfer
• Natural Stone
• Interlocking & Retaining Wall Systems
• Precast Concrete Products
• Stone Building Products
• Accessories
• Fireplace Materials
416-222-2424 Toronto Line
905-886-5787 Local Line
www.beavervalleystone.com

Small residential renovations. Quality workmanship. Reliability & reasonable prices. Refs. avail. Lic. Call Traore at 416-928-2915.

Before signing any contract, make sure your contractor is appropriately licensed with the Metropolitan Licensing Commission 416-392-3000

445 MOVING

Handyman, home repairs, paint, tile, bathroom re-grout, re-silicone. Ben, 416-372-2255.

TILE INSTALLATION & REPAIRS, ceramic, slate, limestone, flagstone & porcelain. Quality work since 1965. Low rates, free estimates, excellent references, licensed & insured. Call Peter at 416-733-2237.

EPHRAM, carpentry, ceramic, electrical, plumbing, drywall & more. 416-636-3425.

A-1 Handyman, specializing in indoor repairs, drywall, electrical, plumbing, painting & finished bsmnts. 647-887-5075.

Exper. handyman. All home repairs & improvements, electrical, plumbing, kitchen, baths, roof, fence & deck. Sun.-Fri. 905-709-4906.

440 MISCELLANEOUS

I am inviting 4 sportsmanlike players, 35-60 age group to join a long-standing shinny hockey team. Our weekly Thursday games start at 8:30 p.m. at the New Centre Ice Arena on Victoria Park, north of Finch. $425 for the winter season. Join a great group of players who play just for fun. Contact Joel, 416-720-9911.

442 MUSICAL SERVICES

Private lessons by professional teachers. Piano, guitar, violin, clarinet. At studio or home. 905-738-4822, 416-635-1928.

445 MOVING

G&M Moving and Storage. Apts., homes, offices. Short notice. Large or small. We carry supplies. 905-738-4030.

BestWayToMove.com
26' trucks, experienced professional movers. Low rates, good reliable service. Moving & Free Storage.
Call 416-999-MOVE or 416-875-MOVE (6683)

TRANSNET CO. MOVING & STORAGE
Homes * Apartments * Offices * Storage
Packing Materials & Service
416-704-6881
http://members.Rogers.com/moving

WWW.GTAMOVERS.COM
Fully equipped, insured. Local and long distance. Mid month discount. 416-918-2957

TURNADOS MOVING & STORAGE
HOMES • APARTMENTS • OFFICES
Local, Long Distance, Storage
SENIOR'S DISCOUNT
Two Professional Movers — Free Estimate
Call: 416-414-0920

B-K Movers. 2-28' trucks. Boxes, homes, offices, apts. Family business. Reas. Packing & packing materials avail. Call 905-274-6144 or 905-278-0939.

srmmovers.com - A-1 Short Notice. Insured. Homes, apts., offices, businesses. 1-man $40/hr., 2-men $55/hr. 3-men $70/hr. & up. 416-747-7082.

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPER

Painting, wallpapering, plastering, stucco repair, Samy, 905-738-1532, no SAT. calls.

450 PAINTING/ WALLPAPER

All home, paint, tile & repairs. Bathroom re-grout, re-silicone & more! Ben, 416-372-2255.

Experienced painter, plasterer, vinyl, tile flooring. Best prices. Free estimates. Guaranteed. Bill, 416-638-9249.

Prof. painting, ext./int., wallpapering, drywall, all renov. of houses, apts., offices. Licensed. Stan, 416-201-9079.

Masters Choice Painting
Paint/plaster/stucco/small renos. Free est. Reas. 416-402-5768.

Bargain painter/handyman, apt., houses, offices. Call Alex, 416-633-5973.

PAINT HOUSE ENT.
Painting residential, commercial, interior & exterior. FREE ESTIMATES. Very reasonable. 416-459-1383.

Best Prices!!! Best Quality!!! Best Service!!! Painting. Licensed & Bonded. Call Shlomo 416-804-1706.

Prof. painting/paper-hanging
Jacob 416-667-9869
No Shabbos calls please

To place a classified ad please call 416-391-1836

455 PHOTOGRAPHY /VIDEO

Our "UNIQUE" 3 FT. Photo Puzzle of your child...your "alternative" to the Candle-lighting Ceremony. DVD's are Forever! Don't lose your "Memories of a Lifetime". We'll transfer your movie reels and slides. MADISON VIDEO, Fred 416-229-6000 or call toll free 1-877-847-1263.

465 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Full Service Glass and Windows Inc.
Tel: 905-731-8446
• Windows • Doors • Screens
• Mirror Walls & Doors
• Frameless shower & tub doors
• Pivots • Locks • Closers
• Beveled Glass and Mirrors
• Thermopanes - Storefronts
• Security Bars • Skylights
Fast & Reliable Service
Quality & Customer Satisfaction

470 RENOVATIONS

REPAIRS & RENOVATIONS
• Drywall • Plaster • Painting • Carpentry
• Fences • Decks • Doors • Locks • Tiles
Specializing in:
• Basement Finishing
• Bathroom/Kitchen Renovations
MOSHE 416-445-6435

495 TILING

TILE REPAIRS. Bath & shower cleaning, silicone re-grouting & more! Ben, 416-372-2255.

500 TUTORING

TUTORSHIP EDUCATIONAL SERVICES
Support, encouragement and expert help - SK to University -
Math • Chemistry • Biology
Physics • English • ESL •
Essay writing • Study skills
• Exam preparation
• French • Spanish • Hebrew
Book a tutor now:
416-573-0274
tutorship@rogers.com

Piano/flute lessons by pro musician, home/studio, all levels. Sue @ 416-406-0609.

Bbest Educational Skills Training, tutoring, JK-gr. 12. Special $99/mo. for 12 sessions (1 term). www.bbest.ca Call 416-512-7078.

French or Italian tutor, 31 yrs. high school teach exper. Call any time, 416-783-5548.

Tutor/Sp. Ed., Hebrew, all English subjects, K-8, my home Thornhill. 905-764-1354, Paula.

510 UPHOLSTERY

Bathurst Upholstery. Reupholstering sofas, chairs. Low prices 416-781-1995, 905-886-3148.

Arts & Travel

Lodz Jews remembered at Yiddishland Café

By FRANCES KRAFT
Staff Reporter

The title of a recent Yiddishland Café performance was a signal that the evening's program would not consist of familiar old standards.

Not Raisins, Not Almonds: a celebration of the spirit of the Lodz Ghetto Jews was named for a bittersweet lullaby, Nit Keyn Rozhinkes, Nit Keyn Mandlen, written by Isaiah Shpigl in the Lodz Ghetto and sung in the original Yiddish by Denise Williams.

Joining the Toronto-based soprano were tenor Michael Mandel and actor/singer Alon Nashman, backed by keyboardist Brahm Goldhamer and clarinetist Noam Miller, who also performed instrumental pieces.

The lullaby, a "negative" version of the widely known Rozhinkes mit Mandlen, evoked wistful isolation with Williams' clear, rounded tones and lyrics translated in the program as, "No raisins, no almonds, father did not go to trade. He left us and went to the end of the world... God have pity on us and help us. Somewhere he is standing, watching lots of almonds and raisins. There is no doubt he will come to watch you, son, my only crown."

The Yiddishland Café – complete with old-style seltzer bottles on the tables – is a five-times-yearly performance co-ordinated by Yiddishists Henia and Nochem Reinhartz at the Workmen's Circle building.

The Oct. 17 event, one of the cultural programs of this year's Holocaust Education Week, was the 45th such café, said Lodz-born Henia, who lived in the ghetto until its liquidation 60 years ago. Before the war, Jews comprised one-third of Lodz's population of 700,000.

"Tonight we do not commemorate the destruction of the ghetto's Jews," she said in her introduction. "Tonight we want to celebrate their creativity, courage and perseverance, their being their brothers' keepers at a time when being the keepers of their own lives was always in question. This was the expression of their resistance, because another way was not possible in the Lodz ghetto."

She spoke of life in the ghetto, where Jews "struggled, sang and mourned," and nurtured friendships through constant hunger and illness. "They never gave up hope, perseverance and courage," Henia said.

A number of sardonically clever, ghetto-specific songs served as brisk counterpoint to songs, stories and poems of loss. The prose versions, affectingly read in English by Nashman, and the songs, ably rendered by Mandel, also provided bits of detail – such as the German Jew in Geyt a yeke mit a teke (A 'yeke' goes with a briefcase) seeking butter or margarine with his briefcase in hand – to flesh out the picture of Lodz ghetto life and the ghetto's inhabitants.

CJN DATING
MEET YOUR MATCH
www.cjndating.com
powered by JMATCH
JEWISH MATCH INTERACTIVE DATING

Sports & Leisure

PEERLESS TRAVEL Cruise in and see us!
NEWEST LOCATION!
9200 BATHURST ST.
(at Rutherford Road)
Thornhill
905-482-0105

Toronto team wins slo-pitch tourney – sort of

By HARVEY ROSEN
Special to The CJN

WINNIPEG — You might call it the Jewish slo-pitch World Series.

And Winnipeg teams, which were first invited to the International Jewish Men's Slo-Pitch Tournament in 1986, have never won the B'nai Brith Trophy.

Or have they?

The Toronto Gamblers, riding a nine-run outburst in the fourth inning, defeated Montreal Rothpan (71) 22-10 at the recent 2004 tournament in Winnipeg. Ironically, the heart and soul of the Toronto team consisted primarily of Winnipeg ballplayers.

Only three members of the championship team flew in from Toronto – team captain and second baseman Cory Hoffman; Brian Mintz, who played first and third base, catcher, and outfield; and Nathan Litman, who pitched every game. Winnipeggers Jonathon Margolis, Hersh Cramer, Jeff and Kevin Lanyon, Mitchell Bye, Victor Didicz, plus brothers Moses and Sean, and nephew Jordan Sodomsky did most of the damage in the twice rain-delayed final that was played on a miserably cold, rainy, and windy afternoon last month.

Mintz, when asked about the paucity of players from Toronto, admitted it wasn't a very impressive showing.

"Well, it's a long story," he said diplomatically. "It wasn't always that way. There was a rift and then a split at one time and also a case of people not committing, then some at the last minute not going."

The Gamblers Winnipeg-based catcher Moses Sodomsky was forthright when asked about his team being stocked primarily with Winnipeg talent. "The three guys from Toronto saw no problem with it. Politics gets involved. It's hard to figure why they can't field a team when you see that they have a huge B'nai Brith league down there for slo-pitch," he said.

"We told the guys after we won to take the trophy back with them to Toronto," he continued. "The Toronto guys didn't see it as a problem to have engraved on the trophy that the winners were Toronto/Winnipeg.

"We promised to play together again next year in Montreal [site of next year's tournament] to defend the championship."

Another team, known as Toronto Attar, was winless in its six games and had only five players from Toronto – Andy Mayer, Randy Brown, Dan Elmalem, Armand and Eme Attar – plus six from Winnipeg: Garth Nemy, Daniel Polinsky, Sid Dashevsky, Kevin Minuk, Sean and Devin Catton.

As for the action on the diamond, the sun, as if on cue, broke through on the tournament's first day when the teams began their six-game round robin leading to a playoff spot in the quarter-finals.

Eight teams reached the semis:

• Minneapolis (with a 4 and 2 record) beat the Winnipeg Goldeyes (4 and 2) 9-4.

• Montreal Rothpan (71) (6 and 0) defeated Hamilton (3 and 3) 36-26.

• The Detroit Hitmen (6 and 0) were upset by Chicago (3 and 3) 38-11.

• The Toronto Gamblers (3 and 3) surprised Vancouver (5 and1) 39-6.

Toronto made it into the final by defeating the top-notch outfit from Minneapolis 11-5. Montreal Rothpan (71) earned a berth when they came from behind to defeat Chicago 39-38, in a game in which a cold westerly blowing to the outfield made each fly ball an adventure and made many batters look like Babe Ruth.

The tournament featured an uncommon camaraderie, as old Jewish friendships and acquaintances were renewed.

Jan Schaefer of Detroit, one of nine wives who attended with their husbands, enjoys the yearly junkets. "We're just diehards," she laughed. "Our team brought along more wives than any other."

St. Louis shortstop Steve Tucker, whose team played in the tournament for the first time and finished with a 1-5 record, said, "We were really excited. That's all the guys talked about for weeks was coming to Winnipeg for the event. Next year, we'll be back and we're going to try to get sponsorship."

Hamilton's Brian Katz, attending his 20th tournament, admits he can't play the way he used to, but wouldn't miss attending. Other members of the 20-year-club are Phil Cohen and Harvey Katz of Hamilton, Armand Attar and Mark Elbaum of Toronto and Al Lerner of Montreal.

Ruby Goodman, a former Montreal fastball player comes with his wife Sheila to watch all the tournaments. Goodman, who lost one eye to cancer, joked that he is "the only one-eyed Jewish umpire in Montreal who still works games."

Perhaps best demonstrating the spirit of the tournament was the amount of money that was quickly raised when a hat was passed around at a banquet to boost the sagging spirits of one Hamilton player whose gym bag containing his passport and close to $1,000 was stolen at the tournament site.

The losses were matched within two minutes.

Toronto Marathon attracts more than 10,000 runners

By ELI SHUPAK
Special to The CJN

In 10 years, race director Jay Glassman has turned the Toronto Marathon into one of the country's most prestigious running events.

He says he anticipated as much when he began planning the course back in the early 1990s.

"[Ten years ago,] I planned the route around major streets wide enough with the potential to accommodate many more thousands of runners," he said in an interview.

Glassman attracted 1,400 runners to the inaugural race in 1995, and an estimated 10,000 participants from more than 30 countries took part Oct. 17 in the 10th running of the 5-kilometre, half marathon and marathon races. The marathon began at Mel Lastman Square and worked its way down Yonge Street before finishing up at Queen's Park. At $100,000, the Toronto Marathon offers the largest marathon prize purse in Canada.

"I did see it growing to what it is today and am very confident we'll reach the 15,000 range next year," he said.

Working year-round in his full-time position as race director, the 42-year-old Toronto native got first-time CBC coverage this year for what he said was the most elite running field this country has seen since the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

Procopio Franco from Mexico, who ran in the Athens Olympics this past summer, was first across the finish line in a time of 2:16:42. Olga Kovpotina of Ukraine was the first woman to finish, setting a course record of 2:31:47l. Both won $25,000.

The race was marred by the death of a 43-year-old runner in the half marathon who suffered a massive heart attack within a few blocks of the finish line. The man, whom police did not identify, collapsed at the corner of Grosvenor Street and Queen's Park Crescent. Paramedics were unable to revive him, and he was pronounced dead at nearby Mount Sinai Hospital, where Glassman extended his condolences to his family.

Glassman had more than 1,200 volunteers assisting him on race day for the 26.2-mile run, which forces the largest street closure in the city.

"[The race] really brings the community together," he said, praising his volunteers as the backbone of the event.

The idea for an official city run hit him while attending a performance of the National Ballet of Canada. In 1987, while volunteering for the ballet, he organized their Pointe-to-Pointe 10-kilometre run, which grew to become the largest of its kind in Canada.

Glassman co-ordinated the run for six more years, and he still volunteers for the National Ballet.

He began thinking about a Toronto marathon and approached Princess Margaret Hospital to discuss its involvement as the race's main beneficiary. Glassman is proud that it has helped raise more than $1.5 million for prostate and breast cancer.

"I thought the organization was one everyone out there could identify with," he said. "Everyone has had experiences with cancer."

In planning the Toronto race, Glassman travelled to watch famous marathons in Boston, New York, Los Angeles and Chicago, studying the most successful race models. Toronto's marathon now serves as a qualifier for the Boston and New York City races.

For the first couple of years, Glassman's dining room table served as his desk and office, and he continues to run the show out of his apartment to this day.

A runner himself since high school, he grew up in Forest Hill and attended United Synagogue Day School, which was founded by his late grandfather, Ellis Shapiro. Shapiro was also one of the founders of Beth Tzedec Synagogue, Canada's largest shul.

Glassman's mother was a well-known liturgical artist who made tallits, chupahs and parochets.

ספרותנו

יעל זליגר

תודות הלשון: שיחות על העברית הישראלית, מאת: רוביק רוזנטל

בהקדמה לספר (ספר-אח להזירה הלשונית שיצא לאור ב- 2001) מסביר המחבר, רוביק רוזנטל שניתן לאבחן שלוש מגמות בהתפתחות הלשון העברית בשנים האחרונות. המגמה הראשונה היא חדירת האנגלית לעברית. תרמו לכך התשליפה הרבה לשלוחיה ותעשיית ההיי-טק. המגמה השנייה היא השפעתה הגוברת של שפת הצבא על העברית. התפתחות זו מתעצמת בשל העימות המתמשך עם הפלשתינים שהביא להולדת שפה חדשה. המגמה השלישית איננה חדשה אך ממשיכה לצער את המחבר והיא תופעת הידרדרותה של העברית הישראלית.

בספר 55 מאמרים בנושא השפה העברית ולצד המאמרים 112 רשימות קצרות, עדכניות ומקיפות. הספר מחולק ל- 5 חלקים ומשולבות בספר עבודות אמנות ישראלית: ציור, פיסול, איור וצילום. החומר מרתק וגם משעשע. אם ניתן לסכם את עבודתו המקיפה והלמדנית של רוזנטל הרי שמדובר בקיומה של שפה עברית שכולנו מבינים, זו שפת התקשורת ברדיו ובטלוויזיה ובעיתונות המרכזית ולצד שפה נורמטיבית זו קיימות שפות משנה של קהילות דתיות, אקדמאים, אנשי היי-טק, שפת הצבא, שפת עולם הסמים, שפת הפוליטיקאי, הסקס וכיו"ב. עקרונית אין לראות בהתרבותן של השפות הללו תופעה חיובית. ההפך יאמר המגמה הבולטת היא הידרדרה של השפה העברית. להלן כמה הדגמות. שיחה בעולם ההיי-טק: "לדלור", מלשון to deliver , "לדלט" (למסור) ויש גם "לסמס" (לערוך בדיקה – test). למרות זאת, דווקא בעולם ההיי-טק העברית לעתים יוצאת מנצחת. ה"מחשב" דחק את רגלי הקומפיוטר. תכונות, לתכנת, מסך, צג, קובץ, מקלדת ועכבר הן מלים נפוצות.

לעתים עומד רוזנטל וחוקר את המקור לשימוש בביטוי זה או אחר והתחקיר תמיד מבדר. למשל הביטוי "קורי כלבים". מה באמת הקשר בין קור וכלבים במדינה שבה אף פעם לא ממש קר, וגודאי לא לכלבים? מסתבר שהביטוי "קורי כלבים" הגיע לעברית מרוסית דרך הפולקלור היהודי. ועוד מסופר שהאסקימוסים למשל קוראים ללילה קר במיוחד "ליל שלושה הכלבים" (כי בו מכניסים שלושה כלבים לאיגלו לחימום) ובצרפתית אומרים "קור ברודים" וכיו"ב.

דבר אחר; מונחים שנשתרשו בחברה הישראלית על אף הניסיון לדחותם. למשל המונח "אינתיפאדה". אינתיפאדה היא השם שקראו הפלשתינים לפעולת התנגדות שלהם מאז 87 והוא ממשיך להיות בשימוש לתיאור אירועי שנות האלפיים. המונח נדחה על ידי הישראלים ולמרות הוראות מפורשות לא להשתמש בו, המונח הפלשתיני הבים שמות ישראלים חלופיים.

בהקשר לסכסוך הערבי-ישראלי, רוזנטל מציין את הקשר בין השפה העברית למעמדם של ערביי ישראל. המלים והביטויים מעידים לדעתו על ניתוק וגרוע מזה. "אזרחי ישראל הערבים" – מונח שכביכול מדגיש את שייכות הערבים למדינה אף כמובן מבהיר שזה אינו כך. "אחמד – שם קיבוצי מזלזל לערבי באשר הוא. "בני דודינו" – שימוש חצי-אפפתי, חצי-אירוני. "כפר" – כל יישוב ערבי, גם אם הפך מזמן לעיר; כפר סייבה, כפר חתנין. "עברה ערבית" – מונח מבוזה לעבירה רשלנית (עלה בזמן הירישום.)

הקטעים בהם רוזנטל מספר את סיפור ההתחבטויות בתעתיקם משפות זרות לעברית מארד משעשעים. איך אומרים, סן פרנציסקו או סן פרנסיסקו? איך לעזאזל קראו לנואם ההוא, קיקרו? סיסרו? אולי ציצרו? ובכלל מה עם האות הזו, צדי או צדיק?

ועד, איך מברכים: "צהריים טוב" (כמו "בוקר טוב"), או "צהריים טובים"? אבל זה עוד כסדר. שפת הפרסום עושה שמות בעברית. מלות היחס נעלמות והמשא העקיף הופך ישיר; "דבר בוול – דבר בזק", "תודה שטסת ארקיע", "חיים באמריקה – מרגישים ישראל".

ולקינוח, הדגמת יצירות דיבור חד-פעמיות של אזרחי ישראל: "זה פשוט כלתי יחכו" (אביגדור קהלני), "אתה אוכל רבנות?" (שני תרדים מתונים), "קחו ויטמין סי.די. סייעתא דשמייא" (הרבנית קוק), "המצב הוא על הפנים, כמו שאומרים, און דה פייס" (גיל יאסו בראיון רדיו על מצב האתיופים), "אנחנו כמו ברוזים המובלים כצאן לטבח" (תושבי חברון לאחר פיגוע), "הלנצח נאכל חרב?" (אל"מ גל הירש). ויש עוד ועוד. ספר חובה לחסידי השפה העברית.

PARSNIP & APPLE SOUP

3 Granny Smith apples (about 1 1/2 lbs.), divided
1 tblsp. olive oil
5 large shallots, sliced
1 1/4 lbs. medium parnips, peeled, cut into 1/2" thick rounds
1 1/4 tsp. ground coriander
5 cups broth
plain nonfat yogurt, stirred to loosen

Peel & core 2 apples, then cut into 1" pieces. Heat oil in heavy large pot over med.-high heat. Add shallots; sauté 3 min. Add parsnips; sauté 3 mins. Add apple pieces & coriander; stir 1 min. Add 5 cups broth; bring to boil. Reduce heat & simmer until vegetables are very tender, about 25 mins. Cool slightly.

Working in batches, puree soup in blender until smooth, thinning with more broth by 1/2 cupfuls as desired. Return soup to pot; bring to simmer. Season to taste with salt & pepper. Meanwhile, cut remaining apple (with peel) into thin slices. Ladle soup into bowl. Drizzle soup with yogurt. Fan several apple slices on top and serve. Makes 6 servings.

1111 Weston Rd. (S. of Eglinton) 416-767-1655 www.caplanappliances.com

HERB CAPLAN
THE APPLIANCE PROS RECOMMEND
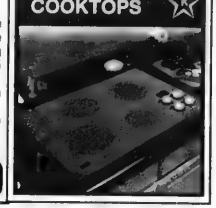
dacor Now Kosher!
COOKTOPS



Money Matters

Rabbi Jay Kelman, C.A.

With Canadian hockey fans facing lots of free time on Saturday nights, what might Jewish law have to say about hiring replacement hockey players?

Jewish labour law maintains that employees, unlike contractors, may quit their jobs on a moment's notice, so as to avoid the feelings of servitude. Similarly, employers may hire whomever they feel will bring them the most profit. While in the modern-day economy, these rights may be somewhat curtailed, the principle of labour mobility is paramount. A person who is unhappy with his or her working conditions can always go on "strike" by quitting, with the understanding that their ex-employer is free to hire replacement workers. Torah law, in theory, forbids the tactics of the modern-day strike, which often involves setting up pickets to prevent "scabs" from going to work.

A Torah-based society would, with some exceptions, look askance at strikes and direct labour disputes to an arbitration panel (beit din). However, what is true in theory is not necessarily so in practice.

In matters of civil law, local (secular) law and custom often supersede Torah law. By entering into an agreement in Canada, we implicitly accept its business mores. Thus, while Torah law stipulates that a worker is to be paid on a daily basis, common practice, and thus Jewish law, accepts that workers are paid less frequently. As our work environment has many established unions with the legal right to strike, Jewish labour law would recognize, and even sanction, strikes for higher wages, improved working conditions and the like.

Rav Moshe Feinstein even goes so far as to rule that a majority vote of the union binds the dissenting minority who are thus enjoined from crossing the picket lines. This is based on the assumption that crossing picket lines will cause the striker to lose his or her livelihood. While the use of physical intimidation is proscribed, the union is free to set other punishments as it sees fit.

However, it appears to this writer that the locked out hockey players are not protected. With an average salary approaching $2 million (US), it's difficult to argue that anybody's livelihood is at risk. Thus, it should follow that, if the situation arises, Jewish law would see no grounds for grievance against players who decide to defy their union and play hockey.

Comments rabbi@byad.org.

By AVRUM ROSENSWEIG

Does Torah have to be boring?

URBAN WRITER

Education, learning and intellectual growth are vital to being Jewish.

Our edge as a people has always been our intellect and ability to use creative thought to maintain and build our communities and the State of Israel. We are the people of the Book, and our sages say that learning Torah is greater than any other Jewish act. The Toronto Jewish community understands this, and therefore invests millions of dollars in day school subsidies.

The odd thing, however, is that despite the investment and the growing student bodies in our day schools, many young people, upon graduation, express little interest in pursuing Jewish learning. This determination, based on my own empirical data and informal survey, is not specific to any one denomination and is very difficult to understand.

Clearly, there are products of our day school system who pursue Jewish study with a vengeance and with determination. However, they are often natural born scholars who embrace intellect the way a numbers genius would pursue mathematics. Learning is a personal drive for them, not a learned passion.

If my conclusions are correct, then what can we do to deal with this challenge? Is it possible that aspects of Torah study are inherently dry and boring and once the chance exists to discard our texts, most of us will? I studied Talmud for a number of years, and frequently nodded off during debates about "neighbours' responsibility to one another should their shared wall collapse in their field." Talmud can indeed be dry.

Perhaps the rampant lack of interest in Torah study among day school graduates stems, therefore, from the course curriculum. Is it possible that Jewish learning might be more attractive to our students if our choice of subjects included dynamic and contemporary issues such as Jewish meditation within prayer, the investigation of halachic (Jewish law) topics like medical ethics within Judaism, or the Jewish understanding of art and music?

Is it also possible that our method of teaching Judaism is lacking the oomph and excitement that would make it compelling and intriguing? Are we highlighting the fascinating process of debate, storytelling and intergenerational argumentation that was crucial in the development of our great writings and teachings?

Or is it possible that, as a result of outdated methods and limited time, our teachers are unable to express their full-blown effervescence and inherent love of knowledge that brought them to this profession? If so, it would be difficult for instructors to develop eclectic and colourful ideas on Torah subjects that might lead to a greater appreciation of our laws, folklore and philosophy.

Our day school system is producing scholars and individuals, many of whom succeed in the upper echelons of their field, including chinuch, Jewish teaching. I fear, however, that for the fortunes we expend on Jewish education in our bid to ensure Jewish continuity and a community adept in our culture and learning, the dividends are small and the successes minimal.

As the community and the Jewish world grapple with the exorbitant costs of sending a child to day school (which can exceed $200,000 over the years of study), we should investigate the content of our Jewish day school course selection and the method by which we impart it to our youth.

Programs to achieve these goals are cropping up all over the world, including an intense 26-day retreat for Jewish seekers and potential educators organized by the Brandeis Collegiate Institute in California, which creates an intentional community to explore Judaism through the arts, text study and outdoor education. The potential is vast, and no doubt our intellectual future will be radiant.

Contact avrum@veahavta.org. Help the people of Sudan.

UJA FEDERATION CAMPAIGN 2005

A VOICE IN THE WORLD

Your support for UJA Federation Campaign 2005, currently underway, strengthens our voice in a world where antisemitism has reached alarming levels. Campaign 2005 is an urgent Action Plan for a safe Jewish future to protect our community, speak out against hatred, build a stronger Israel and link our young people to Jewish life.

When your canvasser calls, please support this critical campaign. If you have not yet made your Campaign commitment, please call our Hotline at 416.631.5705 or pay online by visiting www.jewishtoronto.com.

CAMPAIGN 2005 ACTION PLAN

- Protecting our community institutions
- Speaking out forcefully on urgent Jewish issues
- Building a stronger, more economically secure Israel
- Empowering a new generation to deal with hatred

UJA FEDERATION

Together We're Stronger

www.jewishtoronto.com

Downtown Toronto's Newest Boutique Hotel
The GRAND HOTEL TORONTO
Reservations 1-877-32-GRAND
Book On-line at www.grandhoteltoronto.com
Earn Double or Triple Aeroplan Miles when using CIBC Aerogold® VISA

The Canadian Jewish news

64 Pages | Thursday, November 4, 2004 | 20 Cheshvan, 5765 | $1.00

SAVE NOW ON AIR + HOTEL!
Nov. 1 – Dec. 15
Jan. 1 – Feb. 28
Starting at $1370
Combining 7 nights air & hotel. PP based DBL. Certain conditions apply
Contact your travel agent
ELTAL
416-967-4222

This Week

National

Senator Grafstein pushes for economic peace plan. Page 5

Ex-Shanghai Jews recall wartime experiences. Page 25

Winter Fashion

Seasonal beauty tips from Carol Wise. Page 46

Arts & Travel

Dudu Fisher is coming to Toronto. Page 50

Health & Leisure

Toronto man in need of a liver. Page 56

Index

GTA 3
Editorials & Letters 8
Perspectives 9
Opinions 10
The Kirshner File 11
Jewish Life 14
Coast to Coast 26
Yiddish Corner 28
According to Reports 31
Food Scrumptious Food 36
What's New 38
Obituary and Notices 40
On Campus 40
Israel & the Jewish World 41
CJ Kids 44
Winter Fashion 47
Arts & Travel 50
Health & Lifestyles 56

www.cjnews.com

Canada Post Publication Agreement #40010684
Publication Mail Registration #09894

Suicide blast in Tel Aviv

Ha'aretz Daily Newspaper Ltd.

TEL AVIV — A suicide bombing rocked the crowded Carmel Market in central Tel Aviv on Monday, killing at least three people and wounding dozens, at least four seriously, fire and rescue officials said.

Witnesses said the ground shook when the blast went off at 11:15 a.m. near a dairy shop close to the intersection of Rambam and Hacarmel streets. The remains of the bomber were found nearby.

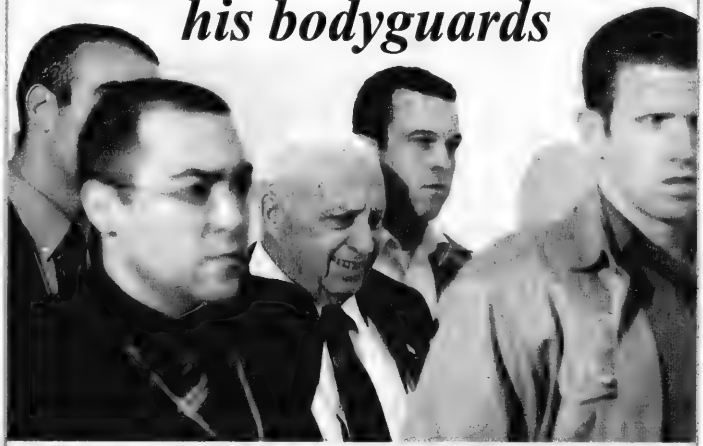
The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed responsibility for the attack. The suicide bomber was identified as Amar Alfar, 18, from Askar refugee camp in the West Bank city of Nablus.

Samir Abdullah, 45, Alfar's mother, said the people who had sent her son to Tel Aviv were wrong to exploit someone too young to understand the implications of his act. "It's immoral to send someone so young. They should have sent an adult who understands the meaning of his deeds."

Security officials said the bomber arrived with the explosives Sunday night at Abu Dis in east Jerusalem and was planning to carry out the attack in the capital.

Continued on page 43

A prime minister and his bodyguards



As the government of Israel continues to advance its plan for unilateral disengagement from Gaza, security officials have reported increased threats against the life of Prime Minister Ariel Sharon. Here we see him surrounded by bodyguards as he made his way toward the Knesset last Tuesday prior to the vote on the disengagement plan. The heightened fear for Sharon's safety comes nine years after former prime minister Yitzhak Rabin was murdered by a disgruntled political opponent on Nov. 4, 1995. See related articles on page 8 and 42.

[Isranet photo]

'Israel is not alone'

This is an excerpt from an address by Bob Rae, former premier of Ontario, upon receiving the 2004 Scopus Award from Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University – its highest honour – in Toronto on Oct. 24.

By BOB RAE

We live, I think, in times that could be described as somewhat strange. I find it, personally, incredibly troubling when a Canadian Muslim leader who is a teacher in a Canadian university, an Ontario university, can condone the use of suicide bombers and say that all Israeli men and women over the age of 18 are appropriate targets wherever in the world they may happen to be. That was just last week, on one of our own television programs. This is an absolutely grotesque advocacy of hatred.

If there is good news, and there is some always, in what has taken place, is that what he has said has not gone unnoticed and unchallenged, even within the Muslim community itself. When a Canadian university – universities are supposed to be places in which ideas are discussed and presented, in which opposing views are allowed to be heard, supposed to be bastions of free speech, and of free expression – [does not allow] the former prime minister of Israel to speak on its campus, it means a minority is allowed to dictate who will speak and when. When that happens, something is very wrong in our country.

Continued on page 21

Chaye Sarah
Candlelighting: 4:43
Havdallah: 5:48

Greater Toronto Area

Arafat's illness gives Israel hope — please see page 41

News in Brief

CANADA

Bezmozgis Nominated

TORONTO — The Canada Council for the Arts named Toronto writer David Bezmozgis as one of five finalists for a Governor General's award for English language fiction. Bezmozgis was nominated last week for his debut collection Natasha and Other Stories, which draws on his family's experiences as Russian Jewish immigrants to Toronto in the 1980s. He is up against four other writers, including literary heavyweight Alice Munro, for the $15,000 prize, which will be awarded in Ottawa on Nov. 16.

WORLD

U.S. Hate Crimes Flat

NEW YORK — There were approximately the same number of hate crimes in the United States in 2003 as 2002, according to FBI statistics. Of the 7,489 hate crimes noted in an FBI report released last week, 1,300 were religion-based crimes, more than 69 per cent of them directed against Jews or Jewish institutions. After the release of the report, the Anti-Defamation League called for expanded federal hate crimes legislation.

Award Policy Altered

LOS ANGELES —The Body Shop said it would change the way it gives awards after it came under fire for giving a human rights prize to an anti-Israel group. The London-based retailer of personal care products pledged to make the changes after a boycott led by Los Angeles-based activists and criticism from the Anti-Defamation League, the Jewish Journal of Greater Los Angeles reported. The 2002 award was given to the National Committee for the Defense of the Rights of the Internally Displaced, a pro-Palestinian group that rejects Israel's right to exist. The Body Shop also took down images of the award and the name of the committee from its website.

Reform Rejects Cash

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Reform movement has urged its U.S. congregations not to take federal funds to secure synagogues. The U.S. government has set aside $25 million to assist "high-risk" non-profit groups with security costs. In a letter to the shuls, the movement said accepting the money would open it up to charges of hypocrisy for fighting for church-state separation on the one hand and accepting federal cash on the other. "We have always been on the front lines of preserving [church-state separation in America] and now, when it is under unrelenting attack, when the Supreme Court has steadily cut back on these protections, it is more important than ever to do so," the letter from the Union for Reform Judaism and Reform's Religious Action Center said. Some Reform congregations have already accepted the money.

ZOA Files Complaint

NEW YORK — Jewish students at the University of California at Irvine are being harassed, intimidated and discriminated against by Muslim students on campus and the school won't stop it, says an official complaint sent by the Zionist Organization of America to the U.S. Department of Education's office for civil rights. The ZOA says that since UC-Irvine receives federal funding, it's obligated under the federal Civil Rights Act to provide an educational environment free from harassment, intimidation and discrimination. The ZOA says that "for the past three years, the environment for Jewish students at UC-Irvine has been hostile, and at times, threatening." Among the incidents cited was one last February in which a Jewish student with an Israeli flag on his lapel was allegedly cursed and threatened with death by a group of Muslim students. The ZOA says the student filed a police report, but the university did nothing in response.

Students Pull Ads Against Anti-Semitism

Ads labelled Jesus and Mary 'Dirty Jews'

PARIS — French Jewish students last week withdrew images featuring Jesus and the Virgin Mary from an advertising campaign against anti-Semitism.

The ad campaign, which featured pictures of the pair with the words "Dirty Jew" scrawled on them, was pulled after the images proved too shocking for Catholics and some Jews. A caption below the pictures read, "Anti-Semitism: what if it was everyone's business?"

The Union of Jewish Students was set to run the ads in national newspapers and on billboards across France last week, but decided to "modify the visuals," a union official told JTA.

The move followed pressure from major Jewish and anti-racist organizations in France, who said the campaign would do more harm than good.

Stone Craft MONUMENT FACTORY מצבות הטפעל
We have a very large inventory of top quality
Granite Monuments
For a limited time, we can offer
Single Stones at $750.
(while factory stock lasts)
All sizes for all Jewish Cemeteries in Ontario
•Factory Direct Prices •Monuments Available Within 1 week •Cemetery Lettering and Restoration •We use the finest granite
SERVING THE JEWISH COMMUNITY FOR MANY YEARS
121 BRISBANE RD., #1 DOWNSVIEW 416-667-1474

Steeles Memorial Chapel
www.steelesmemorial.com
•Current Listing of Funerals
•Listing of Cemeteries and Maps of Sections
•Yahrzeit Calculator for Civil & Hebrew dates
•Kaddish Texts
•Educational Information about Shiva - Unveiling - After-Care - Prayers - Jewish Burial Rites
•Jewish Holiday Dates
905-881-6003
Serving the Jewish Community since 1927.

THE VEHICLE EVERYONE HAS BEEN WAITING FOR!
2005 DODGE MAGNUM
Book your test drive NOW!
Luxurious! Powerful! Rear wheel drive with ESP. Made in Canada.
$389 LEASE PER MONTH
NOW IN STOCK

*Lease 48 months with 20,400 KM allowed per year with $.15 for excess KMs. Freight, PDE, admin and taxes extra. OAC. Downpayment or trade equivalent $1660. See Downsview Chrysler for details. Vehicle may feature optional equipment.
DOWNSVIEW CHRYSLER DODGE • JEEP 416-635-1660
On the Allen Road, N. of Sheppard Ave. 401

The Canadian Jewish news
Vol. XXXIV, No. 44 (1,671)*

Gary Laforet General Manager
Mordechai Ben-Dat Editor
Vera Gilman Advertising & Assistant General Manager
Carol Jamieson Controller
Jeff Rosen News & Internet Editor
Joseph Serge, Arts, Travel and Supplements Editor
Janice Arnold, Carolyn Blackman Ron Csillag, Sheldon Kirshner Frances Kraft, David Lazarus Elias Levy, Paul Lungen Anna Morgan, Leila Speisman Staff Reporters
Jessica Apter, Rabbi Bernard Baskin Ross Culiner, Gerald Gall Jean M. Gerber, Bill Gladstone Joanna Grossman, Lawrence Hart Sara Horowitz, Norma Joseph Dr. Gidi Koren, Rabbi Dow Marmur Rebecca Nadler, Miriam Porter Avrum Rosensweig, Alek Silver Heather Solomon, Gerald Steinberg Rabbi Chaim Steinmetz, Gil Troy Columnists
Diane Koven· Myron Love Canadian Correspondents
Edgar Asher, Jenny Hazan Israel Bureau
Carolan Halpern, Ruth Schweitzer Daniel Wolgelerenter Copy Editors
Cynthia Gasner, Special Assignments
Ella Burakowski Assistant Advertising Manager
Bev Bergman, Gloria Clamen Lisa Freid, Faina Garber Sarah Laiken, Eric Layman Honey Mahl, Jonathan Turner Sholom Wargon, Grace Zweig Sales Representatives, Toronto
Doris Perez, Office Manager
Alma Delory, Lucy Semtchenko Karen Syptak Office Staff, Toronto
Janice Atkinson Circulation & Promotions Manager
Brian Stoneman Composing Room Manager
José De Freitas, Edward Dunbar, Ronald G. Hagel Britta Montgomery Anahit Nahapetyan, Nick Radelja Michael Stavsky Production Staff

Donald Carr, George A. Cohon Steven Cummings, Murray Koffler Julia Koschitzky, Albert J. Latner Lionel H. Schipper, Robert Vineberg Ross Wolfe Rubin Zimmerman Directors

Ray D. Wolfe Founding President (1971-1990)

CIRCULATION
Total circulation: 40,197 copies.
Total paid circulation: 39,504 copies.
CCNA verified circulation Feb. 18, 2004

SUBSCRIPTIONS
Canada: $34.95, 1 yr. incl. GST. $62.95, 2 yr. incl. GST.
U.S.A.: $100 U.S funds, 1 yr.
All other countries: $110 U.S. funds, 1 yr.
Postmaster: Please return 29Bs and changes of address to Toronto office.
Postage Paid at Toronto
Canada Post Publication Agreement #40010684
Publication Mail Registration #09894
*Under current ownership

We acknowledge the financial support of the Government of Canada, through the Publications Assistance Program, towards our mailing costs.
Canada

The Canadian Jewish news
How To Reach Us
Head Office: 1500 Don Mills Rd., Ste. 205, North York, Ont.. M3B 3K4 Tel: 416-391-1836
Advertising Fax: 416-391-0949 Editorial Fax: 416-391-0829
Advertising E-mail: ads@cjnews.com Editorial E-mail: info@cjnews.com
Subscriptions E-mail: jatkinson@cjnews.com Website: www.cjnews.com
IMP - Israel Advertising Representatives
POB 7195, Jerusalem, Israel Tel: 02-625-2933 Fax: 02-624-9240 E-mail:info@impmedia.co.il

RRSP TO RRIF Are You Ready?
Monica J. Weissmann, CFP
905-889-8535
Edward Jones
Serving Individual Investors
Member CIPF

National

Greater Toronto Area

Sonny Goldstein, CFP
President
Planning For Retirement?
Confused about your financial future? Let us help you understand how to reach your financial goals.
Call Sonny Goldstein
Chartered Life Underwriter
Chartered Financial Consultant
416-221-0060
HIGHEST QUOTES ON RRIF's, ANNUITIES, etc.
Creative Ideas in Financial Planning

Lessons of Holocaust influence police training in D.C.

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

When Charles Ramsey arrived in Washington, D.C., in April 1998 to take up the post as chief of the city's Metropolitan Police Department, one of his first visits was to the the city's famed United States Holocaust Memorial Museum.

It was a visit he describes today as a "life-altering moment."

Accompanied by a Holocaust survivor, Irene Weiss, Ramsey toured the museum's displays, photos and a railway car from the period. Weiss told him it was that very kind of car in which she and her family were transported to a concentration camp. He was moved by her description of the hardship in the train, in which prisoners were forced to use a bucket to relieve themselves.

He left the museum "feeling haunted," and returned on his own a short while later to continue his self-education. Something he saw hit particularly close to home: "I saw that the police, local law enforcement, my chosen profession, had played such an important role in the Holocaust," he said.

Delivering the opening lecture of the 24th annual Holocaust Education Week at Adath Israel Congregation, Ramsey said he later implemented a curriculum to train Washington police that employs various lessons of the Holocaust.

As part of recruits' basic training, one day is set aside for a visit to the museum, followed by group discussions. Among the issues discussed by recruits are the role of police in capitulating to Nazi authorities, racial profiling, equal treatment of citizens and the role of police in upholding the rights of all citizens.

Police learn of the effects of removing bedrock human rights and of their role in a free and democratic society. One of the primary lessons of the Holocaust is for police to avoid becoming politicized, to support human rights and to be the first to stand up for society's most vulnerable, Ramsey said.

The Holocaust is an effective learning tool in that it is distant enough so that no one has personal involvement in it, while it is familiar enough to serve as the context in which discussions can take place, he said.

The program has proven so successful, it has been expanded to include experienced officers, while members of the FBI, Maryland State Police and Baltimore Police Department have also used the program.

In other opening night remarks, Rabbi Steven Saltzman said Jews owe Christians an apology for predicting an upsurge of anti-Semitism would follow Mel Gibson's controversial film, The Passion of the Christ. That did not happen. Jews today should realize the Christianity practised today in North America is not the same as was in Europe during the Holocaust.

Rabbi Saltzman suggested those who attack Jews will go on to attack others. Applying that lesson to current events, he said radical Islamic terrorists first attacked Israel and Jews and have now unleashed their terror on the rest of the world. He called on all those who believe in civilization to combat "this new fascism rampant throughout the world."

Holocaust Education Week, which runs until Nov. 11, is co-ordinated by the Holocaust Centre of Toronto and UJA Federation.

Corrections and Clarifications

Our Oct. 28 story, "Enrolment down at Toronto Jewish day schools," incorrectly stated that a 17 per cent increase in tuition at Associated Hebrew Schools was one of the two or three smallest increases among the city's 10 largest day schools. The article should have stated that Associated Hebrew Schools' tuition of $9,300 is the second- or third-lowest among the 10 largest schools.

In addition, the article referred to a drop in enrolment at several day schools, as well as to an increase at the Toronto Heschel School, from 2002-03 to 2003-04. However, the figures did not include preschool enrolments.

Including preschool, the total numbers for 2003-04 are: United Synagogue Day School: 1,167, down from 1,261 in 2002-03; Bialik Hebrew Day School: 854, down from 856; Leo Baeck Day School: 772, down from 808; Eitz Chaim Day School: 839, down from 871; Heschel: 325, up from 296. Specific data are unavailable for the 2004-05 school year.

The CJN apologizes for the inaccuracies.

Time to start thinking about...
CHAT
האקדמיה העברית
Community Hebrew Academy of Toronto
• Excellent Jewish Studies programme and unique inclusive Jewish experience
• Wonderful social and community environment leading to lifelong friendships
• Outstanding University/College entrance
• Extensive sports & extra-curricular programme
• Inspirational Faculty
• Tuition assistance programme
• 'New Stream' programme for students who have not attended Jewish Day School
ENTRY FOR SEPTEMBER 2005
• Details coming automatically to students of Associated, Bialik, Heschel, Leo Baeck, Netivot, Shearim, TJA Ohr Menachem, USDS
• All others - Register to receive an information pack:
CHAT CENTRAL ADMISSIONS
Admissions Coordinator (both Campuses): Mrs. Jill Garazi
Tel: 416-636-5984 ext. 306 • Fax: 416-636-7717 • Email: jgarazi@chattc.org
CHAT'S CLASS OF '03
• 97% gained first or second choice University/College entrance
• 2 Millenium Scholars
• 78% Ontario Scholars
• 23 continued to Israel Study Programmes
CHAT'S CLASS OF '04
• 99.64% gained first or second choice University/College entrance
• 4 Millenium Scholars
• 80.13% Ontario Scholars
• 34 continued to Israel Study Programmes

WHY PAY MORE?

Graveside Services at the Lowest Cost Available From Any Jewish Establishment. GUARANTEED.

A NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION
HEBREW BASIC BURIAL
TRADITIONAL GRAVESIDE SERVICE

3429 Bathurst Street
(416) 780-0596

*Guarantee based on published prices.

Beth Avraham Yoseph of Toronto Congregation Adult Education Committee presents, as part of the

2nd Annual
Scholar in Residence Program

Thursday Nov. 4 to Shabbos, Nov. 6, 2004

Rabbi Kenneth N. Hain,
of Congregation Beth Shalom of Lawrence, N.Y.

Past-president of the Rabbinical Council of America (RCA)

"EVERYTHING NEW IS . . .
FORBIDDEN BY THE TORAH"
– Chasam Sofer

A public lecture by:
Rabbi Kenneth N. Hain
Thursday, November 4, 2004,
20th Cheshvan, 5765
at 8:00 pm.

Beth Avraham Yoseph of Toronto Congregation,
613 Clark Ave. W.,Thornhill, in the Perlis Hall

Refreshments following
The Arlene & Julius Schreiber Scholar in Residence Program

REDUCE 2004 TAXES IMMEDIATELY!

- 100% tax deduction
- 15% Federal tax credit in 2004
- 5% Provincial tax credit (ON)
- Tax benefits are protected by statute!
- minimum $10,000 investment
- Augen Limited Partnership 2004

AUGEN CAPITAL CORP

IPC Investment Corp.
Member of the CIPF

Irwin Igra Tele.: (416) 565-2732
Email: iigra@ipcsecurities.com
3910 Bathurst Street, Suite #404 Toronto, Ontario M3H 5Z3

Please note that investments of this nature are not suitable for all clients, and that the clients should seek the advice of their accountant.

Greater Toronto Area

Soft-hearted, caring voice

From the editor's desk

These are momentous days within momentous times. The pages of history are being inscribed by the actions and decisions of a searching humanity, though they are not quite comprehensible to contemporary ken or understanding.

Israelis grapple with issues that cut to the core of the future they envision for themselves and their society. The vote last week in the Knesset authorizing unilateral disengagement from Gaza and from two communities in the West Bank was a first raw incision in that evolving vision.

Palestinians contemplate their future without Yasser Arafat. The possibility of his demise is no longer remote as he undergoes treatment in a well-secured Paris hospital for undisclosed, but serious ailments.

And Americans – as of this writing – are about to elect a president who, in the best scenario, will require great skill and a great deal of time to fuse together the bitterly cleaved halves of their society.

In Israel, there was a palpable sense of occasion, of a nation at a crossroads, surrounding the vote last week in the Knesset.

Masses of Israelis on both sides of the disengagement divide rallied to express their highest aspirations as well as their deepest fears. They know only too well that, for all the declarations of encouragement from the United States and the finger-in-their-face hectoring from the European Union, they can only count on uncertainty accompanying them as they inch further forward along a hope-lined, but dangerous path.

Prime Minister Ariel Sharon seemed especially aware of the moment. His manner rose above that of the tough, battle-scarred politician to that of the thoughtful, conciliatory statesman. We saw a side of him that has not been much visible behind the prickly shrubbery of the down-low, nasty terrain of Israeli politics. It was, one could say, almost a tenderness that he displayed in three speeches he delivered last week.

The speech he delivered to the Knesset before the disengagement has been excerpted on the Perspectives page of this issue. It soars with an eloquence entirely appropriate for the signal importance of the occasion, but not generally associated with the prime minister's usual verbal comportment.

One part of his speech that we did not have room to excerpt was a reference to a poem by Israeli poet Natan Alterman. It appeared in the portion of Sharon's address in which he speaks directly to the Palestinian people.

"Forty-eight years ago, on the eve of our Independence Day in 1956, against the background of the return of the bodies of 10 terrorists who committed… murderous acts in Israel and who were delivered in wooden coffins to the Egyptians at a border crossing in the Gaza Strip… the poet, Natan Alterman wrote the following:

'Arabia, enemy unknown to you,
you will awake when you rise against me,
My life serves as witness, with my back against the wall,
To my history and my G-d,
Enemy, the power of whose rage,
In the face of those who rise to destroy him…
Will be similar only to the force of his brotherhood
In a fraternal covenant between one nation and another.'

"This was [written] during the time of the terrorist killings and our retaliatory raids."

It was a remarkably revealing reference by the old-warrior prime minister because it was he who was asked by his prime minister, David Ben-Gurion, to lead those retaliatory raids against the murderous fedayeen.

The day following the vote in the Knesset, Sharon again ascended the Knesset rostrum to commemorate the ninth yahrzeit (Cheshvan 12) of Yitzhak Rabin.

"This Memorial Day must be, and must forever remain, a day of national reckoning. It is a day of renewed commitment to carry out the fundamental duty of every democratic society – to respect the opinion of the other, even when it contradicts our own."

Sharon concluded his remarks with a quote from a speech Yitzhak Rabin delivered to Diaspora Jewry:

"This is a time of painful deliberation and stormy debates. However, it is important that all of us know that, whatever decisions are made, genuine love of Israel rests on them, and in front of our eyes will always be the ancient maxim – all of Israel is responsible for one another. We do not forget for one moment that between those who support our process and those who oppose it – we are all brothers, we are all Jews, and we share one destiny.

"Today, we also do not forget that for one moment. And we do not forget him, Yitzhak. May his memory be blessed."

Later that same day, he attended a memorial ceremony at Rabin's grave at Mount Herzl. Here again, in a highly personal manner marked by remorse and contrition, almost beseeching forgiveness, he appealed to his fallen colleague.

"The disputes were never personal. If, in the heat of the moment, things were said that shouldn't have been, I am so sorry."

There is no doubt that Sharon will find his edgy parliamentary voice when he needs it next in the Knesset to defend his policies. But the soft-hearted, caring voice we heard last week was too moving and too effective to ignore. –MBD

SeeJN

LET MEMORY SPEAK*: Grade 6 students from United Synagogue Day School recently attended a special presentation of the documentary Let Memory Speak, an award-winning film that deals with the experiences of child survivors before World War II and during the Holocaust and liberation. The film's director, Batya Bettman, a child survivor, spoke of her experiences and a discussion followed the screening. The students asked Bettman some well-thought-out questions. From left are Joshua Tenenbaum, Sara Kahn, Cortney Kideckel, Yael Chapman, Orli Matlow, Sydney Kelman, Sariana Zatzman, Batya Bettman, Rebecca Samuel.

Senator pushes economic peace plan for Mideast

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

Senator Jerry Grafstein is pushing a peace plan for the Middle East that sidesteps the region's political quicksand and focuses instead on free trade and economic development as a means of defusing regional tensions.

Senator Jerry Grafstein

Grafstein, treasurer of the parliamentary wing of the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE) has introduced his plan at meetings of the 55-nation body as well as at a prestigious think-tank in England.

Speaking recently at the Wilton Park Conference in West Sussex, England, Grafstein argued that the Arab world suffers from deficits in jobs, economic progress, foreign investment, productivity and freedom, and lacks the benefits of a civil society. GDP growth in the Arab Middle East is stagnating and Arab states are falling further and further behind other countries in any measure of economic success, he said.

The solution is to modernize their economies through the creation of a free trade zone in the region. History shows that trade leads to liberalization of society, growth in the rule of law, creation of civil society and eventually democracy, he said.

"Let the movement to free trade start the engine of growth and prosperity," he told the conference. "That is our hope. That is our surest hope and quickest way to achieve peace and prosperity for all in this troubled region."

The conference brought together 47 senior officials from Muslim countries along with a handful of guests from Canada, the United States and Europe. In three days of meetings with Arab interlocutors, Grafstein said condemnations of Israel rarely came up. Instead, the Arab officials were interested in ideas on how to pull their countries out of their economic malaise and address their growing populations of unemployed youths.

Grafstein found "when you talk about the economic side, it's open. If you talk about politics, ideology intrudes."

He urged fellow legislators to lead their parliaments "in galvanizing free trade initiatives throughout the Mediterranean region bilaterally and multilaterally within their own states."

Grafstein later attended an OSCE meeting in Rhodes, Greece, at which he again made his pitch for "economics before politics." He called for creation of a "Middle East Economic Commission," which would gather economic data, establishment of a special investment bank to modernize lagging Arab economies, the removal of intra-Arab trade barriers, and for the European Union to reduce its members states' agricultural tariffs.

Canada, he told the meeting, can play a role by negotiating free trade agreements with Jordan, Morocco, Algeria and Lebanon.

Grafstein believes his message has struck a chord. Since the meeting in Rhodes, he has been invited to speak in Egypt and he has received many letters from Arab parliamentarians who "want to open an economic dialogue."

The senator believes these Mideast lawmakers recognize "the only way to modernize their economies is through free trade and pluralism."

And while he often heard the stock phrase that the root of the region's problems lay in the Israeli/Palestinian conflict, the Israeli delegation at Rhodes circulated at meetings and were not booed when they spoke.

Grafstein, who has also led OSCE efforts to address the troubling surge in anti-Semitism in recent years, said a resolution he introduced on that issue in the Canadian senate has bogged down and shows no signs of being adopted.

HARDWOOD & CARPET SALE
RIVIERA FLOORING
Warehouse & Showroom
at
8111 JANE STREET, UNIT #6
CONCORD, ONTARIO
L4K 4L7

JOE RIVIETZ
'The Flooring Broker'
"NEW FLOORING WILL BE NO PROBLEM"
SPECIAL
100% Wool Sisal
$3.79 sq. ft.
ON SALE
Hardwood
•Oak, Maple, Birch
Floors Professionally Sanded & Stained
We lift and dispose of old carpets, furniture is moved and replaced, new flooring is professionally installed.
Monday - Friday 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
• Weekends by appointment
By appointment only,
call JOE at 905-738-4588
PREVERCO
DUPONT STAINMASTER®

Canada's LARGEST selection for new & used Fitness Equipment!!!
AMAZING DEALS ON PRE-OWNED EQUIPMENT
Top Pre-owned equipment from:
SCHWINN • NORTHERN LIGHTS • LIFE FITNESS • PRECOR • STAIRMASTER • PACEMASTER
TAKE OUR 30-DAY PRICE CHALLENGE AND GET STARTED TODAY!
STEPPERS from $188
ELLIPTICALS from $288
HOME GYMS from $388
We BUY, SELL, TRADE & RENT Fitness Equipment
UPRIGHT CYCLES from $128
RECUMBENT BIKES from $128
ROWING MACHINES from $128
THE BEST BRANDS AT JAW-DROPPING LOW PRICES!
WEIGHT PLATES From58¢/lb.
HEX DUMBBELLS From68¢/lb
HEART RATE MONITORS From$38
HEAVY BAGS From$48.88
WEIGHT EQUIPMENT From$49.95
FAT SCALES From$68
TREADMILLS from $298
FINANCING AVAILABLE
BOOMERANG HOME FITNESS
MISSISSAUGA
6991 Millcreek Dr.
905.819.9877
SCARBOROUGH
143 Bermondsey Rd.
416.288.1673
Store Hours:
Monday to Friday 10 - 9 • Saturday 10 - 6 • Sunday 12 - 5
PRICES AND AVAILABILITY SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE.

Elmasry's remarks no surprise to Israeli diplomat

By PAUL LUNGEN
Staff Reporter

While the sensibilities of the Canadian public may have been jarred by Mohamed Elmasry's shocking justification of the terrorist murder of Israeli civilians, Israeli Consul General Ya'acov "Cobie" Brosh was far from surprised at Elmasry's views.

On the contrary, the kind of sentiment expressed by Elmasry, who heads the Canadian Islamic Congress (CIC), is all too familiar to him. As a member of the Israeli foreign service, Brosh served for eight years in Egypt and later headed the Israeli Foreign Ministry's Palestinian affairs division. Brosh said he has become quite familiar with the kind of rhetorical excess that marks public discourse in the Arab world and that Elmasry displayed on Canadian television.

"It's the first time Canadians hear what we hear every day in the Middle East," he said.

Palestinian television stations, which are controlled by the Palestinian Authority, regularly incite violence and murder of Israelis, and have done so for years, Brosh said.

Moreover, Palestinian youths are indoctrinated from a young age, through various media and even comic books "to dream of becoming a shaheed [martyr], a Muslim terrorist, and kill as many Jews as possible.

"To hear it in Canada is a new phenomenon."

Brosh was referring to comments made by Elmasry during an appearance last month on the Michael Coren Show on Crossroads Television. Elmasry, a professor at the University of Waterloo who was born in Egypt, said all Israelis over the age of 18 are legitimate targets for Palestinians opposed to Israeli occupation.

Later, he published a letter regretting the statement and offered to resign from the CIC. But the organization, whose membership numbers remains obscure, refused to accept his resignation.

Around the same time as Elmasry's outburst, media reported that in Vancouver, a Muslim spiritual leader, Sheikh Younus Kathrada, told his congregation that Jews were "the brothers of monkey and swine."

Brosh said even that level of rhetoric "is not original. You hear it in Gaza mosques from the imams [prayer leaders]. There is one difference. There we were called children of monkeys and swine."

Comments common in Mideast

Brosh rejected Elmasry's clarification in which he suggested he was merely expressing a viewpoint prevalent among Palestinians. "I think Elmasry thinks like that," he said.

Elmasry's comments certainly caught the attention of Israelis living in Canada, but Brosh does not believe they now have a greater fear for their security.

Ed Morgan, president of Canadian Jewish Congress, said he was heartened by the rebuke of Elmasry delivered by other Arab and Muslim groups, and he suggested the CIC probably doesn't represent anyone beyond Elmasry and a handful of supporters. It's not a surprise the CIC rejected his offer to resign, he said.

Congress, however, is concerned that Elmasry had achieved a fairly high profile in the mainstream media and was sought for comments on the Middle East. He also writes a monthly column for the Globe and Mail.

Congress has known for some time that the CIC possesses "radical views," Morgan said.

Last February, Congress exchanged letters with the CIC over an article, "The Slave Named Bilal," which appeared in the CIC's Friday Bulletin publication.

In writing a commentary to coincide with Black History Month, Wahida Valiante, national vice-president of the CIC, argued that racial superiority was a "Jewish concept" arising from the description of Jews as chosen people. "Unfortunately, the Jewish idea of being 'chosen' not only institutionalized racism, but also set a terrible precedent for human history in general, where racial superiority claims became the norm," she wrote.

Rachael Turkienicz, a professor of Jewish studies and education as well as an officer of Congress' Ontario region, wrote to Valiante pointing out she had "badly misinterpreted the concept of 'the chosen people,' which in fact refers to the relationship between Jews and God.

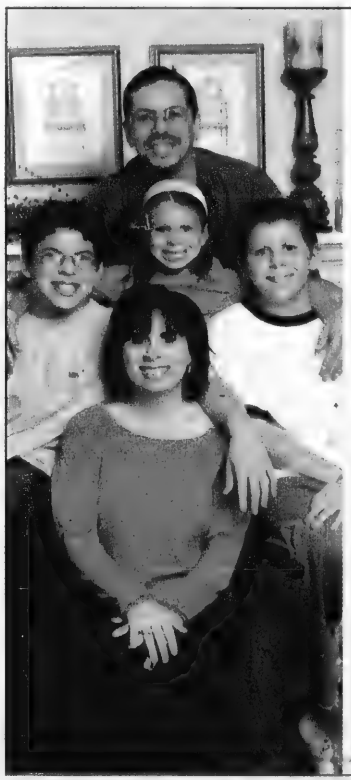
"It certainly does not connote 'racial superiority,'" Turkienicz said. The article was guilty of deploying "a purportedly anti-racist message in the cause of its own prejudice," she added.

In other developments, the president of the University of Waterloo, David Johnston, denounced Elmasry's remarks as "abhorrent and alarming" and called on the school's dean of science to investigate the incident. The review could lead to a letter of reprimand, suspension or dismissal, a university spokesperson said.

Meanwhile, police began an investigation to determine whether Elmasry's comments could result in hate crimes charges.

Community activist Shirley Anne Haber called on supporters to begin a letter-writing campaign to call for Elmasry's resignation from the CIC.

A group called United Israel Action Committee planned a protest rally at the CIC's office in Kitchener over the weekend, said the group's spokesperson, Meir Halevi.



AT ASSOCIATED,
WE'RE BUILDING JEWISH GENERATIONS.

"Associated has met the individual needs of each of our children and has provided them with a strong Jewish identity and a challenging curriculum. For us, it's been a very positive experience."

Elaine & Benny Osher with Noah, Jonah and Sarah

Knowledge. Torah. Tradition. These are the essentials that we give our children so they fulfil our promise – to ensure the future vitality of the Jewish community. And these are the cornerstones upon which Associated is providing children with the opportunity to flourish as Jews and accomplished students.

Because Pre-School is the foundation for your child's growth, we are making an unparalleled investment in our Bet Hayeled programme. In consultation with leading experts in Jewish early childhood education, we are creating an innovative and individualized programme that will combine a loving and nurturing environment with a richness of resources.

Attend one of our many information sessions and find out how your family can become a part of ours.

Associated Hebrew Schools of Toronto

INFORMATION SESSIONS
for families interested in Nursery, JK, SK and Grade One

NORTH
At Kamin Education Centre
300 Atkinson Ave. Thornhill

Sunday, November 7
10-11:30 a.m.
(babysitting available)

Wednesday, November 10
9:30-11 a.m. and 8-9:30 p.m.

SOUTH
At Posluns Education Centre
18 Neptune Dr. Toronto

Thursday, November 11
9:30-11 a.m. and 8-9:30 p.m.

Sunday, November 14
10-11:30 a.m.
(babysitting available)

TO REGISTER FOR ANY OF THESE SESSIONS, CONTACT GAIL LOVI AT 905-889-3998, EXT. 2

Panel stresses need to help AIDS victims in Africa

By CAROLYN BLACKMAN
Staff Reporter

By 2010, 25 million children in Subsahara Africa will have lost their parents to AIDS, says Larry Gillman, a member of Africa AIDS Support of the Kawarthas (AASK).

"In Zimbabwe, 30 per cent of the population has HIV/AIDS, and they have no facilities to fight it. [The disease] is a death sentence in that part of the world," he said at a recent multi-faith panel discussion sponsored by Ve'ahavta, the Canadian Jewish Humanitarian Relief Committee.

Also on the panel, held at the First Narayever Congregation, was Rev. Bill Peacock, a United Church minister who worked as a Ve'ahavta volunteer in Zimbabwe; Jennifer Reid, a midwife and women's health consultant who travelled to Zimbabwe twice to teach clinical midwifery; and Sarah Zelcer, Ve'ahavta's director of education and assistant director of international programs.

Gillman, president of the Beth Israel Synagogue in Peterborough, who will be making his first visit to Zimbabwe's Howard Hospital in November, said they formed AASK after some shul members were invited to a session on AIDS in Africa by a friend who had volunteered at the Salvation Army hospital, where Ve'ahavta volunteers have been working since 1998.

"What I heard shocked me. I had a new awareness that something had to be done.

"The facts are that HIV/AIDS is the worst plague ever to hit mankind. It has killed more people than all the world wars combined."

At the hospital, 90 per cent of the patients and 50 per cent of the nurses are HIV positive, he said. "With an operating budget of only $45,000 a year, the hospital operates with little drugs, medical supplies or equipment."

Almost 2.4 million people (8,000 people a day) will die in Subsahara Africa of AIDS this year, Gillman said. "[At that rate] Peterborough would be wiped out in nine days."

The Holocaust and AIDS are parallel stories, he said. "The six million Jews who died had waited for help, but it was not there. We can't say 'never again' and not do something."

Almost 2.4 million will die in Subsahara Africa of the disease this year

By being part of a multi-faith team, Gillman said, "our congregation has opened itself up to the world. We have made links to other faith communities and have gotten people thinking about supporting a broader community than Peterborough."

Jennifer Reid said the crisis of AIDS is so massive that it has to compel us to rise against religious differences.

"My compulsion with AIDS and Africa is what I know firsthand. We have reached the point where my chance of having a healthy baby is one million times greater than someone in Africa. That is a huge disparity, and as a midwife, I can't live knowing that the disparity exists.

"Birth is important, and no matter how big the crisis, it is important that babies be born with skill and with as much gentleness as possible."

It is an inspiration to her, she says, to see HIV positive midwives deliver HIV positive babies.

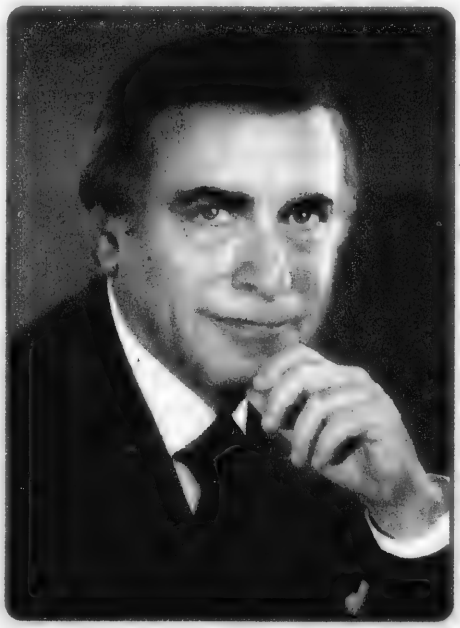
"I feel a sense of shame when I tell them that we have drugs, and that our babies do not die of HIV. It is ironic for me to bear witness to my own privilege and wealth. I feel the need to bear witness to you what is going on there."

Zelcer told the crowd that volunteers can help out locally as well. "We can speak at groups or collect supplies. There are many things we can do."

She introduced seven-year-old Paige Pedlar of Whitby, who, after watching a television program about orphans in Africa, wrote a book called Who Will Cuddle Them When They Sleep?

Paige was so moved by the plight of children her age who no longer have parents that she wrote the book to raise money for Howard Hospital.

Avrum Rosensweig, executive director and founder of Ve'ahavata, said the "whole message of tonight is that there is no difference between them and us. It is a message to all of us to do something. We are challenged to the responsibility. There is no way any of us can put our head in the sand."



JEWISH NATIONAL FUND OF TORONTO
is proud to invite the Toronto Community to the 2004 NEGEV DINNER TRIBUTE
in honour of
RONALD APPLEBY Q.C.
in recognition of excellence in communal leadership and dedication to Israel

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 2004
Sheraton Centre Hotel
Reception: 5:00 p.m. • Dinner: 6:00 p.m.

JNF Toronto President: Ron Hoffman
Negev Dinner Chairs: Harley Mintz and Howard Sokolowski
Honourary Patrons: Jennie and Moishe Appleby, Elaine Spring
Honourary Chairs: Joey M. Tanenbaum (Chairman), H. Thomas Beck, Samuel H. Cohen, Fred DeGasperis, Dr. Gerald Halbert, Dr. Ralph Halbert, Ydessa Hendeles, Joseph Lebovic, Robert Masters, Irwin (Al) Mintz, Philip Reichmann, The Hon. Sydney L. Robins, Kurt Rothschild, Gerald Sheff, Edward Sonshine, Jack Weinbaum, Mel Wolfond

Proceeds from the 2004 JNF Toronto Negev Dinner will benefit a Department of Forestry Project of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and a unique Children's Endowment at JNF summer camps in Israel, specifically benefitting children impacted by terror.

Executive Director: Ben Prossin • Co-Ordinator of Administrative Services: Lil Jacobson
Special Jerusalem Emissary: David Hamik • Special Projects Emissary: Yona Gazit

For ticket information and reservations
Jewish National Fund of Toronto
1000 Finch Avenue West, Suite 700, Toronto, Ontario M3J 2V5
Tel: 416-638-7200 • Fax: 416-638-7345 • Email: tor@jnf-canada.org

Editorials & Letters

The Canadian Jewish news

An independent community newspaper serving as a forum for diverse viewpoints

Publisher and Proprietor:
The Canadian Jewish News, a corporation without share capital.
Head Office:
1500 Don Mills Rd., Suite 205, North York, Ont. M3B 3K4

Dry Bones
EITHER ARAFAT IS FAKING AND HAS TRICKED US
AND HAS CLEVERLY ESCAPED HIS "HOUSE ARREST"
OR?...
OR WE TRICKED HIM AND GOT HIM OUT OF THE PIICTURE.
WHAT IF HE'S REALLY SICK?
TOO SIMPLE!

The ninth yahrzeit

Today, Nov. 4, is the ninth anniversary of the slaying of Israel's former prime minister, Yizhak Rabin. The yahrzeit fell last week on the 12th day of the month of Cheshvan. One would have expected that the occasion in Israel would have been marked by a national mood of sombre introspection and pained recollection. It was indeed that, but it was also, ominously, much more. As JTA reporter Dina Kraft observed, "the mood in Israel is raw and charged."

In an irony that perhaps only God understands, Rabin's yahrzeit began at sundown on the very day the Knesset voted to approve Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's plan to withdraw from the Gaza Strip. Once again, the political divide in the country has led to a worrisome, potentially dangerous societal divide.

Sharon now travels under a reinforced canopy of security because of the mounting threats against his life. The photo on the front page of this week's paper graphically illustrates the steel-wired extent of that canopy. The fact the prime minister is surrounded by a four-sided phalanx of protectors in the precincts of the Knesset itself rather than in the open air of the streets of the country lends a profound sense of melancholy to the photo. For once again, a prime minister of Israel must be protected from possible harm at the hands of co-religionists, as well as Arab terrorists.

Last weekend, nearly 80,000 Israelis gathered in Tel Aviv to observe Rabin's yahrzeit. In a determined effort not to polemicize the event, organizers refused to give the podium to partisan politicians. Speeches addressed the need for mutual respect and unity.

Former Ashkenazi chief rabbi Yisrael Meir Lau pleaded with the large assembly. "We must learn to live here together, all of us, despite our differences and disputes." The former chief rabbi compared the State of Israel to Noah's Ark, urging the people to find a way to live in peace inside the one life-sustaining boat.

Actress Osnat Giladi, whose son was killed while serving in the Gaza Strip this past year, appealed for compassion and understanding of one for the other.

"May we all understand that life is a supreme value. Grief has taken positions in too many homes in this country. Too many families will never again smile a full and true smile. Their happiness will always include sadness. Let us believe that from the pain will rise a strong people who will remember to keep the Bible's command: 'Thou shalt love thy neighbour.'"

Because, in many respects, our Diaspora community is but a mirror that reflects, in miniature, the ethnic, social, political and religious diversity of Jewish life in Israel, we, too, must be careful to tolerate and encourage respectful intra-communal disagreement while abhorring destructive intra-communal division.

The ninth yahrzeit of the assassination of an Israeli prime minister at the hands of another Jew is the most fitting moment to recommit to the principle that mutual respect and responsibility should govern how we engage with our political adversaries.

LET OUR PEOPLE GO...

MIAs: Ron Arad, Zachary Baumel, Tzvi Feldman and Yehuda Katz.

Editorial Advisory Board: Irving Abella, Michael Brown, Sandra Brown, Donald Carr, Paul Cooper, Rabbi Elyse Goldstein, Zac Kaye, Igor Korenzvit, Lou Ronson, Jacques Sayegh, Mike Shriqui, Ron Somogyi, Pamela Medjuck Stein, Rabbi Reuven Tradburks

BJE responds to enrolment story

As the chair of the UJA Federation Board of Jewish Education, I wish to voice my concern regarding the article "Enrolment down at Toronto Jewish day schools" (CJN, Oct. 28).

I have criticisms of both fact and form, and wish to comment on the latter first. On a topic of such importance, I would have preferred an article that was written with a greater degree of care regarding sources of information. Quoting figures (with some errors) in the same breath as unsubstantiated anecdotal material is grossly misleading to the public. The mix of those two very different kinds of information in one article makes it seem that they have equal weight and authority.

Now to the facts. It is true that global day school enrolment is down, but there are no simple explanations from any quarter. The high cost of Jewish schooling is undoubtedly a factor, but any study of exit interviews will demonstrate other factors as well. It is also the case that the school statistics, in themselves, are not as useful as the enrolment vis-a-vis the total age cohorts of the Jewish population. The article's pre-occupation with anecdotal speculation in lieu of hard analysis does not do justice to a topic of great concern to all of us.

With regard to the role of UJA Federation and its Board of Jewish Education (BJE) in tuition subsidy, the article errs grossly in its facts. The current total for tuition subsidy in our budget is $7.8 million dollars, not the $7 million cited. That huge sum is our largest domestic allocation and a point of pride in our community. It is not sufficient and it is the constant concern of dozens of layman and professionals in our community who labour at finding additional funds and other funding options to further reduce the tuition load.

We are especially offended, in the middle of the UJA campaign, that one could even imagine a scenario that your reporter wrote about, attributed to an unnamed source, with regard to the allocation of $900,000 extra dollars to the tuition subsidy fund as a gesture of "embarrassment" because of UJA Federation's Tomorrow Campaign. Instead of listening to innuendo and rumour, if the reporter had talked to the people who struggled for that increase in the face of many other legitimate needs, he would have learned the simple truth. I was a party to those discussions and can tell you clearly that I never heard any reference to a comparison between the operational needs of the community and its capital campaign. Anyone who is close to community life and its voluntary fundraising techniques knows that these two areas of concern are both legitimate, complement each other and do not compete for the same dollars.

The role of the BJE, as an arm of this federated community, is to enhance Jewish education in all of its manifestations, both in quantity and in quality. Good Jewish citizens, lay and professional, give their time and energy to study the issues carefully and to plan accordingly. It is a heavy responsibility and we welcome dissent, dialogue and constructive criticism – you should see our meetings! – but not disinformation.

Baila Lubek
Chair, UJA Federation Board of Jewish Education
Toronto

* * *

An insult to all Canada

As the executive director of the Jewish War Veterans of Canada, I speak on behalf of all Jewish veterans when I say we are appalled by the call to murder Jews by the Islamist cleric Sheik Younus Kathrada in Vancouver and the academic from the University of Waterloo, Mohamed Elmasry, who is the president of the Canadian Islamic Congress ("Muslim leaders' comments spark outrage," CJN, Oct. 28).

How dare Kathrada insult the entire population of Canada by referring to people who fought, bled and died for this country as pigs and monkeys. In fact, Jews served valiantly, fought and died in this land before this was a country. Jews helped create this land that has welcomed many millions to its shores to live in freedom and security. Jews helped develop Canada into one of the best countries in the world to live. Jewish blood, sweat and tears have been shed to help our country grow and take its place with other honourable nations.

Kathrada has no sense of history. In referring to us as descendants of pigs and monkeys, does he not know that the father of his religion and the father of the Jews is the same Abraham?

These individuals are not only singling out the Jews. They have Christians in mind as well. The truth is that the Islamists have not yet forgotten or forgiven the Christians for the Crusades. They say this over and over again. Many people think that this is a passing fad. Adolf Hitler, too, was thought of as a passing fad.

The Islamists are the true enemies of democracy and freedom.

I think that Islamists who make the inflammatory statements are in the minority of the total Muslim population in Canada. If this is the case, then why do we not see and hear condemnation of these statements from more of the 600,000 Muslims living in Canada?

We demand that Kathrada and Elmasry be prosecuted to the full extent of the law for inciting hatred and inciting others to murder. We, who helped create this country, see that our efforts are threatened and we must again stand up and fight those who would bring our beloved Canada down into the dark abyss.

Lou VanDelman
Executive Director, Jewish War Veterans of Canada
Toronto

* * *

Our votes should be up for grabs

I couldn't agree more with the recent article calling on Jews to rethink their political alliances ("We need to think clearly about Islamism," CJN, Oct. 6). Every Jewish vote must be up for grabs to the party who is most favourable to Israel. As a Jew, I wish I had the luxury of debating native rights, border trade or health care, but I don't. Mankind's frequent tendency to express distrust of Jews has robbed me of this luxury. I'm reminded quite often of this when remarks such as "You people are all the same" or "I jewed you down" slip off the tongue of an unsuspecting conversationalist.

You see, I'm a Jew with an Arab surname, an Italian-looking visage and an assimilated nature. I probably hear remarks that most Jews don't.

Why should the Liberals care about their deplorable voting record in the UN when the "Jewish" ridings are safe Liberal seats. Why care? We Jews don't seem to.

We must vote as a bloc. Our loyalties must change with the policies and loyalties of the parties.

Jonathan Mansoor
Toronto

The Canadian Jewish News reserves the right to refuse advertising that in its opinion is misleading, in poor taste or incompatible with the advertising policies of the newspaper. Acceptance of advertisng does not imply endorsement by The Canadian Jewish News. The CJN makes no representation as to the kashruth of food products in advertisements.

Letters are welcome if they are brief, in English or French, typewritten with lines double spaced, and of interest to our reading public. Readers are cautioned not to make sweeping claims against persons or institutions which they cannot verify, as libel laws are very stringent. We reserve the right to edit and condense letters, which must bear the sender's address, phone number and both handwritten and typed signatures. Letters sent by e-mail must also include the sender's municipal address.

'Unite at this decisive hour'

The following is an excerpt from Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's address to the Knesset in the debate on the disengagement plan, Oct. 25, 2004, translated from Hebrew.

Mr. Speaker, Members of Knesset:

This is a fateful hour for Israel. We are on threshold of a difficult decision, the likes of which we have seldom faced, the significance of which for the future of our country in this region is consistent with the difficulty, pain and dispute it arouses within us.

You know that I do not say these things with a light heart to the representatives of the nation and to the entire nation watching and listening to every word uttered here in the Knesset today. This is a people that has courageously faced, and still faces, the burden and terror of ongoing war, which has continued from generation to generation; in which, as in a relay race, fathers pass the guns to their sons; in which the boundary between the frontline and the home front has long been erased; in which schools and hotels, restaurants and market places, cafes and buses have also become targets for cruel terror and premeditated murder.

Today, this nation wants to know what decision this House will make… For me, this decision is unbearably difficult. During my years as a fighter and commander, as a politician, as a member of Knesset, as a minister in Israel's governments and as prime minister, I have never faced so difficult a decision.

I know the implications and impact of the Knesset's decision on the lives of thousands of Israelis who have lived in the Gaza Strip for many years, who were sent there on behalf of the governments of Israel, and who built homes there, planted trees and grew flowers, and who gave birth to sons and daughters who have not known any other home. I am well aware of the fact that I sent them and took part in this enterprise, and many of these people are my personal friends. I am well aware of their pain, rage and despair. However, as much as I understand everything they are going through during these days and everything they will face as a result of the necessary decision to be made in the Knesset today, I also believe in the necessity of taking the step of disengagement in these areas, with all the pain it entails, and I am determined to complete this mission.

I am firmly convinced and truly believe that this disengagement will strengthen Israel's hold over territory that is essential to our existence, and will be welcomed and appreciated by those near and far, reduce animosity, break through boycotts and sieges and advance us along the path of peace with the Palestinians and our other neighbours.

I am accused of deceiving the people and the voters because I am taking steps that are in total opposition to past things I have said and deeds I have done. This is a false accusation. Both during the elections and as prime minister, I have repeatedly and publicly said that I support the establishment of a Palestinian state alongside the State of Israel. I have repeatedly and openly said that I am willing to make painful compromises in order to put an end to this ongoing and malignant conflict between those who struggle over this land, and that I would do my utmost in order to bring peace…

As one who fought in all of Israel's wars, I have learned from personal experience that without proper force, we do not have a chance of surviving in this region, which does not show mercy towards the weak. I have also learned from experience that the sword alone cannot decide this bitter dispute in this land.

I have been told that the disengagement will be interpreted as a shameful withdrawal under pressure, and will increase the terror campaign, present Israel as weak and show our people as a nation unwilling to fight and to stand up for itself. I reject that statement outright. We have the strength to defend this country, and to strike at the enemy that seeks to destroy us.

And there are those who tell me that, in exchange for a genuine signed peace agreement, they too would be willing to make these painful compromises. However, regrettably, we do not have a partner on the other side with whom to conduct genuine dialogue in order to achieve a peace agreement. Even past prime ministers of Israel who declared their willingness to relinquish the maximum territory of our homeland were answered with fire and hostility.

Recently, the chairman of the Palestinian Authority declared that "a million shaheeds [martyrs] will break through to Jerusalem."

In the choice between a responsible and wise action in history, which may lead to painful compromise and a "holy war" to destroy Israel, Yasser Arafat chose the latter – the path of blood, fire and shaheeds. He seeks to turn a national conflict that can be terminated through mutual understanding into a religious war between Islam and Judaism, and even to spill the blood of Jews who live far away.

Israel has many hopes and faces extreme dangers. The most prominent danger is Iran, which is making every effort to acquire nuclear weapons and ballistic missiles, and establishing an enormous terror network together with Syria in Lebanon.

And I ask you: what are we doing and what are we struggling over in the face of these terrible dangers? Are we not capable of uniting to meet this threat?

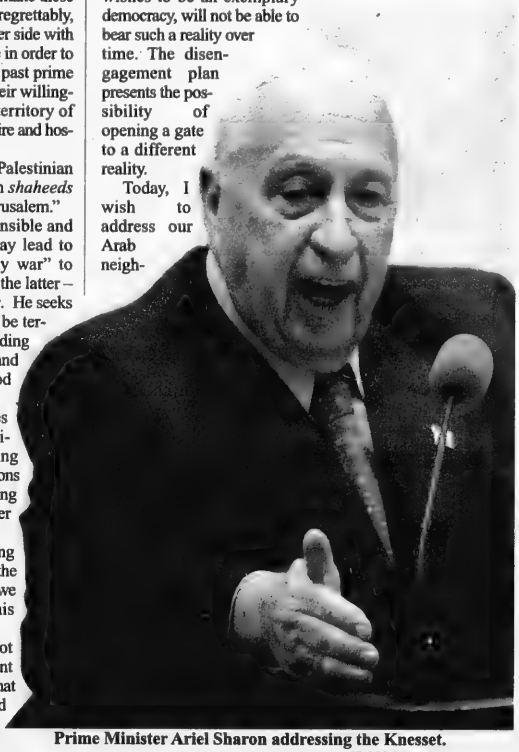
The disengagement plan does not replace negotiations and is not meant to permanently freeze the situation that will be created. It is an essential and necessary step in a situation that currently does not enable genuine negotiations for peace. However, everything remains open for a future agreement, which will hopefully be achieved when this murderous terror ends and our neighbours realize that they cannot triumph over us in this land.

Mr. Chairman, with your permission, I will read several lines from a famous essay which was published in the midst of the Arab Revolt of 1936 – and we must bear in mind that the Jewish community in Israel numbered less than 400,000. This essay by Moshe Beilinson was published in Davar: "How much longer? People ask. How much longer? Until the strength of Israel in its land will condemn and defeat in advance any enemy attack; until the most enthusiastic and bold in any enemy camp will know; there are no means to break the strength of Israel in its land, because the necessity of life is with it, and the truth of life is with it, and there is no other way but to accept it. This is the essence of this campaign."

I am convinced that everything we have done since then confirms these emphatic words.

We have no desire to permanently rule over millions of Palestinians who double their numbers every generation. Israel, which wishes to be an exemplary democracy, will not be able to bear such a reality over time. The disengagement plan presents the possibility of opening a gate to a different reality.

Today, I wish to address our Arab neighbours. In our Declaration of Independence, in the midst of a cruel war, Israel… extended its hand in peace to those who fought against it and sought to destroy it by force, and I quote: "We appeal – in the very midst of the onslaught launched against us now for months – to the Arab inhabitants of the State of Israel to preserve peace and participate in the upbuilding of the state on the basis of full and equal citizenship and due representation in all its provisional and permanent institutions."



Prime Minister Ariel Sharon addressing the Knesset. [RNS/Reuters photo]

A long time has passed since then. This land and this region have known more wars, and have known all the wars between the wars, terror and the difficult counter-actions undertaken by Israel, with the sole purpose of defending the lives of its citizens. In this ongoing war, many among the civilian population, among the innocent, were killed. And tears met tears. I would like you to know that we did not seek to build our lives in this homeland on your ruins…

We were attacked and stood firm, with our backs to the sea. Many fell in the battle, and many lost their homes and fields and orchards and became refugees. This is the way of war. However, war is not inevitable and predestined. Even today, we regret the loss of innocent lives in your midst. Our way is not one of intentional killing…

Members of Knesset, with your permission, I wish to end with a quotation from [former] prime minister Menachem Begin, who at the end of December 1977, said on this podium:

"Where does this irresponsible language come from, in addition to other things which were said? I once said, during an argument with people from Gush Emunim, that I love them today, and will continue to like them tomorrow. I told them: you are wonderful pioneers, builders of the land, settlers on barren soil, in rain and through winter, through all difficulties. However, you have one weakness – you have developed among yourselves a messianic complex.

"You must remember that there were days, before you were born or were only small children, when other people risked their lives day and night, worked and toiled, made sacrifices and performed their tasks without a hint of a messianic complex. And I call on you today, my good friends from Gush Emunim, to perform your tasks with no less modesty than your predecessors, on other days and nights.

"We do not require anyone to supervise the kashrut of our commitment to the Land of Israel!

"We have dedicated our lives to the Land of Israel and to the struggle for its liberation, and will continue to do so."

I call on the people of Israel to unite at this decisive hour. We must find a common denominator for some form of "necessary unity" that will enable us to cope with these fateful days with understanding and through our common destiny, and that will allow us to construct a dam against brotherly hatred, which pushes many over the edge. We have already paid an unbearably high price for murderous fanaticism. We must find the root that brings us all together and must carry out our actions with the wisdom and responsibility that allow us to lead our lives here as a mature and experienced nation. I call on you to support me at this decisive time.

Thank you.

The wounded healer

We all remember the nicks and scratches of childhood.

I vividly remember one incident in the third grade after a schoolyard fight when two friends ignored me through the rest of recess. As we walked back into school, one of them pointed to me and said, "We aren't talking to Chaim. He's not normal. He doesn't have a father, and anyone who doesn't have a father must be crazy." The remark really hurt. It's never enjoyable to be an orphan, but the cruel schoolyard teasing poured salt into an open wound.

Rabbi Chaim Steinmetz in Montreal

What is remarkable is how the pain of childhood misfortune persists. Absent or abusive parents, deprivations, sibling rivalries and many other issues remain a part of us dozens of years later. And we spend a lifetime searching for relief from lingering wounds.

The search may take us in many directions. The self-help section of the bookstore. Comfort food. Scotch. Shopping "therapy." Psychologists. Kabbalah water. Prozac. We open up. We let it out. We bear down. We move on. And in fact, some of the legitimate techniques (and even some of the phony ones) actually help.

But what's fascinating is that some of the emotionally wounded are drawn to help others, reaching beyond their own pain to extend a helping hand. They become what Henri Nouwen, the French theologian, calls "wounded healers."

The wounded healer uses his own suffering as a source of healing. He realizes certain scars are permanent, and that even the best therapies leave a residue of pain. So he searches for a positive response to suffering, and finds it in kindness and altruism. His own pain becomes a guide for healing others. And in helping others overcome broken hearts, the wounded healer also finds some redemption from his own suffering.

Jews have always been wounded healers, inspired by negative experiences in our history to repair the world. Abraham the nomad becomes exceptional at hospitality. The nation that suffered as outsiders in Egypt take the stranger as its special responsibility. And the wandering exile searches constantly for the redemption of the entire world.

Immediately after the August suicide bombings in Be'er Sheva, I visited Siroka Hospital there. The emergency room ambulance, the same one that had carried injured victims of the previous day's bombing, bore the following inscription:

"Given by the wife and children of Benzion Rosenswajg, of Melbourne, on the occasion of his 90th birthday, 6 August, 2004. And in memory of his wife Sarah Chana, children Yechiel Shlomo and Yitzchak Meir and siblings Nathan Moshe and Feige, who perished in the Holocaust."

I know nothing else about Mr. Rosenswajg. But when I saw that ambulance, I realized he is a wounded healer, transforming tragic memories into the gift of life.

Just say no to the violence veto

Last month, students mobbed Quebec Premier Jean Charest, forcing him to cancel a speech at the Université de Montréal.

After being hustled to a side office, Charest meekly presented the award he had been invited to give there. Police made no arrests. Reporters downplayed the riot. And professors, typically, were silent.

Gil Troy in Montreal

This display of university – and governmental – cowardice occurred while controversy raged over Concordia University's decision not to welcome former Israeli prime minister Ehud Barak to speak on campus. Although their decision was also wrong, Concordia administrators have the right to feel somewhat wronged. They overreacted to a perceived threat – and made headlines nationwide. U de M administrators, and the province's premier, underreacted to a real menace, and everybody yawned.

The Université de Montréal outrage shows that the media unfairly pitted the Jewish students who invited Barak against Concordia University, which offered to co-sponsor the speech off-campus. As Concordia's president, Frederick Lowy, recently acknowledged, "The key issue is when and how will the campus be able to welcome international statesmen like Barak." The true culprits are the unidentified hooligans holding Concordia University hostage.

Shortly after the Barak brouhaha, Palestinian Authority Chairman Yasser Arafat's "legal adviser" spoke, uninterrupted, precisely where Barak was unwelcome and where Israeli Finance Minister Bibi Netanyahu's critics had once rioted. It is clear why no "security risk assessment" emerged – pro-Israel students don't riot. Such imbalance is outrageous. No students should feel penalized for being peaceful. No university, no government, should allow a violence veto to flourish.

What is happening in our universities? Where are the professors to teach students that passion is acceptable, but rioting is not? How can faculty members maintain business as usual when violence reigns? Is our freedom to speak that much less precious than our research grants, class timetables and faculty teas? Do we cave in to student hooligans – or do we indulge them because they reflect the prevailing professorial orthodoxy, and we only protect the freedoms of those who agree with us? Université de Montréal, led by Charest's critics, should invite Charest back. Concordia University, led by Palestinians, should invite Barak to speak on campus. And the faculty should mobilize, marching in academic robes to defend our guests and our values.

Every university president in Quebec should sign a joint letter repudiating hooliganism. Every university senate in Canada should follow the lead of the Brock University senate, which, after the Barak fiasco, asked its administration to "reaffirm its commitment to maintain an atmosphere of intellectual freedom and open debate at our campus, and not capitulate to threats and acts of violence by those who forgo peaceful protest and dissent that are the hallmarks of a civil society."

And where are our political leaders? Quebec's Minister for Public Security Jacques Chagnon justified Concordia's cravenness even as his security forces failed to protect his boss. Can't he connect the dots? When we let goons dominate one corner of society, we surrender everywhere. Is the premier comfortable with the precedent he set, empowering the violent to shut him up whenever they fancy? Is he comfortable operating at the lawbreakers' whims? The protesters should have been ejected from the hall, even arrested, and Charest should have spoken – beginning by passionately championing civility.

To avoid repeats of such events, a governmental commission should examine this epidemic of university incivility, while protecting our universities from mob rule by promising insurance riders, extra security and the expertise necessary to host controversial speakers, even if they are Israeli.

Most university hooliganism today, especially in Quebec, festers on the left, ironically repudiating the liberal trailblazers who forged a more open university with University of California at Berkeley's free speech movement 40 years ago. And while leftist leaders must make special efforts to demonstrate tolerance for the thoughts they hate, no side has a monopoly on intolerance.

This is not a left-right issue. These core values are essential to any civilized society, any democracy, every university. If we cannot learn from one another, we perpetuate the orthodoxies of yesterday, rather than envisioning the new ideas of tomorrow. Without the freedom to disagree agreeably, by appeasing the violent, we cannot claim our campuses are "calm." Shame on us all for being so quiet, and shame on us for forgetting history's lessons, "that today they silence the ones we hate, tomorrow they silence us."

Duking it out with campus anti-Semitism

No one can doubt that the heat has been turned up for Jewish students on university campuses across North America. I say "Jewish" and not "Zionist," because – contrary to what some claim – the rhetorical assaults are aimed not at supporters of Israel alone, but at Jews as such.

Sara R. Horowitz in Toronto

What should we do about it?

Nasty sentiments that in the decades following the Holocaust could be expressed only in hushed voices and in like-minded company now find free and open voice in official university venues – the classroom, student newspapers, campus programs. Jewish students, staff, faculty trade battle stories – things they've read, heard and seen – and share feelings of fatigue, shock, disorientation, disappointment, anger and fear.

Take the ongoing brouhaha at Duke University after an op-ed column appeared in the Chronicle, Duke's daily student newspaper, in the wake of last month's controversial conference of the Palestinian Solidarity Movement (PSM) that convened on the North Carolina campus.

Titled "The Jews," the column criticized opposition to the PSM conference. The author characterized the "unprecedented outpouring of pro-Jewish, pro-Israeli support" on the part of Jewish faculty, alumni and staff as a "defiance of free speech at Duke," made worse by being abetted by "a very well-funded and well-organized" Jewish establishment (referring to Duke's Freeman Center for Jewish Life and several Jewish student groups). Referring repeatedly to "the Jews," the column noted their "shocking over-representation" at top-tier universities and their economic and racial privilege.

Using a term popularized by political theorist Norman Finkelstein, whose account of the Holocaust and its aftermath has been debunked by most reputable historians, the column asserted that "the 'Holocaust Industry uses its influence to stifle, not enhance, the Israeli-Palestinian debate, simultaneously belittling the real struggles for socioeconomic and political equality faced, most notably, by black Americans." Further, the writer insisted, "Jewish suffering—along with exorbitant Jewish privilege in the United States – amounts to… a stilted, one-dimensional conversation where Jews feel the overwhelming sense of entitlement not to be criticized or offended."

Several days after running the column, the Chronicle published a response from university president Richard Brodhead, in the form of a letter to the editor. Duke university's home page features a link to this letter. The first six paragraphs of the letter praise the participants in the PSM conference, and castigate those who tried to pressure the university to cancel it. The seventh paragraph – five lines, or two sentences, in length – expresses regret at the Chronicle column: "The column was headed 'The Jews,' as if Jews were susceptible to group definition, and though its author probably did not mean to, it revived stereotypical images that have played a long-running role in the history of anti-Semitism." The remaining two paragraphs speak in general terms against prejudice.

Since the column appeared, there have been many responses from other Duke students and faculty – op-eds, letters to the editor and internet postings. While a few outdid the anti-Semitism of the original column, most decried anti-Semitism, taking pains to contextualize it historically, to demonstrate why they found the column offensive, to debate the newspaper's rosy picture of the PSM conference, to ask why the columnist accorded only one side of a political debate the right to "free speech." Many letter writers made it a point to identify themselves as non-Jews.

For those of us who study, teach and work on university campuses, the Duke incident points to a way of dealing with anti-Semitism. Education and reasoned argument are the raison d'etre of the academy. We need to develop and employ the knowledge and critical skills to understand when statements and actions are or are not anti-Semitic, and to explain this to others on our campuses. We should be prepared to defend our political positions with reasoned and rational arguments, not labelling, and demand the same from others. When necessary, we should be ready to demonstrate to friends, colleagues, classmates why certain statements go beyond political disagreement and constitute bigotry or hate speech.

Duking it out through civil discourse and reasoned argument is neither easy nor comfortable. But not to do so would be to cede the argument to the ignorant and the malevolent. And we cannot afford to do that.

The Kirshner File

Israel is approaching a fateful moment

Israel moved a step closer last week to a unilateral withdrawal from the Gaza Strip and a handful of settlements in the northern West Bank as the Knesset passed Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's disengagement plan by a margin of 67 to 45, with seven abstentions. But Sharon paid a heavy price for his putative victory. In keeping with the Likud's previous rejection of a pullout, 17 out of 40 Likud Knesset members voted against the proposal, throwing Sharon's party into disarray yet again. In anger, Sharon fired two ministers, notably the outspoken hawk Uzi Landau. Meanwhile, four of Sharon's senior cabinet ministers, including Finance Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, his rival and heir apparent, threatened to resign within two weeks unless he called a national referendum. Sharon refused to comply with their demand, describing it as a stalling tactic to derail his plan.

Sheldon Kirshner in Toronto

Should Netanyahu and his colleagues make good on their threat, and should the pro-settler National Religious Party also leave his coalition government, Sharon would be left with just over 50 Knesset seats. He would then be forced to either form an alliance with the Labor party – which supports a withdrawal – or call new elections.

The position Sharon finds himself in brings to mind the untenable situation his predecessor, Ehud Barak, faced in the summer of 2000. Having decided to negotiate a final status peace agreement with the Palestinians at the Camp David summit, Barak so alienated right-wing ministers opposed to his vision of territorial compromise that they staged a palace revolt. Barak had no alternative but to seek a fresh mandate from the electorate. Even if Sharon outmanoeuvres his critics and survives this crisis, the passage of his plan is far from assured.

The embattled Sharon faces major hurdles in the bitterly divided Knesset, whose composition is a reflection of the deep ideological schisms within Israeli society. Parliament must still pass legislation authorizing compensation to the settlers – payouts will likely average $330,000 (US) per resident – and evacuation of the settlements, 21 in Gaza and four of more than 100 in the West Bank.

But Sharon, the godfather of the settler movement who is known as "the bulldozer," is determined to prevail. "I will never give in to pressure and threats," he defiantly declared last week.

Sharon unveiled his plan last February after telling Israelis in December that "painful compromises" were required of Israel. Sharon, an ardent opponent of the Oslo accords, reached this conclusion after a series of disquieting events in Israel and much contemplation over Israel's viability as a Jewish state.

He was reportedly shocked by two developments. Four former directors of the Shin Bet – Israel's internal intelligence agency – asserted that he was leading the country to the abyss, and the chief of staff, Gen. Moshe Yaalon, implied that his policy in the territories was counter-productive.

Sharon was also apparently shaken by a letter from several disaffected reserve pilots refusing to take part in missions in the West Bank and Gaza. And he was taken aback by the support for Yossi Beilin's Geneva initiative, which calls for a virtual Israeli pullout from the territories within the context of a two-state solution.

In general, Sharon believes that a withdrawal from Gaza will leave Israel with more defensible borders, ease Israel's growing demographic problem (the Palestinian birthrate far outstrips Israel's) and, in that vein, help preserve its democratic character. He claims that a unilateral withdrawal is necessary because Israel has no reliable partner in Yasser Arafat, the ailing president of the Palestinian Authority who has been flown to France for medical treatment.

Rabbi Avraham Shapira

As well, Sharon was concerned by diplomatic and strategic considerations. He thinks that his plan will relieve international pressure to impose an agreement on Israel, reinforce vital U.S. backing and, in the teeth of fierce Palestinian opposition, enable him to retain major settlement blocs in the West Bank."I am firmly convinced… that this disengagement will strengthen Israel's hold over the territory, which is essential to our existence," Sharon said on Oct. 25 in a veiled reference to the West Bank.

And in a statement designed to placate the Israeli far right, Sharon's close aide and confidant, Dov Weisglass, alluded to Sharon's ulterior motives. "The significance of the plan is the freezing of the peace process," Weisglass told Ha'aretz. "Effectively, this whole package called the Palestinian state, with all that it entails, has been removed indefinitely from our agenda… The disengagement is actually formaldehyde."

For the Palestinians, Weisglass' extraordinary candour confirmed their deep-seated suspicion that Sharon pays only lip service to the now dormant internationally sponsored "road map" peace plan and is not serious about a just and lasting peace or supportive of a contiguous Palestinian state.

For his part, Sharon insists that his plan is not a substitute for peace talks, that the status quo is unsustainable and that he is open to negotiations once a trustworthy Palestinian leadership emerges and the terrorism that defines the current intifadah ceases. The Palestinians dismiss his words as mere rhetoric.

Ironically, Jewish settlers may distrust Sharon as much as they distrust the Palestinians. Once a hero in their eyes, he is now regarded as a dangerous adversary who must be stopped in his tracks. As a result, secular and religious nationalists alike have attacked him remorselessly. Two months ago, 185 army officers, former MKs, scholars, scientists and public figures signed a virulent petition denouncing the planned uprooting of the settlers as "a national crime and a crime against humanity" and urging troops not to co-operate. Among the petitioners were Ben Zion Netanyahu, a historian and father of the former prime minister, and Meir Har Zion, the legendary soldier who served under Sharon in the 1950s.

Uzi Landau

Shortly afterward, Nadia Matar, head of the Women in Green group, compared the administrator of the planned disengagement plan, Yonatan Bassy, to a Nazi-era Judenrat official. In late October, Reuven Rivlin, the Knesset Speaker and once Sharon's staunch ally, suggested that he had broken with the principles of Likud and the Land of Israel movement.

The flak from certain rabbinical circles has been just as harsh and relentless. Avraham Shapira – the former Ashkenazi chief rabbi of Israel who now heads the Mercaz Harav Yeshiva in Jerusalem, the incubator of the Gush Emunim settlement movement – issued a stinging proclamation that Jewish soldiers are forbidden to uproot settlements. Taking their cue from him, 60 pro-settlement rabbis signed an open letter endorsing his views, while two Chabad rabbis likened Sharon to a Nazi collaborator and one rabbi compared Sharon's plan to the 1938 Munich treaty (which conceded the Sudetenland to Nazi Germany).

In recent weeks, dozens of rabbis sympathetic to the settlers, including Shlomo Riskin of Efrat, and the leaders of religious kibbutzim, have circulated an open letter expressing their opposition to a mutiny in the army. "Refusal to obey an order given by the government is tantamount to a giant step toward civil war," Rabbi Riskin wrote.

The spectre of civil war, though unimaginable today, has been raised by Sharon, opposition leader Shimon Peres, Defence Minister Shaul Mofaz and Pinhas Wallerstein, a senior figure of the Yesha Council of Jewish Settlements.

"Recently, we have seen a severe campaign of incitement, with intentional calls for civil war," Sharon warned. Peres said he is terrified by the mood gripping Israel. "I am afraid that someone will try to kill the prime minister," he said, echoing a comment by Shin Bet director Avraham Dichter last July that some Jewish extremists want Sharon dead. Speaking on the eve of memorial services marking the ninth anniversary of Yitzhak Rabin's assassination, Mofaz said, "We do not know if there is today another loaded weapon waiting to again strike Israeli democracy." Wallerstein said apocalyptically, "He [Sharon] is determined to lead the country to a split which could degenerate into civil war."

Bassy, the official in charge of evacuating the settlers, contends that the majority will leave their homes in Gaza and the West Bank quietly. But no one can be certain. The settlers and their supporters – a noisy, well-organized minority trying to impose their views on the nation – feel they have been betrayed by Sharon, who has vowed to fight terrorism with all his might and, indeed, has done so by staging continual raids into Palestinian areas.

It's clear that Israel is fast approaching a pivotal junction in its turbulent history, and that its fate may well hinge on what road it takes.

Max Rebboh
General Manager

The all new LR3

We'll be happy to make this dream vehicle yours ... visit our ultra-accessible new showroom today and discover the Coventry North difference.

COVENTRY NORTH LAND ROVER
123 Autopark Circle, Woodbridge, ON
Tel: (905) 265-8677
www.coventrynorth.com

Not Remodeled.
Not Revised.
Not Reassembled.
Not Reconfigured.
Not Redone.
Not Retrofitted.
Not Reinstalled.
Not Refreshed.

All New.
Land Rover LR3
Available for sale November 1.

LAND ROVER

Greater Toronto Area

Hadassah-WIZO Bazaar a shopper's paradise

80TH ANNUAL BAZAAR:

More than 8,000 people turned up for Toronto Hadassah-WIZO's 80th annual bazaar, held last week at the National Trade Centre, Exhibition Place. Highlights included a silent auction, celebrity cooking demonstrations, a fabulous finds auction and a large variety of new and used items. [Carolyn Blackman photos]

Ounce for Ounce the best deal in town

Now featuring Chicken & Ribs – $15.95*
*Limited time offer

Come to Le Biftheque Steakhouse for the tender prime rib and steak. Come back for the market fresh seafood, savory chicken and ribs and tempting everyDay specials. Terrific for lunch or dinner. Great for business or pleasure. Perfect for banquets or special events. And it's only at Le Biftheque. Who Knew?

LE BIFTHÈQUE STEAKHOUSE
Who knew?

7501 Woodbine Ave. (N. of Steeles) 905-305-1808, 25 Carlson Court (W. of Dixon Rd. and Hwy. 27) 416-798-4333
96 Richmond St. W. (Downtown Sheraton Centre) 416-366-4333; www.lebiftheque.com

INSPIRATION

ENJOY LIFE in the forest

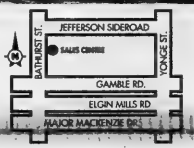
A ONCE IN A LIFETIME OPPORTUNITY TO LIVE IN A SECLUDED
WOODED COMMUNITY OFF BATHURST
IN RICHMOND HILL'S SPECTACULAR INSPIRATION COMMUNITY

WOODSIDE VILLAS
ON EXTRA DEEP FOREST LOTS
FROM $349,990
FREEHOLD TOWNHOMES
ATTACHED ONLY BY DOUBLE CAR GARAGE
INCLUDING
• 9' CEILINGS • HARDWOOD FLOORING • GRANITE COUNTER TOPS
& MUCH MORE
BROKERS PROTECTED

Rendering is artist's concept. Prices are correct at press time E. & O.E.

Sales Centre Hours
MON.-THURS.: 1 P.M. - 8 P.M.
FRIDAYS: 12 P.M. - 5 P.M.
SAT., SUN. & HOLIDAYS: 11 A.M. - 6 P.M.
905-884-8323
tributecommunities.com

Tribute communities



We Create Millionaires

You are: Entrepreneurial, Influential, Resourceful and... have a strong desire to pursue a lifestyle instead of a job.

We are looking for you. We will help you capitalize on the emerging Wellness Boom.

Opening new countries:
Russia, Singapore, Poland, Romania & South Africa.
Special program for professionals.

To learn more call 416-760-2002 - 24 hours Ahuva Simone

SHAAR SHALOM SYNAGOGUE

located in Thornhill requires an Administrator to assume responsibilities for the day to day activities of the synagogue for its 550 families.
The successful candidate must have excellent people skills, be able to self manage as well as manage a staff. Must have good working knowledge of computer and accounting systems.

Please reply in writing to
Shaar Shalom Executive Search Committee
at fax # 905-763-1459 or
2 Simonston BLVD, Thornhill Ont, L3T 4L1

At Netivot HaTorah we teach values.

At Netivot HaTorah we emphasize a Torah observant way of life, a love of learning, the land of Israel and our community.

We are committed to providing your child with an excellent Jewish and General Studies education.

Please join us for an information session about Netivot HaTorah's nursery through grade 8 program on Wednesday December 1, 2004
Morning session – 10:00 a.m. OR Evening session – 7:30 p.m.
R.S.V.P. 905-771-1234 ext. 210
– Limited Space Available –

Netivot HaTorah
נתיבות התורה
Torah. Israel. Derech Eretz.

To arrange a personal interview please contact:
Eileen Goldstein, Preschool Co-ordinator
18 Atkinson Avenue, Thornhill, Ontario L4J 8C8
Tel 905-771-1234 Fax 905-771-1807 www.netivot.com

Jewish studies and a horah, in China

By MORTON WEINFELD

Guest Voice

In mid-October, I participated in an unusual academic conference. The University of Nanjing in China hosted a conference on Jewish studies, the third of its kind. More than 30 academic papers were presented by Chinese and non-Chinese scholars, professors and graduate students. Most of the non-Chinese scholars present were Israeli academics, two were Canadians.

Papers presented by the Chinese scholars ranged from the philology of biblical Hebrew to a study of the German-Jewish philosopher Hermann Cohen to a review of Chinese press coverage in the 1930s of the Nazi persecution of the Jews.

The conference reflected the attempt by Prof. Xu Xin of the University of Nanjing to help solidify the young foundations of academic Jewish studies in China. Xu is even more unusual than this conference. He is a Judeophile of the first rank. His spacious Nanjing apartment could easily be mistaken for a North American Jewish home, replete with a mezuzah, books on Judaism and Judaica artifacts, and photos of him with luminaries such as former Israeli prime ministers Shimon Peres and Yitzhak Shamir, and Nobel Prize-winner, author Elie Wiesel.

The University of Nanjing is now the flagship institution in the area of Jewish studies, with two designated professors, but other programs and courses are being developed elsewhere.

Why Jewish studies in China? There is no pool of Jewish students eager to take courses or to specialize. There are no Jewish donors in China eager to endow Chairs. And one can argue that Judaism and the history of Jews have had no impact on Chinese history and culture, compared to the greater impact of Christian-European and Islamic civilizations.

Nevertheless, there seems to be a genuine curiosity about Jews among educated Chinese. They know the Jews, like the Chinese, are an ancient people, and that Judaism is the precursor of both Christianity and Islam. Perhaps there is something in the Jewish experience applicable to China. The Chinese are attempting to synthesize tradition with modernity. Jews, both in the Diaspora and in Israel, have been rather successful in forging just such a synthesis, with a pluralistic approach. For example, in Israel one finds haredi yeshivot co-existing with modern universities and scientific institutes.

Chinese scholars are researching the few direct Jewish connections to China, where there has never been and is not now any anti-Semitism to speak of. Many educated Chinese know about the old Jewish community in Kaifeng, which originated several hundred years ago and died out in the early 20th century. Many others also know of the later Jewish community in Shanghai, especially the thousands of Nazi-era refugees who fled there before and during the war.

The ongoing dislike of the Japanese may also play a role. The bitterness runs deep and is openly expressed in casual conversation with young Chinese and in the memorial/museum to the 300,000 Chinese killed in Nanjing in 1937 – the Chinese Yad Vashem. The fact that both Jews and Chinese were victimized by the Axis powers of Nazi Germany and Japan may bind Jews and Chinese together as contemporary victims of fascism.

In any case, Israel has been cultivating ties with China for some time. Recently these ties have been commercial and military. The Chinese are also ambivalent about the Islamic Chinese minority on their borders and in their cities. The growth of Jewish studies in China enhances those ties, as some of the younger Chinese scholars have begun to do a year of Jewish studies at Israeli universities, notably Tel Aviv.

During the conference, a concert of Jewish music was organized at the University of Nanjing. More than 1,000 Chinese students packed the hall. There was a surrealistic quality to the event. The band consisted of an ex-pat American Jew working in Nanjing, and four local Chinese musicians. As a band, they were second rate, amateurish, with a decided lack of energy, but they were technically competent and got the notes right. That was enough.

My guess is that for most of the audience, this was their first time hearing these standard Jewish-Israeli-klezmer tunes. (I am still not clear why they came – they were not coerced in any way. Maybe these students are curious about anything that is not Chinese.) But they visibly loved the show. They listened attentively as Xu introduced each selection with some background, and they clapped wildly after each song.

At the end of the concert, several of the visiting professors, including yours truly, climbed on stage to add some needed Jewish dancing, singing and ruach to the event, and the audience responded with even more enthusiasm.

For many reasons – from intellectual to geopolitical – it is vitally important to support Jewish studies in Chinese universities. There is a way that diaspora Jews can help. As Xu pointed out, academic books in the area of Jewish studies are in short supply in China.

Many readers of this article may have at home shelves of English language academic or scholarly books dealing with all areas of Jewish studies, notably Bible, Jewish religion and rabbinics, Jewish philosophy, Jewish history, Jewish literature and teaching of Hebrew language. Some books may be duplicates, others may be dated. They are needed here. Perhaps there are also such unused books in synagogue libraries or in the Judaica collection of our universities.

It would be a real mitzvah if readers could put together one or two (or more) boxes of the best of these books and mail them (please absorb the cost) to Prof. Xu Xin, Department of Religious Studies, Nanjing University, Nanjing 210093, China. They are desperately needed in China. Xu will send duplicates he receives to other universities. Please help.

Prof. Xu Xin of the University of Nanjing [Shoshannah Zirkin photo]

Morton Weinfeld is a professor of sociology at McGill University.

Jewish Life

Becoming a Jewish writer

By MARK MIETKIEWICZ

Sholom Aleichem. Naomi Ragen. Philip Roth. You.

So you want to be a Jewish writer.

If you have the Great Jewish Novel inside you and need help to get it out, there are people who want to help you get it on paper – or onto the web. November is Jewish Book Month, and now is the time to end the procrastination and excuses. Here are some Internet resources to help you out.

Start off by joining the discussions area at JBooks.com, The Online Jewish Book Community. The section is divided into areas looking at literary events and publishing news, favourite Jewish authors and books. But you really want to visit the Creative Writing section where you can post your own fiction, poetry or other creative writing and respond to others' work. When I peeked in, writers had posted their poems, short stories and attempts at humour.

The critiques are usually supportive but can also carry an edge such as this one: "Interesting topic, but you should think about running this by someone who's a professional writer or who knows grammar very well before sending it in. Compare it with what you read in magazines, and try to make it read the same. Good luck." [www. jbooks.com/discussions/]

David Grossman's Jewish Writing website also encourages writers to join its e-mail forum. According to the site, a different author's work will be critiqued weekly and a publisher will be profiled. In addition to tips for preparing your work for an audience, Grossman punctuates his site with sayings about how difficult good writing can be, such as this one from Franklin P. Jones. "Honest criticism is hard to take, particularly from a relative, a friend, an acquaintance or a stranger." [www. geocities.com/jewish writing/]

Many universities offer courses on Jewish creative writing however, these are usually face-to-face programs that are not offered over the Internet. I did come across one web-based organization, the Jewish Writing Institute. Geared primarily toward women writers, the institute aims to "foster self-discovery and intensify one's Jewish and spiritual identity." Courses focus on Finding Your Poetic Voice, The Hidden World of Being Funny and Reaching Kedushah (Holiness) Through Creativity. Even if you aren't going to enroll, check out the articles about jump-starting your writing, publishing in Jewish magazines and using a pen name. [www.jewishwriting.com]

Anybody with the most rudimentary HTML skills can cobble together a website to exhibit his or her literary abilities. But if you'd like to be in the company of other Jewish writers, there are many quality online journals that you may want to consider. Take a look at Zeek: A Jewish Journal of Thought and Culture [www.zeek.net], Women in Judaism: Contemporary Writings [http://tinyurl.com/5rgke] and Mima'amakim: Journal of Artistic Exploration of the Jewish Religious Experience. [www.mimaamakim.org]

After you've appeared on the web, you may want to look into getting published between the covers of a book. Although the Association of Jewish Book Publishers no longer exists, a page created by the association still does. It has contact information for about 50 publishers of Jewish content. [www. avotaynu.com/ ajbp.html] And if you want to find out what other writers are writing about and where they're touring, don't miss Anna Olswanger's Jewish Book & Author News. [www.olswanger.com/]

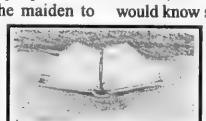
While you are considering your future as a Jewish writer, you may want to reflect on what that actually means. That's the focus of Anne Rolphe's article, "From Jewish Writing to Writing Jewish," which appeared in Moment Magazine. [http://tinyurl.com/6nf33] National Jewish Book Award winner Dara Horn writes in the Jewish Journal of Greater Los Angeles that nowadays, if you've written something "about someone named Goldberg who once ate a bagel – poof, you have become a Jewish writer." She argues that Jewish writers have a responsibility to go beyond the stereotypes and become familiar with traditional Jewish sources, so that genuine Jewish themes can be incorporated in their writing. [http://tinyurl.com/5w9nd]

"Writing that draws on such a legacy has the potential not only to inform but to enrich, to enliven, to nourish, to revive the dead."

Mark Mietkiewicz is a Toronto-based Internet producer who writes, lectures and teaches about the Jewish Internet. He can be reached at highway@ rogers.com.

The lesson of gemilut chasadim

By RABBI MARTIN BERMAN



And Eliezer said: "O Lord, God of my master Abraham, grant me good fortune today, and deal graciously with my master Abraham. Here I stand by the spring as the daughters of the townspeople come out to draw water. Let the maiden to whom I say, 'Please, lower your jar that I may drink,' and who replies, 'Drink, and I will also water your camels,' let her be the one whom You have decreed for your servant Isaac. Thereby I will know that You have dealt graciously with my master."

What does Eliezer mean when he says, "Let her be the one You have decreed for your servant Isaac?"

Rashi says that she will be worthy of him since she will be charitable and is worthy to enter into the house of Abraham.

The Keli Yakar starts out by saying that the section about Rivka is found immediately after the passage about Abraham buying the burial site, the Cave of Machpela. He finds fault with Ephron, who asked for a large sum of money. He displayed an evil disposition. People can be known by the way they relate to money. If a person behaves righteously when dealing with money, then you know he is not a hypocrite. One characteristic reveals them all.

So Eliezer felt about Rivka. One characteristic was enough to testify to all of her character. If she has a good disposition and is a practitioner of gemilut chasadim (kind deeds), that's all he needed to know. So he asked for water for himself, and if she offered to do more, he would know she was worthy.

The Keli Yakar goes on to quote the rabbis of the Talmud. "If a bride has beautiful eyes, the rest of her body needs no inspection." How could the rabbis say that? After all, he notes, there are many ugly women with beautiful eyes. Furthermore, how can the rabbis say to look for external beauty, for isn't it so that (as we read in Proverbs), "Grace is deceitful and beauty is vain!" The Keli Yakar concludes that the rabbis do not mean physically beautiful eyes, but the spiritual dimension of gemilut chasadim.

Abraham was known as a practitioner of gemilut chasadim. Eliezer knew that in order to be worthy of Abraham's household, a woman had to be of a similar nature.

The importance of gemilut chasadim was stressed by our sages. Anyone who was cruel or of a hard disposition is suspect of not being of the seed of Abraham. The Jewish ideal of caring for the needy, of reaching out a hand to the stranger, of helping those who are in need of help no matter what their station in life, has influenced Jews throughout the ages.

The prophet Micah said: "It has been told to you, Man, what is good and what does the Lord seek from you? But to do justice and love kindness." The prophet puts justice and kindness together. They are not two separate ideas with nothing in common. Justice must be tempered with kindness. A society must be built on two building blocks: justice and kindness.

That is the reason Jews have often been found in the forefront of movements that sought to ameliorate the conditions of the weak in society. It was not just that liberal political parties served Jews' self interests, but that their platforms of caring for the downtrodden found resonance in the Jewish soul, the good disposition that is our genetic inheritance from Abraham.

We risk losing our Jewish soul if we accept a notion of the world where the needs of the weak and the defenceless are not protected. If we wish to be seen as the seed of Abraham, then we must always practice gemilut chasadim. We must always work for a society that gives equal weight to justice and kindness.

When Eliezer spoke to God, he said: "Thereby I will know that You have dealt graciously with my master." If we seek God's kindness, then we must deal graciously and kindly with others.

Rabbi Berman is spiritual leader of Shaar Shalom Synagogue in Thornhill, Ont.

willow academy

Enriched Academics in a Nurturing Environment

Independent School in midtown Toronto for girls and boys JK-Grade 6

Welcomes bright, creative, curious children

OPEN HOUSE
November 27th, 2004 – 2:00-4:00 pm

- Differentiated, individualized and stimulating program of challenging activities and expanded opportunities
- Based on the Schoolwide Enrichment Model, Multiple Intelligences and best practices in gifted and enriched education
- Thematic curriculum designed to motivate, interest, encourage, and challenge students to become higher-level thinkers and creative producers
- Offering both a Specialized Gifted Program with Willow Academy's onsite Enrichment Co-ordinator as well as an enriched program for all students

243 St. Clair Ave. W.
For information call 416-972-6717
or visit www.willowacademy.ca

Toasted marshmallows and bonfires.
Long hikes through nature's glorious pine trees and sandy trails.
The excitement of talent shows, the shivers of scary stories under a moonlit sky... fun and friendships that will last a lifetime.

Do you remember those days?
If so, we want to speak with you.

Summer Camp and Trip Resources, an international summer program referral service with offices in Massachusetts and New York, is expanding and looking for a qualified associate to run the Toronto area office.

The ideal candidate will be a former camper or camp counselor who enjoys working with parents and children. The person selected will work as an independent contractor, and have a home office. This is not a franchise. You will be part of an organization that has over 400 different programs under contract and will represent the "best of the best".

Interested? Please call Judy Levine, Director, at 1-800-362-2267 or email at judy@summercampsandtrips.com

Summer Camp & Trip Resources
Call 1-800-362-CAMP (2267) or 508-877-3048 www.summercampsandtrips.com

Speaking out

Dr. Elmasry meets his Waterloo

This week's editorial focuses on comments made recently by Dr. Elmasry on the Michael Coren Show

Ed Morgan, National President, Canadian Jewish Congress

By ED MORGAN

Democracy is a wonderful thing. Its freedoms ensure that individuals with divergent views will have the opportunity to speak their mind. But it can make for a rough game, with some victories and defeats along the way.

As rough as the game can be, though, it does have rules. Dr. Mohammed Elmasry, a professor of engineering at the University of Waterloo and the president of the Canadian Islamic Congress, recently demonstrated the outer limits of those rules.

The incident occurred when Dr. Elmasry made an appearance on the popular Michael Coren TV show. In the course of the program, Elmasry stated his view that all Israelis aged 18 years and older are legitimate targets for attack. Elmasry's logic? Since Israel has a universal military draft, all Israelis above a certain age are combatants whether or not they are in uniform; whether or not they are carrying a weapon. One could logically extend Elmasry's observation to include all Israelis, regardless of where they live. After all, if a person is an evil military enemy on one side of the border, he or she is the same enemy when visiting the other side of the border or across the ocean. Elmasry's comments were aimed at justifying the acts of terror that have plagued Israelis from Tel Aviv to Taba, from Megiddo to Mombasa.

